

Repairers of the Breach

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | April 25, 2024

Isaiah 58 says we “shall build the old waste places... raise up the foundations... and... be called the Repairer of Broken walls (NIV).” What is the wall that has been breached? And what is the breach that we are to repair?

Codependency: What It Is—And How to Break Free

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | April 25, 2024

There is healing for people who struggle with dependency relationships, but the first steps are realizing that one is struggling with dependency and differentiating those emotions from healthy love.

Imputed and Imparted Righteousness—Design versus Imposed Law

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | April 25, 2024

The way we understand the Bible and its themes, such as imputed and imparted righteousness, is determined by the law lens through which we view them. What is the reality?

Salvation and the Cleansing of Our Spirit—Part 2

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | April 25, 2024

Let's examine how Jesus' vicarious, self-sacrificial, substitutionary death provides for our salvation, for our redemption, rebirth, and cleansing from sin.

Salvation and the Cleansing of Our Spirit—Part 1

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | April 25, 2024

In order to intelligently cooperate most effectively with God for the cleansing of our spirits, we must understand what our spirit is.

Urim and Thummim: Judgment and the Sanctuary

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | April 25, 2024

“The sanctuary was designated as the place of divine judgment as indicated by the judgment of Urim (Num. 27:21) and by the breastplate of judgment of the high priest...” When you read descriptions like this, what comes to mind? Something legal?

Happiness from Killing Babies? A Closer Look at Psalm 137

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | April 25, 2024

Psalms 137 is the culmination of a short psalm that laments Israel's captivity in Babylon and concludes with what appears to be a very human, worldly response to injustice—retaliation against the enemy. But is this what the Holy Spirit actually inspired the psalmist to write, or did something get confused in the translation?

Hope and Healing for Those Struggling with Anxiety

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | April 25, 2024

Pain is designed to signal us when something isn't functioning as it should so that we can address the problem quickly, remove the offending source, and prevent more serious injury. Anxiety serves the same purpose; it alerts us that something is wrong...

Reformers and Today

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | April 25, 2024

Will we be people who love to grow, discover, and move forward in new epiphanies, deeper comprehension, and closer intimacy with God, which occurs as we press forward in the knowledge of God, His kingdom, His design laws, methods, and principles?

Death: A Punishment Inflicted by God or a Natural Consequence of Sin?

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | April 25, 2024

If the power of death is the devil's power and God does not inflict death as punishment for sin, then what do we do with texts like these?

Who Are the 144,000?

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | April 25, 2024

There has been much speculation throughout history as to whom comprises the 144,000 of Revelation chapter seven. Do they represent the totality of the saved or just a subset of the saved? Are they the literal biological descendants of Abraham? Is this a literal or symbolic number?
