> Even the most cursory reading of the book of Deuteronomy shows how crucial obedience to the law was for the nation of Israel. In a real sense, it was the people's covenant obligation. God had done so much for them and would continue to do so much for them — things that they couldn't do for themselves and that they did not deserve to begin with (which is what grace is, God giving us what we don't deserve). And what He asked in response was, well, obedience to His law. (2021 4Q SDA Adult Bible Study Guide lesson 7 Monday).

What do you think of this? How is this true and how is this not true?

It is true that none of us have earned God's grace. His grace is not a paycheck, a medal, or a reward for some achievement on our part. So in this sense God's grace is not something we can claim by our work or action.

But to limit our definition in this way restricts our understanding of grace, God, and our value to God. It is really an incomplete definition or understanding that emerges from holding the imposed law model rather than design law.

The reason it is taught that we don't deserve God's grace is because we have all sinned and fallen short of the glory of God, that all our righteousness is filthy rags—which are true statements. But when these truths are applied to the question of deserving grace through the imposed law lens it focuses on our performance rather than on God's character our creation and purpose in God's estimation and therefore ends up with the classic definition of deserving being based upon our performance, conduct, or action.

However, design law understands deeper truths. That Adam, Eve, and Jesus were the only humans who had a choice not to sin. The rest of us are born in sin and conceived in iniquity (Psalm 51:5). We all sin because we are all born with a terminal sin condition that we did not choose and will keep sinning unless we experience God's grace. Therefore, the statements about all our righteousness being filthy rags and how we have all fallen short of God's glory are diagnostic statements and statements designed to reveal the futility of legal or human-devised treatment plans to the sin problem.

So the design law way of understanding the idea of deserving grace does not focus on our goodness, our works, our efforts to save ourselves, but on God and what He values and who we are in God's order and we can ask a question like this:

Does a child born with a terminal illness deserve to be treated with kindness, compassion, and offered a remedy if one exists to restore them to wellness—even though they have done nothing to earn such treatment? Why would they deserve it? Does a child, simply by being a human child, deserve the love of its parents—not because the child earned anything but because of who the child is to the parents? Do we have value and worth to God, not because of our achievements or any work we have done, but because of who God created us to be, because of what God has designed for us and invested in us?

And thus, God's grace doesn't say anything about how good we are, but about how good God is and how much He loves and values us.

Read second paragraph:

> As David wrote: "The law of the LORD is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the LORD is sure, making wise the simple; the statutes of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart; the commandment of the LORD is pure, enlightening the eyes; the fear of the LORD is clean, enduring forever; the judgments of the LORD are true and righteous altogether. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold; sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. Moreover by them Your servant is warned, and in keeping them there is great reward" (Ps. 19:7-11, NKJV). (2023 1Q SDA Adult Bible Study Guide page 96).

What does this mean?

What law is perfect converting the soul and making us wise etc.?

Is this speaking of the Ten Commandments? Is it speaking of the Torah? Is it speaking of the reality of God's design laws, truths, principles, and methods?

How do we understand the perfect law? Let's examine a quote by one of the founders of the SDA Church, written 130 years ago and see if there are any insights that apply to us today in regard to this question of God's law and how we understand it:

The Jewish nation stood forth among the nations of the earth as a proud, haughty people, who claimed to have great knowledge and to manifest great piety. [Was the Jewish nation chosen by God and identified as His special people? For what purpose? Exclusive salvation? No! To be the avenue through whom Messiah would come and simultaneously be God's helpers in preparing the world for the first advent of Jesus. Thus, they were blessed with the inspired written Word of God and also the other various ceremonial teaching tools. And what happened when Jesus came? Did the nation, the Jewish officials and religious institution, their General Conference known as the Sanhedrin, accept Jesus? Does their history serve as an object lesson? Is there an organization on earth today that stand in a similar place—an organization that claims to be especially called by God to prepare the world for the second Advent, and claims similar blessings to those that the Jews claimed such as: Inspired writings, the Sabbath, a health message, a sanctuary message? And could this organization take the same route the Jews did 2000 years ago claiming to have great knowledge and manifesting great piety yet end up opposing Christ? Jesus said that when He returns there will be people who thought they were serving Him and He will tell them to be gone, that they were workers of iniquity. And when they ask Him when had they mistreated Him, He tells them "as you have done it to the least of these you have done it unto me." What did the SDA church leadership officially do to its members during COVID? They abandoned them, sided with the state to coerce the consciences of their employees, patients, students, and members.] The Jews looked down upon the Gentiles as upon those who were far beneath them, because of darkness and error. [Do SDAs do this? What do SDAs call counties in this country where there are Christian churches from other denominations but no SDA presence? "Dark counties."] Yet the pretentious fig tree bore not fruit, but leaves only. If they had had spiritual understanding, they would have seen and understood the mission of Christ. [What does spiritual understanding mean? It means understanding reality, God's design laws, the larger view, rather than a list of religious rules. What about today, could this be said of many church leaders today, that they don't have spiritual understanding and therefore they don't understand the mission of Christ. They think His mission was to pay a legal penalty to an offended God and then offer that blood payment in our behalf to propitiate the anger and wrath of that god. This is paganism, it is built upon the imposed law lie. Thus we are called to return to worship the Creator whose laws are design laws.] The light dimly seen at first would have increased in brightness, expanding unto the perfect day. If they had followed on to know the Lord, they would have known that his goings forth are prepared as the morning. Oh, what a light would have shone upon Judah and Jerusalem had they but welcomed the light that was sent them of heaven! What a transforming power would have been manifest in life and character! [Where would the heavenly light have had its impact? Upon the hearts, minds, lives, and characters of the people! People who embrace heaven's light become more like Jesus. Could this same lament be said about the church today?] They would have been just what Jesus longed to have them be,—a living, shining light in the darkness. They would have borne the noblest credentials that any one of the followers of Christ can bear. They would have been representatives of Christ, monuments of the power of the Spirit of God upon human hearts. The Spirit of God would have worked a miracle upon the heart, changing it from a heart of stone to a heart of flesh. They would have known what is meant by the regeneration of the Spirit, for the whole moral taste would have been changed, and they would have loved the things they once hated, and hated the things they once delighted in. Signs of the Times November 13, 1893, par. 1 [Again where is the impact of Christ's sacrifice to occur? Not in record books or courtrooms but in hearts and minds of people. Satan has succeeded in shutting away the victory and power of Christ to many by getting them to conceive of Christ's mission through human law, through legal application of payments to God in heaven, rather than the reality of our healing Remedy.]

The words of Christ to the Pharisees come home with power to every living soul to whom the light of the Sun of Righteousness has been revealed. [This applies to us today.] To those who have caught a glimpse of celestial truth, to whom have come some rays of enlightenment, is the warning given. For your souls' sake do not turn away and be disobedient to the heavenly vision. You may have seen something in regard to the righteousness of Christ, but there is truth yet to be seen clearly, and that should be estimated by you as precious as rare jewels. [This is the righteousness by faith message, the message the SDA church leadership rejected in 1888. The message that through faith we become the righteousness of God (2Cor 5:21). This was replaced with the penal/legal lie that through faith we get legally accounted or declared righteous even though we are not. It was a rejection of the truth of God's design law and an embracing the imposed law lie. Notice what this author says next.] You will see the law of God and interpret it to the people in an entirely different light from what you have done in the past, for the law of God will be seen by you as revealing a God of mercy and righteousness. [The law of God must be taken out of the imposed law setting which always has God punishing for justice sake and put back into its true setting of the design protocols the Creator built reality to operate upon. Then we see God as our loving Creator, Savior, Redeemer, and Healer—our Great Physician who seeks to fix all the damage that sin has caused. Only when we see God's law as design law do we understand the reality of God's character of love, what the sin problem is, why it results in death, why Christ had to die, what Christ accomplished for us and the victory we can experience through faith today! And notice what happens when we place the law in its right setting] The atonement, made by the stupendous sacrifice of Jesus Christ, will be seen by you in an altogether different light. You will see sin in its heinous character. [When we understand God's law in its true light as design law then we understand sin is not a legal problem, it is a lethal problem. We understand sin is like a cancer—a malignant disease, a corrosive, virulent and destructive virus—and we understand the supreme sacrifice that Christ made was necessary in order to eliminate this death causing principle from humanity and restore His life-giving power in us.] But this the Jews did not desire to see. [Do we desire to see this?] Jesus said to them, "Ye will not come unto me that ye might have life." "For everyone that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved."… Signs of the Times November 13, 1893, par. 2

Read the third paragraph,

In various places the Bible talks about our rewards, what we are promised through Christ after the Second Coming and this terrible detour with sin is once and for all over and done. (2023 1Q SDA Adult Bible Study Guide page 96).

Are the rewards only experienced after the second coming? I wish they would have said the "full and complete" rewards or the "ultimate" rewards or something like this, because there are real rewards that we can experience here and now, unless they truly think of rewards only as something arbitrarily given?

If we think of having peace with God, the removal of guilt and shame, peace of heart, new motives, love, joy, patience, self-control, wisdom, discernment, conversation with God and sometimes specific interventions in our daily struggles—then aren't there rewards now? Life is absolutely better in a love trust relationship with God here and now than living in the world without God.

But perhaps they don't consider any of that a reward, maybe they think of rewards as artificially bestowed, perhaps they think of things like:

- The size of the mansion one gets in heaven
- The number of jewels in your crown
- How close your seat is to God's seat at the heavenly supper table
- The number of worlds you get to govern

Well consider this historic quote from the book Our High Calling regarding rewards in heaven—do you agree or disagree and if you agree, are these rewards earned by us or bestowed by God?

> The reward, the glories of heaven, bestowed upon the overcomers, will be proportionate to the degree in which they have represented the character of Christ to the world. "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly." 2 Corinthians 9:6. Thank God that it is our privilege to sow on earth the seed that will be harvested in eternity. The crown of life will be bright or dim, will glitter with many stars, or be lighted by few gems, in accordance with our own course of action. Day by day we may be laying up a good foundation against the time to come. By self-denial, by the exercise of the missionary spirit, by crowding all the good works possible into our life, by seeking so to represent Christ in character that we shall win many souls to the truth, we shall have respect unto the recompense of reward. Our High Calling 123.

What do you think of this statement? The author says "bestowed," but then describes what appears to be fruits of one's own work—what are the rewards and what does it mean?

What is it that heaven values most? People! And if we become like Christ, what will we value most? Others! And therefore, what will give us the greatest joy, reward, happiness, cause for celebration in heaven? Won't it be the number of people we know and love who are there? Will our reward, what brings us the most joy be multiplied by the number of people whom we love and are loved by?

This is an outworking of the design law of love. But what does it mean to bestow such a reward? Certainly it would require God to heal our sin-ravaged bodies and give us immortal bodies so we can live in His presence. But is simply living eternally the reward—or is it the quality of our experiences and relationships with others that makes eternal life rewarding? Would it be a reward to live eternally in the traditional description of hell, or with a god who is like Satan alleges?

So, perhaps God bestows our reward by making the links, the connections between people, the introductions, by bringing to the hearts and minds of the saved the knowledge of those who it was that gave the donation that resulted in them receiving a Bible, or a tract, or a magazine, or who it was that placed a magazine in a certain stand or table, or who was the one who wrote a book that witnessed Christ. Perhaps God introduces us to people who read a book, listened to a class, overheard a conversation on an airplane, read something we sent, or shared and had the seeds of truth planted in their heart and came to salvation through your witness. And when God makes these connections known, what happens in the hearts and minds of these saved people in heaven? Love and appreciation and rejoicing and reward, and that love is described in Scripture as a burning fire a flame and the more of those connections we have been involved in making here on this earth, the brighter we will shine and the greater will be our reward.

What do you think of this idea?

SUNDAY

The lesson is entitled Reward for Faithfulness

Does the law lens one holds impact our understanding of this phrase?

What is the reward for faithful law-keeping?

What is the reward for faithful friendship to God?

Can one be a law-keeper and not be a friend of God?

Can one be a genuine friend of God and not keep the law?

Does the parable of the landowner who hired people throughout the day give insight into this?

Consider what the last paragraph is trying to say:

> Being rewarded for faithfulness, however, is not the same as salvation by works. Who among us, or among any of the characters in the Bible, had works good enough to give them any merit before God? None, of course. That's the whole point of the cross. If we could have saved ourselves by works, Jesus never would have gone to the cross. Instead, it must be by grace. "And if by grace, then it is no longer of works; otherwise grace is no longer grace. But if it is of works, it is no longer grace; otherwise work is no longer work" (Rom. 11:6, NKJV). Rewards, instead, are the mere outworking of what God has done for us and in us. (2023 1Q SDA Adult Bible Study Guide page 97).

What does this mean? Do you get the sense they are working very hard to try and make the point that rewards and salvation are not the same? Why are they working so hard at this? Because they operate in the wrong law model. In design law model we recognize we have a terminal sin condition that we could never heal or procure the remedy for. That Jesus, unassisted by us, overcame and procured the remedy to our sin condition, and He offers that cure to us absolutely free. But we must choose to trust Him and accept His treatment plan and actively participate. Our participation, our work, is required to benefit, i.e. partake of what He procured, but our work, participation never produces the remedy. Just consider taking penicillin for an infection—you must comply and take it for the penicillin to work, but no work of participating in the treatment plan ever credits you with procuring the penicillin.

So in the parable of the landowner the imposed law legalists believe the reward is the coin they receive at the end of a hard days work. And it isn't fair to them that all receive the same bestowed reward or payment when some worked harder than others.

But design law understands that the coin represents salvation and it is offered to all who will enter God's field, God's employ, a trust relationship with God, it is the same healing and recovery from sin with eternal life given to all. But the reward is the relationship with the landowner, those who worked all day had more time in working for God, in learning of God, in apply God's methods to their lives in how they advanced the kingdom of God working for a harvest of souls for God. And they will have the joy of having reached more souls, i.e. harvested more grain, and thus will have more love relationships in heaven and will have a greater reward, than those who experienced salvation like the thief on the cross, but didn't have time to reach many souls for God's kingdom.

MONDAY

The lesson is on Everlasting Life—what is the key to everlasting life?

The lesson states in the second paragraph

> "Our part is simply to believe Him, rest upon the merits of Jesus, and by faith obey His Word."

What does this mean? What are the merits of Jesus? Does the law lens we hold impact our understanding of this?

Is this the same as what Jesus said,

> Now this is eternal life: that they may know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom you have sent. (John 17:3 NIV84)?

What does it mean to know God? Is it the same as knowing about God?

How do we come to know God and Jesus Christ?

Do we experience God and Jesus with the same trust, love, confidence? Do we see them with the same attributes of character?

Do we believe God is for us or do we believe God needs convincing?

Do we believe that God is for us because we are claiming the merits of Jesus as we approach the Father?

What does it mean to rest upon the merits of Jesus? Does that mean we claim them as our legal payment for our sins?

What would the Father do to us if we don't have a legal payment of Jesus' blood applied to our account in heaven?

Does Jesus merit being our Savior? Absolutely, because of what He achieved—but how does His achievement, His merit help us? What does resting upon Jesus' perfection do for us?

What law lens are we looking at this through?

Consider this historic quote—we will hear terms like justified, courts, unmerited favor, faith, works, substitute, merit—all of this. Do you hear something legal or do you hear something healing and restorative? Does our law lens make a difference?

> Grace is unmerited favor, and the believer is justified without any merit of his own, without any claim to offer to God. He is justified through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, who stands in the courts of heaven as the sinner's substitute and surety. But while he is justified because of the merit of Christ, he is not free to work unrighteousness. Faith works by love and purifies the soul. Faith buds and blossoms and bears a harvest of precious fruit. Where faith is, good works appear. The sick are visited, the poor are cared for, the fatherless and the widows are not neglected, the naked are clothed, the destitute are fed. Christ went about doing good, and when men are united with Him, they love the children of God, and meekness and truth guide their footsteps. The expression of the countenance reveals their experience, and men take knowledge of them that they have been with Jesus and learned of Him. Christ and the believer become one, and His beauty of character is revealed in those who are vitally connected with the Source of power and love. Christ is the great depositary of justifying righteousness and sanctifying grace. 1Selected Messages 398.

What does this mean? What are the merits of Christ? How do they benefit us?

In the last paragraph the lesson states,

> And, perhaps more than anything else, Christ's death on the cross at His first coming is our greatest assurance of His second coming, for without the Second Coming, what good was His first one? (2023 1Q SDA Adult Bible Study Guide page 98).

What do you think of this question? If there is no second coming was there no good in Christ's first coming?

If Jesus did not come the first time, meaning there was no promise in Genesis 3:15 for a Messiah to save us from sin, so there was no enmity between the children of God and Satan, meaning we would all be helplessly enslaved into sin, we would all be fear controlled, abusers, exploiters, liars, cheats. In other words, the only way we can live lives that love others, lives that are true, loyal, kind, responsible, free of guilt, shame, and vileness is because Jesus came—and is that not good? So while we rejoice in the promise of the second coming, isn't it true that all the good we have in the world is because of His first coming?

TUESDAY

Read first paragraph,

> The biblical description of the New Jerusalem is what Abraham saw by faith. "For he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God" (Heb. 11:10). The New Jerusalem is God's masterpiece, built for those who love Him and keep His commandments. The New Jerusalem will be the home of God's faithful children in heaven during the millennium and, afterward, on the new earth for eternity. There is good news for those of us who don't like packing or moving. God takes care of everything. John says he saw the city. "Then I, John, saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband" (Rev. 21:2, NKJV). (2023 1Q SDA Adult Bible Study Guide page 99).

What do you think of this? Does it open your mind to new ideas? What does it mean that the New Jerusalem is the Bride of Christ?

How does the New Jerusalem become adorned as a Bride for Christ?

What kind of adornment would this be?

If you haven't read our magazine The Wedding of Christ to His Bride: Preparing the Church for the Second Coming I encourage you to read it. We explore this very symbolic description of the church—did you realize the church is described as the Bride of Christ? And the New Jerusalem is described as the Bride of Christ?

And the Bride has to be cleansed and made pure—because a healthy marriage cannot be achieved with a cheat, it requires healthy partners. Thus, in order for the church to be married to Christ the members must be cleansed or purified.

Can you think of another place in Scripture where this cleansing is taught?

The cleansing of the sanctuary—and when did the cleansing of the sanctuary take place? On the Day of Atonement—the day of at-one-ment. And what happens at a wedding—two become one. The day of atonement ceremony is a symbolic description of the cleansing of the bride which is the joining of the people to eternal union or at-one-ment with God.

- The Most Holy Place is the shape of a cube and the NJ is in the shape of a cube
- The MH place is covered in gold and the NJ is paved with gold (which is symbolic of sinless righteousness)
- The MH place is lighted by the shekinah presence of God and the NJ is lighted by the physical presence of God
- The MH place has the angels on the lid of the ark; the NJ has the angels in bodily form
- The MH place has the law in the box; the NJ has the law written in the hearts of all the saved

In the last paragraph the lesson states, "Also, flowing from the throne of God is the pure river of life, and on either side of the river is the tree of life."

What do you think this is? Is this H2O? Does this text have any bearing?

We are talking about the river of life—what do you think of the following description from Daniel, is this river the river of life and if so what does it mean?

> As I looked, "thrones were set in place, and the Ancient of Days took his seat. His clothing was as white as snow; the hair of his head was white like wool. His throne was flaming with fire, and its wheels were all ablaze. A river of fire was flowing, coming out from before him. Thousands upon thousands attended him; ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him." (Daniel 7:9-10 NIV84)

Is this river of fire, flowing out from the throne of God the river of life? Have you thought of the river of life as being a river of fire? Is that a river of lava or something else?

Notice millions are standing in this river of fire and it doesn't harm, it gives life, so what is this river?

Well what do you think of this historic quote—does it support or confuse the idea that the river of life is the river of fire coming from the throne of God, also does this support our healing design law view or a legal penal view? How do you hear this?

> Thank God that He who spilled His blood for us, lives to plead it, lives to make intercession for every soul who receives Him. [How do you hear this? Do you default to legal Christianity with > Jesus interceding with His Father to pay or sin debt? Or to you ask, interceding with who? Who needs the blood of Jesus, which represents the life of Jesus? Does the Father need to be convinced of how good Jesus is? Does the Father need to won to trust in Jesus? Does the Father have lies that He needs to be cleansed of? Who has distrust in God? Who has lies that need removal? Who needs to eat the flesh and drink the blood of Jesus be cleansed of all their sins? So who is Jesus interceding with to convince? It is you and me and it is our hearts and minds that need cleansing by the blood of Jesus. Notice what comes next] "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." 1 John 1:9. The blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sin. [The blood, which represents the sinless life of Jesus, does not cleanse a record book, it cleanses our hearts and minds. We become partakers of the divine nature as Peter says. Or Paul, it is no longer I that live but Christ lives in me. We partake the life of Christ and the old is gone and the new has come.] It speaks better things than the blood of Abel, for Christ ever lives to make intercession for us. [Intercession with whom?] We need to keep ever before us the efficacy of the blood of Jesus. [Who needs to be reminded? Who needs the blood?] That life-cleansing, life-sustaining blood, appropriated by living faith, is our hope. We need to grow in appreciation of its inestimable value, for it speaks for us only as we by faith claim its virtue, keeping the conscience clean and at peace with God. Our High Calling 47.4

> This is represented as the pardoning blood, inseparably connected with the resurrection and life of our Redeemer, illustrated by the ever-flowing stream that proceeds from the throne of God, the water of the river of life.21 Our High Calling 47.5

What is this river of life? What does Leviticus say is in the blood? The life is in the blood. So the blood of Christ represents His life, and what does the river of life represent? The life of Christ which flows out freely to each and every one of us!

Then what about the river of fire? How is God's life-giving power manifested? It looks like fire, but it is the energy, glory, life of God—you could call it His blood—for the life is in the blood and it is the life of God that flows out from Him giving life to every living thing.

WEDNESDAY

The title for the day is The Settling of Accounts—what does this title make you think?

It speaks of the parable of the talents and the minas and how the owner came back and asked how these were invested and held the individuals accountable.

Those that invested well were given more, and those that buried their talent had it taken from them.

What do you think this means? How does this apply to the end of time?

What law lens do you understand this through?

We are most familiar with the parable of the talents told in Matthew, but the lessons our attention to the parable of the Minas told in Luke 19, and points out it is just not natural abilities that we have a responsibility to God to invest and develop, but also other resources placed in our hands.

Let's read that parable from The Remedy:

> "A prince went to a distant land to have himself anointed king and then to return home. So he called ten of those who volunteered to serve him and gave them each a gold coin. He told them, 'Put this money to good use until I get back.'
> "His people hated him and they sent a delegation to him, saying, 'We don't want you to be our king.'
> "He was made king anyway, and returned home. He sent for the ten servants, to whom he had entrusted money, in order to find out how well they had invested it.
> "The first one reported, 'Sir, with your gold coin I earned ten more.'
> " 'You have done well and are a good servant!' the king replied. 'Because you have been trustworthy in this small matter, I am placing you in charge of ten cities.'
> "The second one said, 'Sir, with your gold coin I earned five more.'
> "The king answered, 'Well done, I am placing you in charge of five cities.'
> "Then another servant came and said, 'Sir, here is your gold coin: I have kept it safe for you, hidden in a cloth. I believe you are a hard man, and I fear you too much to risk losing what you gave me. I believe you take what is not yours and reap when you have not sown.'
> "The king replied, 'It is by your own words and beliefs — not by my true character — that you will be diagnosed, for your words reveal the wickedness of your heart. If you believed that I am a hard man, taking what is not mine and reaping where I did not sow, then why didn't you at least put my money in the bank to earn interest?'
> "Then he said to his attendants, 'Take the gold coin away from this negligent servant and give it to the one who earned ten.'
> "But the servant protested, 'Sir, they already have ten. It's not fair!'
> "The king replied, 'I tell you the truth of God's kingdom: Everyone who uses what they have will receive more, but if you don't use it, you will lose it. But as for those enemies of mine and my kingdom of love — those who value selfishness and don't want me for their king — bring them to me; and in my presence they will die.' "

- What are the lesson from this parable?
- Any design laws involved?
- Why will people lose what they don't invest?
- What was the problem with the unfaithful servant?
- Why with the unfaithful die in the end?
- Isn't God's presence the River of Life, which is the River of Fire—so why don't they receive life in this river?

THURSDAY

The lesson points our attention to 1Timothy 6:6-12:

> But godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into the world, and we can take nothing out of it. But if we have food and clothing, we will be content with that. People who want to get rich fall into temptation and a trap and into many foolish and harmful desires that plunge men into ruin and destruction. For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil. Some people, eager for money, have wandered from the faith and pierced themselves with many griefs.
> But you, man of God, flee from all this, and pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, endurance and gentleness. Fight the good fight of the faith. Take hold of the eternal life to which you were called when you made your good confession in the presence of many witnesses. (1 Timothy 6:6-12 NIV84).

The lesson then states:

> From the biblical perspective, prosperity is having what you need when you need it. It is not the accumulation of possessions. Prosperity is also claiming the promise of God in Philippians 4:19: "My God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus." Finally, prosperity is to be thankful for what you have in the Lord and trust in Him in all things. (2023 1Q SDA Adult Bible Study Guide page 101).

Is this how you have thought of prosperity? I found this quite comforting, what are your thoughts about this?

SABBATH

The information in Revelation 12 we are studying today is in preparation for the Three Cosmic Messages, or Three Angels' Messages in Revelation 14. This is the theme for 2nd Quarter this year.

Revelation was given to the Apostle John while he was on the rocky island of Patmos, where he was exiled by the Roman Emperor Titus Flavius Domitianus in AC 95 as a criminal because he could not be killed with boiling oil. He was the last of the Apostles to die, most of which had been put to death by sword or crucifixion. While all the distractions of a busy life were gone, John grew even closer to Jesus. Is there a parallel to our lives with Jesus?

Revelation starts off with a statement of the reason this book is needed, I'm using the New International Version/NIV:

> "The revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave him to show his servants what must soon take place. He made it known by sending his angel to his servant John, who testifies to everything he saw – that is, the word of God and the Testimony of Jesus Christ. Blessed is the one who reads the words of this prophecy and blessed are those who heart it and take to heart what is written in it, because the time is near."

Let's read Revelation 12, so we can "get the lay of the land" we are about to explore.

For many people, the symbolism of Revelation is very perplexing, so they prefer to focus on the easier books of the Bible. Leave Revelation to the scholars! But what if we read Revelation and skip the symbols? What could we learn about Jesus, his mission, our mission and our future? Here's what I read when I summarized each page of Revelation in my Bible, leaving out the symbols:

- This calls for taking it to heart
- He loves us and has freed us from our sins
- Repent, go back to your first love, do what you did at first, overcome
- Do God's will to the end, remember what you received and heard, obey it and repent, be earnest
- Worthy is the Lamb (allow me a bit of symbolism here, as I'm pretty sure we have all figured out that the Lamb is "The Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world" John 1:29, which are the words John the Baptist spoke about Jesus), He purchased men for God
- God will lead to springs of living water – we will never again thirst for spiritual life
- Repent of the work of your hands and acts
- It is time for God to judge the dead

- Overcome by taking the remedy for sin Jesus created with His life, death and resurrection, as well as your testimony about him
- Obey God's commands, hold to the testimony of Jesus
- This calls for faithfulness, patient endurance and wisdom
- Stay awake and keep your clothes on – He comes like a thief!
- Abandon the confused messages about God, so you don't sin or receive plagues.
- God's Judgments are just and true – He gives us the righteous acts we do
- The dead are judged by what they have done
- God will live with us, wipe every tear from our eyes and make everything new
- Worship God – "I AM coming soon' to give to everyone according to what he has done

Try it yourself and see what comes to your mind as you do this. Revelation is less of a march through time, and more like examining the facets of a beautiful diamond, viewing the same thing from different angles.

Now, this lesson's title, "Jesus Wins – Satan Loses" is pretty self-explanatory, and is what we are praying will happen very, very soon. We live inside a life and death spiritual war, in the prisoner-of-war camp of the universe. Satan has held us prisoners, where, as far as we know, only Enoch and Elijah were taken to heaven without dying. So, very few people get out alive.

When prisoners hear of rescue plans their hearts leap for joy and they pray that those who are coming to rescue them will be stronger than their captors. The Bible assures us that our "Savior" is indeed stronger than our captor. And could it be that our captor is ourselves, our own beliefs and actions that have aligned us with Satan's beliefs and methods?

- Isaiah 1:24, 25 says, "Therefore the Lord, the Lord Almighty, the Mighty One of Israel, declares: 'Ah! I will get relief from my foes and avenge myself on my enemies. I will turn my hand against you. I will thoroughly purge away your dross and remove all your impurities.'"

- Isaiah 35:3, 4 says, "Strengthen the feeble hands, steady the knees that give way; say to those with fearful hearts, 'Be strong, do not fear; your God will come, he will come with vengeance; with divine retribution he will come to save you.'"

We know Satan is doomed, no matter how strong he may appear. He is depicted as the accuser of our brothers, who accuses them before our God day and night. Earthlings are warned in Revelation 12:12, that even though Satan and his angels were thrown down from heaven, he has come to us, "filled with fury, because he knows that his time is short."

Satan is described as sleepless, relentless, ruthless, destructive, malevolent, and exceedingly deceptive. A roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour. He knows us better than we know ourselves, better than our spouse knows us. He knows just what buttons to push, where our weaknesses are and how to manipulate us. He may not be able to read our thoughts or our unspoken prayers, but he is really good at interpreting our body language.

Isaiah 14 Talks about the end of the one who oppresses the people with unceasing blows and relentless aggression, calling him the "king of Babylon". He is described as the one who fell from heaven, from being the morning star, son of the dawn, because he said in his heart that he would ascend to the heavens, enthroned on the mount of assembly and make himself like the Most High. He is accused of making the world a wilderness, overthrowing its cities and not allowing his captives to go home. He will be brought down to the realm of the dead, and his followers are slain by the sword. The final judgment against him comes in verse 20, "you have destroyed your land and killed your people." This is the result of the war we are part of.

But just because Jesus wins, does that mean we do? We are in the same situation that Israel was when thinking about leaving Egypt and heading for the promised land, and when leaving the desert for the promised land on the West side of the Jordan River. To them, and to us, God says:

Deuteronomy 30:11-20:

> "Now what I am commanding you today is not too difficult for you or beyond your reach. It is not up in heaven, so that you have to ask, 'Who will ascend into heaven to get it and proclaim it to us so we may obey it?' No, the word is very near you, it is in your mouth and in your heart so you may obey it. Nor is it beyond the sea, so that you have to ask, 'Who will cross the sea to get it and proclaim it to us so we may obey it?' No, the word is very near you; it is in your mouth and in your heart so you may obey it. See, I set before you today life and prosperity, death and destruction. For I command you today to love the Lord you God, to walk in obedience to him, and to keep his commands, decrees and laws; then you will live and increase, and the Lord your God will bless you in the land you are entering to possess. But if your heart turns away and you are not obedient, and if you are drawn away to bow down to other gods and worship them, I declare to you this day that you will certainly be destroyed. You will not live long in the land you are crossing the Jordan to enter and possess. This day I call the heavens and the earth as witnesses against you that I have set before you life and death, blessings and curses. Now choose life, so that you and your children may live and that you may love the Lord you God, listen to his voice, and hold fast to him. For the Lord is your life, and he will give you many years in the land he swore to give to your fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."

Ezekiel 18:23:

> "Do I take any pleasure in the death of the wicked? declares the Sovereign Lord. Rather, am I not pleased when they turn from their ways and live?"

Ezekiel 18:32:

> "For I take no pleasure in the death of anyone, declares the Sovereign Lord. Repent and live!"

So, the overview is about choosing the winning side; weighing the consequences of life and death and choosing Life, who wins over death and Satan.

Memory Text: "And the dragon was enraged with the woman, and he went to make war with the rest of her offspring, who keep the commandments of God and have the testimony of Jesus Christ." Revelation 12:17

SUNDAY

The Battle in Heaven

The importance of freedom is highlighted in Sunday's lesson. This has been one of the key points of Come and Reason Ministry and of the Bible.

The third paragraph says: "The power of choice is closely aligned with the ability to love. If you take away the power of choice, you destroy the ability to love, for love can never be forced or coerced. Love is an expression of free will. Every angel in heave was faced with the choice either to respond to God's love or to turn away in selfishness, arrogance, and rode. Just as the heavenly angels were confronted by love with an eternal choice, Revelation presents each one of us with eternal choices in earth's final conflict."

So, why do so many Christians say, "God is in Control?" If He were in control of Satan, would Satan have sinned, along with a third of the angels, as mentioned in Revelation 12: 4, 7-9
What is God in control of?

- His actions – loving, forgiving, creating, serving, judging (diagnosing) - living and dying for us to create the remedy for our lethal problem of sin, healing of our mental, spiritual and physical issues, protecting us from Satan's design to kill us and destroy everything we are and have, allowing us to torture and kill him so that we could understand who He really is, and who Satan really is
- His laws – They way He created the universe – physics, science, music, art and beauty, upholding and maintaining them

The last paragraph on Sunday's lesson says, "…all we have to do, using our free will, is choose to be on His side, the winning side. How great to be able to choose a side in a battle that you know, beforehand, it will win."

But the Bible warns there is a cost to our decision, either decision:

Choose Jesus:

- Matthew 16:24-27 – "The Jesus said to his disciples, 'Whoever wants to be my disciple must deny themselves and take up their cross and follow me. For whoever wants to save their life will lose it, but whoever loses their life for me will find it. What good will it be for someone to gain the whole world, yet forfeit their soul? Or what can anyone give in exchange for their soul? For the Son of Man is going to come in his Father's glory with his angels, and they he will reward each person according to what they have done."

Choose Satan:

- Isaiah 33: 14-16 – "The sinners in Zion are terrified; trembling grips the godless. Who of us can dwell with the consuming fire? Who of us can dwell with the everlasting burning? He who walks righteously and speaks what is right, who rejects gain from extortion and keeps his hand from accepting bribes, who stops his ears against plots of murder and shuts his eyes against contemplating evil – this is the man who will dwell on the heights, whose refuge will be the mountain fortress."

- Luke 23:28-31 – "Jesus turned and said to them, 'Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me; weep for yourselves and for your children. For the time will come when you will say, "Blessed are the childless women, the wombs that never bore and the breasts that never nursed!'. Then "'they will say to the mountains "Fall on us!" and to the hills, "Cover us!"". For if people do these things when the tree is green, what will happen when it is dry?"

- Job 38:1, 17 – "Then the Lord spoke to Job out of the storm. He said: ...Have the gates of death been shown to you? Have you seen the gates of deepest darkness?

- Job 10:20-22 – "Turn away from me so I can have a moment's joy before I go to the place of no return, to the land of gloom and utter darkness, to the land of deepest night, of utter darkness and disorder, where even the light is like darkness."

MONDAY

Satan's Attack

Shall we plunge into the symbols and see if we can't decipher and understand them? Revelation is not a sealed book, like Daniel's was. It is meant to be understood by us, here in the very toenails of the end of time. World events, natural disasters, and the other fulfillments of prophecy are shouting to us, "The end of all things is at hand."

Monday's lesson starts with Satan trying to kill Christ when born, during the wilderness temptation, before and at his death on the cross. The attack actually started in heaven…a character assassination of Michael (who we know as Jesus) and God. Isaiah 14 says that Satan is described as the one who fell from heaven, from being the morning star, son of the dawn, because he said in his heart that he would ascend to the heavens, enthroned on the mount of assembly and make himself like the Most High. He was jealous and suspicious of the ruler of the universe and thought he could do better, have a better result.

What do these symbols mean?

- Dragon – Satan – Revelation 12:9 – "The dragon was hurled down, that ancient serpent called the devil or Satan who leads the whole world astray. He was hurled to the earth and his angels with him." Described as being enormous and red, having 7 heads, 7 crowns on his heads, and 10 horns.

- Woman – Church – Ephesians 5:25-27 – "Husbands, loves your wives, just as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her, to make her holy, cleansing her by the washing with water through the word, and to present her to himself as a radiant church, without stain or wrinkle or any other blemish, but holy and blameless." Described as being clothed with the sun, with the moon under her feet and a crown of twelve stars on her head. Pregnant, crying out in pain and about to give birth to a male child.

- Male Child – The Messiah, Christ, Jeshua, Jesus – Ephesians 5:32 – "This is a profound mystery – but I am talking about Christ and the church." Described as ruling all the nations with a rod of iron. He was snatched up to God and to his throne.

- Rod of Iron – Or Scepter of kingship. – Psalms 2:4-11 – "The One enthroned in heaven laughs; the Lord scoffs at them. Then he rebukes them in his anger and terrifies them in his wrath, saying, 'I have installed my King on Zion, my holy hill.' I will proclaim the decree of the Lord: "He said to me, 'You are my Son; today I have become your Father. Ask of me, and I will make the nations your inheritance, the ends of the earth you possession. You will rule them with an iron scepter (or rod); you will dash them to pieces like pottery.' Therefore, you kings, be wise; be warned, you rulers of the earth. Serve the Lord with fear and rejoice with trembling. Kiss the Son, lest he be angry and you be destroyed in your way, for his wrath can flare up in a moment. Blessed are all who take refuge in him."

The second paragraph of Monday's lesson points out that a rod is a symbol of dominion or rulership. A rod of iron is a symbol of an unbreakable, all-powerful, invincible rulership. Jesus faced every single temptation that we experience, but He came off a conqueror. When we accept Jesus by faith, His victory is ours.

Jesus is the only being in the universe safe with ALL power. He will not use it to beat us, his sheep, but to lead, protect, serve and provide all things needed….healing of our lethal sin condition, and cleansing us from all unrighteousness, which makes us perfect and healthy.

TUESDAY

Accepting Jesus' Victory

I would like to examine the difference between "Accepting Jesus' victory by faith, and being cured by Jesus through faith.

For those who value E.G. White, Desire of Ages, pg 309,

> "The greatest deception of the human mind in Christ's day was that a mere assent to the truth constitutes righteousness. In all human experience a theoretical knowledge of the truth has been proved to be insufficient for the saving of the soul. It does not bring forth the fruits of righteousness. A jealous regard for what is termed theological truth often accompanies a hatred of genuine truth as made manifest in life. The darkest Chapters of history are burdened with the record of crimes committed by bigoted religionists. The Pharisees claimed to be children of Abraham, and boasted of their possession of the oracles of God, yet these advantages did not preserve them from selfishness, malignity, greed for gain, and the basest hypocrisy. They thought themselves the greatest religionists of the world, but their so-called orthodoxy led them to crucify the Lord of glory. The same danger still exists. Many take it for granted that they are Christians, simply because they subscribe to certain theological tenets. But they have not brought the truth into practical life. They have not believed and loved it, therefore they have not received the power and grace that come through sanctification of the truth. Men may profess faith in the truth; but if it does not make them sincere, kind, patient, forbearing, heavenly-minded, it is a curse to its possessors, and through their influence it is a curse to the world."

"Nothing can man devise to supply the place of his lost robe of innocence, No fig-leaf garment, no worldly citizen-dress, can be worn by those who sit down with Christ and angels at the marriage supper of the Lamb. Only the covering which Christ Himself has provided, can make us meet to appear in God's presence. This covering, the robe of His own righteousness, Christ will put upon every repenting, believing soul…..This robe, woven in the loom of heaven, has in it not one thread of human devising. Christ in His humanity wrought out a perfect character, and this character He offers to impart to us. 'All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags.' Everything that we of ourselves can do is defiled by sin. But the Son of God 'was manifested to take away our sins; and in Him is no sin.' Sin is defined to be 'the transgression of the law.' But Christ was obedient to every requirement of the law….By His perfect obedience He has made it possible for every human being to obey God's commandments. When we submit ourselves to Christ, the heart is united with His heart, the will is merged in His will, the mind becomes one with His mind, the thoughts are brought into captivity to Him; we live His life. This is what it means to be clothed with the garment of His righteousness. Then as the Lord looks upon us, He sees, not the fig-leaf garment, not the nakedness and deformity of sin, but His own robe of righteousness, which is perfect obedience to the law of Jehovah….All must pass the scrutiny of the great King, and only those are received who have put on the robe of Christ's righteousness. Righteouness is right-doing, and it is by their deeds that all will be judged. Our characters are revealed by what we do. The works show whether the faith is genuine. It is not enough for us to believe that Jesus is not an impostor, and that the religion of the Bible is no cunningly devised fable. We may believe that the name of Jesus is the only name under heaven whereby man may be saved, and yet we may not through faith make Him our personal Saviour. It is not enough to believe the theory of truth. It is not enough to make a profession of faith in Christ and have our names registered on the church roll...'Hereby we do know that we know Him, if we keep His commandments.' This is the genuine evidence of conversion. Whatever our profession, it amounts to nothing unless Christ is revealed in works of righteousness….Every jot and tittle of the word of God is to be brought into the daily practice…..When a soul receives Christ, he receives power to live the life of Christ."

This lesson talks quite a bit about our debt being canceled, and our sins forgiven, and that means we stand perfect in the sight of God. But something seems to be missing here.

We must know God well enough to trust Him, open ourselves to Him and allow Him to clean up the utter mess that is inside our brains. Christ's life and death provided the right to do this work, and the means to complete it. He must rewire us with new hearts and minds that are "up to code." He must fill us with unselfish love and compassion, clip off all bad ideas and habits, heal our wounds, hurts, resentments. This work is done intimately, between us and God. This is what it means to "know Him." To be "united to Him." To have "a new mind", "a new heart", "a new spirit", "the mind of Christ", "a heart of flesh". It cannot be done by hope and wishing alone. "Many people will be fat wishing and hoping to be thin." To be thin, you must take action. To be saved, you must hold on to your relationship with Christ for dear life. Don't let anything else take priority in your life.

WEDNESDAY

The Woman in the Wilderness

Revelation mentions three different periods that are all the same – 1,200 days 3 1/2 years (Time = 1 year, times = 2 years, half a time = half a year), or 42 months. If we do the math, they all come out within a day or so of one another. If we use 30-day months (as many prophecies do), they come out exactly 3 ½ years to the day.

Revelation 12:6, 14-16 mentions a 1,260 year timeline, one of which describes the 1,260 years as "time, times, and half a time." This same time period is found in Daniel 7:25, and Revelation 11:2. We know from Numbers 14:34 and Ezekiel 4:4-6 that a day stands for a year in prophecy.

A prophetic calendar year of 360 days, or twelve months of 30 days each, is used in prophetic chronology.

So, the 1,260 years of this prophecy is generally understood to be the period of AD 538 to 1798. This time period of oppression and persecution by a corrupt church together with a corrupt state we now call "The Dark Ages." It started when the barbarians, who did not accept the Catholic religion, controlled the city of Rome until 538, when the armies of the eastern Byzantine Empire under general Belisarius began a series of victories in the Gothic wars that would ultimately allow Rome to become an effective center for the Roman Catholic authority that ruled during the Middle Ages, It ended when Berthier, one of Napoleon's generals, at his command, took the French army to Rome, made the bishop of Rome, Pope Pius VI, prisoner, and carried him to France, where he died. The civil power of the papacy was curtailed and a republic was set up in Rome.

The woman or God's church, fled into the desert (Rev 12:6) to a place "prepared for her by God, where she might be taken care of for 1,260 days." In verse 14, the woman was given 2 wings of a great eagle, so that she might fly to the place "prepared for her in the desert, where she would be taken care of out of the serpent's reach." Fleeing and flying refer to the same thing, leaving quickly to go into hiding. During the Dark Ages, the Waldenses hid in the mountains, for example.

Satan's methods of oppression and persecution were used by the serpent to try to sweep away God's people from the earth, but "the earth helped the woman." God provided for his church while they were in hiding, as he will for his end-time people, "the remnant." The wicked will use Satan's time-tested methods in the end, as well.

THURSDAY

God's End-time Remnant

Since Satan couldn't kill Jesus or cause His mission to fail, he turned to "make war against the rest of her offspring – those who obey God's commandments and hold to the testimony of Jesus.

The third and forth paragraph of Thursday's lesson state,

> "Earth's last war is not centered in the Middle East and the various conflicts there; it is centered in the minds of God's people scattered all over the world. It is a battle between two opposing forces, Christ and Satan. Again, no one is neutral. The central question in this final war is, 'Who has our loyalty? Where is our allegiance?' Heaven calls for believers who are so charmed by Christ's love, redeemed by his grace, committed to His purposes, empowered by His Spirit, and so obedient to His commands that they are willing to face death itself for His cause."

E.G. White, Council to the Churches, pg 261,

> "Great blessings are enfolded in the observance of the Sabbath, and God desires that the Sabbath day shall be to us a day of joy. There was joy at the institution of the Sabbath. God looked with satisfaction upon the work of His hands. All things that he had made He pronounced 'very good.' Genesis 1:31. Heaven and earth were filled with rejoicing. 'The morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy.' Job 38:7. Though sin has entered the world to mar His perfect work, God still gives to us the Sabbath as a witness that One omnipotent, infinite in goodness and mercy, created all things. Our heavenly Father desires through the observance of the Sabbath to preserve among men a knowledge of Himself. He desires that the Sabbath shall direct our minds to Him as the true and living God, and that through knowing Him we may have life and peace. When The Lord delivered His people Israel from Egypt and committed to them His law, He taught them that by the observance of the Sabbath they were to be distinguished from idolaters. It was this that made the distinction between those who acknowledge the sovereignty of God and those who refuse to accept Him as their Creator and King. 'It is a sign between Me and the children of Israel forever,' the Lord said. 'Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant.' Exodus 31:17, 16. As the Sabbath was the sign that distinguished Israel when they came out of Egypt to enter the earthly Canaan, so it is the sign that now distinguishes God's people as they come out from the world to enter the heavenly rest. The Sabbath is a sign of the relationship existing between God and His people, a sign that they honor His law. It distinguishes between His loyal subjects and transgressors."

> "'Till heaven and earth pass,' said Jesus. 'one jot or one tittle shall in nowise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled.' The sun shining in the heavens, the solid earth upon which you dwell, are God's witnesses that His law is changeless and eternal. Though they may pass away, the divine precepts shall endure. 'It is easier for heaven and earth to pass, than one tittle of the law to fail.' Luke 16:17. The system of types that pointed to Jesus as the lamb of God was to be abolished at His death; the but precepts of the Decalogue are as immutable as the throne of God. Since 'the law of the Lord is perfect,' every variation from it must be evil. Those who disobey the commandments of God, and teach others to do so, are condemned by Christ. The Saviour's life of obedience maintained the claims of the law: it proved that the law could be kept in humanity, and showed the excellence of character that obedience would develop. All who obey as He did are likewise declaring that the law is 'holy, and just, and good.' Romans 7:12. On the other hand, all who break God's commandments are sustaining Satan's claim that the law is unjust, and cannot be obeyed. Thus they second the deceptions of the great adversary, and cast dishonor upon God. They are the children of the wicked one, who was the first rebel against God's law. To admit them into heaven would again bring in the elements of discord and rebellion, and imperil the well-being of the universe. No man who willfully disregards one principle of the law shall enter the kingdom of heaven."

Revelation 12:11 gives us the type of people who are victors with Christ in this war. It says, "They overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; they did not love their lives so much as to shrink from death."

Why do you think the Bible talks so much about the blood of the Lamb? Leviticus 17:11 says that "the life of a creature is in the blood, and I have given it to you to make atonement for yourselves on the altar; it is the blood that makes atonement for one's life." Today, we think of blood as carrying the DNA, the individuality of each person or animal.

According to News Medical & Life Sciences, Dec. 10, 2019, prior to and for four years after his stem cell transplant from an unrelated donor, a forensics lab tested a colleague, Chris Long, and found that by four months after transplant, only the DNA in his chest and head was still Long's own. At four years, "Chris was no longer present at all." Even his seman was the donor's DNA.

When Christ refers to his blood, he is referring to the complete transformation that will happen to us when we allow Him to give us His blood, His rightness, to replace our terminal condition, our wrongness. His goal is to restore us to what we would have been if we had not been marred by sin. I love to see old dilapidated Victorian homes be restored to their original beauty. How glorious! Restoration of all that has been taken from us by living in this prisoner-of-war camp.

FRIDAY

E.G. White, Patriarchs and Prophets, pg 34, 35,

> "So long as all created beings acknowledged the allegiance of love, there was perfect harmony throughout the universe of God. It was the joy of the heavenly host to fulfill the purpose of their Creator. They delighted in reflecting His glory and showing forth His praise. And while love to God was supreme, love for one another was confiding and unselfish. There was no note of discord to mar the celestial harmonies."

Imagine life without fear. The war is over. Jesus wins! Satan loses! We are no longer trapped on this earth with a roaring lion. We are restored. We have access to the wisdom, knowledge and beauty of the universe's eternity. We are free. Heaven can't come soon enough!

2023 2Q Three Cosmic Messages—Lesson 2
A Moment of Destiny

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

The lesson states in the second paragraph:

> In these last days of human history, He has sent a special message to the world and to His people, designed to meet the need of the hour. He pictures this message as being carried by three angels flying in midheaven with their urgent, end-time message to all the world. (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p.14)

What is that message?

How would you describe it to people who have not heard it?

One of the founders of the SDA church wrote the following in the book Christ's Object Lessons, do you agree with it? And if so, do you see this message in the message of the three angels of Revelation 14?

> It is the darkness of misapprehension of God that is enshrouding the world. Men are losing their knowledge of His character. It has been misunderstood and misinterpreted. At this time a message from God is to be proclaimed, a message illuminating in its influence and saving in its power. His character is to be made known. Into the darkness of the world is to be shed the light of His glory, the light of His goodness, mercy and truth…The last rays of merciful light, the last message of mercy to be given to the world, is the revelation of His character of love. Christ's Object Lessons, p.415

When you read the message of the 3 angels do you read a message that magnifies God's character of goodness, mercy, truth, and love?

Or do you hear a message that frightens you, a message of a threatening god who will use divine power to torture those who refuse to love him?

If you are not familiar with our magazine, The Final Message of Mercy to the World: The Three Angels I encourage you to read it. You can read it online at our website. If you have a US postal address and would like a printed copy we will send one at no cost. And we have them to ship to US addresses for you to share in your church. This quarter would be a great time to introduce these magazines to your friends around the circle.

SUNDAY

Read first paragraph:

> Revelation 14 is Jesus' final message of mercy to a fallen and rebellious world, one that has, for about six thousand years, been steeped in sin and evil. There will come a day when every human being on planet Earth will make a final, irrevocable decision, either for or against Jesus. Revelation's message of Christ's righteousness delivering us from the condemnation of sin, as well as the grip of sin in our lives, will echo and reecho throughout the earth. (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p.15)

Do you agree that every single person will make a decision for or against Jesus?

How do you think this will happen?

Is this talking about every person making a personal choice to accept or reject Jesus as their personal Savior?

Do we think that every person will be presented with the Bible story and come to understand the truth of the historic Jesus?

Do we think that it will be based on an issue, say some religious laws and every person will be faced with deciding whether they will obey those religious laws or not?

Or will it be in principle, by method, motive, and conduction in how we treat others?

Jesus said, in Matthew 25, that after He separates the sheep and the goats, He will say:

> I tell you the truth, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers of mine, you did for me… whatever you did not do for one of the least of these, you did not do for me (Matthew 25:40 & 45 NIV84)

So is it that everyone decides for or against Jesus not in a religious ceremony, or in an attestation of affirmative faith, or by response to some religious law, but in how they treat others?

And if this is so, then it means we decide for or against Jesus by the methods and principles we practice in how we treat others. It means that in how we treat others we are choosing which law is written upon our own hearts—are we surrendered in faith to Jesus and choosing to love God and others more than self so that the law of truth, love, liberty is being lived out in how we treat others, or are we choosing the law of fear, of selfishness, of survival, of protecting self and are willing to sacrifice, harm, exploit, deceive, manipulate, denigrate, and vilify others in order to protect self? Or perhaps we use all these same ungodly methods and claim we are only lying, manipulating, coercing, abusing others to protect the church, or the property of the church, or to save lives.

During COVID various individuals, governments, and organizations revealed the god they worship and the methods they prefer. It is not too late for those who chose to use coercion on their fellow humans to repent and seek God's methods moving forward in living out God's principles in how they treat others.

Read second paragraph:

> Jesus' promise that " 'this gospel of the kingdom will be preached in all the world' " (NKJV), given in Matthew 24:14, finds its final fulfillment in Christ's last-day message, in Revelation 14:6, which says that the gospel is proclaimed to "every nation, tribe, tongue, and people" (NKJV). (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p.15)

What is the gospel that is to go to all the world? How would you describe it?

Why do you think the three angels' messages starts with the eternal gospel?

If we get the gospel wrong we miss the entire meaning of the 3 angels' messages.

If the good news is not the truth about God, but rather is presented as a legal payment made to a punishing god so that that god won't inflict punishment upon us, not only do we take a false gospel to the world, but the message of the 3 angels is presented in a false light that keeps people trapped in the fear-based false systems of this world. We are to take the eternal gospel to the world, the good news that is eternally true, true in eternity past and future, true before sin ever existed, it is the good news about God, that God is not the kind of being Satan has misrepresented Him to be. And this requires that we leave behind the penal/legal imposed law system of Babylon, it requires we return to worship the Creator who made the heaven, earth, sea, and fountains of water, which means we recognize God's laws as design laws not imposed rules like humans make.

The lesson asks at the bottom:

> How does God shape our characters?
> - Truth and Love via the working of the Holy Spirit
> - Life events/experiences in which we must choose to apply God's truth, love, methods, principles in how we live, act, respond, and treat others
> What means does He use for us to grow in grace?
> - That we develop with each day in godly ways
> - Deeper love, experience, appreciate for, and knowledge of God—which means we spend time with God, studying His Word, talking with Him, sharing Him with others
> - Greater wisdom into the things of God, which means greater discernment
> - More godly habits in how we react and think, the fruits of the Spirit-- love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control.

What can we do to more fully allow the Holy Spirit to transform us to be more like Jesus? (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p.15)

- Surrender to Him
- Be willing to listen and be corrected by the Spirit of truth
- Spend regular time with God
- Share God and His truths and methods with others
- Apply God's methods in our daily lives
- Eliminate known activities that are opposed to God's kingdom

MONDAY

Read second paragraph:

> Jesus used the term "Son of Man" to refer to Himself 82 times in the Gospels. It was one of His favorite titles. He used it as an expression of endearment to identify with us. He is a Savior who understands us, has experienced our temptations, and has passed through our trials. He is the "Son of Man" who is returning to take us home. The Jesus who comes for us is the same Jesus who lived among us. He is qualified to redeem us because He became One of us, and yet, as one of us, He met the full fury of Satan's temptations and, yes, was victorious. (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p.16)

What do you think of this term Son of Man?

Why do you think Jesus used it so frequently? What does Jesus want us to know?

- That He "understands us, has experienced our temptations, and has passed through our trials"?
- Does Jesus understand and sympathize with us more than the Father?
- Or does Jesus' life reveal to us, in a persuasive way, how closely the Godhead does know us, sympathize with us, love and value us?

Could the term Son of Man be a great controversy statement?

I am going to share a series of statements with you from EG White, the most influential founder of the SDA church. And the contribution to Christian thought that I believe she provided is the Great Controversy perspective—the view of the sin problem extending beyond just human beings, but also including the heavenly realm where 1/3 of the angels fell, and that Christ's mission to Earth included more than just saving human beings, but also eliminating sin from the universe and securing the unfallen beings in their loyalty so that sin will never arise again.

There are Bible texts to support this. Jesus speaking of His pending crucifixion said up:

> But I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all men to myself. (John 12:32 NIV84)

The word "men" is not in the Greek, it is inserted by the translators.

> For God was pleased to have all his fullness dwell in him [Jesus], and through him to reconcile to himself all things, whether things on earth or things in heaven, by making peace through his blood, shed on the cross. (Colossians 1:19-20 NIV84).

We of course find the threads of the Great Controversy throughout Scripture:

- The serpent in Eden
- The first chapter of Job
- Zechariah chapter 3
- The temptations of Christ in the wilderness
- The demoniacs that Jesus healed
- Revelation chapter 12

But EGW put this together in an incredible way helping us see this greater universal landscape of the war, which centers on the character of God.

So, back to my question—is Jesus' use of the term Son of Man a Great Controversy statement?

Consider these quotes:

> Before the fall of Satan, the Father consulted his Son in regard to the formation of man. They purposed to make this world, and create beasts and living things upon it, and to make man in the image of God, to reign as a ruling monarch over every living thing which God should create. When Satan learned the purpose of God, he was envious at Christ, and jealous because the Father had not consulted him in regard to the creation of man. Satan was of the highest order of angels; but Christ was above all. He was the commander of all Heaven. He imparted to the angelic family the high commands of his Father. The envy and jealousy of Satan increased. Until his rebellion all Heaven was in harmony, and perfect subjection to the government of God. Satan commenced to insinuate his dissatisfied feelings to other angels, and a number agreed to aid him in his rebellion. Satan was dissatisfied with his position. Although very exalted, he aspires to be equal with God; and unless the Lord gratifies his ambition, determines to rebel, and refuse submission. He desires, yet dare not at once venture to make known his envious, hateful feelings. But he contents himself with gaining all he can to sympathize with him, as though deeply wronged. He relates to them his thoughts of warring against Jehovah. Spiritual Gifts Vol. 3 p. 36.
> After the earth was created, and the beasts upon it, the Father and Son carried out their purpose, which was designed before the fall of Satan, to make man in their own image. They had wrought together in the creation of the earth and every living thing upon it. And now God said to His Son, "Let us make man in our image." As Adam came forth from the hand of his Creator he was of noble height and of beautiful symmetry…Story of Redemption 20.

God, in His foreknowledge and eternal wisdom, had a purpose for the species human before Satan rebelled in heaven. What was that purpose?

> When Adam came from the Creator's hand, he bore, in his physical, mental, and spiritual nature, a likeness to his Maker. "God created man in His own image" (Genesis 1:27), and it was His purpose that the longer man lived the more fully he should reveal this image—the more fully reflect the glory of the Creator. All his faculties were capable of development; their capacity and vigor were continually to increase. Vast was the scope offered for their exercise, glorious the field opened to their research. The mysteries of the visible universe—the "wondrous works of Him which is perfect in knowledge" (Job 37:16)—invited man's study. Face-to-face, heart-to-heart communion with his Maker was his high privilege. Had he remained loyal to God, all this would have been his forever. Throughout eternal ages he would have continued to gain new treasures of knowledge, to discover fresh springs of happiness, and to obtain clearer and yet clearer conceptions of the wisdom, the power, and the love of God. More and more fully would he have fulfilled the object of his creation, more and more fully have reflected the Creator's glory. Education 15.

What was God's purpose in creating human beings? What would have been the result of Adam and Eve staying loyal and governing the planet like God governs the universe? How would they have treated each other? How would they have treated their children in a sinless world? Would this have revealed anything about how God governs?

Do you think Satan wanted this purpose in humanity's creation to occur?

> As soon as the Lord through Jesus Christ created our world and placed Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, Satan announced his purpose to conform to his own nature the father and mother of all humanity, and to unite them with his own ranks of rebellion. He was determined to efface the image of God from the human posterity, and to trace his own image upon the soul in the place of the divine image.... Christ Triumphant 10.

God had a purpose for humanity to be the repositories of His living law of love. God's law cannot be understood on stone, for love requires life, and human beings were created in the image of God to live out God's law of love in governance of themselves and in how they treat others and govern the planet.

Satan is the father of lies, fear, and selfishness. His goal is to erase fidelity, love, truth, integrity, honesty, loyalty from the living temple where God placed His image and instead have living human beings carry around his law of survival of the fittest, of me-first, of power, control, coercion, force, abuse, murder, and death.

Jesus came as the second Adam to overthrow the infection of fear, selfishness and sin that Satan introduced into the heart and mind of Adam and Eve and to restore God's image in us.

> In assuming human nature, that he might reach to the very depths of human woe and misery and lift man up, Christ has shown what estimate he places upon the human race. In this work > everything was at stake. Satan claimed to be the lawful owner of the fallen race; and with what persistent effort did he seek to overthrow Christ through his subtilty! It was only by the most desperate conflict with the powers of Satan that Christ could accomplish his purpose of restoring the almost obliterated image of God in man, and place his own signature upon his forehead. It was a desperate battle; for Satan had so long worked in league with human intelligences as to almost completely intercept every ray of light shining from the throne of God upon the human mind. The cross of Calvary alone could destroy the works of the devil. In that wondrous sacrifice all eyes were called to 'behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.' The love of Christ kindles in the heart of all who continue to behold him. General Conference Daily Bulletin March 2, 1897, par. 17

Is it possible that Jesus uses the term Son of Man because He is not just redeeming individual humans that He loves, but is redeeming the mission and purpose for which humanity was created?

And by doing this, Christ not only reveals the truth of God's character of love, His design laws of life, but also reveals that Adam's sin was not because of a manufacturer's defect! By His victory, in weakened humanity, Jesus proves that the sin of Adam was not because of some flaw in his design, or creation, or lack of a resource.

Read the last paragraph:

> Notice some elements in these passages: (1) Jesus, the Son of Man, is coming in glory with His angels. (2) He will divide the sheep from the goats (basically a judgment). (3) The destiny of the nations and all humanity will be decided for eternity. (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p.16)

What does this mean? What law lens do you view these things through?

If we use human law what does judgment mean? In a human law system, it is the ruling of the judge (or jury) that determines whether a person is found guilty or is acquitted. But that is NOT how judgment works in God's kingdom, for God's law does not function like human law. God's law is not made-up rules, but the design protocols reality is built upon.

So if any person of authority, including God, separates sheep from goats, what is the basis of that judgment? Is it not the reality that sheep are sheep and goats are goats—i.e. it is the inherent nature of the two living beings. The judgment of God does not make a sheep a sheep or a goat a goat.

So too in the final judgment God's judgment merely confirms who is a sheep and who is a goat. God's judgment does NOT determine one's eternal destiny, God's judgment sustains, affirms, confirms the choice that every single person has made in forming their own character, in solidifying themselves in love and trust to God or hardening themselves in rebelling against Him.

Thus we read in Revelation, the close of probation closes when every heart seals itself either into loyalty to God or loyalty to sin.

TUESDAY

Then what about the title of this day's lesson: The Heavenly Judgment—what is that?

What comes to mind when you think of the heavenly judgment?

In our magazine, The Final Message of Mercy to the World: The Three Angels we address the question of judgment and identify four judgments.

In the 3 angels' message, what judgment is being referred to?

The hour of God's judgment has come—what does this mean? Is it the hour in which God has a tribunal, or the hour in human history in which we are finally able to judge Him correctly in the true light that Jesus revealed?

The lesson takes the position that the judgment is a judicial process in which records are open and a heavenly tribunal sits. They use Daniel 7:9-10, 13-14 as a basis for this. Let's read those verses and see what you think:

> As I looked, thrones were set in place, and the Ancient of Days took his seat. His clothing was as white as snow; the hair of his head was white like wool. His throne was flaming with fire, and its wheels were all ablaze. A river of fire was flowing, coming out from before him. Thousands upon thousands attended him; ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him. The court was seated, and the books were opened… In my vision at night I looked, and there before me was one like a son of man, coming with the clouds of heaven. He approached the Ancient of Days and was led into his presence. He was given authority, glory and sovereign power; all peoples, nations and men of every language worshiped him. His dominion is an everlasting dominion that will not pass away, and his kingdom is one that will never be destroyed. (Daniel 7:9-10, 13-14 NIV84).

A court was set—what type of court? If one views the Bible through the human imposed law lens, then this is a judicial court, a court of law, to examine records, determine guilt or innocence and just punishments.

But if we recognize God's law as design law, and God's government governs the operations of reality itself, then we see what is actually described in the text, what is transpiring, what is really happening, what is the reality of the event recorded in this Scripture. We realize that this is not a judicial court being convened, but it is God's royal court in which Jesus comes and receives the kingdom from His Father that is rightly His, and that He objectively proved, through His self-sacrificial death, to be worthy of receiving. And all the intelligences in heaven attend and affirm Him as worthy, worthy, worthy the Lamb who was slain!

This is the same event as recorded in Revelation chapter five, let's read it in Revelation 5 and please take note of the similarities. Because Revelation confirms for us that this is not a judicial court and the book being opened in this court is not the book of our recorded sins:

> Then I saw in the right hand of him who sat on the throne a scroll with writing on both sides and sealed with seven seals. [this is the book referenced in Daniel chapter seven that is being opened] And I saw a mighty angel proclaiming in a loud voice, "Who is worthy to break the seals and open the scroll?" But no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth could open the scroll or even look inside it. I wept and wept because no one was found who was worthy to open the scroll or look inside. Then one of the elders said to me, "Do not weep! See, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has triumphed. He is able to open the scroll and its seven seals."
> Then I saw a Lamb, looking as if it had been slain, standing in the center of the throne, encircled by the four living creatures and the elders... He came and took the scroll from the right hand of him who sat on the throne. And when he had taken it, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb. Each one had a harp and they were holding golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints. And they sang a new song:
> "You are worthy to take the scroll and to open its seals, because you were slain, and with your blood you purchased men for God from every tribe and language and people and nation. You have made them to be a kingdom and priests to serve our God, and they will reign on the earth."
> Then I looked and heard the voice of many angels, numbering thousands upon thousands, and ten thousand times ten thousand. They encircled the throne and the living creatures and the elders. In a loud voice they sang:
> "Worthy is the Lamb, who was slain, to receive power and wealth and wisdom and strength and honor and glory and praise!"
> Then I heard every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth and on the sea, and all that is in them, singing:
> "To him who sits on the throne and to the Lamb be praise and honor and glory and power, for ever and ever!"

> The four living creatures said, “Amen,” and the elders fell down and worshiped. (Revelation 5:1-14 NIV84)

Do you see the same event here as in Daniel chapter 7?

- God is on His throne
- The heavenly intelligences are gathered around
- Jesus comes to His Father and is found worthy and receives His kingdom
- And Jesus opens the book
- And the heavenly beings rejoice

So what is in this book that is sealed with seven seals?

This is from the Remedy:

> Then I looked, and I saw that he who sits on the throne had written out the history of the world before the world began, and sealed it up. It was symbolized by a book in his right hand, with writing within, and sealed with seven seals. 2And I watched as a mighty angel asked in a loud voice, "Who is worthy to break the seals and open the book of God's foreknowledge, and intervene in human history?" 3But there was no created being in heaven, or living on earth, or amongst the dead, who could open the scroll or even look at its contents. 4My heart broke with sadness because there was no one found who could open the book or look inside. 5Then one of the elders said to me, "Don't be sad! See, Jesus–the Lion from Judah, the descendant of David–has overcome and is now able to open the book of God's foreknowledge, sealed by seven seals."
> 6Then I saw a Lamb, appearing as if it had been slain–symbolizing Jesus who sacrificed himself to eradicate sin–standing at the command center of the universe, surrounded by his staff and agents symbolized by the four living creatures and the elders. He had all heavenly power and all wisdom at his disposal — symbolized by seven horns and seven eyes, which represented God’s Spirit — and he was directing every heavenly agency to rescue, heal and restore his children living on earth. 7He came and took the book from God's right hand. 8When he took the book, his staff–symbolized by the four living creatures and twenty-four elders–were so relieved that they fell down in joy and awe before him. They were processing requests from God's children on earth–symbolized by the golden bowls of incense they each held. They also had renewed hearts that were like musical instruments making a beautiful melody, 9and they sang a new song stemming from their admiration for Jesus:
> "You are able to take the book and reveal the sealed contents because you were killed, and by your death you revealed the truth and achieved the Remedy to free humans from sin and restore people from every race, language, tribe and nation to God. 10You have healed their minds, making them a kingdom of priests ministering the Remedy of our God, and they will administer God's methods on earth."

> [11]Then I heard many voices, so I looked, and I saw millions of angels–so many that it was beyond my ability to count. They surrounded the throne and the living creatures, and the elders. [12]In rich booming voices, they sang:
> "Worthy is Jesus the Lamb to possess all power, resources and ability, and receive all honor, glory and praise, because he was slain, proving that he will never abuse such mighty power!"
> [13]Then I heard every living being in the universe singing in unison:
> "To him who sits on the throne and to Jesus the Lamb be praise and honor, glory and power, for ever and ever, without end!"
> [14]The four living creatures said, "Absolutely right!" and the elders fell down in adoration and awe.

Do you recognize that the events in Daniel 7 are not judicial, they are the description of Jesus receiving His kingdom, His power, and authority and taking command of all heavenly resources for the purpose of healing and saving us.

The book with seven seals is the book of God's foreknowledge that He recorded before He began creating. Then, after recording His foreknowledge of events in the book sealed with seven seals, God created and at some point established recording angels to record history as it unfolded. And when Jesus unseals the seven seals the book of God's foreknowledge is compared with history as it happened and all see that God does in fact have perfect foreknowledge, but never uses that foreknowledge to restrict our liberty, take away our freedom of choice, or manipulate for selfish purposes. In other words, God's character and government are vindicated.

Fear God and give Him glory for the hour of HIS judgment has come!

Some might argue that I am taking only a portion of Daniel 7 out of context and not including later verses that they claim establish this court as judicial, specifically Daniel 7:21-22 which read from the NIV:

> As I watched, this horn was waging war against the saints and defeating them, until the Ancient of Days came and pronounced judgment in favor of the saints of the Most High, and the time came when they possessed the kingdom. (Daniel 7:21-22 NIV84).

Those who view the Bible through human imposed law lenses will read this verse and say, "see God is pronouncing judgment. This is a tribunal, it is a legal court." However, the translation "pronounced judgment in favor of the saints" is an interpretation based on the preconceived ideas of the translators, namely that God's law functions like human law and thus this is a legal process, so they translate it as such.

It is a legitimate translation, so I don't allege anything nefarious against the translators, but it is not the only legitimate translation. Here is another from the KJV:

> I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them; Until the Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the most High; and the time came that hithe saints possessed the kingdom. (Daniel 7:21-22 KJV).

When we understand design law, we understand that the war between Christ and Satan is a war for our hearts and minds, who we believe and who we are loyal to.

Satan is the father of lies and those lies are primarily about God. Thus Paul said in this warfare that we have divine weapons to demolish every argument and pretention that sets itself up against the knowledge of God (2 Corinthians 10:3-5).

This prophecy in Daniel is about the war, about the little horn power that misrepresents God in a way that sets up a false version of God in the spirit temple that people believe. That false version is the idea that God is a dictator, a being who makes up rules like we do and then uses His power to punish rulebreakers. This is the imperial Roman idea of law that the Roman church accepted and promulgated, and which lead to the Dark Ages and the many abuses that the church perpetrated upon humanity, such as the Crusades, Inquisition, burning people at the stake etc.

God is telling us in these prophecies that the little horn power will war against the saints and be winning until the saints are given judgement or discernment to tell the difference between the false imperial Roman god and the true Creator God. Thus the message of the 3 angels we are called to receive the eternal gospel, the eternal good news that God is not like a Roman Caesar, to reject the imperial dictator view of God, to receive the ability to make a right judgment and to judge God to be exactly like Jesus revealed and His government to operate upon design laws. To worship Him who made the heavens, earth, seas and fountains of water. Then the little horn power will be defeated.

And when does this happen—at the end of the 2300 years, when enough truth is recovered from the Bible being translated into the language of the people that our minds can be freed from the lies about God.

WEDNESDAY

Read third and fourth paragraphs:

> The angel comes from the presence of God in the glory of the temple and says, “It’s time. The harvest is fully ripe.” Go and get Your children and bring them home.
> Jesus uses illustrations from agriculture repeatedly in the New Testament. On more than one occasion, He uses the symbolism of a ripening harvest to illustrate the growth of the seed of the gospel in the lives of His people. (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p.18)

What do you understand is happening, what is being described?

What laws are involved in what is described? What kind of law is involved in agriculture?

If we get congress to pass a law that crops in America are legally allowed to grow without water, what happens?

If congress passes a law that says plants that receive sunshine and rain are not allowed to grow—what happens?

If congress passes a law that says anyone who plants thornbushes in their fields will harvest figs, what happens?

So what determines whether one is among the wheat or the tares?

What determines when the harvest is ready?

In the fifth paragraph, which is a quote from Christ's Object Lessons it states that "Sanctification is the work of a lifetime."

What does this mean? Does it mean we don't experience sanctification until the end of our life? Does it mean that the antediluvians who lived 900 years had an advantage over us in becoming sanctified?

How do you understand this statement: "Eating is the work of a lifetime"?

Sanctification is growing in godliness and if we have chosen Jesus as our Savior then every day we are to be growing in godliness, every day internalizing more truth, living out His methods and principles, gaining increasing insights, greater wisdom, maturing with more fruits of the spirit.

Sanctification is not a point it time, it is a way of living, we live sanctified lives!

THURSDAY

Read the second paragraph:

> "Another angel came out from the altar, who had power over fire" (Rev. 14:18, NKJV). Here is the angel who commands the fires of God's final judgment. The harvest is ripe. Sin has reached its limits. Rebellion has crossed the line of God's mercy. As evil and bad as things have been, it's going to get even worse before it's all over. A loving God has done everything He can do for us, which included offering Himself on the cross as a sacrifice for our sin. "For He made Him who knew no sin to be sin for us, that we might become the righteousness of God in Him" (2 Cor. 5:21, NKJV; see also Gal. 3:13). (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p.19)

I found it interesting how the lesson clipped Revelation 14:18 right in the middle of the sentence in order to advance the idea that the fire is the fire of God's judgment.

Let's read the entire sentence and also what the angel in charge of the fire does, which is verse 19:

> Still another angel, who had charge of the fire, came from the altar and called in a loud voice to him who had the sharp sickle, "Take your sharp sickle and gather the clusters of grapes from the earth's vine, because its grapes are ripe" (Revelation 14:18-19 NIV84).

Does the angel use fire to inflict some punishment? Is fire used at all? If we allow the text to influence our conclusion about this fire, what fire would you say this is? Where is the angel coming from? The altar of God, and the angel is in charge of the fire, would it be the fire that burns in the altar of God? Would that idea be foreign to the text or a reasonable conclusion?

And is it likely that these images of fire and altars are literal or are they symbolic here in the book of Revelation?

The Bible tells us the meaning:

> I saw the Lord. He was sitting on his throne, high and exalted, and his robe filled the whole Temple. [Where is this? And is the angel in Revelation 14 coming from? The altar, which is where? The heavenly temple] Round him flaming creatures were standing, each of which had six wings. [What kind of fire is this? Is it combustion or something else?] Each creature covered its face with two wings, and its body with two, and used the other two for flying. They were calling out to each other:
> "Holy, holy, holy!
> The LORD Almighty is holy!
> The sound of their voices made the foundation of the Temple shake, and the Temple itself was filled with smoke.
> I said, "There is no hope for me! I am doomed because every word that passes my lips is sinful, and I live among a people whose every word is sinful. And yet, with my own eyes, I have seen the King, the LORD Almighty!"
> Then one of the creatures flew down to me, carrying a burning coal that he had taken from the altar with a pair of tongs. He touched my lips with the burning coal and said, "This has touched your lips, and now your guilt is gone, and your sins are forgiven." (Isaiah 6:1-7 GNT)

So this angel in Revelation is in charge of the fire—and what does the fire of God do? It cleanses us from sin!

So this angel comes and tells the others to harvest—why? Because there are no more people who are willing to be cleansed by the fires of truth and love that flow from the throne of God. Every person has become settled, sealed, solidified either into loyal love to God or sinful selfishness to Satan.

> How well can you discern the contrast between good and evil? Why is it important that we do? (See Heb. 5:14.)

Just consider the events around COVID, the lockdowns, the mandates, the coercion, pressure, the willingness to close churches, businesses, the forceful blockade of families from visiting their loved ones in hospitals, nursing homes, hospice care, the refusal to stand with individuals whose consciences did not want to comply in injecting experimental substances into their bodies, the willingness to accuse those who had questions of not loving their fellow man, of being the cause of deaths.

It became very clear to me that the majority of people don't have good discernment skills, in my direct experience with people it we clear the vast majority of the people in my community, neighborhoods, and professional organizations could not discern—sadly many in the church also failed to discern good from evil during this time.

2023 Q2 Three Cosmic Messages: Lesson 3
The Everlasting Gospel

by Mark Cox

SABBATH

MEMORY TEXT: "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people" Revelation 14:6

X MARKS THE SPOT

Revelation is written like a Treasure Map where X Marks the Spot. Right in the middle of Revelations is the Three Angels Message - Revelation 14: 6-12. I submit to you, the most important idea, "The Everlasting Gospel", is where X marks the spot. [Don't go by the chapter and verse numbers. They were added later]

Revelation is written in a literary poetic form called Chiasm, after the Greek letter Chi. Which looks like the English letter X.

The First Half of Revelation is Historical and the Last Half of Revelation is Eschatological / End Time Events

The subject matter of the first half Reflects or Mirrors the second half. There are key words and phrases in the first half that Compare and Contrast ideas in the second half.

While many believe Revelation cannot be understood, the poetic style and structure tells us quite the opposite. Not only is Revelation written to be understood, it is written in precise order with specific thoughts to be mastered by the reader and not forgotten.

It is not written for the casual reader, it is written for the seeker. Like a puzzle it's ideas are organized for the delight of discovery. Once fully realized the picture is complete and all the parts and pieces make a whole. Contemplating the meaning of the message is the time and challenge.

Far from being the ramblings of an old lonely prophet cast away on the isle of Patmos, Revelation is a master piece of inspiration and symmetry, with specific order and organization of thoughts and ideas.

Signs of the Times Special Edition - Revelation Chiasm

For your reference I have attempted to share with you a couple of pages from an old special edition of "Signs of the Times" that make my point for me. I apologies, I don't have the exact date and issue.

UNDERSTANDING REVELATION'S ORGANIZATION

Let's admit it right at the outset: Revelation is a difficult book to understand. We can't find its basic meaning with a simple reading, as we can with the Gospels and Acts. And even careful study doesn't necessarily produce satisfactory results. Recognizing its regular use of Old Testament images and themes does a lot to illuminate Revelation's meaning. But determining the organization of this book—its structure—does more to help us understand it than is true of any other book of the Bible.

Revelation's structure is based on that of Hebrew poetry. We in this age, and particularly in the West, do most of our serious writing in prose. We tend to think of poetry as "art" and therefore somewhat marginal to the more important matters of life. But that was not the case in Bible times. One-third of the Old Testament was written as poetry, as a look at one of the modern versions of the Bible will show you. The prophets recorded much of their messages—which were so important to Revelation—as poetry.

Like our poetry, that of ancient Israel expressed emotions and used figurative language. Occasionally, their poetry, like ours, made use of similar-sounding words. But most often, Hebrew writers constructed their poetry on other kinds of parallelism—especially parallelism of meaning or thought. This might be synonymous parallelism, in which the second or succeeding lines repeat the thought of the first line in different words; e.g.:

"Israel	does not	know,
My people	do not	consider..."
		(Isaiah 1:3)*

Or it might be antithetical parallelism, in which the succeeding lines stand in contrast to the first line; e.g.:

"A soft answer	turns away	wrath,
But a harsh word	stirs up	anger."
		(Proverbs 15:1)

A chiasm is a particular form of parallelism. (The word chiasm comes from chi, the name of the Greek letter X, which has the shape one might imagine a chiastic poem to have.) In a typical chiastic structure, one thought (A) is presented; a second thought (B) is added; then follows a third thought (B'), which stands in some kind of parallelism—e.g., synonymous or antithetic—to the second thought; and finally, a fourth thought (A'), parallel in some way to the first thought, completes the structure. The following example shows a three-element chiasm:

(A) "Ephraim
(B) shall not envy
(C) Judah, and (C') Judah
(B') shall not harass
(A') Ephraim." (Isaiah 11:13).

Poetry pervades the Old Testament, and chiasms abound throughout. Consequently, it's not difficult to believe that the writer of a book so full of references to that testament (scholars have counted some 400!) should use one of its prominent literary forms to structure his book. But it's the fact that this structure fits Revelation—that it works—which makes this suggestion convincing. (Don't be troubled by the fact that the chapter divisions in Revelation don't fit the outline. Those chapter divisions are not John's; they were added more than a thousand years after he completed his writing.)

The four major prophecies of Daniel parallel one another, each beginning in the prophet's time and portraying variously the political and religious developments that lead to the end of secular history and the establishment of God's eternal kingdom. Similarly, the first half of Revelation, its historical section, contains four major prophecies or visions that begin in the prophet's time and reach to the end of the world—Christ's second coming, when God intervenes directly in earth's affairs to end evil and establish His kingdom. The second half of Revelation also consists of four parts. These, however, focus strictly on end-time ("eschatological") events, detailing the fate of those who have persisted in their rebellion against God and the "reward" of those who have faithfully maintained their allegiance to Him.

Like Daniel (and 2 Thessalonians 2), much of Revelation presents the spiritual decline of Christianity. The visions of the seven churches and the seven seals tell the story of that decline. The vision of the seven trumpets points to the warnings God sends to call people from that downward track to one that offers a better end. The vision of the dragon, sea beast, and land beast/false prophet reveals the roots of that decline and what those who persist in it will do to the faithful. Chapter 14—the focus of Revelation, the center of its chiasm—highlights the central issue in the great controversy between God and Satan, the grounds of the decline. And the rest of Revelation, its eschatological half, reveals how God will deal with the unfaithful and then with the faithful. $

The Chi in the Great Controversy
Our readers and listeners may find it interesting that the book "The Great Controversy" appears to be written in a similar Chiastic Structure. The first half is Historical while the last half is Eschatological.

I like to think of the Great Controversy as a commentary for the ideas in the book of Revelation. It amplifies and sharpens the issues of the Cosmic Conflict.

Seventh-day Adventist have come to identify with the "Three Angels Message" in our origin, purpose and principles preparing the world for Jesus soon coming and the Final Conflict. Over the years our message and mission has developed into a corporate man made organization, with a financial and legal structure that governs our operations. While the work of God should be orderly and organized for effective ministry, it is important to recognize God's church of the last day believers will be defined by the Character of a people not by a building or a corporate organization. There will be a time when all man made structures and organization will fail, but the origin, purpose and principles of Gods Kingdom will endure until the end, and reach around the world, and be represented by a multitude that no man can number. People who have the faith of Jesus and keep the commandments of God. This is a church built up by the hand of God.

SUNDAY

A Grace-Filled Book of Hope

THE REVELATION OF JESUS

> "The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave Him to show His servants—things which must shortly take place. And He sent and signified it by His angel to His servant John, who bore witness to the word of God, and to the testimony of Jesus Christ, to all things that he saw. Blessed is he who reads and those who hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written in it; for the time is near." Rev. 1-3 NKJV

THE SIFTING

> These truths, as presented in Revelation 14 in connection with "the everlasting gospel," will distinguish the church of Christ at the time of His appearing. For as the result of the threefold message it is announced: "Here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus." And this message is the last to be given before the coming of the Lord. Immediately following its proclamation the Son of man is seen by the prophet, coming in glory to reap the harvest of the earth. – {GC 453.3}
> Those who received the light concerning the sanctuary and the immutability of the law of God were filled with joy and wonder as they saw the beauty and harmony of the system of truth that opened to their understanding. They desired that the light which appeared to them so precious might be imparted to all Christians; and they could not but believe that it would be joyfully accepted. But truths that would place them at variance with the world were not welcome to many who claimed to be followers of Christ. Obedience to the fourth commandment required a sacrifice from which the majority drew back. – {GC 454.1}

THE WORLD DIVIDED.

Did you notice how the current events have effectively polarized the world and sifted out people from every back ground and organization. It didn't matter what country or state, business or church, race or creed, the world was divided into two classes of people because some believed in the vaccine and others did not. Even in the Adventist Church we were divided. What causes such a devision even among fellow believers. Our Faith Tested! Our Truth Tested! Our Character Tested!

THE THREE HEBREW WORTHIES WONT BEND THE KNEE TO SATAN.

It takes a particular kind of mind and heart to stand for truth against authoritarianism.

THE DECEPTION - God's Law operates the same as Man's Law is a lie.

> That the law which was spoken by God's own voice is faulty, that some specification has been set aside, is the claim which Satan now puts forward. It is the last great deception that he will bring upon the world. He needs not to assail the whole law; if he can lead men to disregard one precept, his purpose is gained. For "whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all." James 2:10. By consenting to break one precept, men are brought under Satan's power. By substituting HUMAN LAW for GOD'S LAW, Satan > will seek to control the world. This work is foretold in prophecy. Of the great apostate power which is the representative of Satan, it is declared, "He shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High, and think to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hand." Daniel 7:25. – {DA 763.1}

> Men will surely set up their laws to counter work the laws of God. They will seek to compel the consciences of others, and in their zeal to enforce these laws they will oppress their fellow men. – {DA 763.2}
> The warfare against God's law, which was begun in heaven, will be continued until the end of time. Every man will be tested. Obedience or disobedience is the question to be decided by the whole world. All will be called to choose between the law of God and the laws of men. Here the dividing line will be drawn. There will be but TWO CLASSES. Every character will be fully developed; and all will show whether they have chosen the side of loyalty or that of rebellion. – {DA 763.3}

Then the end will come.

TWO LAWS - Law of God and the Laws of Men.
Before we understand the deception we must understand the difference between the Law of God and Laws of Man. We must recognize how God's law and mans law operate differently.

HOW GOD'S LAW OPERATES
I believe the simplest way to understand how Gods law operates is to understand the idea of Wisdom introduced in scripture.

OLD TESTAMENT CHI
Just as in Revelation where we see one author's use of the Chiastic structure in the poetic form of one book, in the whole collection of OT books, we see the Chiastic structure in the order and organization of the many authors and many books. Another X Marks the Spot in the Old Testament - the Chiasm of the OT puts the book of Proverbs right in the middle of the Old Testament. From Genesis to Malachi there 39 books and Proverbs is the center book, number 20.

> 17 Historical books - Genesis to Esther
> 5 Inner Experiences Books - Job, Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Song of Solomon
> 17 Prophetic Books - Isaiah to Malachi

CHOKHMAH
The Hebrew word for Wisdom is - "CHOKHMAH" - it describes an invisible, creative force that guides people in how they should live. You can't see it, like you can't see gravity, but it is there, it is everywhere and it affects everything we do. The Idea of Wisdom, I would submit to you, is an understanding of "Design Law" or Natural Law. How God created Reality to Operate - God's Protocol for Life.

Even more important, this creative invisible power is not an impersonal force. It is a living attribute of God that we can experience. It is a very real, living, personal power of God, that God used to create the Universe. God wove it into the fabric of everything thing and how everything works. Everything is designed to exist in harmony with CHOKHMAH - Wisdom

> "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and knowledge of the Holy One is understanding." Proverbs 9:10

To know wisdom is more than an intellectual pursuit. To know wisdom is to know God and to be fully known by God.

When we live in harmony with Wisdom there is life and when we live out of harmony with Wisdom there is death. There is an inherent consequence that blesses or curses our existence.

When we think of the laws of God we don't usually think of things like gravity, the laws of physics and thermal dynamics; the laws of relationships like truth and unselfishness love, forgiveness and trust; the laws of Character development such as our principles and habits; the laws of health such as our diet and exercise etc.. but these are all the laws of God, that God designed into his creation, that govern Heaven and Earth.

SCIENCE & RELIGION
The world promotes Science against Religion, but in CHOKHMAH - Wisdom they cannot be divided. They are the same. They are in synch with God's design or not.

LIVING OUT OF HARMONY WITH GOD
John tells us in 1 John 3:4 "Whosoever committeth Sin transgresseth also the law: for Sin is the transgression of the law." Transgression is a Violation of Trust in our relationships with God, our relationships with one another and ourself. Yes we can break trust with ourself by not being honest with ourself.

John is referring to God's Law of Love (Relationships) not God's Ten Commandments (Behaviors). Thus the Command to Love God and others as our self.

In the book Steps to Christ, Ellen White makes that clear.

> "God made man perfectly holy and happy; and the fair earth, as it came from the Creator's hand, bore no blight of decay or shadow of the curse. It is TRANSGRESSION of God's law—the LAW OF LOVE—that has brought woe and death. Yet even amid the suffering that results from sin, God's love is revealed. It is written that God cursed the ground for man's sake. Genesis 3:17. …"– {SC 9.3}

NOTICE how she describes Gods law of love in the context of Creation. "God is Love" His Law is love, a personal attribute of God. I would submit to you this is an understanding of CHOKHMAH - Wisdom, that God has woven into Faith, Character and our Relationships.

Psalms 1: ....But his delight is in the law of the LORD; Psalms 19: .....The law of the LORD is perfect, converting the soul..... Psalms 119: .....97 O how I love thy law!

Rom. 13:10 love does no harm to its neighbor. Therefore, love is the fulfillment of the law Gal. 5:14 The entire Law summed up in a single command: "Love your neighbor as yourself." James 2:8 The Royal Law "Love your neighbor as yourself " Mat. 22:37-40 / Lev. 19:18 / Deut. 6:5 "Love the Lord Your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind. This is the first and greatest commandment. And the second is like unto it: Love your neighbor as yourself. All the Law and the Prophets hang on these two commandments." 1 Corin. 13:5 - "Love is .... not self seeking.

> "God is love." 1 John 4:16. His nature, His law, is love. It ever has been; it ever will be. "The high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity," whose "ways are everlasting," changeth not. With Him "is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." Isaiah 57:15; Habakkuk 3:6; James 1:17. – {PP 33.1}
> For God is love, and love is life....{COL 258.3}
> "It will be seen that the glory shining in the face of Jesus is the glory of self-sacrificing love. In the light from Calvary it will be seen that the law of self-renouncing love is the law of life for earth and heaven; that the love which "seeketh not her own" has its source in the heart of God; and that in the meek and lowly One is manifested the character of Him who dwelleth in the light which no man can approach unto...." – {RC 15.4}

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS
Most of us, when we speak of Gods law, go straight to God's Ten Commandments/ the Decalogue. But God's law is much more than just the Ten Commandments. The Ten Commandments themselves were given in Love.

> Jesus says: "If you love Me, keep My commandments … He who has My commandments and keeps them, it is he who loves Me … If anyone loves Me, he will keep My word; and My Father will love him, and We will come to him and make Our home with him." John 14:15-24."

Love is inherent in God's Creation and Design, while the scriptures tell us the Ten Commandments were added because of Sin.

Read Paul's words in Galatians 3:19 - The Ceremonial Laws and the Moral Law were added after sin. What does that mean?

> "Wherefore then serveth the law? It was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise was made; and it was ordained by angels in the hand of a mediator." Galatians 3:19

topics@comeandreason.com

> "I am asked concerning the law in Galatians. What law is the schoolmaster to bring us to Christ? I answer: Both the ceremonial and the moral code of ten commandments… "The law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith" (Gal. 3:24). In this scripture, the Holy Spirit through the apostle is speaking especially of the moral law." {1SM 233, 234}

Behavior sins (Moral Failures) are indicators of Relational Sin (Trust Violations)

This is essentially what is being said. John says Sin is transgressing the Law of Love. and Paul is saying the Ten Commandments were added because you violated the Law of love.

Or I might summarize it this way: Sin (with a Capital "S") is Transgression / Violating a Trust Relationship. Living with broken trust with God we tend to sin (with a little "s") / Moral Failures so God gave us the Ten Commandments to protect us from destructive behaviors.

The Law of Love and the Ten Commandments are God's Laws

The law of Love is the foundation of Gods Creation and the Ten Commandments were given in Love to protect us from destructive behaviors.

The Ten Commandments cannot save, but we would not have known sin / destructive behaviors if the Ten Commandments did not point it out.

Obedience to the Ten can protect or "Quarantine" in order to be saved.

The Right Relationship with God transforms our lives. The relationship is Transforming and saving. To know God and be fully known by God. Faith in Jesus makes us right with God - Thus - Salvation is by Faith.

WHAT?! THERE IS A LAW?!

> In heaven, service is not rendered in the spirit of legality. When Satan in heaven rebelled against the law of Jehovah, the thought that there was a law came to the angels almost as an awakening to something they had not thought of. Love for God and for the Commander in high heaven, had been without one drawback. In their ministry the angels did not work as servants, they were not doing the will of God for wages, or to secure position; not to increase their importance or minister to their own pleasure; but their will was identical with the will of God. There was a perfect unity of taste and inclination between the angels and their Creator. Obedience was no drudgery to them. It was a delight.—Letter 4, 1892, p. 15. (To Sister A. G. Daniells, September 19, 1892.) – {9MR 210.2}

THE DECALOGUE

The law for the depraved, degraded and the demoralized / the morally immature. Those in the bondage of sinfulness. The Ten Commandments were given to the Israelites during the Exodus, a time when they were morally degraded by captivity.

> "Knowing this, that the law is not made for a righteous man, but for the lawless and disobedient, for the ungodly and for sinners, for unholy and profane, for murderers of fathers and murderers of mothers, for manslayers, For whoremongers, for them that defile themselves with mankind, for menstealers, for liars, for perjured persons, and if there be any other thing that is contrary to sound doctrine; According to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, which was committed to my trust." 1Timothy 1:9-11

PERSPECTIVE ON CHARACTER

Moral - Take responsibility for Character and Relationships - Purpose Principles and Habit
Amoral - Neglect responsibility for Character and Relationships - Purpose, Principles and Habits
Immoral - Ones Character does not fit the Purpose Principles and Habits of a Society Demoralized - Robbed of Higher Reasoning and Will Power to determine Purpose, Principles and Habits. Bondage to others Purpose Principles and Habits. A Slave.

Seven Levels of Moral Decision Making / Moral Maturity

Dr. Lawrence Kohlberg 6 levels adapted by Dr. Tim Jennings in his book "God Shaped Heart".

1. Reward and Punishment
2. Market Place Exchange
3. Social Conformity
4. Law and Order
5. Lover for Others
6. Principle-based Living
7. Understanding Friendship with God

SIMPLE OBEDIENCE

To escape the bondage of Sin and sinfulness Simple Trust and Obedience is required.

> "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly.... But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in His law [CHOKHMAH / Wisdom / Design Law / Natural Law] doth he meditate day and night. And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper." Psalm 1:1-3. It is only as the law of God is restored to its rightful position that there can be a revival of primitive faith and godliness among His professed people. "Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls." Jeremiah 6:16. – {GC 478.3}

It is God's design that His name shall be honored before the heavenly universe. The whole earth is to show forth His infinite glory. He is gathering from this earth a people for Himself. His will is the law of the universe. He calls upon every human being to cooperate with Him. But He forces no one. He has placed man's destiny in His own hands, telling him that his future welfare depends on his choice. To be saved, he must cooperate with God in His work of restoration. – {18MR 271.1}

The religion of self makes easy conversions. Scripture is perverted, God dethroned, and self deified. The operation of the Holy Spirit on hearts is denied. This is the new, broad way, substituted as an improvement on the strait gate and the narrow way. When self becomes thus prominent, God is lost sight of and the work cannot prosper. The Lord is misrepresented and misjudged. The importance of the truth is lost to view while human opinions rise to vast importance. Thus the experience is cheapened. Zeal for self takes the place of the higher aims which should mold the life. Egotism develops and strengthens. Religion is used as a means for carrying out selfish purposes. The solemn claims of God are treated as a farce, spoken of with levity and irreverence. A man with such an experience has lost his anchorage, and is drifting without guide or compass. – {18MR 271.2}

In seeking to cast contempt upon the divine statutes, Satan has perverted the doctrines of the Bible, and errors have thus become incorporated into the faith of thousands who profess to believe the Scriptures. The last great conflict between truth and error is but the final struggle of the long-standing controversy concerning the law of God. Upon this battle we are now entering—a battle between the laws of men and the precepts of Jehovah, between the religion of the Bible and the religion of fable and tradition. – { Darkness Before Dawn, 28.2}

THE SUBTLETY OF THE DECEPTION

Two Truths

1. Jesus, the Son of God, Died on the Cross, & paid a great price, for my Sin/sins & therefore Salvation.
2. God the Father Loves, Accepts and Forgives you and me unconditionally.

Man's Law - Operates Contractually - Legal issue. The problem with looking at God's law Contractually is that it makes one of our two truths false.

For Example:

1. If Jesus the Son of God died on the Cross and paid a great price for my sin - Then God the Father did not forgive me for anything. The Contract was fulfilled.

2. If God the Father, Loves, Accepts and Forgives me unconditionally than why did Jesus have to die? The offense has been dismissed.

If we see our problem with God as a legal contractual problem it takes away our role in the solution. We are just waiting around for the Judgement. We have no part. What happened to "Work our your Salvation with fear and trembling". It takes us away from cooperation with God.

JESUS CAME AS A REVELATION OF TRUTH AND LOVE
"Truth sets you Free" "Love Casts out all Fear"

The Truth about God - Is Wisdom - Love Life and Liberty
The Truth about Satan - The Disease - A Liar, Thief and a Murderer
The Truth about Man - Fatal Condition - Of Sin Suffering and Death
The Truth about Jesus - The Remedy -The Way the Truth and the Life.

> Christ came to represent the character of his Father, to win man back to his allegiance to God, to reconcile man to God. He proposed to meet the foe and unmask his arts, that man might be able to make choice of whom he would serve. Satan had been Lucifer, the light-bearer, the sharer of God's glory in heaven, and second to Jesus in power and majesty. In the words of inspiration he is described as the one who "sealest up the sum, full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty." But Lucifer had perverted the beauty and power with which he was endowed by the Creator, and his light had become darkness. When through his rebellion he was cast out of heaven, he determined to make man his victim, and the earth his kingdom. He cast the blame of his rebellion upon Christ, and in determined hatred of God, sought to wound Him through the fall of man. In the happiness and peace of Eden, he beheld a vision of the bliss that he had forever lost, and he determined to excite in the hearts of God's creatures the same bitterness that he himself felt, so that their songs of praise and thanksgiving might be turned to reproach against their Maker. – {BEcho November 1, 1892 Par. 3}

GOVERNED BY THE LAW OF GOD

The Sabbath as sign of those who understand Gods law - CHOKHMAH / Wisdom / Design Law / Natural Law. The law of God written on the heart.

"Forasmuch as ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ ministered by us, written, not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshy tables of the heart." 2 Corinthians 3:3

The Sabbath Message - The celebration of the relationship between the creature and his creator. Celebration of Creation

> "Then I saw another angel flying in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to those who dwell on the earth— to every nation, tribe, tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, 'Fear God and give glory to Him, for the hour of His judgment has come; and worship Him who made heaven and earth, the sea and springs of water.'" Revelation 14:6-7

MONDAY

The "Everlasting" Gospel

WHAT IS THE "EVERLASTING" GOSPEL / GOOD NEWS?

THE PLAN OF REDEMPTION

> But the plan of redemption had a yet broader and deeper purpose than the salvation of man. It was not for this alone that Christ came to the earth; it was not merely that the inhabitants of this little world might regard the law of God as it should be regarded; but it was to vindicate the character of God before the universe. To this result of His great sacrifice—its influence upon the intelligences of other worlds, as well as upon man—the Saviour looked forward when just before His crucifixion He said: "Now is the judgment of this world: now shall the prince of this world be cast out. And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all unto Me." John 12:31, 32. The act of Christ in dying for the salvation of man would not only make heaven accessible to men, but before all the universe it would justify God and His Son in their dealing with the rebellion of Satan. It would establish the perpetuity of the law of God and would reveal the nature and the results of sin. – {PP 68.2}

Thinking that Jesus came to this world just to save mankind misses the scope and magnitude of the work of redemption. If Christ failed to vindicate the Character of God the entire universe would be lost..

In my humble opinion, if we think the plan of redemption is only about saving man I believe the motivation to be a Christian becomes self serving. We all want eternal life, not eternal non-existence, right?

However, if we see the salvation of man as secondary, and the glory of God's Character of love as primary, then we share in the ministry of Christ to vindicate God before the heavenly universe. This understanding empowers the believer in Christ to live with purpose and meaning and the courage to die for the Gospel - The Glory of the Father!

> 14-18 (Hebrews 1:3; John 1:1-3, 14; Philippians 2:5-8; see EGW comment on Mark 16:6; Luke 22:44; Romans 5:12-19; Hebrews 3:1-3). God Reached Humanity Through Humanity—Christ alone was able to represent the Deity. He who had been in the presence of the Father from the beginning, He who was the express image of the invisible God, was alone sufficient to accomplish this work. No verbal description could reveal God to the world. Through a life of purity, a life of perfect trust and submission to the will of God, a life of humiliation such as even the highest seraph in heaven would have shrunk from, God Himself must be revealed to humanity. In order to do this, our Saviour clothed His divinity with humanity. He employed the human faculties, for only by adopting these could He be comprehended by humanity. Only humanity could reach humanity. He lived out the character of God through the human body which God had prepared for Him. He blessed the world by living out in human flesh the life of God, thus showing that He had the power to unite humanity to divinity (The Review and Herald, June 25, 1895). – {7BC 924.6}

SATAN AND EVIL WICKED MEN

By the same misrepresentation of the character of God as he had practiced in heaven, causing Him to be regarded as severe and tyrannical, Satan induced man to sin. He declared that God's unjust restrictions had led to man's fall, as they had led to his own rebellion. – {HF 309.3}

In the banishment of Satan from heaven, God declared His justice and honor. But when man sinned, God gave evidence of His love by yielding up His Son to die for the fallen race. In the atonement the character of God is revealed. The mighty argument of the cross demonstrates that sin was in no wise chargeable upon the government of God. During the Saviour's earthly ministry, the great deceiver was unmasked. The daring blasphemy of his demand that Christ pay him homage, the unsleeping malice that hunted Him from place to place, inspiring the hearts of priests and people to reject His love and to cry, "Crucify him! crucify him!"—all this excited the amazement and indignation of the universe. The prince of evil exerted all his power and cunning to destroy Jesus. Satan employed men as his agents to fill the Saviour's life with suffering and sorrow. The pent-up fires of envy and malice, hatred and revenge, burst forth on Calvary against the Son of God. – {HF 309.4}

Now the guilt of Satan stood forth without excuse. He had revealed his true character. Satan's lying charges against the divine character appeared in their true light. He had accused God of seeking the exaltation of Himself in requiring obedience from His creatures and had declared that while the Creator exacted self-denial from all others, He Himself practiced no self-denial and made no sacrifice. Now it was seen that the Ruler of the universe had made the greatest sacrifice which love could make, for "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself." 2 Corinthians 5:19. In order to destroy sin Christ had humbled Himself and become obedient unto death. – {HF 310.1}

THE ATONEMENT

Story on Atonement Models

Moral influence Theory - good theory - the idea that Jesus is our example - all preachers use it - It is just incomplete.

There is a word in the Bible that puzzled me for a long time. I had not seen it in the right context. The word is Propitiation. We often replace it with the word Atonement. It shows up three times in the New Testament. It's basic meaning is to Win Favor or Appease Anger.

> 24 Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus:
> 25 Whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness for the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God; Romans 3:24-25
> And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous:
> 2 And he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world. 1 John 2:1-2
> 9 In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. 10 Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins. 1 John 4:9 & 10
> But this great sacrifice was not made in order to create in the Father's heart a love for man, not to make Him willing to save. No, no! "God so loved the world, that He gave His only-begotten Son." John 3:16. The Father loves us, not because of the great propitiation, but He provided the propitiation because He loves us. Christ was the medium through which He could pour out His infinite love upon a fallen world. "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself." 2 Corinthians 5:19. God suffered with His Son. In the agony of Gethsemane, the death of Calvary, the heart of Infinite Love paid the price of our redemption.– Steps To Christ 13.2

God through Jesus seeks to win our favor and appease our anger. (Man's anger caused by his own believing lies, violating trust and moral failures) We fail the relationship and God redeems it. Atonement! Relationships and Character restored.

Unlike Satan & Pagan worship that compels man to seek Satan's favor and appease Satan's anger. Satan perverts character and relationships and ultimate destroys.

> Not until the death of Christ was the character of Satan clearly revealed to the angels or to the unfallen worlds. The archapostate had so clothed himself with deception that even holy beings had not understood his principles. They had not clearly seen the nature of his rebellion. – {DA 758.3}
> It was a being of wonderful power and glory that had set himself against God. Of Lucifer the Lord says, "Thou sealest up the sum, full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty." Ezekiel 28:12. Lucifer had been the covering cherub. He had stood in the light of God's presence. He had been the highest of all created beings, and had been foremost in revealing God's purposes to the universe. After he had sinned, his power to deceive was the more deceptive, and the unveiling of his character was the more difficult, because of the exalted position he had held with the Father. – {DA 758.4}

God could have destroyed Satan and his sympathizers as easily as one can cast a pebble to the earth; but He did not do this. Rebellion was not to be overcome by force. Compelling power is found only under Satan's government. The Lord's principles are not of this order. His authority rests upon goodness, mercy, and love; and the presentation of these principles is the means to be used. God's government is moral, and truth and love are to be the prevailing power. – {DA 759.1}

It was God's purpose to place things on an eternal basis of security, and in the councils of heaven it was decided that time must be given for Satan to develop the principles which were the foundation of his system of government. He had claimed that these were superior to God's principles. Time was given for the working of Satan's principles, that they might be seen by the heavenly universe. – {DA 759.2}

God was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself, 2 Corinthians 5:19

TUESDAY

A Story of Grace

FORETHOUGHT

> "The plan for our redemption was not an afterthought, a plan formulated after the fall of Adam. It was a revelation of 'the mystery which hath been kept in silence [Secret] through times eternal. 'Romans 16:25, R.V. It was an unfolding of the principles that from eternal ages have been the foundation of God's throne."—Ellen G. White, The Desire of Ages, p. 22.

When my wife and I had Children - we determined we would love, accept and forgive our children before they were ever born.

THIS EARTH WAS GODS ANSWER TO THE WAR IN HEAVEN.
When was the world created? Before or after sin entered heaven?

Gods plan of redemption was in place before we were created. I would suggest we were created as the answer to the Conflict in Heaven.

I would suggest that war had already begun. Which means - at one point in time - Sin only existed in Heaven.

Sin is not just an earthly problem but a universal problem. How God resolves it will effectively save, not just your soul or my soul, not just the planet, but the entire universe of heavenly angels and Unfallen worlds.

COSMIC CONFLICT
War in Heaven threatens to destroy the universe - Promise of a New Heaven

WORLD CONFLICT
Human Strife threatens to destroy all life on earth - Promise to make a New Earth

SOUL CONFLICT
Human Struggle threatens to destroy our own existence - Promise of a New Bodies - Recreated.

Paul's struggle doing the things he didn't want to do and not doing the things he knew he should. Deliver me from this body of death.

Paul Loved God, but struggle with memories, thoughts, emotional triggers from years of living against God. We are a products of what we are born with, what happens to us and our response. Conversion is changing direction but transformation can take a lifetime.

Conflict Rightly Met Develops Steadfastness

> Through conflict the spiritual life is strengthened. Trials well borne will develop steadfastness of character and precious spiritual graces. The perfect fruit of faith, meekness, and love often matures best amid storm clouds and darkness.—Christ's Object Lessons, 61 (1900).

Waging a War

> It is not mimic battles in which we are engaged. We are waging a warfare upon which hang eternal results. We have unseen enemies to meet. Evil angels are striving for the dominion of every human being.—The Ministry of Healing, 128 (1905).

Conflicts Not Created by Christ
We are living in a solemn time. An important work is to be done for our own souls and for the souls of others, or we shall meet with an infinite loss. We must be transformed by the grace of God, or we shall fail of heaven, and through our influence others will fail with us.

> "Let me assure you that the struggles and conflicts which must be endured in the discharge of duty, the self-denials and sacrifices which must be made if we are faithful to Christ, are not created by Him. They are not imposed by arbitrary or unnecessary command; they do not come from the severity of the life which He requires us to lead in His service. Trials would exist in greater power and number were we to refuse obedience to Christ and become the servants of Satan and the slaves of sin."—Testimonies for the Church 4:557, 558 (1881).

Life Is a Conflict

> This life is a conflict, and we have a foe who never sleeps, who is watching constantly to destroy our minds and lure us away from our precious Saviour, who has given His life for us.—Life Sketches of Ellen G. White, 291 (1915).

Prepare the Soul for Peace

The Lord permits conflicts to prepare the soul for peace.—The Great Controversy, 663 (1888).

Ephesians 6: The Full Armor of God

Religious Experience Gained Only Through Conflict

With energy and fidelity our youth should meet the demands upon them, and this will be a guarantee of success. Young men who have never made a success in the temporal duties of life will be equally unprepared to engage in the higher duties. A religious experience is gained only through conflict, through disappointment, through severe discipline of self, through earnest prayer. The steps to heaven must be taken one at a time, and every advance step gives strength for the next.—Counsels to Parents, Teachers, and Students, 100 (1913). . 2MCP 555-2MCP 556.3

WEDNESDAY

Into the World

SATANS POWER

The greatest trick the Devil ever pulled was convincing the world he didn't exist. "The Usual Suspects" 1995

DANGER CLOSE

None are in greater danger from the influence of evil spirits than those who, notwithstanding the direct and ample testimony of the Scriptures, deny the existence and agency of the devil and his angels. So long as we are ignorant of their wiles, they have almost inconceivable advantage; many give heed to their suggestions while they suppose themselves to be following the dictates of their own wisdom. This is why, as we approach the close of time, when Satan is to work with greatest power to deceive and destroy, he spreads everywhere the belief that he does not exist. It is his policy to conceal himself and his manner of working. – {GC 516.2}

There is nothing that the great deceiver fears so much as that we shall become acquainted with his devices. The better to disguise his real character and purposes, he has caused himself to be so represented as to excite no stronger emotion than ridicule or contempt. He is well pleased to be painted as a ludicrous or loathsome object, misshapen, half animal and half human. He is pleased to hear his name used in sport and mockery by those who think themselves intelligent and well informed. – {GC 516.3}

It is because he has masked himself with consummate skill that the question is so widely asked: "Does such a being really exist?" It is an evidence of his success that theories giving the lie to the plainest testimony of the Scriptures are so generally received in the religious world. And it is because Satan can most readily control the minds of those who are unconscious of his influence, that the word of God gives us so many examples of his malignant work, unveiling before us his secret forces, and thus placing us on our guard against his assaults. – {GC 517.1}

The power and malice of Satan and his host might justly alarm us were it not that we may find shelter and deliverance in the superior power of our Redeemer. We carefully secure our houses with bolts and locks to protect our property and our lives from evil men; but we seldom think of the evil angels who are constantly seeking access to us, and against whose attacks we have, in our own strength, no method of defense. If permitted, they can distract our minds, disorder and torment our bodies, destroy our possessions and our lives. Their only delight is in misery and destruction. Fearful is the condition of those who resist the divine claims and yield to Satan's temptations, until God gives them up to the control of evil spirits. But those who follow Christ are ever safe under His watchcare. Angels that excel in strength are sent from heaven to protect them. The wicked one cannot break through the guard which God has stationed about His people. – {GC 517.2}

AMERICA WAS A CAUSE

"The cause of America is in a great measure the cause of all mankind. Many circumstances hath, and will arise, which are not local, but universal, and through which the principles of all Lovers of Mankind are affected, and in the Event of which, their Affections are interested."
Thomas Paine - Common Sense

Liberty of Conscience / Inviolability of Conscience.

"The framers of the Constitution recognized the eternal principle that man's relation with his God is above human legislation, and his rights of conscience inalienable. Reasoning was not necessary to establish this truth; we are conscious of it in our own bosoms. It is this consciousness which, in defiance of human laws, has sustained so many martyrs in tortures and flames. They felt that their duty to God was superior to human enactments, and that man could exercise no authority over their consciences. It is an inborn principle which nothing can eradicate."—Congressional Documents (U.S.A.), serial No. 200, document No. 271 – {GC 295.3}

"In that grand old document which our forefathers set forth as their bill of rights—the Declaration of Independence—they declared: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.' And the Constitution guarantees, in the most explicit terms, the inviolability of conscience: 'No religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.' 'Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." – {GC 295.2}

How Reality Works. Confronted with tyranny, our forefathers' declaration of war was the Declaration of Independence. Here the writers declare that there are "powers of the earth," "laws of nature" subject to "nature's God," "truth" that is "self-evident," that men are "created equal," "endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights" of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." These are declarations of universal laws, protocols for life, designed into our existence, that cannot be ignored without inherent consequence. These laws of cause to affect have no exemptions, exceptions or exclusions. Three are superior.

1. The Law of Love: Disinterested Benevolence. The "pursuit of happiness" is no trivial pursuit of self-gratification, rather the right and responsibility to become "a good soul", to produce good without ulterior motives and when necessary resist or restrain evil at one's own risk, peril or sacrifice.

2. The Law of Life: Reciprocal Service. When love is reciprocal, "life" is created and sustained. All creation is designed on the great commandment, "Love your neighbor as yourself." Love unreciprocated is death.

3. The Law of Liberty: "Inviolability of Conscience." Compelling power, Coercion and Manipulation, cannot elevate man to the image designed by his maker. This law cannot be broken. To violate this law is to cause inherent damage to the Soul, the Body and the Spirit, creating a defiant rebel or a captive in bondage. Religious Liberty, Individual Autonomy, Freedom of Choice, are the powers of man for self-determination, self-governance and self-reliance. Our Constitution and was written to protect these principles for which life, safety and security are worthy sacrifices.

2023 2Q Three Cosmic Messages—Lesson 4
Fear God and Give Glory to Him

by Tim Jennings

SUNDAY

Read first paragraph:

> The purpose of the book of Revelation for our generation is to prepare a people to be ready for Jesus' soon return and to unite with Him in giving His last-day message to the world. Revelation reveals the plans of God and unmasks the plans of Satan. It presents God's final appeal, His urgent, eternal, universal message for all humanity. (SDA Adult Bible Study Guide 2Q 2023, p. 31).

What is the last-day message to go to the world?

If we read the message of the 3 angels right from the Bible on every website, TV and radio station, and phone system in the entire world so that every single person hears the word-for-word reading of the 3 angels messages, would that fulfill God's plan? Would that result in the gospel going to all the world and would it result in Jesus coming? Why or why not?

What would be missing from the message if we merely read it to everyone?

Is it possible to take the message of the 3 angels to the world in such a way that we advance Satan's kingdom rather than God's? How?

Is the message of the 3 angels the eternal gospel?

- Is there a false gospel presented in Christianity that misrepresents God? And could people take that false view of God to the world under the umbrella of claiming they are presenting the message of the 3 angels and actually be doing harm?

Are the 3 angels' messages the righteousness by faith message? How do you explain righteousness by faith?

- If we present the idea that righteousness by faith is the legal declaration that we are accounted righteous by God because of the blood payment of Jesus applied to our heavenly record so that the Father declares us to be legally righteous even though we remain unrighteous, is that the righteousness by faith message? Does that message advance the eternal gospel or does it advance Satan's counterfeit gospel?
- What is the righteousness by faith message then?
    - "God made him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God." (2 Corinthians 5:21 NIV84)

topics@comeandreason.com

So the message that is to go to all the world is the eternal gospel, it is the righteousness by faith message—is that message the message of God's character of love?

Where do you find that in the message of the 3 angels?

When you have gone to various Revelation seminars, or had Daniel and Revelation in school, what were you taught was the message of the 3 angels?

Have you ever heard anything legal in the message? Have you ever heard the message presented in a way that suggests there is a tribunal or judgment and heavenly beings are going over legal records of sin and seeking to determine if every sin has been confessed and had the proper legal payment of Jesus' blood to erase it from the record book, and if there is one sin left not properly accounted for in God's legal system then God must use power to inflict punishment upon people for unpaid for and unrepented of sin?

If an organization, say a denominational church, takes such a legal message with a punishing god to the world will it be advancing the kingdom of God or that of God's enemy? Why and how?

Read second paragraph,

> The Greek New Testament word for "fear" in Revelation 14:7 is phobeo. It is used here not in the sense of being afraid of God but in the sense of reverence, awe, and respect. It conveys the thought of absolute loyalty to God and full surrender to His will. It is an attitude of mind that is God-centered rather than self-centered. It is the opposite of Lucifer's attitude in Isaiah 14:13, 14, when he says in his heart, " 'I will ascend into heaven, I will exalt my throne above the stars of God; I will also sit on the mount of the congregation on the farthest sides of the north; I will ascend above the heights of the clouds, I will be like the Most High' " (NKJV). (SDA Adult Bible Study Guide 2Q 2023, p. 31).

This is well said, the lesson does a good job here of emphasizing that the meaning of fear here is not terror, dread, or anxiety, but reverence, awe, admiration, respect.

But, do you see this same emphasis in the first question from Friday's lesson?

> Think about the incredible power of God, the One who created and sustains the entire cosmos. We can barely grasp the idea of the cosmos. How then could we even begin to grasp the Creator of it? Think about how much greater and vaster and more powerful He is than we are. And this God will one day judge us? How do these facts help us understand the idea of the "fear of God" and what it means? (SDA Adult Bible Study Guide 2Q 2023, p. 36).

Does this series of questions emphasize awe, respect, and admiration or does it instead lead toward intimidation, dread, and terror?

What ideas are imbedded in this series of questions that causes the questions to be framed this way and which incite the wrong kind of fear?

It is the assumption that God's law functions like human law and that God's power is used judicially, to determine guilt and innocence and then to inflict punishment upon the wrongdoer. Therefore, we must be afraid of God and what He will do to us for our unpaid for sins. This is a satanic idea.

But if we return to design law and rephrase this with design law understanding, it would read like this:

> Think about the incredible power of God, the One who created and sustains the entire cosmos—His laws are the protocols reality is built upon. We can barely grasp the idea of the cosmos. How then could we even begin to grasp the Creator of it—the One who sustains it all and holds it all together in love? Think about how much greater and vaster and more powerful He is than we are. Think about how this all-powerful God has been using His power to hold at bay the ultimate destructiveness of sin and to bring healing to His creation. Think about how this Creator God will one day examine us and diagnose accurately everything that is wrong and will use all His power to cleanse, heal, recreate and restore all who trust Him to His perfect design. But, for those who refuse to allow Him to heal them, rather than using power to torment them, He sadly lets them go to reap what they have chosen—separation from Him the source of life and therefore eternal non-existence. How do these facts help us understand the idea of the "fear of God" and what it means?

Do you see how the wrong law concept contaminates the Bible and perverts the meaning so that people can take the 3 angels' messages and present them to support Satan's view of God?

Do we get a message that to fear God means to revere and awe and not be afraid or in terror from the question at the bottom of the page in Monday's lesson?

> How do Jesus' words here—" 'And do not fear those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul. But rather fear Him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell' " (Matt. 10:28, NKJV)—help us understand what it means to fear God? (SDA Adult Bible Study Guide 2Q 2023, p. 32).

Note that the authors use a translation that capitalizes "Him" to fear "Him" who is able to destroy both body and soul, thus implying that it is God who will destroy body and soul in hell. The text does not say this, Jesus simply said, be afraid of the one who can destroy the body and soul in hell. Jesus did not say it was God who would do this, but because the world has almost completely bought the lie that God's law functions like human law, and therefore believes without question that justice requires the ruling authority to use power to inflict punishment, then the translators automatically conclude that the only one it could be is God Himself. But that is not true, when we understand design law, we realize the one who destroys the soul is the sinner themselves, as Galatians say, the one who sows the carnal nature from that nature reaps destruction—not from God, from their own sinful selves.

This is how I rendered it in The Remedy:

> Don't be afraid of those who can destroy the body: they cannot touch your psyche, your mind, your individuality. Rather, be afraid of unremedied sin, which destroys both body and mind and results in eternal destruction. (Matthew 10:28 REM).

Read the fourth paragraph,

> The essence of the great controversy revolves around submission to God. Lucifer was self-centered. He refused to submit to any authority except his own. Rather than submit to the One upon the throne, Lucifer desired to rule from the throne. Put simply, to fear God is to place Him first in our thinking. It is to renounce our self-centeredness and pride and to live a life wholly for Him. (SDA Adult Bible Study Guide 2Q 2023, p. 31).

Is this right? Do you agree? Or is something off about this?

Is the essence of the GC about submission to God, or the type of submission?

Does God have the power to force every being to submit? What happens if God uses power in this way?

Does Christianity present God in this light? Is it stated that God will use power to punish sinners? Is it stated that Jesus came to take our punishment?

In fact, this past week, I was listening to a Christian radio station when a passionate young lady came on and gave a plea for everyone to trust Jesus because, He came "to take our punishment away."

Is this what the Bible says? Well, the Bible almost seems to:

> They offer sacrifices given to me and they eat the meat, but the LORD is not pleased with them. Now he will remember their wickedness and punish their sins… (Hosea 8:13 NIV84).

> The Lord will punish men for all such sins, as we have already told you and warned you. For God did not call us to be impure, but to live a holy life. (1 Thessalonians 4:6–8 NIV84).

Is there punishment for sin? Yes—does the Bible use language that says God will punish people for sin? Yes—so the question is simply how, by what means, system, or method? Is God's means, method, or system of governing, through which He brings about justice and therefore through which His punishment is brought, the same type of system that sinful humans have, a system of imposed rules, with imposed laws, requiring the infliction of imposed penalties?

In other words, the way we understand God's punishment is through the type of law we believe God uses. Is God's law like human law, or is God's law design law?

If we already believe God's law functions like human law, then we read texts like this and say, See God will use His power to punish. The people who read these texts never take the time to let the Bible describe and reveal what God actually does. They never stop to see how God punishes, which is explained, described, and demonstrated over and again in Scripture. And how does God punish, what is His method?

God does bring the punishment when He lets people go to reap what they have insisted upon. God brings the punishment when He ceases His merciful interventions and the use of divine power, not by the infliction of divine power.

Sin damages and destroys, God has been using divine power to interfere with what sin does, to hold at bay the destruction that sin naturally brings and through Christ to reconcile all to Himself. But if people insist on rebellion against God, and refuse His grace, God eventually sets them free to reap what they have chosen and they experience the full weight of unremedied sin and they are tormented by what sin does to them and then they die.

This method is described in many places in the Bible such as Romans 1:18-31 God's wrath being poured out on those who refuse the knowledge of God, and who insist on worshiping things they make with their own hands and three times, Paul tells us this results in God giving them up or letting them go to reap the destruction that sin causes.

> The human condition, which Paul describes in Romans 1:18-32, is not something caused by God. The phrase "revealed from heaven" (where "heaven" is a typical Jewish substitute word for "God") does not depict some kind of divine intervention, but rather the inevitability of human debasement which results when God's will, built into the created order, is violated. Since the created order has its origin in God, Paul can say that the wrath of God is now (constantly) being revealed "from heaven." It is revealed in the fact that the rejection of God's truth (Rom 1:18-20), that is, the truth about God's nature and will, leads to futile thinking (Rom 1:21-22), idolatry (Rom 1:23), perversion of God-intended sexuality (Rom 1:24-27) and relational-moral brokenness (Rom 1:28-32).
> The expression "God gave them over" (or "handed them over"), which appears three times in this passage (Rom 1:24,26,28), supports the idea that the sinful perversion of human existence, though resulting from human decisions, is to be understood ultimately as God's punishment which we, in freedom, bring upon ourselves.
> In light of these reflections, the common notion that God punishes or blesses in direct proportion to our sinful or good deeds cannot be maintained… God loves us with an everlasting love. But the rejection of that love separates us from its life-giving power. The result is disintegration and death. (Kaiser, W., et al., Hard Saying of the Bible, Intervarsity Press, 1996 p. 543)

And Paul uses the exact same expression when describing what God did to Jesus who became sin though He knew no sin, in Romans 4:25—God gave Him up, but the various translations translate it differently with words like delivered over, or handed over, rather than given up. But the Greek is exactly the same. And what did Jesus testify that God did to Him on the cross? God let Him go, forsook Him, abandoned Him. And what happened to Jesus—He died.

One of the founders of the SDA church understood it this way, EG White, and wrote the following:

> We are not to regard God as waiting to punish the sinner for his sin. The sinner brings the punishment upon himself. His own actions start a train of circumstances that bring the sure result. Every act of transgression reacts upon the sinner, works in him a change of character, and makes it more easy for him to transgress again. By choosing to sin, men separate themselves from God, cut themselves off from the channel of blessing, and the sure result is ruin and death. Selected Messages Volume one, p. 235. [this is Romans 1, God's wrath, design law, God ceasing the use of power to hold at bay the destructiveness of sin]
> God does not stand toward the sinner as an executioner of the sentence against transgression; but he leaves the rejecters of his mercy to themselves, to reap that which they have sown. [Galatians 6:8…] Every ray of light rejected, every warning despised or unheeded, every passion indulged, every transgression of the law of God, is a seed sown, which yields its unfailing harvest. The Spirit of God, persistently resisted, is at last withdrawn from the sinner, and then there is left no power to control the evil passions of the soul, and no protection from the malice and enmity of Satan. The Great Controversy p. 36.

This is the reality—but Satan gets the world to misconstrue it all when people accept the lie that God's law functions like human law, then they falsely teach that God is required by law to use His power to inflict harm, punishment, and death, rather than the truth that God's power is always used to restrain, overcome, and heal the destruction, harm, and death that sin brings.

So, what type of submission does imposed law with a punishing god result in? The submission of slaves, of those who don't trust, of fear, and this type of submission only stifles rebellion under a veneer of behavioral conformity.

This is not what God wants! God wants our love, our trust, our loyalty, devotion, and submission of understanding friends. And this type of submission can never be achieved by threat, intimidation, the use of might and power. Thus Scripture says, not by might nor by power but by my Spirit says the Lord, Zechariah 4:6. And the Spirit is the Spirit of truth and love. It is by the presentation of truth in love that the heart is won and we submit freely, as understanding friends.

With all of this in mind, consider these historic Adventist quotes, what the SDA church is supposed to be teaching, and take note how much of the material we read from the church today has rejected this view and instead is teaching a message that is the opposite of this:

> The earth was dark through misapprehension of God. That the gloomy shadows might be lightened, that the world might be brought back to God, Satan's deceptive power was to be > broken. This could not be done by force. The exercise of force is contrary to the principles of God's government; He desires only the service of love; and love cannot be commanded; it cannot be won by force or authority. Only by love is love awakened. To know God is to love Him; His character must be manifested in contrast to the character of Satan. This work only one Being in all the universe could do. Only He who knew the height and depth of the love of God could make it known. Upon the world's dark night the Sun of Righteousness must rise, "with healing in His wings." Malachi 4:2. The Desire of Ages p. 22.

> God could have destroyed Satan and his sympathizers as easily as one can cast a pebble to the earth; but He did not do this. Rebellion was not to be overcome by force. Compelling power is found only under Satan's government. The Lord's principles are not of this order. His authority rests upon goodness, mercy, and love; and the presentation of these principles is the means to be used. God's government is moral, and truth and love are to be the prevailing power. The Desire of Ages p. 759.

Do we need to be afraid of God? No! But the lie of imposed law, the penal-legal lie, the lie that God's law functions like human law, has resulted in the vast majority of Christians being more afraid of God who is trying to save them than the sin in their life which is killing them.

Is there a punishment for sin? Yes, what is that punishment? Eternal death—and how does it come about? By God ceasing His interventions that keep that death at bay and letting people reap what they have chosen. Thus death does not come out from God as an infliction, it is the unavoidable result of persistent rebellion and reaping the full freedom from God, the source of life, that the sinners insist upon and the death that unremedied sin causes.

And does the Bible teach that Jesus came to take away our punishment? No! It teaches that Jesus is the "Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world." (John 1:29).

MONDAY

Read first paragraph,

> These passages reveal a linkage between fearing God and keeping His commandments. Fearing God is an attitude of reverential respect that leads us to obedience. Heaven's urgent appeal is for those saved by grace to be obedient to God's commands (Eph. 2:8–10). Grace does not free us from obeying the commands of God. The gospel sets us free from the law's condemnation, not from our responsibility to obey it. (SDA Adult Bible Study Guide 2Q 2023, p. 32).

What does it mean that the gospel sets us free from the law's condemnation, but not the responsibility to obey it?

What law lens do you understand this idea through? What does this mean through imposed human law? That our past sins make us legally guilty and deserving of death, but if we accept Jesus as our Savior His blood is the legal payment applied to our account and all our past sins are legally paid for and moving forward we must obey the law that we previously broke, but we really can't obey the law, and any new sins must be repented of and have the legal blood payment made to be sure they are erased from the books, so that we can be declared righteous even though we are not.

Does this even make sense? What is the truth, the design law understanding? Why doesn't the law condemn the saved?

> Therefore, there is now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus, because through Christ Jesus the law of the Spirit of life set me free from the law of sin and death. For what the law was powerless to do in that it was weakened by the sinful nature, God did by sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful man to be a sin offering. And so he condemned sin in sinful man, in order that the righteous requirements of the law might be fully met in us, who do not live according to the sinful nature but according to the Spirit. (Romans 8:1-4 NIV84).

Why is there no condemnation for the saved? Because of legal adjustment in books somewhere off in the distant cosmos? No! Because through Jesus the living law of God is reproduced in us, we become the righteousness of God, we have God's law written on our hearts and minds, we are transformed, healed, renewed, regenerated, we have the mind of Christ, we are partakers of the divine nature, because our old sinful selves have died and it is Christ that lives in us. We are not condemned because we are no longer in rebellion against God but have been reborn with new hearts and right spirits that are at-one with God again! Thus, just like Abraham, we are recognized by God as being right with Him or being justified or righteous.

This is how I rendered these verses in The Remedy:

> Therefore, those who trust in Christ Jesus are no longer destined to die, because through Christ Jesus the law of love has cleansed and healed them from the law of selfishness and death. The written law was powerless to restore trust, as it could merely diagnose the infection of distrust and selfishness pervading us all. God accomplished this restoration of his character of love in humans by sending his own Son in human flesh to eradicate selfishness from humanity, reveal the truth about God, expose the lies of Satan, and reveal what happens when the infection of sin is not cured. And so he condemned the infection of selfishness as the destroying element in sinful humanity in order that the law of love–the principle upon which life is based–might be fully restored in us, who no longer live according to selfish desires, but in harmony with the Spirit of love and truth. (Romans 8:1-4 REM)

What is the relationship to be between fearing God and keeping His commandments?

What law lens do we understand this through?

Does God want the obedience of fear?

In 1888 GC in Minneapolis, the delegates split over the question of what law was added in Galatians—one side said it was only ceremonial the other side said it was only the moral law of the Ten Commandments—what do you think, what law was added and why?

And how was Satan able to derail that conference and sidetrack the entire Advent movement since that conference?

When EGW finally gave her input on what law was added, what was her answer and what does her answer reveal about the strategy the devil used to derail the church?

> I am asked concerning the law in Galatians. What law is the schoolmaster to bring us to Christ? I answer: Both the ceremonial and the moral code of ten commandments…
> "The law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith" (Galatians 3:24). In this scripture, the Holy Spirit through the apostle is speaking especially of the moral law. The law reveals sin to us, and causes us to feel our need of Christ and to flee unto Him for pardon and peace by exercising repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ. 1SM 233-234.

What law was added—both the ceremonial and moral code of the 10 Commandments.

What trick did Satan use to derail the mission of the church? He got the delegates divided over a view in which both sides were wrong to some degree, in which both sides were arguing a portion of the truth, or an incomplete understanding. The sides then were tricked into defending a partial truth instead of advancing in the truth. This has prevented the church from completing its mission ever since as the church continues to defend partial truths instead of advancing into fuller and more complete understanding of the truth.

And the biggest truth that church needs to embrace is that God's law is design law, that He is Creator of all reality and His laws are the protocols reality is built upon, physical and moral. It was only after sin that God had to codify and give laws because of transgression, because of rebellion, because of how sin blinded sinners to reality. The law was given as a diagnostic tool, teaching tool, and protection while we were children and ignorant until we grow up and then it is restored into our hearts. We never do away with the law, but have the living law of God restored to God's original place for it to exist, our hearts! God's living law of love is to be the operating code/system for every intelligent living being.

So, EGW wrote the following—do you agree?

> But in heaven, service is not rendered in the spirit of legality. When Satan rebelled against the law of Jehovah, the thought that there was a law came to the angels almost as an awakening to something unthought of. In their ministry the angels are not as servants, but as sons. There is perfect unity between them and their Creator. Obedience is to them no drudgery. Mount of Blessing p. 109.

What kind of law can be in operation and people are obedient to it, yet they have never been informed or told about it? The only kind of law that works this way is design law. We cannot expect beings to obey made up rules such as "don't walk on the grass, don't drive over 35 mph, don't spit on the sidewalk," if we have never been informed them of such rules.

But if the law is design law, it is lived out without ever realizing it is a law, it is just how things work.

Consider Isaac Newton telling all his friends he just discovered the law of gravity—can you imagine his friends going—law? A law? Hmmm, I have never even thought about the fact there was a law of gravity, it is unthought of; it is just how things have always worked.

TUESDAY

Read second paragraph,

> The central issue in earth's final conflict is a battle for the mind. It really is one of allegiance, authority, and commitment to God's will. (SDA Adult Bible Study Guide 2Q 2023, p. 33).

What is the central issue in the final conflict? The cosmic conflict between Christ and Satan is certainly a battle for hearts and minds—but what is it over? Is the the issue who we trust, who we admire, who we worship, who we choose to align ourselves with and become like?

So, isn't the issue fought on the battlefield of minds and heart but it is over God's trustworthiness, God's character, methods, and principles? Did the battle for the mind become an issue only at the end of time or has it always been a battle for hearts and minds, even in the opening of the Great Controversy?

I love this quote from The Desire of Ages what do you think?

> In the opening of the great controversy, Satan had declared that the law of God could not be obeyed, that justice was inconsistent with mercy, and that, should the law be broken, it would be impossible for the sinner to be pardoned. Every sin must meet its punishment, urged Satan; and if God should remit the punishment of sin, He would not be a God of truth and justice. When men broke the law of God, and defied His will, Satan exulted. It was proved, he declared, that the law could not be obeyed; man could not be forgiven. Because he, after his rebellion, had been banished from heaven, Satan claimed that the human race must be forever shut out from God's favor. God could not be just, he urged, and yet show mercy to the sinner. Desire of Ages p. 761

What is the issue that is being waged here? Will intelligent beings have to decide, based on Satan's allegations, who they believe, who they trust, and ultimately what kind of law God runs His government upon? What is Satan's version of God's law? That God is required to use power to punish sin—why does Satan say this? Because Satan's lie is that God makes up rules like created beings do and denies that God's laws are design protocols that life itself is built upon.

Satan teaches that God's law is imposed rules (like human law) that require inflicted punishment, because this teaching makes God to be functionally no different than any other created being. In this legal model, any of us, if we are in a position of authority where we can impose rules over others and enforce those rules with inflicted punishment, can be "like god." This is Satan's goal: to be like God. And since Satan, as a created being, cannot actually create reality and cannot sustain the laws upon which reality exists, he instead promulgates the lie that God's law is the kind of law that created beings can make up; Satan then assumes the mantle of this law-enforcing god and garners our worship.

Read third paragraph,

> The final battle in the great controversy is between good and evil for control of our thoughts. The apostle Paul gives us this admonition: "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus" (Phil. 2:5, NKJV). The mind is the citadel of our being. It is the wellspring of our actions. The word "let" means to allow or to choose. It speaks of a volitional act of the will. The choice to have the mind of Christ is the choice to allow Jesus to shape our thinking by filling our minds with the things of eternity. Our actions reveal where our thinking process is. To fear God is to make Him first in our lives. (SDA Adult Bible Study Guide 2Q 2023, p. 33).

What do you think of this idea of "control of our thoughts"?

2 Corinthians 10:3-5 tell us we are to bring every thought into captivity to Jesus Christ—what does that mean?

Does God want to do our thinking for us? If so then why does the Bible say that every person must be fully persuaded in their own mind?

Does God want to do our choosing for us? If so why does the Bible instruct us to choose this day who we will serve?

Does God want to do our loving for us? If so then why does the Bible tell us we are to love God with all our hearts, minds, souls and strength?

Does God want us to be puppets or robots that He controls?

Do our minds ever become controlled by God in the sense that God does our thinking, feeling, loving, and choosing for us?

Who would like to take control of our minds and direct our thoughts, feelings, and actions?

Can you get love from a robot, a puppet, or a programmed cult member?

God wants our love and loyalty which can only be freely given. Consider this quote:

> In the work of redemption there is no compulsion. No external force is employed. Under the influence of the Spirit of God, man is left free to choose whom he will serve. In the change that takes place when the soul surrenders to Christ, there is the highest sense of freedom. The Desire of Ages p. 466.

WEDNESDAY

The title for the day is Giving Glory to God—what does this mean to you? How are we to glorify God?

What is the context in the 3 Angels' messages?

The eternal gospel is being proclaimed—which is what?

And what does the eternal gospel do? Does the eternal gospel, which is the eternal good news about God—His character of love and His design law methods of governing, contrast with another idea, belief, or viewpoint commonly held by human beings?

And does the eternal good news about God cause those who accept it and return to trust in our Creator God of love to be transformed by the renewing of their minds? And is God's law written upon their hearts? And do they live new lives and develop characters like Jesus? And does that bring glory to God?

And why is this important? What is it the eternal gospel that wins people to trust and transforms then so that their lives glorify God important? Because it is the time in human history for people to make a right judgment about God, to reject the penal legal rule-enforcing God and come back to worship the Creator who made the heavens, earth, sea and fountain of water. And when we do this we leave fallen and corrupt system of human like imposed laws with imposed penalties that is represented by Babylon, the first nation with a legal code.

We are to be God's witnesses living out the beauty of God's character and methods of love in how we govern ourselves and treat each other.

THURSDAY

Read the first paragraph,

> "Here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus" (Rev. 14:12). This is the depiction of God's faithful people in the last days. Yet, the only way anyone can keep the commandments of God, then or now, is through the faith of Jesus. Notice our text does not say, "faith in Jesus," although that is extremely important, but this expression, "the faith of Jesus," is something more. It is the quality of faith that enabled Christ to be victorious over Satan's fiercest temptations. Faith is a gift given to each believer. When we exercise the faith that the Holy Spirit puts in our hearts, that faith grows. We overcome, not by our willpower, but by the power of the living Christ working through us. We overcome not because of who we are but because of who He is. (SDA Adult Bible Study Guide 2Q 2023, p. 35).

They seem to make a lot out of a very small preposition which the Greek allows to be interpreted a variety of different ways.

They quote the NKJV which reads "faith of Jesus." But here are some other translations:

- This calls for patient endurance on the part of the saints who obey God's commandments and remain faithful to Jesus. (NIV84).

- This calls for endurance on the part of God's people, those who obey God's commandments and are faithful to Jesus. (GNT)

- This means that God's holy people must endure persecution patiently, obeying his commands and maintaining their faith in Jesus. (NLT)

- Here is a call for the endurance of the saints, those who keep the commandments of God and their faith in Jesus. (ESV)

- This means God's holy people must be patient. They must obey God's commands and keep their faith in Jesus. (NCV)

- This requires patient endurance on the part of the healed, who live God's methods of love and remain true to Jesus. (REM)

- This requires the steadfast endurance of the saints—those who obey God's commandments and hold to their faith in Jesus. (NET)
    - Footnote in NET: "faith of Jesus." The construction may mean either "faith in Jesus" or "faithful to Jesus." Either translation implies that Ἰησοῦ (Iēsou) is to be taken as an objective genitive; the difference is more lexical than grammatical because πίστις (pistis) can mean either "faith" or "faithfulness." (Biblical Studies Press. (2005). The NET Bible First Edition; Bible. English. NET Bible.; The NET Bible. Biblical Studies Press.)

So, if the saved in the end have faith in Jesus will that be less than the faith that Jesus had? And if they have the faith of Jesus will it be less than having faith in Jesus?

It seems it is a lot to do about not much—we need to have living faith, trust, in Jesus and that is also the same quality or type of faith that Jesus exercised in His Father.

2023 Q2 The Three Cosmic Messages: Lesson 5
The Good News of the Judgment

by Russell Atkins

SABBATH

"Saying with a loud voice, 'Fear God and give glory to Him, for the hour of His judgment has come; and worship Him who made heaven and earth, the sea and springs of water' " (Revelation 14:7, NKJV).

From the Lesson:

> "If the Bible was ever clear about anything, it's clear that God is a God of judgment, and that sooner or later, in one way or another, judgment—the judgment so lacking here and now—is going to come and be administered by God Himself, "the Judge of all the earth" (Gen. 18:25; see also Ps. 58:11, Ps. 94:2, Ps. 98:9). Or, as Paul himself had written: "So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God" (Rom. 14:12).
> Scary thought, isn't it? Having to give an account of ourselves before God, the God who knows the deepest things, the God who will "bring every work into judgment, including every secret thing, whether good or evil" (Eccles. 12:14, NKJV)?
> Yet, ultimately the judgment reveals the goodness and the grace of God and that He is both just and merciful in how He deals with the saved, and even with the lost.
> This week we will explore the deeper themes of the judgment in relation to the great controversy raging in the universe, and we will look especially at what happens when God's faithful people themselves face the inevitable "judgment to come" (Acts 24:25).

What can we "judge" about the author's / editor's Law construct?

Does he think God's Law functions as the design for life or does it function like human laws?

Going back to our Power of Love seminar in Dallas in Jan, 2020 Tim did a piece on "Judgments", and it's also covered in greater detail in our magazine "The Final Message of Mercy."
https://comeandreason.com/the-three-angels/

Here's a summary:

First Judgment — We [humans] JUDGE God. Is God trustworthy [like Jesus revealed] or is he like Satan alleges?? See Romans 3:4, and Revelation 14: 6,7 [our memory text].

Second Judgment — The judgement of a perfect physician [correctly diagnosing a condition and developing/delivering a remedy]. See Malachi 3:1-5.

Third Judgment — We judge angels and those who are not in Heaven during the 1,000 years before the 3rd Coming so there can be no doubt as to why they are missing. See Revelation 20: 4-6 and 1 Cor. 6: 3.

Fourth Judgment — The White Throne Judgement. The Holy City is on Earth and the doors remain open, however, no-one comes in. The wicked are constrained to admit that God is correct in His judgement of their characters, but attack the City anyway. The Saved "judge" that there was nothing more God could have done to save them. See Revelation 20: 11, 12.

SUNDAY

The Significance of the Judgment Hour.

The lesson asks "Why is it significant that right after we are told about the "everlasting gospel", the first angel's message mentions God's judgment? What does the "everlasting gospel" have to do with God's judgment?"

Why indeed?
Whom is being judged?
Who is doing the judging?
Does it matter which Law construct you see this from?

Does the "everlasting gospel" of God's character of Love make a difference on how / if we judge Him to be trustworthy? Does His character of Love / Goodness / Kindness / Forgiveness lead us somewhere? See Romans 2:4.

With respect to the author of the lesson, I don't think the 1st Angels message is about the "White Throne" Fourth judgment in Revelation 20. I think it's the First judgment listed above — where we judge God Himself. He opens Himself to our judgment and give us evidence [not proof] of His trustworthiness. The author, however, is correct in saying, "Were it not for the 'everlasting gospel,' we would have no hope in the judgment."

We would have no hope in accurately judging God's trustworthiness or in the White throne judgments. Were it not for the everlasting gospel of God's character of Love, humanity would have no hope whatsoever.

Also from the lesson:

> Heaven's infinite, minute, exact, detailed records will be opened (see Dan. 7:10). We are so precious to God that the entire universe pauses to consider the choices we have made in light of the wooing of the Holy Spirit and the redemption so freely provided by Christ on Calvary's cross. Emphasis mine.

The penal substitution adherents LOVE the record keeping.

MONDAY

God's Mercy and Judgment.

From the Lesson:

> "The cross and judgment both reveal that God is just and merciful. The broken law demands the death of the sinner. Justice declares, "The wages of sin is death." Mercy responds, "The gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Rom. 6:23, NKJV). If God's law could be changed or abolished, it would be totally unnecessary for Jesus to die. Christ's death establishes the eternal nature of the law, and the law is the basis of judgment."

How does the cross and judgment reveal that God is just and merciful?
How does the broken law demand the death of the sinner?
Does "justice" declare that "the wages of sin is death"?
How does Christ's death establish the "eternal nature of the law", and the law's basis of judgment?
Does the EGW quote from the lesson give us any insights?

> The fact that the acknowledged people of God are represented as standing before the Lord in filthy garments should lead to humility and deep searching of heart on the part of all who profess His name. Those who are indeed purifying their souls by obeying the truth will have a most humble opinion of themselves. The more closely they view the spotless character of Christ, the stronger will be their desire to be conformed to His image, and the less will they see of purity or holiness in themselves. But while we should realize our sinful condition, we are to rely upon Christ as our righteousness, our sanctification, and our redemption. We cannot answer the charges of Satan against us. Christ alone can make an effectual plea in our behalf. He is able to silence the accuser with arguments founded not upon our merits, but on His own. -- Testimonies for the Church, vol. 5, pp. 471, 472.

TUESDAY

A Magnificent Scene.

The lesson references Daniel 7 as its source for Tuesday's lesson so let's look at it. Specifically vs. 21, 22 from a variety of translations.

> I was seeing, and this horn is making war with the saints, and hath prevailed over them, till that the Ancient of Days hath come, and judgment is given to the saints of the Most High, and the time hath come, and the saints have strengthened the kingdom.

> NKJV

> I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them; until the ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High, and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom.
> American Standard Version

> While I was looking, that horn made war on God's people and conquered them. Then the one who had been living forever came and pronounced judgment in favor of the people of the Supreme God. The time had arrived for God's people to receive royal power.
> Good News Translation

> As I watched, this horn was waging war against the holy people and defeating them, until the Ancient of Days came and pronounced judgment in favor of the holy people of the Most High, and the time came when they possessed the kingdom.
> New International Version [NIV]

Which of these translations harmonizes best with Design Law AND our understanding of prophetic history??

The "horn" in v. 21 refers to the Papacy, and it was waging / winning the war against "the saints" for most of 1260 years [time, times, and dividing of time]. Historically, the Papacy opposed Scripture being read to/by anyone except their leadership. They promoted ideas like eternal burning hell, and purgatory/indulgences/inquisitions/torture/etc. They persecuted Protestants, Jews, Muslims, etc in the name of saving their souls from hell. Above, and beyond all of that, however, they thought "to change times and Laws" [see v. 25].

If you seek to change God's Laws, what is already settled in your mind? That His Law[s] function like human laws [imposed] and can be changed. If you understand that God's Laws are Design Laws and cannot be changed, you wouldn't waste any time trying to change them. It cannot be done.

Many of the above translations show a pre-existing bias in the translators minds with the imposed law translations giving us a "courtroom" version [God pronounced judgment in favor of the Saints], while the Design Law translations give us a "gracious" version [Judgment was given to the Saints].

It wasn't until the late 1700's that enough Truth and light had been uncovered, so that the "saints" were adequately/accurately able to discern [aka Judge] truth from error.

From the lesson: The destiny of all humanity is decided in heaven's courtroom. Right prevails. Truth triumphs. Justice reigns. This is one of the most amazing, most marvelous, most spectacular scenes in all of Scripture. And the good news is that it ends very well for God's faithful people, those clothed in the righteousness of Christ.

Which Law construct does the author prefer?? Was the destiny of all humanity decided at that time in history??

WEDNESDAY

A Glimpse of Heaven

Have you ever wished you could get a vision of Heaven? I have. I think God, in his mercy, has withheld this from me for now.

The lesson focuses on "heaven's celestial court" and a "throne-room scene". What's a word to describe a king's immediate surroundings and people within it?? His COURT. The word "court" doesn't necessarily mean judicial place. Which court do you think the author is referring to??

Does the "thunder and lightning" symbolize God's judgments?? Serious question.

The lesson asks what similarities are found in Rev. 4 and Daniel 7 descriptions of Heaven.

Rev. 4.
One on the throne with the appearance of jasper and sardine [carnelian] stone. Of note: The sardine [carnelian] stone was the first on Israel's High Priest breastplate [top right] symbolizing the tribe of Ruben [first born], and the jasper stone was last on the breastplate [bottom left] symbolizing Benjamin. This ties in nicely with future chapters in Revelation where Jesus says "I am the alpha [first] and the omega [last]. 24 elders surround the throne [I think the lesson is on point with these being humans — first fruits or otherwise], clothed in White. The White symbolized purity OF CHARACTER, not simply being covered with a magic garment that keeps God from seeing us as sinners. He sees us a HEALED.

Daniel 7. "The Ancient of Days" is on the throne. His appearance is White [as snow / wool]. His throne and wheels [beneath the throne] were "as fire". A river of fire came out from the throne, and billions stood in the fire ministering for Him. The White, of course, symbolizes purity, grace, & Truth, but what does the fire represent??

THURSDAY

Jesus is Worthy.

In Revelation 5 John sees a scroll written on both sides and sealed with seven seals. No one in Heaven or Earth can open the scroll, save Jesus [sacrificed Lamb]. Any thoughts as to what's on the scroll, and why Jesus is the only One worthy to open it??

Tim and I discussed this a length on one of our trips and he thinks on the scroll is written the entire history of Heaven and Earth from Lucifer's creation until the end of sin. Jesus was the One Lucifer alleged equality with and Jesus is the only Being who could see and document the future accurately. I think this may be both literal and symbolic. I suspect the scroll was opened after Calvary as further evidence for the unfallen beings and eventually evidence for the saved humanity.

From the lesson:

"Jesus, the Lamb of God who has sacrificed His life for the salvation of all humanity, takes the scroll of judgment and opens it. All of heaven bursts forth in rapturous praise. His victory over Satan's temptations, His death on Calvary's cross, His resurrection, His high priestly minis- try, provides salvation for all who choose by faith to respond to His grace. The judgment is incredibly good news for the people of God. It speaks of the end of the reign of sin and the deliverance of God's people.

> Can anything be more encouraging? Jesus stands for us in the judgment. His perfect, righteous life covers us. His righteousness works within us to make us new. His grace pardons us, transforms us, and empowers us to live godly lives.
> We need not fear. Jesus stands for us in the judgment, and the powers of evil are defeated. Judgment is passed in "favor" of the people of God (Dan. 7:22). The purpose of the judgment is not to find out how bad we are but to reveal how good God is."

2023 2Q Three Cosmic Messages—Lesson 6
The Hour of His Judgment

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

SABBATH

Read last paragraph,

> The fires of God's judgment burned themselves out on Him, at Calvary, and all who are in Christ are safe forever beneath His wings. At the cross, Christ was judged as a condemned sinner so that we could be judged as righteous citizens of the heavenly kingdom. He was judged as a criminal so that we could be set free from the destructive fires of eternal loss, both figuratively and, yes, literally, as well. (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p. 46)

What do you hear in this paragraph? Is this paragraph exactly true as it reads? Does this paragraph present things in clear ways? Given the fact we are all finite, and that we will grow for all eternity in our knowledge of God and our insights into the atonement will deepen through all eternity, we should ask, does this paragraph lead us to greater light, insight, truth, understanding or does it darken the mind?

Does this paragraph present things more closely to the way God would have them presented or closer to Satan's counterfeit?

Let's examine what is being taught in light of what God has revealed and see whether this is taking a position that is built on inspired truth or not.

The first sentence states the fire of God's judgment burned themselves out on Christ at Calvary. I thought, perhaps this is just metaphor, flowery speech, symbolism—except for the closing sentence when they connect the destructive fires as being both figurative and literal. And they say Christ took our place and was judged and condemned as a sinner, so it seems they are suggesting Jesus literally took our punishment, including the fire of God's judgment.

So functionally, the lesson is saying that at the cross God used His power to reign judgment fire down on Jesus to punish Jesus for our sins, and if we don't claim the legal payment made by Jesus then God in the end will use His divine power to reign judgment fire down on us.

Do you think I am misunderstanding what they are saying?

I want you to see this clearly—this paragraph denies Scripture, the testimony of Jesus Himself, and the truth about God's law and how it functions.

We have recorded in Scripture the inspired account of what happened to Jesus on the cross, what His Father actually did to Jesus for the very purpose of revealing the truth that is supposed to prevent people from drawing conclusions just like this. What does the Bible say that God did to His Son on the cross? Did God reign fire down from heaven to torture and kill Jesus?

What did the Father do? He abandoned, let go, forsook Him. Did the Father exercise divine power to bring pain, suffering, torment, and death, or did the Father step back and STOP using divine power and allow the results of separation from Him to reap its painful and destructive results?

What caused Jesus the most torment, the physical torture He was experiencing at the hands of sinners, or the break up in the unity with His Father?

In Gethsemane, Jesus took the bitter cup of our sin-position—i.e. began to experience in full the separation that sin causes and what did Jesus experience?

> Then Jesus went with his disciples to a place called Gethsemane, and he said to them, "Sit here while I go over there and pray." He took Peter and the two sons of Zebedee along with him, and he began to be sorrowful and troubled. Then he said to them, "My soul is overwhelmed with sorrow to the point of death. Stay here and keep watch with me." (Matthew 26:36–38 NIV84).
> Jesus went out as usual to the Mount of Olives, and his disciples followed him. On reaching the place, he said to them, "Pray that you will not fall into temptation." He withdrew about a stone's throw beyond them, knelt down and prayed, "Father, if you are willing, take this cup from me; yet not my will, but yours be done." An angel from heaven appeared to him and strengthened him. And being in anguish, he prayed more earnestly, and his sweat was like drops of blood falling to the ground. (Luke 22:39–44 NIV84).

Now I am going to read commentary from the book The Desire of Ages which comments on these passages from Scripture regarding Jesus' experience in Gethsemane. What do you think? This is written by one of the founders of the SDA church, does this describe the same type of process and event that the lesson described? And if not, we need to understand why?

> The humanity of the Son of God trembled in that trying hour. He prayed not now for His disciples that their faith might not fail, but for His own tempted, agonized soul. The awful moment had come—that moment which was to decide the destiny of the world. [Wasn't the moment at Calvary? Or did that moment, the time to decide the destiny of the world happen in Gethsemane, and Calvary was the final result of what was decided in Gethsemane?] The fate of humanity trembled in the balance. Christ might even now refuse to drink the cup apportioned to guilty man. It was not yet too late. He might wipe the bloody sweat from His brow, and leave man to perish in his iniquity. He might say, Let the transgressor receive the penalty of his sin, and I will go back to My Father. Will the Son of God drink the bitter cup of humiliation and agony? Will the innocent suffer the consequences of the curse of sin, to save the guilty? The words fall tremblingly from the pale lips of Jesus, "O My Father, if this cup may not pass away from Me, except I drink it, Thy will be done." The Desire of Ages p. 690.

Three times has He uttered that prayer. Three times has humanity shrunk from the last, crowning sacrifice. But now the history of the human race comes up before the world's Redeemer. He sees that the transgressors of the law, if left to themselves, must perish. [Why must they perish? Must they perish as an infliction of punishment? Is it that transgressors are actually quite healthy and possess eternal life and without Jesus' sacrifice then the Father's rage and anger will explode out of control and destroy them? Or is it that humanity is suffering from a terminal sin condition and without Jesus' sacrifice there is no cure, no remedy, no power to free us and restore us to unity with God and eternal life?] He sees the helplessness of man. He sees the power of sin. [We are helpless to overcome what? Is the contrast here—Jesus sees the helplessness of man and the power of God to punish sin? No, it is the power of sin, the power of fear and selfishness that is infecting our being. After Adam sinned, only Jesus, as a human, using human abilities, could confront and overcome the power of fear and selfishness and eradicate it and restore God's perfect love and righteousness into humanity.] The woes and lamentations of a doomed world rise before Him. He beholds its impending fate, and His decision is made. He will save man at any cost to Himself. He accepts His baptism of blood, that through Him perishing millions may gain everlasting life. He has left the courts of heaven, where all is purity, happiness, and glory, to save the one lost sheep, the one world that has fallen by transgression. And He will not turn from His mission. He will become the propitiation of a race that has willed to sin. His prayer now breathes only submission: "If this cup may not pass away from Me, except I drink it, Thy will be done." The Desire of Ages 690.

Having made the decision, He fell dying to the ground from which He had partially risen. [The decision to complete the mission, was made here. The rest of crucifixion weekend is the outworking of His choice here. And this author, commenting on what inspiration describes, says He fell down dying here—an angel had to come and strengthen Him or else he would have died in Gethsemane. Has God used any power to harm Jesus? What is causing Jesus to be in such agony, to suffer such torment of mind and soul and to fall down dying? It is the breaking up of His unity with His Father that is the result of taking our position as a sinner. Sin severs the connection with the source of life and the only result is ruin and death.] Where now were His disciples, to place their hands tenderly beneath the head of their fainting Master, and bathe that brow, marred indeed more than the sons of men? The Saviour trod the wine press alone, and of the people there was none with Him. The Desire of Ages 693.

But God suffered with His Son. [Parents would you suffer to watch one of your children dying in agony all alone and you could not comfort them? Don't think for a minute that the Father wasn't suffering right along with Jesus. They were in this together. This is a joint rescue operation, a joint plan of salvation, the entire Godhead is unified in completing it. And they each have their role to play. God must separate from His Son, because God is the source of life and Jesus cannot complete His mission to destroy the death causing principle from humanity, restore in the law of life, and reveal the truth about God if He does not die. And He cannot die as long as He is connected to His Father, who is the source of life.] Angels beheld the Saviour's agony. They saw their Lord enclosed by legions of satanic forces, His nature weighed down with a shuddering, mysterious dread. [Whose power was being used to seek to cause the suffering of Jesus?] There was silence in heaven. No harp was touched. Could mortals have viewed the amazement of the angelic host as in silent grief they watched the Father separating His beams of light, love, and glory from His beloved Son, they would better understand how offensive in His sight is sin. The Desire of Ages 693. [Was the Father using power to hurt Jesus? Do we have a description of the Father reigning fire down from heaven? Why was the Father separating from Jesus? Was the Father angry with Jesus? What about later at the cross, do we have an inspired description of God reigning fire down on Jesus there? Or does Scripture say that the Father let Jesus go—we find that description also in Romans 4:25, the exact same Greek as Romans 1:24,26,28 where God "gave them up" Paul says that God gave Jesus up at the cross.]

The worlds unfallen and the heavenly angels had watched with intense interest as the conflict drew to its close. [And they are seeing God in action. They are observing God step back and NOT use power. They are seeing Satan use power to harm, not God. Yet our lesson places God in the role of using power to harm.] Satan and his confederacy of evil, the legions of apostasy, watched intently this great crisis in the work of redemption. The powers of good and evil waited to see what answer would come to Christ's thrice-repeated prayer. Angels had longed to bring relief to the divine sufferer, but this might not be. No way of escape was found for the Son of God. [Why? Why was there no escape? Because of reality, because of God's law, because of the actual condition of humanity. In order to save humanity the condition that is causing our death must be eliminated and the species must be restored to unity and oneness with God, which requires God's living law of love be fully restored into the species. Jesus, as a human, did this for us!] In this awful crisis, when everything was at stake, when the mysterious cup trembled in the hand of the sufferer, the heavens opened, a light shone forth amid the stormy darkness of the crisis hour, [Is this where God uses power from heaven to punish Jesus, to reign fire down on Him? No! Listen to what is described] and the mighty angel who stands in God's presence, occupying the position from which Satan fell, came to the side of Christ. The angel came not to take the cup from Christ's hand, but to strengthen Him to drink it, with the assurance of the Father's love. He came to give power to the divine-human suppliant. [This did not reduce His suffering, but in fact, prolonged His suffering. Without this intervention Jesus would have died right there in Gethsemane, but there was more that was needed to be done to complete the plan of salvation and thus Jesus' humanity which was failing and collapsing into death had to be physically strengthened to endure more of what sin, evil, and rebellious angels and humans would do to Him. And note that the angel reassured Jesus of the Father's love. God was not angry at His Son. God was not using power to hurt Jesus. Even when Jesus takes the cup of our iniquities and becomes our substitutionary Savior and stands in the sinner's place God does not use power to punish Jesus.] He pointed Him to the open heavens, telling Him of the souls that would be saved as the result of His sufferings. He assured Him that His Father is greater and more powerful than Satan, that His death would result in the utter discomfiture of Satan, and that the kingdom of this world would be given to the saints of the Most High. He told Him that He would see of the travail of His soul, and be satisfied, for He would see a multitude of the human race saved, eternally saved. The Desire of > Ages 693. [Notice the angel focused Jesus' mind away from the injustice, the abuse, the pain, the suffering, the torment—away from self and to God and others and the higher purpose of what He was accomplishing. This is a lesson for us. When we are being assailed by evil forces we also will find strength by focusing upon God, upon His love, purposes, plans and upon others and how we are fulfilling some aspect of a higher purpose. Satan wants to get us to focus on the evil, the sin, the injustice, the unfairness and on self which only inflames our fears and insecurities and undermines our faith.]

> Christ's agony did not cease, but His depression and discouragement left Him. The storm had in nowise abated, but He who was its object was strengthened to meet its fury. He came forth calm and serene. A heavenly peace rested upon His bloodstained face. He had borne that which no human being could ever bear; for He had tasted the sufferings of death for every man. The Desire of Ages 694. [When did Jesus taste death for every man? In Gethsemane—and what did the Father do to Jesus?]

Why has the lesson come to a different conclusion and description of events than the most important founder of the SDA church? Because the lesson is written by people who hold to a different law that the author of The Desire of Ages. They hold to imposed law, and imposed law requires infliction of imposed penalties.

From the same founder of the SDA church, we read the following, see if this gives insight into why the lesson takes the exact opposite position to what God actually did to Jesus?

> The last great conflict between truth and error is but the final struggle of the long-standing controversy concerning the law of God. Upon this battle we are now entering,—a battle between the laws of men and the precepts of Jehovah, between the religion of the Bible and the religion of fable and tradition. (The Great Controversy 582)
> There is no such thing as weakening or strengthening the law of Jehovah. As it has been, so it is. It always has been, and always will be holy, just, and good, complete in itself. It cannot be repealed or changed. To "honor" or "dishonor" it is but the speech of men. (Prophets and Kings 625)
> Between the laws of men and the precepts of Jehovah will come the last great conflict of the controversy between truth and error. Upon this battle we are now entering—a battle not between rival churches contending for the supremacy, but between the religion of the Bible and the religions of fable and tradition. (Prophets and Kings 625.)

What is the final issue over? A question over God's law—it is a question over whether we believe God is Creator and His law is design law or whether it functions like human law.

When Lucifer rebelled in heaven, the Sabbath did not exist, the question over law was not a question over the Sabbath. The Sabbath, according to Scripture is a sign, it is a gift, a flag, a pennant, a tool made for humanity, to be a blessing and benefit to us in the middle of this war. But the war and conflict go far beyond what day of worship, it goes to the character of God, His eternal law, the protocols upon which life is built, and how He governs. And the Sabbath is a sign that God is Creator, whose laws are design laws has given us, to remind us. God gave evidence of His power and Creatorship days 1-6 of creation week, and then God rested, God stopped using power and left His intelligent creatures free to think and decide for themselves. Thus we are to Remember the Sabbath—we are to embrace the truth that the Sabbath reveals—how God governs and practice those methods in our lives all seven days of the week, lovers of truth who present the truth in love and leave others free.

The answer to the question of how we understand God's law directly alters how we see God. Another way to say it, the answer to the question of how we understand God's law determines which God we are worshipping.

Are we worshiping the Creator God of love who is the source of life and health, or are we worshiping an imperial dictator who is the source of strife and death.

SUNDAY

Read first paragraph,

> As we have already seen, there must be a judgment before Christ comes. The angel announces in a loud voice that " 'the hour of His judgment has come' " (Rev. 14:7, NKJV). The book of Daniel gives us the time when this judgment begins. (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p. 47)

What law lens do you hear this through? If we accept the lie that God's law functions like human law then what does judgment mean?

If we accept the truth that God's law is design law then what does judgment mean?

And in the case of the 3 angels—what is the judgment that has come?

Is this not the judgment Paul was referring to in Romans 3:4:

> You must be shown to be right when you speak; you must win your case when you are being tried (Romans 3:4 GNT).
> so that you will be justified in your words and will prevail when you are judged (Romans 3:4 NET).
> That You may be justified in Your words, and may overcome when You are judged. (Romans 3:4 NKJV).

What is the war over?

> For though we live in the world, we do not wage war as the world does. The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. We demolish arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and we take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ. (2 Corinthians 10:3-5 NIV84).

The war started in heaven over a question of God's character, methods, trustworthiness, it spread to Earth over whether God can be trusted, and it ends over the same issue.

Satan has assaulted the character of God by alleging God abuses power by making up rules that He enforces with inflicted punishments, thus making God out to be a dictator, the source of pain, suffering, and death—the one from whom we need protection.

Thus Revelation prophesies that a time in human history comes when enough truth has been revealed and recovered that people are enabled to make a right judgment about God. The eternal gospel, the eternal good news about God as Creator goes to the world, and the hour has come for people to make a right judgment about God, to come out of Babylon and stop worshiping the satanic dictator god and worship our Creator.

For the rest of the lesson it is about Daniel 8:14, how it is understood, calculated and how we get to 1844 and its implications.

As of April 21, 2023 Dr Jennings is no longer affiliated with Liberty University College of Osteopathic Medicine LUCOM. I have nothing but the highest regard for the faculty and staff at LUCOM. They brought me onboard to lead in the build out of a psychiatric residency a vision I wholeheartedly support and pray for their future success. However, while they believed they would be able to obtain the necessary infrastructure for such a program (an inpatient psychiatric unit either by building one or contracting with one), various obstacles outside the University's control prevented this. When this became clear, that it would be years if not decades before the infrastructure could be obtained, it was realized by all parties that I was not able to do the tasks I was hired to do and we parted on sad but friendly terms.

In the immediate future I will be teaching in person again. But for the next chapter in my career, we are praying for God's guidance in this. Is it time for me to take a more active role in ministry, creating more programming, traveling and speaking more, organizing more regional events? Do I look to reopen a private practice, or look to another hospital based system etc. No decision has been made, but we are prayerfully asking for God's leadership in this, and we appreciate your prayers for God's will and guidance in the next steps in our lives—Tim and Christie.

2023 Q2 Three Cosmic Messages: Lesson 7
Worshipping the Creator

by Eve Knight

SABBATH

Before we get into the lesson today, I think it's important that we look at the whole context.

We're still looking at the verses regarding the first angel's message, found in Revelation 14:6-7:

> Then I saw another angel flying overhead, with the eternal gospel to proclaim to those who dwell on the earth—to every nation and tribe and tongue and people. And he said in a loud voice, "Fear God and give Him glory, because the hour of His judgment has come. Worship the One who made the heavens and the earth and the sea and the springs of waters."

Based on what we talked about in previous lessons, we know that the "eternal gospel," the eternal "good news" is what? –the truth about God's character. This is really important, because this truth is the context of the first angel's message. If we don't keep the context in mind, we can misinterpret the message. The context is, essentially, a measuring stick we can hold up next to the message to help us understand it.

So, let's look at the message, piece by piece, remembering the context.

"Fear God"

What two ways could this be translated?

- to be afraid of God. The root word, phobos could be translated terrified of, be afraid of, to be seized with alarm.
- The same word can also mean "to reverence, venerate, to treat with deference or reverential obedience, to regard with great respect."

So, let's look at these two options using the measuring stick – the context of the good news about God's character. Does the first option of being terrified of God fit with the context? Is it good news? Definitely not!

What about the second option? When we measure it against our context, does it fit? Yes! If we understand God's character of love, it makes sense that we would react to Him with reverence and admiration.

topics@comeandreason.com

"and give Him glory"

What does it mean to give God glory? What is glory, and how do we give it to God? Let's look at a few texts to see if we can understand this more clearly.

There are a number of references to glory that are similar, all referring to the second coming. One example of this is Matthew 24:30:

> At that time the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and all the nations of the earth will mourn. They will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of the sky, with power and great glory.

What can we learn about glory from this passage? That God's glory is NOT His power! If it was, it wouldn't be listed separately, would it? Let's look at another verse:

> Luke 2:9-10a: An angel of the Lord appeared to them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were terrified. But the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid."

What can we learn about glory here? That it's bright, it can cause a fearful reaction, but according to the angel, we don't have to be afraid! Let's look at another passage:

> Exodus 33:18 Then Moses said, "Now show me your glory"
> Exodus 34:6-7 (ESV) The LORD descended in the cloud and stood with him there, > and proclaimed the name of the LORD. The LORD passed before him and > proclaimed, "The LORD, the LORD, a God merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love and faithfulness, keeping steadfast love for thousands,[a] forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, but who will by no means clear the guilty, visiting the iniquity of the fathers on the children and the children's children, to the third and the fourth generation."

So what did Moses want to see? God's glory. And what did God show him? His character!

So if God's glory is His character, how do we "give Him glory" as it says in the angel's message? What does that mean?

- It could mean give God praise…if that's the case, what would we be praising Him for?
- It could also mean give God character…If so, how would we give God character?

> 2 Cor. 3:18 (GNT) All of us, then, reflect the glory of the Lord with uncovered faces; and that same glory, coming from the Lord, who is the Spirit, transforms us into his likeness in an ever greater degree of glory.

Perhaps the reflection of His character in our healed & restored hearts?

With this understanding, how then, could we translate the phrase, "give Him glory"?

topics@comeandreason.com

"recognize and praise God for His true character, and let Him recreate it in us."

"for the hour of His judgment has come."

Again, there are two ways to understand this phrase. What are those two ways?

- the hour has come for God to come and judge US.
- the hour has come for us to judge Him correctly.

Which of these two options fits our measuring stick, the context of good news about God's character?

So, if we were to re-write the first part of the angel's message, with our understanding of the context, it could say, "Revere God and understand, praise, reflect, and share His true character, for it is time for us to judge Him correctly, understanding His true character of love."

"Worship him"

Why does God want us to worship Him? What reasons could we come up with (good and bad) that He would want us to worship Him? One option could be because He's selfish and wants all that worship to make Him feel important. Does that fit our measuring stick, the truth about His character, the eternal good news?

So how does our context, our measuring stick, change how we view this part? It helps us to understand that because of His character, there has to be a reason that's good for US when we worship Him. What would that reason be? The law of worship! He loves us, and He knows that we become like who or what we worship. If we worship Him, we have the possibility of infinite growth ahead of us.

What happens if we worship something else? We become warped in our thinking, seared in our consciences and characters, until we are no longer open to God.

"who made the heavens, the earth, the sea and the springs of water."

What is important about worshiping Him as the one who created? If we didn't understand the context of this message, how might we interpret it? Is it possible that we would think God was pointing us to creation so we would remember the Sabbath, and turn that into an arbitrary test of obedience to Him? If that is what we believed, then what would that make us think about God? Perhaps that His law is just like ours? Imposed rules that require punishment if they are broken? Perhaps that we just need to keep the rules without understanding them? Perhaps even that our behavior is more important than our hearts?

How does our measuring stick, the context about the eternal good news change how we look at this passage? What do we learn about God when we look at creation with our context in place? What does the context tell us that we are looking for? The truth about God's character, as revealed by creation…so why specifically the list provided: the heavens (in this context, most likely the sky), the earth, the sea, and the springs of water. Do those things specifically tell us something about God? What does the movement of water tell us about the One who designed that process? That everything that He made, is designed to operate on the principle of love, others-centered giving, and God is love. We see His character when we look at the cycle of giving as the sea evaporates, gives its water to the air, which then falls to the earth, fills the springs, streams, and rivers, and flows back into the sea. It's a never-ending cycle of giving. God's design, which flows out of His character, and everything that was made is designed to live in harmony with that design.

Does this idea remind you of any other passages that talk about God, His character, and creation?

> Romans 1:20 – For since the creation of the world God's invisible qualities – his eternal power and divine nature – have been clearly seen, being understood from what has been made, so that men are without excuse.

So what can we learn from "what has been made"? – we learn about God's power, and His nature. What are some of the things we learn about God's nature from the world He created? We learn how design laws work: law of giving, law of exertion, etc.

Isn't it interesting that God clearly wants us to examine the world around us, learn from it, and learn about Him through it? Does this sound like a God who just wants people who hear and obey? No! He wants people to come and reason with Him.

So now we know that God wants us to know His true character, and to worship Him as the designer, that His laws are design laws, not like ours. There's one more question stemming from the passage that we need to answer: What does it mean to worship?

What does the world say about worship?
According to vocabulary.com, "To worship is to show a lot of love and adoration for something. Religious believers worship gods, and people can worship other people and things too. Worship is an extreme form of love — it's a type of unquestioning devotion. If you worship God, then you love God so much that you don't question him at all."

Does that sound right to you? Definitely not! So, let's take a moment to practice discerning truth and using our reasoning powers… Let's work on figuring out what's wrong with this definition? And how do we explain why it's wrong? (Can you tell what law lens the writer was thinking through?)

First, there's the claim that "worship is to show a lot of love and adoration for something." Do you love your family? Do you love your children, your spouse, your parents, siblings? Does that mean you worship them? No. At least not if you love them in a healthy way. Does God love us? In fact, does God love us with what we might consider an "extreme form of love"? Does that mean that God worships us? Of course not.

Now, is there an aspect of love in worship? Sure, but it's a piece of the definition, not the whole thing.

There's also the claim that it's "a type of unquestioning devotion. If you worship God, then you love God so much that you don't question him at all." Really? Is that what God wants? No! If it was, God would never have invited us to come and reason with Him. What's described in this definition is the kind of "worship" that turns off the brain, stunts the ability to grow, and warps the character.

Merriam-Webster dictionary defines worship as this:

1) Reverence offered a divine being or supernatural power; also: an act of expressing such reverence
2) A form of religious practice with its creed and ritual
3) Extravagant respect or admiration for or devotion to an object of esteem

What do you think about that definition? Do you think that's closer to true? Does it seem to you as if many ignore the first and third options, and stick to the second one? So for them, worship is something they do once a week. But true worship…shouldn't it be more than that?

What does it mean to offer God reverence?

Could it mean putting God first in our affections? Could it mean putting Him first in everything?

What would you say are the "acts of expressing such reverence?" What would that look like?

What does the Bible say about worship? Do any verses come to mind?

When Jesus was in the wilderness, how did He respond when Satan suggested that Jesus bow down to him in worship? "Worship the Lord your God, and serve him only." (Matt 4:10)

This tells us of course, who should be our object of worship: God alone. It also reveals one of the tactics of the enemy: to substitute something else to worship in place of God. What kinds of things are we often tempted to put in place of God? Is it possible to worship something (or someone) other than God and not even realize it? Have you ever experienced what it's like when you put something else (or someone else) above God? What was that like? Can you look back and see how that affected your mind?

What else does the Bible say about worship?

> Shout for joy to the Lord, all the earth.
> Worship the Lord with gladness;
> come before him with joyful songs.
> Know that the Lord is God.

> It is he who made us, and we are his;
> we are his people, the sheep of his pasture.
> Enter his gates with thanksgiving > and his courts with praise;
> give thanks to him and praise his name.
> For the Lord is good and his love endures forever;
> his faithfulness continues through all generations. (Psalm 100)

So one way to worship is to praise God, to sing…or for some…to "make a joyful noise." Why do you think we are told to do this? What happens when we praise God, when we express gratitude to Him?

According to Dr. Arlene Taylor, of the four core emotions, Joy, Anger, Fear, and Sadness, only one emotion can be on stage at the same time. So when fear steps in, whether it's for a real fear, or an imagined one, your emotion that was previously in charge is pushed "off the stage" so that you can collect the information that fear is trying to give you, and respond appropriately. Unfortunately, often, the fears are imagined, not real, and so we have to learn to manage or overcome those fears in order to get what we want to be our primary emotion, joy, back on the stage. Do you know the best thing to do to get rid of fear? Gratitude. Dr. Taylor says, the antidote to fear is gratitude, which is one of the aspects or features of the core emotion, joy. (see her presentation on Managing Fear for Success at https://www.arlenetaylor.org/selected-videos/9086-managing-fear-for-success)

Have you ever had a time when you were experiencing fear, and gratitude knocked it back off the stage? I have. I remember one day when I was outside unloading groceries from my car, and I noticed that there was a car with two men in it, passing slowly past my house. They then turned around just past where I live, and came back, stopped in front of my neighbor's house, and sat there watching me. I looked directly at the car, so they'd know I had noticed them, and went inside to watch through my front windows. When I did that, they went past my driveway, then parked across the street where they were a little bit behind some trees, but they backed in so they could still watch my house. Well, this triggered the start of a panic attack. I happened to be on the phone with my mom, which was good, because fear doesn't help you think well, and she realized what was happening. She, being the wise woman she is, told me to hang up the phone, go to my piano and start playing. She knows that the book I usually play from has a lot of praise and worship songs in it. So I did. I started out pretty shaky, but I played. I couldn't sing at first, but after about 5 minutes, I had gotten a lot calmer, and I was able to start singing. Five more minutes into that, I was totally immersed in praising God through my favorite songs, and the panic attack was completely gone. Now, I don't know if you have ever experienced a panic attack, but to go from the start of one to back to normal in 10 minutes, is astonishing. Gratitude is an antidote to fear.

Do you think God knew what He was doing when He urged us to "give glory to Him" and to "worship the Lord with all gladness"? He designed us. He knows how our brains work. So He provides us with an antidote to one of our biggest problems: fear. And of course, we know that fear leads to selfishness, self-preservation, me-first thinking.

Of course, there's also appropriate fear, where there is a legitimate danger that requires a response. But for that, it's meant to be a helper in that moment. It' not an emotion we want to have controlling us, right? What happens when we live with fear constantly "on the stage"? It's a terrible thing to live in a constant state of fear, and it's not where God wants us to be. When we are afraid, we can't think well, we make poorer decisions, and our relationship with God and others suffers. All of this is just another of the reasons God urges us to worship Him.

So let's look at another Bible verse on worship, when Jesus was talking to the Samaritan woman at the well:

> "Yet a time is coming and has now come when the true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth, for they are the kind of worshipers the Father seeks. God is spirit, and his worshipers must worship in spirit and in truth." (John 4:23-24)

What does it mean to worship God in spirit? –note the context: she was asking which was the more appropriate place of worship, their mountain in Samaria, or the one in Jerusalem. Jesus pointed her to the larger reality, that location doesn't matter. We can worship God anywhere, because God is everywhere.

What does it mean to worship God in truth?

The word translated truth here, means truth, but not merely truth as spoken; truth of idea, reality, sincerity, truth in the moral spere, divine truth revealed to man, straightforwardness.

If we worship God in truth, we're worshiping the reality. And again, why does God want those who worship Him in truth? Because if we let go of the reality, the truth, the only thing left is a lie. There are only ever two camps. In Revelation 13:8, we find that "All the inhabitants of the earth will worship the beast—all whose names have not been written in the book of life belonging to the Lamb that was slain from the creation of the world." So there are only two choices, worship the beast, or worship God.

So what other verses come to mind when you think about why we should worship in truth?

> John 14:6 – Jesus answered, "I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me. If you really knew me, you would know my Father as well. From now on, you do know him and have seen him."

When we understand that the character of the Father is the same as Jesus' character, our ability to worship Him increases. Love brings forth love.

> John 3:21 – But whoever lives by the truth comes into the light, so that it may be seen plainly that what he has done has been done through God.

The truth shines its light on us, and God uses that to heal our hearts and minds back in harmony with His design, we show His character.

> John 8:31-32 – To the Jews who had believed him, Jesus said, "If you hold to my teaching, you are really my disciples. Then you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free."

How does the truth set us free? How does worshiping in truth set us free?

So we know more about what worship is, but practically speaking, what does it mean to live it out? Are there any Bible texts that offer some suggestions?

> Therefore, I urge you, brothers, in view of Gods' mercy, to offer your bodies as living sacrifices, holy and pleasing to God—this is your spiritual act of worship. Do not conform any longer to the pattern of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind. (Romans 12:1-2a)

Notice, that we offer ourselves to God as an act of worship, we let go of the patterns of this world, and let God transform and renew us. Does this tie back into the idea of "giving God glory?" Based on the text, how often are we to offer this sacrifice? In other words, how much of our lives is this supposed to affect?

> And whatever you do, whether in word or deed, do it all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him. (Colossians 3:17)

We are to offer our worship to God in everything! Doing everything in the name/character of Jesus. And we come back to why God wants this for us.

As we worship God, as we grow and mature in His ways, our characters become more and more like His. We therefore, bring God glory, as we show in our own lives and hearts how He has healed and restored us. This is what ties the whole passage together. We learn who God is, we revere Him, understand His character, see His design, praise Him, and live a life of worship, putting Him first in everything, reflecting His glory back to Him as well as to those around us.

Here's how Ellen White describes a worshiper in Acts of the Apostles pages 132-133:

> Cornelius was a Roman centurion. He was a man of wealth and noble birth, and his position was one of trust and honor. A heathen by birth, training, and education, through contact with the Jews he had gained a knowledge of God, and he worshiped Him with a true heart, showing the sincerity of his faith by compassion to the poor. He was known far and near for his beneficence, and his righteous life made him of good repute among both Jews and Gentiles. His influence was a blessing to all with whom he came in contact. The inspired record describes him as "a devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God always."

> Believing in God as the Creator of heaven and earth, Cornelius revered Him, acknowledged His authority, and sought His counsel in all the affairs of life. He was faithful to Jehovah in his home life and in his official duties. He had erected the altar of God in his home, for he dared not attempt to carry out his plans or to bear his responsibilities without the help of God.

What do you think about that description? Does that sound like the result that God is pointing us toward from the angel's message?

SUNDAY

A Companion in Tribulation

How does worshiping God the way we've discussed change how we approach the trials and difficulties of life? Remember what Jesus said,

> I have told you these things, so that in me you may have peace. In this world you will have trouble. But take heart! I have overcome the world. (John 16:33)

Why does Jesus tell us that "in this world you will have trouble"? What is it that causes that trouble?

Because we don't live the way the world does. We value the principles of God's kingdom, that are not the principles of the world. When we live out His principles in our lives, we shine light in a dark world, and often the darkness does not react well to light.

When Jesus says he has overcome the world, what did He mean? –that he conquered using the methods of God, providing the remedy for us, so that we can do the same.

So should we be afraid of potential trouble? No! What gets us through it? The power of God at work in us. When trouble comes, we can look at it differently, because we understand what is happening. When we live in harmony with God's design, by His power, we can love even those who are attempting to hurt us.

TUESDAY

A God Who Is Close

Can you think of any verses that talk about how closely God knows us, how attentive He is to us?

> John 15:4 Remain in me, as I also remain in you. No branch can bear fruit by itself; it must remain in the vine. Neither can you bear fruit unless you remain in me.

Matthew 10:29-31 Are not two sparrows sold for a penny? Yet not one of them will fall to the ground outside your Father's care (knowledge). And even the very hairs of your head are all numbered. So don't be afraid; you are worth more than many sparrows.

Ephesians 2:19-22 Consequently, you are no longer foreigners and strangers, but fellow citizens with God's people and also members of his household, built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ Jesus himself as the chief cornerstone. In him the whole building is joined together and rises to become a holy temple in the Lord. And in him you too are being built together to become a dwelling in which God lives by his Spirit.

Psalm 139:15-17
My frame was not hidden from you when I was made in the secret place, when I was woven together in the depths of the earth.
Your eyes saw my unformed body;
All the days ordained for me were written in your book
Before one of them came to be.

God did this so that they would seek him and perhaps reach out for him and find him, though he is not far from any one of us. 'For in him we live and move and have our being.' (Acts 17:27-28a)

How does knowing how close God wants to be to us affect how we worship Him?

THURSDAY

The Creator on the Cross

From Thursday's lesson, next to last paragraph:

> The first angel's message to worship the Creator came after the Cross, after it had become known to the onlooking universe and to Christ's followers that the One who "made heaven and earth, the sea and springs of water" is the same One who, though being God, took "the form of a bondservant, and [came] in the likeness of men. And being found in appearance as a man, He humbled Himself and became obedient to the point of death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:7, 8, NKJV).

How does knowing the lengths that God would go to heal and restore us affect how we worship Him? What do His actions before, during, and after the cross reveal to us about His character?

Further Thoughts

> The worship of God is central in the Scriptures and has always been a bone of contention for humans and for God's people. Throughout the Old Testament the prophets reprimanded the people of God for worshiping other gods or for worshiping the Lord using the worship practices of the pagan world. The conflict between worshiping God and worshiping other gods belongs at the very center of the cosmic conflict and comes accompanied by conflict over disregard for the law of God.

Notice that the same tactic Satan used in the Old Testament, he still uses today. Mixing pagan ideas into the theories and doctrines of those who claim to be God's people.

What are some of the other ways that Satan uses to move us away from worshiping God?

> "Worship addresses the most fundamental aspect of human existence in that it has to do with what humans as living creatures should do when confronted by the presence of the Creator. Only those who are alive can worship the Lord; the dead cannot praise and worship Him. The One who created us invites us to surrender our lives in the act of worship in order to receive them back from Him enriched, to be used for the benefit of others. Worship has to do with the very nature and purpose of our existence and with the need for having a center outside of ourselves that frees us from selfishness. Not to worship God is to lose our reason for existence; it is to exist in a state of disorientation and therefore to be dying, heading to total extinction because we are disconnected from the very source of life."—Ángel Manuel Rodríguez, "The Closing of the Cosmic Conflict: Role of the Three Angels' Messages," unpublished manuscript, p. 42.

VERY well said!

2023 2Q Three Cosmic Messages—Lesson 8
The Sabbath and The End

SABBATH

What do you think of the title—The Sabbath and The End?

Have you ever heard presentations regarding the Sabbath and end-time events?

What have you heard?

Is the final issue in the war between Christ and Satan a test over which day one attends weekly worship services?

- Is the issue in our salvation, in our preparation to meet Jesus, in our being ready to be translated into heaven without seeing death as simple as which day of the week a person goes to church?
- If a person absolutely insists on worshipping on the Bible Sabbath does that guarantee that they won't get the mark of the beast?
- Those who crucified Christ 2000 years ago wanted Him off the Cross by sunset why? So they could keep the Bible Sabbath – does that mean they had the seal of God?
- Does Satan care if a group of people worships on Sabbath as long as they worship him?
    - Who did Jesus Himself say was the Father of the Jewish leadership, those Sabbath keepers who crucified Him?

      "You belong to your father, the devil, and you want to carry out your father's desire" (John 8:44 NIV84).

    - So we have people keeping the Bible Sabbath who are, according to Jesus, children of Satan.
    - Doesn't that mean, to the degree the Sabbath is involved in end-time events, or any events in human history, it must be more than simply the day of the week one avoids work or attends worship services?
- Do these questions mean that the Sabbath is not important, or has no divine value? No—it means that any gift of God can be misused and misapplied to cause harm.
    - God has given us food to eat and water to drink, can people misuse food to cause sickness, and misuse water to drown others?
    - God has given us the gift of marriage—can people abuse the marriage relationship to cause harm?
    - This is not a question about what day of the week is the Sabbath, every serious Bible student knows that the Bible Sabbath is Saturday. The questions before us, are:
        - What is the purpose of the Sabbath?

- How are we to understand and experience it?
- What impact does the Sabbath have upon who we understand God to be and our relationship with Him?
- What role does the Sabbath have for human beings today?
- Is there a Great Controversy function for the Sabbath—is it important as we approach the second coming of Christ?

Our lesson is focusing our attention upon the importance of the Sabbath as we approach the second coming of Christ. What is the first question that I like to ask when we study any Bible truth? What law lens do we understand things through?

What is the traditional way, the historic way, both in Judaism and in Adventism, that the Sabbath has most often been presented? As an imposed rule given to test our obedience:

Consider this quotation, in a book entitled The Sabbath in Scripture and History, published by the Review and Herald:

> In an arbitrary manner God appointed that on the seventh day we should come to rest with His creation in a particular way. He filled this day with a content that is "uncontaminated" by anything related to the cyclical changes of nature or the movements of the heavenly bodies. That content is the idea of the absolute sovereignty of God, a sovereignty unqualified even by an indirect cognizance of the natural movements of time and rhythms of life. As the Christian takes heed of the Sabbath day and keeps it holy, he does so purely in answer to God's command, and simply because God is his Creator. Thus, the Sabbath command comes nearer to being a true measure of spirituality than any other of the commandments, and, as in the days of Israel of old, it is often more of a test of loyalty to God than is any of the others... (Raoul Dederen, The Sabbath in Scripture and History, 1982; from the chapter is titled, "Reflections on a Theology of the Sabbath").

If the Sabbath is an arbitrary test of obedience, then what type of law would it be? It would be an imposed law that would require God to enforce it with inflicted punishment—a law like we sinners make. What kind of a god is that? An arbitrary god who makes up arbitrary rules and uses his power arbitrarily to inflict punishment and who cannot forgive rule-breaking or there is no justice. This is Satan's fantasy, delusion, false narrative, and lie about God.

Consider these historical quotes from one of the founders of the SDA church, one who valued the Bible Sabbath, put these two quotes together and discern what the author is saying about how Satan wages war, what Satan says about God's law, government, methods, and justice and then consider how the Sabbath is presented in the quote we just read:

> In the opening of the great controversy, Satan had declared that the law of God could not be obeyed, that justice was inconsistent with mercy, and that, should the law be broken, it would be impossible for the sinner to be pardoned. Every sin must meet its punishment, urged Satan; and if God should remit the punishment of sin, He would not be a God of truth > and justice. When men broke the law of God, and defied His will, Satan exulted. It was proved, he declared, that the law could not be obeyed; man could not be forgiven. Because he, after his rebellion, had been banished from heaven, Satan claimed that the human race must be forever shut out from God's favor. God could not be just, he urged, and yet show mercy to the sinner. (Desire of Ages 761).

> From the beginning it has been Satan's studied plan to cause men to forget God, that he might secure them to himself. Hence he has sought to misrepresent the character of God, to lead men to cherish a false conception of Him. The Creator has been presented to their minds as clothed with the attributes of the prince of evil himself,--as arbitrary, severe, and unforgiving,--that He might be feared, shunned, and even hated by men. Satan hoped to so confuse the minds of those whom he had deceived that they would put God out of their knowledge. Then he would obliterate the divine image in man and impress his own likeness upon the soul; he would imbue men with his own spirit and make them captives according to his will. (Testimonies to the Church vol. 5 p. 738).

What is Satan method of attacking God as described here? He attacks God's law by describing it as imposed and requiring God to inflict punishments. Thus God becomes the source of inflicted pain, suffering and death as punishment for sin, and the one being in the universe from whom we need to be protected. God then is presented as arbitrary, the Sabbath as arbitrary, made up, and God is presented as severe, unforgiving—He requires a legal payment of human blood, He cannot forgive outright, and this is exactly how the church has presented God and the Sabbath. And this misrepresents God and God's justice and obstructs our ability to trust God.

Satan declared that "God could not be just and yet show mercy to the sinner."

It is impossible to be both just and merciful to the sinner with imposed law!

It is not just to arbitrarily inflict punishment on an innocent person and then declare the guilty person innocent because the punishment required by the law has been applied to the innocent. This is irrational, nonsense, and makes God out to be untrustworthy. Thus, those who believe this must dethrone their God-given reasoning abilities and believe such nonsense without understanding, believe based on rules, authority, or "blind faith" because the priest, pope, pastor, parent, told them that God, the Bible, or the red leather books said so.

If God's law functions like human law, then Satan's position is true. As long as the church presents God's law as functioning like human law, then they are misrepresenting God and obstructing the plan of salvation. Worse, they are contributing to the rebellion against God and leading people to reject God altogether.

But when we return to worshiping God as Creator and see things through design law, it becomes perfectly clear how justice and mercy meet.

Can anyone explain how, via design law, God can be just and yet show mercy to the sinner?

By God always doing what is right and just—what is in harmony with His nature, character, and law of love—and what does the justice of love require of the righteous individual when they see another person dying from a condition that can be cured?

If your child disobeys your rule to never touch the medicine in the medicine cabinet, and under the temptation of friends, has one of those pill parties where they dump all the medications into a bowl and take handfuls of pills with alcohol, and you come home to find your child seizing and foaming at the mouth as a direct result of their disobedience of your rule—what would the justice of love require of you?

- Would you get out your belt and beat them to punish them for their sin?
- Would you throw gasoline upon them and light them on fire to give them proper torment before executing them for their sin?
- Would you take one of your other healthy children, ask if they would be willing to take their dying brother's punishment, and assuming one of them, in love, said yes, would you shove a bunch of pills down their throat and then burn them to death to make sure a legal death penalty payment was made to assuage your anger and wrath and ensure justice was done so you don't have to kill your other child who is already dying from a toxic overdose and then would you turn and declare you dying child is perfectly health while they remain terminal?
- Would you immediately intervene to provide remedy to your dying child in order to save and heal them?
- And, if necessary, would you put them on artificial life support while the remedy is being applied?
    - That is the history of this planet. As soon as Adam and Eve sinned, God intervened (intercession) and put the entire planet in a protective bubble of grace, suspending for a time the full results of sin—allowing for an artificial state to occur, what we call the first death, the sleep death, which is not the wages of sin death. As Paul says in Romans, God left the sins committed beforehand unpunished—God used His grace to hold at bay the full results of what sin does in order to provide Jesus, our Remedy, and give us time to partake of all that Jesus has provided to heal and restore us.

      "God sent him to die in our place to take away our sins. We receive forgiveness through faith in the blood of Jesus' death. This showed that God always does what is right and fair, as in the past when he was patient and did not punish people for their sins. And God gave Jesus to show today that he does what is right. God did this so he could judge rightly and so he could make right any person who has faith in Jesus." (Romans 3:25-26 NCV).

- And if your child's actions caused them to experience renal failure and they needed a kidney transplant to survive, what would the justice of love lead you to do for your child? Would you donate your kidney? And would this donation be required by law? Yes, the laws of health require functioning kidneys to live? And in providing the new kidney, you are restoring your > child to harmony with the law through sacrifice of yourself. Are you doing away with the law? Or does your sacrifice show that the law cannot be changed to meet your dying child in their terminal condition?

So as we discuss the Sabbath question, it will come down to whether we understand it through imposed or design law. If we understand it through imposed law, then we take this gift God has given us and use it to advance Satan's warfare against God, just as the Jews did 2000 years ago when the Lord of the Sabbath stood before them and they acted to kill Him, for Sabbath-breaking among other things.

As we continue our exploration of the Sabbath, consider these historical quotes from the most influential founder of the SDA church:

> The last great conflict between truth and error is but the final struggle of the long-standing controversy concerning the law of God. Upon this battle we are now entering,—a battle between the laws of men and the precepts of Jehovah, between the religion of the Bible and the religion of fable and tradition. (The Great Controversy 582).
> There is no such thing as weakening or strengthening the law of Jehovah. As it has been, so it is. It always has been, and always will be holy, just, and good, complete in itself. It cannot be repealed or changed. To "honor" or "dishonor" it is but the speech of men. (Prophets and Kings 625).
> Between the laws of men and the precepts of Jehovah will come the last great conflict of the controversy between truth and error. Upon this battle we are now entering—a battle not between rival churches contending for the supremacy, but between the religion of the Bible and the religions of fable and tradition. (Prophets and Kings 625).

If you agree with these quotations, then it raises serious questions about the role of the Sabbath in the final issues. Such as, when Satan began his war in heaven, was there a Sabbath?

Jesus said,

> The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. Therefore the Son of Man is also Lord of the Sabbath. (Mark 2:27,28)

Consider the truths this short text contains:

- The Sabbath was made—just like the Earth was made, the sun and moon were made, the plants and animals were made, and Adam and Eve were made!
- Therefore, the Sabbath has a beginning, an origination point, and that point was at the end of creation week of this planet, which was after Satan's rebellion started. Thus, the war in heaven, which began over God's law did not include the Sabbath day.

- Further, Jesus' statement tells us the Sabbath was made for human beings, not for angels; this indicates that the Sabbath was not a question of obedience in heaven when the rebellion started, but is somehow valuable or beneficial to humans in the middle of this war.

Next important point to note is that the Sabbath was created after sin entered the universe but was given as a gift to humans before Adam and Eve sinned. This indicates it was not a rule to be obeyed, but for another purpose.

What was the purpose or intention of God in creating the Sabbath and giving it as a gift for human beings?

Consider the origins of the weekly seventh-day Sabbath.

- Which day of the week is the Sabbath? The seventh.
- Which day of existence was that first Sabbath for Adam and Eve? It was not their seventh day; it was their second day. If humans are to observe a worship day based on their seventh day, then humans should be worshiping on Thursday.
- Was the purpose of the Sabbath in Eden so that Adam and Eve could physically rest and recover from a hard work week?
- What was the condition of the world when the Sabbath was made?
- Consider the type of activities that Adam and Eve did during the six work days while in Eden:
    - Went for walks in nature
    - Studied nature
    - Interacted with the animals
    - Walked with God in the cool of the day
    - Appreciated God and all He had done in the creation of the world
    - Talked with angels
    - Did they have to pull weeds?
    - Was there any planting to do?
    - Any harvesting and storing in barns to do?
    - Any fertilizing, irrigating, or pesticides to spread?
    - Were there houses to build?
    - Was there laundry, vacuuming to do, or dishes to wash?
    - Was there anything for them to do that we call work?
- What was the purpose of the Sabbath in Eden?
- Did the Sabbath in Eden have any purpose in the Great Controversy? What?

In other words, were Adam and Eve's non-Sabbath activities very similar to the activities we find valuable to do on Sabbath?

Did Adam and Eve do any of the following on Sabbath in Eden?

- Attend church services?
- Have communion ceremony?
- Go to confession?
- Do penance?
- Pay tithe or bring offerings?
- Would they still walk in nature, pick fruit from the trees to eat, interact with the animals, converse with God and angels?
- So what was different for Adam and Eve about the Sabbath than any other day of the week?
- Was the difference primarily in their behavior or something else?

Could the purpose of the Sabbath in Eden be in what the day itself revealed? Could it be in what the day itself represented? And could the Sabbath day reveal something about God that God wants every human to understand, to know both intellectually but also experientially about Him? Could the Sabbath be different from the other six days of the week not because of what Adam and Eve did differently, but because of what God did differently on the seventh day of creation week?

Could it be that the purpose for which the Sabbath was created was to be a reminder, a sign, a signal, an indicator, a testament, an evidence, a memorial, a flag, pennant, signet, a revelation of God's character, methods, principles, law, and form of government?

The Sabbath was made by God and it was made holy, blessed, sanctified, set apart, how? Was the Sabbath made holy by legislation? Was it made holy by declaration, or was it made holy by both design and action, by deed, by how it came to be, by what God tied to that day in its origin? In other words, the Sabbath was set apart at and by creation and the actions of God in its origin.

What did God do on days one through six of Creation week? God expended divine power and energy to create. What did God do on day seven of Creation week? God rested! God ceased using creative power—what is significant about this, especially in the context of the war?

What was happening in the rest of the universe when the Sabbath was made? War over God's right to rule. Satan was alleging God is selfish, that God makes up rules and inflicts punishment, that angels are not truly free.

What does it reveal about God that in the context of this rebellion, instead of using power to force every knee to bow, God instead creates new intelligent life—gives these new beings pro-creative power to make beings in their image, and gives them dominion over a planet to govern as they so choose, and then God rests, God steps back, God stops using power—God leaves all His intelligent creatures free! God creates a day, a time, an opportunity, an experience where He rests.

Does this fact, this action by God in establishing the Sabbath as a day set apart from all the other days by His choice to not use power, to rest, to create a time in which intelligent beings are left free to think and consider for themselves without coercion, have any use, utility, purpose, value, worth, function in the war between Christ and Satan? Is there some divine power attached to and contained within the Sabbath, some power we need in the controversy?

Paul wrote in Romans:

> I am not ashamed of the gospel, because it is the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes (Romans 1:16 NIV84).

What is the power that Paul is referring to that is found in the gospel? What type of power is this? Is this the power of physical might? No! it is the power of truth and love, the truth and love of God's character, methods, principles and design law.

Is this same good news power contained in the Sabbath? What kind of power is gospel power?

Paul wrote to the Corinthians:

> For though we live in the world, we do not wage war as the world does. The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. We demolish arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and we take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ. (2 Corinthians 10:3-5 NIV84).

What kind of war is this? What kind of power is in the divine weapons we use?

Do you think the war in heaven was fought with different weapons? Do you think the angels were using light sabers and photon torpedoes?

> And there was war in heaven. Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back. But he was not strong enough, and they lost their place in heaven. (Revelation 12:7-8 NIV84).

The Greek translated "war" in Revelation 12:7 is πόλεμος [polemos /pol·em·os/], from which we get polemic—it is a war of words, a war of words, of ideas. Satan is the father of lies (John 8:44).

Just as EGW wrote:

> The last great conflict between truth and error is but the final struggle of the long-standing controversy concerning the law of God. Upon this battle we are now entering,—a battle between the laws of men and the precepts of Jehovah, between the religion of the Bible and the religion of fable and tradition. (The Great Controversy 582)

We are in a war between two ways of thinking, two ways of understanding, two ways of believing, functioning, and acting—one is reality-based, one is fable or fantasy based; one is truth-based the other is founded on lies; and another way to describe fantasy is falsehood, artificial, not real, simulated—as in simulated realities, or virtual worlds.

Satan is the father of lies, he wants people to believe that whatever we decide, think, desire, believe is the way things work, that our so-called truth defines truth, that we can create our own reality, we can create artificial worlds, virtual worlds, and be anything we choose. That in this satanic, delusional, false, fable world when we say that there is no male or female then there is no male and female; and if we say that there is no good or evil then it is so. In this satanic delusion there is only me, myself, and I, what I want, a world divorced from eternal reality, divorced from the laws our Creator build reality to operate upon, a world where every person can be their own god.

Does the Sabbath have any power to refute this? Does the Sabbath declare every week that there is a Creator God who built reality and His laws are the laws reality function upon and no human invention, fantasy, imagination, declaration, proclamation, legislation can ever change the laws of God because God's laws are the protocols reality itself function upon? Including the 7-day weekly cycle built by God into time itself. And the Sabbath reminds us of reality, that our fantasies don't change reality. We may believe there is no male or female, that a person can simply choose their gender—but the Bible says that leaving objective reality and making up one's own beliefs is delusional (2 Thessalonians 2:11).

Consider what is happening in the world today as we read Psalm 2, from The Remedy:

> Why are the nations of this selfish world angry at God's character of love?
> Why do their people plot in vain against God's design?
> 2 World leaders take their stand
> and the rulers unite together > against the Creator and his design for life > and against the One anointed to be our remedy.
> 3 They say, "Let us break free from God's design > and reject God's protocols for life and health."
> 4 The Creator, who from heaven sustains reality, hates their foolishness;
> the Lord knows their words don't change reality — they're just meaningless noise.
> 5 He fiercely corrects their misunderstanding > and persistently assails their false perspectives, instructing them,
> 6 "I have chosen who will reign in Zion, > my King will rule in sinless perfection."
> 7 The king will make God's healing plan known:
> God said to me, "You are my Son;

today my Fatherhood to you has become known.

8 Ask me,
and I will give you all the nations,
the entire world will be yours.

9 You will govern them with an unbreakable shepherd's rod of truth and love;
you will destroy selfishness and crush their ability to coerce and deceive like iron crushes pottery."

10 Therefore, worldly rulers, wise up!
You, who govern the earth, have been warned as to how reality works.

11 So, with humble admiration, live in harmony with God and his designs, celebrate him with fervor.

12 Accept the Son with a loving heart lest he let you go to die from your terminal condition, for he may release you to your choice at any moment.
Happy and healthy are they who abide in him.

God is the creator of reality. His laws are the protocols reality function upon. Fantasy, make-believe, imagination do not change reality.

And the Sabbath is part of our reality, but how does the Sabbath fit in? The war is over ideas, attitudes, beliefs, love, and trust. God created the Sabbath in the middle of the war and it was created as a gift for humans. It is designed by God to us to help us cooperate with God in winning the war over sin in our own lives, how?

When Lucifer rebelled in heaven, he did not allege God was powerless—it was an allegation or attack on how God wields power, it was an attack on God's trustworthiness, is God worthy of our trust, love, devotion, and worship.

Satan's allegations were against how God governs or uses His power. And thus, Satan's attacks were against God's law. Satan suggested that God makes up rules and enforces those rules with inflicted punishment and that such a state of things restricts freedom and reveals God is not love, is not good, and is not trustworthy. Lucifer alleged that he had a better way and that way was to do away with God's law so that angels could have freedom to do anything they wanted—and Satan's principles are being advanced in this world today—do you see them?

But freedom from the laws that govern reality only results in chaos, disorder, pain, suffering, fear, guilt, shame, selfishness, and death.

And this man of lawlessness is being revealed, we see it in the world today as we approach the second coming of Christ. Paul wrote:

> Concerning the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our being gathered to him, we ask you, brothers, not to become easily unsettled or alarmed by some prophecy, report or letter supposed to have come from us, saying that the day of the Lord has already come. Don't let anyone deceive you in any way, for that day will not come until the rebellion occurs and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the man doomed to destruction. He will oppose and will exalt himself over everything that is called God or is worshiped, so that he sets himself up in God's temple, proclaiming himself to be God. (2 Thessalonians 4:1-4 NIV84).

Do you see this in the arbitrary laws humans are making up? Do you see that as people reject God as Creator, and build their own virtual, fantasy, artificial worlds, and pass laws (note I am focusing upon what governments and lawmakers are doing. This is not a discussion of the poor souls who are struggling with physical and mental health problems and are confused about their gender) to arbitrarily declare a man can be woman and compete in women's sports, and use women's bathrooms, that the image of Satan is being produced in people? We are seeing more division, more hostility, more debasing of the noble qualities of character. Satan is setting himself up in God's spirit temple to be the one adored, admired and worshiped.

Do you see the fulfillment of Revelation 18:3:

> "For all the nations have drunk the maddening wine of her adulteries. The kings of the earth committed adultery with her, and the merchants of the earth grew rich from her excessive luxuries." (Revelation 18:3 NIV84).

Do you see all the nations embracing the godless theories, all the nations advancing a fantasy view of reality that promotes selfishness, do you see the merchants of the world working with media and governments to advance policies and practices that punish godly values and seek to get rich through these corrupt practices?

The only outcome to rejecting God and His design laws for life is pain, suffering, guilt, shame, and eventual death.

We need healing, we need to be restored to God's design for life and health.

So, where does the Sabbath fit in? What role does it play in God healing us as we approach the second coming of Christ?

> Then the Lord said to Moses, "Say to the Israelites, 'You must observe my Sabbaths. This will be a sign between me and you for the generations to come, so you may know that I am the LORD, who makes you holy (or sanctifies you). (Exodus 31:12,13)

The Sabbath, and our recognition and observance of it, is a sign that God makes us holy. Does that mean Sabbath-keeping makes us holy and saves us?

Circumcision was a sign for Abraham and his descendants—did circumcision actually do anything to make him or his descendants holy or righteous? Or was circumcision a sign that Abraham had already been set right or made righteous?

Which came first, Abraham's heart being set right with God or the sign of circumcision? Paul makes this very point in Romans 4:9-12.

Can people be circumcised physically without ever having their hearts set right with God?

So, how does the Sabbath and our observance fit into God making us holy if it is not a rule we keep and our works or behaviors do not make us holy?

Consider this historical quote:

> All through the week we are to have the Sabbath in mind and be making preparation to keep it according to the commandment. We are not merely to observe the Sabbath as a legal matter. We are to understand its spiritual bearing upon all the transactions of life. All who regard the Sabbath as a sign between them and God, showing that He is the God who sanctifies them, will represent the principles of His government. They will bring into daily practice the laws of His kingdom. Daily it will be their prayer that the sanctification of the Sabbath may rest upon them. Every day they will have the companionship of Christ, and will exemplify the perfection of His character. Every day their light will shine forth to others in good works. (Testimonies to the Church vol. 6 p. 353).

What is described here? Is this describing a one day in seven experience or a daily experience?

The commandment says, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

- If we commit terrible sins on the Sabbath day, have we made the Sabbath less holy?
- If we live perfectly holy and righteously on the Sabbath day, have we made the Sabbath more holy?
- Can we do anything to make or keep the Sabbath day holy or take away holiness from the Sabbath day? So, when the commandment says that we are to keep the Sabbath day holy, is it talking about the day, or is it talking about ourselves—that we are to keep ourselves holy?
- And can a person be a holy and righteous member of God's family and kingdom one day in seven?

So, the quote from EGW above makes perfect sense, the Sabbath is somehow a gift from God that is to be employed by us as a spiritual weapon in our cooperation with God to be a holy priesthood all week long.

How is the Sabbath useful in our holiness?

How does the Lord make us holy?

- Does God do this with divine power alone, or is there a part that we have to play in that process of our being made holy?
- Do we have choices to make?
- Do our choices have any impact in our salvation and our being made holy by God's divine power?
- Can God make someone holy while they actively choose to rebel against Him?
- Can a person make themselves holy by anything they can do apart from God?
- Is there some type of choosing that we must make that is involved in God's plan to transform and save us? What? And how is the Sabbath involved?

Is salvation about making sure we have the right set of doctrinal beliefs? That we have a correct understanding of which day is the Sabbath, how to perform biblical baptism, belief in a literal 7-day creation week, accurate understanding and practice of tithing and offerings, correct understanding of marriage, right beliefs about the state of the dead, accurate interpretation of Bible prophecy?

Does correctly and rightly understanding all these truths mean one has salvation?

Did the Jews who crucified Christ do so because Jesus:

- Used a different Bible?
- Kept a different Sabbath?
- Worshiped at a different Temple?
- Didn't believe in seven days of creation or that God was Creator?
- Ate a different diet?
- Had a different list of animals to be used in their ceremonies?
- Had a different list of feast days to be observed?

Understand, salvation is not found in believing the right list—salvation is found in trusting the right God.

And if one has the right list, but understands that list, including the Sabbath, through imposed law, then they have the wrong god.

It is only by returning to worship the Creator whose laws are design laws that we can understand Bible truths in their right setting, and that setting removes the lies of Satan and results in our trusting God and when we trust God we open our hearts to Him and He pours His Spirit into our hearts and there is a divine, supernatural transformation of desires and motives, and then we choose to act out, live out, put into practice the methods and principles of God. All of which are embodied in and represented by the Sabbath.

The Sabbath is a gift that is filled with meaning, truth, and power created by God to be used by God in our sanctification. And we are to be sanctified in spirit, soul, and body:

> May God himself, the God of peace, sanctify you through and through. May your whole spirit, soul and body be kept blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. The one who calls you is faithful and he will do it. (1 Thessalonians 5:23-24 NIV84).

The Sabbath is a sign that God sanctifies us or makes us holy, and God is going to sanctify or make us holy in spirit, soul, and body. How is the Sabbath involved in this?

First the Sabbath is evidence of God's character, methods, and principles. Truth, presented in love, while leaving His intelligent creatures free. Its very existence proves Satan lied about how God governs. If God were an arbitrary rule-maker who inflicted arbitrary punishments for rule-breaking, God would have simply punished Lucifer and ordered the rest of the angels back into line. He would never have created the Sabbath as a day where God rested, a day where the angels and humans are left free to think and decide for themselves.

And thus, the Sabbath refutes the fantasy that we can make up our own reality, our own simulation, our own virtual world. The Sabbath is evidence of a Creator God whose laws govern reality and we either harmonize ourselves with those protocols for life, or we die from the result of breaking them. Thus, the idea that God's law can be changed and the Sabbath can be replaced by man's declaration is fantasy, it is no different than saying a man can declare himself to be a woman.

So the Sabbath is a gift to sanctify our souls—our psyches—our minds with the truth of God as Creator, as Savior, whose laws are design laws and the One who is altogether trustworthy.

Second, when we are won back to trust through the evidence of God's character of love and the truths that the Sabbath is a sign of, we open the heart and God pours His Spirit into our hearts and we are healed spiritually as we choose to trust Him and rest in His grace. His love casts out our fear, our shame and guilt are washed away by His goodness, mercy, forgiveness, and grace. Our ugly, sin-ridden identity is replaced with a new identity Christ-like, we become truly Christian. We experience spiritual healing in which we have love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, gentleness, faithfulness, and self-control manifest in our characters and we grow to become ever more like Jesus.

And in this new life we choose to honor God with our bodies—free from guilt, shame, the workaholic practices of the fear-driven world—we choose to rest each Sabbath trusting God with our lives, our fortunes, our businesses, and our bodies experience greater health and wellness.

- We must choose to study His word and decide, do we believe God is Creator and His laws are design laws, or do we believe the lies that God is arbitrary and makes up rules that require Him to inflict punishment?
- We must choose, based on the truth that Jesus has revealed, to trust God, to value what He values, say yes to what God reveals, say no to what is opposed to God's kingdom, and to apply

God's design law to our practices in how we live and treat others—we present truth, in love, and leave others free.

- We must choose to rest in God, to trust God with our everything, fortunes, families, and futures and we demonstrate that trust by choosing to wave the flag of God's design law kingdom by resting from pursuing our own business on the Sabbath.
- Why must we choose all of this?

Because God doesn't want robots programmed by Him or slaves who mindlessly obey rules out of fear of punishment. He wants free intelligent beings operating in harmony with Him, and the only way to heal us and retain our individuality is with our freewill cooperation.

So, does the Sabbath provide evidence of God's character of love, freedom, truth?

Does the Sabbath also provide us opportunity to choose to stop promoting self, to rest from all aspects of self-indulgence, whether seeking wealth (work for gain), whether pleasure seeking, or trying to save self by working hard to keep the rules, including the Sabbath? That we rest trusting in God?

Do you see why Satan hates the Sabbath?

Now, since the lesson focuses on the Sabbath and the end-time, let's consider some historical ways the SDA church has presented this issue and see if we can advance and improve our understanding—we will be contrasting imposed law versus design law:

There are longer versions of this idea, but the following quote gets the point across:

- The sign, or seal, of God is revealed in the observance of the seventh-day Sabbath, the Lord's memorial of creation. . . . The mark of the beast is the opposite of this--the observance of the first day of the week. (Testimonies to the Church vol. 8, p. 117).

Any concerns or questions about this statement?

Statements like this are often misunderstood and misused because they are viewed through the imposed law model.

If viewed through the imposed law lens, what does this statement lead to?

So, what is the design law way of understanding this statement?

What is a mark or sign?

A symbol that stands for or signifies something else: So these two days of worship stand as signs or symbols for something else, what? Two types of governments or two ways of governing!

How did the Sabbath become a day set apart from the other days? By creation, by design, thus the Sabbath is a sign of God's government or kingdom which operates upon design law.

How did Sunday get set apart as a day of worship from the other days? By legislation, by man-made rules. Thus Sunday becomes a mark or sign of imposed law and represents governments that are made by sinful beings—because created beings cannot build reality, we can only make up rules and enforce those rules with inflicted punishments. So these two days are symbolic, or signs, of two types of laws, which result in two types of governments, which have two different gods.

Consider the days as flags of two different governments or seals of two different governments. Are the flags of the government the government, or only signs, marks, or symbols of the government?

The flag of the USA has historically stood for liberty and equality of all persons, the land of opportunity. Those who oppose these historic principles over the last decade have worked hard to attack the flag, to devalue it, to kneel rather than stand with hand over the heart when the national anthem is played, to work to assign false values of exploitation, enslavement, and abuse to the flag. Why? Are such attacks actually attacks on the flag, or attacks against the government that the flag represents?

Likewise, the various attacks against and actions to replace the Bible Sabbath are not primarily attacks against the Sabbath day. They are attacks intended to undermine and replace God's design law government with Satan's imposed law government—replacing God's kingdom of love, with Satan's fear-based kingdom of survival of the fittest, and dethroning Jesus and enthroning Satan into our hearts and minds as the one we admire and worship.

Could a person wear the flag of one country, which marks them as being a member of that country, but actually be a traitor and fighting for the other side?

Think about that when you consider who is on God's side and who is on Satan's side by merely what day a person attends church.

So, what is the mark of the beast? Is it attending church on a day other than Sabbath? Consider this quote:

> The time has come for the true light to shine amid moral darkness. The third angel's message has been sent forth to the world, warning men against receiving the mark of the beast or of his image in their foreheads or in their hands. To receive this mark means to come to the same decision as the beast has done, and to advocate the same ideas, in direct opposition to the word of God. (Review and Herald, July 13, 1897 par. 5).

What decision did the beast make and what ideas did it advocate that are in direct opposition to the word of God? Is it not the idea that God's law is imposed and God is the source of inflicted pain, suffering, and death as punishment for sin? And justice requires the sovereign to use power to inflict external punishment on rule-breakers? And the church, having changed the day of worship from Sabbath to Sunday in their legislative counsels give evidence or a mark that they do not consider God's law to be design law, but believe God's law is like human law, imposed rules that can be changed.

Thus the issue in the end, of which the two days stand as signs, is the issue of God's law of love, versus Satan's imposed law construct; God's rule of love versus Satan's rule of fear and selfishness; God's design law versus worldly imposed laws. It comes down to the methods one practices and the two days are symbolic of two systems.

And what does the beastly systems of the earth do? They coerce, they force, they inflict punishment for disobedience. Consider this quote:

> But when the decree shall go forth enforcing the counterfeit sabbath, and the loud cry of the third angel shall warn men against the worship of the beast and his image, the line will be clearly drawn between the false and the true. Then those who still continue in transgression will receive the mark of the beast. (Evangelism 234, 235).

Is the mark about the day upon which one attends church, or is it about the law one believes God governs by and therefore the methods employed, and ultimately the character one forms as they become like the god they worship?

The mark is about the methods one employs in how they treat others, which law people embrace into their hearts in how they live and treat others. Do they practice, truth, love, and freedom, or do they employ lies, fear/selfishness, and coercion?

Thus, any time we use power to coerce the conscience of others we are acting beastly and marking ourselves as loyal to the beast and not loyal to the kingdom of God.

2023 2Q Three Cosmic Messages—Lesson 9
A City Called Confusion

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

SABBATH

Read first three paragraphs:

> The great controversy theme is summarized in Revelation with the symbolism of two women: one clothed with the sun, in Revelation 12, and one dressed in scarlet, in Revelation 17.
> The striking symbol of the woman clothed with the sun, in the dazzling glory of Christ, is found in Revelation 12. She is faithful to her true Lover, Jesus. She is not defiled with the corruption of false doctrines. Throughout the Bible, a pure woman symbolizes the bride of Jesus, or the true church. In Jeremiah 6:2, the prophet says, " 'I have likened the daughter of Zion to a lovely and delicate woman' " (NKJV). The prophet uses the expression "daughter of Zion" or a faithful woman to describe God's people. (See also Eph. 5:25–32 and Hos. 2:20.)
> In contrast, the Bible likens apostasy to harlotry or adultery (James 4:4). Speaking of Israel's rebellion and unfaithfulness, Ezekiel laments, " 'You are an adulterous wife, who takes strangers instead of her husband' " (Ezek. 16:32, NKJV). (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p.72)

Why if the lesson is entitled a City Called Confusion do we start out talking about two women?

Because the Bible has many ways of describing, revealing, and symbolizing the war between Christ and His followers, and Satan and his followers. The two women are descriptions of the two sides; we will explore this in detail in a moment, but before we do, can you think of other ways the Bible describes or symbolizes the two sides in this war?

- Two cities—Babylon and Jerusalem
- Two nations—Egypt and Israel
- Wheat and weeds
- Fruitful vine/tree and withered vine/tree
- Saved and lost
- Faithful and wicked
- Righteous and unrighteous
- Good and evil
- Light and darkness
- Life and death or living and dead
- Healthy and diseased
- Lamps with oil and lamps without oil

topics@comeandreason.com

- Wise and foolish
- Two types of rulers—one who rises over and One who sacrifices self
- Two laws—design or imposed
- Two temples
- Two spirits—the Holy Spirit and false spirits
- Two paths
- Two gates

Why does the Bible use a city, Babylon, whose name means confusion, as a symbol for Satan's rebellious system?

> Make every effort to keep the unity of the Spirit through the bond of peace. There is one body and one Spirit— just as you were called to one hope when you were called—one Lord, one faith, one baptism; one God and Father of all, who is over all and through all and in all. (Ephesians 4:3-6 NIV84).

God is the Creator and there is only One God, who built the universe to operate in harmony with His one eternal design law of love, and all creation is connected to Him and is sustained through and by Him:

> For by him [Jesus] all things were created: things in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or powers or rulers or authorities; all things were created by him and for him. He is before all things, and in him all things hold together… For God was pleased to have all his fullness dwell in him, and through him to reconcile to himself all things, whether things on earth or things in heaven, by making peace through his blood, shed on the cross. (Colossians 1:16-17 & 19-20 NIV84).
> The Son is the radiance of God's glory and the exact representation of his being, sustaining all things by his powerful word (Hebrews 1:3 NIV84).

In light of these Bible verses, consider this Bible commentary by one of the founders of the SDA church. Do you agree with these insights? Do you believe they are in harmony with Scripture?

> Upon all created things is seen the impress of the Deity. Nature testifies of God. The susceptible mind, brought in contact with the miracle and mystery of the universe, cannot but recognize the working of infinite power. Not by its own inherent energy does the earth produce its bounties, and year by year continue its motion around the sun. An unseen hand guides the planets in their circuit of the heavens. A mysterious life pervades all nature—a life that sustains the unnumbered worlds throughout immensity, that lives in the insect atom which floats in the summer breeze, that wings the flight of the swallow and feeds the young ravens which cry, that brings the bud to blossom and the flower to fruit. (Homeward Bound 182).

> The same power that upholds nature, is working also in us. The same great laws that guide alike the star and the atom control human life. The laws that govern the heart's action, regulating the flow of the current of life to the body, are the laws of the mighty Intelligence that has the jurisdiction of the soul. From Him all life proceeds. Only in harmony with Him can be found its true sphere of action. For all the objects of His creation the condition is the same—a life sustained by receiving the life of God, a life exercised in harmony with the Creator's will. To transgress His law, physical, mental, or moral, is to place one's self out of harmony with the universe, to introduce discord, anarchy, ruin. (Homeward Bound 182).

There is One God who created all things and through Him all things hold together. There is one design law that emanates from God and holds together or sustains all things—it is the law of love. All God's distinct and various physical laws are manifestations of His law of love.

God dispenses, disperses, diffuses His own eternal energy to create and then sustain all reality. Only by being united with God, having His Spirit dwell within us, being conformed to harmony with Him do we have life. There is no life disconnected from God who is the source of life.

Sin is lawlessness, it is breaking the bonds of love and trust, severing the link with God who is the source of life, deviating from the design protocols that life is constructed to operate upon.

There are only two paths—

- Life and death
- Harmony with God or disharmony
- Unity or disunity
- Oneness or fragmentation

Once a person leaves the path of truth, of life, of oneness with God, and enters the path of satanic delusion, the path of lies, how many different lies, delusions, falsehoods, idols, errors are there? An infinite amount and that is why Satan's system is Babylon, the city of confusion, because lies always confuse, disconnect from reality, and result in ever increasing fragmentation and division.

Do you see as the truth about God has been pushed further and further out of the hearts and minds of people that the world is becoming more divided, the human condition is becoming more debased, and the level of fantasy, delusion, and crazy thinking has increased?

From our Unmasking the Beasts of Revelation 13 & 17 Magazine:

> "BABYLON THE GREAT" refers to the imposed-law system, the false system of methods that all earthly governments wield and that all false religions teach about God. Of all the nations in the Bible that Satan used to war against Israel, it was Babylon that created the first codified legal system (the code of Hammurabi). By embracing the lie of imposed law, the church teaches that God is like Satan in character and practices the beastly methods of coercion, resulting in Satan's character being reproduced in their hearts and minds. Thus, this > system is an abomination—as it destroys the image of God in people and places a beastly character where God's should be.

And that is why Christianity is currently divided into over 41,000 different groups arguing among themselves—because they have accepted the wine of Babylon, which is the idea that God's law functions like human law, imposed rules, and that lie results in massive confusion and division as people argue over the meaning of this or that.

Further, that lie led Dark Ages Christianity to become a beastly—it made up its own rules, then used the power of the state to fine, imprison, torture, and kill, those who refused to obey its edicts. It prosecuted crusades, it promoted all kinds of propaganda, it obstructed truth, locked the Bibles away from people, persecuted honest of heart people who had questions and were seeking truth, such as Galileo, Tyndale, Luther.

And the evolutionists have accepted the wine of Babylon, they believe the lie that the God of the Bible is this evil, satanic, abusive, coercive beast who is unworthy of our love, trust, and worship and therefore they have rejected the Bible and the true God and advanced their own false theories. And Satan has two false sides fighting back and forth, those claiming they believe in the God of the Bible, but present Him as a dictator who uses power to kill the disobedient, and the godless who claim all life originated on its own.

When we return to design law, it always leads to unity. People of different religions, or no religion at all, never argue over whether they will fall or float if they jump off a building, whether they will live or die if they tie a plastic bag over their head. They argue when they think of God's law as imposed—

- What is the legal (authorized, right) way to be baptized
- Who has the legal authority to baptize? A priest, ordained pastor, men women?
- Who has the legal right to conduct a communion ceremony or offer the Eucharist, only individuals ordained to the pastorate or priesthood by a denominational church system?
- What is the legal day to attend church?
- What is the right way to observe Sabbath?
- Or in the world today all the human laws passed and repealed by this group or that group all claiming that they are merely pursuing justice.

And on and on it goes…

So understand to the degree any religion, church, or organization teaches that God's law functions like human law, they are advancing Babylon and obstructing the unity that is inherent in our faith.

And that leads us to a sentence right in the middle of our quote from the lesson, the true people of God, the pure woman, the true church the lesson says "is not defiled with the corruption of false doctrines."

Certainly the wine of Babylon contains falsehoods, but is having the pure wine simply about having the right doctrinal list? Or is the pure wine symbolic of the pure life of Christ and thus the pure wine includes pure hearts and right spirits, godly motives and methods and principles in our practices, with unwavering loyalty to God in all we do?

The Jews who killed Christ had the right doctrinal list, but they were not pure in heart.

Salvation is not found in cognitive correctness of Bible facts or doctrines, it is found in purity of motive, principle, practice—purity of heart.

Lies believed break the circle of love and trust, so to the degree we believe lies about God then our ability to trust Him is undermined and fear and selfishness is inflamed. So, we must know the truth and the truth will set us free, but understand, it is the truth about God, not the truth about the Sabbath—people can have the right Bible Sabbath but the wrong god and murder the Lord of the Sabbath.

SUNDAY

Two Contrasting Systems—what do you understand these two systems to be?

> And the dragon was enraged with the woman, and he went to make war with the rest of her offspring, who keep the commandments of God and have the testimony of Jesus Christ. (Revelation 12:17 NKJV).

Who are these faithful people, the end-time children of the faithful woman, God's true people at the end of time?

They have two defining characteristics—they obey God's commandments and have the testimony of Jesus. What does this mean? Is it describing a denomination, so that one becomes a part of this end-time people simply by officially joining the right denomination? Or is it describing a group of people who have some qualities the set them apart from the enemies of God regardless of denomination?

What is the testimony of Jesus?

> For the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy. (Revelation 19:10 NKJV).

What does that mean? Some in the SDA church have argued it means that the end-time true church will be identified by having a prophet, someone who has the Biblical gift of prophecy. These same faithful and well-meaning Adventists then identify EG White as fitting that role. So they argue that the SDA church fits the description of these end-time faithful people, because the organized church teaches people to keep all ten commandment and EGW had the gift of prophecy.

What do you think? Is this what Revelation means?

Hmmm…a couple of questions—what about the Seventh-day Baptists, who keep all ten commandments and believe in the Bible? Is the Bible the gift of prophecy? Why or why not? For those who believe that EG White had the gift of prophecy, today all they have are her writings, which would mean they have the writings of a dead prophet. Isn't that what the Bible is, the writings of dead prophets?

So, is that what Revelation is speaking about, a denomination of people who keep all ten commandments and have the writings of a dead prophet? Or is Revelation speaking about something more than this?

Consider Revelation 19:10 from some other versions:

- For the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy. (Revelation 19:10 NKJV).
- For the testimony about Jesus is the spirit of prophecy. (Revelation 19:10 NET)
- For the truth that Jesus revealed is what inspires the prophets. (Revelation 19:10 GNT)
- Because the message about Jesus is the spirit that gives all prophecy. (Revelation 19:10 NCV).

What is the meaning of the phrase "the testimony of Jesus"? It is simple and straightforward—What testimony did Jesus give when He was here on Earth?

- "Anyone who has seen me has seen the Father." (John 14:9 NIV84).
- "You do not know me or my Father," Jesus replied. "If you knew me, you would know my Father also." (John 8:19 NIV84).
- "I have brought you glory on earth by completing the work you gave me to do… I have revealed you." (John 17: 4, 6 NIV84).

What is the testimony of Jesus? The truth about the Father, the truth about God! And that truth is the truth with which the Holy Spirit inspires all the prophets? The truth about God!

So my paraphrase of Revelation 19:10:

> For the testimony Jesus gave about his Father is the same as that which inspired the prophets. (Revelation 19:10 REM).

Thus, the identifier of the end-time people of God is that they will give the same testimony about God that Jesus gave, that:

- God is the Creator
- His laws are design laws
- God is for us
- God is not the cause of pain, suffering, and death.
- God is not legally required to inflict punishment for sin
- God does not need a legal payment of a human sacrifice to propitiate His wrath
- God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whoever believes in Him will not perish

- God is for us and not against us!

The true people of God will have the truth about God and give the testimony about God that Jesus gave, and that truth is what inspires all the prophets, or spokespersons for God.

Understand this clearly, God does not send His Holy Spirit to empower people to lie about Him. Thus, the Holy Spirit is the Spirit of truth, and the primary truth is the truth about God and God's end-time people give the same testimony about God that Jesus gave.

Ask,

- Does your denominational church present the Father in the same light that Jesus did? Or has your denominational church been infected with a pagan view of God, a Babylonian view, that presents God as a being who makes up rules and then uses external power to inflict punishment upon rule-breakers just like Nebuchadnezzar did when he threw Shadrach, Meshack, and Abednego into the furnace?
- Does your denominational church teach that God is the source of torment and death as just punishment for sin?
- Does your church teach that God needs an intercessor a mediator to plead with Him in order to prevent Him from lashing out with divine wrath to punish sinners?
- If your denomination teaches any of these ideas then it reveals that it is infected with the wine of Babylon. And taking that view of God to the world does not constitute the end-time remnant people or message of God.

So other versions of Revelation 12:17 read:

- Then the dragon was enraged at the woman and went off to make war against the rest of her offspring—those who obey God's commandments and hold to the testimony of Jesus. (Revelation 12:17 NIV84).
- The dragon was furious with the woman and went off to fight against the rest of her descendants, all those who obey God's commandments and are faithful to the truth revealed by Jesus. (Revelation 12:17 GNT)
- So the dragon became enraged at the woman and went away to make war on the rest of her children, those who keep God's commandments and hold to the testimony about Jesus. (Revelation 12:17 NET)

What about keeping the commandments, this is the second indicator of who are the end-time people of God? What does that mean?

Last week we explored at length the question of the Sabbath, does this mean that the people of God are identified by their observance of the Bible Sabbath of the fourth commandment, along with the other nine?

Or does keeping the commandments of God mean more than weekly rest from employment and faithfully attending church?

Some have interpreted this is a very legal way, a rules-oriented way, a way that is through the lens of Babylon, that God's law functions like human law, and thus make a legal religion that has the right rules and if you do the right rules then you are a member of God's end-time people. Is that what it means?

I believe it is very simple and straightforward. The true people of God, know God the Father and Son for themselves, personally and intimately, and thus give the same testimony about God Jesus gave, and because they know and trust God, God's design law principles of truth, love, and freedom are written upon their hearts and they live out God's law of love in how they treat others.

MONDAY

Read the third paragraph,

> Revelation 17:2 continues its dramatic portrayal: " 'And the inhabitants of the earth were made drunk with the wine of her fornication' " (NKJV). The symbolism of the pure juice of the grape is used throughout the New Testament to represent the untainted, pure blood of Christ poured out for our salvation on the cross (Matt. 26:27–29). In Luke 22:20, Jesus says, " 'This cup is the new covenant in My blood' " (NKJV). When the pure, new wine of the gospel is distorted, and the teachings of the Word of God are replaced with the teachings of human religious leaders, it becomes the "wine of Babylon." (See Matt. 15:9.) (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p.74)

The idea here is correct, the wine of Babylon represents corruption of the pure by an element that degrades it into something that confuses the mind and intoxicates the soul.

But it is not talking about ethanol; Wine is a symbol—the pure wine as a symbol in the NT replaces the OT symbol of blood. Remember, Jesus said,

> I tell you the truth, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you have no life in you. Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood has eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is real food and my blood is real drink. (John 6:52-55 NIV84)

And at the last supper Jesus replaced the sacrificial symbols of the flesh of the lamb and blood of the sacrifice, with bread and wine. What do these symbols mean in reality?

Jesus is the Word, the truth of God, made flesh (John 1:1, 14). And just as flesh and bread become building blocks of our physical bodies, so also the truth that Jesus brings becomes the building blocks of our beliefs, ideas, thoughts, which form our values, perspectives, worldview, ultimately leading us back to the knowledge of and trust in God.

Then when we trust God we open the heart and He pours His life giving presence of love into our hearts (Romans 5:5), and the Bible says that the life is in the blood (Leviticus 17:11) which is symbolically found in the pure wine.

Thus, the symbolism is teaching we must return to the truth and love of God, the flesh/blood, bread/wine.

But the false system has a false set of values, beliefs, and life-blood. Instead of the truth of God's character of love and design law principles, it is driven by the intoxicating lies and inspiring motives of fear, selfishness, power, and control manifest in imposed law and coercive enforcement. Zealots on missions for their god using the power of the state to enforce their way.

This corrupt, pagan, imposed law system, is the system the entire world has embraced and used to advance its way and what it calls justice. The entire world is drunk on the belief that if they can just get their people into political power then they can usher in a new age of prosperity and health by passing more laws and forcing more people to do what the state says. It is delusional…it can never happen and in fact the more government enforcement the more division, conflict, and ultimately the more destruction of the image of God in people.

The lesson points out that the false church is called a harlot or prostitute who commits adultery. What are your thoughts on this?

I will explore a little of this from some of the material in our magazine Unmasking the Beasts of Revelation:

WEDNESDAY

Read second paragraph,

> Christ is the solid foundation His church is built upon. His church is based on the teachings of His Word and guided by His Spirit. On the contrary, Babylon, as we have seen, is rooted in human-made teachings and traditions. Any religious leader who substitutes human opinions or traditions in the place of, or above, the revealed will of God in the Scriptures is simply fostering Babylonian confusion. (Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages p.76)

This is well said, the false system is a system based upon human law rather than God's. The problem is that most of the religious world argues over which law is God's and which is human tradition, rather than the type of law itself.

Many SDA's fail to realize that one can have the right form of baptism, the right Sabbath day, the right Bible, but if one presents those truths through human imposed law, then despite having the right doctrine, one still has the wrong law, and the wrong god, and advances Satan's kingdom—just like those who kept the right Sabbath 2000 years ago but crucified the Lord of the Sabbath.

This leads us to Thursday's lesson which is about idolatry,

THURSDAY

What is idolatry? Is it merely worshiping idols made of wood and stone? Or is Idolatry any form of false worship?

Can one worship a being they call Jesus Christ and be an idol worshiper?

Can a person worship a being they call something other than Jesus Christ and be faithful to the true God?

For instance, could a person worship a being they call El-Shaddai rather than Jesus Christ, or perhaps Joshua the Messiah, or Adonai, or Michael, or Bright and Morning Star?

Is it the word one uses when worshiping God that matters, or is who one understands God to be that matters?

When Jesus said in John 17:3 that life eternal is knowing God and the Son, does that mean knowing the right words to call them by, or does it mean knowing them?

For instance, think of your spouse, perhaps you have a nickname for your spouse—if a stranger overhears you using that nickname and learns it, and then calls your spouse by that nickname—does that mean they know your spouse or your spouse knows them?

This is what Jesus was trying to get people to understand when He said,

> Many will say to me on that day, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and in your name drive out demons and perform many miracles?' Then I will tell them plainly, 'I never knew you. Away from me, you evildoers!' (Matthew 7:22-23 NIV84).

They know the words "Jesus Christ" but they do not know Him personally, they don't know His character, methods, or principles. They use the name Jesus to advance a system of religion that functions like this world, that operates upon Satan's principles of coercive enforcement, despite the fact that they set up schools, orphanages, hospitals, and carry out exorcisms.

These people, doing things in the name of Jesus Christ, are idolaters.

God prophesied through Malachi that,

> "Before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes, I will send you the prophet Elijah. He will bring fathers and children together again" (Malachi 4:5, 6).

Elijah was sent to confront Baal worship in ancient Israel, and Malachi prophesies that the Elijah message will be needed again before the second coming of Christ.

Who was Baal that Israel worshiped and Elijah confronted?

- Baal was the son of El (i.e., El-ohim or El-Shaddai).
- He was the god of weather and was often called "Almighty" and "Lord of the Earth."
- Baal was the god who brought rain, thunder, lightning, who fertilized the earth, controlled the sun, and brought the harvest.
- Baal fought the great serpent leviathan
- Baal battled against Mot, the god of death.
- And most amazing of all, it was taught that Baal died in his battle with Mot and was resurrected to bring life to earth.

So what was the problem with worshiping a god who was the "husband and protector of Israel," the son of El, who controlled the weather, who brought rain, sunshine, and fertility, who blessed with a full harvest, who warred against the great serpent and death, who died and was resurrected to bring life to the earth? What was wrong with this god? What was Elijah opposing? What made Baal worship false?

One commentary states:

> "Determined to keep the people in deception, the priests of Baal continue to offer sacrifices to their gods and to call upon them night and day to refresh the earth. With costly offerings the priests attempt to appease the anger of their gods …" (Prophets and Kings, p. 124)

The Bible confirms this:

> "So the prophets prayed louder and cut themselves with knives and daggers, according to their custom, until blood flowed" (1 Kings 18:28).

Baal became:

- Zeus to the Greeks
- Jupiter to the Romans
- Thor to the Norse people
- Jesus Christ to those Christians who worship a punishing god who requires the blood of a human sacrifice to appease his anger to prevent him from using his power to destroy us.

This pagan, penal/legal system of theology, is modern day Baal worship and the message for this time, the message ordained by God is to call people out of this penal/legal pagan system back to worshiping the Creator whose laws are design laws and who sacrificed Himself to provide the remedy to cure us from our terminal sin condition.

Consider this historical quote:

> Thousands have a false conception of God and His attributes. They are as verily serving a false god as were the servants of Baal. Are we worshiping the true God as He is revealed in His Word, in Christ, in nature, or are we adoring some philosophical idol enshrined in His place? God is a God of truth. Justice and mercy are the attributes of His throne. He is a God of love, of pity and tender compassion. Thus He is represented in His Son, our Saviour. He is a God of patience and long-suffering. If such is the being whom we adore and to whose character we are seeking to assimilate, we are worshiping the true God. (Faith I Live By 59).

2023 2Q Three Cosmic Messages—Lesson 10
Satan's Final Deceptions

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

SABBATH

2023 2Q Three Cosmic Messages—Lesson 10
Satan's Final Deceptions

Last week the question was raised as to whether the SDA church has been infected with the Roman imperial law idea, that God's law functions like human law and therefore teaches that justice requires God to use His power to inflict pain, suffering, and death upon sinners to punish sin, and also upon Christ as our substitute.

In other words, has the idea that God is the source of inflicted pain, suffering, and death, the one from whom we need to be protected become part of the teachings found with SDA church and its publications? And if so, do we recognize that this is part of the wine of Babylon and to the degree we teach such things about God we fail to fulfill the purpose of the SDA movement, we fail to take the 3 Angels' Messages to the world.

Here are a few quotes documenting that this imperial Roman idea of imposed law, which makes God out to be the source of pain, suffering, and death is commonly taught within the institutional SDA church, and this idea stands in conflict with the message given to the church by EGW.

- For a loving God to maintain His justice and righteousness, the atoning death of Jesus Christ became 'a moral and legal necessity.' God's 'justice requires that sin be carried to judgment. God must therefore execute judgment on sin and thus on the sinner. In this execution the Son of God took our place, the sinner's place, according to God's will. Seventh-day Adventist Believe 27, p. 111

- Why did God the Father choose a cross to be the instrument of death? Why did He not choose to have Christ instantly beheaded or quickly run through with a spear or sword? Was God unjust in executing judgment on Christ with a cross when He could have done it by beheading, a noose, a sword, a gas chamber, a bolt of lightening, or a lethal injection? Whidden, W., Ministry Magazine, February 2007. http://www.ministrymagazine.org/archive/2007/February/sinners-in-the-hands-of-god.html

- One of the fundamental problems of the Moral Influence Theory is that it rejects the substitutionary nature of Christ's death. The idea that God had to kill the innocent instead of > the guilty in order to save us is considered a violation of justice. (emphasis mine) Rodriguez, A., Adventist World Review, December 2007; p. 40.

- The Hebrew wording in both Leviticus 9:24 and 10:2 was the same: 'and fire came out from before the Lord and consumed.' (9:24, NKJV). Consumed what? In the first case, the offering; in the other, the sinners. What a powerful representation of the plan of salvation. At the Cross, the 'fire from God,' the wrath of God, 'consumed' the offering, and that was Jesus. (Goldstein, C., Adult Sabbath School Bible Study Guide, 3 Quarter 2011, Pacific Press, p. 40).

- The fires of God's judgment burned themselves out on Him [Jesus], at Calvary, and all who are in Christ are safe forever beneath His wings. At the cross, Christ was judged as a condemned sinner so that we could be judged as righteous citizens of the heavenly kingdom. He was judged as a criminal so that we could be set free from the destructive fires of eternal loss, both figuratively and, yes, literally, as well. (Goldstein, C., Adult Sabbath School Bible Study Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages, Pacific Press, p. 46)

Who do these quotations say is the source of inflicted death upon Jesus, who took the sinner's place?

What does the Bible say?

> Surely he took up our infirmities and carried our sorrows, yet we considered him stricken by God, smitten by him, and afflicted. (Isaiah 53:4)

> Jesus speaking to those who would later crucify Him said, "You belong to your father, the devil, and you want to carry out your father's desire. He was a murderer from the beginning…" (John 8:44)

And what was the message that the SDA church was supposed to teach about this? This is a historical reference from one of the founders of the SDA church, found in The Desire of Ages:

> Satan saw that his disguise was torn away. His administration was laid open before the unfallen angels and before the heavenly universe. He had revealed himself as a murderer. By shedding the blood of the Son of God, he had uprooted himself from the sympathies of the heavenly beings. White, E.G., Desire of Ages, p. 761.

George Fifield, an SDA theologian presented the following in 1897 at a General Conference:

> We said, God is doing all this; God is killing him, punishing him, to satisfy his wrath, in order to let us off. That is the pagan conception of sacrifice. The Christian idea of sacrifice is this. Let us note the contrast. 'God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believes in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.' That is the Christian idea. Yes, sir. Indifference keeps, hatred keeps, selfishness keeps… But love, and love only, sacrifices, gives freely, gives itself, gives without counting the cost; gives because it > is love. That is sacrifice, whether it is the sacrifice of bulls and goats, or of him who is the Lamb of God. It is the sacrifice that is revealed throughout the entire Bible. But the pagan idea of sacrifice is just the opposite. It is that some god is always offended, always angry, and his wrath must be propitiated in some way. (1897 General Conference Daily Bulletin Sermon Series number 1).

These eternal truths about God are not restricted to the Adventist people or movement, non-SDA Christians have also understood this:

Oswald Chambers wrote:

> The Bible does not say that God punished the human race for one man's sin, but that the nature of sin, namely, my claim to my right to myself, entered into the human race through one man. But it also says that another Man took upon Himself the sin of the human race and put it away — an infinitely more profound revelation…
> > Sin is something I am born with and cannot touch— only God touches sin through redemption. It is through the Cross of Christ that God redeemed the entire human race from the possibility of damnation through the heredity of sin. God nowhere holds a person responsible for having the heredity of sin, and does not condemn anyone because of it. Condemnation comes when I realize that Jesus Christ came to deliver me from this heredity of sin, and yet I refuse to let Him do so. From that moment I begin to get the seal of damnation. "This is the condemnation [and the critical moment], that the light has come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light . . . " (John 3:19) (Oswald Chambers, My Utmost for His Highest, http://utmost.org).

And this is the quote from EGW that Linda was referring to last week:

> While God has desired to teach men that from His own love comes the Gift which reconciles them to Himself, the archenemy of mankind has endeavored to represent God as one who delights in their destruction. Thus the sacrifices and the ordinances designed of Heaven to reveal divine love have been perverted to serve as means whereby sinners have vainly hoped to propitiate, with gifts and good works, the wrath of an offended God. (E.G. White, Prophets and Kings, Pacific Press Publishing Assoc., 1917, p. 685).

Questions or comments about this?

With all of this in mind, let us turn to our lesson, which is entitled Satan's Final Deceptions—do you think Satan's final deceptions have anything to do with how people understand God's law, and therefore God's character?

SABBATH

Read second paragraph,

> As we have seen, Revelation warns us that the "inhabitants of the earth" will drink a deadly potion called the "wine of Babylon." There are false doctrines and teachings that, in the end, will lead only to death. However, the world is not left without the antidote, the protection, against this spiritual poison: the three angels' messages. (SDA Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages, p. 80)

No question the saved will embrace the truth and the lost reject the truth and believe falsehoods—but is this speaking only about facts or is this speaking of living truth, truth about functional reality?

For instance, can someone be saved if they believe that the Earth is flat, or that there was not a worldwide Flood as described in Genesis but only a local flood?

My point is that the saved will love the truth and the lost will not, but does that mean the saved know all truth on all subjects and don't believe anything incorrectly?

Then the truth essential for salvation must have a specific focus, must be a particular type of truth—and what is that truth?

> Now this is eternal life: that they may know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom you have sent (John 17:3 NIV84).

> For though we live in the world, we do not wage war as the world does. The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. We demolish arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and we take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ (2 Corinthians 10:3-5 NIV84).

What is the truth we must know in order to be saved? The truth about God—but what kind of truth is this? Is it facts—knowing that God created the Earth and humans, knowing that there was a Flood, knowing that Jesus died as our Savior, knowing that the seventh day is the Sabbath of God. Or is it a type of knowledge that goes beyond facts? Doesn't Satan know all those facts?

> Many will say to me on that day, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and in your name drive out demons and perform many miracles?' Then I will tell them plainly, 'I never knew you. Away from me, you evildoers!' (Matthew 7:22-23 NIV84).

Who did these people claim to be worshiping and ministering in the name of? Jesus—they knew about Jesus, but they did not know Jesus.

So, the truth we must know is not merely factual knowledge, it is experiential knowledge, we must know God personally, for ourselves.

The lesson focuses our attention upon two doctrines, that we must know the truth about the doctrines in order not to be deceived, and those two doctrines are spiritualism and Sunday sacredness.

What are your thoughts about this?

Can a person know the truth about both these doctrines and many others and still not know God? Will a person be saved by knowing true doctrines if they don't know God? Can a person be saved if they know God but believe something wrong about some doctrine?

What is the importance of doctrine then? Doctrines are only valuable to the degree the enlighten us about God and help restore our trust in God. Another way to say this is that the primary purpose of doctrinal truth is to reveal God to us.

The right way to understand every doctrine is to ask, What does this doctrine reveal about God? All our doctrines should be conceptualized like spokes on a wheel, God is the central hub from which all truth originate and following all truth lead back to God.

But sadly, in much of Christianity, including the SDA church, various teachings have been set up as stand-alone doctrines established with proof texts and to be believed on their own separated from what they tell us about God.

Such a way of pursuing truth leads to spiritual narcissism and egotism, we have the truth, our doctrines are right and yours are wrong. It also leads to division rather than unity, people argue and fight over this meaning or that text. And it leads to fear and anxiety rather than peace and joy—fear that we might be missing some important truth, or fact, or idea because when our doctrines are separated from the truth about God then our security is found in having the right doctrines, creeds, fundamental beliefs, not in having a trust relationship with the right God.

But, the lesson is not wrong in that Satan's end-time deception will include spiritualism and what Sunday sacredness represents, but if we don't identify the underlying root—i.e. connect our doctrines back to the truth about God, we very well may have the right factual truth, like the state of the dead or the weekly Sabbath, but crucify the Lord of the Sabbath like the Jews did 2000 years ago.

So consider what spiritualism and Sunday sacredness, if true, would say about God, i.e. what kind of God would God be if they were true?

SUNDAY

The lesson title for the day is taken from Proverbs 14:12:

> There is a way that seems right to a man, but in the end it leads to death (Proverbs 14:12 NIV84).

Can you think of a some doctrine, method, belief, or practice that seems right to almost every human being and has greater acceptance, but actually leads to death, than the belief in "law and order" imposed laws with imposed punishments?

Consider Isaiah 55:6-9:

> Seek the LORD while he may be found; call on him while he is near. Let the wicked forsake his way and the evil man his thoughts. Let him turn to the LORD, and he will have mercy on him, and to our God, for he will freely pardon. "For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways," declares the LORD. "As the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways and my thoughts than your thoughts" (Isaiah 55:6-9 NIV84).

Is it the way of human law to freely pardon? Or does human law require punishment be inflicted in order for justice to be satisfied?

And do most Christians teach that God freely pardons or that God requires a legal payment, someone to die to pay for their sins?

This is how the world will be deceived by the beast of Revelation—it will come with coercive power to do justice, to enforce its laws while people may disagree on what are the right laws to enforce, they all agree that justice requires law-breaking to be punished.

Read third paragraph,

> People are often told to follow their own conscience in order to determine for themselves what is right or wrong, good or evil, and then live accordingly. But the Scripture says that we are all sinners, all corrupted (Jer. 17:9, Rom. 3:9–18), and so to trust our own sentiments is almost a guaranteed way to, sooner or later, get it wrong and even to do wrong. A lot of evil has been perpetrated through the ages by people utterly convinced of the rightness of their cause. That is, they followed the "way that seems right" to them. (SDA Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages, p. 81)

What do you think of this? Is something not quite right in this paragraph?

Do you understand that conscience and sentiments are the same?

In Romans 14 Paul is discussing disagreement about various religious observations, foods to eat, days of worship etc. and Paul says,

> One man considers one day more sacred than another; another man considers every day alike. Each one should be fully convinced in his own mind. (Romans 14:5 NIV84).

Paul then goes on to conclude his argument with the following, and consider this in light of following our conscience:

> So whatever you believe about these things keep between yourself and God. Blessed is the man who does not condemn himself by what he approves. But the man who has doubts is condemned if he eats, because his eating is not from faith; and everything that does not come from faith is sin (Romans 14:22-23 NIV84).

What does this mean?

Are our conscience and our sentiments the same?

No, our conscience is a mental faculty that is sensitive to the movements of the Spirit of God. And the Spirit of God works upon the conscience to convict of sin, to instill a desire for the things of God, a longing for truth, love, joy, peace. The Holy Spirit works upon the conscience not only to convict of sin, but to also convict of duties of various kinds.

Jesus, spoke of the conscience as our spiritual eye, the part of our minds that is sensitive to the light of truth, when He said,

> "The eye is the lamp of the body. If your eyes are good, your whole body will be full of light. But if your eyes are bad, your whole body will be full of darkness. If then the light within you is darkness, how great is that darkness!" (Matthew 6:22-23 NIV84).

But just like our physical eyes, our consciences can become diseased or even blind.

Thus, God never intends for us to make decisions with conscience alone. God has provided another faculty to work in conjunction with our conscience and that is our reason.

God says,

> "Come now, let us reason together. "Though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they are red as crimson, they shall be like wool" (Isaiah 1:18 NIV84).

The lesson is correct if we allow our consciences to lead us disconnected from our reasoning ability, disconnected from Scriptural truth, then we can be lead astray. However, if we reason without a conscience we are likewise in danger of being led astray into narcissism, pride, arrogance, and all types of sinful self-justification—even under the guise of religion. Just consider those religious leaders who crucified Christ.

MONDAY

Monday focuses on immortality of the soul.

The basic question is this: When God created human beings in Eden, did God create them with some aspect of their being that can never die, that is immortal, or did God create them mortal and eternal life is only possible by receiving the life of God and staying connected with our Creator?

The belief that some part of human individuality, whether the soul or spirit, is immortal and can never die, is the root of spiritualism.

Of course, we could take the approach of arguing the evidences from the Bible that prove the doctrine one way or the other, like:

- God said that if they eat of the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil they would die
- Satan said they would not die (Genesis 3:4-5)
- "He must not be allowed to reach out his hand and take also from the tree of life and eat, and live forever." So the LORD God banished him from the Garden of Eden to work the ground from which he had been taken. After he drove the man out, he placed on the east side of the Garden of Eden cherubim and a flaming sword flashing back and forth to guard the way to the tree of life. (Genesis 3:22-24 NIV84).
- "For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life" (John 3:16 NIV84).
- "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 6:23).

And there are so many more texts, so we could approach it this way. But if we do, we have created a stand-alone doctrine about the mortality of the soul.

How do we connect this doctrine to the truth about God? Having cited the Biblical evidence for the mortality of the soul, and that immortality is a gift from God to the righteous, we need to consider the more important question. What do these two views mean for the kind of person God is?

If God did create Adam and Eve in Eden, with some aspect of their personhood that can never die, what would that mean about God?

Remember the current facts of humanity that most of Christianity teaches—

- they teach that we are born in sin
- yet we are born with immortal souls

- and that some people are born in situations in which they are abused as children, never have the gospel presented to them, and die never having come to Christ
- But despite living only briefly with a sin condition they did not choose, and having never had the gospel presented to them, God still sends their immortal souls to hell to be eternally tortured.

What does this belief say about God if true?

- Does God have foreknowledge or not?
- If God does have foreknowledge and foresaw human sin and all humans, after Adam's sin, would be born sinners and that billions would die without accepting salvation, and yet He created them with immorality knowing they would suffer for all eternity for a condition they didn't choose to have themselves and never being offered the remedy—what kind of god would that be?
- If God does not have foreknowledge and gave them immortality because He didn't see or anticipate the sin problem, what would that say about God? He is naïve or foolish or unwise.
- Either way, if we accept the idea that God created human beings with immortality in Eden, it not only contradicts the evidence of Scripture, but makes God out to be completely untrustworthy, either because God is abusive and vindictive foreknowing what would happen and created it to be this way anyway, or He is untrustworthy because He is powerful but foolish and makes bad choices.

So the primary issue of the end-time lie about immortality of the soul is one about God, who God is. Is He trustworthy or not. That is the primary issue. Secondary issues are such things as spiritualism.

If what I am saying is true, then how do we understand passages from Scripture like:

> Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord: (For we walk by faith, not by sight:) We are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord (2 Corinthians 5:6–8 KJV).

If you haven't read our magazine The Wedding of Christ to His Bride: Preparing the Church for the Second Coming I encourage you to do so. We answer this question in great detail in that magazine.

But let's review that answer now.

Human beings are made of three parts, body, soul, spirit. And to be functional, operational, or actively living, all three components must be present.

A computer makes a great example for us, because to be operational a computer also needs three parts all together: hardware, software, and an energy source. Having only one or two of these three will result in a computer that will not operate. All three are required for actual functioning.

In a similar way, to have an operational (functioning) human being, it requires all three components—body, soul, and spirit:

- The Greek word for body is σῶμα [soma] and is analogous to a computer's hardware, including the CPU—the physical machine, including our brain.
- The Greek word for soul is ψυχή [psuche], from which we get psyche, as in *psych*iatry and *psych*ology, and it means our individuality—our heart, unique personhood, character, identity. It is analogous to a computer's software (including database/datasets/data).
- And the Greek word for spirit is πνεῦμα [pneuma], from which we get pneumonia or pneumatic, and it means wind, air, or breath—as in the breath of life. This is our energy source—the life-energy originating from God.

When a computer runs out of power, what state does it go into? It "sleeps." This is exactly how the Bible describes those who die the first death: they "sleep," awaiting the resurrection (Psalm 7:5, 13:3; Matthew 9:24; John 11:12, 13; 1 Thessalonians 4:13).

At the first death:

- The body returns to dust (Genesis 3:19, Psalm 44:25, Ecclesiastes 3:20);
- The spirit—life energy—returns to God who gave the breath of life (Ecclesiastes 12:7);
- But what about the soul (psuche/psyche)—the individuality, the software? Where does that go?

Paul said is goes to God—but what does that mean?

If someone stole your laptop and was threatening to destroy it but you had a perfect copy of the data backed up on a cloud server, then you might say, "I'm not afraid of the one who can destroy my laptop (hardware/body/soma) but cannot destroy the software [soul/psuche]." This is like what Jesus described in Matthew 10:28 when He spoke about those who might kill us for our faith in Him.

Why is it that the killing of the body cannot destroy the soul? Because the soul is our individuality, our unique personhood, and it is distinct from the body. And Paul says our individuality goes to God, stored on the heavenly servers, known as the Lamb's book of life, until the resurrection, when God brings those individualities who are asleep with Him and downloads them into new bodies (hardware) and they live again.

Paul brilliantly describes this very process:

> Brothers, we do not want you to be ignorant about those who fall asleep, or to grieve like the rest of men, who have no hope. We believe that Jesus died and rose again and so we believe that God will bring with Jesus those who have fallen asleep in him. The Lord himself will come down from heaven, with a loud command, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet call of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first. After that, we who are still alive and are left will be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. And so we will be with the Lord forever (1 Thessalonians 4:13–18 NIV84).

Did you notice that the very same righteous dead who arise out of the ground are also coming down out of heaven with Christ—and that they are described as coming from heaven in a state of sleep? How can this be? Because their souls/individualities/software, which are stored on the heavenly "servers," are coming down with Christ to be downloaded into their new immortal bodies during the resurrection at the second coming! Jesus, the Builder of our tripartite beings, understood this, proclaiming:

I am the resurrection and the life. He who believes in me will live, even though he dies; and whoever lives and believes in me will never die (John 11; 25, 26 NIV84).

The righteous may sleep, but they never die. Their individualities are safe with Christ in heaven!

So, now let's talk about the end-time deception. Have you ever heard that one of Satan's end time deceptions will be through getting people to communicate with the dead and we can be protected from this deception if we know that the dead are asleep waiting resurrection?

So, our safety is knowing the right doctrine, in this case the truth about the state of the dead. Hmmm…while I agree it is wise to know the truth about human nature as we have outlined today, I want to give some examples of how people can still be deceived by demons masquerading as the dead even though they know the truth about human mortality. How might that happen? Here are a couple of ways:

- A fallen angel manifests in real physical form that you can touch but appears as a human being—angels can appear in the form of a human (Genesis 18-19). This fallen angel claims to be the prophet Isaiah who has a special end time message. A person who believes the truth about the state of the dead objects, and states, "You are dead, sleeping in the grave until the resurrection." But the demon smiles and kindly says, "You know your Bible. I was sleeping in death until Jesus' resurrection. I am one of the first fruits raised from the dead and taken to heaven when Jesus arose. And am described as one of the 24 elders sitting on thrones in Revelation. And now He has sent me to warn you…"

- You see some being claiming to be your deceased love one. They have the same mannerisms, turn of the head, smile, and knowledge of previous interactions with them. But knowing your Bible you say, "The dead sleep in the grave so you can't be my departed loved one, be gone!" But they gently say, "Sweetheart, you are right, the dead sleep in the grave. I am not from your present time. Jesus controls time, and He has opened a portal in time and asked me to send a message to you today. Do you remember that day on our 32 anniversary when I seemed strange. That was the day Jesus came to me and asked me to have this conversation with you. I am alive, in my body, but it is 1986 and Jesus wanted me to tell you that in 2023 next week, you are going to face this…."

- You see a non-corporeal, non-physical entity speaking and claiming to be Jeremiah sent from God with and end-time message. You object that the Bible teaches the dead sleep in the grave until the resurrection, so this disembodied entity must be a demon. But the being smiles gently and says, "Well done for knowing your Bible and the truth about the state of human mortality. I was dead and was sleeping in the grave, but I was resurrected in my body when Jesus arose and am one of the first fruits taken to heaven. I am speaking to you know from heaven and am in my physical body. What you are seeing is a quantum projection. So you are quite right that I am not there physically, I am here physically, but am projecting myself across the quantum network and links that God has built His universe upon. You are a Seventh-day Adventist aren't you? These links I am using were described by EG White you can find it in her book Evangelism page 93, she wrote:

> "The striking feature of divine operations is the accomplishment of the greatest work that can be done in our world by very simple means. It is God's plan that every part of His government shall depend on every other part, the whole as a wheel within a wheel, working with entire harmony. He moves upon human forces, causing His Spirit to touch invisible chords, and the vibration rings to the extremity of the universe. (Evangelism 93).

Why am I describing these types of events to you? Because knowing the true doctrine about the state of the dead is not enough to protect people from being deceived by demons impersonating the dead, what is necessary to be protected? To know the truth about God, both intellectually and spiritually—to know God for ourselves, not to trust in the facts of a doctrine, but to know God and understand His character, His design laws, His methods, what sin is that it is a break in God's design laws for life, and how God heals that break, and why death comes. We must know reality for ourselves and when we do then we are protected from deception. Then even if Satan appears as an angel of light we will not be duped because we know reality, the truth about God and how His kingdom functions for ourselves.

TUESDAY

The lesson focuses on the historical facts of how Sunday became a day of Christian veneration, documenting that such a change is not found in Scripture, but in the history of Rome. Constantine passed a law recognizing the veneration of Sunday, and later when the Roman church did the same.

It is a well-established historical fact that there is no Biblical basis for this change in the day. If you are a Christian from a non-SDA denomination, go to any theological scholar from your denomination and ask them. They all know that the Bible does not teach Sunday sacredness, that it is a tradition of the church, established by Rome. The argument is that it honors the resurrection of Christ, but that is tradition, it is not Scriptural. Jesus gave the communion ceremony as a way to honor His resurrection until He returns.

topics@comeandreason.com

The Roman church doesn't deny it, in fact it publishes this fact:

> "The church after changing the day of rest form the Jewish Sabbath or seventh-day of the week to the first, made the third commandment refer to Sunday as the day to be kept holy as the Lord's day." Catholic Encyclopedia, Vol. 4, p. 153.

Daniel 7 prophesied that a power would arise and seek to change God's law—but God's law cannot be changed because God's law is the design law that reality is built upon.

The Roman church not only changed the fourth commandment, but also deleted the second about images and split the 10th to keep the number at 10.

But all of this is a diversion, a distraction that keeps people from seeing the real corruption, the true change made in how people understand and believe about God's law. And that is the idea of the law itself is imposed law, this is the change that Rome brought to the world and almost all Christians accept.

What church committee ever voted that its members don't have to breathe on bad pollution days? Why not? Because they know they cannot change such laws.

So what does it mean in regard to how church leaders understand the type of law that God's law is, if they think it can be changed? The fact that the church leaders voted to change God's law reveals that they first accepted the lie that God's law functions like human law, like Roman law, imposed rules which are subject to change.

While the SDA church has rejected the change to the commandment and returned to the Bible Sabbath, it has not fully thrown off the lie that that says God's law is imposed rules requiring God to impose punishments.

Thus, the Sunday issue at the end of time is not primarily about the day itself, but what the day represents. Sunday sacredness represents the idea that God's law and government work like human law and government and can be changed.

And when we connect that idea of law to what it says about God, it means that such a being is an arbitrary deity who makes up rules and that justice is the the infliction of pain, suffering, and death.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson title for the day is A Call to Faithfulness—what does that mean?

Does that mean:

- Faithful to the Sabbath?
- Faithful to the SDA church or some other denomination?
- Or faithful to Jesus?

Does faithfulness to Jesus mean that we all have the exact same beliefs?

Does it mean we have the same methods of truth, love, and liberty in how we live and treat others?

The lesson states the demons work their miracles to deceive—yes they do, for what goal? The goal of Satan and his demonic agents is to destroy the image of God in humans and put Satan's image where God's should be.

In other words, the goal of Satan is for us to be like him in our character attitudes, practices, methods, and principles.

Why would Satan's agents use miracles to deceive? Because they don't have truth, so Satan uses whatever tactic he can to get people to stop pursuing truth. The truth always leads back to God.

What tactics turn minds away from truth?

- Lies that are believed
- Emotions/desires/lusts
- Miracles that turn the mind away from investigating truth
- Spiritualism in all its forms—pursuit of knowledge without the investigation of evidence or use of reason (Fortune tellers, crystal balls, seances, palm reading, or any other type)
- Faith without evidence—believe because someone said so
- Authority, believing because of the position, office, charisma, or power of the one who said it
- Entertainment that distracts
- Overwork and responsibilities that distract
- Mind altering substances that injure the brain
- Others?

THURSDAY

Read second paragraph,

> As we already have seen (but worth repeating), many of God's people are in religious organizations that have compromised biblical teachings. They do not understand the truths of Scripture. God's loving appeal is straightforward: " 'Come out of her, my people, lest you share in her sins, and lest you receive of her plagues' " (Rev. 18:4, NKJV). (SDA Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages, p. 85)

Could this include people in every single Christian denomination?

Have I demonstrated at the beginning of class today that within the SDA church are teachings that compromise biblical truth?

When Jesus was here 2000 years ago, were there things being taught in the Judaism of His day that were unbiblical and wrong? Did that mean that the Jewish nation and system was not called by God and not blessed by God?

No, it means that Satan was actively working to undermine the truths of God within the organization where God is working. The same happens in the church today. Wherever God is working Satan is actively working to corrupt and undermine.

So, just because we can document within Christianity as a whole and the SDA church specifically, that there are errors that have entered, that does NOT mean the organization is not called by God to fulfill a mission for God.

2023 2Q Three Cosmic Messages—Lesson 13
Ablaze with God's Glory

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read memory text:

> "After these things I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority, and the earth was illuminated with his glory." (Revelation 18:1 NKJV).

What does this text mean?

What is God's glory?

Turn to WEDNESDAY's lesson and read the fourth and fifth paragraphs:

> God's glory is His character. The earth will be filled with the glory of God when we are filled with the love of God and our characters are changed by redeeming love.
> Revealing His love in our personal lives reveals His glory, His character, to the world. The last message to be proclaimed to a world engulfed in spiritual darkness carried by three angels in the midst of heaven is " 'Fear God and give glory to Him' " (Rev. 14:7, NKJV). (SDA Adult SS Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages, p. 108)

This is well said. How would you describe how we reveal His glory, His love to the world when the world is doing evil?

When did Jesus bring the greatest glory to the Father?

What did Jesus mean when He prayed this to His Father right before the events of crucifixion weekend:

> "Father, the time has come. Glorify your Son, that your Son may glorify you. For you granted him authority over all people that he might give eternal life to all those you have given him. Now this is eternal life: that they may know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom you have sent. I have brought you glory on earth by completing the work you gave me to do. And now, Father, glorify me in your presence with the glory I had with you before the world began. I have revealed you to those whom you gave me out of the world." (John 17:1-6 NIV84).

If God's glory is His character, what does this text mean? How was Jesus going to be glorified by the Father? Is this speaking of the display of heavenly light at the transfiguration?

It doesn't seem likely that it means the transfiguration, as John's narrative does not allow for that possibility. In John's narrative, it says:

> When he had finished praying, Jesus left with his disciples and crossed the Kidron Valley. On the other side there was an olive grove, and he and his disciples went into it. Now Judas, who betrayed him, knew the place, because Jesus had often met there with his disciples. So Judas came to the grove, guiding a detachment of soldiers and some officials from the chief priests and Pharisees. (John 18:1-3 NIV84).

So when Jesus prayed that the time had come for the Father to glorify the Son so that the Son could glorify the Father—what happened, what are the very next events that happened and what does it mean for our understanding of God's glory?

Jesus is treated unjustly by the religious and political powers of the world.

- His own people reject Him
- His closest friends abandon Him
- His church turns on Him
- He is lied about
- The judicial system is perverted and perjury is perpetrated against Him
- The Jewish officials break their own laws conducting a court hearing illegally at night, the High Priest rends his garments and acts the role of accuser instead of defender
- The religious leaders had Him beaten and mocked
- They solicited the pagan authorities to reject, convict, and crucify Him
- He was publicly stripped, humiliated, tortured, and repeatedly tempted to use His power to prove His authority

But what did Jesus do? John 13 tells us that Jesus had been given all power. Jesus told Peter He could call 12 legions of angels to rescue Him—Jesus was not powerless, but what did Jesus do with the power at His disposal?

Is there any glory being revealed by these actions? What is the glory that Jesus asked the Father to bring to Him so that Jesus could glorify the Father with the glory He had before the world began?

What did Jesus do after His prayer? He fully, completely, totally, lived out God's love. He chose self-sacrificial love instead of so-called human "justice" of using power to punish sin, evil, and injustice. He refused to defend Himself. He refused to use power to protect self. He chose to do what was best for others.

- He says speaks words of encouragement, hope, and promise to a dying thief

- He ensures His mother is cared for
- He forgives those who are abusing and crucifying Him

He administered God's justice of love and refused to use power to administer the justice of imposed law. God is love and He loves His enemies, prays for those who persecute Him, blesses those who assault Him. He reveals a glory, a beauty, a righteousness, a truth that is beyond human imagining, it is the reality of who our Creator God is—God is love.

And when is such love most fully, clearly, powerfully, perfectly revealed—when all things are going well, when everyone is doing right, when one is receiving all praise, or in the face of opposition, false accusation, injustice, and abuse?

And we are called, as the world decays into chaos, into satanic delusion and control, into the worst forms of corruption, perversion, and injustice all under the guise of pursuing justice, to give glory to God. How do we do this?

By living out God's character of love in how we treat others. We are to be truth bearers by being living embodiments of God's love and design law methods.

- We will bless those who curse us.
- We will forgive those who wrong us.
- We will love our enemies so that we may be sons and daughters of our Father in heaven
- We will be filled with the Spirit of God so that the character of God will be manifest in contrast to the most vile, corrupt, destructive, evil the world has seen.

As Paul wrote to the Philippians:

> If you have any encouragement from being united with Christ, if any comfort from his love, if any fellowship with the Spirit, if any tenderness and compassion, then make my joy complete by being like-minded, having the same love, being one in spirit and purpose. Do nothing out of selfish ambition or vain conceit, but in humility consider others better than yourselves. Each of you should look not only to your own interests, but also to the interests of others.
> Your attitude should be the same as that of Christ Jesus:
> Who, being in very nature God, > did not consider equality with God something to be grasped,
> but made himself nothing, > taking the very nature of a servant,
> being made in human likeness.
> And being found in appearance as a man, > he humbled himself > and became obedient to death—> even death on a cross!
> Therefore God exalted him to the highest place and gave him the name that is above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow,

in heaven and on earth and under the earth, and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father. (Philippians 2:1–11 NIV84).

What does it mean to be in awe of God and give Him glory?

The lesson links the glory of God's character to the third angel's message. Let's read that message and consider, do you find God's character of love in this message? How do you share this message in a way that uplifts Jesus' self-sacrifice without inciting fear?

> A third angel followed them and said in a loud voice: "If anyone worships the beast and his image and receives his mark on the forehead or on the hand, he, too, will drink of the wine of God's fury, which has been poured full strength into the cup of his wrath. He will be tormented with burning sulfur in the presence of the holy angels and of the Lamb. And the smoke of their torment rises for ever and ever. There is no rest day or night for those who worship the beast and his image, or for anyone who receives the mark of his name." This calls for patient endurance on the part of the saints who obey God's commandments and remain faithful to Jesus. (Revelation 14:9-12 NIV84)

If you haven't read our Final Message of Mercy to the World: The Three Angels magazine yet, I encourage you to do so, because we explain these messages in great detail showing that they do in fact reveal God's character of love.

But a shortened review of this magazine is:

Step One: Remember this is a three step or three stage/step message. It is a message that builds with each subsequent message. I just read the third message of the series of three. It cannot be properly understood until the two preceding messages are properly understood. So step one is start with the first angel's message, understand it, and the go to the second, understand it, and then to the third.

Step Two: Determine, before attempting to decipher the messages, what law lens one understands the Bible through. If one assumes and believes God's law and government work like human law and government, imposed rules requiring imposed penalties, then all of Scripture is twisted out of its true light into a mockery of heaven, into a perverted satanic delusional alternate fantasy that is not real. In order to properly understand any of Scripture one must reject the human law model and return to worshiping God as Creator and understanding His laws are the laws that reality exists and operates upon. Design law.

Step Three: Determine your rules for interpretation, the Bible interprets itself, God's character is love and no interpretations will be permitted that place God in a character other than love, as Jesus revealed Him to be. And God's law is the design law of love and no interpretations will be allowed that violate God's design law of love.

Step Four: Humbly ask the Holy Spirit to enlighten your mind to truth, and acknowledge your finiteness and admit your eagerness to be corrected by the Spirit of Truth and led into all truth.

Then start with the first angel's message and study it, comparing its message with the rest of what Scripture has already revealed. It is okay to read commentaries, it is recommended to study with other humble people who are interested in growing in the truth, but then compare the various parts, work on decoding the symbols, ensure the conclusions always conform to the truth and principles of God's character as revealed by Jesus and His revealed design law methods.

The first angel's message:

> Then I saw another angel flying in midair, and he had the eternal gospel to proclaim to those who live on the earth—to every nation, tribe, language and people. He said in a loud voice, "Fear God and give him glory, because the hour of his judgment has come. Worship him who made the heavens, the earth, the sea and the springs of water." (Revelation 14:6-7 NIV84).

The Message of the Three Angels starts with what? The Eternal Gospel!

What is the Eternal Gospel? The eternal good news?

The common answer is that Jesus died for our salvation. And let us be clear. It is absolutely true that Jesus died for our salvation, that Jesus is the only way or means of salvation, that no human can be saved without Jesus, and that this news is certainly incredibly good news. There is no doubt about this. But the question is, is this truth, is this good news about what Jesus has done for us, the eternal gospel, or is this good news the result of and outworking of the eternal gospel?

Well, let's ask a few questions and see if the answers to our questions help clarify and bring to light the eternal gospel.

- What is the Good News that has been true, eternally true; true in eternity past and future?
    - Is the good news that Jesus died as our Savior eternally good news, i.e. did the angels in heaven, when Lucifer began his rebellion have the good news of Jesus' incarnation, sinless human life, self-sacrificial death, resurrection, and ascension to help them?
    - But is there eternal good news that was available to them in eternity past back when Lucifer rebelled that had they clung to it would have protected them from being deceived?
- What is the news that the universe has doubted but is foundational to life, health, and happiness?
    - When Lucifer rebelled did his lies cause some truth to be doubted and some reality to be set aside for an alternate view that Satan was advancing? And Satan's alternate view resulted in all the pain and suffering that sin brings, thus was some there good news that Satan's view was wrong?

- What is the news that dispels the lies of Satan and wins us back to trust in God, and also would have protected the angels in eternity past?
    - Was that good news that Jesus died as our Savior—or again, was Jesus' death the outworking of that eternal good news?
- What is the central target of Satan's lies, upon which his rebellion has been built, and thus, the eternal good news is that Satan is wrong?
    - Was the central target of Satan's lies about humans or about God?
- What is the central news that Jesus said He came to complete and had accomplished?
    - What was it Jesus prayed right before His crucifixion that we read already this morning? That He finished the work God gave Him to do He had revealed the truth about the Father.

Paul wrote:

> For though we live in the world, we do not wage war as the world does. The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. We demolish arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and we take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ. (2Corinthians 10:3-5 NIV84)

The Eternal Good News is the truth about God's character of love!

- "God is love" 1John 4:8
- God is not the person Satan alleges
- The eternal good news is what Jesus revealed "Anyone who has seen me, has seen the Father" John 14:9
- Life eternal is knowing God John 17:3

If we don't understand the good news about God, His character and methods of love, how reality works as God built it work, then we will misunderstand everything else!

And what idea directly impacts and determines how we conceive of and understand God's character? How we understand His law!

If we understand and believe that God's law is imposed rules like created beings make up, then we automatically, and without any ability to stop it, conclude that God, in order to be just, must use His power to punish rule breakers. Justice is viewed as inflicted punishment and God is viewed the source of inflicted pain, torment, and death rather than the source of life and salvation. In other words, people believe something needs to be done to God to protect us from God, rather than something be done to us to heal and cleanse us from sin and restore us to rightness with God.

The imposed law legal/penal view creates a grotesque mischaracterization of God that makes God out to be like Satan has alleged. And the final message of mercy to the world, the message of the three angels exposes this lie and calls people to advance the eternal gospel of God's character of love and His design law of love by worshiping Him who made the heavens, earth, sea and fountains of water.

But doesn't the message say that we are to be in fear because the hour of God's judgment has come? The hour in which God sits and passes judgment upon sinners?

The message does NOT say that hour of God's judicial legal passing of judgments has come. It says we that are to be in awe of Him, to admire revere, and respect Him for His amazing character and methods of love and to live those same methods in how we treat others and thereby give Him glory on Earth, because the hour in human history has come when God is being judged. The hour of HIS judgment has come. The time in history for people to make their final decision about who God is and whether they will trust Him or reject Him. It is the final message which settles people into loyal love or if they reject it, hardens them beyond healing.

As Paul confirmed in Romans 3:4:

> Let God be true but every man a liar. As it is written: "That You may be justified in Your words, and may overcome when You are judged." (Romans 3:4 NKJV).

Remember the war—it started in heaven when Satan lied about God. The central issue in the war is the knowledge of God. God is the one lied about. When lies are believed they break the circle of love and trust and result in fear and selfishness. Fear and selfishness cause sinful actions, including using power over others to make oneself feel safe.

The plan of salvation starts with the truth about God which is the eternal good news. And this eternal good news about God displaces the lies and wins us to trust. In trust we open our hearts and the Holy Spirit enters and takes the victory of Christ and reproduces it in us and we are reborn, changed, transformed, renewed, recreated to be like Jesus. We are reconciled or brought back to at-one-ment with God through all that Jesus has done. We love as God loves and therefore do not seek to control others, but give of ourselves to uplift others and thereby bring glory to God by revealing His character.

Thus the final message that goes to the world is that God's people glorify Him in revealing His true character of love because the time in human history has come for God to be rightly judged. For people to stop worshiping the imperial dictator god who acts like a Roman Caesar using his power to inflict punishment, and to start worshiping the Creator who uses His power to heal and save people from sin.

When we understand these truths, the eternal good news about God, that He is Creator and His laws are the design law protocols that life and health and happiness operate upon and choose, through His power, to live His methods in our lives, then we are ready for the second message.

> A second angel followed and said, "Fallen! Fallen is Babylon the Great, which made all the nations drink the maddening wine of her adulteries." (Revelation 14:8 NIV84).

Babylon is the symbolic system of religious imperialism, the system that uses governmental power to enforce religious dogma. As soon as Nebuchadnezzar believed in Daniel's God, he passed a law that anyone who speaks evil about Daniel's God was to be executed. Of the various nations in the Bible story arc that interacted with Israel in the Old Testament, Babylon was the first to make a legal code, the code of Hammurabi.

The system of Babylon, of imposed law requiring imposed punishments, became the system of Roman Christianity with its various cannon laws and teachings that God's law is like human law, breaks require punishment, and thus the inquisition and inflicted punishment. Further, it advanced the belief that God's law, just like human law, can be changed by the church and that is why the church changed the commandments. And while Protestants have protested some of the various changes, they have never fully rejected the lie that God's law functions like human law and essentially all Protestant groups still teach the imposed law view in some way.

The message of the second angel is that that system of imposed law is fallen, corrupt, doesn't work, that one cannot be made righteous through law, through legal means, that God's government does not work this way, and therefore we are to leave such legal systems behind.

This angel calls for people to leave Babylon, to get out. And it is this portion of the message that the angel in Revelation 18 is specifically empowered to repeat, which is our memory verse for this week, note the message of the angel of Revelation 18:

> After this I saw another angel coming down from heaven. He had great authority, and the earth was illuminated by his splendor. With a mighty voice he shouted:
> "Fallen! Fallen is Babylon the Great!
> She has become a home for demons > and a haunt for every evil spirit, > a haunt for every unclean and detestable bird.
> For all the nations have drunk > the maddening wine of her adulteries.
> The kings of the earth committed adultery with her, > and the merchants of the earth grew rich from her excessive luxuries."
> Then I heard another voice from heaven say:
> "Come out of her, my people, > so that you will not share in her sins, > so that you will not receive any of her plagues. (Revelation 18:1-4 NIV84).

Notice, this message is to be repeated but with even greater authority than when it was first given. We must leave the various systems of this world, including the religious organizations that continue to teach that God's law functions like human law and therefore that God is the source of inflicted torment and death for sin, and God is the one from whom we need protection and Jesus is in heaven pleading with His Father to calm down His Father's anger control problems and save us from the punishment God would inflict on us if Jesus wasn't pleading to Him.

Such theology is conditioning the minds and hearts of people to accept a god who will use his power to torture and kill in the name of justice. It is the exact opposite of what Jesus revealed when He was glorified by His Father so that He could glorify His Father. And it is the exact opposite of what God's saints are to do. We are to give God glory by living out His methods and give the true message about God's character of love to the world, for the hour has come for people to make a right judgment about God. And in order to do that they need to have the truth about God presented to them.

Then, with all of this in mind, that God is love, that His laws are design laws, that the imposed law Babylonian penal legal religious concepts that the entire world accepts is a lie, then we can go on to understand the message of the third angel.

And the message of the third angel is the message of reality, of God's design laws coming to bear upon those who refuse to let God heal them, upon those who insist on living out their reimagined view of the world, which is fantasy.

> A third angel followed them and said in a loud voice: "If anyone worships the beast and his image and receives his mark on the forehead or on the hand… (Revelation 14:9 NIV84)

The first reality that comes to bear is the law of worship!

- By beholding we are changed. 2Corinthians 3:18
- Romans 1:18-31 the exchanged the truth of God for a lie and preferred images made with their own hands and their minds became darkened, depraved, and futile.
- They followed worthless idols and became worthless themselves. Jeremiah 2:5

This is why we are to "fix our eyes on Jesus, the author and perfecter of our faith." Hebrews 12:2

> "We know that when he appears, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." 1John 3:2

This is what the first angel called us to do, to reject the lies about God, to return to worship the Creator God as Jesus revealed Him to be. But if we do not accept the eternal gospel, the eternal good news about God, if we do not leave Babylon, the system of imposed law with its dictator god, then via the law of worship we will become like that dictator god and will internalize into our minds, hearts, characters, and practices the methods and principles of God's enemy and thereby mark ourselves to be like the beast.

> he, too, will drink of the wine of God's fury, which has been poured full strength into the cup of his wrath. (Revelation 14:10)

And all those reject the eternal gospel and mark themselves in character to be beastly receive God's wrath poured out full strength, no more mercy, no more diluting it. What does this mean?

God's wrath is God letting people go to reap what they have chosen.

This is God's law of liberty. Love only exists and functions in an atmosphere of freedom. If people reject the message of the first angel, the eternal good news about God and His design law of love, and if they reject the message of the second angel and refuse to leave that imposed law system of Babylon and continue to embrace the lie that God's law functions like human law and they worship and prefer a god who will use power to torture and kill. Then they not only mark themselves as beastly in character and conduct, they harden their hearts and sear their consciences, destroying within themselves the faculties that are sensitive to the Spirit of truth and love, and no more truth or love will have any healing impact upon them. Therefore, God sets them free to reap what they have chosen. He stops interfering, intervening, with what they have chosen and lets them go into the care of the false-god they have chosen and that is called God's wrath.

In Romans 1:18-31 Paul specifically says that the wrath of God is being revealed from heaven against all those who reject the truth, and Paul says three times exactly what God's wrath is, in verses 24,26, and 28 that God gave them up; He let them go and surrendered them to their own choice.

From Intervarsity Press, the book Hard Sayings of the Bible we read the following explanation about God's wrath as described by Paul in Romans 1:

> The human condition, which Paul describes in Romans 1:18-32, is not something caused by God. The phrase "revealed from heaven" (where "heaven" is a typical Jewish substitute word for "God") does not depict some kind of divine intervention, but rather the inevitability of human debasement which results when God's will, built into the created order, is violated. Since the created order has its origin in God, Paul can say that the wrath of God is now (constantly) being revealed "from heaven." It is revealed in the fact that the rejection of God's truth (Rom 1:18-20), that is, the truth about God's nature and will, leads to futile thinking (Rom 1:21-22), idolatry (Rom 1:23), perversion of God-intended sexuality (Rom 1:24-27) and relational-moral brokenness (Rom 1:28-32).
> The expression "God gave them over" (or "handed them over"), which appears three times in this passage (Rom 1:24,26,28), supports the idea that the sinful perversion of human existence, though resulting from human decisions, is to be understood ultimately as God's punishment which we, in freedom, bring upon ourselves.
> In light of these reflections, the common notion that God punishes or blesses in direct proportion to our sinful or good deeds cannot be maintained… God loves us with an everlasting love. But the rejection of that love separates us from its life-giving power. The result is disintegration and death. (Kaiser, W., et al., Hard Saying of the Bible, Intervarsity Press, 1996, p. 543).

This was taught more than 100 years ago to the SDA church as recorded in this historical quote from the book 1 Selected Messages:

> We are not to regard God as waiting to punish the sinner for his sin. The sinner brings the punishment upon himself. His own actions start a train of circumstances that bring the sure > result. Every act of transgression reacts upon the sinner, works in him a change of character, and makes it more easy for him to transgress again. By choosing to sin, men separate themselves from God, cut themselves off from the channel of blessing, and the sure result is ruin and death. (1Selected Messages 235)

The message of the third angel continues:

> He will be tormented with burning sulfur in the presence of the holy angels and of the Lamb… (Revelation 14:10)

We have seen that the third angel's message is the message of reality. It is the outworking of the law of worship, if we worship a false imperial dictator god we become like that god and mark ourselves in character and conduct to be beastly. When this happens and people harden themselves beyond healing we see the outworking of the law of liberty, when God sets them free and stops using His power to protect them from their own choices. God lets the permanently hardened go to reap what they have chosen.

And then the text says they are tormented with burning sulfur, what law of God is involved here?

The Old Testament prophet Isaiah describes this eternal fire:

> "The sinners in Zion are terrified; trembling grips the godless: 'Who of us can dwell with the consuming fire? Who of us can dwell with everlasting burning?'" (Isaiah 33:14).

Who can live in this fire? Who will spend eternity in the flames? And the prophet gives a shocking answer:

> "He who walks righteously and speaks what is right, who rejects gain from extortion and keeps his hand from accepting bribes, who stops his ears against plots of murder and shuts his eyes against contemplating evil!" (v. 15).

It is the righteous who will live forever in this fire—and not the wicked!

- When God spoke to Moses from within the bush, the bush burned but did not get consumed (Exodus 3:2–4, Acts 7:30–36).
- When God came to Mt. Sinai, His presence was described as a "consuming fire," but the elements did not melt (Exodus 24:17).
- When Solomon's Temple was dedicated, the priests couldn't enter because the brightness of God's fiery glory was too great, but the temple did not burn down (2 Chronicles 5:14, 7:1–3).
- Before his fall, Lucifer walked among the "fiery stones" of God's presence (Ezekiel 28:14, 16).
- God takes His throne and "rivers of fire" come out from Him, yet billions stand in this fire without any harm (Daniel 7:9, 10).

- Prior to his crucifixion, in a body still subject to death, Jesus was bathed in heavenly fire, yet no harm came to Him. His clothes didn't even get scorched (Matthew 17:2).
- Hebrews plainly tells us that "our God is a consuming fire" (12:29). The - Song of Solomon states: "Love is as strong as death, its jealousy unyielding as the grave. It burns like blazing fire, like a mighty flame. Many waters cannot quench love; rivers cannot wash it away" (8:6, 7).

The lie that Satan has foisted upon us is this: The place you don't want to go, the place you don't want to be, is the place of eternal burning and consuming fire. But, as amazing as it may seem, that place is God's very presence! The righteous will spend eternity bathed in the flames of God's fiery presence. But the wicked will be consumed in that same eternal fire.

When Christ returns, He doesn't come veiling His glory but in the full splendor of His holy, loving, righteous self—brighter than the sun! Rivers of blazing love surging out from Him, the earth will be bathed in His glory (Isaiah 6:3). The righteous will be transformed by the life-giving fires of His love, just as Moses was transformed after being in God's presence. Remember, he came down off the mountain with his face radiating heavenly fire. But Moses wasn't in pain. He didn't have third-degree burns. His whiskers weren't even singed!

But when the children of Israel—unrepentant, still filled with sin and selfishness—saw Moses' face, they shrank back and begged him to wear a veil. They couldn't stand the heavenly light (Exodus 34:33–35).

This is the fire of love and truth that glorifies God's people while it cleanses the earth of sin.

A fire that consumes sin? What is that? It is not the fire of combustion, which burns material substances—things made out of molecules, like our homes, furniture, and books—for sin is not made of physical matter. Sin is made of ideas, thoughts, concepts, attitudes, beliefs. At its core, sin is composed of two elements: lies (Satan is the "father of lies," John 8:44) and selfishness. Fires of combustion don't destroy ideas. Fires that burn material substances don't consume lies and selfishness.

So, what does consume a lie? The truth! And what does consume selfishness? Love! And the Holy Spirit is the Spirit of both truth and love. Amazingly, when the Spirit fell at Pentecost, they all witnessed two streams of fire over each person (Acts 2:3), yet no one got burned. The building didn't burn down. Their clothes didn't ignite. It was their hearts and minds that were cleansed by that fire—the fire of love and truth. Distortions about God were removed from their minds; envy, strife, and selfishness were burned out of their hearts. Love blazed in them again! Just as was promised, they were baptized with the Holy Spirit and with fire—the fire of love and truth (Matthew 3:11).

But if the fires are the fires of truth and love, why do the wicked suffer and die when these fires burn freely? "They perish because they refused to love the truth and so be saved" (2 Thessalonians 2:10).

What happens in the mind of those who reject truth and cling to falsehood when the truth of God comes shining through? They suffer torment of mind, anguish of heart, and suffering of psyche. And what happens to those whose hearts are filled with selfishness when the pure, undiluted love of God comes blazing through? "If your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him something to drink [love him]. In doing this, you will heap burning coals on his head" (Proverbs 25:21, 22; Romans 12:20). What happens in the mind of the unhealed when they meet pure love and truth face to face? The terrible suffering that unremedied sin causes.

We can never avoid the truth. We can only delay the day we deal with it. We can deal with the truth about ourselves, our histories, our characters, our mistakes here and now, under God's grace, and experience forgiveness, healing, restoration, regeneration, and ultimately eternal life. Or we can delay dealing with the truth—put it off, deny, externalize, project, blame, and scapegoat others. But if we don't deal with the truth now, one day when Christ returns, such people will come face to face with ultimate truth.

Yes, there will be terrible suffering in the flames of God's love, but it will not be inflicted as an external penalty. That suffering will not be the torture of melting flesh but the unavoidable torture of the soul that unremedied sin inflicts.

Just as Moses came out from God's presence with love and favor in his heart, yet the people shrank back seeking to hide from his face, so too, when Christ arrives, He returns with love and favor, but those solidified in the lies about God cannot stand the light of love and truth, so they run to hide from His face (Revelation 6:15, 16).

> Aaron's sons Nadab and Abihu took their censers, put fire in them and added incense; and they offered unauthorized fire before the LORD, contrary to his command. So fire came out from the presence of the LORD and consumed them, and they died before the LORD. … Moses summoned Mishael and Elzaphan, sons of Aaron's uncle Uzziel, and said to them, "Come here; carry your cousins outside the camp, away from the front of the sanctuary." So they came and carried them, still in their tunics, outside the camp, as Moses ordered (Leviticus 10:1–5, emphasis mine).

The fire of the Lord "consumed" them—yet their bodies weren't charred and their tunics were still intact.

This is what happens to the wicked in the end. They are > "tormented with burning sulfur in the presence of the holy angels and of the Lamb" (Revelation 14:10).

Notice, it is in Jesus' presence where they suffer. What about the term "burning sulfur"? It comes from the Greek thion and means the divine fire—or the fire of God's presence.

But Revelation also tells us:

> And the smoke of their torment rises for ever and ever (14:11).

Smoke is what is left after something is burned. This "smoke" symbolizes the memory, the lessons learned of what unremedied sin does to sinners—it torments and destroys. This lesson will never be forgotten by the universe. The righteous will remember for all eternity that the wicked suffered and died, not at God's hand, but because of their condition and because they refused to allow God to heal them. The righteous will remember for all eternity that every person who is eternally lost is lost only because they prefer non-existence to living in a universe of love and truth.

So the message of the third angel is the message of reality, of God's design laws:

- If you reject the eternal good news about God and His design laws of love, truth, liberty, and choose to worship a dictator counterfeit instead of our Creator who made the heavens, earth, sea, and fountains of water
- If you refuse to leave Babylon with its imposed law and imperial dictator god and its penal legal theologies
- Then through the law of worship you will become like that false god and mark yourself beastly
- Through the law of liberty God will set you free to reap what you have chosen
- Through the law of truth and love you will suffer the full torment of what unremedied sin does to the sinner and you will die from the sin condition that you have chosen
- And the history of the great controversy, the truth about God and what Jesus accomplished along with the choice of the lost will be remembered by the saved for all eternity so that sin never arises again.

This is the final message, the truth about God's character and design law methods of love that is to go with power to the world.

2023 3Q Ephesians—Lesson 1
Paul and the Ephesians

by Tim Jennings

TUESDAY

Tuesday's lesson tells us that this letter from Paul was intended to be read out loud, in its entirety, to the Ephesians believers. The lesson suggests that we do the same, have someone read the entire letter to us.

I have asked Linda Ojala to read this letter from Paul to the Ephesians to us from The Remedy version.

Let's sit and listen, but as you are listening, consider that Paul is writing to you and me—because through God's providence and Holy Spirit the message from Paul to the Ephesians is a message to all Christians. And as you are listening, take note of what elements speak to you, because after Linda finishes reading, I am going to open it up for discussion of what is the message from God through Paul both to the Ephesians, but more importantly for us today.

What did you hear as the key points in this letter?

What aspects of this letter to the Ephesians did you find relevant for us today?

- The letter opens with praise to God and describes God as good, as for us, the One on our side who pours out all the resources of heaven through Jesus for our salvation.
- Paul notes that God foreknew and predetermined that He would save us through Jesus and restore us to children of God—God was not taken by surprise
- It is through the victorious life and self-sacrificial death of Jesus that we are won back to trust and experience the forgiveness that God freely offers
- The letter opens with a cosmic perspective, that we are blessed with spiritual blessings, that through Christ all things in heaven and earth are united. Paul is telling us that the conflict is bigger than just earth, it is a cosmic war and we are at the center and Jesus is God's champion who wins the war.
- Paul emphasizes that Jesus is God's agent to overcome sin, to restore unity, to heal from sin, to win the war
- But Paul also said that we are to somehow bring glory to God—how? (1:12)
    - By being healed, and revealing God's character in how we live holy and righteous lives.
    - How does that bring God glory? Example of a physician who cures someone of cancer—who gets the glory, the one cured or the one doing the curing?

- Even though Christ was not physically present with them, according to Paul God marks the believers with a seal as an evidence and guarantee of the future full fulfillment—what is that seal? (1:13,14).
    - The Holy Spirit who transforms our characters, settling us into the truth about God and His methods, both in understanding/comprehension but also in method/motive/attitude/heart/practice.
    - Is this seal the same seal or a different seal that the saint in Revelation are described as having placed on their foreheads?
- God's power was described being used to accomplish what in chapter one?
    - Raise Christ from the dead—what kind of power is this? It is healing, saving, transforming, creation and recreation power—it is not the power of death—the Bible says in Hebrews 2:14 that, "Since the children have flesh and blood, he too shared in their humanity so that by his death he might destroy him who holds the power of death—that is, the devil" (Hebrews 2:14 NIV84).
    - Satan is the murderer from the beginning. It is sin that causes death when we believe the lies about God and break away from Him who is the source of life the only outcome is death. Yet, how much of Christianity teaches God, in order to be just, must use His power to inflict death? Paul presents the Good News about God that God's power is the power of life, not the power of death.
- And all power, authority, rulership is given to Jesus. In Revelation the heavenly scene has the angels and saints repeatedly saying of Jesus, worthy, worthy, worthy is the Lamb who was slain—He is worthy to wield all power because He has proven that He is safe with all power, that He NEVER uses power selfishly, to inflict harm, to cause death. That is Satan and Satan's government.
- In Chapter Two (2:1-5) Paul confirms that we are dead in sin, dying of the terminal sin-condition.
    - How is it that every one of us became sinners? We are all born in sin and conceived in iniquity—is it our fault we are born this way?
    - Did we have a choice about this?
    - And what is the unavoidable result of this condition—what does this condition cause every person born with it to do? To sin, to choose behaviors and actions that are in violation of God's design laws for life.
    - Can any sinful human cure or remedy or overcome this condition? No! Understand, we never had a choice in being born sinful, and on our own we can only live sinful lives. It is only through Jesus that we can receive a new life, a new heart and right spirit, a new set of motives and attitudes, and be reborn into God's family and live victorious lives.
    - Understand, the choice in salvation is not whether we are sinners or not—we are all born infected with fear and selfishness. The choice we have is whether we accept the Remedy of Jesus Christ to cure us of this condition, to recreate us in righteousness, to purge the fear and selfishness, to write His law in our hearts and minds and recreate us to be like Jesus in how we live.
    - What this means operationally is that we can stop feeling guilty for being sinners, we never had a choice in that. We can feel guilty for purposely choosing to reject Jesus, for working against Him, for reject the truth, for choosing to say yes to sin rather than turning to Jesus for victory. But we don't need to feel guilty for have the sin condition—that isn't our fault—that is the fault of Adam and Eve.

- Eph 2:6,7: God through Jesus redeemed the human species. Jesus became a real human, partaking of the humanity that was damaged by Adam, but overcame all the obstacles, incumbrances, weaknesses and restored humanity to perfection. In the humanity of Jesus, the human species became what God intended for it to become in Adam—and even more.
- Eph. 2:8-10: It is God's grace, God's power, God's purpose, God's intention that humanity be a showcase of His law—which is the living law of love. Love does not function written upon stone. Love requires living beings. Human beings were created in the image of God to showcase God's glorious character of love.
    - As the Father, Son, and Spirit come together in love and create, human beings were created with the ability to come together in the blessing of marital love and give of themselves to create beings in their image. Humanity was given dominion to subdue and govern the earth—and it was God's intention that they would govern the earth in perfect love, as God governs the universe. All of this was subverted by Satan when Adam and Eve infected themselves with sin, and all nature groans under the weight of sin. In Jesus God's living law is fully and perfectly restored into humanity and humanity again becomes God's showcase to reveal His character, law, methods perfectly.
- Eph. 2:14-18: In Jesus divinity merged with humanity and as a human Jesus destroyed the infecting death-causing principle and restored God's life-causing principle and became the head of a purified and new humanity. He became the second Adam, and all who unite with Him, experience, via the Spirit, fear and selfishness replaced with love and trust in God. The divisions in human society become meaningless and we are united as one loving body in Christ.
    - What of this metaphor of a temple or sanctuary that Paul uses? We are God's temple, built together with Christ as the chief cornerstone and the apostles as foundations stones—and all of us together become a living temple where God dwells by His Spirit.
    - Have you ever heard of a heavenly sanctuary? Have you ever heard the idea of cleansing the heavenly sanctuary? Is what Paul is describing here something new, separate, and distinct from the Old Testament sanctuary service, or is Paul drawing from the imagery of the Old Testament sanctuary to teach an eternal truth, the reality of what God is accomplishing through Christ?
    - Is the cleansing of the sanctuary that God accomplishes through the ministry of Jesus as our High Priest the cleansing of non-living matter, silver, gold, boards, vellum, paper, books, records—or is it the cleansing of hearts, minds, characters of sinners so that we are purified people free from sin?
- Eph. 3:1: Paul connects sharing the gospel, the good news, the message of salvation with his imprisonment—what is he telling us?
    - Is this only true for Paul, or is it true that throughout all human history, those who are actively advancing the kingdom of God will come under attack by Satan and evil forces?
    - What does that look like today?

- Eph. 3:7-13: Paul describes a mystery that was hidden and even the Old Testament prophets didn't fully understand—what is that mystery?
    - That all humans are included in the promises given to Abraham, that the plan of salvation is for every human being. It is quite simple, God made one human species in Adam—Eve was taken from Adam's side, and every other human being is a descendant of Adam and Eve, we are all one species. Adam and Eve infected themselves with sin and thus we are all born with the same terminal condition we inherited from Adam. We are all dying of the same condition and we all need the same healing solution—which is Jesus Christ. Thus, the promise given in Genesis 3:15 is for the entire human race.
    - Is God the one who made this plan a mystery? Did He hide it? No, He repeatedly revealed that all nations will be blessed by Abraham's Seed—the Messiah. Then how did this truth get obscured? Satan's methods and principles of lies, fear, and selfishness cause division, confusion, hostility, and prejudice.
    - Satan led the Jews to believe that the their calling to be the physical avenue through whom Messiah would be born, and their blessing with the prophets, the Scriptures, and the theater of the sanctuary service was a calling for exclusive salvation rather than a calling to be ambassadors of Jesus to the world. Thus rather than reaching out, they became exclusive and began to teach a restrictive religion rather than the freedom we have in Christ. They came to believe that one had to convert to Judaism to be saved. Was that true?
    - What about today, have any of these same ideas entered Christianity? Do any Christians believe that salvation is found in denominational affiliation? Do we miss that denominations can be called for mission, like the Jewish nation was called, but the mission is to evangelize the world with the truth about Jesus, to convert people to Christ, not institutional affiliation?
    - What does God want His true church to look like? How are we as His people to function?
    - We are to be united upon the methods, principles, and practices of God—truth, love, freedom!
- Eph 3:14-21: What is the power that Paul wants us to experience that surpasses all understanding—the love of God.
- Eph 4:1: Paul wants us to live lives that reveal the benefits of God's way of living, what would you say those benefits are?
    - Peace, love, joy, kindness, the fruits of the spirit, maturity, wisdom, freedom from being dominated and controlled by fear and selfishness, freedom from guilt and shame etc.
- Eph. 4:4-6: Paul says there is only one body, one Spirit, one hope, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father.
    - If there is only one, then why are there so many denominations that disagree?
    - What about one baptism, what does that mean?
- Eph. 4:9-10: What is the significance of Christ's ascension?
    - Isn't it true that before Jesus' incarnation, life, death, resurrection and ascension that God the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit reigned over the universe?

    - So what is significant about Jesus going back to heaven to resume His governance over all God's universal creation?
    - Does Jesus now being fully human have any significance? Is Paul pointing our attention to this?
- Eph. 4:11: What is the significance of Christ choosing some people for different roles?
    - Is this the philosophy of the world today that some are better suited for some positions than others? Or is the philosophy of the world, what is known as equity, is that gifting, talent, ability, and calling are irrelevant to who we put in a position? What is the result? Do things work best in any organization if people are advanced based on something other than ability, achievement, talent, qualifications?
- Eph. 4:12-15: What is the goal or purpose of the body of Christ and the work we are to do? Advance the kingdom of God in developing godly character in people so that we are united in love and trust with God and each other. And to individually mature so that we develop the ability to think and discern for ourselves and stop being children tossed about by all the various tricks and deceits put out by the schemers.
    - What is required of each of us to experience this? We must reason together, think for ourselves, be fully persuaded in our own minds, establish beliefs based on the evidences God has given, understand His design law and how reality functions. We must refuse to believe based on authority of office, declaration, proclamation, charisma, emotion, signs, wonders—we must believe because we know, understand, and love the truth because it is true.
- Eph. 4:17-19: In Paul's day he warned about believing things that don't make sense which darkens the mind. This happens because they reject the truth about God and His kingdom. And this results in corruption of character, the loss of kindness, love, and moral virtue.
    - What law is involved here? The law of worship, by beholding we are changed.
    - Are we seeing this happening in the world today?
- Eph. 4:20-24: But those who are Christian were called out of such wickedness into Christ who recreates new hearts and right spirits, replacing fear and selfishness with love, transforming our characters to be like Christ.
- Eph. 4:25-32: Paul describes how the new heart with new desires and motives that we receive from Jesus empowers us to choose to say no to the old ways and yes to God's way of living. Christianity is not about legal adjustment, but about heart, mind, soul recreation.
- Eph 5:1-2: Paul calls us to imitate Christ in living self-sacrificial lives of love.
- Eph 5:3-6: What does Paul mean that there cannot be even a trace of immorality or any impurity?
    - Does this mean we won't struggle with temptation, or won't have moments of weakness and slip? No, think of it just like recovery from any illness—when a person with an infection begins treatment they have left the path of death and entered the path of life. This is conversion to Christ. But at that moment are all symptoms resolved? No, there is a process of healing and improvement as the remedy works in the person. And the goal is complete eradication of all the infection. So, too, when we come to Christ we are reborn with a new heart and right spirit that now desires, longs for, wants holiness—however we have habits, conditioned responses, addictions, neural pathways established when we lived in violation of God's design i.e. in sin. And those old habits, conditioned responses, and pathways are not in harmony with our new hearts and spirits and thus there is a journey, a struggle, and healing process. Our new hearts/spirits must be freed from the infection of fear, distrust, selfishness, but we will still struggle with old habits that were established before we were reborn. Thus, we grieve in our spirits that we are not fully perfected and glorified, but in our hearts we do not cling to rebellion and sin. So we have no trace of the old ways left in our hearts that we cling to and prefer.

- Eph. 5:8-14: In Christ, while we still struggle with temptation, we live new lives that purposely seek to uplift Christ and advance God's kingdom and methods and our lives of light and truth expose the lies and false ways of the enemy.
- Eph. 5:15-21: We are to live in harmony with God's design laws for health, and live lives that actively grow and develop in the things of God and live God's love in how we treat others.
- Eph. 5:22-23: How are Christian husbands and wives to relate?
    - What is the big lesson from marriage that Paul wants us to learn in regard to Christ and the church?
    - What is the lesson from Christ and the church that Paul wants husbands and wives to learn in how they relate to each other?
    - What does it mean wives are to submit to their husbands?
- Eph. 6:1-4: What is the relationship that children are supposed to have to their parents? And parents to their children?
    - Are children to obey their parents in all things?
    - Is there an age when children need to stop obeying their parents?
    - What does it mean to honor one's parents?
    - Why is there blessing of long life for those who honor their parents? Is this an arbitrary use of God's power to perform a miracle to keep alive people who honor their parents or is this some outworking of one of God's design laws?
- Eph. 6:5-9: Does Paul's instruction to slaves and slave-masters mean Paul or God supports and promotes slavery?
- Eph. 6:10-18: What do you understand the armor of God to be?

What do you think of this letter? Does it have application to us today?
What would society be like if every person lived out these principles?

SABBATH

Read second paragraph,

> "Paul has a profound purpose that motivates his letter. Partly because of his imprisonment (Eph. 3:13, Eph. 6:20), and partly because of ongoing persecution and temptations, the Ephesians are tempted to lose heart. Paul reminds them of what happened when they were converted, accepting Christ as their Savior and becoming part of the church. They have > become Christ's body (Eph. 1:19-23), Eph. 4:1-16), the building materials in the temple (Eph. 2:19-22), the bride of Christ (Eph. 5:21-33), and a well-equipped army (Eph. 6:10-20). They play a strategic role in fulfilling God's grand plan, to unite everything in Christ (Eph. 1:9, 10). Paul write to awaken the believers in Ephesus to their full identity and privileges as followers of Christ." (Adult SS Guide Third Quarter 2023, Ephesians p. 6).

When we are converted we become part of the church, the body of Christ, the bride etc., What does this mean? Is this a denomination?

How can one tell of they are a part of the true church of Christ?

Jesus said,

> "A new command I give you: Love one another. As I have loved you, so you must love one another. By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you love one another." (John 13:34-35 NIV84).

How is this a new command? Is it because they had been raised to believe God's commandments are imposed rules, that God's kingdom is a legal kingdom and Jesus revealed that God's law is design law and His kingdom is reality built upon love? Thus for the disciples this was a new idea, a new way of conceiving of God's kingdom, law, and methods?

So how do we recognize if we are part of God's church, the body of Christ, the bride of Christ?

John also wrote:

> Dear children, do not let anyone lead you astray. He who does what is right is righteous, just as he is righteous. [What determines what is right or wrong? This is all about the moral decision making, the seven levels. If we have a legal view, an imposed law view, then right and wrong is about behavioral conformity—rule keeping. We will refuse to heal on Sabbath because it is breaking the rules and if we see someone doing it, even the Son of God, then we, in order to be just, need to lead the people to stone him. This is Pharisaism, in which rule keeping and law enforcement is used as a measure of righteousness, rather than living out God's living law of truth, love, and freedom in how we treat others.] He who does what is sinful is of the devil, because the devil has been sinning from the beginning. [And what is sinful? Transgression of the law, what law? A list of rules, or deviating from the design laws that God built reality to operate upon? And what are those, love, truth, freedom—which results, when followed in trust, loyalty, devotion, reliability. Thus, sin would be breaking trust with God, and that is what Paul says in Romans 14:23, whatever is not of faith or trust is sin. Lucifer in heaven didn't start his rebellion by breaking a rule; he started his rebellion by betraying his faith and breaking trust with God.] The reason the Son of God appeared was to destroy the devil's work. [What has the devil been working to accomplish? He has been working to destroy the image of God in humanity and make human beings become the image bearers of Satan. Look at what is happening in the world. Can you see Satan's image being manifest in more and more people and in society? Lies, propaganda, control, coercion, manipulation, exploitation, abuse, hate, perversion of all kinds, and much of it promoted under the banner of love for others, of tolerance, of compassion.] No one who is born of God will continue to sin, because God's seed remains in him; [What does this mean? If we are part of God's church we will not continue to sin, not go on sinning? Are you comfortable with this idea or does it cause you anxiety? It is quite simple. Paul wrote that whatever is not of faith, or trust is sin (Romans 14:23). Remember, lies believed break the circle of love and trust and result in fear and selfishness, which results in acts of sin—the acts are the symptoms that result from the heart no longer operating upon love and trust. John is telling us that when we have been restored to trust then we stop living rebelliously, we stop living to gratify self, we stop living distrustfully…we do what we do out of faith or trust in God. It doesn't mean we don't make mistakes, we are finite, we can make errors, our driving to the supermarket can still result in an accident in which someone is hurt—but we don't seek to cause harm, we don't seek to break away from God and our healing or soul remains in His hands. So we don't go on living in selfish independence from God.] he cannot go on sinning, because he has been born of God. [We simply don't want to live outside of our love relationship with God any more. We run to Him with every care, concern, mistake, and also victory and celebration.] This is how we know who the children of God are and who the children of the devil are: Anyone who does not do what is right is not a child of God; nor is anyone who does not love his brother. [How do we know who is a child of God and/or the devil? By whether they live in harmony with God's design laws of love, truth, and freedom in how they govern themselves and treat others or not. Those who claim a faith in God and perhaps promote the same doctrinal beliefs as you, but do so through imposed law, and therefore are willing to use power to coerce consciences and punish others on matters of conscience, are of the devil, just like those Jews who belonged to the right organized religious system and claimed to be children of God but crucified Christ.]

This is the message you heard from the beginning: We should love one another. Do not be like Cain, who belonged to the evil one and murdered his brother. And why did he murder him? Because his own actions were evil and his brother's were righteous. Do not be surprised, my brothers, if the world hates you. [There are two antagonistic powers at war—God's principle of love, truth, freedom versus Satan's principle of fear-driven survival of the fittest selfishness, lies, and coercive control. God's people love others to the point of self-sacrifice, Satan's people force others to do what they want and will even kill others to advance themselves. And Satan's people hate the light, the truth, and those who live the truth because the light itself, the truth itself, condemns them and they want to destroy the light and all light bearers. This is why certain groups in our society today are so aggressive in their intolerance of those who hold to Christian values and are always seeking to force their perverse lifestyles onto others—all under the name of being tolerant. Understand there is a difference between a person choosing what they do in governance of their life, and using force to make other people live and act in ways that praise, validate, and support what they believe is wrong. If a person wants to change their pronouns that is up to them, but the evil in this world cannot live with that, instead they want to use governmental coercive power to force other people to act and speak in ways that affirm them—in other words they want to coerce in order to promote their delusional worldview. And those who do not, they want to destroy and remove from society. Why? Because the truth is authoritative and regardless of the lies they tell themselves, the truth still condemns them and rather than repenting and pursing objective truth, they want to silence their own conscience and thus all sources of truth to which their conscience is sensitive.] We know that we have passed from death to life, because we love our brothers. Anyone who does not love remains in death. Anyone who hates his brother is a murderer, and you know that no murderer has eternal life in him. [What does this mean? How is it that we pass from death to life if we love others? What does it mean that if we don't love we remain in death? Does this mean we were terminal, already dying, rather than we were healthy and alive and that death must be inflicted as a legal penalty?]

This is how we know what love is: Jesus Christ laid down his life for us. And we ought to lay down our lives for our brothers. (1John 3:7-16 NIV84) [Does it make sense that we get life by dying, by laying down our life? Aren't we supposed to kill others to protect our life? Do you see the two antagonistic principles here?]

Everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ is born of God, and everyone who loves the father loves his child as well. This is how we know that we love the children of God: by loving God and carrying out his commands. This is love for God: to obey his commands. And his commands are not burdensome, for everyone born of God overcomes the world. This is the victory that has overcome the world, even our faith. Who is it that overcomes the world? Only he who believes that Jesus is the Son of God. (1 John 5:1-5 NIV84).

What does it mean to obey God's commands? Is it rule-keeping, or do the commandments mean something else?

What law lens do you understand it through?

To live in harmony with His commands means to live in harmony with His design for life, to be truthful and love the truth, to love God and others and live out other-centered giving, and to leave people free.

When we love God we:

- Do not place anything before Him in our hearts or priorities
- Do not follow the ways of the world and worship things made by us
- Do not misrepresent God's character by claiming to be a Christian but then using Satan's methods in how we live and treat others—in other words we don't take God's name in vain
- We remember the Sabbath as God's gift to us and cherish all that it reveals about God and we keep ourselves holy by living out God's principles that the Sabbath is a sign of, and we trust God by not pursuing our own business on the Sabbath

If we love others:

- We honor our parents by treating them with respect and applying God's principles of truth, love, and freedom to our relationship with them

- We do not murder
- We do not cheat or betray our spouses
- We do not bear false witness against others
- We do not steal
- We do not covet what others have

And this is not burdensome because when the heart is reborn to love it actually hurts, causes pain, is distressing, upsetting, hard, a burden to do any of these selfish things. It is much easier and joyful to not do these things.

Here it is from The Remedy:

> Everyone who trusts Jesus–God's healing Remedy–is recreated in heart and mind and is a child of God. And everyone who loves the Creator loves those he created. This is how we know that we love the beings God created — by loving God and living in harmony with his methods and principles of self-sacrificing love. Those who genuinely love God will live lives that reveal him–lives that are in harmony with his commandments. And his commandments are not a burden placed upon us which we must perform, but the natural outgrowth of love–the victory over this selfish world that everyone who is healed by God experiences; and this victory over fear and selfishness is achieved when we trust God. Who is it that overcomes the survival-of-the-fittest principle of this world? Only those who recognize and accept that Jesus is God's Son. (1 John 5:1-5 REM).

So we can know that we are part of the church, the body of Christ, if we have been reborn to have hearts that love God and others and live that love in how we treat others. Do you agree? Can a person be part of the body of Christ, have a renewed heart and live out God's design law regardless of what denomination they belong?

Then what is the purpose of denominations or organized churches?

- Mission—denominations are important for mission to pool resources, organize people, and develop resources that can be used to advance the gospel.
- Join the denomination where God has called you to use your talents, abilities, and resources for the mission God has called you for.
- Paul was not called to stay in Jerusalem and worship with and minister to the Jews. Paul was called as a minister to the Gentiles. We each must go and advance the true kingdom of God in the field where God calls us.

SUNDAY

The lesson asks us to read Acts 19:13-20, but let's start with verse one and unpack it. This is from The Remedy

> While Apollos was in Corinth, Paul journeyed inland to Ephesus. There he found some of the Lord's interns and asked them, "When you accepted Jesus as Messiah, did you receive the Holy Spirit who applies into your hearts and minds what Jesus achieved?" They replied, "No, we didn't even know there is an inner working of the Holy Spirit." [What is this talking about? Can we be saved through Jesus' sacrifice without the inner working of the Holy Spirit? Is salvation the process of cognitive acceptance of the facts, the truth, that Jesus is God, that Jesus is our substitutionary sacrifice, that Jesus achieved all that is necessary for salvation? Can one be saved by cognitively accepting this and making a legal claim for the blood of Jesus to pay the price and erase from the record books in heaven the list of sins they have committed? Or does salvation require the inner working of the Holy Spirit to transform the heart from fear and selfishness to love and trust?

In the book The Desire of Ages it describes the work of the Holy Spirit in our salvation this way—do you agree?

> In describing to His disciples the office work of the Holy Spirit, Jesus sought to inspire them with the joy and hope that inspired His own heart. He rejoiced because of the abundant help He had provided for His church. The Holy Spirit was the highest of all gifts that He could solicit from His Father for the exaltation of His people. The Spirit was to be given as a regenerating agent, and without this the sacrifice of Christ would have been of no avail. The power of evil had been strengthening for centuries, and the submission of men to this satanic captivity was amazing. Sin could be resisted and overcome only through the mighty agency of the Third Person of the Godhead, who would come with no modified energy, but in the fullness of divine power. It is the Spirit that makes effectual what has been wrought out by the world's Redeemer. It is by the Spirit that the heart is made pure. Through the Spirit the believer becomes a partaker of the divine nature. Christ has given His Spirit as a divine power to overcome all hereditary and cultivated tendencies to evil, and to impress His own character upon His church.
> Of the Spirit Jesus said, "He shall glorify Me." The Saviour came to glorify the Father by the demonstration of His love; so the Spirit was to glorify Christ by revealing His grace to the world. The very image of God is to be reproduced in humanity. The honor of God, the honor of Christ, is involved in the perfection of the character of His people. (The Desire of Ages 671.3)

This is countering the work of Satan who wants to reproduce the satanic image in humanity, and we are called to give glory to God and we do that by having His character reproduced in us.

> "When He [the Spirit of truth] is come, He will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment." The preaching of the word will be of no avail without the continual presence and aid of the Holy Spirit. This is the only effectual teacher of divine truth. Only when the truth is accompanied to the heart by the Spirit will it quicken the conscience or transform the life. One might be able to present the letter of the word of God, he might be familiar with all its commands and promises; but unless the Holy Spirit sets home the truth, no souls will fall on the Rock and be broken. No amount of education, no advantages, however great, can make one a channel of light without the co-operation of the Spirit of God. The sowing of the gospel seed will not be a success unless the seed is quickened into life by the dew of heaven. Before one book of the New Testament was written, before one gospel sermon had been preached after Christ's ascension, the Holy Spirit came upon the praying apostles. Then the testimony of their enemies was, "Ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine." Acts 5:28. (The Desire of Ages 671.4)

We need the Holy Spirit in our hearts to renew, enlighten, enable, and empower us. It is not sufficient to proclaim belief in a list of doctrines, to go through ritual water baptism, to stop working on the Sabbath each week, to pay tithe, to join a denomination—all of this can be done from a heart driven by fear, the fear of death, and the desire to save self and to advance oneself above others—Pharisaism. Salvation is means to be healed, to be transformed, to be renewed, to become like Jesus in character having the law written upon the heart. This is not a legal process it is a reality process. And the penal legal theologies based on the human law construct obstruct the real healing that God freely offers all of us.

Continuing with Acts 19:

> So Paul asked, "What immersion in water did you participate in?" They answered, "The immersion by John."
> Paul explained, "John immersed people in water to symbolize repentance, which is the preparation of the heart to receive the Remedy. He told people to trust the One coming after him, the One with the Remedy–that is, Jesus." When they heard the truth about the Remedy of Jesus, they were immersed into the character of the Lord Jesus. Paul placed his hands on their heads, and they were filled with the Holy Spirit. They began presenting the truth about God, and the Remedy of Jesus, in many languages. There were about twelve people in all. [We can only be effective in advancing God's kingdom to the degree we are submitted to God and transformed and empowered by the Holy Spirit.]
> For three months Paul went to the synagogue and spoke out powerfully. He persuasively presented the evidence revealing God's kingdom of love, but some of them hardened their hearts, dug in their heels, and refused to believe the truth. They publicly ridiculed the Remedy as the only way to be healed, so Paul left them. He took the interns with him and began instructing them daily in the lecture hall of Tyrannus. He continued teaching there for two years, so that all of the Jews and non-Jews living in the province of Asia heard about the Remedy of Jesus. [What happened here? Paul went to the Jews in Ephesus presenting them the truth of God's kingdom of love and Jesus Christ our Savior. But they rejected it—and what happens when people reject the truth? Their hearts harden. Consider who the Jews were—were they people without the blessings of God, or were they part of a group especially called by God for a mission to evangelize the world and given the prophets and inspired Scripture to assist them in evangelizing the world?

Could the Jews rightly say that they as a people were called by God and blessed by God? Yet, when Paul presents the advancing truth, what happened? Do we see this happening anywhere today? A people who have been blessed by God with a mission to evangelize the world to prepare it for the second advent, who have the inspired writings of God yet who reject the advancing truth of God's design law and refuse to return to worshiping the Creator and insist on worshiping the imperial dictator who makes up rules and uses his power to torture and kill? And when we present the advancing truth to them how do many of them respond? By hardening their hearts and telling those with this design law message that they cannot present such a message in their church and even telling people to leave, or they have a devil.]

God's healing love flowed through Paul in amazing ways. Scarves, napkins, or other pieces of cloth that had touched Paul were taken to the sick, and when the fabric touched the sick, their illness was cured, and any evil influences departed. [What do you think of this? Is this magic? Is there anything here about the sick proclaiming a faith in Jesus? We can assume they were taking it to sick believers, but it doesn't say so. What was the purpose of these miracles? Are miracles reliable evidence to who has the truth? Can Satan also perform miracles?]

Some Jewish exorcists who went around driving out evil angels thought they could use the name of Jesus like a magic incantation to free those whose minds were dominated by demons. They would say, "In the name of Jesus, whom Paul preaches, I command you to leave." Sceva, a Jewish chief priest, had seven sons who were doing this. One day, they were trying it when an evil angel mocked them: "I know Jesus, and I know Paul, but who are you?" Then the man whose mind was possessed by an evil angel attacked them, and overpowered them all. He beat them so badly that they ran out of the house naked and bleeding. [What happened here? Why didn't the demon, the fallen evil angel, leave when Jesus' name was spoken out loud? Is it because they said Jesus and not Joshua or Yashua? Or is it because Jesus' name is not a magic incantation, to speak or pray in the name of Jesus means having a heart renewed to be like Jesus in character and that means one is filled with the Holy Spirit? Notice the evil angel spoke the name Jesus and it didn't harm it. This isn't magic, it isn't incantations, it isn't legal claims. One cannot claim the name or blood of Jesus in a legal mechanical or magical way to achieve some spiritual outcome. One must be renewed by the life of Jesus, which is symbolized by the blood of Jesus, so that they have the character of Jesus and then they will have the Holy Spirit and the power of God in their ministry.]

When news of this spread throughout Ephesus, both Jews and non-Jews were overcome with fear, and the name of the Lord Jesus was given much more respect. Many people who believed the truth about Jesus confessed their evil deeds publicly. A large number of people who had practiced witchcraft, black magic and sorcery brought their books of magic and burned them publicly in a large bonfire. When they calculated the value of the books burned, it totaled fifty thousand silver coins (and one coin was a day's wage). With events like this, the message of the Remedy of Jesus spread widely and kept growing. (Acts 19:1-20 REM). [What happened here? How was it that people repented because of the actions of an evil angel? Because God's kingdom is the kingdom of reality, of truth, and this event revealed truth, revealed reality, and the Holy Spirit convicted hearts.]

The lesson asks us to read Acts 19:21-20:1, we will start with verse 23:

> But before Paul left Ephesus, a great uproar arose about the Remedy. Demetrius, a silversmith who made a lot of money making silver shrines of Artemis, employed a large number of craftsmen. He called them together, along with others whose income depended on their business, and said: "Friends, you know what a good income we make from this business. And you have heard that this fellow Paul has come along teaching people that the gods we make with our own hands are not gods at all. He has convinced large numbers of people of this — here and all across the province of Asia. This is not only an attack on our livelihoods, but more so, it threatens to destroy the temple of the great goddess Artemis; and the goddess herself, who is worshiped all over the world, will be robbed of her glorious majesty." [What is happening here? What is the motive of Demetrius? Do you see selfishness interfering with the gospel? Do we see this today? Do we see people and organizations making decisions that coerce and violate consciences in order to not be sanctioned by the government, to keep their Medicare and Medicaid money flowing?]
> They became so agitated upon hearing this, that they began chanting, "Ephesus, the state of Artemis the Great! Ephesus, the state of Artemis the Great!" The uproar spread throughout the entire city. A mob seized Gaius and Aristarchus, two men traveling with Paul from Macedonia, and marched as a group into the amphitheater. Paul wanted to go and speak to the crowd, but the interns would not allow it. Even some of the city officials, who were friends of Paul, sent messages, warning him not to go to the amphitheater.
> The mob was frenzied. People were yelling many different things all at once, but most didn't even know why they were there. The Jews pushed Alexander to the front, and some people in the crowd began shouting at him, telling him what to say. He held up his hands, trying to silence the crowd in order to present a defense. But when the mob realized he was a Jew, they began chanting, "Ephesus, the state of Artemis the Great! Ephesus, the state of Artemis the Great!" This went on for about two hours. [Have we seen this over and over again when voices of truth want to speak a mob of protesters will scream and shout and get violent seeking to silence the speaker? Anyone with eyes to see should recognize such activity is not the work of the Holy Spirit but of a satanic spirit and realize they should not be a part of such movements. Satan has no truth on his side, thus those who advance satanic positions must use every means to silence voices of truth for the truth exposes the lies and sets hearts and minds free. But those with truth lose nothing by challenge, investigation, questioning all such honest inquiry only bring more truth to light. Do you think that today when such mobs arise and shout and protest like this there are many people who join in, and just like in Ephesus, most don't even know why they are yelling?]

Finally, the city clerk managed to quiet the mob, and said, "People of Ephesus, the entire world knows that Ephesus is the state of Artemis the Great, who came down from heaven, and that we guard her temple. Since these facts are irrefutable, you should quiet down and not do anything rash. Why have you brought these men here? They have done no wrong. They have not robbed temples nor spoken against our goddess. If Demetrius and his trade union have a complaint against anyone, then they should file charges in court and let the matter be settled there. If you have any other issues, they too need to be settled in a legal assembly, not by mob action. What you have done has put us in danger of being charged with rioting, and if we are charged, we won't have any defense, for there is no reason for this uproar you have incited." After saying this, he sent them home. Once the protests died down, Paul met with the interns, gave them some departing words of encouragement, and left for Macedonia. (Acts 19:23-20:1 REM) [In this case the government was not in charge of or supporting the rioters. Sadly, today, many of the government officials support the rioters and will not intervene to stop them.]

THURSDAY

The second paragraph says,

> "As Ephesians 1:9, 10 proclaims, the unity God has in mind is centered in Christ." (SDA Adult SS Guide Third Quarter 2023, Ephesians, p. 11)

Why do you think the Christian world is divided into over 41,000 groups if they all claim Jesus and that following Jesus leads to unity?

Could the law lens people believe about God and His kingdom have any bearing on the divisions?

2023 3Q Ephesians—Lesson 2
God's Grand, Christ-Centered Plan

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

SUNDAY

Read second paragraph,

> Paul praises God for the fact that He has "blessed us in Christ with every spiritual blessing" (Eph. 1:3, ESV). That the blessings are spiritual (Greek, pneumatikos) suggests that they come through the Spirit (pneuma), pointing to the closing of Paul's blessing, which celebrates the work of the Holy Spirit in the lives of believers (Eph. 1:13, 14). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 15).

What do you understand the work of the Holy Spirit to be?

Let's read Acts 19:1-6:

> While Apollos was at Corinth, Paul took the road through the interior and arrived at Ephesus. There he found some disciples and asked them, "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed?"
> They answered, "No, we have not even heard that there is a Holy Spirit."
> So Paul asked, "Then what baptism did you receive?"
> "John's baptism," they replied.
> Paul said, "John's baptism was a baptism of repentance. He told the people to believe in the one coming after him, that is, in Jesus." On hearing this, they were baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus. When Paul placed his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came on them, and they spoke in [other languages] and prophesied. (Acts 19:1–6 NIV84).

What is this talking about?

- Can we be saved through Jesus' sacrifice without the inner working of the Holy Spirit?
- Is salvation the process of cognitive acceptance of the facts, the truth, that Jesus is God, that Jesus is our substitutionary sacrifice, that Jesus achieved all that is necessary for salvation?
- Can one be saved by cognitively accepting a list of beliefs and believing those beliefs and then making a legal claim for the blood of Jesus to pay the price and erase from the record books in heaven the list of sins they have committed? Or does salvation require the inner working of the Holy Spirit to transform the heart from fear and selfishness to love and trust?

In the book The Desire of Ages it describes the work of the Holy Spirit in our salvation this way, and I have concluded this is a very accurate description—do you agree?

In describing to His disciples the office work of the Holy Spirit, Jesus sought to inspire them with the joy and hope that inspired His own heart. He rejoiced because of the abundant help He had provided for His church. The Holy Spirit was the highest of all gifts that He could solicit from His Father for the exaltation of His people. The Spirit was to be given as a regenerating agent, and without this the sacrifice of Christ would have been of no avail. The power of evil had been strengthening for centuries, and the submission of men to this satanic captivity was amazing. Sin could be resisted and overcome only through the mighty agency of the Third Person of the Godhead, who would come with no modified energy, but in the fullness of divine power. It is the Spirit that makes effectual what has been wrought out by the world's Redeemer. It is by the Spirit that the heart is made pure. Through the Spirit the believer becomes a partaker of the divine nature. Christ has given His Spirit as a divine power to overcome all hereditary and cultivated tendencies to evil, and to impress His own character upon His church. (The Desire of Ages 671.2)

Of the Spirit Jesus said, "He shall glorify Me." The Saviour came to glorify the Father by the demonstration of His love; so the Spirit was to glorify Christ by revealing His grace to the world. The very image of God is to be reproduced in humanity. The honor of God, the honor of Christ, is involved in the perfection of the character of His people. (The Desire of Ages 671.3) [this is countering the work of Satan who wants to reproduce the satanic image in humanity, and we are called to give glory to God and we do that by having His character reproduced in us.]

"When He [the Spirit of truth] is come, He will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment." The preaching of the word will be of no avail without the continual presence and aid of the Holy Spirit. This is the only effectual teacher of divine truth. Only when the truth is accompanied to the heart by the Spirit will it quicken the conscience or transform the life. One might be able to present the letter of the word of God, he might be familiar with all its commands and promises; but unless the Holy Spirit sets home the truth, no souls will fall on the Rock and be broken. No amount of education, no advantages, however great, can make one a channel of light without the co-operation of the Spirit of God. The sowing of the gospel seed will not be a success unless the seed is quickened into life by the dew of heaven. Before one book of the New Testament was written, before one gospel sermon had been preached after Christ's ascension, the Holy Spirit came upon the praying apostles. Then the testimony of their enemies was, "Ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine." Acts 5:28. (The Desire of Ages 671.4)

What is described by this author? Is this describing a legal adjustment in books outside of one's person? No! Salvation is and always has been healing, restoring, recreating, transforming sinners back to sinless perfection, righteousness.

We need the Holy Spirit in our hearts to renew, enlighten, enable, and empower us. It is not sufficient to proclaim belief in a list of doctrines, to go through ritual water baptism, to stop working on the Sabbath each week, to pay tithe, to join a denomination—all of this can be done from a heart driven by fear, the fear of death, and the desire to save self and to advance oneself above others—Pharisaism.

Salvation means to be healed, to be transformed, to be renewed, to become like Jesus in character having the law written upon the heart. This is not a legal process it is a reality process. And the penal legal theologies based on the human law construct obstruct the real healing that God freely offers all of us.

Jesus singly and alone procured the remedy to our sin problem, in doing so He in His person, because He became fully human saved the species human. The Holy Spirit administers the remedy that Jesus procured into the hearts and minds of all who give consent, all who surrender to Christ and say yes, and all who cooperate with God and comply with His treatment plan.

MONDAY

Read first paragraph,

> Sin had been a dark, dominating force in the lives of the members of Paul's audience. Paul can describe them in their prior existence as the walking dead—"dead in trespasses and sins" (Eph. 2:1, NKJV) yet "walking" or living as Satan commanded them (Eph. 2:1–3). Enslaved to sin and Satan, they had no ability to free themselves. They needed rescue. God has done so through His gracious actions in Christ, and Paul celebrates two new blessings of God's grace in the lives of believers: redemption and forgiveness. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 16).

How is this paragraph describing sin? If a person is enslaved to sin, which is a terminal condition that will result in death, can that condition be resolved by legal means?

Can you think of a condition today that is destructive to those who are caught up in it and enslaves them at the same time? Addictions—can people be set free from addictions by legal means?

- If God or the nation passed laws against using drugs, does that free people from drug addiction?
- How about if we inflict external punishments on people for using illegal drugs, does that make them addiction free?
- What if we have an innocent substitute take the addict's place, and we inject the innocent person with some drug and then execute the substitute in the place of the addict, does that set the addict free from the enslavement of their addiction?
- What if we have the supreme court declare the addict innocent of any wrongdoing does that set them free from their addiction?
- What if we have the person who led them into drugs and their pusher arrested and punished does that set the addict free from their addiction?
- Is there anything legal that actually sets the addict free from all aspects of their addiction and restores them to perfect health, including freeing them from all desire to ever use again?

- What is necessary to free someone caught in addiction? Healing the brokenness and damage within that causes and reinforces the destructive addictive cycles and behaviors.

As the Bible teaches:

- "We who are Jews by birth and not 'Gentile sinners' know that a man is not justified by observing the law, but by faith in Jesus Christ. So we, too, have put our faith in Christ Jesus that we may be justified by faith in Christ and not by observing the law, because by observing the law no one will be justified…for if righteousness could be gained through the law, Christ died for nothing!" (Galatians 2:15, 16 & 21 NIV84).

This is why, through faith, we are, reborn, have circumcision of the heart by the Spirit, have the hard stony heart removed and a tender heart created within, receive a new heart and right spirit, have the living law of love written into our hearts and minds, become new creations, have the mind of Christ. Everything that the Bible teaches about salvation is about healing, recreation, renewal, restoration to God's original ideal that He created Adam and Eve to become. It is Jesus who became the second Adam and through our truth in Jesus we are transformed back into God's original plan, people recreated with hearts and minds that love God and others and love to live out God's methods. None of this is legal, it is all actual, reality based, transformational.

Read the third and fifth paragraphs,

> Our freedom comes at an extreme cost: "In him [Jesus] we have redemption through his blood" (Eph. 1:7, ESV). The idea of redemption also celebrates God's gracious generosity in paying the high price of our liberty. God gives us our freedom and dignity. We are no longer enslaved!..
> Note carefully that the idea that God pays the price of redemption to Satan is a medieval, not a biblical, one. God neither owes nor pays Satan anything. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 16).

The lesson is correct when it states the idea of God paying the devil a price is not biblical. So we can rule out the idea that the blood price was paid to Satan.

But the lesson doesn't tell us why Christ did have to pay a price—and the price is His blood. It doesn't explain what does this mean and it doesn't tell us to whom was it paid.

Have you ever heard that the blood price was paid to God or the law? Have you ever had ideas of Jesus in heaven presenting His blood to the Father to pay for our sins, or applying His blood to record books to erase our sins?

Is His blood a legal price that God's heavenly court or law required be paid to legally allow God to pronounce legal pardon and declare the unrighteous who claim the blood to be legally accounted as righteous?

No, we just established that sinners cannot be made righteous through legal means. All the legal descriptions are false and interfere with people experiencing the reality that God has provided in Jesus.

So if you ask the question: What is the price that Jesus paid? The answer will be, as the lesson states, the blood of Jesus.

In the book, The Cross of Christ by George Knight, which is a book held in high esteem by those who cling to the penal/legal view of salvation, he agrees with the lesson that "the ransom price was His [Christ's] blood." (p. 69).

He also agrees with the lesson that the idea that the price was paid to the devil is not biblical. But after demonstrating that the blood price was not paid to Satan, he then writes the following:

> …Word pictures such as ransom and redemption are metaphors that teach a lesson but (like Christ's parables) were not meant to be taken literally in all their details. We do not, therefore, have to be concerned with whom the ransom payment went to.
> Leon Morris writes "that in the New Testament there is never any hint of a recipient of the ransom. In other words[,] we must understand redemption as a useful metaphor which enables us to see some aspects of Christ's great saving work with clarity but which is not an exact description of the whole process of salvation. We must not press it beyond what the New Testament tells us about it. To look for a recipient of the ransom is illegitimate. We have no reason for pressing every detail. We must use the metaphor in the way the New Testament writers did or we fall into error. (Knight, G., The Cross of Christ p. 70).

Does this sound reasonable to you? Is it true the New Testament never gives any hint of a recipient of the ransom? Is it true that to look for a recipient is illegitimate?

Or is to whom the price is paid one of the most critical piece of information for us to understand in the plan of salvation? If someone held your child captive and a ransom was required to free them, don't you want to know who it went? Wouldn't knowing that be important information for your future ability to love and trust? What if the ransom went to one of your own siblings who kidnapped your child? And what would is say about God if the ransom price had to be paid to God?

There is a reason the penal legal models take the position cited above—they want to avoid the unreasonable, illogical, and destructive conclusion that God or the law are the ones being paid off by Jesus' blood, because they know such an idea prevents salvation and incites greater fear of God. It creates a divide among the Godhead with one member being for us but another member requiring something done to Him in order to be for us.

And is it truth that "in the New Testament there is never any hint of a recipient of the ransom"? Only if one believes Satan's lies that God's law functions like human law and salvation is a legal payment. If that is one's belief, then it is true that the Bible provides no hint ever of a recipient for a legal payment to set sinners legally free. This is quite right.

But if you return to worshiping God as Creator, and recognize His laws are the laws reality operates upon, then you will realize that the New Testament does teach exactly and specifically to the ransom is paid.

Both the lesson and The Cross of Christ agree that the ransom price is the blood of Jesus, which is still a metaphor, for it isn't the red corpuscles but as the Bible says, the life is in the blood. So it is the sinless life of Jesus that is the ransom price, but let's stick with the blood metaphor for a moment as the price, and we discover that Jesus Himself told exactly to who the ransom price is paid:

> "I tell you the truth, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you have no life in you. Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood has eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is real food and my blood is real drink. Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood remains in me, and I in him. Just as the living Father sent me and I live because of the Father, so the one who feeds on me will live because of me. This is the bread that came down from heaven. Your forefathers ate manna and died, but he who feeds on this bread will live forever." (John 6:53-58 NIV84).

Does Jesus tell us specifically who is to receive the ransom price of His blood? Jesus is clear, if we don't receive the ransom payment of His blood into us then we have no life, in other words we die from sin.

But blood is still a metaphor, He is not speaking cannibalism. So to understand the full meaning of the ransom price we must move beyond metaphor to reality.

What is the function of a ransom? It is the price necessary to free someone from bondage.

What holds us sinners in bondage?

- The lies of Satan that we believe that keep us from trusting Him
- Our own terminal, carnal, sin-condition

What do we need to be set free, to be ransomed from this terminal state?

- Truth to destroy the lies of Satan and win us back to trust in God
- A new nature

This is illustrated in the metaphor of flesh and blood. The flesh is the truth which destroys the lies of Satan. Jesus is the Word made flesh, to eat the flesh of Jesus means to ingest into our hearts and minds the truth about God that Jesus revealed which destroys Satan's lies about God and restores us to trust. Then we open the heart in trust and we receive a new life, new motives, new desires, are reborn by receiving the life of Christ which is illustrated by His blood, and that new life is the life of love which casts out all fear and we are no longer controlled by the carnal selfish survival of the fittest drives. Thus we have a new life and from that moment begin growing in godliness.

This is reality from our God who built reality—there is nothing penal or legal going on in the plan of redemption.

So what about the language of paying a price? To whom is the price paid? It is paid that reality required in order for human beings to be saved from this sin condition and, it was paid to you and me. We needed the truth and we needed a new heart and right spirit. God did not need truth presented to Him and God did not need a new sinless life with new motives and desires restored within.

Read the last paragraph,

> The benefits of Calvary also include "the forgiveness of our trespasses" (Eph. 1:7, ESV). On the cross, Christ takes upon Himself the price of our sin, both past and future, "canceling the record of debt that stood against us with its legal demands" (Col. 2:14, ESV). In doing this work of redemption and forgiveness through Christ, God is acting as our generous Father, with the "riches of his grace" being "lavished upon us" (Eph. 1:7, 8, ESV). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 16).

What does it mean that the benefits of Calvary also include the forgiveness of our trespasses?

- Are they saying God could not forgive without the death of Jesus?
- Are they saying that God's forgiveness is the same as salvation?
- Did Jesus forgive those who were crucifying Him?
- Did He have the right to forgive people of their sins?
- And did Jesus' forgiveness of them result in their salvation and cause them to become Jesus trustworthy friends or did they remain His enemies?

Be very clear, God's heart toward all sinners is that of forgiveness. But not all sinners receive that forgiveness into their hearts and therefore they are not convicted of the goodness of God and the destructiveness of sin and therefore they do not repent. They do not repent from distrust and rebellion. Thus, they remain hostile to God and in a state of unforgiveness, i.e. rebellion, even though God is forgiving to them.

The death of Christ was not in any means or aspect necessary to change God or get God to forgive. The self-sacrifice of God in His Son was absolutely required in order to save human sinners and it was provided by God as a free gift to us.

What do you think of their quotation of Jesus taking upon Himself all our sins and "canceling the record or our debt that stood against us with its legal demands," quoting Colossians 2:14 from ESV?

Other versions render it:

- having canceled the written code, with its regulations, that was against us and that stood opposed to us; he took it away, (Colossians 2:14 NIV84).

- having wiped out the handwriting of requirements that was against us, which was contrary to us. (Colossians 2:14 NKJV).

- he cancelled the unfavourable record of our debts with its binding rules and did away with it completely by nailing it to the cross. (Colossians 2:14 GNT)

How do you hear this? There is nothing about legal requirements in the text, that is read in and written in by the translators of the ESV. It is based on reading the Bible with the assumption that God's law works like human law and that sin is a legal problem. But when we return to design law, we realize it is so much more simple, reasonable, and beautiful—because it is how reality works. This is how I rendered it in The Remedy, we will start in verse 13.

> When your condition was terminal, when selfishness reigned unchecked in your minds, and when your hearts were tied to the destructive cravings and practices of the world, God intervened and brought you the life-giving Remedy–Jesus Christ. He reclaimed you from your terminal condition, nullifying the pathology report that certified you as dead in sin; he made it clear that the written code, with its regulations, was only a diagnostic instrument designed to expose our terminal state and teach us the need for a true cure, and he nailed it to the cross. Through his death, he revealed the truth about God and–in his humanity–eradicated selfishness, thus he completely destroyed Satan's weapons of lies and selfishness, and triumphed over Satan at the cross. (Colossians 3:13-15 REM)

Do you see how Jesus nullified the pathology report, the diagnosis of humanity's terminal state?

If you had cancer and had a treatment that destroyed the cancer and restored you to perfect health, then the diagnostic accuracy of the pathology report that condemned you to die from cancer is nullified.

In Jesus we who were dead in trespass and sin are reborn with new hearts and right spirits and receive eternal life. The pathology report that certified us as terminal is nullified when we are reborn in Christ.

Thoughts?

Does the Bible contradict itself? The quote in Colossians appears, in some versions, to say that through Christ the record of our debt is canceled, but in 1 Corinthians 13 it says:

> Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It is not rude, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, it keeps no record of wrongs. (1 Corinthians 13:4-6 NIV84 emphasis mine).

The Bible teaches that God is love, therefore God keeps no record of wrongs—is this a contradiction? What do we do with the records described in Revelation, the heavenly records if there is no record of wrongs?

> And I saw the dead, great and small, standing before the throne, and books were opened. Another book was opened, which is the book of life. The dead were judged according to what they had done as recorded in the books. (Revelation 20:12 NIV84).

What is going on here? Are there deeds being recorded into books when 1 Corinthians tells us that love keeps no record of wrongs?

The Bible tells us what is recorded in the books,

> And I urge you also, true companion, help these women who labored with me in the gospel, with Clement also, and the rest of my fellow workers, whose names are in the Book of Life. (Philippians 4:3 NKJV).

> Nothing impure will ever enter it, nor will anyone who does what is shameful or deceitful, but only those whose names are written in the Lamb's book of life. (Revelation 21:27 NIV84).

What is recorded in the books? Names, and in Scripture what do names represent? Character—it is our individuality, our characters, that are recorded in the books of heaven. Those who have trusted Jesus and been reborn have Christlike characters operating upon the design law of God which has been reproduced in them. But those who have rejected Christ and clung to the methods of fear and selfishness, coercive control, and legal enforcement form characters like Satan. And thus their records accurately diagnose who they are in character.

Thus the best way to understand all Bible passages about heavenly records is that they are like medical records; they simply record what is happening in a person. If a person is sick with sin, then just like a medical record that records pathology, our heavenly records record that destructive process with all of its symptoms we call sins. But if a sick person takes a remedy then the medical records record the healing transformation that occurs when the symptoms resolve, the lungs clear up, the fevers stop, the cough resolves, the blood oxygen levels return to normal, the medical records document that. So, too our heavenly records merely record what is happening in us. If you want to have changes made in your heavenly records you MUST have changes made via the Holy Spirit in your heart and mind.

Here are two historical quotes from EG White, one of the founders of the SDA church who described it this way:

> Remember, your character is being daguerreotyped [photographed] by the great Master Artist in the record books of heaven, as minutely as the face is reproduced upon the polished plate of the artist. What do the books of heaven say in your case? Are you conforming your character to the Pattern, Jesus Christ? (Letters and Manuscript Releases vol. 5 letter 51).

> Let parents and children remember that day by day they are each forming a character, and that the features of this character are imprinted upon the books of heaven. God is taking pictures of His people, just as surely as an artist takes pictures of men and women, transferring the features of the face to the polished plate. What kind of picture do you wish to produce?

> Parents, answer the question! What kind of picture will the great Master Artist make of you in the records of heaven? (Child Guidance 562).

So God doesn't keep score, count up wrong deeds, tally up how much each person must be punished. All such ideas are Satan's, they stem from accepting the lie that God's law functions like human law. God is the God of reality and God's records are simply the accurate recording of what actually is in every heart and mind. Have we surrendered to Jesus in repentance and been reborn with a new heart and right spirit and chosen to apply God's design laws to our lives in how we live, or do we reject the kingdom of heaven and instead embrace the kingdom of this world with its imposed rules and legal enforcement that is incapable of healing hearts and minds?

TUESDAY

Read second paragraph,

> The term that Paul uses to describe the plan is a picturesque one (Greek, anakephalaiōsasthai), to "head up" or to "sum up" all things in Christ. In ancient accounting practice, you would "add up" a column of figures and place the total at the top. Jesus heads God's final, eschatological plan. This Christ-centered plan was crafted "before the foundation of the world" (Eph. 1:4) and is so broad that it encompasses all time ("the fullness of the times," NKJV) and space ("all things . . . things in heaven and things on earth," ESV). Paul announces unity in Christ as the grand, divine goal for the universe. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 17).

This is well said, Jesus is the sum total of God's goodness, truth, love, power, presence—as Scripture says

> For in Him [Christ] dwells all the fullness of the Godhead bodily (Colossians 2:9 NKJV).

> In the past God spoke to our forefathers through the prophets at many times and in various ways, but in these last days he has spoken to us by his Son, whom he appointed heir of all things, and through whom he made the universe. The Son is the radiance of God's glory and the exact representation of his being, sustaining all things by his powerful word. (Hebrews 1:1-3 NIV84).

Yes, Jesus is the fullness of God. In Jesus we see God's character perfectly revealed.

What about the idea that this plan of salvation in Jesus was put in place before God created this world or human beings?

Is this true? Then what would that say about God's foreknowledge? God foreknew and was not caught off guard by sin. God is the Creator of all things, including time itself, and God lives outside of and above time and can access all points in time simultaneously. We are restricted to a linear existence in time, but God is not, and the various theories that suggest God doesn't have foreknowledge are ideas that put limits or restrictions on God.

Read third paragraph,

> In discussing God's "plan for the fullness of time" (Eph. 1:10, ESV), Paul shares the theme that he will weave through the letter. God begins His plan to unify all things, rooted in the death, resurrection, ascension, and exaltation of Jesus (Eph. 1:15–2:10), by founding the church and unifying disparate elements of humankind, Jews and Gentiles, in it (Eph. 2:11–3:13). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 17).

How is it that the universe is brought to unity in Jesus? Can someone explain that process?

What causes division? Lies, fear, and selfishness. And lies primarily about whom?

Then what results in unity? Truth that destroys the lies about God and restores trust, and then having God's law restored into the hearts and minds of us sinners so that we live in harmony with God and unfallen angels, i.e. that we are trustworthy.

The one thing God will not compromise is freedom, because love only exists in freedom. And God will run His universe in such a way that all His intelligent creatures have real freedom. This means heaven will only be populated by people who are safe with freedom, people who are fully and perfectly restored to love, for only those kinds of people are safe to live in full freedom.

Does such freedom mean we are free from God's law or does the law give us freedom?

James says,

> But the man who looks intently into the perfect law that gives freedom, and continues to do this, not forgetting what he has heard, but doing it—he will be blessed in what he does. (James 1:25 NIV84).

How does God's law give freedom? Doesn't law restrict?
What kind of law? Imposed law restricts, design law sets free.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson asks us to read Ephesian 1:11-12; they use the NKJV:

> In Him also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestined according to the purpose of Him who works all things according to the counsel of His will, that we who first trusted in Christ should be to the praise of His glory. (Ephesians 1:11-12 NKJV)

What does this mean? What inheritance? What does it mean to be predestined?

What did we inherit from Adam? A terminal sin condition. We were all born in sin and conceived in iniquity. We did not have a choice in the state of our birth. Jesus became a human for the purpose of changing this state of things, for the purpose of destroying death and bring life and immortality to light. He did this by partaking of the terminal condition we all inherit from Adam, overcoming and destroying that condition and replacing that terminal life with His eternal and immortal life that He infused into humanity when He became incarnate. By His victory the species human was purified and saved from eternal death and now in the person of Jesus a human being stands at the command center of the universe directing all of God's agencies for the administration and application of what Jesus achieved into the hearts and minds of all who consent to His working in their hearts and minds.

Thus God predetermined to send Jesus to cure the condition and offer the Remedy Jesus procured to all who trust Him. This is how I rendered it in The Remedy:

> In the person of Jesus Christ, we experience restored unity with God–the culmination of the Father's plan, the result of what God predetermined to do–as he always works for the healing and restoration of his creation. This is in order that we–who were the first to recognize the significance of all that Christ is, and all he has done–might bring praise and glory to God by experiencing re-creation of Christlike character within. (Ephesians 1:1-2 REM)

Does this answer your questions about predestination? Then what do we do with texts like Romans 8:29-20:

> For those God foreknew he also predestined to be conformed to the likeness of his Son, that he might be the firstborn among many brothers. And those he predestined, he also called; those he called, he also justified; those he justified, he also glorified (Romans 8:29, 30 NIV84).

Does this text teach, as many Calvinists claim, that God chooses who is saved and who is lost? Does this text mean that individual salvation is only up to God to decide? Or do we, in our attempt to protect God's reputation, knowing that without freedom there is no love, reject the idea of God's foreknowledge altogether, as open theists do?

The key to understanding this passage, as with the rest of Scripture, is what law lens we are reading it through. If we read Scripture with the assumption that God's law functions like human law—imposed rules enforced by the rule-giver—then God is the all-powerful enforcer who makes things happen the way He wants them to happen. Under this imposed-law view, predestination is God deciding upon whom He will use His power to call, justify, and glorify.

But under design law, we understand God's laws are the protocols upon which reality functions. This means God governs, through the sustaining of the laws that He built reality upon, all aspects of creation, including time. Unlike us, God is not constrained to a linear existence; He lives outside the dimension of time. God doesn't serve at the whims of time; time serves God.

When the Bible says that those God "foreknew" He "predestined" to be conformed to the likeness of His Son, it isn't speaking of mere cognitive knowledge (awareness)—a list of names and social security numbers in a heavenly registry; rather, it is speaking of biblical knowledge, the fullest sense of "knowing" someone.

Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived (Genesis 4:1 ESV).

This "knowing" is intimate knowledge, not mere cognitive awareness. The unsaved do not have this knowledge of God; therefore, they are not known by God in this intimate, saving way. Jesus said it plainly:

> Not everyone who says to me, "Lord, Lord," will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven. Many will say to me on that day, "Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and in your name drive out demons and perform many miracles?" Then I will tell them plainly, "I never knew you. Away from me, you evildoers!" (Matthew 7:21–23 NIV84).

Jesus surely knows who these people are, so this isn't about awareness. It is about intimacy, unity, oneness—a loving, mutual bond of trust. These people were never friends of Jesus. They never opened their hearts to allow Him in and, thus, they never knew Jesus even though they knew about Him and claimed to be His followers. And because they never chose to know Jesus, they were not in turn known by Jesus in the intimate bonds of fellowship and love. This intimate "knowing" is the key to every person's salvation:

> Now this is eternal life: that they may know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom you have sent (John 17:3 NIV84).

Thus, those whom God foreknows He predetermined will be conformed to the likeness of His Son. It is God's purpose to heal and restore all who trust Him. It is a certainty that those who come to know God, open their heart to Him, and experience His indwelling presence are set right (justified). Those whom God foreknows are the very ones who have chosen to trust Him; that is how God knows them—because they have chosen to know Him.

THURSDAY

Read first paragraph,

> In exploring the importance of the Holy Spirit in the lives of believers, Paul uses two images, or metaphors, for the Spirit. He first pictures the Holy Spirit as a "seal," identifying a sealing presence of the Spirit that occurs from the time of conversion. In ancient times, seals were used for a wide variety of functions: to authenticate copies of laws and agreements, to validate the excellence or quantity of a container's contents (e.g., Ezek. 28:12), or to witness transactions (e.g., Jer. 32:10–14, 44), contracts, letters (e.g., 1 Kings 21:8), wills, and adoptions. Imprinted > on an object, a seal announced both ownership and protection. The presence of the Holy Spirit in their lives marks believers as belonging to God and conveys God's promise to protect them (compare Eph. 4:30). They have been "sealed with the promised Holy Spirit" (Eph. 1:13, ESV). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 17).

What does this mean? Is the seal a legal mark externally applied in some accounting system, or is it the mark the Holy Spirit makes in the heart, mind, and character restoring in use Christlikeness—we are marked or sealed with the qualities of God as lived out by Christ when we are renewed by the Holy Spirit.

2023 3Q Ephesians—Lesson 3
The Power of the Exalted Jesus

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

SABBATH

Read Memory Text:

> Through the Holy Spirit, believers may know "what is the exceeding greatness of His power toward us who believe, according to the working of His mighty power which He worked in Christ when He raised Him from the dead and seated Him at His right hand in the heavenly places" (Ephesians 1:19-20 NKJV)

What is this power? What kind of power is this? Is this the power of physical might, of thunder, lightning, flaming swords, fire falling from heaven to destroy rebellion, the power of cosmic winds and atomic forces, the nuclear power of suns?

Let us be clear, we believe God is Creator and He is omnipotent in physical power and creative power, and He governs the laws of nature, and through Him all things were made and through Him all things hold together and are sustained. So, we never want to suggest anything that diminishes the might and power of God—however, is the physical might and power of God what wins the war against Satan and what Paul is referring to here?

Could God have used physical might to destroy Satan at the very first moment Satan rebelled in heaven? Why didn't God do this?

Would rebellion against God, the breach of trust, the growth of fear and selfishness, which is sin, have been eliminated if God had used might and power to destroy Satan in the beginning?

What about at any time? If God ever uses might and power to inflict pain, suffering, and death as punishment to destroy His enemies what will that result in? Will it result in the removal from every single remaining heart and mind all doubt, all misunderstanding, all fear, or will it result in the seeds of distrust, rebellion, fear and selfishness remaining in hearts and minds?

Can you get love, devotion, loyalty, trust, friendship by using might and power to destroy anyone who refuses to love you and be loyal to you?

What is the war over?

topics@comeandreason.com

> For though we live in the world, we do not wage war as the world does. The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. We demolish arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and we take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ. (2 Corinthians 10:3-5 NIV84).

The war is over God's character, His trustworthiness. So imagine in heaven, Satan starts to lie about God, and God calls the heavenly beings together and says,

> "Satan has lied about me; he has said that I am not just. Well, I am not only just, I am also love. And you can know it is true because I have said so, and because Satan has spoken falsely about me. Justice requires that I now execute him." And God kills Satan, and then says, "Does anyone now doubt how just I am?"

Would such actions result in the resolution of fear? Would the lies that Satan had been telling be resolved if God used such methods? Could God leave His heavenly beings truly free and use such controlling methods?

How do such methods look in the church today? What about proving things with a key text, saying God is just because the Bible says God is just. And who inspired the Bible, it is God the Holy Spirit, so if the Bible says God is just, isn't that the same thing as God saying He is just. Are we supposed to believe because God says it, or does God want us to believe He is just because He has revealed by deed, evidence, and action that He is just and we actually understand what true justice is?

Now, the Bible does say God is just, but is that the reason we believe it? Or is a claim, a proclamation insufficient to win the war to restore trust? Is actual evidence of trustworthiness required as well as the evidence that Satan lied?

So God gave evidence to demonstrate His character of love, His righteousness, which is the same as His justice. Paul wrote:

> "God offered him, so that by his blood he should become the means by which people's sins are forgiven through their faith in him. God did this in order to demonstrate that he is righteous. In the past he was patient and overlooked people's sins; but in the present time he deals with their sins, in order to demonstrate his righteousness. In this way God shows that he himself is righteous and that he puts right everyone who believes in Jesus (Romans 3:35,36 GNT, emphasis mine).

Consider this quote from a book Patriarchs and Prophets, this quotation will give us insight into what the Seventh-day Adventist church was called into existence to teach. It will reveal what is necessary to with the war, and how imposed rules, legal declarations, use of external might and power, proclamations, proof texts, doctrinal statements—even true ones, are insufficient to win the war. That the SDA church was called to lead people out of a legal religion to a reality-based experience with God based on the truth of who God is, including design law. I want you to consider if the message we read in the quarterlies consistently presents this perspective or has our church lost its way, just like God's church 2000 years ago, the Jewish nation lost its way and rejected God when He came to them in person?

> Even when he was cast out of heaven, Infinite Wisdom did not destroy Satan. [Why not? If God runs His universe on rules, and Satan broke the rules, why not call Satan before the heavenly tribunal, play the recordings of Satan's false statements against God. Then have God take the stand and say, "this is not true. I am just. Satan has lied, and all those who believe Satan are also now liars and will be found guilty. Since I am completely just, I am now going to execute Satan for His crime against me. Does anyone else here believe that I am not just?" Might one of the angels say, "God of course we know you are just. It is simply that this doesn't seem like the loving thing to do. We also thought that you were not only just, but were love. Were we wrong about that?" And God responds, "You were not wrong. I am love because I say I am love and who are you to question me on this? You wouldn't suggest that my actions in destroying Satan are not love would you?" Why didn't God destroy Satan? Because God is love and God's justice is the justice of love, and love cannot be compelled, it cannot be developed or experienced by force, by coercion, so if God were to act in these ways God would not be love and His actions would destroy love in the hearts of the loyal angels and Satan's rebellion spreads.] Since only the service of love can be acceptable to God, the allegiance of His creatures must rest upon a conviction of His justice and benevolence. [What kind of allegiance is this? Can such loyalty be obtained through imposed laws, rules enforced by threats of punishment? How can angels or humans know that God is just and benevolent? Can we know this through claims, through statements, through written words, because the Bible has a proof text that says God is love? Does the Bible text that says God is love prove God is love? How can God win us to eternal confidence and unshakable certainty that He is just and benevolent? Doesn't that have to be demonstrated by evidence? And that is the true purpose of Scripture, to record the history of God's actions in dealing with the sin problem, demonstrating God's character, methods, principles, ultimately in the life of Christ which is not a declaration or a claim, but reality, historical fact that God is love, and that God will never use His power to kill us, but would rather die that use His power to save Himself even from unjust execution. Notice what the author says next as to why God didn't destroy Satan.] The inhabitants of heaven and of the worlds, being unprepared to comprehend the nature or consequences of sin, could not then have seen the justice of God in the destruction of Satan. [Does this statement say God would be just in using His power to destroy Satan, or that if God had permitted Satan's destruction it would be just on God's part, but the heavenly intelligences would not have understood how and why it was just?] Had he been immediately blotted out of existence, some would have served God from fear rather than from love. [Why would some of the sinless angels have served God from fear rather than love, if God would have eliminated Satan in any way—certainly if God would have used power to artificially destroy Satan as an external execution we can understand how that would have resulted in fear. But what if God simply allowed Satan to reap what sin brings, separation from God who is the source of life and therefore Satan ceases to exist and die. What then? Since no death had ever occurred, and since Satan had lied about God's law and government, the cause of death would have been misunderstood. The idea that God kills, inflicts death as punishment would have persisted even if Satan was gone and that idea would continue to spread into more hearts and minds and love and trust for God would be undermined and sin would continue.] The influence of the deceiver would not have been fully destroyed, nor would the spirit of rebellion have been utterly eradicated. [Why? Because misunderstanding about what causes death would persist and beings would believe God is the source of death and will kill the disobedient. What does most of Christianity teach God must do for justice sake? Use His power to kill the wicked. This is part of Satan's lies from the beginning. Love and trust cannot be achieved through the external infliction of punishment, for it is a violation of God's law of love and liberty and always results in the destruction of love and the incitement of rebellion.] For the good of the entire universe through ceaseless ages, he must more fully develop his principles, that his charges against the divine government might be seen in their true light by all created beings, and that the justice and mercy of God and the immutability of His law might be forever placed beyond all question. Patriarchs and Prophets 42.3 [For the good of the universe Satan's existence and rebellion must be allowed to grow—how is this good? Because it is the only way to eliminate the lies. When lies are believed they cannot be removed from hearts and minds by declarations of truth alone. Irrefutable, overwhelming, reliable, and reality-based evidence is required. The old saying, the proof is in the pudding. The outcome will reveal the truth. The only way to fully and permanently eliminate Satan's rebellion is through a revelation of truth—both God revealing the truth about Himself and His kingdom, which was accomplished through Jesus, and Satan revealing the truth about his character, methods, and kingdom—which is being revealed and will more fully be revealed right before Christ's return when God's protective hand is withdrawn as more people harden their hearts against God.]

Satan's rebellion was to be a lesson to the universe through all coming ages—a perpetual testimony to the nature of sin and its terrible results. The working out of Satan's rule, its effects upon both men and angels, would show what must be the fruit of setting aside the divine authority. [What does this mean? What law lens? Is this saying, see if you break the rules then God is the one who will use power to cause all kinds of pain and suffering and death as punishment for sin and that is really bad, so be good and obey the rules because God is just and loves you. Or is this saying, that breaking away from God and God's design laws results only in disorder, chaos, suffering, sickness and death and it will be evident to all that Satan's rebellion is the cause of all pain, suffering and death, not God.] It would testify that with the existence of God's government is bound up the well-being of all the creatures He has made. [How will this Great Controversy, this battle between good and evil waged throughout human history here on planet Earth testify that the well-being of all creatures is bound up in God's government? Because God's government is the government of reality, love, truth, freedom and His laws are the very basis for life and health and all will see that life and health are only possible in harmony with the laws upon which life is built.] Thus the history of this terrible experiment of rebellion was to be a perpetual safeguard to all holy beings, to prevent them from being deceived as to the nature of transgression, to save them from committing sin, and suffering its penalty. Patriarchs and Prophets 42.4 [Suffering sin's penalty—what does this mean? Does this say suffering the legal penalty inflicted by the just demands of God's holy law, or suffering the penalty that sin itself causes?]

Now, we are talking about the power of God, has this review of what the Adventist church is supposed to be teaching had anything to do with the power of God that Paul is talking about in Ephesians? Is there power in putting down rebellion and securing the universe from all future rebellion?

But what kind of power? Does God with the war through the exercise of physical might and enforcing power? So what power wins the war?

It is the power that Paul refers to in Romans?

> I am not ashamed of the gospel, because it is the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes: first for the Jew, then for the Gentile. For in the gospel a righteousness from God is revealed, a righteousness that is by faith from first to last, just as it is written: "The righteous will live by faith." (Romans 1:16–17 NIV84).

Gospel power is the power of the truth about God and the love of God, truth that destroys lies and wins us back to faith or trust, and in that restored intimacy with God, we know Him and experiencing His healing and transforming presence, His love, in us and we are healed from fearful enemies to trusting friends.

SUNDAY

The lesson is about prayer, read the fourth paragraph,

> What does it really mean to "pray without ceasing" (1 Thess. 5:17)? It cannot mean that we are always kneeling before God in prayer. It does mean that, blessed by God's Spirit, we move through life with hearts open to the presence and power of God, seeking cues for thanksgiving to Him. It means a readiness to process the issues of life in the presence of God, to seek divine counsel as we experience the twists and turns that life brings. It means living not in estrangement from God but in engagement with Him, ever open to divine leading. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 23).

What does it mean to pray without ceasing?

What do you understand prayer to be?

What do you think of this description from the book Christ's Object Lessons, do you think this is an accurate description of what prayer is supposed to be or not?

> Our life is to be bound up with the life of Christ; we are to draw constantly from Him, partaking of Him, the living Bread that came down from heaven, drawing from a fountain ever fresh, ever giving forth its abundant treasures. [What does this mean? This is a metaphor, so interpret the symbols? What does the living bread represent? The word of God, the truth as revealed by Jesus, we are to partake of truth from God's word, from God's revelations in > nature and life's experiences. All truth comes from and through Jesus to us. And these truths, some from revelation in Scripture, like the truth of Creation is six days followed by the Sabbath, some from experience, like God's forgiveness and grace which removes guilt and shame, and some from science and nature, the wonders of God's creation. As we internalize these truths what happens in us? This is to be our mindset as we daily journey through life, seeing the world around us through the mind of a person who knows and loves God and understands reality from heaven's perspective. Such a mindset impacts how we experience, understand, and relate to the events we are experiencing. And because God is infinite the truth that we are to experience is infinite, we have fresh revelations and insights daily. We never stop growing and advancing in our knowledge and experiences with God.] If we keep the Lord ever before us, allowing our hearts to go out in thanksgiving and praise to Him, we shall have a continual freshness in our religious life. [What does this mean? Allowing our hearts to go out in thanksgiving and praise? Consider your relationship with your spouse. When you are apart and anything of significance happens, what do you want to do? If you see a beautiful sunset, don't you want to take a picture and show your spouse? If you spot a black bear in your yard, don't you want to call your spouse and let them know? If you see a horrible train derailment don't you want to tell your spouse? In other words, when you are in relationship with someone, don't you want to share life with them, talk with them? And of course, when you receive various blessings from your spouse don't you automatically express your love and thanks to them? But what about when hardships happen, when pain occurs, sickness, death—what then? Well in my experience it is during those hard times that I find myself most thankful for my loved ones, my spouse, family, friends. Likewise, it is during the most difficult times that it is so sweet to trust in Jesus and lean into His love and mercy. So, if we have this mindset with God, notice what this author says our prayer life becomes.] Our prayers will take the form of a conversation with God as we would talk with a friend. [When you are going throughout your day, do you find yourself talking to God, commenting to Him your appreciation for the beautiful cardinal, thanking Him for the sounds of the flowing stream, the love of friends and family? Do you also tell him of your irritation with the traffic, or the frustration with the broken dishwasher, or leaking roof? Do you tell him of your fears when a loved one is sick, and cry out to your heavenly Friend when your heart grieves? Is this what prayer is for you? Then notice what this author says happens, when we talk with God as a friend.] He will speak His mysteries to us personally. Often there will come to us a sweet joyful sense of the presence of Jesus. Often our hearts will burn within us as He draws nigh to commune with us as He did with Enoch. When this is in truth the experience of the Christian, there is seen in his life a simplicity, a humility, meekness, and lowliness of heart, that show to all with whom he associates that he has been with Jesus and learned of Him. (Christ's Object Lessons 129).

This is what I believe prayer is supposed to be, conversation with God as with a friend, sharing our lives in ongoing and active communication with God.

MONDAY

The lesson focuses our attention on the Holy Spirit, specifically on receiving wisdom from the Holy Spirit.

What do you understand wisdom to be?

What is the difference between wisdom and knowledge?

Knowledge is the awareness of facts, data, information—wisdom is the application of that knowledge in godly and healthy ways that conform to God's designs and principles for life.

Why is the wisdom of this world actually foolishness and the wisdom of God considered foolishness by the world?

Wisdom is knowing and living in harmony with reality—God's eternal reality, how life and health are designed by God to function.

Thus God's wisdom is based upon truth, love, and freedom. Genuine health and happiness, not momentary pleasure, is only possible in harmony with God and His design for life. Thus the more you give the more you receive. But this is the opposite of Satan's fantasy world, the false and artificial principles of this world, which is based upon lies, fear, selfishness, and coercion and says the more you take from others the more you have.

And what we are seeing in the world today is a world cycling downward into destruction as more and more of Satan's methods and principles are practiced and promoted as wisdom, but it is foolishness.

Consider the following out of the book Education, do you agree, and what does it mean?

> True education does not ignore the value of scientific knowledge or literary acquirements; but above information it values power; [What kind of power, coercive, external, force and might, or the power to think and to act, to exercise autonomy and choose?] above power, goodness; [what does power do when wielded by evil, so true education, education in God's kingdom must advance beyond facts and knowledge to the power to think and act, but that power must be governed by goodness and not evil] above intellectual acquirements, character. [And this is true education, to develop mature Christlike character] The world does not so much need men of great intellect as of noble character. It needs men in whom ability is controlled by steadfast principle. Ed 225.1 [What is the steadfast principle that needs to be the controlling influence in us? Love, altruistic other-centered love for God and others, which is based upon truth and freedom.]
> "Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom." "The tongue of the wise useth knowledge aright." Proverbs 4:7; 15:2. True education imparts this wisdom. It teaches the best use not only of one but of all our powers and acquirements. Thus it covers the whole > circle of obligation—to ourselves, to the world, and to God. Ed 225.2 [What is this describing? Reality, how God built reality to work and true wisdom restores people back to harmony with God and God's designs for life in how we live and relate and fulfill our obligations to ourselves, others, and God.]

TUESDAY

The lesson asks us "How is God's power expressed in the resurrection of Jesus?"

Thoughts?

> Since the children have flesh and blood, he too shared in their humanity so that by his death he might destroy him who holds the power of death—that is, the devil—and free those who all their lives were held in slavery by their fear of death. (Hebrews 2:14-15 NIV84).
> Christ Jesus, who has destroyed death and has brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. (2 Timothy 1:10 NIV84).

Jesus said to John in Revelation,

> I am the Living One; I was dead, and behold I am alive for ever and ever! And I hold the keys of death and Hades. (Revelation 1:18 NIV84).
> Then death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. The lake of fire is the second death. (Revelation 20:14 NIV84).

How does one destroy death? What kills, eliminated, erase, eradicates death? Life! So what do you think Christ's power is that destroys the power of death and what is the lake of fire? And how did Christ accomplish this at the cross?

In Jesus the principle of life, God's eternal, selfless love battled against fear and selfishness, the survival of the fittest principles that causes sinners to hurt, control, exploit and abuse others in order to protect self. Jesus, as our human substitute, had to decide, would He live out God's principle of love, giving His life freely, or would He choose to use power to protect self? Would He live out the justice of God, which is based on love, truth, and freedom—or would He use the methods of this world, the methods of force and external enforcement to put down the injustice and abuse that His enemies were doing to Him?

Jesus chose, in His own person, to say no to the desire to retaliate, to use power, to punish law-breakers, to protect Himself. Instead, He not only sacrificed Himself in love, He forgave those who were abusing Him. In the person of Jesus Christ the law of life, the law of love and truth and freedom destroyed the law of sin and death when Jesus refused to give in to all temptations to act in self-interest. Thus Jesus rose again in a humanity that He fixed, that He purged from all fear and selfishness, a new purified and sinless humanity. And Jesus became the second Adam, the new head of humanity—and as Scripture says:

> Although he was a son, he learned obedience from what he suffered and, once made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey him (Hebrews 5:8-9 NIV84).

As a human being, Jesus had to grow, mature, develop, and learn. Jesus had to choose, in His humanity, what principles He would live out, what character He would develop. And once, He was made perfect—not before—He became the source of salvation.

But wasn't Jesus always perfect—He was always sinless—but in His sinless self, He was still subject to our weaknesses, subject to temptation, and was tempted in every way just like we are yet without sin (Hebrews 4:15). And we are tempted by our own evil desires (James 1:14). Jesus became part of this humanity. Through Mary, Jesus took up humanity damaged and broken by Adam. And thus Jesus experienced the temptations of human emotions that tempt us to fear, and fear tempts us to act in self-interest. In Gethsemane Jesus felt these powerful emotional temptations to avoid the cross, to save self. But, because Jesus' Father was the Holy Spirit, He was capable of resisting that temptation and choosing with His human brain to love fully and perfectly. And thus in Jesus love destroyed fear and selfishness at the cross—life destroyed death at the cross and Jesus rose again as the predictable and inevitable outcome of living out perfectly God's living law of love.

This is how Jesus was able to tell His disciples over and over again that He was going to Jerusalem to be abused and killed by evil men, but that He would rise on the third day. Jesus knew what His mission was. He knew what was required to complete the mission of destroying the cause of death principle and restoring the life causing principle into humanity. His ability to predict His resurrection was based on His understanding of God's character and laws. It was not based upon a prophetic vision of seeing the future.

This is why in the book The Desire of Ages the author correctly writes,

> "Satan with his fierce temptations wrung the heart of Jesus. The Saviour could not see through the portals of the tomb" (The Desire of Ages 753).

Jesus was not given a vision of the future like Daniel or John were given in their prophetic visions. Jesus knew what was going to happen because He knew what the sin problem was and how He was going to destroy it and in doing so He would rise again.

So what is the resurrection power? It is the power of truth and love, God's living law that originates in and emanates from God and is the basis upon which God has constructed life to exist and operate, and when we are restored to harmony with truth and love we are restored to harmony with God and God's life-giving presence dwells in us again in the Third Person of the Godhead, the Holy Spirit, who recreates us in Christlikeness of character.

WEDNESDAY

Read first paragraph,

> Paul has celebrated the exaltation of Jesus, who now sits with the Father on the throne of the cosmos. Having defined the position of Christ in relationship to the Father ("seated . . . at his right hand in the heavenly places" [Eph. 1:20, ESV]), Paul turns to the relationship of Jesus to "the powers." As coregent with the Father, Jesus is "far above" them all (Eph. 1:21). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 26).

What do you think about this? When Jesus ascended to heaven, did He take His seat at the Father's right hand on the throne?

But I thought the SDA church teaches that He did not take up His ruling vestments, but His priestly robes and didn't sit on His throne but has been ministering as our High Priest in the heavenly sanctuary.

What do you think of this?

The description of Jesus going to heaven and taking the throne after His ascension has been used by some to suggest that the SDA sanctuary message is untrue, that Jesus did not go to heaven and begin any work in the heavenly sanctuary as our High Priest in heaven.

How do you address such concerns?

The word pictures of Scripture are designed to teach us truths about Christ's position in God's government, His authority, His rulership, and His activity in the plan of salvation—these Biblical descriptions are not designed or intended to reveal heavenly geography.

In other words, descriptions of Jesus on a throne or descriptions of Jesus as our High Priest in the heavenly sanctuary are descriptions of ability, authority, and function, not geography.

Right understanding requires our ability to think abstractly, to not get caught into literalism. Don't fall for the trap of believing either/or, either He is on the throne or He is in the sanctuary—He can't be both. That is childlike thinking. Instead, think through what these two pictures reveal about Jesus' role in the plan of salvation and how He is fulfilling both simultaneously to complete His work of winning the war.

I see no contradiction in either of these two descriptions, Jesus as ruling Sovereign and Jesus has our heavenly High Priest. They both are true and simultaneously so.

Remember, Jesus was always and already Sovereign, ruler, Creator, fully and equally God. In other words, before Jesus' incarnation He already shared the throne. So the image of Jesus returning to heaven and sharing the throne with the Father is not intended to describe Jesus receiving powers or authority that were new to Him.

These descriptions are intended to inform us that His mission to Earth, in His direct confrontation with Satan was successful and that He returned in humanity to take again His rightful place as ruler of the universe, and having won the victory here, having demonstrated the truth about God and God's design laws for life, having exposed Satan as a liar and fraud.

When Jesus returned to heaven as victor, as conqueror, He was recognized as such by the heavenly beings, and Jesus was enthroned in the position of victor and ruler and Sovereign in the hearts and minds of all heavenly beings. All of Satan's allegations against Jesus were gone, and the heavenly beings all recognize Him has worthy, worthy, worthy to have and wield all power because He has proven Himself eternally safe with all the power.

Jesus upon His ascension stepped into the command center of the universe for the purpose of directing all the agencies of heaven for the completion of the plan of salvation, which is the work metaphorically acted out in the sanctuary theater. Thus in Jesus He is both Sovereign Ruler and Ministering High Priest and fulfills both roles simultaneously.

Thus, these two descriptions have no tension in them at all but are in perfect accord with reality and what Christ is accomplishing in our behalf.

And in FRIDAY's lesson there is a quote from Acts of the Apostles that describes this very unity of function:

> When Christ passed within the heavenly gates, He was enthroned amidst the adoration of the angels. As soon as this ceremony was completed, the Holy Spirit descended upon the disciples in rich currents, and Christ was indeed glorified, even with the glory which He had with the Father from all eternity. The Pentecostal outpouring was Heaven's communication that the Redeemer's inauguration was accomplished. According to His promise He had sent the Holy Spirit from heaven to His followers as a token that He had, as priest and king, received all authority in heaven and on earth, and was the Anointed One over His people. (Acts of the Apostles 38).

This description describes both His coronation in heaven and simultaneously His ministry has High Priest directing the Holy Spirit to cleanse, heal, and empower His people.

The lesson talks about how in Ephesus there was a strong interest in magic, incantations, sorcery and such. The belief that through the proper incantations, words, recitation of verbal formulas, charms, and various rituals one could conjure and control spirits to achieve magical outcomes.

What do you think about this?

Are we seeing a resurgence in magic, sorcery, spiritualism in the world today?

What about in the church? Is magic and magical thinking intruding into Christianity? How?

What about the idea that our prayers are not valid, don't have power, won't be heard unless we end them with the proper incantation of reciting the powerful word "Jesus" "In the name of Jesus?" But, then we discover, Jesus never went by that name as that is a Greek transliteration of the Hebrew Joshua, so we fear our prayers never were heard because we used the wrong incantation. So we with renewed confidence pray again but this time in the name of Joshua, but then we discover that is still not how the Hebrew is spelled or pronounced and thus our incantation is still incorrect, so we begin again, but now in the name of Yashua. What joy we now feel knowing we have the right incantation and God will finally hear our prayers.

Is, prayer, the conversation with God as with a friend, really about saying the some word at the end in the right way? Even the name of God? If your grandchildren, struggle to pronounce your name properly, perhaps have difficulty with a lisp, or just cant form the words, but with love and joy call out to you, do you get offended, do you refuse to hear?

Think what this idea about we must use the right words when we pray says about God.

I like how the book The Desire of Ages describes what it means to pray in the name of Jesus:

> But to pray in Christ's name means much. It means that we are to accept His character, manifest His spirit, and work His works. (The Desire of Ages 668).

THURSDAY

Read second paragraph,

> Note carefully that having "put all things under his [Jesus'] feet," the Father "gave him as head over all things to the church" (Eph. 1:22, ESV; compare "gave Him to be head over all things to the church," NKJV). While "all things" is a universal, inclusive term, Paul still has in mind "the powers" mentioned in Ephesians 1:21. All things—the cosmic, supernatural, spiritual powers included—are under the feet of Christ, subservient to Him. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 27).

Was putting all things under Jesus' rule and authority a change? Was Jesus ever not in authority over all things? Was Jesus ever not the rightful ruler?

So, is this description about all things being placed under Jesus a description of a new position of authority with new responsibilities and abilities for Jesus, or is it a description of the recognition in the minds of all intelligences of the reality that was always true but had been hidden or obscured by Satan's lies and now that those lies were defeated then Jesus continuing on in His same position of authority is recognized as such by all heavenly beings?

Consider this description of the beginning of Lucifer's rebellion in heaven from the book Patriarchs and Prophets I encourage you to read the entire chapter, this is one short paragraph after Lucifer's lies to the angels had caused confusion, God announced the true position of His Son, but consider this statement:

> There had been no change in the position or authority of Christ. Lucifer's envy and misrepresentation and his claims to equality with Christ had made necessary a statement of the true position of the Son of God; but this had been the same from the beginning. Many of the angels were, however, blinded by Lucifer's deceptions. (Patriarchs and Prophets 38).

This is what lies do—they confuse and blind and thus the truth is needed, both to be proclaimed, but more powerfully revealed through evidence and action.

The lesson says, in the third paragraph, that "God has made Christ victorious over all evil powers."

What does this mean? How has God made Christ victorious? How was this victory over all evil powers achieved?

2023 3Q Ephesians—Lesson 4
How God Rescues Us

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

SABBATH

Read Memory Text:

> But God, being rich in mercy, because of the great love with which he loved us, even when we were dead in our trespasses, made us alive together with Christ—by grace you have been saved (Ephesians 2:4-5 ESV).

The lesson starts by recalling the rescue of 18-month-old Jessica McClure back in 1987 who fell down an 8 inch well casing, and how the rescuers piped air down to her and work feverishly for two days and finally rescued her from that well.

Then the lesson goes on to say in the last paragraph,

> There's nothing quite as gripping as a good rescue story, and Paul, in Ephesians 2:1–10, gives us an up-close-and-personal view of the grandest, most sweeping rescue mission of all time—God's efforts to redeem humanity. The drama of the story is heightened by knowing that we are not mere spectators of someone else's rescue but witnesses of our own. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 30).

Do any questions come to your mind? Do you say, yes, this is true God is rescuing us—but wait a minute—from what?

Do you instantly think God is rescuing us from:

- Sin?
- Death?
- Satan?
- The carnal nature?

Do you ever think Jesus is rescuing us from the just punishment God must inflict upon sinners for sin? Have you ever thought that Jesus has paid our legal penalty in order to rescue us from legal condemnation and God's eternal punishment?

Understand, rescuing us from sin and rescuing us from inflicted punishment for sin are not the same. These two ideas may sound similar, but that are not.

Rescuing someone from metastatic cancer and rescuing someone from a doctor who will kill them because they have metastatic cancer are not the same.

Thirty years ago, my father unexpectedly died at age 57. His death brought home to me the sin-sickness in this world. I lost my satisfaction for this world. I became very motivated to see Jesus come again, because I realized that when Jesus returns we can be with our departed loved ones again.

I read texts in the Bible about how we can hasten the day of the Lord, and how when the gospel is preached as a witness to all nations then the end will come.

I wanted that to happen, and I wondered why hasn't Jesus already come, certainly the entire world has heard about Jesus. I rejected the theory that there was some hermit in some cave in some isolated part of the world that had never heard of Jesus and if we could find that hermit and tell him about Jesus then we could hasten the day.

Instead, I examined the history of Christianity since Jesus ascended and realized that something changed from how Jesus presented the gospel to how the church presents the gospel.

In my studies, I came to realize that the reason Jesus hasn't returned is that there is a counterfeit version of Christianity that dominates the world and the Christianity that Jesus taught must be presented.

And this week, as I have been preparing for Ralph's memorial, I was convicted again of the need to make plain the true gospel that is to lighten the world and when presented will hasten the day of our Lord's appearing. This is the true message of the true rescue mission of Jesus, to understand from what Jesus is rescuing us and how we can tell others this good news. So in our class today, that is what I am going to do.

Understand, my motivation is not to win an argument; it is not to prove one church right and another wrong; or to win a theological debate. My motivation is to hasten the coming of Jesus and to do that I believe we must advance the true gospel.

Consider what I present in this light and ask, is there merit in what I am presenting? Do you agree or not? It is okay to disagree, every person must be persuaded in their own mind. But if you disagree, please consider what evidence you have for your disagreement, and come show it to me. If you agree with me—then I would ask that you join with us at Come and Reason and begin sharing this healing message about God with those in your family, church, and community, and together we can hasten the day and meet Jesus face to face, and see our loved ones again.

So we must answer the question, from what Jesus rescuing us? Sin itself, or is Jesus' mission to rescue us from God's wrath, from the legal penalty that God in His righteous anger must inflict upon us?

Is any of the following commonly taught in Christianity—and if so, do you believe any of it?

- God is a righteous judge whose holiness requires that He accurately judge sinners and that in order to maintain His justice He must enforce His law
- Therefore, God, in justice, must inflict the penalty of death upon sinners, God must, for all who refuse His salvation, use His power to do His strange act of killing unrepentant sinners so that His law can be maintained and justice can be served
- But God loves us and rather than immediately punish sinners with the just death penalty that we deserve. God sent His Son, and even though His Son is totally innocent, God laid upon Jesus the sins of all human sinners and then punished Jesus by executing Him in our place in order to satisfy His demand for justice and to maintain the integrity of the law. Because of the sacrifice of innocent Jesus, God now proclaims that He can accept the legal payment of Jesus' blood to our heavenly account for all who claim it and He will declare them legally righteous, even though they, in reality, remain unrighteous.

Have you ever heard anything like this taught in Christianity? Have you ever believed anything like this?

If you are an SDA Christian—do you believe the SDA church was called into existence to take a special end-time message to the world that is intended to prepare the world for Christ's second coming?

What if I could demonstrate to you from both Scripture, and historical SDA documents, that as long as we present matters in the legal way I just read, we are failing to do that work and thus we are contributing to the delay rather than hastening the day of Jesus' return?

First though, let me be clear for any listeners who are not familiar with the SDA church. When I talk about the mission or calling of the SDA church, understand that its God-given mission is not one of sectarianism. It's special, God-blessed message is NOT—"you must join the SDA denomination because salvation is only found by membership in the SDA church." Such religious narcissism is what the Jews 2000 years ago fell into. The Israelites had also been given a special mission to prepare the world for the first advent of the Messiah, but they falsely concluded that they were blessed with exclusive salvation and only by being Jewish could people be saved (remember Naaman, Nebuchadnezzar, the wise men from the East who worshiped baby Jesus?). If we have any idea that we hold an exclusive license to salvation and our mission is to get people to join the SDA denomination in order to be saved, we are off message and delaying the coming of Christ.

The message we have been given is found in the 3 angels and it is a message to call people to worship God as Creator, as the Builder of reality, and to stop worshiping the legal fictional dictator god that comes out of the Romanization of Christianity when Roman imperial law replaced God's design law in the church and which misrepresents God's government as functioning like human governments—imposed laws with a punishing ruler to is required to use his power to inflict punishments on rule-breakers.

The critical question that the entire war in heaven and earth centers upon, is how we understand God's law functions, because whatever we believe about God's law determines the character of the God we worship.

If we believe God's law functions like human law, made up rules that require oversight and enforcement, then we believe justice requires inflicted punishment, and God is thought of as the source of pain, suffering, and inflicted death—all in the name of justice of course. And salvation is the means whereby something is done to God to get God paid, appeased, satisfied, propitiated, to have something done to hide us and protect us from God for if we didn't have an intercessor pleading our case before this law-enforcing god then he would be required by his holiness, justice, and his hatred of sin to lash out and torture and kill us—but the torture will be only as much as we deserve.

But if we worship the Creator and realize that God's laws are the laws that reality is built and functions upon, and that life is only possible in harmony with these laws, then we realize that sin takes one out of harmony with God and life and results in death. As the Bible says, "the wages of sin is death" (Rom 6:23), "sin when full grown brings forth death" (James 1:15), "those who sow to the carnal nature from than nature reap destruction" (Galatians 6:8).

When we return to Creator worship, we realize that the only possible outcome from sin, without divine intervention, is ruin and death and that God is not the source of inflicted pain, suffering, and death, but God is the source of life, of health, of our healing and salvation.

The question over God's character is determined by how we answer the question over God's law. And this is how Satan began his rebellion in heaven, and how it spread to earth, and how the rebellion has persisted in the church, and it is the issue upon which it will finally be concluded. And if we want to hasten the day of Christ's return then we must get this right.

I will use the writings of E.G. White (EGW) as historical documentation for the message that the Adventist church was supposed to take to the world. I will also support this from Scripture, and then contrast it with documentation from official Adventists publications to demonstrate that the message of God's design law and character of love has been replaced with human law and the penal legal dictator god that comes from accepting the lie that God's law functions like human law. This wrong idea about law distorts all of our doctrines (our correct and right doctrines) to such a degree that this single falsehood has prevented the church from fulfilling its mission to hasten the coming of the Lord.

In the introduction to the book The Great Controversy, EGW wrote:

> Through the illumination of the Holy Spirit, the scenes of the long-continued conflict between good and evil have been opened to the writer of these pages. From time to time I have been permitted to behold the working, in different ages, of the great controversy between Christ, the Prince of life, the Author of our salvation, and Satan, the prince of evil, the author of sin, the first transgressor of God's holy law. Satan's enmity against Christ has been manifested against His followers. The same hatred of the principles of God's law, the same policy of deception, by which error is made to appear as truth, by which human laws are > substituted for the law of God, and men are led to worship the creature rather than the Creator, may be traced in all the history of the past. Satan's efforts to misrepresent the character of God, to cause men to cherish a false conception of the Creator, and thus to regard Him with fear and hate rather than with love; his endeavors to set aside the divine law, leading the people to think themselves free from its requirements; and his persecution of those who dare to resist his deceptions, have been steadfastly pursued in all ages. They may be traced in the history of patriarchs, prophets, and apostles, of martyrs and reformers. (The Great Controversy x.1)

> The last great conflict between truth and error is but the final struggle of the long-standing controversy concerning the law of God. Upon this battle we are now entering—a battle between the laws of men and the precepts of Jehovah, between the religion of the Bible and the religion of fable and tradition. (The Great Controversy 582).

What kinds of laws to humans make? God is Creator and He builds reality, space, time, energy, matter and life—His laws are the protocols reality operates upon.

Created beings cannot do this, so we make up rules and call them laws, but our rules require external policing and enforcement.

The final battle is between the belief in a god who functions no differently that a human dictator, a being who makes up rules and uses external power to enforce his rules—the justice of inflicted punishments for rule breaking versus the Creator God whose law is the very basis of life itself and who uses power not to punish, but to heal, save, and deliver.

In John 13, when Jesus was given all power—He immediately got up and washed 12 pairs of dirty feet. He acted out through this service the truth that God uses power to cleanse sinners from sin, to remove our guilt, shame, rebellion, fear, selfishness, to heal, to make us pure. Jesus did not use power to have a tribunal or to inflict punishment. That is Satan’s method based on imposed law.

Notice, the historical record the view the SDA church is supposed to teach regarding Satan’s position on God’s law from the very opening of the war in heaven:

> In the opening of the great controversy, Satan had declared that the law of God could not be obeyed, that justice was inconsistent with mercy, and that, should the law be broken, it would be impossible for the sinner to be pardoned. Every sin must meet its punishment, urged Satan; and if God should remit the punishment of sin, He would not be a God of truth and justice. (The Desire of Ages 761).

The historical Adventist message was supposed to teach that it is Satan’s position that God’s law requires inflicted punishment. But instead the church has accepted Satan’s view as true, that God’s law does require God to punish sin. Accepting Satan’s lie results in God being presented as the source of death, the one from whom we must be protected. And our theologies take on a legal dimension with Jesus working to appease, propitiate, and assuage the anger and wrath of the Father, to hide us from the Father so the Father won't kill us.

> "God could employ only such means as were consistent with truth and righteousness. Satan could use what God could not - flattery and deceit. He had sought to falsify the word of God and had misrepresented His plan of government, claiming that God was not just in imposing laws upon the angels; that in requiring submission and obedience from His creatures, He was seeking merely the exaltation of Himself. It was therefore necessary to demonstrate before the inhabitants of heaven, and of all the worlds, that God's government is just, His law perfect. Satan had made it appear that he himself was seeking to promote the good of the universe. The true character of the usurper and his real object must be understood by all. He must have time to manifest himself by his wicked works." (Patriarchs and Prophets 42).

Some might argue that the statement "claiming that God was not just in imposing laws upon the angels" means that God is just to impose laws upon His creatures, and therefore God's laws are imposed just like human laws. But this is a double lie and demonstrates the sophistication and subtlety of Satan's deceptions.

Consider someone saying, "John is not just in beating his wife"—what is the lie? that John is not just and because we know John is just it therefore must be just for John to beat his wife; or is the real lie the imbedded accusation that John beats his wife at all? The lie here is that God imposes law but presenting it as an unjust thing, leads people who know that God is just to argue that no, God is not unjust, He is just, so they promote Satan's lie that God imposes law. It would be like saying, we know John is just so it is just for John to beat his wife.

We reject the lie that God is not just, He is just; and we also reject the imbedded lie that God imposes laws.

From the historical record what the SDA church is supposed to be teaching, EGW, the same author who wrote the quote above, describes the laws of heaven before Satan's rebellion:

> But in heaven, service is not rendered in the spirit of legality. When Satan rebelled against the law of Jehovah, the thought that there was a law came to the angels almost as an awakening to something unthought of. In their ministry the angels are not as servants, but as sons. There is perfect unity between them and their Creator. Obedience is to them no drudgery. Love for God makes their service a joy. So in every soul wherein Christ, the hope of glory, dwells, His words are re-echoed, "I delight to do Thy will, O My God: yea, Thy law is within My heart." Psalm 40:8. (Thoughts from the Mount of Blessing 109).

What kind of law can be in operation and beings live in harmony with it, but they haven't even been informed about it or thought of it?

This is design law—as I have described before, consider Isaac Newton discovering (not creating) the law of gravity and then telling his friends, “Hey, I have discovered the law of gravity.” And he describes that law. Can’t you see them saying—gravity is a law—"wow, I never thought of that, it is just how things work.”

This is God’s law, how things work, the protocols of life, including the law of love.

Satan’s position is that God is arbitrary and His law is nothing more than made up rules and that God uses His power to inflict punishment for rule-breaking. This view of God as a legal enforcer and punisher is what happens when we replace God’s design laws with Romanism, imposed human laws.

Here is the historical message that the SDA church is supposed to be presenting to the world:

> Many conceive of the Christian's God as a being whose attribute is stern justice,—one who is a severe judge, a harsh, exacting creditor. The Creator has been pictured as a being who is watching with jealous eye to discern the errors and mistakes of men, that He may visit judgment upon them. In the minds of thousands, love and sympathy and tenderness are associated with the character of Christ, while God is regarded as the law-giver, inflexible, arbitrary, devoid of sympathy for the beings He has made. (7LtMs, Ms 41, 1892, par. 1)
> Never was there a greater error. Nature and revelation alike testify of God's love. It is from Him that we receive every good gift. He is the source of life, of wisdom, and of joy. Look at the wonderful and beautiful things of nature. Think of their marvelous adaptation to the needs and happiness, not only of man, but of all living creatures. The sunshine and the rain, that gladden and refresh the earth, the hills and seas and plains, all speak to us of the Creator's love… (7LtMs, Ms 41, 1892, par. 2)
> Satan sought to intercept every ray of light from the throne of God. He sought to cast his shadow across the earth, that men might lose the true views of God's character, and that the knowledge of God might become extinct in the earth. He had caused truth of vital importance to be so mingled with error that it had lost its significance. The law of Jehovah was burdened with needless exactions and traditions, and God was represented as severe, exacting, revengeful, and arbitrary. He was pictured as one who could take pleasure in the sufferings of his creatures. The very attributes that belonged to the character of Satan, the evil one represented as belonging to the character of God. Jesus came to teach men of the Father, to correctly represent him before the fallen children of earth. Angels could not fully portray the character of God, but Christ, who was a living impersonation of God, could not fail to accomplish the work. The only way in which he could set and keep men right was to make himself visible and familiar to their eyes. That men might have salvation he came directly to man, and became a partaker of his nature. (Signs of the Times January 20, 1890, par. 6)

Jesus, the Word made flesh, God in humanity, revealed the truth about God and He demonstrated in His life and all His parables and teachings that God’s kingdom is not of this world, that God’s government is not of this world, that God's law is not of this world, and that God does not run His universe like a Roman dictator.

The Apostles accepted the truth as Jesus brought it and Saul, who prior to his conversion, used the imposed law methods, the power of the state, the idea that justice requires the use of power to coerce, to inflict punishment, but then He met Jesus on the Damascus road, and after his conversion, Paul wrote that "every person must be fully persuaded in their own mind" (Romans 14:5) and that we present truth in love and leave others free. Paul taught that it is from sin that we reap destruction, not from God.

The New Testament church practiced the principles of God's living law of love that transforms hearts and minds and they did not seek political power, to get new governors, or new senators in Rome, or to retaliate and punish those who were persecuting them. Instead, they lived out God's love and the gospel spread across the Roman Empire. So Satan changed his tactics from trying to destroy the believers in Jesus to infecting their understanding of what Jesus did and how God's kingdom works by returning to his original lie that God's law functions like human law, imposed rules that requires God to inflict penalties for breaking.

Eusebius, the first church historian wrote:

> With the Roman Empire monarchy had come on earth as the image of the monarchy in heaven." S.L. Greenslade, Church and State from Constantine to Theodosius (London: SCM Press, 1954).

Here is another historical quote that presents what the Advent message is supposed to be:

> The great sin of the Jews was their rejection of Christ; the great sin of the Christian world would be their rejection of the law of God, the foundation of His government in heaven and earth. (The Great Controversy 22).

The SDA Church was specifically called into existence to call people back to worshiping God as Creator, this means we reject the Romanization of God's law and government, reject the imperial, imposed view of law and justice and return to understanding God's laws as design laws. This is documented in the historical record:

> There is no such thing as weakening or strengthening the law of Jehovah. As it has been, so it is. It always has been, and always will be, holy, just, and good, complete in itself. It cannot be repealed or changed. To "honor" or "dishonor" it is but the speech of men. (Prophets and Kings 625).

Human law can be repealed and changed but the laws upon which reality is built cannot.

The Roman church, in attempting to change God's law, reveals that it believes that God's law is imposed. What church ever voted to change the law of respiration or gravity? Why not? Because they cannot! So what does it mean if a church does vote to change God's law? That they do not view God's law as design law, but as imposed rules. This is what Rome did, when they deleted the second commandment, split the tenth into two, and changed the fourth to the third and the day of worship from Sabbath to Sunday. These changes to the law are not the primary problem or concern, they are the evidence, the fruit, the proof and the result of believing the base lie that God's law functions like human law.

And all Protestant churches still accept this lie about God's law and still promote to some degree a false penal/legal system with God made out to be the source of inflicted torment and death as punishment for sin. Historical Adventism taught that the question over God's law and thus His character and government is the question that brings the controversy to its conclusion:

> Between the laws of men and the precepts of Jehovah will come the last great conflict of the controversy between truth and error. Upon this battle we are now entering--a battle not between rival churches contending for the supremacy, but between the religion of the Bible and the religions of fable and tradition…(Prophets and Kings 625).

EGW describes in great detail, in many places, that God's law is design law, again I am documenting what the Adventist church is supposed to be teaching and the message that we are supposed to be taking to the world:

> The transgression of the physical law is the transgression of God's law. Our Creator is Jesus Christ. He is the Author of our being. He has created the human structure. He is the Author of physical laws as He is the Author of the moral law. And the human being who is careless and reckless of the habits and practices that concern his physical life and health sins against God (Kress Collection 46.3).
> The same power that upholds nature, is working also in man. The same great laws that guide alike the star and the atom control human life. The laws that govern the heart's action, regulating the flow of the current of life to the body, are the laws of the mighty Intelligence that has the jurisdiction of the soul. From Him all life proceeds. Only in harmony with Him can be found its true sphere of action. For all the objects of His creation the condition is the same--a life sustained by receiving the life of God, a life exercised in harmony with the Creator's will. To transgress His law, physical, mental, or moral, is to place one's self out of harmony with the universe, to introduce discord, anarchy, ruin. Education 99).

WEDNESDAY

In the lesson's last paragraph is the following quote:

> By coming to dwell with us, Jesus was to reveal God both to men and to angels… But not alone for His earthborn children was this revelation given. Our little world is the lesson book of the universe. God's wonderful purpose of grace, the mystery of redeeming love, is the theme > into which "angels desire to look," and it will be their study throughout endless ages. Both the redeemed and the unfallen beings will find in the cross of Christ their science and their song. It will be seen that the glory shining in the face of Jesus is the glory of self-sacrificing love. [The lesson stops the quote right here, but the next sentence is crucial] In the light from Calvary it will be seen that the law of self-renouncing love is the law of life for earth and heaven (The Desire of Ages 19).

> But turning from all lesser representations, we behold God in Jesus. Looking unto Jesus we see that it is the glory of our God to give… "I seek not Mine own glory," but the glory of Him that sent Me. John 8:28; 6:57; 8:50; 7:18. In these words is set forth the great principle which is the law of life for the universe. All things Christ received from God, but He took to give. So in the heavenly courts, in His ministry for all created beings: through the beloved Son, the Father's life flows out to all; through the Son it returns, in praise and joyous service, a tide of love, to the great Source of all. And thus through Christ the circuit of beneficence is complete, representing the character of the great Giver, the law of life. (The Desire of Ages 21).

The mission of the SDA church is to evangelize the world for Christ's return by taking the special message of the three angels of Revelation 14 to the world. This special message only becomes the final message of mercy when we present it through design law calling people back to worship God as Creator and stop presenting it through Roman imposed law which presents Him as a dictator. EGW didn't use the term design law for this, she used the term natural law. Notice again the historical evidence for what I am saying, she wrote:

> Men and women cannot violate natural law by indulging depraved appetite and lustful passions, and not violate the law of God. Therefore He has permitted the light of health reform to shine upon us, that we may see our sin in violating the laws which He has established in our being. All our enjoyment or suffering may be traced to obedience or transgression of natural law. Our gracious heavenly Father sees the deplorable condition of men who, some knowingly but many ignorantly, are living in violation of the laws that He has established. And in love and pity to the race, He causes the light to shine upon health reform. He publishes His law and the penalty that will follow the transgression of it, that all may learn and be careful to live in harmony with natural law. He proclaims His law so distinctly and makes it so prominent that it is like a city set on a hill. All accountable beings can understand it if they will… To make plain natural law, and urge the obedience of it, is the work that accompanies the third angel's message to prepare a people for the coming of the Lord. (Testimonies to the Church vol. 3, p. 161).

The special message of the third angel given to the SDA church requires that we present all our specific doctrinal truths in their right setting of God's design laws, the protocols that He built reality to operate upon and free them from the Roman imperial law lie.

When we do this, then we will finally present God is His true light. We will then give Him the glory He deserves and will be empowered to call people to make a right judgment about God so people stop believing God is a dictator, the source of death, and worship Him as Jesus revealed Him to be our Creator, Healer, and Savior—the source of life.

But sadly, the SDA church has failed to do this and in 1888 at the GC when this message came forward, the church leadership instead of embracing it, rejected it and clung to the imposed law construct and has been teaching the Roman view of how God's law functions ever since. The church sadly, through its many publications teaches that God is the legal enforcer of imposed punishment for justice sake. After that tragic 1888 conference EGW wrote the following about the leadership of the SDA church who attended that meeting:

> But all the universe of heaven witnessed the disgraceful treatment of Jesus Christ, represented by the Holy Spirit. Had Christ been before them, they would have treated him in a manner similar to that in which the Jews treated Christ. (1888 1478.2)

She went on to write:

> I tell you, God is testing us now, just now. The whole earth is to be lightened with the glory of God. That light is shining now, and how hard it has been for proud hearts to accept of Jesus as their personal Saviour; how hard to get out of the rut of a legal religion; how hard for them to grasp the rich, free gift of Christ. Those who have not accepted this offering will not understand anything in regard to that light which fills the whole earth with its glory. Let every heart now seek the Lord. Let self be crucified, for rich and glorious blessings are awaiting all who shall maintain contrition of soul. With them Jesus can abide; they will let nothing interpose between their souls and God. (Lt10-1892.25)

If we reject design law and cling to imposed Roman law, and continue to teach sin is a legal problem, we end up like the Jews 2000 years ago, religiously hardening our hearts against God, while we cling to correct doctrines.

I have documented from the historical record, the message of God's design law, the truth of His character of love, that we are to take to the world. I have contrasted it with Satan's lies that God's law functions like human law that makes God out to be a dictator and the source of inflicted pain and suffering.

Now, I will document from the record, what message the SDA church, in its official publications, has taken and is still taking to the world. Each one of us must decide, which version of God's law, character, and government do we believe is true?

> The original transgression created in the human mind a disposition of enmity against God (Col. 1:21). Consequently we deserve the displeasure of God, who is "a consuming fire" against sin (Heb. 12:29; cf. Hab. 1:13). The solemn truth is that "all have sinned" (Rom. 3:23), all are "by nature children of wrath" (Eph. 2:3; cf. 5:6) and subject to death "for the wages of sin is death" (Rom 6:23).

Divine wrath is what Scripture calls God's reaction to sin and unrighteousness (Rom 1:18). Deliberate rejection of God's revealed will—His law—provokes His righteous anger or wrath (2 Kings 17:16-18; 2 Chron. 36:16). G. E. Ladd wrote, "Men are ethically sinful; and when God counts their trespasses against them, he must view them as sinners, as enemies, as objects of divine wrath; for it is an ethical and religious necessity that the holiness of God manifests itself in wrath against sin.".. (Seventh-day Adventists Believe 27, p. 109).

For a loving God to maintain His justice and righteousness, the atoning death of Jesus Christ became 'a moral and legal necessity.' God's 'justice requires that sin be carried to judgment. God must therefore execute judgment on sin and thus on the sinner. In this execution the Son of God took our place, the sinner's place, according to God's will. The atonement was necessary because sinners stood under the righteous wrath of God. Herein lies the heart of the gospel of forgiveness of sin and the mystery of the cross of Christ: Christ's perfect righteousness adequately satisfied divine justice, and God is willing to accept Christ's self-sacrifice in place of man's death. [Remember Satan's lie from the beginning, "every sin must meet its punishment urged Satan. And if God should remit the punishment of sin He would not be a God of truth and justice"? Do you hear how this theology promotes Satan's lie?]

Persons unwilling to accept the atoning blood of Christ receive no forgiveness of sin, and are still subject to God's wrath… Christ's self-sacrifice is pleasing to God because this sacrificial offering took away the barrier between God and sinful man in that Christ fully bore God's wrath on man's sin. Through Christ, God's wrath is not turned into love but is turned away from man and borne by Himself. (Seventh-day Adventist Believe 27, p. 111).

Why did God the Father choose a cross to be the instrument of death? Why did He not choose to have Christ instantly beheaded or quickly run through with a spear or sword? Was God unjust in executing judgment on Christ with a cross when He could have done it by beheading, a noose, a sword, a gas chamber, a bolt of lightening, or a lethal injection? (Whidden, W., Ministry Magazine, February 2007. http://www.ministrymagazine.org/archive/2007/February/sinners-in-the-hands-of-god.html)

One of the fundamental problems of the Moral Influence Theory is that it rejects the substitutionary nature of Christ's death. The idea that God had to kill the innocent instead of the guilty in order to save us is considered a violation of justice. (emphasis mine) (Rodriguez, A., Adventist World Review, December 2007; p. 40).

The Hebrew wording in both Leviticus 9:24 and 10:2 was the same: 'and fire came out from before the Lord and consumed.' (9:24, NKJV). Consumed what? In the first case, the offering; in the other, the sinners. What a powerful representation of the plan of salvation. At the Cross, the 'fire from God,' the wrath of God, 'consumed' the offering, and that was Jesus. (Goldstein, C., Adult Sabbath School Bible Study Guide, 3 Quarter 2011, Pacific Press, p. 40).

> The fires of God's judgment burned themselves out on Him [Jesus], at Calvary, and all who are in Christ are safe forever beneath His wings. At the cross, Christ was judged as a condemned sinner so that we could be judged as righteous citizens of the heavenly kingdom. He was judged as a criminal so that we could be set free from the destructive fires of eternal loss, both figuratively and, yes, literally, as well. (Goldstein, C., Adult Sabbath School Bible Study Guide Second Quarter 2023, Three Cosmic Messages, Pacific Press, p. 46)

Who do these quotations say is the source of inflicted death upon Jesus?

What is the barrier and problem, according to these quotes, that must be removed in order for sinners to be saved? God's anger and wrath!

But the Bible teaches that Jesus is,

> "the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world!" (John 1:29 NIV84).

Jesus did not come to take away the wrath of God, or the punishment of God for sin, He came to take away our sinfulness, so that we can become righteous. Paul wrote,

> "God made him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God" (2 Corinthians 5:21 NIV84).

Here, from the historical record, is what the SDA church is supposed to teach:

> God does not stand toward the sinner as an executioner of the sentence against transgression; but He leaves the rejectors of His mercy to themselves, to reap that which they have sown. Every ray of light rejected, every warning despised or unheeded, every passion indulged, every transgression of the law of God, is a seed sown which yields its unfailing harvest. The Spirit of God, persistently resisted, is at last withdrawn from the sinner, and then there is left no power to control the evil passions of the soul, and no protection from the malice and enmity of Satan. (The Great Controversy 36).

God uses power to protect and heal, persistent sin results in the destruction of the faculties sensitive to God and God withdraws His power and the result is ruin and death. This is design law, but the church is teaching that God must use power to inflict punishment and become the executioner of the sentence. Which view do you believe is true? Which God will you choose to worship. These two views are not compatible.

God warned us through Isaiah that this very misunderstanding would occur:

> Surely he took up our infirmities and carried our sorrows, yet we considered him stricken by God, smitten by him, and afflicted (Isaiah 53:4 NIV84).

He took our terminal sin condition in order to overcome and cure it, but God foreknew that we would misunderstand and teach that God was the One who struck Him, killed Him. That God is the One from whom death originates and that God inflicts death as punishment for sin. But Jesus said to those who would later crucify Him said,

> You belong to your father, the devil, and you want to carry out your father's desire. He was a murderer from the beginning… (John 8:44)

And Hebrews tells us,

> Since the children have flesh and blood, he too shared in their humanity so that by his death he might destroy him who holds the power of death—that is, the devil— (Hebrews 2:14 NIV84).

According to Jesus and Hebrews death originates and comes out from Satan. And death comes from breaking away from God and His design laws for life. Yet, when we accept Satan's lie that God's law functions like human law, we teach God is the source of death—even that God killed His Son and we call that—the killing of an innocent to falsely declare the guilty to be innocent—justice.

Again, from the historical record, what the SDA church is supposed to be teaching, note how this stands in stark contrast to the various SDA theologians and publications cited above:

> Satan saw that his disguise was torn away. His administration was laid open before the unfallen angels and before the heavenly universe. He had revealed himself as a murderer. By shedding the blood of the Son of God, he had uprooted himself from the sympathies of the heavenly beings. (White, E.G., Desire of Ages, p. 761).

The special message given to the SDA church is a call to leave behind the religions of this fallen world, to leave behind the methods of God's enemy, to reject the views of God that make Him out to be the source of inflicted pain, suffering, and death, to return to worship God as Creator, the One who made the heavens, earth, sea and fountains of water, and this requires that we reject the Romanization of God's law, we reject the lie that God's law function like human law and embrace the truth that God's laws are the very protocols and principles that reality is built by our Creator to operate upon—like the laws of health, gravity, and physics—and also the moral laws.

Consider what this quotation means in light of all we have said about God's law, and the message we are to take to the world:

> "You may have seen some in regard to the righteousness of Christ, but there is truth yet to be seen clearly that should be estimated by you as precious and rare jewel. You will see the law of God and interpret it to the people in an entirely different light from what you have done in the past. The law of God will be seen by you as revealing a God of mercy and righteousness. The atonement made by the stupendous sacrifice will be seen by you in an all together different light." (Signs of the Times 11-13-1893).

Human law imposes and inflicts punishments, God's government uses power to protect and heal and never uses external imposing power to compel. From the historical record:

> God could have destroyed Satan and his sympathizers as easily as one can cast a pebble to the earth; but He did not do this. Rebellion was not to be overcome by force. Compelling power is found only under Satan's government. The Lord's principles are not of this order. His authority rests upon goodness, mercy, and love; and the presentation of these principles is the means to be used. God's government is moral, and truth and love are to be the prevailing power. (The Desire of Ages 759).

MONDAY

Read the third paragraph,

> The phrase "by nature children of wrath" points to another daunting reality, as well. While still bearers of the image of God, we have come to understand that there is something deeply awry in us. Living the Christian life, then, is not just a matter of conquering a bad habit or two or overcoming whatever "trespasses and sins" (Eph. 2:1) are currently threatening. We do not just contend with sins but with sin. We are bent toward rebellion against God and toward self-destruction. Humans, by default, are caught in a pattern of self-destructive, sinful behavior, following the dictates of Satan (Eph. 2:2) and our own innate, sinful desires (Eph. 2:3). Believers once were "by nature the children of wrath." (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 32).

What is the difference between "sin" and "sins"?

Are we in trouble for our sins? Or are our sins merely the symptoms of the sin condition?

When did you choose to become a sinner? Did you ever make that choice? Or were you, like king David, born in sin and conceived in iniquity (Psalm 51:5)? And if you were born with this condition, is it your fault? We are not born guilty or legally condemned, we are born terminal, dead in trespass and sin. And this terminal condition we cannot cure and causes symptoms we call sins. And this is why we need remedy, we must be reborn with new hearts and right spirits to live new lives.

TUESDAY

Read Ephesians 2:4-6:

> But because of his great love for us, God, who is rich in mercy, made us alive with Christ even when we were dead in transgressions—it is by grace you have been saved. And God raised us > up with Christ and seated us with him in the heavenly realms in Christ Jesus (Ephesians 2:4-6 NIV84).

What does it mean that we were made alive with Christ, raised up with Christ, and seated into rulership with Christ?

THURSDAY

Read second paragraph,

> Unknown to them, they are in a far worse position than simply being without spiritual life or virtue. In company with all humankind, they are the enemies of the true God and are moving toward a day of destiny and divine judgment. They are "children of wrath, like the rest of mankind" (Eph. 2:3, ESV). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 32).

In light of all we have discussed today, how would you now explain this paragraph?

Is there a difference if we understand this through imposed and design law?

2023 3Q Ephesians—Lesson 5
Horizontal Atonement: The Cross and the Church

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read last paragraph,

> In Ephesians 2:11–22, Paul sees the cross of Christ as making a dramatic difference, destroying such barriers and walls. Vertically, the Cross dissolves alienation, reconciling humans with God. Horizontally, it reconciles people with each other. The Cross removes enmity and brings peace between Jews and Gentiles, making of them "one new humanity" (Eph. 2:15, NIV). Together they become a new temple, "a dwelling place for God by the Spirit" (Eph. 2:22, ESV). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 38).

Do you agree? Does the Cross remove enmity and bring peace between different groups of people?

I agree that it is supposed to, but I also observe that those who through history have claimed a belief in the Bible, in Jesus Christ as their Savior, who held up the Cross as the symbol of their faith:

- Went on the Crusades carrying the cross into war
- Burnt people at the stake for believing differently
- Held slaves
- Burned crosses in the yards of people of different backgrounds
- Burned down churches of black Americans

And today there are over 41,000 different Christian groups all claiming the Cross of Jesus Christ and within Christian homes that data shows that:

- Addiction rates are no different than non-Christian homes
- Pornography use no different than non-Christians
- Child and spouse abuse rates are no different than non-Christian homes

So, while I agree that the impact of accepting Jesus as our Savior is supposed to result in unity of people, the breaking down of hostilities, the resolution of enmity and division—that is not what history demonstrates has happened nor what we see happening in the Christian world today. So, the question is why?

If the Cross of Christ is supposed to bring unity, peace, the cessation of hostilities why do we not see that among the people who claim to believe in Jesus?

Because there is a false gospel, a false Christianity, a counterfeit belief system that has taken the place of true Christianity. It is so close to the genuine, just like an effective counterfeit dollar bill is close to the genuine, that most people don't recognize the counterfeit, but it is lacking a key ingredient that gives it the power to change lives.

Paul described that this would be the state of the church at the end of time:

> But mark this: There will be terrible times in the last days. People will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boastful, proud, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, without love, unforgiving, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, not lovers of the good, treacherous, rash, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God— having a form of godliness but denying its power. Have nothing to do with them. (2 Timothy 3:1-5 NIV84).

These people Paul is describing are not the godless, this is not the woke left, the atheist, the agnostic—they certainly don't have a form of godliness. Paul is describing people who have a form of godliness, a religion, a religious system, but they deny the power that transforms lives thus in their religion, in their claims to be believers in Jesus Christ their lives are just as divided, hostile, abusive, selfish as the rest of the world.

And what is the power they deny?

> I am not ashamed of the gospel, because it is the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes: first for the Jew, then for the Gentile. For in the gospel a righteousness from God is revealed, a righteousness that is by faith from first to last, just as it is written: "The righteous will live by faith." (Romans 1:16-17 NIV84)

There is genuine good news from God that has power in it that results in actual righteousness, a righteousness that we live out by faith. For Paul elsewhere says:

> God made him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God. (2 Corinthians 5:21 NIV84).

It is through Jesus that we receive the true gospel and through Jesus that we become righteous and live victoriously. The true gospel causes something real to happen within us and we are changed, transformed, the enmity is taken away, we experience peace with God and unity with others who have also had this gospel transformation occur in their hearts.

But what is this gospel power and what is the counterfeit gospel that dominates the world and denies and obstructs this transforming power?

Last week I presented, from the historical record, the irreconcilable difference between the worshiping God as Creator, understanding His law as design law which causes us to recognize the truth that God is our healer and Savior, versus the Romanization of Christianity with the imposed human law view of God, His government that causes people to worship Him as a dictator who is the source of inflicted punishment and death for sin.

It is the lie that God's law is imposed and functions like human law that perverts the gospel and how we understand God's character and government.

I am going to demonstrate that it is this same single lie, that God's law functions like human law, that results in a form of godliness that is devoid of the power of God to transform lives.

In fact, this lie about God's law makes God out to be an irrational being, a being who is contradictory and unjust, an untrustworthy being that causes us to suspend thinking, to believe without evidence, to believe things that don't make sense and to ultimately distrust God and make up theologies to protect us from Him.

The following is from a book entitle The Cross of Christ. Several years ago, when I was in discussions with church leaders who cling to the penal legal view, they used this book as the defense for their theology. And it was the basis of their rejection of our view.

> "In Romans 3 justification does not mean 'to make righteous,' but rather 'to declare righteous.'…The ground of justification is, as Paul points out, Christ's death (Rom. 5:9; 3:24, 25). The means by which it becomes effective for the individual is faith (Rom. 5:1; 3:25; Gal. 2:16, 20; Phil 3:9). Although people do have a legal relationship to God, it is also true that that relationship is much more than just a legal one. God's love for humanity impels Him to give people what they do not deserve (grace)." (Knight, G., The Cross of Christ, p. 71)…
> "Interestingly enough, His [God's] legal practices are just the opposite of the instructions He gave for human judges, who were to 'justify the righteous, and condemn the wicked" (Deut. 25:1, KJV). Anyone who 'justifies the wicked,' we read in Proverbs, and 'condemns the righteous' is 'an abomination to the Lord' (Prov. 17:15).
> "The issue that we must face at this point is how God can break the rules that He set forth for human judges. It is that type of problem, Morris claims, that troubles Paul in Romans 3. How can God be righteous if He forgives people who have no right to be forgiven? One would expect a just God to punish those who deserved it. That is what justice means. But in the past, Paul claims in verse 25, God did not invariably punish sin. Sinners went on living." [Under what type of law does justice mean punishing those who deserve it? And according to the historical quotation from the Desire of Ages page 761, whose position is it that God, in order to be just must punish sin?
> "In the opening of the great controversy, Satan had declared that the law of God could not be obeyed, that justice was inconsistent with mercy, and that, should the law be broken, it would be impossible for the sinner to be pardoned. Every sin must meet its punishment, urged Satan; and if God should remit the punishment of sin, He would not be a God of truth and justice." DA 761.
> The message that the SDA church is supposed to be teaching is that the view that God must punish sin is Satan's lie from the beginning of the controversy in heaven. Recognizing that > God does not stand toward the sinner as the executioner of the sentence against sin, but instructs human governments to inflict punishment for sin, should cause people to step back and inquire—why? What is it different? They should remember that Paul wrote no one will but justified by the law. And in Romans Paul describes righteousness from God that is apart from the law (Romans 3:25). And of course, the obvious answer is that God's instruction to the people were for this sinful world and external behavioral control, to limit the damage of sinful living to both the sinner and the innocent and bring people to conviction, diagnosis and lead them back to God for healing.

> Jesus said that the kingdom of God is within you. God's law doesn't work like human law, it heals, transforms, renews, recreates. And it cannot be applied externally. But instead of remembering the Bible which says that God's ways are not like our ways, His ways are higher than ours. Those who cling to the lie that God's law functions like human law, instead corrupt the gospel by insisting that God must punish in order to be just. They then make up a contradictory irrational legal system to pretend that this makes God out to be just and trustworthy, but it doesn't and the impact, the outcome is the division and hostility we see in the church because they are promoting Satan's divisive kingdom rather than the unifying power of the true gospel of God.]
> "'Now,' Morris suggests, 'you can argue that this shows God to be merciful, or compassionate, or kind, or forbearing, or loving. But you cannot argue that it shows him to be just [sic].' Because God had not always punished sinners, some would be tempted to doubt His justice." (Knight, G., The Cross of Christ, p. 71-72).

Can you hear in this how the gospel is corrupted by Romanism, the imposed imperial law construct that perverts and distorts the truth in such a way that it denies the power of God unto salvation?

The reason they have problems is because they are trying to understand God's justice, God's righteousness, God's plan of salvation through the lie that God's law functions like human law. And this makes God out to be exactly the opposite of just, a being who punishes the innocent and declares the wicked to be righteous.

This was the problem that the Jews had and one of the reasons they rejected Christ, and when Christians accept the imposed law lie, they also reject the truth that Christ brought about His Father and the kingdom of heaven. Listen to this historical quote, what the SDA church is supposed to be teaching, from the book The Desire of Ages, the context is Jesus healing the man born blind and the question was asked who sinned him or his parents that he was born blind. Notice what this author says about the root of why they would think this, and ask is this the view about God and the plan of salvation that is being taught in the church today, and if not why not?

> It was generally believed by the Jews that sin is punished in this life. Every affliction was regarded as the penalty of some wrongdoing, either of the sufferer himself or of his parents. It is true that all suffering results from the transgression of God's law, but this truth had become perverted. [What does this mean? That all nature groans under the weight of sin. That if it wasn't for sin in the world there would be no sickness, pain, suffering of any kind. But not all suffering is a result of some individual act of sin, but from what sin does to God's creation.

A person who drinks water contaminated with some toxin or pollutant, does not sin, but that is still a violation of the laws of health and will cause suffering. In a perfect world, Eden, such a violation would not happen.] Satan, the author of sin and all its results, had led men to look upon disease and death as proceeding from God,—as punishment arbitrarily inflicted on account of sin. [Our church has rejected only half of this lie. We reject the idea that disease is arbitrarily inflicted by God as punishment for sin, but we still teach that death is inflicted by God as punishment for sin. Why do some teach this? Because they believe the lie that God's law functions like human law, and therefore they believe that justice requires inflicted punishment. But when they worship a god who must inflict punishment they are worshiping a creature rather than the Creator. Creatures make up rules and enforce those rules by the infliction of punishment, the Creator builds reality and life itself and the breaking of His laws cause death and the Creator uses His power to heal the breach and restore us to righteousness. Death comes when the Creator stops acting, when He steps back and sets us free to reap what we have chosen, separation from Him the source of life. "Those who sow to the carnal nature from that nature reap destruction" Gal 6:8] Hence one upon whom some great affliction or calamity had fallen had the additional burden of being regarded as a great sinner. The Desire of Ages 471.1

Thus the way was prepared for the Jews to reject Jesus. He who "hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows" was looked upon by the Jews as "stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted;" and they hid their faces from Him. Isaiah 53:4, 3. The Desire of Ages 471.2 [And I gave multiple quotations last week where various leaders in our church teach that God was required to execute Jesus to pay the demands of justice. They teach that God struck His Son, or rained fired down upon Him etc.]

God had given a lesson designed to prevent this. The history of Job had shown that suffering is inflicted by Satan, and is overruled by God for purposes of mercy. But Israel did not understand the lesson. The same error for which God had reproved the friends of Job was repeated by the Jews in their rejection of Christ. The Desire of Ages 471.3

It is so simple once we realize God is Creator and His laws are the protocols reality are built to function upon. God is working through Christ to restore sinners to harmony with life, to heal, to recreate and restore, to write His living law into our hearts and minds.

In this sinful world, all human governments operate upon external rules that monitor and punish wrong behaviors. God's kingdom functions upon the heart. Thus, in this sinful world, God, like a loving parent, gave various rules to protect and diagnose, but these rules are not the way reality works, they are used because of the immaturity and corruption of sinful humans. In other words, the law was added as an emergency measure until we are restored to righteousness. Just as the Bible teaches in Galatians where Paul wrote that the law was added and this is all law, ceremonial and the moral code of the Ten Commandments.

As I pointed out last week, the SDA church had this message brought to at the 1888 General Conference but the leadership rejected it and chose to cling to imposed law. One of the major issues at that conference was this question of law. Jones and Waggoner, who were the proponents of the healing view, of the reality that we become the righteous of God by faith message, stated that Galatians teaches that the added law was the Ten Commandments. The legalistic opposition rejected this. For them to suggest that the Ten Commandments are not eternal undermines the Sabbath Commandment and therefore they took the position that the law that was added was only the ceremonial law.

Here is what EGW wrote after that meeting, and which was supposed to be what the SDA church taught to enlighten the world, but which has been rejected and thus instead of hastening the day of our Lord's return, we delay it. I agree with this position:

> I am asked concerning the law in Galatians. What law is the schoolmaster to bring us to Christ? I answer: Both the ceremonial and the moral code of ten commandments… "The law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith" (Gal. 3:24). In this scripture, the Holy Spirit through the apostle is speaking especially of the moral law. {Selected Messages vol. 1, p. 233, 234}

I will unpack the reasons for this addition of written law in just a moment, but first let's consider this sentence from the book The Cross of Christ, just quoted. It read,

> "In Romans 3 justification does not mean 'to make righteous,' but rather 'to declare righteous."

This is a classic penal/legal substitutionary statement, that righteousness does not mean what 2 Corinthians 5:21 says, that

> "God made him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God" (2 Corinthians 5:21 NIV84).

Becoming righteous is healing, it is empowering, it results in victorious living, it results in unity of people regardless of ethnic backgrounds. People who have become righteous do not abuse their families, they give glory to God by living out His righteous character, and are lights to the world demonstrating the difference between God's kingdom which works on the heart and the earthly governments which punish behavior. Thus, the righteous, giving glory to God in how they live call people to make a right judgment about God and to stop worshiping the dictator God and to start worshiping the Creator.

But this truth is denied when people replace God's design law with human law and teach that justification is not actually putting people right with God, not making them righteous, it is declaring them to be righteous when they are still unrighteous.

Not only does this make God out to be a fraud, a trickster, a being who declares things to be different than they actually are—like saying someone is female when they are in actuality male. There is reality, and then there is fantasy, falsehood, make-believe. This penal substitutionary view has a god that lives in fantasy, claiming people are righteous when they are not righteous.

This is not what Scripture teaches. In Scripture, we are told that because of Adam's sin we are all born infected with the sin condition we did not choose (Ps 51:5) and the natural state of the sinful heart is enmity toward God, distrusting of God, hostility toward God (Romans 8:7). But the Bible teaches us that Abraham trusted God and AFTER Abraham's heart was changed from the natural state of enmity and distrust to one of trust in God, THEN AND ONLY THEN did God declare, account, or reckon—recognize that Abraham was justified, set right, put right, righteous. Why? Because that which was wrong, Abraham's sinful heart that was filled with fear and selfishness and didn't trust God, was changed back to trust in God. This is justification. God NEVER declares someone to be righteous when they remain unrighteous. God is the God of reality, God sets people right with Him, He restores us to trust. He gives us new hearts and right spirits. He gives us a new life, the mind of Christ, writes His law upon our hearts and minds, He removes the dead stony heart and puts in a living tender heart. This is reality.

The penal legal view is a lie based on the lie that God's law functions like human law and it creates a form of godliness with no power.

Let me give you an example of the corruption, destruction, and perversion of this fictional legal theology that dominates Christianity.

But first you must understand the difference between God's design law, and how God in love has met immature, unconverted, sinful humans with the use of law.

God's design laws are the laws upon which reality operations, the various physical and moral laws that God built life to exist upon, the laws of health, physics, and the moral laws. Life and health are only possible in harmony with God and His design protocols for life. You cannot have health while violating the laws of health. The violation of the physical laws causes physical sickness and disease and eventual death. Likewise, the violation the moral laws causes spiritual sickness and disease—disease of heart and mind and relationships that also undermines physical health and eventually causes death. Life and health only exist in harmony with God and His design laws for life.

The plan of salvation is God's work, achieved through Jesus Christ, to eliminate the death causing principle and restore the life causing principle, God's perfect law, back into humanity. This was accomplished for humanity in the person of Jesus Christ. He became a real human being, took up humanity damaged and infected with death by Adam's sin, and purged the sickness, destroyed death and brought life and immortality to light—through the gospel—through the good news about God and God's design law principles that He lived out perfectly as a human (2 Timothy 1:10).

All human beings born since Adam have been born with a terminal sin condition that we did not choose. We are born in sin conceived in iniquity (Psalms 51:5). This is not our fault and we are not legally guilty for this. We do not stand under legal condemnation. We are born terminal, like being born HIV positive. We have a condition that without remedy results in ruin and death. Jesus came and cured the condition and offers us His life, metaphorically His blood, a new heart and right spirit, so that we can die to living in fear and selfishness and live in love and trust. We are terminal, not legally guilty, and what brings us condemnation is not being born with the sin condition—but refusing the remedy that Jesus procured that will cure us and free us from this condition.

Notice how clearly Jesus explained this to Nicodemus, yet how the church has perverted this through legalism:

> "For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life. For God did not send his Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through him. Whoever believes in him is not condemned, but whoever does not believe stands condemned already because he has not believed in the name of God's one and only Son. This is the verdict: Light has come into the world, but men loved darkness instead of light because their deeds were evil. Everyone who does evil hates the light, and will not come into the light for fear that his deeds will be exposed. (John 3:16-20 NIV84).

God loved us and sent Jesus to overcome and cure the sin condition, to provide all that is needed for salvation from sin. Jesus did not come to condemn. Whoever believes in Jesus is not condemned, but those who refuse to believe in Jesus stand condemned already—already why? Because they refused to trust. This is the verdict, light, truth, love has come into the world, but men loved darkness, lies and selfishness instead because they were evil, infected, terminal.

They are condemned, not for having the condition, but for rejecting the cure!

Because we have this terminal sin condition, which infects our hearts and minds, and results in all kinds of sinful and destructive actions (sins), God like a loving parent, has intervened to help protect us until we grew up enough to experience rebirth, a new heart, until we actually become the righteousness of God. He gave us various laws, lists of rules, designed to both protect us from adding damage to ourselves, and also to diagnose what is wrong with us.

Paul wrote,

> We know that the law is good if one uses it properly. We also know that law is made not for the righteous but for lawbreakers and rebels, the ungodly and sinful, the unholy and irreligious; for those who kill their fathers or mothers, for murderers, for adulterers and perverts, for slave traders and liars and perjurers—and for whatever else is contrary to the sound doctrine that conforms to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, which he entrusted to me. (1 Timothy 1:8-11 NIV84).

The written law is like an MRI, designed by God to expose the sin-sickness in us, as Paul wrote elsewhere,

> "I would not have known what sin was except through the law. For I would not have known what coveting really was if the law had not said, 'Do not covet'" (Romans 7:7 NIV84).

Paul, prior to Damascus, thought legally, that sin was bad deeds, and that righteousness was wanting to commit sin, but resisting and saying now. It was when he realized what the 10th commandment taught, that sin is an issue of the heart, that to be righteous means we don't even have the desire in the heart to commit adultery, or murder, or steal, or bear false witness. We don't covet, we rejoice in the successes of others. Paul realized through the diagnostic efficacy of the law that all his legal behavioral religion was worthless because law-keeping cannot cure hearts and minds from selfishness. Saul of Tarsus, had a form of godliness, a legal religion, but without any power to overcome sin.

We can understand this diagnostic function of the law and why God gave it simply by paraphrasing what Paul wrote to Timothy about the law and replacing the "law" with "MRI":

> "We know that the MRI is good if one uses it properly. We also know that the MRI is made not for healthy people but for those who are sick and diseased, the suffering, the ill, and all those who are dying, and all activities that are contrary to the principles of healthy living that conform to the model of health that the blessed God has entrusted to me." (Could It Be This Simple? p. 102).

God like a loving parent has given us rules, to protect us and to lead us to accept our diagnosis, that we are terminal, dead in trespass and sin, so that we will go to Jesus, our heavenly physician for healing, to be made righteous, not to be declared righteous even though we are not.

So, let me give you this example of why the imposed law lie, with its fictional and false legal adjustment and declaration fantasy has no power to heal sinners and results in millions abandoning the faith.

Loving parents make up and impose rules for their small children that the children must brush their teeth regularly. This rule is not made up by parents in order to create a legal code of conduct that requires legal oversight and enforcement, but is made because of the design law of the 2nd law of thermodynamics that if you don't put energy into a system it decays. The design law is God's law, a constant of the universe—how things work. But a child is not mature enough to understand this and not mature enough to be self-disciplined to harmonize with it. Therefore, loving parents will make up a rule of behavior for the child until the child grows up enough to understand and be able too govern self to live in harmony and care for their teeth. The adult child is thankful for the rules their parents had when they were children, and as adults agree with the rules and gladly keep brushing their teeth, not because of a rule, but because of how reality works. They like being healthy.

But, what if a child was raised in a legalistic home in which there were appropriate rules, like brushing one's teeth, or honoring the Sabbath, but the child never ever came to understand the reasons the parents gave the rule to brush their teeth. The only reason the child ever knew was that if they didn't brush they would get into trouble with their parents and would get punished.

When the child finally moves out on their own, what is likely to happen in such a case? They say, "Yeah, free from all those rules. I no longer have to brush my teeth." So they don't. At first they may be anxious and look around in fear to see if some punishment occurs, but after several days of not brushing and no one punishing them, they say "I knew it, I knew those rules were ridiculous. I am glad to be free!" But 8-10 month later they find themselves suffering in terrible pain from tooth decay.

They call their parents in pain and confess,

- Mom, Dad, I am sorry. You raised me better, but I have stopped brushing my teeth. I should have listened, but I didn't, and now I am hurting every day and I don't know what to do."
- The parents respond by love and reassurance and instruct there is a expert at their church who knows how to help people who have gone off into wild living and are hurting.
- You visit with the pastor and he tells you that Jesus came to earth and brushed His teeth perfectly, and flossed too, and never had even the smallest decay. You are told that if you accept the legal tooth brushing of Jesus as your substitute, then in heaven Jesus will go to His Father and plead His perfection in your behalf.
- The pastor tells you that when God examines your heavenly dental records, because you have accepted Jesus, God will not be aware of your pain, suffering, failure to brush, dental decay. Instead, God will only see the perfect record of Jesus' teeth which has overwritten your record of decay.
- God, having heard the pleas from His Son, and having examined your record and found only the perfect dental record of His Son, will declare that your teeth are perfectly healthy, even though they are not. You are told you simply must believe that God has declared it to be so.
- You claim you believe it, but you leave in just as much pain, with just as much disease and decay as when you arrived and you continue to get worse.

This is penal/legal theology that claims we are declared righteous rather than made righteous.

Do you see the problem that we have when we replace God's design law with human imposed law? We have a form of godliness with no power and we remain divided, fractured, fighting among ourselves.

The final message of mercy to the world is the message of the truth about God's character of love, which is only understood when we reject the lie that God's law functions like human law and return to worshiping God as Creator whose law is design law.

Questions?

SUNDAY

Read second paragraph,

> - Also, in their past existence, Gentiles were caught up in a grand feud between themselves and the Jews. Paul gives a sense of this entrenched hatred by referring to one symptom of it, name-calling. Jews referred to Gentiles with derision as "the uncircumcision," and Gentiles referred to Jews with equal disdain as "the circumcision" (Eph. 2:11). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 39).

Do you see this problem being one of name-calling, or is name-calling a symptom of the true problem? What is the true problem?

The Jews were legalists. They viewed God's law as functioning like human law, and there were rules that needed to be imposed and enforced, and if you didn't keep the right rules then you were not righteous. The name calling of circumcised or uncircumcised was simply a way to call out those who agreed with and practiced their rules.

What are some examples of this exact same legal religion today? What type of name calling do we see today?

- Sabbath keeper or Sabbath breaker?
- Vegetarian or meat eater?
- Humble Christlike dresser with no makeup or jewelry or Jezebel?
- Tithe to the denominational church or to others presenting the gospel?

In Romans 14 Paul makes the case that the issue is not about legal conformity to rules, but about the purity of the heart. That our behavior doesn't really matter if our hearts are not fully persuaded to the godly reasons for the behavior. In other words, doing the right thing for the wrong reasons is harmful to the person—like keeping the right day of worship for the wrong reasons results in people rejecting and crucifying the Lord of the Sabbath.

So the issue isn't name calling, the issue is a legal religion that has a form of godliness but no power and results in greater divisions, rather than unity under one Head Jesus Christ.

MONDAY

Read last paragraph,

> "What does reconciliation look like? How does it feel to be reconciled? Imagine severe estrangement between a mother and daughter, one that has settled in over a period of years. Imagine this rancor being dissolved in a wave of grace and forgiveness and the ensuing reunion > between the two. That is reconciliation. Reconciliation is experienced in the moment when one church member lays aside whatever issue divides from another and acknowledges the other church member as a beloved brother or sister who accepts what has been offered. Reconciliation is not a mechanical or legal term but an interpersonal one that celebrates the mending of broken relationships. Paul dares to imagine Christ's powerful work on the cross as impacting the relationships, between not just individuals but also people groups. He imagines it invading our lives and destroying our divisions, dissolving our quarrels, and renewing our fellowship with and understanding of each other." (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 40).

Questions? Does this sound right to you or is something off?

What about this sentence:

> "Reconciliation is experienced in the moment when one church member lays aside whatever issue divides from another and acknowledges the other church member as a beloved brother or sister who accepts what has been offered."

If this is the definition of reconciliation, then wouldn't everyone be reconciled as soon as the offended party forgives and loves? Wouldn't Judas have been reconciled to Jesus because Jesus washed His feet, and forgave Him, and continued to love Him? But was Judas reconciled to Jesus?

This is not reconciliation. Reconciliation is when the two estranged parties are united again in love AND trust. This requires the offended party to forgive and certainly to love the offender, but it also requires the offender to repent, which means to address the elements in their heart/mind/character that caused them to offend so that they become trustworthy.

Reconciliation cannot happen from one side. And in the case of our salvation, reconciliation certainly could not happen if God was unforgiving. But God is always forgiving, so there is no barrier to reconciliation from God's side. No, the obstacle to our reconciliation with God is from us, our fear, our selfishness, guilt, shame, distrust of God, the lies we believe about God. We are the ones who need to be changed and put back in harmony with God so that we are again God's trustworthy and loyal friends operating in harmony with His living law of love.

Let's read 2 Corinthians 5:17-21:

> "Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; the old has gone, the new has come! [does this sound like declared to be righteous even though they are not? This is real transformation!] All this is from God, who reconciled us to himself through Christ and gave us the ministry of reconciliation: that God was reconciling the world to himself in Christ, not counting men's sins against them. And he has committed to us the message of reconciliation. We are therefore Christ's ambassadors, as though God were making his appeal through us. We implore you on Christ's behalf: Be reconciled to God" (2 Corinthians 5:17-21 NIV84). [Now according to Scripture, who is being reconciled to whom? Is God being reconciled to us, > meaning does something have to change in God in order for the estrangement that sin has caused to be resolved? Or is the entire sin problem in human beings and in order to reconcile us we must be changed, not God?]

What happens if we interpret this through Roman imposed law and believe that God's law functions like human law? If we do that, would it change how we understand reconciliation? Would it blind us so much that despite admitting that the Bible teaches we are reconciled to God and God is not reconciled to us, that we would suggest the opposite? Would accepting the Roman view of law cause people to be so brazen as to suggest that the Bible is wrong and God still must be reconciled to us?

Here is another quote from the book The Cross of Christ:

> "Paul always speaks of people being reconciled to God (2Cor 5:19; Rom 5:10; Col. 1:20). He never refers to God being reconciled to us. In spite of that fact, however, we should recognize that sin affected both sides. Humanity's rebellion and sense of guilt alienated it from God, while God was separated from humankind by His necessary hatred of and judgment on sin (His wrath). Christ's sacrificial death (propitiation) removed the barrier to reconciliation from God's side." (Knight, George, The Cross of Christ, p. 74).

Do you see how the lie that God's law functions like human law contaminates the gospel creating a form of godliness with no power because it replaces the truth about God with a false god who is like Satan in character, a being who is the source of pain, suffering, and death, and who must be propitiated, appeased, paid by a blood sacrifice in order not to use his power to kill.

There is another way to describe reconciliation and that is when the offender becomes a friend. Consider the GNT of 2 Corinthians 5:17-20:

> "Anyone who is joined to Christ is a new being; the old is gone, the new has come. All this is done by God, who through Christ changed us from enemies into his friends and gave us the task of making others his friends also. Our message is that God was making the whole human race his friends through Christ. God did not keep an account of their sins, and he has given us the message which tells how he makes them his friends. Here we are, then, speaking for Christ, as though God himself were making his appeal through us. We plead on Christ's behalf: let God change you from enemies into his friends! (2 Corinthians 5:17-21 GNT)

And can you turn enemies into friends by law, rules, external force, punishment, threats?

Thus Romans 2:4 says,

> "God's kindness leads you toward repentance" (Romans 2:4 NIV84).

TUESDAY

Read Ephesians 2:14-16:

> "For he himself is our peace, who has made the two one and has destroyed the barrier, the dividing wall of hostility, by abolishing in his flesh the law with its commandments and regulations. His purpose was to create in himself one new man out of the two, thus making peace, and in this one body to reconcile both of them to God through the cross, by which he put to death their hostility" (Ephesians 2:14-16 NIV84).

What is this talking about? What law is this that is abolished?

The lesson suggests the following in the last paragraph,

> "Instead, any use of the law to drive a wedge between Jews and Gentiles and especially to exclude Gentiles from full partnership among the people of God and access to worship, would be anathema to Paul and a misuse of the divine intention for the law. The "law" in Ephesians 2:14, 15 is either the ceremonial aspects of the law that divided Jew from Gentile, represented in Paul's complex phrase "the law of commandments expressed in ordinances" (ESV), or it is the whole Old Testament system of law as it had come to be interpreted, augmented, and misused as a wedge to distance Jews from Gentiles." (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 41).

Do you agree with the lesson or have another view?

What about this view of Ephesians 2:14-16 from The Remedy?

> "For Christ himself is the Remedy that heals the species and brings peace. He has removed fear and selfishness that cause division, mistrust, prejudice, and hostility. He did this by partaking of our human condition, and–via the exercise of his human brain–he loved perfectly, thereby destroying in his flesh (in the humanity he partook) the selfish survival-of-the-fittest drive along with the lies of Satan. In this way, he destroyed the need for the law (with all its regulations) to expose Satan's lies and methods. His purpose was to be the template of a new humanity born out of the unification of the two–our selfish, infected condition merged with his sinless state–thereby purging selfishness from the human heart, and transforming, healing, renewing, regenerating and recreating humanity back to God's original ideal; and in this new being, to reconcile the human race–regardless of ethnic background–into loving unity with God and each other through the revelation of truth at the cross, by which he destroyed the lies of Satan, reestablished trust, and removed fear, selfishness, and hostility" (Ephesians 2:14-16 REM).

What does this version suggest Jesus took away and how did Jesus take it away?

What is the cause of all the division in the world? Sin, which is fear and selfishness, and Jesus destroyed the infection of sin at the cross and restored God's living law, God's perfection, God's sinlessness and character into humanity as our second Adam. And all who are united, reconciled, to God through Jesus Christ have this change worked in them, they receive a new heart and right spirit, have the law written on the heart and mind, have the mind of Christ so that it is no longer the selfish old person living, but Christ living within, and thus we are all brought into unity under one Head Jesus Christ. United in living out God's living law of love for God and others.

When that happens, then there is no longer any need for the written law, the diagnostic instrument to examine us and expose sin, because we are living in harmony with God and His law and His law lives in us.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson focuses our attention on the peace we have when we are reconciled to God through Jesus Christ.

What do you understand this peace to be? What peace, what aspects does it contain?

- Peace with God
- Peace in our own hearts—peace from guilt, from shame, from fear
- Peace with every other individual who also has been restored to godliness

How do we understand receiving and experiencing God's peace in light of:

> "Do not suppose that I have come to bring peace to the earth. I did not come to bring peace, but a sword. For I have come to turn 'a man against his father, a daughter against her mother, a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law—a man's enemies will be the members of his own household.'" (Matthew 10:34-36 NIV84)

What is this? How is it that we are to have peace when we accept Jesus, but Jesus Himself said that He did not come to bring peace but a sword and to turn families against each other?

This is Matthew 10:34-36 from The Remedy:

> "Don't think that I have come to make peace with a selfish world. I have not come to bring peace with selfishness, but a sword to cut selfishness out of the hearts of people. I have come to cut dysfunctional family ties: to free a son from selfish loyalty to his father's ambitions and feuds, to sever a daughter from the control of an oppressive and manipulative mother, to cut through the fear and hostility a daughter-in-law has toward her mother-in-law. A person's worst enemies are often members of their own family." (Matthew 10:34-36 REM).

True peace can only occur by removing sin, fear, selfishness from hearts and minds. Jesus did not come to make peace with sin, but to destroy sin and that requires destroying fear and selfishness in the hearts and minds of people. Thus, the sword is the sword of truth that severs the ties to this world and wins us to love and trust in Jesus.

THURSDAY

Read first paragraph,

> "Reviewing Ephesians 2, we recall that verses 1–10 teach that we live in solidarity with Jesus, while verses 11–22 teach that we live in solidarity with others as part of His church. Jesus' death has both vertical benefits in establishing our relationship with God (Eph. 2:1–10) and horizontal ones in cementing our relationships with others (Eph. 2:11–22). Through the Cross, Jesus demolishes all that divides Gentile believers from Jewish ones, including the misuse of the Law in order to widen the gulf (Eph. 2:11–18). Jesus also builds something—an amazing, new temple composed of believers. Gentiles, once excluded from worship in the sacred places of the temple, now join Jewish believers in becoming a new temple. We all become part of God's church, "a holy temple in the Lord" (Eph. 2:19–22, ESV) and are privileged to live in solidarity with Jesus and our brothers and sisters in Christ." (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 43).

I think that this is an excellent description—and what is it describing?

Is it describing a temple made with human hands, by human might and power, or a temple made by God?

And would this temple made by God also be something that God needs to cleanse from sin because the various building blocks are sinners?

And would the Bible describe anywhere a cleansing of the temple as part of God's plan to of salvation?

It is described in a variety of places, including in the Old Testament feast of Atonement, or at-one-ment, or reconciliation. The feast in which God cleanses the sanctuary from the sins of the people. This is an object lesson of God cleansing His Bride, His true temple that He builds which Jesus as the Chief cornerstone.

2023 3Q Ephesians—Lesson 6
The Mystery of the Gospel

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

SABBATH

Read first paragraph,

> In Ephesians 3, Paul opens with a theme that he had already touched on earlier: "that the Gentiles should be fellow heirs, of the same body, and partakers of His promise in Christ through the gospel" (Eph. 3:6, NKJV). And though that might not be much of a surprise to the church today, composed mostly of Gentiles, it was something that seemed radically new to many of his readers at that time. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 46).

Why was the idea that the Gentiles should be fellow heirs something radical and new?

Was this idea something that had not been taught in the Old Testament Scriptures?

Was the message of God through His prophets in Old Testament times that salvation was found in being Jewish, that it was through their genetic descendance from Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—or by converting and being legally adopted into a Jewish family and therefore the Jewish nation—that one became an heir?

Does the Old Testament teach salvation to only a certain select ethnic, national, or racial group?

- Abraham will surely become a great and powerful nation, and all nations on earth will be blessed through him. (Genesis 18:18 NIV84).

- The angel of the LORD called to Abraham from heaven a second time and said, "I swear by myself, declares the LORD, that… through your offspring all nations on earth will be blessed" (Genesis 22:15–18 NIV84).

- The LORD appeared to Isaac and said… "through your offspring all nations on earth will be blessed" (Genesis 262-4 NIV84).

- "Turn to me and be saved, all you ends of the earth; for I am God, and there is no other" (Isaiah 45:22 NIV84).

- "All the ends of the earth will remember and turn to the LORD, and all the families of the nations will bow down before him, for dominion belongs to the LORD and he rules over the nations" (Psalm 22:27-28 NIV84).

- "All the nations you have made will come and worship before you, O Lord; they will bring glory to your name" (Psalm 86:9 NIV84).

- "In my vision at night I looked, and there before me was one like a son of man, coming with the clouds of heaven. He approached the Ancient of Days and was led into his presence. He was given authority, glory and sovereign power; all peoples, nations and men of every language worshiped him. His dominion is an everlasting dominion that will not pass away, and his kingdom is one that will never be destroyed" (Daniel 7:13-14 NIV84).

- "It is too small a thing for you [Messiah] to be my servant to restore the tribes of Jacob and bring back those of Israel I have kept. I will also make you a light for the Gentiles, that you may bring my salvation to the ends of the earth." (Isaiah 49:6 NIV84).

This is only a sampling, there are many other texts in the Old Testament that teach the same thing, that God's call to salvation is for all people.

Israel was not called to be exclusive heirs of the promises, but to be God's helpers is sharing the message of salvation with the world, and to be the human family through whom the Messiah would come.

When was the promise given that the Messiah would come? In Genesis 3:15, in Eden right after the fall, when it was clear there is only one human race descended from Adam and Eve and the plan of salvation is for the entire human species.

The Old Testament narrative is the record of God working out His plan to save humanity, from all corners of the globe, from every nation, tribe, kindred, and people from sin.

Are there examples in the Old Testament of people not descended from Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob and who did not convert to Judaism and did not start observing the Jewish feasts etc., yet who were saved?

- Every human before Abraham who was saved (Adam and Eve, Abel, Seth, Methuselah, Enoch, Noah)
- Jethro
- Melchizedek
- Lot
- Sarah
- Naaman
- Nebuchadnezzar
- The wise men from the East who worshipped baby Jesus

Where then did this belief come from that salvation was restricted to the Jews?

Here is one commentary from the book The Desire of Ages that nicely sums up the problem with the Jews in Old Testament times:

- The Jews had so perverted the law that they made it a yoke of bondage. Their meaningless requirements had become a byword among other nations. Especially was the Sabbath hedged in by all manner of senseless restrictions. It was not to them a delight, the holy of the Lord, and honorable. The scribes and Pharisees had made its observance an intolerable burden. A Jew was not allowed to kindle a fire nor even to light a candle on the Sabbath. As a consequence the people were dependent upon the Gentiles for many services which their rules forbade them to do for themselves. They did not reflect that if these acts were sinful, those who employed others to perform them were as guilty as if they had done the work themselves. They thought that salvation was restricted to the Jews, and that the condition of all others, being already hopeless, could be made no worse. But God has given no commandments which cannot be obeyed by all. His laws sanction no unreasonable or selfish restrictions. (The Desire of Ages 204).

What was the root of the problem? A perversion of God's law into what? Into arbitrary rules, some are arbitrarily chosen by the sovereign, and some are not. He is the ruler, who are we to question. It was the same lie that Satan used in heaven, God makes up rules and made up rules discriminate against some, that's why Jesus gets to go into counsels of the Father that I Lucifer don't get to go into—God made up a rule and declared it so. Satan denies the inherent difference between himself—a created being, and Jesus a divine being—one fully equally with the Father. Satan alleges God runs His universe no differently that created beings do, no made up rules that require external enforcement.

Remember this quotation, written by one of the founders of the SDA church, documenting the way the SDA church is supposed to teach things:

- "The great controversy [is] between Christ, the Prince of life, the Author of our salvation [and] Satan, the prince of evil, the author of sin, the first transgressor of God's holy law. Satan's enmity against Christ has been manifested against His followers. The same hatred of the principles of God's law, the same policy of deception, by which error is made to appear as truth, by which human laws are substituted for the law of God, and men are led to worship the creature rather than the Creator, may be traced in all the history of the past. Satan's efforts to misrepresent the character of God, to cause men to cherish a false conception of the Creator, and thus to regard Him with fear and hate rather than with love; his endeavors to set aside the divine law, leading the people to think themselves free from its requirements; and his persecution of those who dare to resist his deceptions, have been steadfastly pursued in all ages. They may be traced in the history of patriarchs, prophets, and apostles, of martyrs and reformers. GC x.1

If you worship a god who imposes law, who makes up law, whose law functions like human law that requires legal oversight and enforcement—you are worshiping a creature, not the Creator, even if you are worshiping on the Sabbath.

And notice what Paul says happens to the minds of people who do this:

- The wrath of God is being revealed from heaven against all the godlessness and wickedness of men who suppress the truth by their wickedness, [Paul goes on to describe in verses 24, 26, 28 that God's wrath is letting people go to reap what they have chosen. God's wrath is not using divine power to inflict harm, it is when people insist on rebelling and God STOPS using divine power to prevent the harm that their actions cause. And their wickedness suppresses the truth—notice the specific truth Paul says they suppress] since what may be known about God is plain to them, because God has made it plain to them. [Why is it plain to them? Notice Paul's inspired reason] For since the creation of the world God's invisible qualities—his eternal power and divine nature—have been clearly seen, being understood from what has been made, so that men are without excuse. [From the moment of Creation the truth about God has been revealed in what He has made. And what truth about God does nature reveal? What kind of law does all nature operate upon? It reveals the truth that God's laws are design protocols and not imposed rules arbitrarily enforced. Now notice what Paul says happens when they reject the truth about God as Creator, because they don't embrace the truth that nature reveals about how God runs/governs nature.] For although they knew God, they neither glorified him as God [Aren't we called at this time in history to give glory to God? But these people didn't why? Because they rejected the Creator God and worshiped the creature, and we do the same thing when we replace God's design with imposed law, if you worship a god who makes up rules and is required to legally enforce those rules with external punishments, then you are worshiping a creature, not the Creator. Notice what happens when we do this.] nor gave thanks to him, but their thinking became futile and their foolish hearts were darkened. Although they claimed to be wise, they became fools and exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images made to look like mortal man and birds and animals and reptiles. (Romans 1:18-23 NIV84). [Making a false image of God in the likeness of mortal man—that doesn't mean a statue—it means a being who functions like a mortal man, a being who governs like a mortal man, a being who makes up rules like a mortal man, a being who has to have a tribunal and make legal rulings and inflict external punishments like a mortal man. And if you worship such a god you are worshiping a creature and not the Creator and your mind is being darkened and even though you have a degree in theology and consider yourself wise, Paul says you will become a fool if you keep to this lie about God's law and keep worshiping a being who is in the image of a man.]

SUNDAY

The lesson focuses on Paul as a prisoner in Rome. The lesson points out the status of being a prisoner could undermine the esteem some would hold for Paul, some might consider him a criminal, unworthy of respect. So Paul turns this fact into a badge of honor by describing himself as a prisoner of Christ, or being imprisoned for Christ.

Have you ever considered what your attitude toward Paul's letter to the Ephesians might have been had you been a member of that congregation?

If you were receiving a letter today from someone in prison, does their being in prison impact how you read the letter?

What is the issue here that we should carefully consider?

Have you ever heard that if you can't destroy the message then destroy the messenger?

If the enemies of truth cannot refute the truth and they are still opposed to it and want to fight against it, then they often seek to bias the listeners by tainting the messenger of truth with some attribute that will cause the listeners to reject the truth, or not even listen to it.

This is one of Satan's classic attacks, to accuse and slander the voices of truth.

- "The Jews answered him, 'Aren't we right in saying that you are a Samaritan and demon-possessed?'" (John 8:28 NIV84).

The religious leaders implied Jesus was morally corrupt because He spent time with tax collectors and prostitutes. They suggested Jesus was untrustworthy because He treated Samaritans and women with respect.

Rather than dealing with the facts, evidence, truth and exploring and discussing the principles and methods, they instead sought to destroy the one bringing the truth.

The devil has a well-practiced strategy to do this:

- Deception—try and get those who love the truth to believe a lie—satan tried this in the wilderness by misquoting Scripture and pretending to be an angel of light
- Bribes and educements to buy people to betray the truth—Satan tried this with Jesus in the wilderness by offering Jesus the kingdoms of the world
- Slander, accusation, Satan's agents did this with Jesus
- followed by rejection by the weak minded and various forms of mob violence and intimidation to try and silence the voice of truth—the religious leaders repeatedly stirred up the mobs against Jesus and the Apostles
- Then imprisonment, restriction of liberty, and eventual execution

Do we see this same script being run today and who is running it? Recognize those that run this script are not being led by the Holy Spirit, they are not working for God's cause, they are in fact being led by demons regardless of what cause they claim they are supporting, such as trying to save lives, or advance equity or fairness.

I experienced some of this. Of course, I have had to confront various lies, of course I have had opportunities to get some transient benefit if I would only stop speaking the truth on some subject. And over the last 13 years I have frequently been the subject of various false allegations designed to get people to never consider what I am teaching: "Jennings doesn't believe in substitutionary atonement." "Jennings teaches moral influence theory." Both of which are false statements, but I have heard from around the circle such allegations have caused others to not even examine what we are teaching.

And I have had various "mobs" work to cancel me. I have been invited and schedule to be a key speaker at various events and when certain SDA leaders have heard of this, they rallied some of their pastor friends and called various conference officials and had the invitation canceled.

This is what people do who do not have the truth. And we will see more and more of this right up until Jesus comes.

Did you see this evil method used when serious, loving, and concerned people had real and legitimate questions about the safety of a certain medicine being advanced under an emergency authorization, that they were accused of wanting to kill people, and they were censored, and they were threatened in various ways?

Have you seen when loving people object to the mutilation of children through various hormones and surgeries that they are attacked as transphobes? Why? Because the evidence is so overwhelming that such actions cause significantly more harm to the child than any benefit that is reaped. So, those promoting the attack on God's creation—remember Scripture says God made them male and female—cannot win their case by truth. They cannot sit down and have an honest investigation of the facts, science, evidence, because it all comes to the same conclusion, there is biological male and female. This is irrefutable. So they resort to accusation, intimidation, mobs, censoring, and any means of intimidation and threat.

What they are doing is attacking minds through the assault of almost all public sources of information in an attempt to get people to deny reality itself. This is critical to Satan's war against heaven. God is the God of reality. Satan's entire system is based on lies, falsehood, which is fantasy, myth, fable. Thus, the followers of Satan cannot have real debate that examines actual evidence, instead they accuse, misinform, intimidate, riot and scream and do everything to silence any source of truth.

MONDAY

Read Ephesians 3:1-6:

- For this reason I, Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus for the sake of you Gentiles— Surely you have heard about the administration of God's grace that was given to me for you, that is, the mystery made known to me by revelation, as I have already written briefly. In reading this, > then, you will be able to understand my insight into the mystery of Christ, which was not made known to men in other generations as it has now been revealed by the Spirit to God's holy apostles and prophets. This mystery is that through the gospel the Gentiles are heirs together with Israel, members together of one body, and sharers together in the promise in Christ Jesus (Ephesians 3:1-6 NIV84).

What does this mean? We already went through multiple texts from the Old Testament that document that God had been revealing over and over again that the plan of salvation is for all human beings, Jews and Gentiles alike. Then, why was this a mystery?

Paul says that it was also a mystery to him until it was revealed to him by divine revelation. Yet it was revealed by God to the prophets beforehand and written in the Scripture, so why was it a mystery to such a serious Bible student as Saul of Tarsus? Why didn't he see this before a special revelation revealed it to him?

Because the Jewish system in which Saul was raised and educated had become burdened with human law constructs and layers of rules, restrictions, traditions, and lies about God that perverted the meaning of what the illustrations were intended to teach.

Satan was actively working to corrupt the truths God had given to Israel and to replace the plan of God with his own false appeasement, legal payment plan.

Remember the Jews kept falling into Baal worship—and remember who Baal was? The son of El, the God of creation, weather, harvest, called the lord of the earth, the god who fought against the great serpent leviathan, and who fought against Mot the god of death, and in his battle with Mot died and rose again to bring life to the earth.

Does this sound familiar at all—that we worship the Son of God who is our Creator, the true Lord of the Earth, who fights against that ancient serpent the devil who holds the power of death, and in His battle in our behalf Jesus died in order to destroy death and bring life and immortality to light and rose again to bring us eternal life?

Why was Baal worship wrong? Because Baal required sacrifice be offered to him in order to obtain blessing. Baal was a god who would punish wrongdoing and would not bless without payment.

Baal became Zeus to the Greeks, Jupiter to the Romans, Thor to the Norse people and Jesus Christ to all those who worship a god who requires the blood of a human sacrifice be offered to him to pay our legal debt and get the blessing of his legal forgiveness.

That is why God prophesied through Malachi that before the second coming of Jesus the prophet Elijah must come again. Elijah confronted Baal worship, and God is calling for a people today to stand up and make it clear that God is the Creator whose laws are design laws.

And like Elijah we are to call people to decide—If god is like Baal, a being who makes up rules like creatures do, and uses power to inflict punishment for rule-breaking, then worship him; but if God is the Creator who builds reality, whose laws are the protocols life itself is built to operate upon, and who is healing, saving, delivering us from sin, then worship Him.

This is the message of the 3 angels, to call people out of worshiping the god of this world, the counterfeit imposter satanic version of God, and back to worship God in His true light as Jesus revealed Him, our Creator and this requires we reject imposed law with its penal/legal theories and accept design law and God's plan to heal and restore.

So, here is how I paraphrased Ephesians 3:1-6 in The Remedy:

- It is because I have brought the healing truth about Christ Jesus to you, Gentiles, that I, Paul, am now a prisoner. Surely you have heard how God graciously gave me the healing message of truth for you–that is, the truth previously not understood but made known to me by revelation, as I have already written to you. In reading this, you will be able to understand the insight I have into the truth about God and Christ — the truth previously hidden by Satan's lies and distortions. These insights were not understood by previous generations because the lies of Satan were so effective that only Christ himself could refute them and provide the truth sufficient to make plain what God's Spirit had previously revealed to his holy apostles and prophets. This is the truth previously hidden and not understood: God loves all humanity, and all humanity is included in God's plan to heal and restore, and–through the incredible good news of God as revealed in Christ–all humans are included in the promises given to Abraham, and are therefore heirs of the blessings of salvation which come through Christ Jesus (Ephesians 3:1-6 REM).

TUESDAY

Read the second and third paragraphs,

- There is an interesting progression in Paul's self-understanding that is discernible as we move through Paul's letters in the order they were written. Early on, he lays claim to his status as a divinely appointed apostle (Gal. 1:1). Later, though, he introduces himself as "the least of the apostles" and "not worthy to be called an apostle" (1 Cor. 15:9, NKJV). Here in Ephesians he sees himself as "the very least of all the saints" (Eph. 3:8, ESV). Finally, he describes himself as the "chief" (NKJV) or "worst" of sinners (1 Tim. 1:15, NIV).

  Perhaps this line of thinking here by Paul can help explain this famous quote by Ellen G. White: "The closer you come to Jesus, the more faulty you will appear in your own eyes; for your vision will be clearer, and your imperfections will be seen in broad and distinct contrast to His perfect nature."—Steps to Christ, p. 64. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 49).

Have you experienced this? What is happening? Why is it that as we grow closer to Jesus and by beholding Him we become more like Him, we often experience ourselves as being even more unfit, having more imperfections?

Because we become ever more aware of reality, of how weak we are in our mortal state, how even with good intentions we can be overcome by fatigue, or make decisions with good motives but because of our finiteness, our inability to see all the permutations and the future, our decisions can sometimes have consequences we didn't anticipate or intend.

Sometimes we just have an irritable moment and regret not being more patient, or kind, or understanding.

What is the best approach to handling the truth that we are weak, wounded, and sick in sin?

To remember we are not responsible for procuring the remedy to our condition, nor are we responsible for perfecting or curing ourselves, we are responsible for trusting Jesus and staying connected with Him, following where He leads, choosing to do to the best of our ability what we know God would have us do.

He is the One who has procured the Remedy, and He, through His representative the Holy Spirit, is the One who applies that Remedy to our hearts. And thus when we see shortcomings, we say, "Thank you Jesus, I can see you are still working in my heart and mind. Keep up your healing work. Keep searching me and finding every defect in me and create in me a clean heart and renew a right spirit within me!"

Read the last paragraph,

- Paul then continues. In Ephesians 3:10, he writes: "to the intent that now the manifold wisdom of God might be made known by the church to the principalities and powers in the heavenly places" (NKJV). Who are the "rulers and authorities in the heavenly places" (ESV) mentioned here? How does the church announce God's "manifold" or multifaceted wisdom to them? Though Ephesians 3:10 does not describe the nature of the powers, it seems best to take them as the evil ones described in more detail in Ephesians 6:11, 12. If so, the composition of the church, unifying Jews and Gentiles as once very divided parts of humankind, becomes a ringing announcement to these demonic "rulers and authorities in the heavenly places" of God's plan for the future, "to unite all things in him [Christ], things in heaven and things on earth" (Eph. 1:10, ESV). They are put on notice that God's plan is underway and their doom assured. The very nature of a unified church signals their ultimate defeat. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 49).

If the very nature of a unified church signals the ultimate defeat of the powers of darkness, does that mean that because today Christianity is fragmented into over 41,000 different groups, that the powers of darkness are winning?

Seriously, do we see anywhere in the world the unity in the church that Paul is describing here?

I have never seen this unity via religious organization or denomination.

I have seen this unity in people who have been reborn to have God's living law of love written upon their hearts.

So, I wonder, is this unity Paul is referring to found in denominationalism, organized churches, or is Paul referring to what some call the church invisible, the people who God sees and knows are members of His kingdom?

Consider this parable:

- Jesus told them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven is like a man who sowed good seed in his field. But while everyone was sleeping, his enemy came and sowed weeds among the wheat, and went away. When the wheat sprouted and formed heads, then the weeds also appeared.
  "The owner's servants came to him and said, 'Sir, didn't you sow good seed in your field? Where then did the weeds come from?'
  " 'An enemy did this,' he replied.
  "The servants asked him, 'Do you want us to go and pull them up?'
  " 'No,' he answered, 'because while you are pulling the weeds, you may root up the wheat with them. Let both grow together until the harvest. At that time I will tell the harvesters: First collect the weeds and tie them in bundles to be burned; then gather the wheat and bring it into my barn.' " (Matthew 13:24-30 NIV84).

What is Jesus telling us in this parable? Is this describing a church organization where all the people are united or a church where there is division?

I found this commentary in the book Christ's Object Lessons, what do you think?

- Christ's servants are grieved as they see true and false believers mingled in the church. They long to do something to cleanse the church. Like the servants of the householder, they are ready to uproot the tares. But Christ says to them, "Nay; lest while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them. Let both grow together until the harvest." (Christ's Object Lessons 71, emphasis mine).

If true and false believers, wheat and weeds, are mixed together in the church then how is the manifold wisdom of God to be manifest in it?

Because God's manifold wisdom is found in His true church—which is the fellowship of believers, those who are reborn to the kingdom of God.

In the field mixed with wheat and weeds—all the wheat have a common ancestry, genetics, and produce a common fruit. All the wheat are united in what they are and what they produce. And it is apparent for all who have eyes to see that the fruit of the wheat and the product of the weeds are not the same regardless of the field in which they grow.

Thus, the manifold wisdom of God is manifested through His people, His church, in contrast to all the fakers, the religious zealots, the legalistic rule-making followers of a Roman dictator god who seem to run most churches and who take up space in the church but instead of producing the peaceable fruits of righteousness produce the fruits of control, coercion, fear, guilt, shame, and division.

WEDNESDAY

When you hear the term, "the family of God" what comes to mind?

There is a lot of confusion about what it means to be a member of the family of God.

Some will ask questions like, "In your family, are only the good children considered members of the family?" And this is designed to suggest that all of us, saved or lost, are considered children of God and part of God's family.

This idea is neither right or wrong in itself—it is incomplete and thus leads to false conclusions.

The truth is that there are two human family trees.

The first family tree descends from Adam, who was created by God and thus every human being born into the world is part of the human family descended from Adam and in that regard is a child of God. However, Adam corrupted himself with sin and severed his connection with heaven and aligned or united humanity with Satan. Without divine intervention all humans would die eternally. Adam's family tree should be understood as being cut off from the source of life and it is therefore wilting and dying.

There is a second family tree, with a new head and that is Jesus. We become members of His family when we accept Him as our Savior and are grafted into Him, the vine, and we receive the life of Christ flowing into our hearts by faith. All the reborn, who receive new hearts and minds, become the various branches of the new human family tree. That family tree is connected to God through Christs and receives the life giving power and presence of God flowing into our reborn hearts and thus we produce fruits of righteousness and are considered part of the family of heaven.

Just as there are two family trees, one of sin and death, and one of righteousness and life—there are two births one born into this world of sin and death, and one reborn with a new heart of righteousness from Christ.

Those who are born into the world, but are not reborn to Christ, do not become part of God's heavenly family, they instead are considered part of the human family severed from God and connected in heart, mind, spirit, attitude, character and function to be part of Satan's family, the family of rebellion, of sin, of unrighteousness.

The members of the heavenly family look like Jesus, they carry the image of God in their characters.

The members of Satan's family look like Satan and carry around the satanic character.

Jesus said of the Jews, who were trying to kill Him, and who were claiming both Abraham and God as their father:

- You belong to your father, the devil, and you want to carry out your father's desire. He was a murderer from the beginning, not holding to the truth, for there is no truth in him. When he lies, he speaks his native language, for he is a liar and the father of lies (John 8:44 NIV84, emphasis mine).

The apostle John tells us that,

- "to all who received him, to those who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children of God—children born not of natural descent, nor of human decision or a husband's will, but born of God" (John 1:12, 13 NIV84, emphasis mine).

So the Bible uses this idea of family to describe those who have been reborn and who are like Jesus in character. We are not considered members of God's family simply because of our genetics, i.e. being human. This was the same lie that the Jews had, they believed simply because they were descended from Abraham that they were considered part of God's family. Jesus refutes this.

Here are a few of historical quotes demonstrating my view is not unique to me:

- If you have renounced self and given yourself to Christ you are a member of the family of God, and everything in the Father's house is for you." (Thoughts from the Mount of Blessing 110, emphasis mine)

- Remember that the Lord loves you, and that each one of you can become a member of the family of God. If you are faithful here, when He shall come in the clouds of heaven, you will meet your father, and will be a united family. (Selected Messages vol. 2, p. 265, emphasis mine).

- The Lord has enjoined upon us to come out from among them and be separate, and to touch not the unclean thing, and He will receive us and will be a Father unto us, and we shall be His sons and daughters. If we wish to be adopted into the family of God, to become children of the heavenly King, we must comply with His conditions; we must come out from the world and > stand as a peculiar people before the Lord, obeying His precepts and serving Him. (Testimonies to the Church vol. 4 p. 109, emphasis mine).

THURSDAY

Read Ephesians 3:20-21:

- Now to him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine, according to his power that is at work within us, to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus throughout all generations, for ever and ever! Amen (Ephesians 3:20-21 NIV84).

What does this text mean to you?

What kinds of things to you ask or imagine—because He can do more.

What is the power that is at work within us?

What kind of power is this?

Is it the power of fear, of intimidation, of rule-enforcement, of punishment, of legal declarations?

What kind of power changes hearts and minds?

- "You will know the truth, and the truth will set you free." (John 8:32 Niv84)

What kind of power is this?

- I am not ashamed of the gospel, because it is the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes: first for the Jew, then for the Gentile. (Romans 1:16 NIV84).

What power is this? What is the gospel, the good news?

- "Do you show contempt for the riches of his kindness, tolerance and patience, not realizing that God's kindness leads you toward repentance?" (Romans 2:4 NIV84).

Is there power in the kindness of God? What kind of power is that?

- Not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit,' says the LORD Almighty. (Zechariah 4:6 NIV84).

How does the Spirit work?

2023 3Q Ephesians—Lesson 7
The Unified Body of Christ

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read Memory Text:

- It was he who gave some to be apostles, some to be prophets, some to be evangelists, and some to be pastors and teachers, to prepare God's people for works of service, so that the body of Christ may be built up (Ephesians 4:11-12 NIV84).

What does this text mean to you? Does it have a principle contained in it that should inform us as to how we are to think of ourselves and others?

Does it say anything in regard to how we fill various roles and positions? Is it suggesting that if some are equipped to be prophets or apostles it would not be wise to put them in the role of housekeeper or cook? In other words, is the Bible suggesting that God equips people with different skills, abilities, talents, and when they are consecrated to Him then the body of Christ will function best when people fulfill the roles that they are best equipped to accomplish?

What is the principle that this Scripture is teaching for deciding upon whom gets placed in various positions? Isn't it their qualifications, abilities, gifting, talents, experience? Does the Bible teach that we place people in position of leadership based on race, say the Jewish converts get affirmatively chosen over the Gentile converts because they are Jewish not because of their gifting? If the Bible chose people to positively affirm them to the positions based on racial profiling, what would that be called? Affirmative action—just an example of how God's government and principles work differently than those of this world.

Only when we advance God's principles do we find healing. The methods of the state cannot heal and restore.

What happens if people become dissatisfied with their skill set, their calling, and focus on someone else's skillset and abilities and compare themselves to them? What happens if they become envious jealous, and begin complaining?

Is this a function of love—or is love not self-seeking and love does not envy?

So anti-love would seek to make the comparison to others and focusing on non-pertinent differences to appear righteous. Anti-love, which is evil, would seek to inflame envy, jealousy, and dissatisfaction, a sense of unfairness by introduce arbitrary measures and artificial values.

Have we seen activities or practices in the world, which does not operate on the principles of God, that goes against this biblical guidance? Have we seen anything in the world that suggests people should be placed in position based on attributes other than their qualifications?

These politically motivated practices are designed and intended to cause division in the populous, to create various affinity groups to be exploited by the self-proclaimed champions of that group. It is not about helping the masses in any of the various groups, it is about keeping society divided so power can be concentrated in the hands of a few ruling elites so they can dominate and control the masses. This is how the kingdoms of this world function, because all the kingdoms of the world are Satan's and run on Satan's principles. And Satan seeks to rise above others to rule over others.

Jesus did not think equality with God was something to be held on to, but humbled Himself, in other words, surrendered power, in order to uplift the masses and break down dividing walls and bring us into genuine unity where we are all empowered by God to fulfill His calling in our lives. God's kingdom does not function like the kingdoms of this world.

And Satan constantly seeks to get Christians to exchange the kingdom of God for kingdoms of this world—but all the kingdoms of this world function on the same power over others, imposed law, coercive methods with a few elites exploiting the masses for the benefit of the elites.

The methods of the world always results in abuse, dysfunction, inefficiency, and conflict in society.

So as Christians we cannot allow the lies, perversions, distortions, corruptions of the world into our minds, hearts, and practices. We cannot go along with falsehood because we fear what others think. We cannot accept any lie even if it is presented with the idea that it is compassionate, or loving, or fair.

The truth is, we are not all fit for every job or position. We all have equal value as human beings, and in a just worldly society all will have equal opportunity to pursue whatever job, role, or position they choose. But that doesn't mean we are all equal in ability, talent, experience, motivation, drive, commitment, qualifications—and therefore despite pursuing a position, if filling that position is determined by objective qualifications we do not all have the same likelihood of getting that position.

When we are surrendered to Jesus in faith, we trust Him with the outcomes, we know He sees a million variables we cannot see, and when we don't get some outcome we thought was right for us, we don't get hurt, or angry, or jealous, we say to Jesus, "Thank you, for while I cannot see the reason things have gone this way right now, I know that you are good, and I know that you have your hand over my life, and I know that you just protected me from something that I didn't even know. How good you are to me. Keep leading in my life Lord, and open my eyes to the next step you would have me take." Faith in Jesus and love for God and others destroys the envy and jealousy that Satan tries to infect our hearts with.

SUNDAY

The lesson goes on to say that when we are converted and become part of the body of Christ there is a unity that is experienced, we practice the virtues that result in unity. They list three virtues: humility, gentleness, and patience.

What do you understand humility to be?

Read the third paragraph,

> Paul elsewhere explains the term humility, in Ephesians 4:2 (ESV; "lowliness" in NKJV), by adding the idea to "count others more significant than yourselves" (Phil. 2:3, ESV). Humility, then, may be understood not as a negative virtue of self-deprecation (see Col. 2:18, 23) but as a positive one of appreciating and serving others. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 57).

The lesson suggests that humility is appreciating and serving others? Any thoughts about this?

My view is that humility is the result, the fruit, of God's design laws operating in the heart.

- Love: When we have the law of love operating in our hearts, we are not arrogant, rude, or prideful, we don't seek to rule over others, we respect the individuality of others, we have a desire in our hearts for their welfare, their development, their salvation.
- Truth: When we have the law of truth operating in our hearts, we realize that we are finite and no matter what we know, we only know in part, our understanding is limited. Thus, we don't judge others, we don't know their circumstances, motives, and struggles. We choose to give people the benefit of the doubt and not think the worst. And when we do see actions that are objectively wrong, harmful, destructive, we grieve for the other person because we know they are hardening their heart, searing their conscience, and ruining their soul. We remember the truth that they are suffering from the same sin condition that we were also born with, and as the saying goes "but for the grace of God there go I."
- Liberty: The law of liberty, we remember the Sabbath—the day God rested, the day God ceased using His power—the day God refused to force Lucifer into line; the day God refused to impose laws upon His creatures; the day God refused to inflict punishments for disobedience. And we live out God's law of love by living and speaking the truth while we leave others free. We don't take the arrogant position that we know what is best for another person's life. We would not presume to judge someone who eats meat because we don't know their physiology and genetics. We would not be so arrogant as to believe that we know what medicine is best for another mentally competent adult and we would never use our power, position, or authority to pressure or coerce people into taking an experimental medicine because we think we know what is best for them. We remain humble enough to recognize we cannot make that choice for another person.

Read Ephesians 4:4-6:

- There is one body and one Spirit— just as you were called to one hope when you were called—one Lord, one faith, one baptism; one God and Father of all, who is over all and through all and in all (Ephesians 4:4-6 NIV84).

The lesson points out that Paul lists seven "ones"

1. One body
2. One Spirit
3. One hope
4. One Lord
5. One faith
6. One baptism
7. One God and Father of all

What is this significance of this?

Seven is the number of spiritual completion—and thus choosing seven "ones" is a way of saying that we are spiritually complete in Christ, a complete restoration to the unity and oneness that God designed for His kingdom.

Let's go through them one at a time and discuss what they mean:

1. One body
    - What is the body? It is the church—is that a denomination?
    - Who is part of that one body, the church?
    - How does one become part of that body?
    - Are we part of the body of Christ simply by being born into the world, or does it require some change in us? What is that change?
    - Are there other Bible metaphors that describe the body of Christ?
        - The vine and branches—which is a way of describing a family tree. Only those who are grafted into Christ become part of the body, or part of vine
        - The family of God—the family tree of God or the vine with its many branches. We are born into the human family descended from Adam, but only by rebirth are we connected to Jesus and become part of the heavenly family tree.
        - The sanctuary/temple—we are building blocks or stones being built together into a house for the Lord, with Jesus as the chief cornerstone. And can any stone in the world become part of this temple? Yes—but can any stone in the world be part of God's temple as it is, when it is found and picked up by the Builder who is God, or does the stone, the person, have to be prepared, shaped, honed, fitted for the building? Any human can become part of the temple, the family of God, the church—but that requires that we are changed, reborn, transformed, honed, fitted, that we have sin, selfishness, the corrupt desires, practices, habits replaced with Christlike ones.

2. One Spirit
    - What is the one Spirit? The Holy Spirit certainly, but
    - Can Paul mean more than just God the Holy Spirit?
    - What did Paul mean when he wrote to the Corinthians,
        - "Even though I am not physically present, I am with you in spirit" (1 Corinthians 5:3 NIV84)?
    - What did David mean when he prayed,
        - "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me" (Psalm 51:10 KJV)?
    - Could the "one spirit" mean that when we are converted and have experienced the renewal of heart by the Holy Spirit, then we are reborn and have new hearts and right spirits, we have one spirit that is the spirit of love, honesty, integrity, loyalty to God and a spirit of faithfulness to Him and His design law and methods, that we are united in spirit by the Holy Spirit?
3. One hope
    - What is our one hope? Jesus Christ!
    - Why is there only one hope? Because Jesus is the only remedy to our terminal sin condition.
    - Are there other Bible metaphors to describe this?
        - Narrow path versus wide path
        - One gate into the sheep pen (John 10:1-42)
        - One mediator between God and man (1 Timothy 2:5)
    - And what do we hope to receive through/from Jesus?
4. One Lord
    - Who is our one Lord? Jesus.
    - Isn't the Father and the Holy Spirit our Lord also? Or is Jesus our Lord in some way that the Father the Holy Spirit are not?
    - I am not suggesting any differences in the divinity of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, but I wonder, is there a functional, objective, reality-based distinction in what Jesus has done, some action, achievement, or accomplishment that Jesus has taken upon Himself to complete, and has completed, that places Him in the position as our Lord in a distinctly different way than the Father and the Holy Spirit?
    - Does God's kingdom, the kingdom objective reality built by God, require human life to be in harmony with God and His design laws for life?
    - Did Jesus take on the role and responsibility of becoming a real human being and as a human being using His human abilities to confront and overcome Satan and sin and restore God's perfect law into humanity and thereby develop a perfect, sinless, human character?
    - Has Jesus become the second Adam, the new head of the human family?
    - Is Jesus, then, our Lord, our Liege, our Champion, our King who sits on David's throne and reclaims Earth and all its domain from Satan and places Earth back under the sovereignty and governance of humanity—Jesus Christ King of kings and Lord of lords!

5. One faith
    - What does one faith mean?
    - Does the context suggest it goes beyond personal saving faith in Jesus?
    - Does it mean a common belief, understanding, philosophy, and methodology based upon the principles of God and God's kingdom.
    - When Jesus is Lord, and the Holy Spirit transforms our hearts and spirits, do we begin to have common practices and principles?
    - And this is the fruit or result of God's living law being written into our hearts (Heb 8:10)
6. One baptism
    - What is this one baptism?
    - Is this referring to the ceremony with water?
    - Does one have to be baptized in water to be saved?
        - Thief on the cross
        - Enoch, Elijah, Daniel, and all those before Christ.
    - So, is this text referring to the ceremony with water or to what the water ceremony represents?
    - What does the water ceremony represent? The immersion of the self (heart and mind) into the cleansing power of the Holy Spirit where the entire sin-sick, selfish, self dies and is resurrected to a new life with a new heart and right spirit that loves God and others.
    - Can a person be saved without the water ceremony?
    - Can a person be saved without their hearts/minds being immersed in the Holy Spirit and being reborn? No, because that is what being saved or salvation actually means; it means to be healed, or renewed, or recreated in righteousness.
    - Does this mean that the water ceremony is unimportant and we don't need to do it? No—the ceremony is important. It is part of the process of how our choices and actions in responding to the truth help solidify the truth into our being. When we accept truth, we must put that truth into practice, and in so doing we are cooperating with God for our healing and transformation.
    - So how this works is that the baptism or immersing of the heart and mind by the Holy Spirit happens first, this cleanses and recreates the heart and the person is reborn into a new life in Christ. Then, with their new heart, the reborn Christian want to take a stand for God, they want to live out the truth of God, and thus they choose to be ceremonially baptized in water as a public witness to others. And in so doing they solidify into their own being their love, commitment, devotion, to God and demonstrate their willingness to follow where He leads. This helps them develop their faith relationship with God.
7. One God and Father of all
    - What does this mean?
    - Does this mean there is no Holy Spirit or that Jesus is not fully God?

- No, it means that the members of the Godhead have, amongst themselves, taken different roles in how they govern, and the Father has taken the role of being the Supreme Source of all. And we recognize Him as Sovereign.

Read last paragraph,

- Note carefully two ideas about the unity of the church (Eph. 4:1–6). First, unity is a spiritual fact, rooted in these seven "ones," a reality to be celebrated (Eph. 4:4–6). Second, this unity requires our zeal to nurture and grow it (Eph. 4:3). There will often be cause to weep at our failings in actualizing this unity. However, whatever our failings, we should rejoice in the work of God-in-Christ in unifying the church, rejoicing in the theological reality of the "unity of the Spirit" (Eph. 4:3). Doing so will empower us to return to the hard work of advancing this unity but with fresh conviction that in doing so we are accomplishing God's own work. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 58).

How do we achieve unity in the church?

Can we ever achieve unity by imposing a list of rules? If it cannot be achieved in this way, what would it mean if people tried to achieve it in this way? That those pursuing unity through rules and authority and enforcement are immature, don't understand reality, don't understand God's kingdom, and are implementing the principles of force and control which originate in Satan's kingdom.

In his book, Angry Saints, George Knight, documents the history of the 1888 Minneapolis GC and describes that in the conflict between those who brought the righteousness by faith message, which is based upon design law, and the leadership who clung to imposed law, that the leadership let by Butler, repeatedly sought to get the delegates to vote and use authority of office to impose their conclusions on the church and force everyone to comply with what they thought was right. Jones and Waggoner did not use these methods. They used the methods of presenting their ideas in love, and inviting critique, and leaving everyone free to decide for themselves.

EGW sided with Jones and Waggoner, on multiple points, which included:

- Righteousness by faith
- The added law in Galatians included the Ten Commandments and is not just the ceremonial law
- And in opposing authoritarian methods to silence and force compliance

Sadly, the church rejected every one of these.

- The legalistic church leaders substituted legally declaring people righteous who are not righteous, for people becoming the righteousness of God as 2 Cor 5:21 teaches
- The legalistic leaders clung to teaching the imposed law view of the Ten Commandments, rather than recognizing the Ten Commandments have not always existed, do not reveal an imposed legal form of governing by God, but were added as a helpful tool for sinful human beings to be accurately diagnosed and led back to Jesus for healing

- Legalistic leaders have continued to use the authority of office to silence, intimidate, and force their dogmas. This has created a selection bias in the church membership and church leadership in which the voices who are advancing light and truth are purged from the organized church and thus the church languishes in a false legally theology while it create the illusion of unity when what they have is authoritarian uniformity.

Can we achieve unity through public attestation to a common creed or a list of fundamental beliefs?

Can we achieve unity by the exercise of external might and power?

Can we achieve unity through legislation?

Can we achieve unity through majority vote? When the church votes in General Conference session on a certain doctrinal issue, does that vote cause unity among the members?

Is there a difference between unity and uniformity? What is the difference?

Jesus prayed,

- I pray also for those who will believe in me through their message, that all of them may be one, Father, just as you are in me and I am in you. May they also be in us so that the world may believe that you have sent me. I have given them the glory that you gave me, that they may be one as we are one: I in them and you in me. May they be brought to complete unity to let the world know that you sent me and have loved them even as you have loved me (John 17:20-23 NIV84).

What is this unity, this oneness Jesus prayed for? How do we achieve this?

Is there some part of God's design, as taught in Scripture, that would enlighten us to this unity?

What about marriage? Did God create Adam and Eve as two separate individuals, who were to become one, to have unity?

And today, even in this sinful world, can a man and a woman, who have been reborn in godly love, come into the unity, the oneness that God designed?

So, if you have experienced that unity, that oneness, where two become one—how did that happen?

Can godly marital oneness be achieved through:

- Force?
- Rules?
- Imposed law?
- Threats?
- Punishments?
- External pressures?
- Declarations?
- Belief in a common list of doctrines?
- Being members of the same denomination?

How do two separate individuals become one in marriage?

They love the other more than self and unite their individualities upon common heavenly principles in which they value, cherish, and esteem the other more than themselves. They rejoice in and invest in the success of the other. They get real joy in doing for and uplifting their partner. They know each other intimately and each partner is trustworthy, reliable, mature and has the best interest of the other at the forefront of their motives. They are a united team that retain their individuality, their unique gifts, talents, abilities, and the two rejoice in their differences, learn to share in each other's preferences, give each other real freedom, and both are enriched by the differences in the other.

In our relationship with Jesus, we must love Him more than ourselves and value His design law methods and principles. We must then love others and rejoice in their success, seek to uplift others, but this doesn't mean we surrender our individuality to others and let others tell us what to do. That would be harmful to all parties. Jesus did not do what others told Him, and neither should we.

Unity doesn't mean uniformity, nor does it mean there are never any loving disagreements, differences of opinion, or heartfelt discussions.

Consider Abraham disagreeing with Jesus' plan to destroy Sodom, or Moses disagreeing with God's plan to wipe out Israel and start over with Moses. Think about Paul going to Jerusalem when God warned him repeatedly not to go because he would be arrested and killed. Their loving disagreement and discussions with God did not break up their unity with Him. In, fact, God called Abraham and Moses His friends and I believe it was because they retained their individuality and had such discussions with Him.

I value my wife because she has her own mind, her own individuality, her own perspectives. I would not want someone as my spouse who was only my shadow, only agreed with me in every detail. That would be boring, would have no depth, or substance, or interest. My life is enriched and more interesting because Christie has her own mind and way of seeing and doing things. Now, it is true that I don't agree with everything she says and she doesn't agree with everything I say, but I have learned to listen to her, to consider her insights, perspectives, and counsel. And I am a much wiser person today because I have learned from her. I would be less and our marriage would be less if either one of us surrendered our individuality to the other and let the other do our thinking for us. Godly unity does not mean uniformity, it is the unity of love.

TUESDAY

Read Ephesians 4:7-10:

- But to each one of us grace has been given as Christ apportioned it. This is why it says: "When he ascended on high, he led captives in his train and gave gifts to men." (What does "he ascended" mean except that he also descended to the lower, earthly regions? He who descended is the very one who ascended higher than all the heavens, in order to fill the whole universe.) (Ephesians 4:7-10 NIV84).

What does this mean to you?

My view is that this refers to Jesus' condescension, as describe in Philippians 2:5-11:

- Your attitude should be the same as that of Christ Jesus: Who, being in very nature God, did not consider equality with God something to be grasped, but made himself nothing, taking the very nature of a servant, being made in human likeness. And being found in appearance as a man, he humbled himself and became obedient to death—even death on a cross! Therefore God exalted him to the highest place and gave him the name that is above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, in heaven and on earth and under the earth, and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father (Philippians 2:5-11 NIV84).

Jesus descended and then Jesus ascended and was exalted. And when Jesus ascended He took with Him the first fruits of His victory, those who were resurrected from the dead when Jesus died.

- At that moment the curtain of the temple was torn in two from top to bottom. The earth shook and the rocks split. The tombs broke open and the bodies of many holy people who had died were raised to life. They came out of the tombs, and after Jesus' resurrection they went into the holy city and appeared to many people (Matthew 27:51-53 NIV84).

We are not told who these individuals were. I suspect, that if they were to be witnesses to those living at that time then at least some of them had to be people who lived and died during the lifetime of those alive when they were resurrected.

However, I like to imagine that God the Father partially answered Jesus' prayer from John 17 when Jesus prayed:

- "Father, I want those you have given me to be with me where I am, and to see my glory, the glory you have given me because you loved me before the creation of the world" (John 17:24 NIV84).

And that the Father raised some of Jesus' friends from the past to be with Jesus in heaven. I like to imagine that perhaps people like Noah, Melchizedek, Abraham, Jacob, Joseph, David, Elisha, Jeremiah, Isaiah and others were raised at this time. And these individuals are represented in Revelation 4:4:

- Surrounding the throne were twenty-four other thrones, and seated on them were twenty-four elders. They were dressed in white and had crowns of gold on their heads (Revelation 4:4 NIV84).

The white robes represent the righteousness of Christ, and the gold crown represents the crown of victory the saints receive from Christ. So, these twenty-four elders represent saved human beings and not angels or other intelligent beings from other unfallen worlds.

And given the Bible only names three people taken to heaven, Enoch, Elijah, and Moses—yet here we have twenty-four elders described in Revelation. I don't think it is too much of a stretch to consider the other seats are filled by those who were resurrected when Jesus died.

What does it mean that He gave gifts to men?

Most people understand this to be the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, which occurred at Pentecost.

Jesus said to His disciples before His crucifixion:

- I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Counselor to be with you forever—the Spirit of truth. The world cannot accept him, because it neither sees him nor knows him. But you know him, for he lives with you and will be in you. I will not leave you as orphans; I will come to you (John 14:16-18 NIV84).

Was the Holy Spirit not in the world before Jesus' death and resurrection?

Yes, David prayed that God would not take His Holy Spirit from him.

So, why didn't the disciples experience the Holy Spirit more fully prior to Pentecost?

Consider this commentary from the book The Desire of Ages:

- Before this the Spirit had been in the world; from the very beginning of the work of redemption He had been moving upon men's hearts. But while Christ was on earth, the disciples had desired no other helper. Not until they were deprived of His presence would > they feel their need of the Spirit, and then He would come. (The Desire of Ages 669.1, emphasis mine).

> The Holy Spirit is Christ's representative, but divested of the personality of humanity, and independent thereof. Cumbered with humanity, Christ could not be in every place personally. Therefore it was for their interest that He should go to the Father, and send the Spirit to be His successor on earth. No one could then have any advantage because of his location or his personal contact with Christ. By the Spirit the Saviour would be accessible to all. In this sense He would be nearer to them than if He had not ascended on high (The Desire of Ages 669.2, emphasis mine).

I love this description—it is beautiful, it is powerful, and it is sensible. God would not give some advantage over another by limiting access to Jesus. Just think about it: On Earth today, what is it like to try and get access to someone powerful and famous? What would it be like if Jesus were on Earth today personally and there was no Holy Spirit to represent Him to everyone?

And when you read various descriptions about Jesus in heaven pleading for sinners—remember that Jesus said,

- "I have much more to say to you, more than you can now bear. But when he, the Spirit of truth, comes, he will guide you into all truth. He will not speak on his own; he will speak only what he hears, and he will tell you what is yet to come. He will bring glory to me by taking from what is mine and making it known to you (John 16:12-14 NIV84, emphasis mine).

The Holy Spirit communicates to us what Jesus is speaking. When Jesus is pleading in heaven, He is pleading to you and me, He is pleading for us to trust Him. He is pleading for us to let Him save us, for us to stop listening to the lies of Satan, for us not to give into to temptation, to not give in to the feelings of discouragement, to stop looking at the problems and keep our eyes fixed on Him our Savior and Deliverer.

And then, when we hear Jesus calling us and we respond to His love by opening our hearts in trust, we receive the Holy Spirit working within us to take what Christ achieved and reproduce it in us. We get new motives, new desires, and when we choose to act on those new motives, then we receive divine power to succeed. Thus, it is the Holy Spirit that makes the victory of Christ a reality in our individual lives.

The Desire of Ages describes it this way:

- In describing to His disciples the office work of the Holy Spirit, Jesus sought to inspire them with the joy and hope that inspired His own heart. He rejoiced because of the abundant help He had provided for His church. The Holy Spirit was the highest of all gifts that He could solicit from His Father for the exaltation of His people. The Spirit was to be given as a regenerating agent, and without this the sacrifice of Christ would have been of no avail. The power of evil had been strengthening for centuries, and the submission of men to this satanic captivity > was amazing. Sin could be resisted and overcome only through the mighty agency of the Third Person of the Godhead, who would come with no modified energy, but in the fullness of divine power. It is the Spirit that makes effectual what has been wrought out by the world's Redeemer. It is by the Spirit that the heart is made pure. Through the Spirit the believer becomes a partaker of the divine nature. Christ has given His Spirit as a divine power to overcome all hereditary and cultivated tendencies to evil, and to impress His own character upon His church (The Desire of Ages 671, emphasis mine).

Jesus came to Earth and became a real human being and as our substitute confronted and overcame Satan and sin and procured the remedy to our terminal sin condition. The Holy Spirit takes that remedy and applies it in the hearts and minds of all who trust Him. We are recreated within with new hearts and new desires and are empowered to live victoriously as we receive the new life from Jesus and brought to us by the Holy Spirit.

Do you see why Satan attacks the Trinity and seeks to destroy the belief in the Holy Spirit?

WEDNESDAY

Read first paragraph,

- Paul identifies four groups of "gifted" people as part of the treasure trove of the exalted Jesus that He gives to His church: (1) apostles; (2) prophets; (3) evangelists; (4) shepherds (ESV) and teachers (the structure of the Greek phrase suggests these are a single group). Christ gives these gifts to accomplish important work: "to equip the saints for the work of ministry, for building up the body of Christ" (Eph. 4:12, ESV) and "until we all attain to the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, to mature manhood, to the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ" (Eph. 4:13, ESV). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 60).

What do you make of these different roles?

Apostles are typically thought of as those who met Jesus and were personally instructed by Jesus. Most Christians don't call themselves Apostles and reserve that term for the 12 and Paul, who was also personally instructed by Jesus.

What about the others—prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers?

Evangelists would be people who primarily take the gospel message to the world, to those who have not yet been converted to Christ, but this doesn't mean they don't teach, but that their primary role would be that of reaching out to convert the unconverted.

Pastors and teachers are people who work to educate, lead, care for, and build up those who have been converted to Christ, to help them grow, mature, and advance in the things of God.

What about the prophets? Who are the prophets?

Does this term refer only to those who have had a vision or those who have written Scripture?

No, there are many prophets described in Scripture who we have no record of them receiving a vision, or writing Scripture, but they were moved by the Holy Spirit to speak a message from God, whether in words or in deeds.

So a better term today would be spokesperson for God—someone who speaks a message from God for the people of that time and place.

Revelation seven gives insight:

- After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds of the earth to prevent any wind from blowing on the land or on the sea or on any tree. Then I saw another angel coming up from the east, having the seal of the living God. He called out in a loud voice to the four angels who had been given power to harm the land and the sea: "Do not harm the land or the sea or the trees until we put a seal on the foreheads of the servants of our God" (Revelation 7:1-3 NIV84).

Who are these servants of God who are to be sealed before the four winds blow?

- "But now, O our God, what can we say after this? For we have disregarded the commands you gave through your servants the prophets. (Ezra 9:10 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- From the time your forefathers left Egypt until now, day after day, again and again I sent you my servants the prophets. (Jeremiah 7:25 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- Surely the Sovereign LORD does nothing without revealing his plan to his servants the prophets. (Amos 3:7, NIV84, emphasis mine).

- This is what the Sovereign LORD says: Are you not the one I spoke of in former days by my servants the prophets of Israel? (Ezekiel 38:17, NIV84, emphasis mine).

- We have not listened to your servants the prophets, who spoke in your name to our kings, our princes and our fathers, and to all the people of the land. (Daniel 9:6, NIV84, emphasis mine).

- But did not my words and my decrees, which I commanded my servants the prophets, overtake your forefathers? (Zechariah 1:6, NIV84, emphasis mine).

- But in the days when the seventh angel is about to sound his trumpet, the mystery of God will be accomplished, just as he announced to his servants the prophets. (Revelation 10:7, NIV84, emphasis mine).

The prophets are those who have a message from God—God's spokespersons. Revelation seven makes some very interesting points about being a prophet, or the gift of prophecy, being gifted by God to speak a message from Him to the people. First point, is that the empowerment by the Holy Spirit to be a spokesperson for God to take a message from God to the people did not stop after Pentecost.

According to Revelation seven, there will be a large group of people, symbolically represented by the 144,000 who are prophets, God's spokespersons at the end of time. This would affirm that God continues to empower people to give His message to others. And my view, is that this end-time message is the message found in Revelation 14, which calls people back to Creator worship, which requires the rejection of imposed law, the Romanization of Christianity, and return to design law view of things.

The next point is that according to Revelation seven, right before Jesus comes there will be a large group of people who have been empowered by God to give that final message of mercy to the world, and they will be settled or sealed into the truth so that no trial, trouble, or tribulation will shake them out of it. And from their witness, a great multitude from every nation, tribe, language, and people will accept the truth and be saved.

Who can be empowered by the Holy Spirit to be one of these end-times spokespersons for God?

- Is being empowered the Holy Spirit to speak a message from God something that only happens through the acknowledgement and official actions of denominational churches?
- In other words, is ordination by a church the same thing as being gifted and empowered by the Holy Spirit?
- Who speaks with greater authority someone who is gifted by the Holy Spirit with the prophetic gift or someone who is not gifted by the Holy Spirit but is ordained by your church and even holds high office in the organization?
- Why would the one gifted by the Holy Spirit speak with more authority? From where does authority come? What do the gifts of the Holy Spirit do for a person—and in this case specifically a prophet would be gifted to do what? Speak the truth clearly. So what gives the prophet's message more authority than an ordained minister? The power and authority of the truth itself!

We must stop surrendering our thinking to others. We must stop allowing people in positions of office, with credentials, with organizational authority to tell us what to think. We should be humble, respectful, listen and then study for ourselves but always follow where the truth leads.

THURSDAY

What does it mean to grow up in Christ?

Consider what the writer of Hebrews wrote:

- We have much to say about this, but it is hard to explain because you are slow to learn. In fact, though by this time you ought to be teachers, you need someone to teach you the elementary truths of God's word all over again. You need milk, not solid food! Anyone who lives on milk, being still an infant, is not acquainted with the teaching about righteousness. But solid food is for the mature, who by constant use have trained themselves to distinguish good from evil. Therefore let us leave the elementary teachings about Christ and go on to maturity, not laying again the foundation of repentance from acts that lead to death… (Hebrews 5:11-6:1 NIV84).

What do you understand this to be telling us?

What is elementary school? Elementary school teaches elementary or basic things, the beginning stuff—the a,b,c's that need to be understood before one can read, but this is milk, not solid food.

Is milk important to an infant, necessary even? So, these elementary things are essential to the Christian experience, but they are elementary, infantile. What would we say to those who insist on never learning more than the a,b,c's, if at church each week they insisted we always sing the alphabet song, but we never actually read?

And what specifically does Hebrews 5-6 tell us is the elementary teaching? "repentance from acts that lead to death" which is a focus on the dos and don'ts, the rules, the law. This is childlike thinking, the penal legal way of understanding things, its wrong not to brush one's teeth because mommy has a rule. The child doesn't think about the laws of health, only obeying the rules. The child doesn't want to get in trouble, doesn't want to get punished. But the child also is very intolerant of rule-breaking, and this is why elementary school is filled with tattletales, "Johnny was passing notes teacher."

And the church is filled with such infantile Christians who are rule-keepers and tattletales.

And according to this text, those who remain on the elementary teachings, the rules, are not acquainted with the teaching about righteousness. And this has proved true as the imposed law adherents, have replaced righteousness by faith with the penal legal fiction of declaring someone righteous who is not. They are no acquainted at all with the teaching about righteousness.s

Read the second paragraph,

- Paul believes divisiveness to be an important mark of error: That which nourishes and grows the body and helps it hold together is good while that which depletes and divides it is evil. By turning from the divisive teaching and to that of tested and trusted teachers (Eph. 4:11), they > will advance toward true Christian maturity and play effective roles in the body of Christ (Eph. 4:12, 13; compare Eph. 4:15, 16). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 61).

There is truth in the idea that error brings division, and in fact Satan is a divider and constantly seeks to cause division, and that when Christ is in the heart there is unity. But how can this idea of divisiveness being used as a mark of error actually be used to advance error and Satan's kingdom?

- Did the Pharisees accuse Jesus of teaching divisive things, ideas that were breaking away from their orthodoxy and introducing division?
- Did the Jews accuse the Apostles of being divisive?
- Did the church of the Dark Ages accuse the Reformers of being divisive?
- And the legalist SDA leaders at 1888 GC accused Jones and Waggoner of being divisive

So, what is the balance here—how is it that lies and error bring division, and division can be a sign of error, but when the truth comes division seems to occur? In fact aren't we instructed to call God's people out of Babylon and wouldn't that cause division—separating people from that old system?

2023 3Q Ephesians—Lesson 8
Christ-Shaped Lives and Spirit-Inspired Speech

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

SABBATH

The lesson tells a story of a man named Jose who was living homeless and was unwashed, disheveled when a man gave him a complete makeover, haircut, shave, bath, new clothes and how he didn't even look like the same person and this changed his life for the better. Then, in the last paragraph, the lesson draws this comparison:

- In Ephesians 4:17–32, Paul argues that believers have experienced a complete transformation. They have taken off their old selves and have embraced their new identity. Somewhat like Jose's change, though, this is no mere external transformation. It includes being "renewed in the spirit of your minds" (Eph. 4:23, ESV), bringing into the life "true righteousness and holiness" (Eph. 4:24, ESV). This is the ultimate makeover. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 64).

I am so happy to see that the lesson is teaching that salvation is a complete transformation of the person, being healed, renewed in heart and mind. This is exactly right, salvation is not penal legal it is actual recreation, transformation, restoration to holiness, righteousness, godly perfection through Christ.

Can you think of other places where the Bible uses the metaphor of a change of clothing for salvation?

Turn to MONDAY's lesson and read the second paragraph,

- Paul tells us that the adoption of a Christ-shaped life requires three processes, which he expresses through clothing imagery: (1) to "put off" or turn away from the old way of life (Eph. 4:22); (2) to experience inner renewal (Eph. 4:23); and (3) to "put on" the new, Godlike pattern of life (Eph. 4:24). Paul's metaphor reflects the use of clothing in the Old Testament as a symbol for both sinfulness (e.g., Ps. 73:6; Zech. 3:3, 4; Mal. 2:16) and salvation (e.g., Isa. 61:10; Ezek. 16:8; Zech. 3:4, 5). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 66).

And from the references above:

- Therefore pride is their necklace; they clothe themselves with violence (Psalm 73:6 NIV84).

- Now Joshua was dressed in filthy clothes as he stood before the angel. The angel said to those who were standing before him, "Take off his filthy clothes." Then he said to Joshua, "See, I have taken away your sin, and I will put rich garments on you" (Zechariah 3:3–4 NIV84).

PO Box 28266, Chattanooga, TN 37424
topics@comeandreason.com

- I delight greatly in the LORD; my soul rejoices in my God. For he has clothed me with garments of salvation and arrayed me in a robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom adorns his head like a priest, and as a bride adorns herself with her jewels (Isaiah 61:10 NIV84).

And we also read in Scripture:

- All of us have become like one who is unclean, and all our righteous acts are like filthy rags (Isaiah 64:6 NIV84).

- "But when the king came in to see the guests, he noticed a man there who was not wearing wedding clothes. 'Friend,' he asked, 'how did you get in here without wedding clothes?' The man was speechless (Matthew 22:11-12 NIV84).

- Surrounding the throne were twenty-four other thrones, and seated on them were twenty-four elders. They were dressed in white and had crowns of gold on their heads (Revelation 4:4 NIV84).

So the Bible does use the metaphor of clothing, dirty, filthy, torn clothing representing our sinfulness, and fine, clean, white robes representing the righteousness of Jesus that the saved become dressed in.

And the lesson points out that Paul is calling for the believers to exchange their old sinful clothes/lives for new clean clothes or holy/pure/righteous lives.

How does one do that?

Does Jesus take off our old sinful selves for us?

Can Jesus take off our old sinful selves for us or is letting go of our old ways, our old preferences, desires, and priorities, our choice to make?

Do we have to choose to surrender all, to let go of self, to stop trying to make ourselves look good, to be honest with God and ourselves and to disrobe, to be open and truthful about our own sin condition? Do we have to choose to say, "I admit that I am a sinner and I am completely infected with fear and selfishness. That on my own all I do is corrupt and impure. I don't want to be sick in heart and mind, I surrender my old fear-based survival drive self to Jesus"?

But even if we do surrender, take off the old self, can we prepare, sew, create the new clothing for ourselves—meaning can we create, by our good works, a new righteous character?

In the wedding parable, why was the man who showed up without the wedding garment called out for not wearing the wedding clothes? Was he being called out because he didn't buy wedding clothes or didn't make wedding clothes? No, the wedding clothes were provided free of charge by the groom and the man chose not to wear them. Is there a lesson in this parable about our old sinful selves and our new selves in Christ?

Who creates develops and makes the robe of righteousness? Jesus!

Who decides to put off our old self and put on a new self?

Our lesson this week focuses on Ephesians 4:17-32, lets read these verses and see who Paul says is the one who must act to change these metaphorical clothes:

- You were taught, with regard to your former way of life, to put off your old self, which is being corrupted by its deceitful desires; to be made new in the attitude of your minds; and to put on the new self, created to be like God in true righteousness and holiness.

  Therefore each of you must put off falsehood and speak truthfully to his neighbor, for we are all members of one body. "In your anger do not sin": Do not let the sun go down while you are still angry, and do not give the devil a foothold. He who has been stealing must steal no longer, but must work, doing something useful with his own hands, that he may have something to share with those in need.

  Do not let any unwholesome talk come out of your mouths, but only what is helpful for building others up according to their needs, that it may benefit those who listen. And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, with whom you were sealed for the day of redemption. Get rid of all bitterness, rage and anger, brawling and slander, along with every form of malice. Be kind and compassionate to one another, forgiving each other, just as in Christ God forgave you (Ephesians 4:22–32 NIV84, emphasis mine).

In these verses, who is the one that is being instructed to act, to do? Is the instruction, be still and passively let God put off your old self, and put on a new self, to passively let God take control of your mouth so you become an organic mobile speaker platform that God speaks through?

Is the instruction that we are to have God choose for us what emotions we have and how we deal with them and what words we speak? Is it saying that God is the one who decides for us whether we respond to or reject the Holy Spirit, whether we hold onto bitterness, rage, anger, brawling, slander, and malice or let it go? Whether we are kind and whether we forgive—or is Paul saying in all of these matters and more, that we have to choose, decide, how we will act, what principles we will apply to ourselves in how we live and deal with others?

Who then is deciding, moment by moment, what methods we use? And is it in those decisions of life that we are deciding how we dress ourselves?

Consider this Bible passage, describing the bride of Christ:

- Let us rejoice and be glad and give him glory! For the wedding of the Lamb has come, and his bride has made herself ready. Fine linen, bright and clean, was given her to wear." (Fine linen stands for the righteous acts of the saints.) (Revelation 19:7-8 NIV84).

Does this mean that we, through our choices, good works, and good deeds create our own robe of righteousness, that our works save us?

Think back on the metaphor of old and new clothing, can Jesus choose for you to surrender your fear, hate, resentment, anger, bitterness, malice, jealousy, envy, desire for revenge, sense of injustice, outrage that life is not fair, desire to punish others, unforgiveness, hatred, and selfishness? Can Jesus choose for you to surrender your heart and mind to Him?

Can Jesus make the choice for you to forgive those who have wronged you? When you are mistreated does Jesus choose your response for you? Is Jesus the one who decides whether you lie or tell the truth, whether you spread tales or protect the reputations of others, whether you cheat or are honest, whether you steal or get a job? Who makes these choices for every person?

Then is our salvation up to us, are we saving ourselves?

What law lens are you understanding salvation through?

- If we understand God's law as imposed law, like human laws, then we falsely conclude that salvation is legal and performance based. Either personal legalism in which the sinner is required, after being legally pardoned based on the legal payment of Jesus and having their past sins forgiven, to then live a behaviorally legally righteous life.
- Or, as others teach, that since they can never live perfectly then all sins for all time for all people have already been legally paid for by Jesus and that we just need to accept the legal payment and live however we want because we are saved by grace, meaning the legal payment of our debt has been made in the courts above.
- And still others believe that it is through the legal application of the blood payment in heaven for every act of sin that we remember to confess and ask forgiveness for that we get legal pardon.

But notice, all of these descriptions are some form of legalism, it is not reality.

What is the reality? Design law, the laws life and health are built by God to operate upon, and the best way to understand that are the laws of health.

Consider having some illness, some terminal condition, whether an infection, or cancer or something else. Whatever the condition is, you have symptoms, you are getting worse, you are dying and there is nothing you can personally do to cure this condition. But, you have a loving father who is a medical doctor and scientist who has sacrificed time, energy, and money to develop a remedy that will perfectly cure you. Your father offers you this remedy free of charge—do you still have to take it in order to get well and live?

And what if the remedy also requires you to stop some of the coping behaviors you were using to deal with your terminal condition—say, you had pain associated with your condition and you had been drinking heavily or smoking marijuana to deal with the pain, and for the remedy to work you must stop adding more injury to yourself which requires that you to stop other activities that diminish you symptoms but at the same time are making you worse?

Who would decide whether you take the remedy and stop the old coping behaviors—you or your physician father?

And if you do choose to daily take the remedy and stop the old coping behaviors are you saving yourself? Did you create the remedy or are you only partaking of and participating in the remedy that was 100 percent developed and provided by another?

This is salvation, this is the Scriptural balance of faith and works. Our works never create the remedy, never cure the sin condition, never save ourselves. Everything necessary for salvation was provided by Jesus, who became a real human being and all by Himself, without any help from any other human being, developed the remedy for our sin condition. And now He offers it to us free of charge. Yet, it is still our choice and responsibility to take what Jesus offers or reject it, to let go of the old and embrace the new, to take off the old coping strategies and apply the healing remedies of Christ.

So, EGW describes it this way in COL:

- This robe, woven in the loom of heaven, has in it not one thread of human devising. Christ in His humanity wrought out a perfect character, and this character He offers to impart to us. "All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags." Isaiah 64:6. Everything that we of ourselves can do is defiled by sin. But the Son of God "was manifested to take away our sins; and in Him is no sin." Sin is defined to be "the transgression of the law." 1 John 3:5, 4. [What law, imposed rules, or God's design protocols for life—whatever is not of faith is sin Romans 14:23] But Christ was obedient to every requirement of the law. He said of Himself, "I delight to do Thy will, O My God; yea, Thy law is within My heart." Psalm 40:8. When on earth, He said to His disciples, "I have kept My Father's commandments." John 15:10. By His perfect obedience He has made it possible for every human being to obey God's commandments. When we submit ourselves to Christ, the heart is united with His heart, the will is merged in His will, the mind becomes one with His mind, the thoughts are brought into captivity to Him; we live His life. This is what it means to be clothed with the garment of His righteousness. Then as the Lord looks upon us He sees, not the fig-leaf garment, not the nakedness and deformity of sin, but His own robe of righteousness, which is perfect obedience to the law of Jehovah (Christ's Object Lessons 311).

She describes it again in the book The Desire of Ages:

- The law requires righteousness,—a righteous life, a perfect character; and this man has not to give. [Why does the law require this? For the same reason the law of respiration requires that we breathe, because God's laws are the protocols life is built to operate upon. There is no > other way to be and live.] He cannot meet the claims of God's holy law. But Christ, coming to the earth as man, lived a holy life, and developed a perfect character. These He offers as a free gift to all who will receive them. His life stands for the life of men. Thus they have remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God. More than this, Christ imbues men with the attributes of God. He builds up the human character after the similitude of the divine character, a goodly fabric of spiritual strength and beauty. Thus the very righteousness of the law is fulfilled in the believer in Christ. God can "be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus." Romans 3:26. (The Desire of Ages 762).

This is reality, it is the plan of salvation in which Jesus took upon Himself the responsibility of destroying the death causing principle of fear and selfishness and restoring in the human species God's living law of love, God's design law, God's protocols for life, and thereby restoring the species human to unity with God and heaven. In doing this, Jesus became the second Adam, the new head of humanity through whom flows the love, truth, life, power, purity of God that we receive through faith.

Thus the Bible says:

- Although he was a son, he learned obedience from what he suffered and, once made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey him (Hebrews 5:8,9 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Jesus as a human, was tempted in all points like we are, but Jesus, as a human, chose only love and loyalty to God and rejected all temptations. Thus, as a human, Jesus learned obedience, learned, developed, grew in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man. Jesus developed a perfect, sinless, righteous, and holy human character, by the exercise of human abilities in the face of all the weakness and temptation that His humanity was incumbered with.

At the cross Jesus destroyed, from the humanity that He took upon Himself, from the humanity He inherited from Adam, the destructive elements that Adam brought into it that were the avenue for His temptations. When Jesus was in Gethsemane, Jesus anguished in horrible human emotions that tempted Him with the temptation to avoid the cross—to act selfishly, to save self. But Jesus chose love and self-sacrifice instead of survival of the fittest, instead of saving self. And thus, in the humanity of Jesus the living law of God was perfectly restored and the law of sin and death was purged and Jesus became the second Adam, the new head of humanity, our Lord, Savior, King, Redeemer, and Remedy.

When we surrender to Jesus in faith/trust, we take off our old self, and receive a new self, a new identity, with new motives and desires—the mind/character of Jesus, which is the robe of righteousness.

Then, in our daily walk through life, we are faced with choices, do we choose the new desires, to love God and others, to trust Jesus, to put Him at the center of our hearts and motives, to seek to glorify Him because we love Him so much and are so thankful to Him, or do we continue to embrace and practice our long held sinful self-centered coping mechanisms? When we have bills due, do we fulfill all our duties to the best of our ability, to be honest and trust Jesus with the future, with how it turns out (like Joseph while he was a slave), or do we distrust, allow fear to control our choices and choose to steal, embezzle, or cheat in some way to pay our bills?

When someone says all manner of evil against us falsely, do we choose to put on the robe of Christ's righteousness and bless them and pray for those who persecute us, or do we continue to wear the filthy rags of this world and lash back with hate, anger, name-calling, attacking them in any way we can, seeking to make them pay, to get revenge—even if all of that is only in our hearts and minds?

If we choose to fall on our knees, hurt, frustrated, angry because life is not fair, because we have been wronged, and we cry out to Jesus and tell Him how much it hurts, and tell Him of our anger, our frustration, our desire to go punch someone—but we also say, Jesus this is not who I want to be. I want to love my enemies like you love me. I want to bless those who persecute me, not curse them. But I don't have it in me, please create in me a clean heart O God and renew your right spirit within me, and if then we experience freedom from anger, bitterness, resentment, and the peace that passes understanding—who is doing that? Who is taking off the old and putting on the new? But are you saving yourself, or only choosing to partake of Jesus in real time, in real circumstances, and in so doing Jesus makes a real difference in the inner workings of your heart and mind?

One more thought on the new clothes we are to put on, Jesus counsel to His church in Revelation:

- I counsel you to buy from me gold refined in the fire, so you can become rich; and white clothes to wear, so you can cover your shameful nakedness; and salve to put on your eyes, so you can see (Revelation 3:18 NIV84).

How are we to buy from Jesus the white robes of His righteous character so that we are not dressed in our own corrupt selfishness but are dressed in the beauty of His righteousness?

It is the barter system—we buy through exchange—we must exchange:

- our sin-sickness for His holiness,
- our guilt for His peace,
- our shame for His purity,
- our fear for His confidence,
- our doubt for His surety,
- our confusion for His clarity,
- our selfishness for His love,
- our dishonesty for His honesty,
- our terminal condition for his holy condition,
- our mortal life for His eternal life.

SUNDAY

Read third paragraph,

- Paul is not just concerned about specific sins or behaviors exhibited by Gentiles. He is concerned about a pattern of behavior that they exhibit, a downward trajectory of living in the grip of sin. At the heart of Ephesians 4:17–19 is a portrait of a calloused spirituality: "in the futility of their mind, having their understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God" (Eph. 4:17, 18, NKJV). This calloused spirituality is the source of the darkened understanding highlighted at the beginning of the passage ("because of the ignorance that is in them, due to their hardness of heart. They have become callous," Eph. 4:18, 19, ESV) and the depraved sexual practice underlined at its end ("and have given themselves up to sensuality, greedy to practice every kind of impurity," Eph. 4:19, ESV). Alienated from God, they don't know how to live, and separated from His saving grace, they continue in a downward spiral of sin and depravity. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 65).

What is being described here? Again, I must commend the lesson for focusing our attention, not on a specific list of sins, but on the underlying spiritual sickness that leads to the sinful behaviors or acts.

Why is it an error, a mistake, to focus only on specific sins, even if it is a comprehensive list of sins?

Sins are the symptoms of the condition—when we forget this, when we have rejected God's design law and instead advance Romanism, the idea that God's law functions like human law, then we fail to recognize that the acts of sin are only the symptoms of hearts and minds that are out of harmony with God and His design for life. We think that sin is behavioral, rather than motivational, and false legal solutions are substituted for the true healing remedy that God provides.

Sin absolutely manifests in behaviors, but rightly understood the behaviors are not the problem, they are the symptoms of the problem.

Any Bible texts to support this idea?

- "You have heard that it was said to the people long ago, 'Do not murder, and anyone who murders will be subject to judgment.' But I tell you that anyone who is angry with his brother will be subject to judgment (Matthew 5:21-22 NIV84)

- "You have heard that it was said, 'Do not commit adultery.' But I tell you that anyone who looks at a woman lustfully has already committed adultery with her in his heart (Matthew 5:27-28 NIV84).

- "The LORD does not look at the things man looks at. Man looks at the outward appearance, but the LORD looks at the heart" (1 Samuel 16:7 NIV84).

- For I would not have known what coveting really was if the law had not said, "Do not covet" (Romans 7:7 NIV84).

- This is the covenant I will make with the house of Israel after that time, declares the Lord. I will put my laws in their minds and write them on their hearts (Hebrews 8:10 NIV84).

Do you see that the behaviors are the symptoms of the disease of sin, not the primary problem? It is like how fever, cough, and chills are symptoms of pneumonia—but the symptoms are not the primary problem. And the solution for pneumonia is not merely to treat the symptoms, but to cure the disease.

The penal legal theologies, based upon the lie that God's law functions like human law, focus on the symptoms, and have a form of godliness with no power. The truth is that through Jesus Christ we get new hearts and right spirits, are reborn, and recreated to live with new lives with new motives that we receive from Jesus and the symptoms resolve as we grow in Christ.

Now with all of this in mind, consider the following description from Jesus, how would you explain this to someone, what is the relationship between our deeds, behaviors, and the judgment?

- "Make a tree good and its fruit will be good, or make a tree bad and its fruit will be bad, for a tree is recognized by its fruit. You brood of vipers, how can you who are evil say anything good? For out of the overflow of the heart the mouth speaks. The good man brings good things out of the good stored up in him, and the evil man brings evil things out of the evil stored up in him. But I tell you that men will have to give account on the day of judgment for every careless word they have spoken. For by your words you will be acquitted, and by your words you will be condemned" (Matthew 12:33-37 NIV84).

If the issue is our heart condition, then why is Jesus saying it is by their words that they will be either condemned or acquitted in the judgment? Is Jesus making salvation legal and behavioral?

He is saying that everything in His kingdom is reality based. Those who partake of Him, the Remedy for sin, will experience healing, transformation, renewal, rebirth and have God's living law of love written upon their hearts and they will live holy lives and their words and deeds will produce the fruit of the Spirit. But those who cling to fear with its legal systems of this world will not have hearts renewed and their words and deeds will be selfish and sinful. Thus, at the judgment those who are goats (lost) are accurately identified as the goats that they actually are and those who are sheep (saved) are accurately identified as the sheep that they actually are; those who are righteous are going to be righteous still and those who are wicked are going to be wicked still.

God's judgment does not determine who is righteous and who is wicked, God's judgment accurately diagnosis, identifies, and separates those who have chosen to accept the free gift of Christ's righteousness and become righteous from the wicked who have rejected Christ and hardened themselves in unrighteousness—in fear and selfishness.

TUESDAY

Read last paragraph,

- Paul then commands, "Let no corrupt word proceed out of your mouth" (Eph. 4:29, NKJV), which describes a destructive word making its seemingly unstoppable way toward the lips to do its damaging work. Positively, Paul imagines any negative expression not being just stopped, but replaced by a statement that exhibits three criteria: It (1) "is good for building up," (2) "fits the occasion," and (3) gives "grace to those who hear" (Eph. 4:29, ESV). If only all our words could be like that! (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 67).

What would qualify as "corrupt words"?

Certainly, bearing false witness, words intended to deceive, mislead, and words intended to tempt into sin—all such words would be corrupt.

Any other examples of corrupt words?

What about cursing—when Peter denied Jesus with cursing were his words corrupt?

What if Peter would have said, "Yes, you blankety blank losers, I blankety blank know Him. What are you blankety blank going to do about it?" would those words have been pure and uncorrupted or still corrupt?

If you say corrupt, why? Wouldn't that statement be a statement of being truthful, of taking a stand for Jesus? Or despite speaking the truth, does saying it with vulgarity and cursing and accusation against one's enemies reveal the sin infection is still operating in the heart—that there is fear, selfishness, anger and hatred directing the actions rather than love and trust?

Consider James 3:9-11:

- One moment we praise God our Father, and the very next moment we curse the very men and women created in his image. Think about it: Out of the same mouth come both praises and curses. My brothers and sisters, this is wrong, and it must stop. Does a spring bring forth fresh water one moment and sewage the next? (James 3:9-11 REM).

Other examples of corrupt speech?

What about words intended to hurt another person—even if those words are factually true, but the reason for saying them is to wound, hurt, injure, control, manipulate for one's own ends?

What about saying things that are not true to get along, to avoid conflict, to keep one's job, something everyone else agrees with, but you do not? Say being put in a situation where you have to deny Jesus in order to keep your job? What about denying some other aspect of reality, like there is no male or female?

Is there a design law at work in what we say and why we need to be careful in our speech?

Consider this commentary from the book The Desire of Ages:

- Closely connected with Christ's warning in regard to the sin against the Holy Spirit is a warning against idle and evil words. The words are an indication of that which is in the heart. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." But the words are more than an indication of character; they have power to react on the character. Men are influenced by their own words. Often under a momentary impulse, prompted by Satan, they give utterance to jealousy or evil surmising, expressing that which they do not really believe; but the expression reacts on the thoughts. They are deceived by their words, and come to believe that true which was spoken at Satan's instigation. Having once expressed an opinion or decision, they are often too proud to retract it, and try to prove themselves in the right, until they come to believe that they are. It is dangerous to utter a word of doubt, dangerous to question and criticize divine light. The habit of careless and irreverent criticism reacts upon the character, in fostering irreverence and unbelief. Many a man indulging this habit has gone on unconscious of danger, until he was ready to criticize and reject the work of the Holy Spirit. Jesus said, "Every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment. For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned" (The Desire of Ages 323, emphasis mine).

Now consider what is happening in the world today, people are being pressured to speak things that they do not believe, to call a man a woman and a woman a man.

Is there any danger in speaking things that you believe are false simply to get along, to avoid conflict, to keep your job?

This is one of the great evils in what is happening in the world today. Evil always seeks to force its way upon others. Righteousness always seeks to win hearts and minds to friendship, to the voluntary service of love, based on understanding and agreement.

Evil is based upon lies and selfishness, righteousness is based upon truth and love. Thus, evil cannot allow honest dialogue, discussion, or leave people free to decide for themselves because the truth will always expose evil as fraudulent and destructive. Thus, evil will always end up using coercive pressure to force its way.

When it comes to personal pronouns notice the evil methods being employed, and the purpose and goal of these evil methods. The method is to use external coercive pressure to force another person to speak and act against their conscience. If one speaks against their own conscience to avoid being ostracized, rejected, being fired from a job, or expelled from school etc. one's mind is damaged, and they become less capable of both discerning truth for themselves and standing for truth.

But, Jesus also said not to cast your pearls before swine lest they turn and rend you asunder, and there were times when Jesus remained silent and didn't speak. To remain silent is not the same as speaking a lie to get along. There will be times when wisdom directs us to remain silent rather than speak the truth boldly, but at other times, we are to speak the truth. We must ask the Holy Spirit to lead us in every circumstance. But, what the Holy Spirit will not lead us to do is to bear false witness, to deceive, to go against the truth.

Don't be deceived by what is happening in the world, it is an assault on the hearts, minds, and characters of the righteous.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson points out how Paul repeatedly describes how sinful living, refusing to apply to one's life the methods and principles of God, grieves the Holy Spirit. Then the lesson states the following in the third paragraph,

- Paul underlines the full divinity of the Spirit as "the Holy Spirit of God" and highlights the personhood of the Spirit by portraying the Holy Spirit as grieving. (See also Rom. 8:16, 26, 27; 1 Cor. 2:10, 13; 1 Cor. 12:11; Gal. 5:17, 18.) (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 68).

Have you heard things going around the circle that attack the full divinity of either Jesus or the Holy Spirit? Things suggesting that there is no Holy Spirit?

There is a reason for this—it is a strategy of Satan to stop people from experiencing salvation. Jesus is God the Son, fully and completely God who is our Savior. Jesus has life original to Himself, unborrowed and underived from another source. Without Jesus' becoming human, living a sinless life, dying selflessly as our substationary Savior and rising again no human could be saved from sin.

But what Jesus accomplished for us must be partaken of by us if we are to benefit from it. And the Holy Spirit, who is also fully God, is the one who administers into our hearts the benefits of what Jesus has accomplished in our behalf. Without the work of the Holy Spirit, Christ's victory would not benefit us personally.

Christ's victory would still benefit the loyal angels who would have the truth He revealed. It would still benefit the planet in that Jesus, in His person, successfully restored God's living law back into the species human because Jesus was fully human. And Jesus defeated Satan and reclaimed Earth under human governance—His governance as the second Adam.

But for us to individually participate in what Jesus has accomplished it requires His victory to be made effectual in our hearts and minds. That is the work of the Holy Spirit, first to put a desire for something better than this sinful world of selfishness into our hearts, a longing for God, for love, for our heavenly home. Then the Holy Spirit convicts of sin, brings us to conviction that we are not right, that something is wrong, and the Holy Spirit enlightens us to the truth, whether we see that truth in nature as Paul says in Romans 1:20 and 2:12, or in Scripture, and then, when we surrender to God, it is the Holy Spirit who takes the righteousness of Christ and reproduces it in us, so that it is no longer I that live but Christ lives in me (Galatians 2:20).

- Satan knows that if he can get people to deny the Father and believe in evolutionism, humanism, or some other godless philosophy and live for self that they won't be saved.
- Satan knows that if he can get people to deny Jesus and pursue salvation in some other means or mode without Jesus then they won't be saved.
- And Satan knows that if he can get people to deny the Holy Spirit, to grieve the Holy Spirit, and refuse the work of the Holy Spirit in their lives that they won't be saved.

All these attacks on the Godhead are attacks on the character of God to undermine our faith in God, and to replace the truth of God's character of love with Satan's character of selfishness.

Understand this clearly: Love does not and cannot exist in a singularity, in a solitary being with no other living entity. For love to exist and function it requires an other, someone to love, to sacrifice and give of self for and to. And godly agape love does not exist in a dyad, the fullest form of other centered love requires at a minimum, three.

Two people who constantly adore each other can fall into narcissistic reinforcement. Immature couples sometimes do this, when they love each other completely, and are all into each other, and constantly pay attention to and engage positively with the other. And then, at some point, a child is born and the mother begins to pay appropriate time and attention to the child and is not as available to constantly adore the husband, and the immature husband becomes frustrated, angry, and jealous. Their relationship was not godly love, but narcissistic reinforcement.

The minimum for genuine self-sacrificial godly agape love is three. And in the testimony of Scripture we see this. Jesus constantly seeks, not glory for Himself, but to uplift the Father, the Holy Spirit comes not to speak on His own but to uplift and promote Jesus the Son, and the Father sends the Spirit to do His work.

Satan wants to corrupt our understanding of the character of God to be anything other than love, to create a hierarchical system with a supreme ruler who uses power and authority over others. That is Satan's method and system.

Jesus gave this testimony:

- "If you love me, you will obey what I command. And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Counselor to be with you forever—the Spirit of truth. The world cannot accept him, because it neither sees him nor knows him. But you know him, for he lives with you and will be in you (John 14:15-17, emphasis mine).

Now, if there is no third person of the Godhead that we call the Holy Spirit, Jesus words here are quite strange and misleading. If the Holy Spirit is merely the omnipresence of the Father, as some claim, then Jesus should have said: "I will ask the Father, and He Himself will come to you to be with you forever…" If the Holy Spirit were not a person, but a force, then Jesus should have said, "The world cannot accept it, because the world neither sees it nor knows it."

In the Old Testament we find all three members of the Godhead:

- Then God said, "Let us make man in our image, in our likeness… Genesis 1:26

God did not say, "I will make man in my image."

But what about "Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God is one LORD" (Deuteronomy 6:4)

Notice the passage in English uses both "Lord" and "God."

The reading of this passage with the Hebrew names for "Lord" and "God" would go like this: "Hear, O Israel: Yahweh our Elohim, Yahweh is One."

What is interesting is that the word Elohim in Hebrew is plural and is the same word used for God in Genesis 1:26. Thus an accurate meaning of this text would go like this: "The One is more than One yet is One"

In Hebrew there are two words for one, Yacheed and Echad. The first indicates singular unity as in one and only, the second indicates compound unity, as the oneness of two or more. In this text Echad is used along with the plural name of God Elohim indicating the oneness of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

The Old Testament also provides texts in which all members of the Godhead are referenced:

- And now the Sovereign Lord [Father] has sent me [Son], with his Spirit [Holy Spirit]. This is what the Lord says— your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel: Isaiah 48:16,17
- "Here is my [Father] servant [Son], whom I [Father] uphold, my [Father] chosen one [Son] in whom I [Father] delight; I [Father] will put my Spirit [Holy Spirit] on him [Son] and he [Son] will bring justice to the nations. Isaiah 42:1

Ellen White affirmed the full divinity of the three persons of the Godhead, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit:

- In describing to His disciples the office work of the Holy Spirit, Jesus sought to inspire them with the joy and hope that inspired His own heart. He rejoiced because of the abundant help He had provided for His church. The Holy Spirit was the highest of all gifts that He could solicit from His Father for the exaltation of His people. The Spirit was to be given as a regenerating agent, and without this the sacrifice of Christ would have been of no avail.

The power of evil had been strengthening for centuries, and the submission of men to this satanic captivity was amazing. Sin could be resisted and overcome only through the mighty agency of the Third Person of the Godhead, who would come with no modified energy, but in the fullness of divine power. It is the Spirit that makes effectual what has been wrought out by the world's Redeemer. It is by the Spirit that the heart is made pure. Through the Spirit the believer becomes a partaker of the divine nature. Christ has given His Spirit as a divine power to overcome all hereditary and cultivated tendencies to evil, and to impress His own character upon His church. (The Desire of Ages 671).

- There are three living persons of the heavenly trio; in the name of these three great powers–the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit–those who receive Christ by living faith are baptized, and these powers will co-operate with the obedient subjects of heaven in their efforts to live the new life in Christ.– (Evangelism, p. 615)

THURSDAY

Read the second paragraph,

- In the final exhortation of Ephesians 4:17–32, Paul again provides a negative command, this one identifying six vices that are to "be put away from you" (Eph. 4:31); a positive command to be kind, tenderhearted, and forgiving (Eph. 4:32), and a rationale. Believers are to forgive one another "even as God in Christ forgave you" (Eph. 4:32, NKJV). The list of six vices begins and ends with general, all-encompassing terms, "all bitterness" and "all malice." In between come four additional terms: "wrath," "anger," "clamor," and "slander" (Eph. 4:31, ESV). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 69).

Why are we to forgive those who wrong us?

If we forgive them does that mean what they did was okay?
Does it mean we have to trust them? Why not?
If we forgive do we have to treat them as if they did not wrong us? What if they remain untrustworthy?
If we forgive them do they get away with their sin against us?
If God forgives people, like Jesus did on the cross, do they get away with their sin?

Does forgiving someone mean forgetting?

Does forgiving someone mean they become your friend?

Who is changed when we forgive?

2023 3Q Ephesians—Lesson 9
Living Wisely

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

How would you explain what it means to live wisely?

It means to understand and live in harmony with objective reality, in harmony the laws God built reality to operate upon.

Jesus taught this when He said:

- "Therefore everyone who hears these words of mine and puts them into practice is like a wise man who built his house on the rock. (Matthew 7:24 NIV84).

Jesus was saying the wise understand God, God's character, methods, principles, design laws and put them into practice, and their lives are built on the solid foundation trust in God and harmony with His never-changing protocols for life.

Jesus did NOT say the wise man accepts my vicarious legal payment in his behalf and gets a legal declaration that proclaims his life to be righteous while he remains unrighteous.

Why is it foolishness to build on the penal legal system of salvation? Because the penal legal system of salvation is made up, fantasy, built on the lies of Satan that God's law functions like human law.

Let's examine more wisdom Scripture and see if you can identify the consistent theme that wisdom is harmony with God and the laws He built reality to operate upon:

- The way of a fool seems right to him, but a wise man listens to advice. (Proverbs 12:15 NIV84).
- A wise son heeds his father's instruction, but a mocker does not listen to rebuke. (Proverbs 13:1 NIV84).
- The wise in heart accept commands, but a chattering fool comes to ruin. (Proverbs 10:8 NIV84). [What is described? What does it mean to listen to advice, heed instructions, and accept commands? Does it mean mindless, thoughtless, blind obedience—simply doing what someone else tells us? No! It means acknowledging reality—that we are finite beings and do not know everything, and that other people have perspectives, knowledge, insights, understanding, truths that we may not have yet understood ourselves. The wise person is willing to listen, to hear, to consider, to examine, to grow through assimilating truth from others. The fool thinks they know it all already and they cannot learn for they will not listen to anything that doesn't agree with what they already think. And where does truth, learning have its impact? Is the change that comes from accepting truth, direction, instruction, a legal change in record books or actual change in thought and when applied functional change in the individual?]

- The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life, and he who wins souls is wise. (Proverbs 11:30 NIV84). [How does fruit come forth? Under what type of law? Is fruit legally proclaimed to exist when in reality it does not exist?]

- Reckless words pierce like a sword, but the tongue of the wise brings healing. (Proverbs 12:18 NIV84).
- The teaching of the wise is a fountain of life, turning a man from the snares of death. (Proverbs 13:14 NIV84).
- The path of life leads upward for the wise to keep him from going down to the grave. (Proverbs 15:24 NIV84). [Why do the words of the wise bring healing? Why are the teachings of the wise a fountain of life? Because wisdom is how life works, teaching the laws of health, not legal adjustments, but objective reality.]

- He who walks with the wise grows wise, but a companion of fools suffers harm. (Proverbs 13:20 NIV84). [Do you know of a New Testament passage that teaches the same thing? "Do not be misled: 'Bad company corrupts good character.'" (1 Corinthians 15:53 NIV84). Is there a law involved here? The law of exertion and worship, by beholding we become changed.]

- Wine is a mocker and beer a brawler; whoever is led astray by them is not wise. (Proverbs 20:1 NIV84). [What is it saying? Is the Bible making a rule that if you ever ingest any ethanol containing substance you are sinning? So, any cough syrup with alcohol needs to be confessed and paid for by the blood of Jesus or else you will be burned in hell for it? No! it is not setting up a rule, it is describing design law, the laws of health. Alcoholic beverages when consumed can intoxicate, interfere with higher cortical function, problem solving, diminish self-restraint, impair judgment, and result in impulsive and destructive decision making. If consumed repeatedly it can alter neural circuits, people can become physically addicted and lose their freedom to a substance and the need to take more of the substance to avoid withdrawal. All of this is unhealthy and therefore unwise.]

- Woe to those who are wise in their own eyes and clever in their own sight. (Isaiah 5:21 NIV84). [What is being described here? Why is this foolishness? Because it closes the mind to truth, to development, to advancement. Cuts oneself off from God who is the source of ultimate truth.]

- The Lord says: "These people come near to me with their mouth and honor me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me. Their worship of me is made up only of rules taught by men. Therefore once more I will astound these people with wonder upon wonder; the wisdom of the wise will perish, the intelligence of the intelligent will vanish." (Isaiah 29:13–14 NIV84).

When Jesus quoted this text in Mark 7:7, He quoted it as:

- They worship me in vain; their teachings are but rules taught by men. (Mark 7:7 NIV84).

[What is going on? Aren't these people wise because they praise God and worship God with their words and singing and go to religious meetings? Why does Isaiah, and then Jesus, say that their praising of God is in vain, is worthless and ultimately foolish and not wise? Because they do it legally, rules taught by men, rather than living out objective reality, rather than living in harmony with God's design laws of truth, love, and liberty.]

Are you seeing a theme in Scripture yet—wisdom is living in harmony with God's design laws, foolishness is breaking them, either in direct rejection and rebellion, or replacing them with man-made religious rules, a legal system of salvation. Consider this passage from Jeremiah:

- How can you say, "We are wise, for we have the law of the LORD," when actually the lying pen of the scribes has handled it falsely? (Jeremiah 8:8 NIV84). [What is the message here? Do we see this today, people claiming wisdom because they have the law, the Torah, the Bible, the Commandments and claim to obey all Ten, yet they have Romanized Christianity and made God out to be like a Roman Caesar who makes up rules and is required by law to use His power to inflict death. They handle the Bible falsely, the law of God falsely and in reality are worshiping a creature, a being whose functions no differently that a created being, they are not worshiping the Creator who built reality and sustains it.]

So what is wisdom?

- This is what the LORD says:
  "Let not the wise man boast of his wisdom or the strong man boast of his strength or the rich man boast of his riches, but let him who boasts boast about this:
  that he understands and knows me, that I am the LORD, who exercises kindness, justice and righteousness on earth,
  for in these I delight," declares the LORD. (Jeremiah 9:23–24 NIV84, emphasis mine). [What is wisdom in this text? It is knowing God, as Jesus prayed life eternal is knowing God, not knowing about God. Why is this wisdom? Is getting such wisdom the same as getting a doctoral degree in theology? What does knowing God look like? When we know God we have intimate connection with God, and to know God is to trust God. And when we trust Him we are restored to righteousness, we receive new hearts and right spirits, we have the living law of God written in our hearts and minds.]

- The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom, and knowledge of the Holy One is understanding. (Proverbs 9:10 NIV84). [What does this mean? What law is involved? Is it speaking of terror and dread? No, it is speaking of awe, admiration, reverence, what we revere. And when we do have awe, admiration, respect and reverence for God then by beholding Him in truth and love we are changed. We surrender ourselves to Him, an intelligent being who is superior to ourselves that we have come to know as completely good and trustworthy and we eagerly want to be closer to Him and more like Him; we are eager to be corrected, instructed, and directed, because we want to learn of Him and from Him, we want to be His student, pupil, disciple—and that is the beginning of wisdom.]

- Although they claimed to be wise, they became fools and exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images made to look like mortal man and birds and animals and reptiles. (Romans 1:22–23 NIV84). [Why did they become fools? Is there a design law involved here? The law of worship, by beholding we are changed.]

- Where is the wise man? Where is the scholar? Where is the philosopher of this age? Has not God made foolish the wisdom of the world? For since in the wisdom of God the world through its wisdom did not know him, God was pleased through the foolishness of what was preached to save those who believe. [What is the wisdom of the world? The strong survive, the weak die. Might makes right. The ends justify the means. The more you take the more you have. Survival of the fittest, is the wisdom of the world. But that is foolishness because it violates the design law that God built reality to operate upon. It is actually the law of sin and death. But it seems to work in a world infected with evil, so the godless, those who don't know God, those without true wisdom think it is wise to dominate, control, and abuse others to make themselves feel safe.] Jews demand miraculous signs and Greeks look for wisdom, but we preach Christ crucified: a stumbling block to Jews and foolishness to Gentiles, but to those whom God has called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God. For the foolishness of God is wiser than man's wisdom, and the weakness of God is stronger than man's strength. (1 Corinthians 1:19–25 NIV84). [It is foolish to base one's security in miracles for miracles can be counterfeited, but miracles suggest power and power suggests dominance and control over others and that appears wise to the worldly. It is foolish to look to the philosophies of the world for they are all corrupt with selfishness and advance some form of survival of the fittest, which is the law of sin and death. True wisdom is found only in Jesus Christ and Him crucified. But the message of self-sacrificial love is contrary to the systems of this sinful world and thus appears foolish.]

And of course, could we discuss biblical wisdom without considering Psalm 19:

- The law of the LORD is perfect, reviving the soul. [What kind of law can revive a soul? If someone ties a plastic bag over their head, transgressing the law of respiration and they are not yet dead, but have passed out. What happens if we remove the bag and put them back in harmony with the law? They revive!]
  The statutes of the LORD are trustworthy, making wise the simple. [When we understand the laws that God built reality to operate upon and live in harmony with them, we grow in wisdom, because we not only get healthier, we also see more clearly why and how things are designed to work, and we notice things that we didn't notice before. How many of you have grown in wisdom as you have embraced and applied God's design laws to your life?]
  The precepts of the LORD are right, giving joy to the heart. The commands of the LORD are radiant, giving light to the eyes. [From where does joy come? Happiness is the byproduct of healthiness, which occurs from living in harmony with God's design laws. Joy is the byproduct of fulfilling our calling, our purpose in God's kingdom, and some common purposes we all have is to love God and others, to live lives of honesty, integrity, and service. When we do this, we experience joy.]

The fear of the LORD is pure, enduring forever. The ordinances of the LORD are sure and altogether righteous.
They are more precious than gold, than much pure gold; they are sweeter than honey, than honey from the comb.
By them is your servant warned; in keeping them there is great reward. (Psalm 19:7–11 NIV84). [Why are God's ordinances, laws, precepts sweet and why is there great rewarding in keeping them? For they are the protocols of life and it is so sweet to be free, healthy, happy, and joyful; and freedom, health, happiness, and joy are only possible in harmony with God and the laws He built reality to operate upon. Satan tricks people into substituting pleasure seeking for happiness and often pleasure seeking violates the laws of health and makes people worse.]

So how would you describe wisdom? Do you see true wisdom is found only in God and in embracing, understanding, and living out the design laws that He built reality to operate upon? It is foolishness to promote a penal legal religious system because such a system is fantasy, make-believe, fraudulent, a construct of the great liar.

SUNDAY

Read first paragraph,

- Paul urges the believers in Ephesus to walk in love, a call important to this section (see Eph. 5:8, 15). This "walking in love" (see Eph. 5:2) is to be modeled after Christ's own love for us (compare Eph. 4:32), expressed in His atoning sacrifice. Paul affirms four things about that sacrifice: (1) It is motivated by both the love of God the Father (Eph. 5:1) and of Christ Himself (Eph. 5:2); (2) it is substitutionary, with Christ dying in our place. Christ is no passive victim but gave Himself up for us; (3) under the imagery of the Old Testament sanctuary service, Christ's death is also a sacrifice, which is made to God; and (4) the sacrifice is accepted by God since it is "a fragrant offering" (Eph. 5:2, ESV; compare Exod. 29:18, Lev. 2:9, Phil. 4:18). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 73, emphasis mine).

Any concerns with this paragraph? Any truths mixed with error and thereby promoting a false gospel and causing confusion?

I find statements like this so sad, because it so mispresents God whom the people who wrote this claim to love and worship. So, I find it sad when someone is tricked into doing something evil, harmful, while they think they are actually doing something good.

First, let's affirm the truth:

- God is love and God the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are love and they love us.
- Jesus became a real human being, lived a sinless life, became the second Adam, and as it says in 2 Corinthians 5:21 "God made him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God." So, yes Jesus became our substitute so that we might become the righteousness of God, and by restoring us to righteousness we are brought back into unity or at-one-ment with God. So, we believe in the substitutionary atonement of Jesus as our Savior.

But the lesson then reveals how it has accepted the lie about God's law and has Romanized the gospel making it penal legal rather than healing, how it misrepresents God, when it says:

- Christ's death is also a sacrifice, which is made to God; and (4) the sacrifice is accepted by God since it is "a fragrant offering"

They reference Ephesians 5:2, so let's read this verse in several translations and see what you think. This is an excellent exercise because it will demonstrate how the translators, can in all innocence, use legitimate translation options and unknowingly translate in their own penal/legal biases and thereby change the meaning of the Scripture.

In other words, every translation I am going to show you are legitimate translations, none of them violate the rules of translation, none of them are malicious, manipulative, or deceitful. They are done by people of integrity seeking to do their honest best. But when one has accepted the lie that God's law functions like human law, and is translating and then has the option of translating something in a legal way, those choices get made and errors of meaning creep in.

- live a life of love, just as Christ loved us and gave himself up for us as a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God. (Ephesians 5:2 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- live in love, just as Christ also loved us and gave himself for us, a sacrificial and fragrant offering to God. (Ephesians 5:2 NET, emphasis mine).

- walk in love, as Christ also has loved us and given Himself for us, an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet-smelling aroma. (Ephesians 5:2 NKJV, emphasis mine).

So, we see that this idea of offering a sacrifice to God is commonly translated into the text.

But, do the following translations, which are also legitimate options, mean the same thing:

- Your life must be controlled by love, just as Christ loved us and gave his life for us as a sweet-smelling offering and sacrifice that pleases God. (Ephesians 5:2 GNT).

- Live a life filled with love, following the example of Christ. He loved us and offered himself as a sacrifice for us, a pleasing aroma to God. (Ephesians 5:2 NLT).

Do these suggest the same meaning as the others? What do these translations suggest?

That God was pleased by what Christ did, because of Christ's sacrifice accomplished something that was pleasing to God—and what did Christ's sinless life and substitutionary death accomplish?

- Since the children have flesh and blood, he too shared in their humanity so that by his death he might destroy him who holds the power of death—that is, the devil—and free those who all their lives were held in slavery by their fear of death. (Hebrews 2:14–15 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- Christ Jesus, who has destroyed death and has brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. (2 Timothy 1:10 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- The reason the Son of God appeared was to destroy the devil's work. (1 John 3:8 NIV84, emphasis mine).

So, Jesus came to Earth to destroy Satan, Satan's power, death, Satan's work, and FREE humans from the slavery to fear, selfishness, sin, and death.

And who sent Jesus to do this?

- For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life. For God did not send his Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through him. (John 3:16-17 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- God was reconciling the world to himself in Christ, not counting men's sins against them. (2 Corinthians 5:19 NIV84, emphasis mine).

So, what is the truth here? That God was pleased with Jesus because Jesus accomplished God's purpose, God's will, God's desire, God's goal to destroy sin and Satan and death and to restore humanity back to perfection and unity with Him.

Nothing is being done to God, or paid to God, or offered as a sacrifice to God.

But what is being presented to God is the victory, the success, with its results—the redeemed, the cleansed and perfected humanity and that pleases God very much, because this was God's whole purpose in sending Jesus!!!

What about the Old Testament sacrificial system and the aroma of the burnt offering being pleasing to God?

The Old Testament sacrificial system was theater; it acted out in symbolism the larger reality, but it was not reality. And what did that theater act out? The eradication of sin, the curing, healing, saving of humanity from sin, and the restoration of humanity back into at-one-ment with God. Thus, the burnt offering represented the burning out of the lies, rebellion, selfishness, distrust—the burning out of sin that has taken root in the hearts and minds of people. The burning representing the killing of the carnal man, through Jesus' become human, being tempted in all points like we are but, not giving in to any temptation but taking that humanity to the cross and killing it, and arising in a purified humanity free from that infection of fear and selfishness.

It would be like a physician using radiation to burn out the cancer that was killing his child—seeing the cancer burn away and his child saved would be quite pleasing.

This is what the imagery is depicting.

MONDAY

Read third paragraph,

- The phrase "the wrath of God" is a challenging one. That it is the wrath or anger of God suggests a contrast to the usual, moody human variety (compare Eph. 4:31). It is the just response of a long-suffering and righteous God against stubborn commitment to evil, not a crazed, volcanic reaction to some minor infraction. Moreover, mentions of divine wrath most often occur in the context of inspired, biblical warnings about the coming judgments of God (e.g., Rev. 6:12–17, Rev. 16:1–16, Rev. 19:11–16). God warns of His own coming judgments—an act of grace, since human beings are "by nature children of wrath" (Eph. 2:3, ESV), subject to those judgments. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 74, emphasis mine).

There is no question that the Bible uses the words, wrath, anger, judgment. But what is the first question we must answer before we can accurately understand the true meaning of these things?

What law lens are we thinking through—if we accept the Romanization of Christianity, that God's law functions like human, Roman, imposed laws, then judgment is judicial, wrath and anger are inflicted and so-called just punishments.

But when we return to worshiping God as Creator and understand His laws are the design protocols reality is constructed to operate upon, then we understand that His wrath is letting go, the cessation of the use of power and allowing beings to reap what unremedied sin does—just as the Bible describes repeatedly, including in Romans 1:18-32. We recognize God's anger is directed at sin, at the disease, at the unnecessary loss of His creation, like a doctor is angry at disease and wants to destroy disease, but is not angry at the patient.

And if the disease is a disease of the mind that causes the patient to refuse the healing remedy—which happens sometimes. We doctors hate, are angry, at the brain disease, but we are not angry at our patients, we are sad for them.

And God's judgments are His accurate diagnosis of what is wrong and His therapeutic judgments of what is necessary to heal and restore, and in the final end the judgment of the lost is God's accurate diagnosis of what is, that the lost are beyond healing, that they have destroyed within themselves the faculties that respond to truth and love and no further amount of truth and love will have any redeeming, healing or saving impact—in fact more truth and love causes them to suffer, so God stops using power to shield them and keep them alive in a situation in which they will only suffer. God in sadness, but in truth and mercy, ceases using power and lets them go to reap what they have chosen, separation from Him and they die eternally.

We cannot lighten the world for Christ's return as long as we continue to take pagan views of a legal punishing god to the world. We must return to worshiping God as Creator and that requires we reject the Romanization of Christianity and return to understanding God's law as design law.

From Hard Sayings of the Bible:

- In some sense, God's wrath is built into the very structure of created reality. In rejecting God's structure and establishing our own, in violating God's intention for the creation and substituting our own intentions, we cause or own disintegration. P 542

  The human condition, which Paul describes in Romans 1:18-32, is not something caused by God. The phrase "revealed from heaven" (where "heaven" is a typical Jewish substitute word for "God") does not depict some kind of divine intervention, but rather the inevitability of human debasement which results when God's will, built into the created order, is violated. Since the created order has its origin in God, Paul can say that the wrath of God is now (constantly) being revealed "from heaven." It is revealed in the fact that the rejection of God's truth (Rom 1:18-20), that is, the truth about God's nature and will, leads to futile thinking (Rom 1:21-22), idolatry (Rom 1:23), perversion of God-intended sexuality (Rom 1:24-27) and relational-moral brokenness (Rom 1:28-32). P 543

  The expression "God gave them over" (or "handed them over"), which appears three times in this passage (Rom 1:24,26,28), supports the idea that the sinful perversion of human existence, though resulting from human decisions, is to be understood ultimately as God's punishment which we, in freedom, bring upon ourselves. P 543

  In light of these reflections, the common notion that God punishes or blesses in direct proportion to our sinful or good deeds cannot be maintained… God loves us with an everlasting love. But the rejection of that love separates us from its life-giving power. The result is disintegration and death. P 543 (Kaiser, W., et al., Hard Saying of the Bible, Intervarsity Press, 1996).

TUESDAY

The lesson points our attention to Ephesians 5:11-14, let's read those verses from The Remedy;

- Don't have anything to do with the destructive practices of those whose minds are darkened, but rather present the light of truth, which exposes them. For it is damaging and degrading to dwell upon what the disobedient do in secret. But everything exposed by the light of truth becomes understandable, for it is the truth that reveals all things. This is why it is said: "Wake up your brain and start thinking. Stop zoning out like you're dead, and Christ will shine the light of truth into your mind." (Ephesians 5:11-14 REM).

Do you see this counsel as pertinent to people today?

Are there forces at work that seek to get people to stop thinking, to accept what they are told, to believe voices of authority over evidence and truth?

During the Dark Ages, what method did that abusive system use upon people? Power, authority, force of office, do what we say or get punished, don't ask questions, don't research evidence for yourself, anyone who does is a heretic.

What about today, are we seeing the same practices of using power, intimidation, public shaming, shunning, accusation of heresy, of being conspiracy nuts, of not caring about others, of wanting to harm others, of being racist or transphobe to silence those who have legitimate questions?

What is the goal—to turn beings created in the image of God, with our own individuality ability to reason and think into mindless pawns, serfs, a functional slave class who are easily manipulated and controlled by those with authority, charisma and power.

We are to be mature, to develop the ability to think for ourselves, we are to be thinkers, not reflectors of other people's thoughts.

Recognize the methods being used by people and when you see these ungodly methods, don't go along, don't surrender your mind, your thinking, your practices and actions to the world.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson points our attention to Ephesians 5:17, which reads,

- Therefore do not be foolish, but understand what the Lord's will is (Ephesians 5:17 NIV84).

Then the lesson states in the second paragraph,

- We do not look within for wisdom. To be wise is to reach beyond ourselves, to "understand what the will of the Lord is" (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 76).

This is absolutely true—we cannot find wisdom by turning away from God, turning away from the sources of truth God has provided for us, like Scripture, nature, and life's experiences, and turning inward.

Are there any philosophies and practices that are advancing in the world and in Western medicine that do exactly that, turn the mind inward to find solutions?

Eastern meditation practices, do this, they are an emptying form of meditation that cuts the mind and heart off from God, but results in powerful feelings and physiological benefits without actually healing the terminal sin condition. It is a counterfeit to Biblical meditation. If you would like a full exploration of the differences between Biblical and Eastern Meditation check out our Meditation Guide which contrasts the two documenting the differences in underlying philosophy, method, practice, impact on brain and character. You can find it on our website at https://comeandreason.com/meditation-guide/

And our blog Lectio Divina describes the biblical method of meditation https://comeandreason.com/lectio-divina/

To be wise we must understand God's will—how do we do that? Any other Bible verses come to mind?

- Therefore, I urge you, brothers, in view of God's mercy, to offer your bodies as living sacrifices, holy and pleasing to God—this is your spiritual act of worship. Do not conform any longer to the pattern of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind. Then you will be able to test and approve what God's will is—his good, pleasing and perfect will. (Romans 12:1-2 NIV84).

Paul says that if we do something, if we experience something, then we will be able to test and approve what God's will is. What is that that we must do or experience?

We surrender our complete selves to God and stop patterning ourselves after the methods and systems of the world. Would that include stop living by checklists of rules and start living out the principles of God? Would it require us to grow up and mature and stop thinking righteousness is in rule-keeping and recognize righteousness in harmony with God and His methods, principles, and design law for life?

THURSDAY

What does it mean to have Spirit-Filled Worship?

Consider these texts:

- The Spirit gives life; the flesh counts for nothing. The words I have spoken to you are spirit and they are life. (John 6:63 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- Therefore, there is now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus, because through Christ Jesus the law of the Spirit of life set me free from the law of sin and death. (Romans 8:1–2 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- Those who live according to the sinful nature have their minds set on what that nature desires; but those who live in accordance with the Spirit have their minds set on what the Spirit desires. The mind of sinful man is death, but the mind controlled by the Spirit is life and peace… (Romans 8:5–6 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- And if the Spirit of him who raised Jesus from the dead is living in you, he who raised Christ from the dead will also give life to your mortal bodies through his Spirit, who lives in you. Therefore, brothers, we have an obligation—but it is not to the sinful nature, to live according to it. For if you live according to the sinful nature, you will die; but if by the Spirit you put to death the misdeeds of the body, you will live, because those who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God. For you did not receive a spirit that makes you a slave again to fear, but you received the Spirit of sonship. And by him we cry, "Abba, Father." The Spirit himself testifies with our spirit that we are God's children. Now if we are children, then we are heirs—heirs of God and co-heirs with Christ, if indeed we share in his sufferings in order that we may also share in his glory. (Romans 8:11-17 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- He has made us competent as ministers of a new covenant—not of the letter but of the Spirit; for the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life. (2 Corinthians 3:6 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- The one who sows to please his sinful nature, from that nature will reap destruction; the one who sows to please the Spirit, from the Spirit will reap eternal life. (Galatians 6:8 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Is the Bible making the case that it is the power of the Holy Spirit that works in us a change, heals us, transforms us, is the life giving energy of God applying into our inmost being what Christ has wrought out for us?

2023 Q3 Ephesians – Lesson 10
Husbands and Wives: Together at the Cross

by Linda Ojala

SABBATH

Love and Marriage, husbands and wives – what does the Bible say about it, what do we think about it?

Children ages 5-10 were asked about love and Marriage. Some of their responses were:

Love and Marriage:

- "My mother says to look for a man who is kind. That's what I'll do. I'll find somebody who's kinda tall and handsome." -- Carolyn, age 8
- "One of you should know how to write a check. Because, even if you have tons of love, there is still going to be a lot of bills." -- Ava, age 8
- "Love will find you, even if you are trying to hide from it. I been trying to hide from it since I was five, but the girls keep finding me." -- Dave, age 8
- "Don't do things like have smelly, green sneakers. You might get attention, but attention ain't the same thing as love." -- Alonzo, age 9
- "Dates are for having fun, and people should use them to get to know each other. Even boys have something to say if you listen long enough." -- Lynnette, age 8
- "Be a good kisser. It might make your wife forget that you never take out the trash." -- Erin, age 8

What does the Bible say about it? Our memory text is from a letter Paul wrote to the church in Ephesus:

“Husbands, love your wives, just as Christ also loved the church and gave Himself for her, that He might sanctify and cleanse her with the washing of water by the word, that He might present her to Himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing, but that she should be holy and without blemish” (Ephesians 5:25-27, NKJV).

If we break this down, it might look like this:

Husbands, LOVE YOUR WIVES (HOW?)

- Just as JESUS LOVED the church
- AND GAVE HIMSELF for her (WHY?)
    1. That He might SANCTIFY AND CLEANSE HER
       With the washing of water by the word
    2. That He might PRESENT HER TO HIMSELF
       A GLORIOUS CHURCH
        1. Not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing
        2. But that she should be holy
        3. And without blemish

QUESTIONS TO PONDER:

Does any of this look like what we see in most marriages today? Do we see husbands taking the leadership roll in the spiritual wellbeing of their wife and children, or do they just "bring home the bacon" and watch or play sports, pray the stock market, listen to politics, view pornography

Do we think God put men "over" women because he's bigger, stronger and can overpower her; force her to comply? Or did God predict this is what would happen in selfish relationships after sin, but that women would desire a man's love and protection anyway?

Do we understand that the husband's leadership roll is as the Chief Executive Officer/CEO of his family corporation? In a corporation, the buck stops at the CEO. Whether the company succeeds or not reflects on his leadership responsibilities and skills.

Will God hold men accountable for how those under their leadership fared? Were their families nurtured and enriched to their full potential? Were they given a roll model to emulate and guidance for success in this life and the next, or were they selfishly used and abused, controlled and criticized?

I have seen both sides of the marital experience. I had an 18 year not-so-good marriage, and am currently in a 26 year much better marriage. I'm always learning, so, researching and teaching this lesson about marriage has been yet another learning experience for me.

I recall visiting a church shortly after my divorce years ago, when a minister there decried "all the young people getting a divorce these days". He asked what he and other ministers could do to help stem this tide? I had already taken note of this man before he talked with me, and saw the body language between him and his wife. He took no note of her whatsoever, like she wasn't even in the same room. So, I responded to him, "You can truly love your wife, and SHOW us what a loving marriage relationship looks like." I found out shortly afterward that he hadn't married his wife for love, but for the need to have a wife in order to get a job as a minister. My heart went out to both of them in such an unloving marriage.

There is no loneliness like the loneliness of a loveless marriage.

SUNDAY

Counsel to Christian Wives

So, we come to the submission of wives to their husbands, a sticky point to a lot of women.

Submission means, according to the Merriam-Webster Dictionary:

1. a: a legal agreement to submit to the decision of arbitrators
   b: an act of submitting something (as for consideration or inspection) also : something submitted (such as a manuscript)

2. the condition of being submissive, humble, or compliant
3. an act of submitting to the authority or control of another

Thiw week's lesson did a fine job of interpretation of scriptures where:

> Paul invites Christian wives to submit to "your own husbands, as to the Lord" (Eph. 5:22, ESV), clarifying that he is discussing the submission of wives to their respective husbands (see also 1 Pet. 3:1, 5). When Paul says wives are to do so "as to the Lord," does he mean a wife is to submit to her husband as though he were Christ; or, instead, does He mean that Christ is the truest and highest focus of her submission?

In view of Ephesians 6:7, where slaves are asked to serve "as to the Lord, and not to men" (NKJV), and Colossians 3:18, where wives are asked to submit to their husbands "as is fitting in the Lord" (NKJV), the latter view is to be preferred. Wives are themselves believers who must ultimately honor Christ over their husbands.

In both Colossians and Ephesians, Christ — and only Christ — is identified as the Head of the church, which is His body (Eph. 1:22, Eph. 5:23, Col. 1:18): "Christ is the head of the church; and He is the Savior of the body" (Eph. 5:23, NKJV). By analogy, the husband is "the head of the wife" (Eph. 5:23), with the church's faithfulness to Christ serving as a model for the wife's loyalty to her husband. The passage presumes a loving, caring marriage, and not a dysfunctional one. This verse should not be interpreted to allow any form of domestic abuse.

In "Could It Be This Simple?," Dr. Jennings describes a case of his that I found very interesting. Page 54, Marriage and the Law of Liberty.

For those who value Ellen White, one of the founders of the church, she says:

> If the husband "is a coarse, rough, boisterous, egotistical, harsh, and overbearing man, let him never utter the word that the husband is the head of the wife, and that she must submit to him in everything; for he is not the Lord, he is not the husband in the true significance of the term." — Ellen G. White, The Adventist Home, p. 117.

Jesus is held up as our example, but was never married. Perhaps we can glean some insight by looking at Jesus' example of servanthood and submission?

> When the disciples were arguing about who was the greatest, "Jesus called them together and said, "You know that those who are regarded as rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their high officials exercise authority over them. Not so with you. Instead, whosever wants to become great among you must be your servant, and whoever wants to be first must be slave of all. For even the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many." Mark 10:42-45

The wife is often looked on as treated as a servant of not only her husband, but her whole family. She may be made to feel as if she is less capable or not worthy of respect and appreciation.

> "The best way to educate children to respect their father and mother is to give them the opportunity of seeing the father offering kindly attentions to the mother and the mother rendering respect and reverence to the father. It is by beholding love in their parents that children are led to obey the fifth commandment and to heed the injunction, "Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right." Adventist Home, pg 198

> "The evening meal was in progress, and the devil had already prompted Judas, the son of Simon Iscariot, to betray Jesus. Jesus knew that the Father had put all things under his power, and that he had come from God and was returning to God; so he got up from the meal, took off his outer clothing, and wrapped a towel around his waist. After that, he poured water into a basin and began to wash his disciples' feet, drying them with the towel that was wrapped around him." John 13: 2-5

NOTE: Every one of those disciples was going to betray, desert, or deny Jesus in some way that very evening!

So are we talking about servanthood in marriage, by both Husband and Wife?

Marriage as a Dance

Years ago, Ken and I went to a marriage seminar called, "Marriage is a Dance". I think it was headed up by Ryan Dobson, the son of Dr. James Dobson. I checked online to see if these are still being done, but couldn't find evidence of it. We had invited several friends of ours who we knew or suspected didn't have the best of marriages. None of them came. We had a great marriage, but wanted it to be even better, if possible, so we went. I have been to marriage seminars run by women, and found that these men ran it with a completely different perspective.

We came away with at least 3 helpful ideas:

- Think about marriage as a sports team. On a sports team, does any one player win or lose? No! Either the team wins, or it loses. Where there are problems in a marriage, a solution should be sought that ends up in a win-win resolution. Anything a couple can do to find that type of solution needs to be done….prayer, counseling, reading, asking for wise advise, research, etc. If either one of you loses, you both lose. Your team loses. And if you love your spouse, would you always want them to be wrong? Would you always want to be made to feel you are wrong? Sometimes you are right, sometimes you are wrong. It's important to find out that you don't always have to be right. Anyone can make mistakes or be wrong. Make yours a winning TEAM!

- Get a PHD in your spouse. Heart Pillow! At the beginning of a relationship, we want to know "everything" about them! As time goes by, we think we do know everything about them; maybe even know them better than they know themselves, because we have a front row seat to all of their behaviors and words. It's easy to look elsewhere for interest. Next thing you know, the couple is living more and more of their lives separated, until they are merely roommates. But do we box each other in, based on what they did or said in the past? Does that give us room to grow and learn in the relationship? How about finding new things to learn together, perhaps something neither of you have tried before? We should learn a lesson from Eve in the Garden of Eden….it was when she wondered off by herself that she lost the strength of the relationship between her husband and her God, and we lost our world to Satan. Keep digging for the veins of gold in each other and learning new things TOGETHER!

- Being unfaithful happens long before actual adultery. Unfaithfulness begins when you create FEAR in your spouse. A wife longs for love and security. A husband longs for admiration and respect. That's why the "do unto others what you would have them to unto you" text doesn't work very well in marriage. Men and Women need different things. If these are denied, fear will enter into the relationship and self preservation and loss of intimate relationship with your spouse has begun; unfaithfulness has begun. Adultery is just then end point of that process. NO FEAR!

The Church as the Bride of Christ: Part 1

As Paul, in Ephesians 5:25-27, 29, shapes his wedding-marriage metaphor for the church and its relationship with Christ, he draws creatively on the customs and roles of an ancient wedding. In relationship to the church as bride, Christ is the divine Bridegroom who:

1. Loves the church as bride (Eph. 5:25). We must never forget that this is heart work for Jesus. He loves us!
2. Gives Himself as the bride price*. In the context of ancient wedding arrangements, the bridegroom would "purchase" the bride with the "bride price," which was usually a large sum of money and valuables, so large that ancient village economies depended upon the custom. Christ pays the ultimate price for the church as His bride since He "gave Himself for her" (Eph. 5:25, NKJV). In the Incarnation and at the cross, He gives Himself as the bride price.
3. Bathes His bride. The preparation of the bride was an important part of the ancient wedding festivities. As is also true today, it was the bridesmaids and female relatives of the bride who prepared her for the ceremony. Paul, though, imagines the divine Bridegroom preparing His bride for the wedding! It is He who sanctifies and cleanses her "by the washing of water" (Eph. 5:26, ESV), a probable reference to baptism.
4. Speaks the word of promise*. This cleansing is performed "with the word" (Eph. 5:26, ESV), pointing to the word of promise that the divine Bridegroom speaks to His bride, perhaps in the context of the betrothal ceremony (compare Eph. 1:3-14, Eph. 2:1-10, noting God's promises to believers at the time of their conversion). Betrothal was the ancient version of modern engagement, but was a much more serious set of negotiations, which included a written agreement about the bride price (from the husband) and the dowry (assets the bride would bring to the marriage from her family).

5. Prepares and adorns the bride. When the bride is finally presented to her Groom, she is fabulously beautiful, appearing in flawless splendor (Eph. 5:27). Christ not only bathes the bride; He prepares and adorns her as well. (Show picture of modern day Indian Bride.)

The Church as the Bride of Christ: Part 2

Using one final element of the ancient wedding, in Ephesians 5:25-27 Paul portrays Christ as the One who:

Presents the bride (to Himself!). In ancient times the bride would be given away by the best man, best men, or her father. Never by her groom! Here, though, Paul imagines Jesus presenting the church as bride to Himself.

Paul uses marriage customs and roles to highlight Christ's relationship to the church in an unfolding, chronological pattern: 1.Betrothal. Christ offered Himself up for the church (as "bride price") and so became betrothed to her (Eph. 5:25). 2. *Preparation for the wedding ceremony. The attentions of the bridegroom continue in his present efforts to sanctify and cleanse the bride (Eph. 5:26). 3. The wedding ceremony itself. Christ's present attentions are in view of the "presentation" of the bride at the wedding (Eph. 5:27). This last element looks to the grand wedding celebration at His return when Christ, the Bridegroom, will come to claim the church as bride and present her to Himself (Eph. 5:27; compare 2 Cor. 11:1, 2; Col. 1:21-23, 28).

Ancient weddings often began with a nighttime parade (see Matt. 25:1-13). The groom and his entourage would gather at the groom's home — the couple's new home — and with grand ceremony begin a procession. Lit by torches and accompanied by joyful, lilting music and great rejoicing, the crowd jostles toward the home of the father of the bride. Gathering up the bride there or meeting the bride's own procession on the way, the parade would convey the couple to their new home, where the guests would settle into a weeklong feast, culminating in the wedding ceremony, when the bride would be presented to the groom.

When Paul portrays Christ presenting the church to Himself, he alludes to this grand parade and to the moment of presentation. In doing so, he provides a moving portrait of Christ's return as a future wedding ceremony, when the long betrothal between Christ and His church is complete and the wedding celebrated.

WEDNESDAY

Love Your Wife as You Do Yourself

Paul's rules for the Christian household (Eph. 5:21-6:9) disclose a challenging social context. In Ephesians 5:28-30, Paul addresses husbands who, following the all-too-frequent pattern of the time, may choose to "hate their own flesh" (see Eph. 5:28, 29), abusing and beating their wives. In the Greco-Roman world of Paul's day, the legal power of the "father of the family" (Latin, pater familias) was very broad. He could punish harshly or even kill his wife, children, and slaves and be within his legal rights (though exercising such power in extreme ways was increasingly constrained by public opinion).

In Ephesians 5:25-27, Paul has detailed the ultimate example of love, Christ's love for the church, offering a drastically different model for husbands than the usual one. Now, before laying out a new argument, he points again to that great Example, asking Christian husbands to respond "in the same way" (Eph. 5:28, ESV) as Jesus, who "gave himself up" for His bride, the church, and attends to her every need (Eph. 5:25-27, ESV). Paul challenges Christian husbands to turn from the expected practices of their time and seek to match Christ's tender love.

In Ephesians 5:28-30, Paul adds a new rationale to support the love of Christian husbands for their wives: Self-love. Paul offers a truism: "no one ever hated his own flesh" (at least no one thinking clearly). Husbands don't harm themselves or beat up on their own bodies. Instead, they "nourish and cherish" them (Eph. 5:29, NKJV). In a bid to eliminate harshness and violence against Christian wives,

Paul invites the Christian husband to identify with his wife. You are so much one with your wife, Paul argues, that to harm her is nothing short of inflicting self-harm, and most people in their right minds don't do that.

Returning to the example of Jesus, Paul argues that Christ is Himself practicing tender self-care in cherishing believers who are "his body" *(Eph. 5:29, 30, ESV). Model your behavior toward your wife, says Paul, on the way you treat yourself and, ultimately, on the way Christ treats you.

I once read the book "Princess" by an unnamed Arab princess, who was too afraid to give her name, but she wanted people to know what life was like for many Arab women, and for Muslim women. Before then, I hadn't really given much thought to the day-to-day life of Arab women. To say I was shocked would be an understatement! I learned that Women are submitted to men in the following ways, just to give some examples:

1. If their husbands are displeased for any reason, the wife can be locked in a room the rest of her life, can be drowned in the backyard pool, or killed in other ways with absolutely no legal issue at all.
2. If a male is in the house and tries to be friendly with her, say a friend of a girl's brother, she could be accused of sexual misconduct, even if nothing happened, and stoned to death, but not him of course.
3. They stone by digging a hole in the ground until just the head or upper shoulders show, once she is thrown in there. She can't get away from being stoned to death.
4. When out of the house, women must wear a hijab or head scarf covering in some Arab areas, or a Burka full body covering over their clothes in others, no matter how hot it is, or how black the Burka is… would be like being in an oven.
5. Before a girl marries, the women of the potential husband come and physically inspect every part of the girl to make sure there are no defects.
6. The girl is thrown a party when she hits puberty, and at the party, without warning, the female relatives hold her down while her clitoris is surgically removed, often without any numbing agent at all. They do this so that women will not enjoy sex and therefore not be promiscuous. Scars form and she will have painful sex the rest of her life. What these husbands are missing out on!
7. Women wear a lot of gold jewelry, because at any given moment, the husband can throw her out, and all she has on is all she can take with her to live on.

8. The husband holds her passport, if there is one, and must give his permission for her to travel. She can't drive herself anywhere (which would be hard to do wearing a burka anyway, or walk anywhere without a family escort.

We can see that Jesus gave respect to women, which wasn't always to case in His day, or even in ours.

THURSDAY

The "One Flesh" Model of Marriage

A key to applying Paul's counsel to wives and husbands is to see his citation of Genesis 2:24 (in Ephesians 5:31) as the culmination of it. As he meditates on the Creation story of Genesis, Paul considers the needs of Christian congregations and the health of family relationships within them. He hears in Genesis 2:24 a message that echoes down through time. By divine design, marriage is intended to be a "one flesh" relationship, with sexual unity mirrored in emotional and spiritual unity, and emotional and spiritual unity bringing meaning to the sexual relationship.

Note that in choosing Genesis 2:24, Paul selects a statement about marriage made before the Fall and applies it to the relationships between Christian husbands and wives. In our distinctly post-Fall world, rampant exploitation of the sexual relationship between a man and a woman reveals how deeply entrenched in modern cultures is the idea that the sexual union represents subjugation of the woman. Paul argues that the sexual relationship, as reflected in Genesis, is not one of subjugation but of union. It does not symbolize or actualize the dominance of the male but the union of husband and wife, so much so that they are "one flesh." We may look to both Ephesians 5:21-33 and Genesis 2:24, then, for an important, countercultural, and corrective theology of marriage and sexuality.

In this same context, Paul in the next verse talks about a "profound mystery" (see Eph. 5:32, ESV). This includes both sides of the double metaphor Paul has been discussing: Christian marriage understood in the light of Christ's relationship with His church *(Eph. 5:32)*and Christ's relationship with His church understood in the light of Christian marriage (Eph. 5:32).

Christian marriage is elevated by comparing it to the relationship between Christ and the church. In addition, by thinking of the church's relationship to Christ through the lens of a caring, Christian marriage, believers gain new clarity about their shared relationship to Christ.

FRIDAY

So long as all created beings acknowledged the allegiance of love, there was perfect harmony throughout the universe of God. It was the joy of the heavenly host to fulfill the purpose of their Creator. They delighted in reflecting His glory and showing forth His praise. And while love to God was supreme, love for one another was confiding and unselfish. There was no note of discord to mar the celestial harmonies. Patriarchs and Prophets, pg 34, 35

Ellen G. White consistently urges marriage partners to turn away from efforts to control the other: "Do not try to compel each other to yield to your wishes. You cannot do this and retain each other's love. Be kind, patient, and forbearing, considerate, and courteous." The Adventist Home, p. 118.

She comments directly on the interpretation and application of Colossians 3:18 (and Eph. 5:22-24):

The question is often asked, 'Shall a wife have no will of her own?' The Bible plainly states that the husband is the head of the family. 'Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands.' If this injunction ended here, we might say that the position of the wife is not an enviable one … Many husbands stop at the words, 'Wives, submit yourselves,' but we will read the conclusion of the same injunction, which is, 'As it is fit in the Lord' [Col. 3:18]. God requires that the wife shall keep the fear and glory of God ever before her. Entire submission is to be made only to the Lord Jesus Christ, who has purchased her as His own child by the infinite price of His life … . There is One who stands higher than the husband to the wife; it is her Redeemer, and her submission to her husband is to be rendered as God has directed — 'as it is fit in the Lord.' The Adventist Home, pp. 115, 116.

Our marriage relationship and our homes should be a piece of heaven on earth, and show others what that looks like by our example!

Lesson 11:

Practicing Supreme Loyalty to Christ

by Eve Knight

What is loyalty? How would you define loyalty?

> Mirriam-Webster dictionary defines loyalty as:
> 1. unswerving in allegiance (devotion): such as > a. faithful in allegiance to one's lawful sovereign or government
> i.e. they were loyal to their king > b. faithful to a private person to whom faithfulness is due > i.e. he is a loyal husband
> c. faithful to a cause, ideal, custom, institution, or product
> i.e. she is a loyal churchgoer

Another word that could be used is faithful, right? Is it possible to be loyal to the wrong thing? Or the wrong person? Did Hitler, for example, have many loyal followers? How did that loyalty impact them? Did David Koresh have many loyal followers? How did that loyalty impact them?

What was wrong with the kind of loyalty displayed in those two examples? The people surrendered their thinking and choices to someone else. Is that the kind of loyalty God desires? No! In fact, what does God ask of us?

> "Come now, and let us reason together," says the Lord, "Though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they are red like crimson, they shall be as wool." Isaiah 1:18 (NKJV)

According to this verse, God wants us to stop thinking, and just do what we're told…No? What does this verse tell us God wants? He wants us to come to Him, converse with Him, and exercise our thinking, through reasoning with Him.

Could a random stranger stand in front of us today, and declare that we are all now loyal to him? No! Why? Loyalty can't be declared to be present. If that person had a gun, and told us that he would shoot anybody who chose not to be loyal to him, would that cause loyalty in us? No! Why? Fear cannot create loyalty. It might create obedience temporarily, but not loyalty. Why? Where does loyalty come from? What is necessary for us to willingly choose to be loyal to someone? Knowledge of that person & their character, with love and devotion that grows out of that knowledge.

In the context of our lesson title, which says that we should be loyal to Christ, how does Christ gain our loyalty?

- He loves us
- He showed us His character
- He procured the remedy that can save us
- He defeated death
- He heals and restores us back to His design (and more)

So, back to our lesson title, what does it mean to practice "supreme loyalty to Christ?" What does that look like?

- Putting our loyalty to Him first, above all other loyalties
- Continuing to love the truth and grow in our understanding
- Practicing His methods of truth, love, and freedom
- Valuing what He values
- Living a life of love towards others (and more)

The lesson suggests that this overarching theme of supreme loyalty to Christ is addressed in Ephesians. Let's look at the first part of the passage suggested for Sunday's lesson:

> Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right.

How do we understand this text? Let's take a look at what a lexicon tells us about it and see if we can reason through it. I often use the lexicon found at biblehub.com, and this is what it looks like for Ephesians 6:1:

◄ Ephesians 6:1 ►

NASB Lexicon

NASB ©	Greek	Strong's

You can see from this, that the word translated as obey doesn't mean just obey. So, if I click on the blue number, it brings up a more detailed description of that word:

Strong's Concordance

hupakouó: to listen, attend to Original Word: ὑπακούω
Part of Speech: Verb
Transliteration: hupakouó
Phonetic Spelling: (hoop-ak-oo'-o)
Definition: to listen, attend to Usage: I listen, hearken to, obey, answer.

HELPS Word-studies

Cognate: 5219 hypakoúō (from 5259 /hypó, "under" and 191 /akoúō, "hear") – properly, to obey what is heard (literally, "under hearing"). See 5218 (hypakoē).

5219 /hypakoúō ("obey") is acting under the authority of the one speaking, i.e. really listening to the one giving the charge (order). 5219 /hypakoúō ("to hearken, obey") suggests attentively listening, i.e. fully compliant (responsive).

[5219 (hypakoúō) is an "intensification" of the simple verb "to listen" (191 /akoúō, "hear").]

Copyright © 2021 by Discovery Bible.

From this, we can see that the word "obey" could be translated as "attentively listen to."

Now, let's think through the text, and try to understand it. First, is this just an arbitrary rule that children need to follow? Isn't it often taught this way? How do we know it isn't arbitrary? (Because it's given a conditional phrase, "in the Lord.") How does this conditional phrase alter the command? What does it mean? Perhaps that even children are to evaluate the advice and commands of their parents, and then heed them as long as they don't go against the revealed will of God?

The text also says, "for this is right." What does that part mean? Again, is this arbitrary, or could there be a design law involved? Let's look at the next part of the verse, and see if it helps us better understand what design law that might be:

4922 La Collina Way, Ste 100, Ooltewah, TN 37363
comeandreason.com
requests@comeandreason.com

> "Honor your father and mother"—which is the first commandment with a promise—"so that it may go well with you and that you may enjoy long life on the earth. (Ephesians 6:1 (NIV)

What does it mean to "honor" your parents? When I looked that word up in the lexicon, this is what it says:

> Definition: to fix the value, to price
> Usage: a) I value at a price, estimate, b) I honor, reverence
> Properly – assign value (give honor) as it reflects the personal esteem (value, preciousness) attached to it by the beholder.

What might be another word we could use here to reflect this understanding of the definition? Respect, maybe?

Which means that Paul is telling children to listen attentively to their parents and treat them with respect. The text also points out the desired result if children listen to this advice: "that it may go well with you and that you may enjoy long life on the earth."

Let's continue thinking it through. If children listen attentively to their parents, what will that teach them? How does that help them grow? If children treat their parents with respect, what will that teach them? How will that help them grow? If children evaluate what they hear in light of God's word, what does that teach them? How does that help them grow?

Are you noticing the design law here? It's the law of exertion. If you want to get better at something, practice it. If children practice respect for their parents, what else do they learn? They learn to treat others with respect, too. If they learn to listen to their parents, what kinds of things are they listening to? In a good home, they should be learning to listen to training, guidance, and correction, to name a few. Can these things help that child in their future? Can they even help that child have a better relationship with God?

Did you notice there's a second design law involved in this text? That of sowing and reaping. Is someone more likely to have their life "go well," if they are respectful to others or disrespectful? How about if they have the ability to listen or if they never listen? We reap what we sow.

Based on what we now understand about the text, is Paul's advice to children about their outward behavior? No! What is it about? It's about an attitude of the heart. An attitude that can be practiced, one that helps that child develop, grow, and have a more positive future.

Is this an attitude that only children should practice? Of course not. It's something that we, as adults, can also practice. Even if we didn't learn this heart attitude as a child, it's still something that can be learned and practiced, now.

MONDAY

Paul doesn't leave his advice for just the children, however. Next, he addresses the parents, and we'll look at two different translations:

> Fathers,[or parents] do not exasperate your children;… (Ephesians 6:4a NIV)
> Fathers, [or parents] do not provoke your children to anger,… (Ephesians 6:4a RSV)

What does it mean to exasperate? Or as the other translation put it, "to provoke to anger"?

From the Biblehub lexicon:

> Definition: to provoke to anger
> Usage: I provoke to anger, exasperate > 3949 parorgízō (from 3844 /pará, "from close-beside" and 3710 /orgízō, "become angry") – properly, rouse someone to anger; to provoke in a way that "really pushes someone's buttons," i.e. to "really get to them" in an "up-close-and-personal" way (because so near, literally "close beside").

What does it mean, "to push someone else's buttons"? Have you ever known someone so well that you knew exactly what to say or do to get them angry; or you knew the areas that were particularly painful to that person, and you could "poke" that spot with your words and cause a big blowout? This is what the text is pointing to. How well do parents know their children? So how easily could parents "push their child's buttons."

Why does Paul tell parents to avoid doing this? If you were the child, being provoked in this way, would your relationship with that parent get better or worse? Would you be more likely to withdraw, become distrustful, and begin to protect self? Would this response teach you to be more Christlike and loving toward others, or would it teach you to be more like the world, practicing its method of survival of the fittest? Would you begin to think God was like your parent, especially if the parent is claiming to be a Christian? How would that impact your desire to know God?

Now, imagine that you are the parent practicing this behavior. What is that practice doing to you? Is it making you more Christlike to treat your child in this way, or is it moving you away from God?

People who purposefully provoke children instead of being sensitive to their needs are hardening their own hearts, which could eventually lead to abusing them in other ways. And abuse impacts both parties when it comes to having a good relationship with God. Am I saying that in this type of abuse scenario, the child and the parent can't get to know God? No! What it means is they both end up with problem areas that need to be overcome in order to have a good relationship with God. The child has to overcome pain, injury, low self-esteem, shame, an inability to trust, and fear of authority figures (not an exhaustive list), but their conscience hasn't been seared. The parent has to overcome the searing of their own conscience from the evil choices they made, which makes it harder for them to respond to God. It's not impossible, though, for with God, all things are possible.

Now, is all this something that ONLY parents need to be careful about? Of course not! How easy is it for us to hurt those that are closest to us? Parent, spouse, child, friend, coworker – anyone we know well, we also know how to hurt. The warning is for us, too, and it follows the same design law of exertion.

I remember a story about a high school basketball coach and his son. They had been outside, practicing, when the father received a phone call and went inside. The son, who was tired by this time, started just tossing the ball at the net, not caring whether he made a basket or not. When the father returned, he watched his son for a moment, and then simply said, "Be careful, son; what you practice is what you get better at."

Every time we practice something, we get better at it. If it is complaining, we get better at it. If it is gossiping, we get better at it. If it's being negative in our speech, we get better at it. It's also true that if we practice better things, we get better at those, too. Let's look at the rest of what Paul said, which points to some better options:

> Fathers,[or parents] do not exasperate your children; instead, bring them up in the training and instruction of the Lord. (Ephesians 6:4 NIV)
> Fathers, [or parents] do not provoke your children to anger, but bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord. (Ephesians 6:4 RSV)

Notice that Paul is contrasting these two behaviors. There's something to avoid, and something to do in its place. Let's look at the phrases, which Paul clarifies as being "of the Lord." Here's the first phrase, which I've summarized from the information in the Biblehub lexicon:

Bring them up in: to bring up to maturity, to nourish, to nurture.

What does it mean to nurture or nourish a child? To feed them; to provide what is necessary for their growth and development; to notice what they are good at and encourage them in those areas; to have as a goal their maturity.

Training/Discipline: training and education of children, hence: instruction; chastisement, correction. Properly, instruction that trains someone to reach full development or maturity.

What does it mean to discipline? To disciple, train, provide opportunities to learn and grow, to teach ways and methods, even to learn about how to think things through. When necessary, it also involves correction. What does a child learn when they are corrected? Do they learn to recognize harmful behavior? Potentially how to soften their heart in response to the correction? How to try to "make things right," by repairing relationships hurt by their behavior? Can these things benefit the child both in the moment, and in their growth and maturity? Can they also benefit the child in their relationship with God?

Instruction: admonition, warning, counsel. Warning through teaching – improves a person's reasoning so they can reach God's solution; for example, by going through His thought process.

What does it mean to provide Instruction? Teaching God's word, His methods, and how He created the world to operate. Learning how He sees people, about His love for all of us, and even how to have our "hard hearts" removed and replaced with His "heart of flesh."

Did you notice the common theme in these definitions? To bring up to maturity, to train someone to reach full maturity, to improve reasoning by learning how God thinks, learning His methods. And what is biblical perfection? Maturity. The goal of the parent is to help their child grow up, think for themselves, and become mature adults who choose to practice God's ways and methods and have His law written on their hearts and minds.

Again, is this advice only for parents? Certainly not. First, let's look at how it applies personally. Do we have a responsibility to nurture ourselves? To be committed to learning and growing in both the discipline and the instruction of the Lord? What does that look like? Could it include being careful about how we think about ourselves as well? Learning to see who we are in Christ? Overcoming the negative thought patterns that we all have learned, and replacing them with truth? And how do we learn the truth?

Consider also what happens to many who are abused: they are often emotionally "stuck" at the age of the abuse. So can that person provide what Paul is suggesting to their own "inner child"? And can those who haven't experienced abuse assist by speaking truth, and encouraging maturity?

Second, how does it apply to how we treat others? Is it enough to just avoid hurting those around us? No! We all have a sphere of influence, don't we? Can we be the kind of people who nurture those around us, and find ways to help them grow in maturity as well? Are there texts that come to mind regarding how we should practice treating others?

> So then, in everything treat others the same way you want them to treat you, for this is [the essence of] the Law and the [writings of the] Prophets. (Matthew 7:12 AMP)
> Do not let any unwholesome talk come out of your mouths, but only what is helpful for building others up according to their needs, that it may benefit those who listen. … Be kind and compassionate to one another, forgiving each other, just as in Christ God forgave you. (Ephesians 4:29 & 32 NIV)
> Therefore encourage one another and build each other up, just as in fact you are doing. (1 Thessalonians 4:11 NIV)
> So then, we must always aim at those things that bring peace and that help strengthen one another. (Romans 14:19 GNT)

> Be completely humble and gentle; be patient, bearing with one another in love. Make every effort to keep the unity of the Spirit through the bond of peace. (Ephesians 4:2-3 NIV)
> Therefore, as God's chosen people, holy and dearly loved, clothe yourselves with compassion, kindness, humility, gentleness and patience. Bear with each other and forgive whatever grievances you may have against one another. Forgive as the Lord forgave you. And over all these virtues put on love, which binds them all together in perfect unity. (Colossians 3:12-14 NIV)
> Under his control all the different parts of the body fit together, and the whole body is held together by every joint with which it is provided. So when each separate part works as it should, the whole body grows and builds itself up through love. (Ephesians 4:16 GNT)
> A new command I give you: Love one another. As I have loved you, so you must love one another. By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you love one another. (John 13:35 NIV)

What are some of the pitfalls of being able to treat others well? Our own pride? Selfishness? Anger or other out of control emotions? How much does it matter how we treat others? Perhaps more than we think?

> It is a serious thing to live in a society of possible gods and goddesses, to remember that the dullest and most uninteresting person you talk to may one day be a creature which, if you saw it now, you would be strongly tempted to worship, or else a horror and a corruption such as you now meet, if at all, only in a nightmare. All day long we are, in some degree, helping each other to one or other of these destinations. It is in the light of these overwhelming possibilities, it is with the awe and the circumspection proper to them, that we should conduct all our dealings with one another, all friendships, all loves, all play, all politics. (C.S. Lewis, The Weight of Glory)

How does any of this connect to the theme for the lesson this week of practicing supreme loyalty to God?

Would God want us to treat others with respect? Would He want us to attentively listen to other people? Would these types of attitudes be considered part of being loyal to God? Can we treat people well, even when we disagree with them? Can we treat them well, even if they are criticizing us? Can we treat them well, even if they are actively trying to cause us harm? Can we reflect God's character to those around us, thus demonstrating our loyalty to Him? And would that, in fact, be a "supreme" loyalty, because it is not contingent on circumstances, or on what others do, but on staying true to God? And can we do any of this without the Lord working in us and through us? It is our job to cooperate with Him, to make the choices, and He provides the power for us to be like Him.

TUESDAY

> Slaves, obey your earthly masters with respect and fear, and with sincerity of heart, just as you would obey Christ. Obey them not only to win their favor when their eye is on you, but as slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from your heart. Serve wholeheartedly, as if you were serving the Lord, not people, because you know that the Lord will reward each one for whatever good they do, whether they are slave or free. (Ephesians 6:5-8 NIV)

Slavery was pretty common during Paul's time, and in the culture he lived in, as well as in all the cultures around him. Some slaves were captured enemies. Some were those who owed too much debt and sold themselves into slavery until that debt was paid off. These were called bondservants, but also called slaves. In the last sentence of Sabbath's lesson, it says,

> "What can we learn as we watch Paul apply the values of the gospel to the flawed social structures of his day?"

Was Paul trying to apply the gospel to the social structures? It doesn't seem so from the text. Can you apply the gospel to social structures at all? No! How do we know that? What does the gospel do? What is it's power?

> I am not ashamed of the gospel, because it is the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes: first for the Jew, then for the Gentiles. (Romans 1:16 NIV)

Where is the gospel applied? In everyone who believes. The gospel has power to heal individuals. What is the danger in trying to apply the gospel to social structures? We end up using Satan's methods of imposed law to try to do good. Can we do God's work using Satan's methods? No!
Let's go back to the verse:

> Slaves, obey your earthly masters with respect and fear, and with sincerity of heart, just as you would obey Christ. Obey them not only to win their favor when their eye is on you, but as slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from your heart. Serve wholeheartedly, as if you were serving the Lord, not people, because you know that the Lord will reward each one for whatever good they do, whether they are slave or free. (Ephesians 6:5-8 NIV)

Notice where this advice is directed. To the individual slaves…we can presume that these slaves are believers, because they are in the group listening to the letter.

In this advice, was Paul concerned about outward behavior? Or again, is he focusing on an attitude of the heart? Notice what he's telling them to do, obey (attentively listen to) their masters, with respect. Does this sound familiar? It's the same advice that he gave to children, and it's based on the same design laws: the law of exertion and the law of sowing and reaping. Do you think it would benefit the slave to be known as one who listens well and respects his master? Although we are not slaves, could it benefit us to have a similar attitude towards those who might have authority over us in some way?

Our bosses, for example? What about others who are in positions of authority? Police? Store managers? Emergency personnel? Whether we agree with them or not, can we still cultivate an attitude of respect for all of them?

The phrase "sincerity of heart," can also be translated as simplicity, purity, graciousness, singleness of mind, or "single-focus." How could this attitude benefit the slave in Paul's day? How would such an attitude benefit us? Have you ever had a hard time focusing on a task? Has it ever occurred to you that you could ask God to help with this? I admit, it didn't occur to me until I studied this passage.

Notice also, this attitude is not just when the slave was being watched, but all the time. What type of attitude does someone tend to have if they only obey while they are being watched? Usually a resentful one, right? What does that do to the character? Do bosses (or masters) want this kind of worker? No! What would you call this attitude of working well, even when nobody is watching? Integrity maybe? How would an attitude of integrity benefit the slave? How would it benefit us in our work? Would you say that if you practiced this kind of integrity that you would be growing in Christ? Certainly, it would reflect His work in us, wouldn't it?

The word wholeheartedly can also be translated as goodwill, kindliness, and enthusiasm, and Paul directs them to work in all things as if serving the Lord. Why would Paul give them these suggestions? What would be the result of a slave who worked in this way? Might the master look favorably on such a slave? Do we have any examples in scripture of someone with an attitude like this? Like Joseph or Namaan's servant girl? Joseph committed to be true to God, no matter his circumstances. The servant girl had a good enough relationship with her masters that they listened to her when she suggested going to the prophet. She clearly cared about her master, wanting healing for him.

How does working like this change the individual? How does it impact the character? Where is this person's loyalty, ultimately? Does this kind of attitude depend at all on the character of the "earthly master"? No. Whose character are we responsible for? Our own! Our thoughts, choices, and actions are either building for us a character more like Christ, or one more like Satan. God promises to prompt and guide, but it is always our choice to cooperate with Him, and then He provides the power.

THURSDAY

Paul then focuses on the master in this slave/master relationship. This master is also a believer. How do we know? Because they are also listening to the same letter.

> And masters, treat your slaves in the same way. Do not threaten them, since you know that he who is both their Master and yours is in heaven, and there is no favoritism with him. (Ephesians 6:9 NIV)

Here, Paul says that masters were to treat their slaves in the "same way." The same way as what? As the slaves were told to treat them: with respect, looking out for their good, treating them with integrity and sincere hearts, as if they were serving Christ. How would this attitude benefit the master? How

comeandreason.com
requests@comeandreason.com

would this attitude benefit us, if we are in a position of authority over someone else?

Masters also were to avoid something specifically: threatening their slaves. Why avoid this? This is Satan's way, and it's not something believers should practice, because we want to get better at Christ's methods, not the enemy's methods.

Notice also that the master is told that both the slave and the master have another Master in heaven. Why might the master have needed to be reminded of that? How were they probably tempted to think of their slaves? Possibly as less-than? Below them? What does it do to the character of one who thinks this about another person? Who thinks of them as possibly less than human, or who thinks of themselves as higher than other people? It damages their character and moves them away from God's design. And it sets the stage for abuse of another. Can you think of any examples in recent history when people were encouraged to divide themselves into two categories and look down on the opposite group?

How does God view people?

> You are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, for all of you who were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, slave nor free, male nor female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. (Galatians 3:26-28 NIV)

As the masters needed to be careful how they thought of their slaves, so too, we should be careful how we think about other people. We want to practice God's methods, with His power. Loyalty to God changes how we view others, because He is changing us, writing His laws into our hearts and minds. When our hearts are changed, our actions follow.

3Q 2023 Lesson 12 –
The Call to Stand

by Lori Atkins

INTRODUCTION

memory text is from Ephesians 6:10,11 –

> "Finally, be strong in the Lord and in the strength of his might. Put on the whole armor of God, that you may be able to stand against the schemes of the devil."

What is armor and why do we need it?
Has anyone here ever served in the military or been deployed in combat?
What is your concept of armor and why did you have it?
How did you use it?

The dictionary definition says armor is a noun that means any covering worn as a defense against weapons, and lists these related words: shield, defense, guard, protection, and security.

Now why in the world would Paul think we need a "defense against weapons", or a shield or protection in the spiritual realm?
Is there something else going on…maybe behind the scenes that maybe we need to be aware of?

4922 La Collina Way, Ste 100, Ooltewah, TN 37363
comeandreason.com
requests@comeandreason.com

Are there any Bible texts that might help us determine why Paul believes we need to gird ourselves in the "whole armor of God"?

The first chapter in the book of Job when Satan presents himself before the heavenly counsel reveals a larger sin problem outside of humanity and this universe alone.

> "For God was pleased to have all his fullness dwell in him, and through him to reconcile to himself all things, whether things on earth or things in heaven, by making peace through his blood, shed on the cross" (Col 1:19–20 NIV84).

What about Elishah's servant, remember him? This story is mentioned in Saturday's lesson – Elisha's bleary-eyed servant stumbles out of his tent and sees an alarming sight—a large, well-equipped and hostile army with "troops, horses, and chariots everywhere." Speaking to the prophet Elisha, he stammers out the news, along with his harried question, " 'Oh, sir, what will we do now?' " Elisha responds, " 'Don't be afraid! . . . For there are more on our side than on theirs!' " a response that fails to register in the face of his servant. Elisha, pulling him close, prays for him: " 'O Lord, open his eyes and let him see!' " The prophet's prayer is answered immediately. The servant steps to the ramparts again, but this time the veil between the seen and the unseen lifts. He now sees not one army, but two. "The Lord opened the young man's eyes, and when he looked up, he saw that the hillside around Elisha was filled with horses and chariots of fire" (2 Kings 6:15–17, NLT).

Do we need to pray that the Lord will open our eyes…that the veil between the seen and the unseen be lifted sometimes? Listen to what Mrs. White said on this subject:

> "That time will soon come, and we shall have to keep hold of the strong arm of Jehovah; for all these great signs and mighty wonders of the devil are designed to deceive God's people and overthrow them. Our minds must be stayed upon God, and we must not fear the fear of the wicked, that is, fear what they fear, and reverence what they reverence, but be bold and valiant for the truth. Could our eyes be opened, we should see forms of evil angels around us, trying to invent some new way to annoy and destroy us. And we should also see angels of God guarding us from their power; for God's watchful eye is ever over Israel for good, and He will protect and save His people, if they put their trust in Him. When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord will lift up a standard against him. – {CET 170.1}

What about the next verse of our memory text:

> "Put on all the armor that God gives you, so that you will be able to stand up against the Devil's evil tricks. For we are not fighting against human beings but against the wicked spiritual forces in the heavenly world, the rulers, authorities, and cosmic powers of this dark age" (Ephesians 6:11-12 GNT).

> "And there was war in heaven. Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back. But he was not strong enough, and they lost their place in heaven. The great dragon was hurled down—that ancient serpent called the devil, or Satan, who leads the whole world astray. He was hurled to the earth, and his angels with him" (Revelation 12:7-9 NIV84).

One of the founders of our church agreed when she wrote this:

> "God assembled the angelic host to take measures to avert the threatened evil. It was decided in Heaven's council for angels to visit Eden and warn Adam that he was in danger from the foe. Two angels sped on their way to visit our first parents. The holy pair received them with joyful innocence, expressing their grateful thanks to their Creator for thus surrounding them with such a profusion of his bounty. Everything lovely and attractive was theirs to enjoy, and everything seemed wisely adapted to their wants; and that which they prized above all other blessings, was the society of the Son of God and the heavenly angels, for they had much to relate to them at every visit, of their new discoveries of the beauties of nature in their lovely Eden home, and they had many questions to ask relative to many things which they could but indistinctly comprehend. 1SP 32.3
> The angels graciously and lovingly gave them the information they desired. They also gave them the sad history of Satan's rebellion and fall. They then distinctly informed them that the tree of knowledge was placed in the garden to be a pledge of their obedience and love to God; that the high and happy estate of the holy angels was to be retained upon condition of obedience; that they were similarly situated; that they could obey the law of God and be inexpressibly happy, or disobey, and lose their high estate, and be plunged into hopeless despair. 1SP 33.1

comeandreason.com
requests@comeandreason.com

> They told Adam and Eve that God would not compel them to obey—that he had not removed from them power to go contrary to his will; that they were moral agents, free to obey or disobey. There was but one prohibition that God had seen fit to lay upon them as yet. If they should transgress the will of God, they would surely die. They told Adam and Eve that the most exalted angel, next in order to Christ, refused obedience to the law of God which he had ordained to govern heavenly beings; that this rebellion had caused war in Heaven which resulted in the rebellious being expelled therefrom, and every angel was driven out of Heaven who united with him in questioning the authority of the great Jehovah; and that this fallen foe was now an enemy to all that concerned the interest of God and his dear Son. 1SP 33.2

We're gonna veer off on a small tangent…and it won't be the last one.

If Adam and Eve were not to know evil, then why did God and the angels educate them about the rebellion, the war in heaven, and evil?

Because the issue of "knowing" in the Bible isn't about cognitive awareness, comprehension, or factual understanding, Biblical knowing is when something becomes part of your experience. It is knowing intimately, through experience, not through mere information. It is not knowing about something or someone, but actually knowing it or them.

For instance:

- There is a difference between knowing about swimming and knowing how to swim.

- There is a difference between knowing the fact that chocolate and vanilla are different ice cream flavors and knowing the deliciousness of what they actually taste like
- There is a difference between knowing about a famous celebrity and knowing them personally
- There is a difference between knowing about God and knowing God intimately and experientially

The Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil wasn't a place of theoretical knowledge, cognitive knowledge, or academic knowledge. God and the angels had already informed Adam and Eve about Satan, about evil, and about death being the result of sin. The two had been instructed. Adam and Eve had information, factual knowledge. But having mere facts is not what the tree was about – it was about experience, knowing by experience either good or evil. Choose to trust and believe God and know good – or choose to believe lies, distrust God, and know evil. God told them, "It is at this tree you will have knowledge, so choose well; choose to trust me and not to partake of the fruit and you will know good – you will know love, trust, loyalty, devotion, maturity, integrity, joy, peace, and godliness. All of this will solidify in your character. So please, my precious children, choose to know good! But if you choose to believe lies, distrust me and partake in the fruit, you will know evil – you will know fear, selfishness, insecurity, guilt, shame, distrust, pain, suffering, and death. Please, my precious children, don't choose to know evil."

God already knew evil – not in His character, but in His heart, as His heavenly home had been fractured. He was already suffering the heartache of betrayal, disaffection, rebellion, being lied about, and the loss of many of His beloved angels. God did not want humankind to know this kind of pain, suffering, or heartache. He wanted humankind to know only good, but this required them to choose to trust God – to choose the good in order for them to know it.

comeandreason.com
requests@comeandreason.com

So God warned them and placed this tree there for their development as free beings, with His goal for them to choose to know good and solidify themselves in loyalty and love to Him and develop their own mature godlike character. Unfortunately, they chose to know evil and humanity was plunged into pain, suffering and death, and Jesus stepped in to take this terrible terminal condition upon Himself and overcome it and restore the human species back to God's perfection, eradicating the death causing principles and writing God's law of love, the life causing protocols back into humanity, thus becoming our Savior.

So what was the purpose of placing this tree in the garden? It was for their development and maturity of character. Consider this historic quote:

> "God might have created man without the power to transgress His law; He might have withheld the hand of Adam from touching the forbidden fruit; but in that case man would have been, not a free moral agent, but a mere automation. Without freedom of choice, his obedience would not have been voluntary, but forced. There could have been no development of character. . . . It would have been unworthy of man as an intelligent being, and would have sustained Satan's charge of God's arbitrary rule." {CC 13.3}

Is this what you were taught about the tree in the garden?

4922 La Collina Way, Ste 100, Ooltewah, TN 37363
comeandreason.com
requests@comeandreason.com

My own church…my own church school taught me that the taunting tree and the command not to eat the fruit were an arbitrary test of obedience…yet the very founder of that church says that NOT having the tree there or intervening to stop them from touching the forbidden fruit is what would have been arbitrary – not giving them the choice to either trust God and perfect their characters…or believe the lie and corrupt their characters…would have been unworthy of God's highest most intelligent creation, and would have provided evidence to the onlooking universe that Satan's allegations against God were true.

Let's read Isaiah 9:6 and verse 7…I'm headed off on another little tangent here – we may be on a tangent within a tangent at this point, but I promise we'll end up back right back in a cosmic war:

> 6 For unto us a Child is born, Unto us a Son is given; And the government will be upon His shoulder. And His name will be called Wonderful, Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. 7 Of the increase of His government and peace There will be no end, Upon the throne of David and over His kingdom, To order it and establish it with judgment and justice From that time forward, even forever. The zeal of the LORD of hosts will perform this. (NKJV)

- What do these verses mean to you?
- What do they say about the divinity of Jesus?
- Who is the Counselor? The Holy Spirit
- Who is the Everlasting Father?
- Who is the Prince of Peace?

4922 La Collina Way, Ste 100, Ooltewah, TN 37363
comeandreason.com
requests@comeandreason.com

- How can all three names/descriptions be said of Jesus?

Does this mean there is only one individuality and Jesus is that one individuality, or rather that the three individualities are so united in perfection of Their character of love that when you see Jesus you see the Father and the Spirit?

What does the idea of "Prince of Peace" and "His government and peace" mean to you?

- In this world today do we need more peace?
- Do we need the kingdom of the Prince of Peace? Is peace a situation? A person? A state of being?

How does one achieve peace? Can we achieve peace through war? Yet the Bible says

> "And there was war in heaven. Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back." (Rev 12:7 NIV84)

How do we understand this?
How is it that we cannot achieve peace by prosecuting war, yet Michael and His angels warred against the devil and Jesus is the Prince of Peace?
What law lens are we understanding this through?

If we understand law and government to be like human governments where law is imposed, injustice must be punished, and war is won through conquest, through force and might, through power over, through killing one's enemies and forcing submission.

But if we understand design law then we understand that peace is only achieved by destroying the elements that cause division and hostility. How do we do that…what is the ONLY way to truly accomplish that? We destroy lies, fear, and selfishness out of the hearts of intelligent beings.

Thus, the Bible says:

> "3 For though we live in the world, we do not wage war as the world does [Side note…next week's lesson is entitled "Waging Peace"]. 4 The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. 5 We demolish arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and we take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ. (2 Cor 10:3–5 NIV84).

What kind of weapons do we use? Those that demolish lies about God and win hearts to love and trust—can you win hearts by force and violence? No – the Law of Liberty prevents it! Only the truth about God's character of Love, His Design Laws, and methods can demolish the lies and win hearts to love and trust.

This all fits perfectly as the word in Revelation 12 translated "war" "there was war in heaven…" is:

> πόλεμος [polemos /pol·em·os/] n m.
> From pelomai (to bustle); TDNT 6:502; TDNTA 904; GK

> 4483; 18 occurrences; AV translates as “war” 12 times, “battle” five times, and “fight” once. 1 a war. 2 a fight, a battle. 3 a dispute, strife, quarrel.1
> 1 Strong, J. (1995). Enhanced Strong’s Lexicon. Woodside Bible Fellowship.

In English we get the word polemic which means: “a controversial argument, as one against some opinion, doctrine, etc.”

Are there dangers in taking the “warfare” metaphor and all this military language literally?

History provides the evidence – the Dark Ages, the Crusades, Witch Trials, or current branches of Islam, Judaism, & Christianity, etc. Don’t forget what kind of war we are fighting and what kind of weapons are used. God fights the war with the weapons of truth, love, freedom, evidence, revelation—Satan fights with lies, deception, flattery, coercion, manipulation, propaganda, and violence. Remember…we can never get peace using Satan’s methods—never!

Aaaaand we’re back…toldja I wouldn’t get lost on our tangent(s). I want to dig into our memory verse a bit more by reading and unpacking the verses before and after from The Remedy, and then we’ll look at each element of the “armor of God”:

> 10 Finally, stay strong in your connection and devotion to the Lord and his mighty power. 11 Arm your minds with God's complete set of armor so that you can join the ranks of Christ's soldiers and stand successfully in the face of the devil's schemes. 12 For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, with man-made weapons, but against all individuals, entities and powers that misrepresent God and darken minds, and against Satan–the originator of lies about God–and his cohorts who also misrepresent God in the heavenly realms. [does this bring to mind 2Cor 10:35? our weapons have divine power to demolish strongholds, arguments, pretensions…] 13 Therefore arm your minds with God's full set of armor so that when Satan's grand deception comes and it seems the heavens are about to fall, you are able to stand; [Do you typically think of the armor of God as mental armor, arming your mind to not be infected, degraded, discouraged, corrupted?] and when you have done everything to present the truth and expose Satan's lies–don't falter; stand! 14 Stand firm, with the truth of God wrapped around you like a belt; [what truth is the truth that we need? Is it primarily the truth about which day is the Sabbath? If we have that truth but we believe God imposed the day arbitrarily and will punish people for not observing it, then are we worshipping the true God or the false version Satan alleges? So the primary truth is always about God, His character, and His methods of truth, love, and freedom] with a righteous, Christlike character developed within–like a breastplate; [How do we experience a righteous character? Is it passive, only through trust and God does it all? Or is it cooperative, we trust God who provides new desires, motives, insights, wisdom, truths, but we must choose to accept, apply, internalize and identify with God and His truths and do what is right, healthy, and reasonable in governance of ourselves?] 15 and the peace that comes from accepting the good news about God–like track shoes providing good traction and a solid foundation. [Have you found increased peace as you have come to experience God as Designer and Creator and rejected the dictator views?] 16 Also, hold fast the shield of trust, which extinguishes all the > burning fear and insecurity brought by the devil's temptations. [How does trust in God overcome temptation? Are not most temptations related to some fear or insecurity? Does trust reduce fear and insecurity? But can you trust a being whom you believe will hurt you if you don't trust them?] 17 Take with you the helmet of a healed mind–a mind protected from the assaults of Satan; [What heals the mind and also protects against the assaults of Satan? A mind that has developed by practice the ability to tell the right from the wrong (Heb 5:14), a mind that loves and discerns truth] and attack the lies about God with the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God–the truth. 18 And talk with God with an enlightened mind, intelligently, on all occasions, about all of your concerns, requests, plans, and issues. With all of this in mind, be alert and always keep praying for God's people.

What beautiful promises and instruction given to us by Paul, right? Note that he first tells us what the warfare is and why the armor is important in verses 10-13, and then he explains what each element of that armor is:

Belt = Truth:
Truth eradicates the lies that are part of our DNA.

Breastplate = Righteousness:
Heart transformation yields Righteousness – Christ weaves His character into ours, i.e., "covered with the robe of righteousness", "we live His life"…doing that which is Right, because it IS right.

Shoes = Gospel of Peace:
True conversion cannot happen without our wanting to share our experience.

requests@comeandreason.com

Note it's a gospel of "Peace" NOT the "wrath of the Lamb".

Shield = Faith:
Trust based on EVIDENCE – not a blind faith. What happens when we lose trust?

Helmet = Salvation:
Conscious understanding & cooperation with God's methods, principles, & government yields healing or Salvation. Level 7 – Friend of God.

Sword of the Spirit = Word of God [see Heb. 4: 12]
This is not a "God said it, I believe it, that settles it" use of the Word of God, nor is it an actual weapon to beat others over the head with. Again, it's a Level 7 "Friend of God" approach, where He no longer calls us servants He calls us friends and we understand God's Word is LIFE itself, because He designed it to function in perfect harmony with His Character of Love.

Battle Speech

When one sincere, Spirit-filled, devoted Christian stands up for Christ, the whole world changes. Also, Luther did not make his defense loudly or unnaturally. He took his stand in faith. He did not speak based on his own power or schemes; he went to Worms as one already condemned to death. But Luther spoke as Christ's soldier, covered in the armor of God. The battle he went to fight was not his battle. It was God's battle. All he needed to say was "Here I stand," and God changed the course of the great controversy forever.

Battle exhortations in the Old Testament (see, for instance, Deut. 20:2–4; Judges 7:15–18; 2 Chron. 20:13–20; 2 Chron. 32:6–8; Neh. 4:14, 19, 20) underline the idea that Israel's success in battle does not depend on the superiority of its own weapons or an army that outnumbers its foes. Rather, victory results from depending on the presence and power of God. The key to the Israelites' success was not confidence in themselves but firm trust in God's power and His provision for their success. Paul makes bold use of these themes to exhort believers to be:

(1) active in pursuing the church's mission;
(2) attentive to the unseen dimensions that impact their lives and witness;
(3) cognizant of the divine provision for their success; and
(4) always alert to the importance of unity and collaboration among believers

WEDNESDAY

Standing on the Ancient Battlefield

Battle speeches included in the writings of Thucydides, one of the great classical authors of battle literature, highlight three successive actions that must occur if a side is to be victorious:

(1) soldiers must "close with the enemy," which means they must march to meet their foes; then,
(2) they must attack and "stand fast," or "stand our ground," fighting hand-to-hand with their foes; and finally,
(3) they must "beat back the enemy" (see Thucydides, The Peloponnesian War [New York: E. P. Dutton, 1910], 4.10.1–5).

comeandreason.com
requests@comeandreason.com

The key moment of an ancient battle occurred with the second of these three actions, when the two opposing phalanxes came crashing together in

> "a terrible cacophony of smashed bronze, wood, and flesh," which ancient author Xenophon refers to as that " 'awful crash.' "—Victor Davis Hanson, The Western Way of War (New York: Oxford University Press, 1989), pp. 152, 153.

Standing firm, holding one's ground at this strategic moment, was the great challenge of ancient battle. In the close combat that would ensue, each side would seek momentum for "the push." This is no relaxed stance! To "stand," then, is to be vigorously engaged in battle, employing every weapon in close-order combat, a point obvious from the military imagery in Paul's earlier exhortation to be found "standing firm in one spirit, with one mind striving side by side for the faith of the gospel" (Phil. 1:27, ESV).

THURSDAY

Wrestling Against Evil Powers

> "Satan has come down with great power to work with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish. The powers of deception are working upon minds in every country to gain a foothold. Satan is seeking to hedge up our way in this country. [Hedge up our way means to restrict our liberties, to have our churches closed, to restrict visitations, to close our schools, to interfere with free assembly and association and free speech and to censor ideas that disagree with the lies of Satan. Do we see that happening today? And have you seen many in the church supporting these dark movements of Satan?] The night of trial, the night of weeping, the night of persecution for the truth's sake, is not far distant. [Are we entering this time, is it about to break upon us?] It is through much tribulation that we shall stand as faithful sentinels for God, not swerving one hair from truth and righteousness. Famines will increase; pestilences will sweep away thousands. Dangers are all around us from the powers without and Satanic workings within, but the restraining power of God is now being exercised.

12LtMs, Lt 31, 1897, par. 16 [The restraining power of God was being exercised in 1897, it is still being exercised, but the four winds are loosening, Satanic powers are gaining greater freedom to act. Do you recognize this?]

"Satan hath desired to have thee, that he might sift thee as wheat," is applicable to very many souls. Yet we are not left helpless. The Lord spreads his covering hand over us, saying, "I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not." [Luke 22:31, 32.]
12LtMs, Lt 31, 1897, par. 17
[Yes, the enemy is raging, but we have a Savior who will not leave us nor forsake us. We must keep our eyes fixed on Christ.]

The church militant is not the church triumphant. We are enjoined, "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; and your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God." [Ephesians 6:10-17.]

12LtMs, Lt 31, 1897, par. 18

The night of trial is nearly spent. Satan is bringing in his masterly power because he knoweth that his time is short. [Are you encouraged? The trial is nearing its conclusion. But Satan is bringing his final great masterful deception to fruition. Can you discern it?] The chastisement of God is upon the world to call all who know the truth to hide in the cleft of the Rock and view the glory of God. [What is the chastisement of God? It is God letting go His protection and allowing more of the disasters and evil to occur, so that the people who have not hardened their hearts against God can see the difference between the methods of God and the methods of Satan. God's people, those who love truth, love and liberty, who do their own thinking, to present themselves to God as living sacrifices will not conform to the worldly methods of lies, coercion, control and blind submission. We will speak the truth in love, while leaving others free.] The truth must not be muffled now. Plain statements must be made. Unvarnished truth must be spoken in leaflets and pamphlets, and these must be scattered like the leaves of autumn.
12LtMs, Lt 31, 1897, par. 19

2023 3Q Ephesians—Lesson 13
Waging Peace

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

Do you like the title? I like it, it stirs the imagination—what comes to mind for you with this title?

How can we wage peace?

Is this referring to

- societal peace, that we are to wage peace in our communities?
- Or internal personal peace, that we are to wage war with our own selves to experience peace?
- Or spiritual peace, that we are to wage war against everything that sets itself up against the knowledge of God so we have peace with God?
- Or are all three connected in some way?

How are they all connected?

If you think about the three aspects of peace, personal, spiritual (peace with God), and societal, is there a first place we must start to experience peace?

Can we have peace with ourselves, genuine peace, if we do not have peace with God? Why or why not?

Can we have peace with others if we do not have peace with ourselves?

When does the battle with self really begin? Isn't it when we receive a new heart and right spirit, when we are reborn, when we are converted—which is when we are set right, justified in our heart attitude and allegiance to God.

- Therefore, since we have been justified through faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ (Romans 5:1 NIV84).

So, step one is to be reconciled to God, to experience His grace, goodness, mercy, forgiveness, healing and transforming power and presence through faith, trusting in all Jesus has done in our behalf.

Then, we begin the real battle with ourselves, with our old habits, distorted thinking, false beliefs, fears, insecurities, guilt, and shame. We must choose to act upon our trust in Jesus by choosing new ways, methods, practices in how we think, live, and treat others. We must reject the lies that we are beyond saving, we must reject the lies that our sins are too horrible to be forgiven, or that we have gone too far to be healed.

Simultaneously, as we are battling with old habits, fears, negative thought patterns we will find we need to change some of our relationships. There will be people in our network who are being used by God to build us up, encourage us, help us, and others who are being used by the enemy to tempt us, discourage us, lead us back into the old patterns of destructive living. As we are battling to overcome the old destructive habits, we will necessarily need to make some changes in who we trust, listen to, what we watch, read, and who we hang out with. Some relationships will need to be permanently ended and new friendships established.

Then with new hearts and minds, with maturing and ever-increasing Christlike character, wisdom, insight, and developing fruits of the Spirit—we go forth in our communities to bring peace, to be peacemakers. We forgive those who have wronged us, we seek to use our energies to bless, uplift, protect, heal and restore others, to lead others to the truth as it is in Jesus—but only through the methods of God, truth, love, and liberty. As Jesus said:

- Blessed are the peacemakers, for they will be called sons of God. (Matthew 5:9 NIV84).

And as we do this we look forward to the healing of the various human tribes, kindreds, cultures, and nations under one head Jesus Christ. As the Bible says:

- Rejoice greatly, O Daughter of Zion! Shout, Daughter of Jerusalem! See, your king comes to you, righteous and having salvation, gentle and riding on a donkey, on a colt, the foal of a donkey. I will take away the chariots from Ephraim and the war-horses from Jerusalem, and the battle bow will be broken. He will proclaim peace to the nations. His rule will extend from sea to sea and from the River to the ends of the earth. (Zechariah 9:9–10 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- For to us a child is born, to us a son is given, and the government will be on his shoulders. And he will be called Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there will be no end. He will reign on David's throne and over his kingdom, establishing and upholding it with justice and righteousness from that time on and forever. (Isaiah 9:6–7 NIV84, emphasis mine).

We first have peace with God, and then we battle ourselves to experience healing in heart and mind, and have God's design law methods restored within us, then we live out God's law of love in how we treat others, and trusting in Jesus we advance the gospel of peace to the world.

But, what do we do with Jesus' words here:

- "Do not suppose that I have come to bring peace to the earth. I did not come to bring peace, but a sword. For I have come to turn 'a man against his father, a daughter against her mother, a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law—a man's enemies will be the members of his own household.' (Matthew 10:34–36 NIV84, emphasis mine).

If Jesus is the prince of peace, what is going on here?

Can we have peace with those who are actively working to harm, destroy, deceive, and lead away from God and His methods and principles?

Can we love those who are bent on doing evil? Yes! But can we have peace with them?

Here it is from The Remedy:

- "Don't think that I have come to make peace with a selfish world. I have not come to bring peace with selfishness, but a sword to cut selfishness out of the hearts of people. I have come to cut dysfunctional family ties: to free a son from selfish loyalty to his father's ambitions and feuds, to sever a daughter from the control of an oppressive and manipulative mother, to cut through the fear and hostility a daughter-in-law has toward her mother-in-law. A person's worst enemies are often members of their own family (Matthew 10:34–36 REM).

Health relationships require health people. We cannot have peaceful, healthy relationships with people who remain in rebellion against God, who are unconverted, who are not fighting their own battle with selfishness in themselves, who refuse to take responsibility for their own shortcomings, who refuse to mature and grow in godliness. Even if we were sinless and perfect, like Jesus. Look what happened to His relationship with Judas—it ended in betrayal, why? Because Judas was unconverted, remained controlled by fear and selfishness and betrayed his relationship with Jesus. Was Jesus responsible for that?

This is a powerful lesson for us today. I know many people who have had relationships breakdown and they falsely take responsibility for what the other person chose to do. Or they stay in dysfunctional relationships allowing others to manipulate them and control them in order to avoid rejection and abandonment, rather than focusing on choosing in governance of themselves to do what is right, reasonable, and health—fulfilling God's calling and purpose in their own life.

Peace on all levels is only possible as we are reconciled to God and have His living law restored in our inmost being.

SUNDAY

What do you think of the metaphor of the church as an army?

Do you remember the song Onward Christian Soldiers?

> Onward, Christian soldiers, marching as to war
> With the cross of Jesus going on before > Christ, the royal Master, leads against the foe
> Forward into battle see His banners go

When you think of this war what comes to mind?

Jesus said,

- "From the days of John the Baptist until now, the kingdom of heaven has been forcefully advancing, and forceful men lay hold of it" (Matthew 11:12, NIV84).

If Jesus' kingdom is the kingdom of peace, how do forceful people lay hold of it?

Can God's kingdom be advanced, procured, achieved by force, might, or power? Didn't God previously say that it is,

- "not by might, nor by power but by my Spirit" that His kingdom advances (Zechariah 4:6)?

So how can forceful people lay hold of God's kingdom if it doesn't advance with might and power?

The Good News translation helps clear up this confusion:

- "From the time John preached his message until this very day the Kingdom of heaven has suffered violent attacks, and violent men try to seize it" (Matthew 11:12).

God's kingdom is the kingdom of love, truth, and liberty. It is built upon design law, the protocols upon which the Creator built reality to operate. It cannot be advanced through might, power, force, coercion, external control, imposed laws, or inflicted punishments.

God cannot win people to love and trust by threatening to torture and kill those who don't love and trust Him. Such actions result in just the opposite outcome, more rebellion, less trust, and the destruction of love.

It is Satan's kingdom that operates upon imposed law with inflicted punishments and advances through external control, legal enforcement, and violence. Jesus is telling us that since John the Baptist came preaching about the true kingdom of God—the kingdom that operates within the hearts and minds of men (Luke 17:21)—that violent men, humans who embrace Satan's kingdom of imposed laws and coercive force, have been trying to take control of it. Meaning, that violent men, those who use imposed law, inflicted punishments, and external control, have been trying to take control of the Christian message and ultimately control of human hearts and minds. And sadly, they have succeeded far too often.

We are fighting upon the same battlefield, with the same enemy and utilizing the same weapons that Jesus did. Jesus won every encounter, but after His ascension the violent people slowly took over the "church" and created a "church" built, not upon God's design laws of truth, love, and freedom but, upon Roman law, Roman power, and violent methods of coercive control.

The idea that God's law functions like human law, imposed rules requiring God to use power to punish rule-breakers, has become assumed truth to almost all Christians. And, thus, violent people have taken control of the theology of Christianity and teach a violent punishing god that is the opposite of Jesus and what Jesus lived, taught, and revealed.

But Jesus said that the gates of hell will not prevail against His true church that is built upon Himself (Matthew 16:18). What a strange and interesting expression—gates will not prevail? Think about that imagery. In warfare, what role to gates play? Do people carry gates into battle? Gates are used to close out opposing forces and to seal in a captive people.

Jesus is saying that Satan, with his lies about God, has taken the hearts and minds of people captive in fear and selfishness. He has closed the minds and hearts of many in fear and falsehood, but his gates of lies, of fear, of selfishness cannot prevail against the divine weapons given to us by God.

> - For though we live in the world, we do not wage war as the world does. The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. We demolish arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and we take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ (2Corinthians 10:3-5 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Our divine weapons have the power to demolish the gates of hell, to open hearts and minds to healing and salvation, to set the captives free!

- The divine weapon of truth demolishes lies—"you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free" (John 8:32 NIV84).
- The divine weapon of love demolishes fear—"There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear" (1John 4:18 NRSV).

We war against lies with truth and against fear and selfishness with love—the infinite love of God found only in Jesus. We do as Jesus instructed:

> - "Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, that you may be sons of your Father in heaven… Be perfect, therefore, as your heavenly Father is perfect" (Matthew 5:44–45 & 48 NIV84).

We can never win the war for God's kingdom by embracing and practice the methods of this world. We cannot win people to love and friendship by seeking to control, dominate, punish, and destroy those who disagree with us. So we move forward with the truth, presented in love, while leaving others free.

But we also cannot win the war by compromising with the enemy, by agreeing with their falsehoods in order to get their approval. The truth cannot be exchanged for a lie for the sake of peace. No, we are at war. We must war against lies, falsehoods, and all violations of the kingdom of God.

In war the force that takes the initiative dictates the flow of the battle, the battlefield, and often wins the conflict, while the force defending scrambles to react to the force directing the terms of the engagement.

As Christians, we are to be advancing the kingdom of God, taking the initiative, moving the truth about Jesus forward, standing firm for reality as God created things to be. But all too often, reacting to the false allegations of God's enemy, too many good-hearted people find themselves placating the enemy rather than advancing the truth God has given them.

Have we fallen into a trap of reacting to the methods, standards, practices, rules, and logic of the world, trying to meet the worldly on the platform of godless standards, or are we advancing the kingdom of God on God's terms, with God's methods, holding to God's principles and refusing to step down into the perversion of the world?

When COVID swept the world and the fear-messaging, mind manipulation, coercive tactics were employed did Christian organizations stand for the principles of truth, love, and liberty of conscience, or did far too many embrace the methods of the world and justify coercion of conscience and collusion with the false governmental narratives?

When greed-driven corporations and power-hungry politicians divide society based on race, sex, gender, or any other identity issue, does the church fall into their trap and seek to prove how inclusive it is by holding sensitivity training and working to be inclusive of each and every identity group, or does the church stand for the principles of God's kingdom and stand firm on the truth that there are only two groups of people: the righteous and the wicked, the sheep and the goats, the wheat and the tares, the saved and the lost. Do Christians recognize that in God's kingdom race, sex, nationality, tribe, language, marital status, vax status doesn't matter, what matters is character. In God's kingdom

- "there is neither Jew nor Greek, slave nor free, male nor female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus" (Galatians 3:28 NIV84).

In God's kingdom there are only those who are like Jesus in character and we are to advance the kingdom of God by keeping Christ, His character, methods, principles and design laws central.

Yes, we are at war, but it is not a war of might or power, it is a war of methods: truth, love, freedom at war against lies, fear and selfishness, and control. We will only succeed as we embrace the kingdom of God and advance it by using His methods—truth, love, and freedom.

Read first paragraph,

- Victory in Greek and Roman warfare was dependent on the cooperation of the soldiers in a military unit and especially in their support for each other in the heat of battle. Individualism in battle was regarded as a characteristic of barbarian warriors, dooming them to defeat. (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 105).

There is a lot of truth in this. We can be so much more effective when we are united in common cause, with hearts aligned in love, minds focused on Jesus, and motivated to advance His kingdom and we pool our talents, resources, abilities, when we support, encourage, and help each other. No question about it. So we never want to undermine the power of a united force working for good and we want to do all we can to develop such godly community, cohesion, and unity.

But does that mean we never fight alone? Does that mean it is wrong to fight alone? Does that mean we should not prepare ourselves to be able to fight alone?

Consider this passage which refers to Jesus and His experience in Gethsemane and crucifixion weekend:

> I have trodden the winepress alone; from the nations no one was with me (Isaiah 63:3 NIV84).

What about the following, who stood with them in their warfare?

- Job?
- Moses?
- Joseph?
- Jeremiah?
- Elijah?
- John the Baptist?

And have there been many in history who stood alone before tribunals and counsels for their faith?

What about this quotation from Counsels to Writers and Editors:

- And there are many in the church who take it for granted that they understand what they believe, but, until controversy arises, they do not know their own weakness. When separated from those of like faith, and compelled to stand singly and alone to explain their belief, they will be surprised to see how confused are their ideas of what they had accepted as truth. Certain it is that there has been among us a departure from the living God, and a turning to men, putting human wisdom in place of divine. Counsels to Writers and Editors 39.

So, of course let's fight as a team, united in love, truth, motive, method, and principle—but let's also be settled into the truth for ourselves that if we ever find ourselves alone we will not be shaken from the truth, that we as individuals have our own personal relationship with God, have developed our own ability to think and reason, know for ourselves the difference between reality and fantasy (truth and lies), and are not dependent upon others to approve of us in order to stand for what we know is true.

MONDAY-WEDNESDAY

Examines the armor of God as described by Paul in Ephesians—what do you think of this armor?

Is the armor that we are to use referring to fighting external warfare, or internal warfare?

Paul wrote:

- When I want to do good, evil is right there with me. For in my inner being I delight in God's law; but I see another law at work in the members of my body, waging war against the law of my mind and making me a prisoner of the law of sin at work within my members (Romans 7:21–23 NIV84, emphasis mine).

We are warring against the power of sin, selfishness, fear, lies, deception, propaganda, lusts, and the evil methods of this world. The primary focus of our fight is internal, against our own fears, hurts, disappointments, doubts, the inherited desire of selfishness, and the dysfunctional and destructive habits that we have developed along the road of life.

Sometimes, we might not realize that our battle is internal and not external, because of a superficial reading of Bible statements like this one:

- For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms (Ephesians 6:12 NIV84).

This could be perceived as saying that our fight is outside of ourselves, as in a physical fight. But our battle against demonic and satanic forces occurs within our hearts and minds! Notice how, in Ephesians 6:13–17, Paul describes the armor of God that we use to battle these various demonic powers:

- The belt of truth—truth is internalized, understood, believed and, when accepted, transforms our mind, destroys lies, and restores us to trust in God. The impact of truth is upon our own hearts and minds.
- The breastplate of righteousness—this is a heart, a character, that is reborn to be like Christ. We have had the stony, cold, hard heart removed and a tender, compassionate, merciful heart recreated within us by the power of God. Again, the battleground is internal.
- The gospel of peace functions like track shoes gripping the ground—it gives our hearts and minds a solid grip on reality so that we don't lose our confidence, our security, our peace and so that we don't emotionally fall down and give up when assaulted with the accusations, misrepresentations, and injustices of this world. Again, the gospel of peace fights against fear and doubt within our hearts to maintain our connection with Jesus.

- The shield of faith—this is our trust in God, trusting Him with how things turn out, the future, and not allowing fear of the unknown to control our actions and lead us to act selfishly. The war is still being fought in our own inner world.
- The helmet of salvation—this is a mind renewed to be like Jesus; "we have the mind of Christ" (1 Corinthians 2:16). It is being an understanding friend of Jesus (John 15:15), developing by practice the ability to discern right from wrong (Hebrews 5:14). This is, again, a growing up to bear the image of God more perfectly in all that we do.
- The sword of the Spirit is the Word of God that we wield in our thinking; when we are confronted with temptations; when we are faced with external attacks, questions, doubts, and uncertainties. Every day, we are to wield the Word of God as Jesus did to live out and advance the truth of God in all we do.

Our battle, our fight, is against the infection of sin, against fear, selfishness, guilt, shame, lies, distortions, all of which undermine our love and trust in God. Through the weapons God has provided,

- Those who belong to Christ Jesus have crucified the sinful nature with its passions and desires (Galatians 5:24 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- We have an obligation—but it is not to the sinful nature, to live according to it. For if you live according to the sinful nature, you will die; but if by the Spirit you put to death the misdeeds of the body, you will live, because those who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God (Romans 8:12–14 NIV84, emphasis mine).

- Put to death, therefore, whatever belongs to your earthly nature: sexual immorality, impurity, lust, evil desires and greed, which is idolatry. … You used to walk in these ways, in the life you once lived. But now you must rid yourselves of all such things as these: anger, rage, malice, slander, and filthy language from your lips. Do not lie to each other, since you have taken off your old self with its practices and have put on the new self, which is being renewed in knowledge in the image of its Creator (Colossians 3:5–10 NIV84, emphasis mine).

We fight the good fight by using divine weapons, not earthly weapons, in the choices we make in governance of self when confronted with the pain, heartache, mistreatment, and abuse of this evil world. We have a different goal than the world. The world wants the "justice" that makes the perpetrator pay, that uses force to inflict punishment, that seeks to control others to make self feel safe.

The kingdom of God wants the justice that loves our enemies, that blesses those who persecute us, that controls self in order to win enemies to Jesus and turn them into friends.

As God's people, we fight for a different outcome than the world. The worldly fight against others in order to empower self. We fight against sin and selfishness in our own hearts in order to eradicate evil's corrupting principles from our inmost being so that we can be free from sin's control. Then we fight to faithfully live out the principles of God in how we govern ourselves and in how we treat others; we live to be lights in a dark world, demonstrating in word and deed that we belong to a kingdom that is distinctly different than the kingdoms of this selfish world. While the world pursues power to conquer others, the followers of Christ are empowered by God to conquer self.

- We fight by loving God and others, not by self-seeking.
- We fight by speaking truth, not by spreading lies, propaganda, deceit, or falsehood.
- We fight by giving, not by selfish taking.
- We fight by forgiving, not by punishing.
- We fight by disciplining those we love, not by fearfully indulging.
- We fight by saying no to evil, not by giving in to get along.
- We fight by showing mercy, not by retaliating.
- We fight by blessing and praying for our enemies, not by seeking to destroy them.
- We fight by being useful in our communities, not by neglecting our duties.
- We fight by seeking to serve, not seeking to be served.
- We fight by being kind, not by being cruel.
- We fight by being patient, not by being easily angered.
- We fight by rejoicing in the success of others, not by being envious.

- We fight by trusting God, not by trying to make life go the way we demand.

THURSDAY

The lesson focuses on prayer and its importance in our warfare. What is prayer, how is it involved? Does it matter to whom one is praying? Does the attitude of the heart matter?

- The prayer of a righteous man is powerful and effective. (James 5:16 NIV84)

What about the prayers of the unrighteous?

If someone prays for something and the prayer is not answered in a way they can see or recognize, does that mean they are unrighteous?

Consider Moses:

- At that time I pleaded with the LORD: "O Sovereign LORD, you have begun to show to your servant your greatness and your strong hand. For what god is there in heaven or on earth who can do the deeds and mighty works you do? Let me go over and see the good land beyond the Jordan—that fine hill country and Lebanon." But because of you the LORD was angry with me and would not listen to me. "That is enough," the LORD said. "Do not speak to me anymore about this matter. (Deuteronomy 3:23-26 NIV84).

Consider Jeremiah:

- Do not pray for this people nor offer any plea or petition for them; do not plead with me, for I will not listen to you. (Jeremiah 7:16 NIV84).

Why is God not only not answering their prayers as they would like, He is telling them to stop praying these prayers?

Were these two men unrighteous? Or, were they praying for something that in God's plan would be harmful, would interfere with the plan of salvation, though they didn't realize it?

Could we ever do this? What was the response of Moses and Jeremiah? What enabled them to accept the directive from God?

2023 3Q Ephesians—Lesson 14
Ephesians in the Heart

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

SABBATH

Read Memory Verse:

- For it is by grace you have been saved, through faith—and this not from yourselves, it is the gift of God—not by works, so that no one can boast. For we are God's workmanship, created in Christ Jesus to do good works, which God prepared in advance for us to do. (Ephesians 2:8-10 NIV84).

What does this text mean?

What do you understand the grace of God to be? A classic answer is "unmerited favor," and what is usually meant by that is something we have not earned.

And it is certainly true that none of us have earned God's grace. His grace is not a paycheck, a medal, or a reward for some achievement on our part. But to talk about grace in this way focuses on the process of receiving grace—not on what grace is.

Unmerited favor is when you receive something you didn't earn or didn't merit; in other words, you don't have a right to claim something as being owed to you. In that sense, God's grace is not ours to claim by right. But understanding that God's grace is not something we earn still doesn't tell us what that grace is.

If someone gave you a glass of water as you were dying of thirst, you didn't buy it, earn it, or work for it—it was a gift. One could say the water was unmerited; it was given to you freely. But the water is water—the method of how you get it, whether free or at a cost to you, is separate from the substance of what it is.

The gift of God's grace to us is the manifestation of His character of love; it is gracious of God. But the fact that God gives His grace freely does not tell us what that grace is. Consider grace as a noun; the action of gifting it is a verb—we receive God's grace without earning it, but what is His grace?

Since it is true that God's grace is a gift to us—something we have not earned, something we are not owed, something we do not receive by right—does that also mean we do not deserve God's grace?

Does the law lens we use impact how we understand the word "deserve"? If we use the human law lens, imposed rules, reward and punishment based upon one's behavior, then deserve means what we have earned.

PO Box 28266, Chattanooga, TN 37424
topics@comeandreason.com

But if we use design law, the law of love, then deserve means what is morally right, what love compels one to do.

Does a child born with a terminal illness deserve to be treated with kindness, compassion, and offered a remedy if one exists to restore them to wellness—even though they have done nothing to earn such treatment? Why would they deserve it? Does a child, simply by being a human child, deserve the love of its parents—not because the child earned anything but because of who the child is to the parents? Do we have value and worth to God, not because of our achievements or any work we have done, but because of who God created us to be, because of what God has designed for us and invested in us?

When the Bible describes Jesus as growing in wisdom and stature and favor (which is the Greek word for grace) with God and men (Luke 2:52), did Jesus not deserve His Father's grace or favor?

Was the grace that Jesus received from His Father, as our human substitute, given freely by His Father or did Jesus have to earn it? The Father gave His grace to Jesus in the same way He gives His grace to us! Jesus didn't "earn" grace from His Father through some system of employment or quest fulfillment. Jesus, as a human, received the free grace of His Father and was empowered by the Father's grace in order to accomplish their joint purpose in saving humanity from sin.

So what is God's grace?

The Greek word translated as grace is χάρις [charis /khar·ece/], and the Strong lexicon says it is "good will, loving-kindness, favour … the merciful kindness by which God, exerting his holy influence upon souls, turns them to Christ, keeps, strengthens, increases them in Christian faith, knowledge, affection, and kindles them to the exercise of the Christian virtues" (Strong, J. 1995. In Enhanced Strong's Lexicon. Woodside Bible Fellowship).

This is exactly what Paul wrote in Romans 2:4: "God's kindness leads you toward repentance" (NIV84).

And the kindness of God is freely given because of who God is. We see God's grace in His every action, all His activities, which are the outflow of His character of love and which always fights against evil, opposes corruption, stands against sin, and heals, renews, recreates, cleanses, and ultimately destroys death and brings life and immortality to light (2 Timothy 1:10).

God's grace is the dispersement of His energy, love, life, and power and is seen in His every act, but it is most fully seen in response to rebellion and sin. As Paul wrote, "Where sin abounded, grace abounded much more" (Romans 5:20 NKJV).

God was just as gracious before sin and His grace was present and active before sin, but after sin His grace has been active and revealed in ways that were never before seen in the universe because it was never before needed—including the gracious condescension of Jesus to be our Savior. Sunlight has always had cleansing power, but sunlight's power to kill pathogens was never known until pathogens occurred after sin. Likewise, prior to sin, God was just as gracious, but His grace never had to function to overcome sin until sin occurred.

We see God's grace in talking with Adam in the cool of the day before Adam sinned, but His grace is more powerfully revealed when God gently called, "Adam, where are you?" when Adam was hiding in the bushes after he sinned.

We see God's grace in His patient forbearance toward lost sinners prior to the Flood, waiting to act until there was no other option, when only one righteous man was left on the earth; and we see God's grace in bringing the Flood as a therapeutic intervention to keep open the avenue for the Messiah in order to save the species human from sin and eternal death.

But we see God's grace most fully revealed in sending Jesus to take up humanity, broken and damaged by Adam's sin, and overcome where we never could.

- "The Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us. We have seen his glory, the glory of the One and Only, who came from the Father, full of grace and truth" (John 1:14 NIV84).

- "From the fullness of his grace we have all received one blessing after another. For the law was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ" (John 1:16, 17 NIV84).

- "But each of us was given grace according to the measure of Christ's gift" (Ephesians 4:7 NRSV).

The grace of God is indeed a gift—like water to a person dying of thirst is a gift; the gifting is gracious, but the grace is more than the act; it is the substance of God's character—His love, truth, methods, power, glory, righteousness—fully manifested in Jesus.

When we receive God's grace, we are receiving the presence and power of God via His indwelling Spirit, we are receiving the gift of Jesus, and can say as Paul did, "It is no longer I that live but Christ lives in me" (Galatians 2:20). When we receive God's grace, we receive a new heart and right spirit; we have His law written upon our hearts and minds (Hebrews 8:10).

To receive the grace of God means that when we trust Him, when we place our faith in Him, we receive God, via His Spirit, into our hearts, and Jesus lives in us—this is the living grace of God that heals and transforms us. So this is how I paraphrased our memory text:

- It is only because of God's grace that you have been healed through trust–and you did not create this trust yourself, but it was established through the evidence of God's character revealed in the gift of Jesus Christ. This is not by some human work–No way!–so there is no room for anyone to boast. We are God's special creation brought to existence by Christ Jesus to showcase his character–his living law of love–which was always God's design for us. (Ephesians 2:8-10 REM).

SUNDAY

Read first paragraph

- Ephesians 1:3–14 functions like a map at a mountain's summit that identifies the peaks on the horizon, as Paul orients us to our blessed place in the vast landscape of the plan of salvation. The scenery covers the full span of salvation history, from eternity past, through God's grace-filled actions in Christ, to eternity future. God's redemption of believers reflects divine initiatives taken "before the foundation of the world" (Eph. 1:4), which are now being worked out in our lives (see Eph. 1:7, 8, 13, 14). These pre-Creation strategies will be fully accomplished at the end of time (Eph. 1:9, 10). Then, "all things," both "in heaven" and "on earth" will be gathered together or united in Christ, and God's plan for "the fullness of time" (ESV) will be fulfilled (Eph. 1:10). Then, we will experience fully God's mysterious plan (Eph. 1:9). In the present, we may be certain that the Christ-centered salvation in which we stand is an important part of God's wide-reaching plan for the redemption of "all things." (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 113).

Why is God's plan of salvation called a mysterious plan, or God's secret plan? Why was it secret? What made it a mystery or difficult to understand?

Is God the author of confusion? Jesus said,

- I have spoken openly to the world," Jesus replied. "I always taught in synagogues or at the temple, where all the Jews come together. I said nothing in secret. (John 18:20 NIV84).

Paul elsewhere in Ephesians says,

- Have nothing to do with the fruitless deeds of darkness, but rather expose them. (Ephesians 5:11 NIV84).

John wrote:

- This is the message we have heard from him and declare to you: God is light; in him there is no darkness at all. (1 John 1:5 NIV84).

So is God the source of the mystery? Is God making things hard to understand?
Who is? Why is God's plan difficult for people to comprehend and understand?

- In him was life, and that life was the light of men. The light shines in the darkness, but the darkness has not understood it. (John 1:4-5 NIV84)

What does this mean? What is the light symbolic of? Truth, love, the character of God—and what is the darkness?

Why do people prefer the darkness of lies, fear, selfishness, coercion, power, control over the light of heavenly truth and love?

Because they are afraid—because of the infection of sin, which causes people to feel fear, shame, guilt—people are motivated by fear—fear of rejection, fear of exploitation, fear of punishment and they don't trust others. Sin causes people to project our their own selfishness, their own corruption and see others as untrustworthy as they are. So, they believe the only way they can be safe, secure, succeed, is by lying, exploiting, abusing, gaining more power over others to force their way. To tell the truth, especially about themselves, causes their fear to increase—it makes them feel vulnerable, and thus they prefer the darkness.

So, how does God accomplish His purpose, the salvation of humanity and the eradication of sin from the universe?

Can God bring unity and eradicate the sin by imposed laws, force, and inflicted punishment? Why not? Because in order to eliminate sin the roots of sin, lies, fear, and selfishness must be eliminated from hearts and minds. And lies, fear, and selfishness cannot be eliminated by force, threat, or inflicted punishments. In fact, such methods cause more fear, selfishness, and sin.

This is why the Bible teaches it is the kindness of God that leads to repentance. It is not by might and power but by the Spirit of truth and love that God's kingdom advances.

Then why do so many Christians teach that God, in order to be just, must use His power to inflict punishment for sin? Because they believe God's law works like human law, imposed rules. But these theologies only promote the rebellion, not the kingdom of God.

Do you see how the Romanization of Christianity obstructs God's plan from being realized and delays the second coming of Christ?

MONDAY

Read first paragraph,

- "But God. . . ." Those two words must be the most hope-filled ones known to humankind. In Ephesians 2:1–10, Paul describes the grim past of his audience. Sharing the plight of all humanity, they were bent toward rebellion against God, their lives dominated by sin and Satan (Eph. 2:1–3). "But God, who is rich in mercy . . . " And what did God do for them and for us? (1) He made us alive with Christ—Christ's resurrection is our own. (2) He raised us up with Christ—Christ's ascension is our own. (3) In heaven, He seated us with Christ—Christ's coronation is our own (Eph. 2:4–7). We are not just bystanders to the cosmos-shifting events of > Christ's life! God takes these remarkable actions, not because of any merit in us but because of His grace (Eph. 2:8, 9), and He intends believers to live in solidarity with Jesus and practice "good works" (Eph. 2:10). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 114).

Why is all humanity bent toward rebellion against God? What is the reason, the cause, the problem?

Is it our fault, yours and mine, that we have a bent toward rebellion? If it is not our fault, if we were born this way, then are we guilty before God or innocent? Or is that a trap question—does that question subtly lead people to a legal understanding of things? In truth, we are not legally guilty because we didn't choose the condition of our birth—but that doesn't mean we don't have a problem. Even though it isn't our fault that we are born in this condition, the condition itself is a terminal condition—without remedy it causes symptoms and results in death. Like a baby born HIV positive—the baby is not legally guilty, but has a condition that requires treatment and without treatment will cause symptoms and death.

So, understanding this we understand that our problem is not legal, it is a condition of being, that Adam and Eve experienced a change of heart from love and trust to fear and selfishness, and we are born with that corruption of heart and mind.

If the problem sin caused is a change in the heart, mind, character, motive from love and trust to fear and selfishness—then what is the solution that restores us to loving friendship, loyalty, devotion to God such that we are united with Him and can be trusted by God?

Can a legal declaration cause such a change? Can adjustment in accounting books cause such a change? Where must the change occur if this problem is to be fixed for you personally?

What does it mean that God made us alive with Christ? How is that? First, it is speaking of the human race being redeemed in Jesus who became a real human being and fixed in His humanity what Adam did to it. After He completed that mission, He became the second Adam, the head of a new family tree that is built on God's design law of love and not on Satan's law of sin and death, which is fear and selfishness.

When we are won back to trust we receive from the indwelling Holy Spirit the attributes of Christ, we experience love, that we are precious to God, we experience His grace, forgiveness, removal of the guilt and shame and are no longer controlled by fear and the need to protect self. We are recreated within with new motives and desires that are not natural to the carnal heart. With the new heart we then must choose to act upon the new desires choosing to live in new ways because we prefer the new ways, and we receive the power from God to succeed in our new choices, but the choice is ours to make. And it is in this cooperative relationship with Jesus that we are not only reborn (justified, set right in heart with God) but are transformed (sanctified, matured, perfected to have mature character like Christ). And thus we become partakers of the divine nature through the victory of Christ.

Our good works are the unavoidable result of hearts that are recreated to be like Christ. A thief who is reborn to Christ stops stealing, a liar reborn to Christ becomes honest, an abusive spouse becomes a protector who sacrifices self for their spouse like Christ does for the church, a cheat becomes loyal—none of these works of righteousness earn anything, they are the result of, the outgrowth of, the fruit of a change in heart, of having the living law of love restored as the motivating power in the soul. And all of that comes from Jesus through the indwelling Spirit.

In the second paragraph the lesson states,

- Gentiles, once excluded from worship in sacred places of the temple, now join Jewish believers in becoming one. We, too, become part of God's church, a "holy temple in the Lord" (Eph. 2:19–22). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 114).

What was the purpose of the Old Testament Jewish sanctuary/temple?

One of the best descriptions I have ever read of the purpose of that temple is in the book The Desire of Ages. Do you agree with this description?

- "In the cleansing of the temple, Jesus was announcing His mission as the Messiah, and entering upon His work. That temple, erected for the abode of the divine Presence, was designed to be an object lesson [What is an object lesson? Is the object lesson reality or does it illustrate reality? Is the object lesson for salvation? Is the reality which the object lesson is teaching required?] for Israel and for the world. From eternal ages it was God's purpose that every created being, from the bright and holy seraph to man, should be a temple for the indwelling of the Creator. [What kind of a temple is this? Is such a temple suggested here, composed of living beings one built by human hands?] Because of sin, humanity ceased to be a temple for God. Darkened and defiled by evil, the heart of man no longer revealed the glory of the Divine One. But by the incarnation of the Son of God, the purpose of Heaven is fulfilled. [What is God's purpose for humanity? And what was God's purpose in the incarnation of Jesus?] God dwells in humanity, and through saving grace the heart of man becomes again His temple. [What does this mean? And would the heart of a sinner become again the temple where God dwells require some cleansing work to be done? Could we call that the cleansing of the temple?] God designed that the temple at Jerusalem should be a continual witness to the high destiny open to every soul. But the Jews had not understood the significance of the building they regarded with so much pride. [How about Christians today, have we understood?] They did not yield themselves as holy temples for the Divine Spirit. [How about Christians today?] The courts of the temple at Jerusalem, filled with the tumult of unholy traffic, represented all too truly the temple of the heart, defiled by the presence of sensual passion and unholy thoughts. In cleansing the temple from the world's buyers and sellers, Jesus announced His mission to cleanse the heart from the defilement of sin,--from the earthly desires, the selfish lusts, the evil habits, that corrupt the soul. "The Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to His temple, even the Messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, He shall come, saith the Lord of hosts. But who may abide the day of His coming? and who shall stand when He appeareth? for He is like a refiner's > fire, and like fullers' soap: and He shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver: and He shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver." Mal. 3:1-3. (The Desire of Ages 161).

What do you think of this description of the purpose of the Old Testament temple? It points to the reality of a temple built out of living stones. And in order to build that temple from sinners Jesus had to become part of this species and lay the foundation stone, the template, the new sinless humanity, and from Jesus we all must be molded, reformed, redeemed, shaped, honed, refined, recreated, transformed. The living stones have to be purified or cleansed, just as Malachi described.

And did you know that the Adventist founders taught that the prophecy of Malachi 3:1-3 in which Jesus comes to cleanse the Levites—who represent the priesthood of believers, is the same event as the prophecy of Daniel 8:14 the cleansing of the sanctuary?

- The coming of Christ as our high priest to the most holy place, for the cleansing of the sanctuary, brought to view in Daniel 8:14; the coming of the Son of man to the Ancient of days, as presented in Daniel 7:13; and the coming of the Lord to His temple, foretold by Malachi, are descriptions of the same event; and this is also represented by the coming of the bridegroom to the marriage, described by Christ in the parable of the ten virgins, of Matthew 25 (Ellen White, The Great Controversy, p. 426).

And what is this event?

If the temple is built out of living beings who are defiled by sin—what must be accomplished to cleanse the temple? The cleansing of the hearts and minds of sinners.

And what is it that defiles our hearts and minds? The lies that Satan tells about God that we believe that cause us to distrust God and rebel from Him, to live in fear and selfishness because we no longer love and trust God.

Thus the Bible teaches that:

- For though we live in the world, we do not wage war as the world does. The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. We demolish arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and we take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ. (2 Corinthians 10:3-5 NIV84).

The issue in the war has always been over whether we love and trust God, and that is determined by whether we actually know Him for who He really is, or whether we have accepted a false version of Him, a view of God that is like Satan in some way.

In order to have our Spirit temples cleansed we must internalize the truth about God and be won back to trust in Him. We must stop judging God to be like a Roman Caesar, a being whose law functions like human law, a being we accuse of being the source of inflicted pain and death as punishment for sin, and recognize the truth that God is the source of life, Satan is the source of death and sin is the cause of death.

Thus the Adventist founders taught:

> Both the prophecy of Daniel 8:14, "Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed," and the first angel's message, "Fear God, and give glory to Him; for the hour of His judgment is come," pointed to Christ's ministration in the most holy place, to the investigative judgment, and not to the coming of Christ for the redemption of His people and the destruction of the wicked. (The Great controversy 424).

The hour has come in human history for us to make a right judgment about God, to judge Him to be our Creator, the God of love, whose laws are design laws, to have our Spirit temples cleansed of the lie that God functions like a creature and start worshiping Him in His true glory as Creator. It is the fulfillment of what Paul wrote:

- Let God be true but every man a liar. As it is written: "That You may be justified in Your words, and may overcome when You are judged." (Romans 3:4 NKJV).

WEDNESDAY

How do we experience genuine unity? How is it achieved? Can unity ever be achieved through rules, coercion, inflicted punishment?

What is meant by the unity inherent in our faith?

Read second paragraph,

- While unity is a theological certainty, it requires our hard work. So, we should always be "endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit" (Eph. 4:3, NKJV). One way each of us may do so is by being an active "part" of the body of Christ (Eph. 4:7–16). Every member is a gifted part of the body and should contribute to the health of it (Eph. 4:7, 16). And all should benefit by the work of apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, and teachers (Eph. 4:11, 12). These, like ligaments and tendons, have a unifying function, helping us grow up together into Christ who is the Head of the body (Eph. 4:13, 15). (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 116).

What do you think of this idea that we promote unity by each member being an active part of the body of Christ?

What I have noticed over the last 13 years is a pattern that has emerged across the denominational church all over the world when people present the truth of God's design law and His character of love—and that is that the legalistic leaders of the churches tell those who present the design law love of God that they can no longer speak, teach, hold office and eventually that they are not welcome in fellowship.

What I have not seen is those of us who hold the design law view telling people who hold the legal view that they are not welcome, that they cannot speak. There is a reason for this.

Truth loses nothing by questions, examination, challenge, and honest investigation of the evidence. However, positions based on falsehood cannot stand the light of truth shining in, those systems will collapse. Thus, those who hold to the penal/legal view when the truth of God's design law is presented will either change their view and be converted, or will act to stop the truth from being presented.

Thus, genuine unity can only be achieved by the methods and principles of God being applied to hearts and minds.

Read third paragraph

- At the time, Paul also told them "that we should no longer be children, tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the trickery of men, in the cunning craftiness of deceitful plotting" (Eph. 4:14, NKJV), words that clearly suggest that the early church faced some internal struggles from "the trickery of men." (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 116).

What does it mean to be a child in this context? What is it about children that make them vulnerable to being tricked? They trust too much, what else? Do children know how and why things work? Or are children, as good children, primarily living by the judgment, direction, and instructions of others? When it comes to important decisions, do children make their own assessments of risks versus benefits, do they evaluate the cause and effect principles, the design laws of why things work the way they do and then make decisions or do they make decisions based on what someone in authority has told them, on rules, and with concern of what the authority will do to them—either reward or punishment?

How many physiological adults function like children, allowing people in authority to tell them the answer, rules-oriented thinking, rather than learning how to figure out the answer for themselves. And this is the big difference between an immature Christian and a mature one. The mature Christian is one who has developed by practice the ability to discern the right from the wrong, (Hebrews 5:14). The immature is the one who focuses on rule-keeping but with no real understanding of the purpose or reason for the rule, only that it is a rule.

The key to being able to figure out right from wrong is having a reliable toolkit, an accurate measuring stick, a genuine understanding of reality and the laws upon which God built reality to operate upon. The mature are those who not only love God (children love God but are not mature), the mature also know and understand God's character and His design laws and methods. This is what Jesus wants and why He invites us into understanding friendship with Him—John 15:15. This maturity helps us understand why good is good and evil is evil.

But children, the immature, they don't know why, they trust what someone in authority says, "God said it, I believe it, that settles it" and all manner of other stand ins for God—such as "the Bible said it" or "EGW said it" or "the pope, priest, pastor, elder said it" or "my godly grandmother said it" or "the theology professors as seminary said it" or "the church in GC session voted it."

God's kingdom is the kingdom of truth, and the truth is objective reality, and the truth understood is authoritative. If God was going to win the war by mere assertion of power, position, and authority as God and Creator, He would have done so when Lucifer rebelled. He would have called the angels together and said, "I am just, I am love, you can trust me. Lucifer is a liar and justice requires I execute Him. You don't need to ask any questions because I am in charge here and I have the power to ensure justice is done. Watch as I exterminate this rebel. Now, any questions?"

This description is satanic. God is the God of love and love is won, it is never forced. Thus God wins by truth and love and the mature have come to know God for who He is as Jesus revealed Him to be.

THURSDAY

Read second paragraph,

- As believers, we are called to model our behavior toward others on God's forgiveness and grace toward us. We are to imitate God! (Compare Matt. 5:43–48.) (Adult SS Guide 3rd Q 2023, Ephesians p. 117).

Why are we to forgive those who have wronged us?

Why will the same measure we use against others be used against us?

What are the barriers that keep people from forgiving others?

Does the idea about law have any role in that?

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 1
God's Mission to Us - 1

by Tim Jennings (announcements last page)

INTRODUCTION

In the introduction they describe a parable of a dreadful swamp in which people in which people often were overcome and died, and how their distressing cries could be heard by the people of the nearby village.

The people of the village got together and held meetings, counsels, wrote papers, advanced theories as to what to do, held fundraisers to support the people who were sacrificing work time to spend time in the meetings, but they never actually did anything to help the people dying in the swamp.

What are the lessons from this parable?

This is why we at Come and Reason Ministries create materials that we give away to people, materials that are not just theory, but are practical, applicable, and bring real change to people's lives.

It is why we go to events like the American Association of Christian Counselors, which we were at last week. And while there we gave away all kinds of resources:

- The Remedy and Remedy Psalms
- God is Love children's book
- Could It Be This Simple?
- Unmasking the Beasts of Revelation 13 and 17 magazine
- Critical Race Theory Unmasking the Lies While Advancing the Gospel magazine
- The Wedding of Christ to His Bride magazine
- The Final Message of Mercy to the World—the Three Angels magazine
- Meditation Biblical versus Easter guide
- The Book of Job and the Last Days pamphlet
- 9 different tracts

topics@comeandreason.com

We had more people that we can count come up and tell us how they follow us online, how they use our materials with their patients and church members. We heard many stories of how lives have been changed, people who were doubting God giving their hearts to Him. People came back to get more materials to share.

People were blown away with the quality of the materials, but also the fact that we were giving it all away when everyone else was selling. I was stopped in the hallways more than once by people thanking me, telling me they love our ministry, or telling me how much the materials were appreciated.

More times that we could count people came up to us and asked us how we are able to do give it all away. Some asked if I was independently wealthy. One man came up and said he represented another not for profit ministry and his task during this conference was to go to other not for profit ministries and inquire how they monetized their ministry—what worked for them. And when I told him we have never done a fund raiser, we don't solicit, we give away our materials and people whose lives have been changed often choose to start supporting us in producing and sharing these materials with others. We told him we practice the principle of freely you have received freely give. And he shook his head and said he has never head anything like this.

So, we want you to know we are doing more than sitting in committees, we are producing materials, sharing resources, and meeting people and seeing lives changed for God's kingdom.

SABBATH

The lesson begins by pointing out God initiates mission and relationships—God created life, angels, Adam and Eve, and after sin God sought Adam—God went on a mission to reach fallen humanity, to reconnect, and to provide all that is necessary to save and restore humans back to sinless perfection.

Then the lesson says:

- The foundation of any mission endeavor, therefore, must be centered on a relationship with the Creator and with the proper understanding of His missionary nature and character. But before we understand the mission of God, it is essential to better understand the God of mission. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 6).

What does it mean to build a relationship with the Creator, to understanding His missionary nature and character, and His mission?

Would this relate to the 3 Angels' messages and calling people back to Creator worship?

And what does that entail?

At the AACC a nice young man come up to me and asked about the mark of the beast in our Unmasking the Beasts of Revelation 13 and 17 magazine. He wanted to know if someone who was saved could get the mark of the beast.

What would you say to that?

I asked him what he meant by being saved? Did he mean someone who made a proclamation of faith in Jesus, was baptized in a church, identified as a Christian, joined a Christian church and began doing mission work in the name of Jesus? He thought that sounded right, so I asked him, then what about Jesus words:

- Many will say to me on that day, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and in your name drive out demons and perform many miracles?' Then I will tell them plainly, 'I never knew you. Away from me, you evildoers!' (Matthew 7:22–23 NIV84).

Are these people Christians? He didn't know how to answer that, but wasn't sure about my suggesting these people were Christians. So I pointed out the parable of the 10 virgins who represent the church: the 5 wise and 5 foolish—and asked, "Are those five foolish, who are members of the church, and who are not allowed into the kingdom because they have no oil in their lamps, meaning that they are lost in the end, saved at some point or never saved?"

He didn't know how to answer. I pointed out Caiaphas and Annas the High Priests who thought they were leading God's people and believed they, as High Priests, were anointed by God but yet they crucified Jesus. Were they saved?

I pointed out the Christians in the Dark Ages who went on crusades or burned people at the stake in the name of Jesus, were they saved because they claimed to be following Jesus?

So, the point is, can people identify themselves as Christian, make a profession of faith, go through the ritual of baptism, join the church organization they believe is God's church, and engage in activities that are mission oriented to advance what they understand to be the gospel, yet still be unsaved, and be working against God, working for God's enemy, and even hold church office? Remember the wheat and tares grow up together in the church until the harvest.

So, can a person who is saved receive the mark of the beast—well again it depends on what you mean by saved, what does it mean to be saved?

What would you say?

We talked about experiencing a new heart and right spirit, being reborn, having the heart circumcised by the Holy Spirit, having the law written upon the heart, which ultimately results in being sealed by the Holy Spirit—which is having transformation of character so that we are so settled into the truth about God both intellectually and spiritually, that like Job, no matter what comes we will not be shaken from our love, loyalty, and devotion to God and the living out of His methods and principles. Such people do not receive the mark of the beast because they are sealed of God.

But he said, but sometimes I don't do what I know is right, sometimes I fail, I fall short, I get angry and say things that are not right—am I lost. What would you say to that?

I pointed him to Romans chapter seven, this is from the Remedy:

- I am frustrated with what I do! For having been restored to trust, I want to do what is in harmony with God and his methods and principles; but I find that even though I trust God, my old habits, conditioned responses, preconceived ideas and other remnants of the devastation caused by distrust and selfishness are not yet fully removed. And if I find an old habit causing me to behave in ways that I now find detestable, I affirm that the law is a very helpful tool revealing residual damage in need of healing. What is happening is this: I have come to trust God, and I desire to do his will, but old habits and conditioned responses — which > present almost reflexively in certain situations — have not yet been totally eliminated and thus cause me to do things I do not want to do. I know that my mind was completely infected with distrust, fear and selfishness, which totally perverted all my desires and faculties, so that even when distrust has been eradicated and trust has been restored, the damage caused by years of distrustful and selfish behavior has not yet been fully healed. So, I find that at times, I have the desire to do what is right, but do not yet have the ability to carry out the desire. For the old habits and conditioned responses are not the good I want to do: No! They are remnants of my selfish, unconverted mind. So, if I find myself doing what I no longer desire to do, it is not myself that acts, but the vestiges of old habits and conditioned responses that have yet to be removed. And through God's grace, they will soon be removed. (Romans 7:15-20 REM)

The difference between a saved and unsaved person is that the saved person, when old habits emerge, is grieved and goes to God in sorrow and repentance not only for forgiveness, but transforming power to change so they gain victory and stop repeating such behaviors over time. The unconverted, unsaved, person justify and defend their sinful actions, they blame others, claim that the other person deserved what they got etc.

So, what do you think was the root of this individual's concern, and how do you see me handling it?

Does the law lens people hold have any bearing on how they understand the sin problem and God's solution, what it means to be saved? And does worshiping the Creator have anything to do with how we understand God's law?

If we worship the Creator we worship the Builder of reality, not just the Builder, but the Bible says He is the Sustainer, holding all things together. His laws are the laws that reality functions upon, design law. Breaking them injures and causes death. God is working through Christ to eliminate breaks in His law that cause death and restore His people back into harmony with Him and His law of love.

Thus the mission of God is redemptive, saving, healing, transforming, cleansing, recreating—and salvation means to be reborn, healed, cleansed, transformed, renewed, restored and ultimately sealed in heart and mind to be like Jesus in character and function.

But if one holds the human law model, imposed rules that require the rule giver to use power to torture and kill, then one is not won back to trust that god, but to trust in some mechanism to propitiate that god, whether it is human works, penances, ceremonies, sacraments, or the works of another intercessor who will plead to that false punishing god in our behalf offering that god the legal blood payment to assuage his wrath. The confidence, faith, trust is not in the god, it is in the various other mechanics, saints, or mediators who are working on that god to stop him from killing us.

Further, through the law of worship, which is a design law of how we are transformed and changed, if we worship an authoritarian rule-enforcing god, we become authoritarian, legal, and we find emotional security in some form of legal authority, some payment, some claim of legal forgiveness and salvation through legal means.

So what does it mean to be marked beastly? It means to embrace and practice the methods of the beast on others, to mark oneself in mind, heart, character, and function to be beastlike.

So, what is God's mission and how do we enter into a relationship with the Creator and join Him in His mission?

SUNDAY

Read first paragraph:

- God created us in His image and likeness. He gave us a perfect world, and His purpose was that we would live in perfect connection with Him, a relationship centered in His most precious attribute: love. But for love to be real, God also gave us another precious gift: free will—the freedom to choose which way to follow. Of course, God gave clear instructions to Adam and Eve about the danger and deadly consequences of disobedience (Gen. 2:16, 17). Satan, in turn, deceptively persuaded Eve that she could eat the fruit from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, but without any negative results. On the contrary, he claimed that they would "be like God, knowing good and evil" (Gen. 3:5, NKJV). Unfortunately, Eve chose to eat and gave the fruit to Adam, who made the same choice. The perfect creation, then, was stained by sin. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 7).

PO Box 28266, Chattanooga, TN 37424
topics@comeandreason.com

This is so well said, the lesson emphasizing that God is love is absolutely right and it is right that love can only exist in freedom and God gives real freedom, and how God in love warned Adam and Eve of the deadly consequences of sin—not the threat of inflicted punishment from God. This is well said. And how Satan deceived, and what do lies that are believed do to the circle of love and trust?

And when the circle of love and trust is broken what results? Fear and selfishness, so let's read the second and third paragraphs:

- That moment changed God's original plan and purpose for the newly created planet Earth. The mission of salvation, which had been designed "before the foundation of the world" (Eph. 1:4), had now to be implemented.

  Of course, God knew exactly where they were. Dominated by fear, Adam and Eve were the ones who needed to see what was going on. But they also needed to be confronted so they could understand the dreadful consequences of their sin. Satan also needed to be defeated. For that, God then began to present His mission: the plan of redemption (see Gen. 3:14, 15)—the only hope of "reconciling the world to Himself" (2 Cor. 5:19, NKJV). (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 7).

Again, well said by the lesson. As soon as Adam and Eve sinned the living law of God, the law of other centered love was replaced with fear and selfishness, the survival of the fittest drives, this is what the Bible calls the law of sin and death.

When Adam and Eve sinned what changed? Did God get changed? Did God's law get changed? It was the condition of Adam and Eve that change!

Since the change sinned caused was in Adam and Eve, where will the remedy, the solution, the healing power of God have to be applied in order to save human sinners? In human beings.

Understand this, the entire plan of salvation, all the various manifestations of grace, the actions of God, what Jesus has done, all of it has never and will never do anything to change God—He is the same yesterday, today, and tomorrow. He is perfect, holy, righteous, and eternal, there is nothing wrong with God and nothing in God needs to be fixed, updated, amended, changed, or reconciled to sinners.

We need to be fixed, updated, amended, changed, healed, cleansed, restored, and reconciled back to God. And that is the plan of salvation, God's plan to intervene in humanity to eradicate the infection of sin within us and restore His living law of love in our inmost being reconciling us back to at-one-ment with God.

TUESDAY

Why did Jesus have to become human? Why did God have to become one with us?

It is very straightforward and simple—it is reality—once Adam and Eve sinned the species human—all of whom are offspring, outgrowth, fruit of Adam and Eve are born with a terminal sin condition. The only way to save human sinners is to eliminate the sin condition from human beings. This requires action within the human being. The actions required are the following:

- Truth must be revealed and then accepted and believed to destroy the lies and restore fearful, distrusting, rebellious human hearts and minds back to trust in God. Only God Himself could fully and accurately reveal the truth about Himself. If an angel would have come as a human instead of God we would learn about angels, and we would learn that God was willing to sacrifice angels to protect Himself. So step one as to why Jesus became human is because it was the only way God could reveal to humans (and to the onlooking universe Colossians 1:18-20) the truth about Himself.
- But having been restored to trust by accepting the truth that Jesus revealed, doesn't remove the infection the carnal nature from the species human. The salvation of humanity, in addition to defeating the lies and restoring trust, requires a new sinless, perfect, mature, and righteous character/nature. Character cannot be created, it must be developed by the exercise of free choice of the sapient being. Jesus had to become human, and use only His human abilities—the power to think, to choose, to exercise faith in His Father, to love, in order to confront the temptations of sin and eliminate the death causing principle and restore the life causing principle into humanity, and thus save the species created in Eden.
- These two actions, revealing the truth and developing a mature, perfect, sinless human character by the exercise of human abilities destroys the devil's power (Hebrews 2:14), destroys the sympathy for Satan with any heavenly angels who knew him and had questions (Colossians 1:18-20), destroys death itself and brings life and immortality to light (2Tim 1:10), destroys the carnal nature and replaced it with a sinless righteous human nature (1 John 3:8).

- When we receive the truth, metaphorically the bread or flesh, we are won back to trust and open our hearts to God and receive the wine/blood, the life is in the blood (Leviticus 17:11), we receive the life of Christ, the new heart, right spirit, with new righteous motives, love for God and others, and then as we choose to live out those new desires we receive power to succeed and it is no longer our old sinful, fear-ridden, selfish selves that live, but Christ lives in us, we are new creations, partaking of the divine nature, and having the mind of Christ. As we continue to choose, in faith, to live out God's principles we are sealed by the Holy Spirit into our devotion, loyalty, trust of God and nothing will shake us from it.

WEDNESDAY

Read first paragraph,

- Jesus' life and ministry were God's ultimate revelation. In about three years God was able to reveal more about who He was and what His mission was all about than in all He had done through any other method in previous generations. Christ was the perfect "image of the invisible God," the One in whom "all the fullness should dwell, . . . having made peace through the blood of His cross" (Col. 1:15, 19, 20, NKJV). In Christ, the missionary nature of God was completely made known. Jesus Himself revealed His mission, saying, " 'the Son of Man has come to seek and to save that which was lost' " (Luke 19:10, NKJV). (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 10).

What is the peace that Jesus made through the blood of His cross? How would you explain it? Do you hear it as doing something to God, or as I just described fixing the damage that sin caused to God's creation?

Read the last paragraph,

- Christ's death was part of the reconciliation process, not the end of it. Through His resurrection, Jesus conquered death and received " 'all authority . . . in heaven and on earth' " (Matt. 28:18, NKJV). Based on this reality, He then commissioned all of His followers to make disciples around the world, with an awesome promise: " 'I am with you always, even to the end of the age' " (Matt. 28:20, NKJV; emphasis supplied). (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 10).

I think we all agree that the plan of salvation did not end at the cross, that we have a work of evangelizing the world with the gospel, but then what did Jesus mean when at the cross he said, "It is finished"?

I encourage you to read the chapter It Is Finished in the book The Desire of Ages, it is one of the best chapters ever written by anyone on this subject. And I want us to unpack some of this chapter together:

- Satan saw that his disguise was torn away. His administration was laid open before the unfallen angels and before the heavenly universe. He had revealed himself as a murderer. By shedding the blood of the Son of God, he had uprooted himself from the sympathies of the heavenly beings… The last link of sympathy between Satan and the heavenly world was broken. (The Desire of Ages 761.2) [One of the things that Christ finished at the cross was providing the evidence of who is the source of death, who was responsible for Christ's death, who is the murderer, destroyer, and the truth of what happens when God stops using power to prevent death from occurring. The cross reveals who does what—God let Christ go—setting Jesus free to experience what Jesus freely chose, and that was to destroy sin and death. Therefore, at the cross God stopped using power, stepped back, let go, and severed His live-giving link with His Son, so that Jesus could complete Their joint mission. This reveals that death does not come out from God as an inflicted punishment. Further, at the cross Satan revealed that he is the one from whom death comes. As Hebrews 2:14 says Satan holds the power of death, but Christ destroys both Satan and his power of death and brings life and immortality to light. This truth was revealed at the cross, but not fully understood by finite beings. Yet sadly, most of Christianity, having believed the lie that God's law functions like human law, teach that God killed Jesus on the cross.]

Yet Satan was not then destroyed. The angels did not even then understand all that was involved in the great controversy. The principles at stake were to be more fully revealed. And for the sake of man, Satan's existence must be continued. Man as well as angels must see the contrast between the Prince of light and the prince of darkness. He must choose whom he will serve. (The Desire of Ages 761.3) [Despite the cross revealing the contrast between love and selfishness, between God's use of power and Satan's, the heavenly angels and humans still didn't fully understand the difference between the two. Why? Because one foundational lie had not been fully eliminated and that was the lie about God's law, note what the author says next.]

In the opening of the great controversy, Satan had declared that the law of God could not be obeyed, that justice was inconsistent with mercy, and that, should the law be broken, it would be impossible for the sinner to be pardoned. Every sin must meet its punishment, urged Satan; and if God should remit the punishment of sin, He would not be a God of truth and justice. When men broke the law of God, and defied His will, Satan exulted... (The Desire of Ages 761.4) [What kind of law requires the infliction of punishment? Imposed law, made up law, the kind of law created beings make. This was Satan's lie from the beginning and this lie continues to infect human hearts and minds and the church. Worshiping a beings whose law works like this means one is worshiping a creature and not the Creator. This is why we are called at this time in history to call people back to Creator worship, which requires we reject human imposed law and understand the reality of God as Creator and Sustainer that His law is design alw. The problem of salvation isn't legal, it is functional, the actual condition of hearts and minds, harmony or disharmony with God and the laws He built reality to operate upon.]

But even as a sinner, man was in a different position from that of Satan. [How? What was different? Why can the death of Jesus save human sinners but not Satan?] Lucifer in heaven had sinned in the light of God's glory. To him as to no other created being was given a revelation of God's love. Understanding the character of God, knowing His goodness, Satan chose to follow his own selfish, independent will. This choice was final. There was no more that God could do to save him. But man was deceived; his mind was darkened by Satan's sophistry. The height and depth of the love of God he did not know. For him there was hope in a knowledge of God's love. By beholding His character he might be drawn back to God. (The Desire of Ages 761.5) [If the problem were a legal problem and the solution is the payment of sinless blood of God's sin—then such a solution would be available to Satan and his fallen angels. But the problem isn't legal, and legal payments cannot solve it. The problem is reality, functional, the actual condition of hearts and minds. Satan's rejected the truth of God's character, methods, and design laws, and hardened within himself the preference for selfishness. But humanity was in a different position, humanity was tricked, deceived, and therefore there was hope for humanity. Where is humanity's hope? In being won back to trust by the revelation of the truth of God. There is hope in the truth of God's character, winning humans back to trust and offering them an alternative to selfishness, the truth, love, and liberty of God as manifested and restored into humanity by Jesus.]

Through Jesus, God's mercy was manifested to men; but mercy does not set aside justice. [What does this mean?] The law reveals the attributes of God's character, and not a jot or tittle of it could be changed to meet man in his fallen condition. God did not change His law, [Why because it is perfect, and it is the protocols life is built to operate upon. We must be changed to harmonize with the law.] but He sacrificed Himself, in Christ, for man's redemption. "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself." 2 Corinthians 5:19. (The Desire of Ages 762.1)

The law requires righteousness,—a righteous life, a perfect character; and this man has not to give. He cannot meet the claims of God's holy law. But Christ, coming to the earth as man, lived a holy life, and developed a perfect character. These He offers as a free gift to all who will receive them. His life stands for the life of men. Thus they have remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God. More than this, Christ imbues men with the attributes of God. He builds up the human character after the similitude of the divine character, a goodly fabric of spiritual strength and beauty. Thus the very righteousness of the law is fulfilled in the believer in Christ. God can "be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus." Romans 3:26. (The Desire of Ages 762.2) [The law of God requires that we live in harmony with it, just like the law of respiration requires we breathe. And God doesn't change His law, He restores His living law in us through the works of Jesus.]

By substituting human law for God's law, Satan will seek to control the world. [What kind of laws do humans enact? When we teach God's law functions like human law, imposed rules requiring God to use power to punish rule breakers and salvation is legal, we have substituted human law for God's law. We are worshiping a creature rather than the Creator.] This work is foretold in prophecy. Of the great apostate power which is the representative of Satan, it is declared, "He shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High, and think to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hand." Daniel 7:25. (The Desire of Ages 763.1)

Men will surely set up their laws to counterwork the laws of God. They will seek to compel the consciences of others, and in their zeal to enforce these laws they will oppress their fellow men. (The Desire of Ages 763.2) [This has certainly happened in the Dark Ages over issues of worship. But more recently it happened over COVID. And sadly many church leaders couldn't recognize the beastly methods of Satan that were employed, and they led the church to unite and practice these beastly methods on others. They didn't recognize it because they couldn't find an authority somewhere that tells them the answer because they believe the lie that God's law functions like human law.]

The warfare against God's law, which was begun in heaven, will be continued until the end of time. Every man will be tested. Obedience or disobedience is the question to be decided by the whole world. All will be called to choose between the law of God and the laws of men. Here the dividing line will be drawn. There will be but two classes. Every character will be fully developed; and all will show whether they have chosen the side of loyalty or that of rebellion. (The Desire of Ages 763.3) [The law we choose to apply to ourselves in how we treat others determines the type of character we develop.]

Then the end will come. God will vindicate His law and deliver His people. Satan and all who have joined him in rebellion will be cut off. Sin and sinners will perish, root and branch, (Malachi 4:1),—Satan the root, and his followers the branches. The word will be fulfilled to the prince of evil, "Because thou hast set thine heart as the heart of God; ... I will destroy thee, O covering cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.... Thou shalt be a terror, and never shalt thou be any more." Then "the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be;" "they shall be as though they had not been." Ezekiel 28:6-19; Psalm 37:10; Obadiah 16. (The Desire of Ages 763.4)

This is not an act of arbitrary power on the part of God. The rejecters of His mercy reap that which they have sown. [This is design law, the natural result of cutting self off from God the source of life. It happens when God stops using power to hold their destructive choices at bay.] God is the fountain of life; and when one chooses the service of sin, he separates from God, and thus cuts himself off from life. He is "alienated from the life of God." Christ says, "All they that hate Me love death." Ephesians 4:18; Proverbs 8:36. God gives them existence for a time that they may develop their character and reveal their principles. This accomplished, they receive the results of their own choice. By a life of rebellion, Satan and all who unite with him place themselves so out of harmony with God that His very presence is to them a consuming fire. The glory of Him who is love will destroy them. (The Desire of Ages 764.1) [But remember the righteous live eternally in that same glory—the glory of God is not harmful, it is life-giving. What is harmful is unremedied sin in the individual.]

At the beginning of the great controversy, the angels did not understand this. Had Satan and his host then been left to reap the full result of their sin, they would have perished; but it would not have been apparent to heavenly beings that this was the inevitable result of sin. A doubt of God's goodness would have remained in their minds as evil seed, to produce its deadly fruit of sin and woe. (The Desire of Ages 764.2) [In order to eliminate sin from the universe God had to do more than eliminate Satan, He has to eliminate the lies, the fear, the doubts about God that infect hearts and minds. This is why Satan's existence has been continued, to manifest his own methods and principles and ultimately condemn and destroy himself.]

All of this was finished—the evidence and truth that brings it all to an end—at the cross.

MONDAY

Read first paragraph,

- In the Old Testament narrative, God continues to act according to His missionary nature in order to fulfill His purposes. For instance, after the Flood the people of Babel decided to gather in one place to build a city and a tower that would reach to the heavens. God intervened, confusing their language with the goal to scatter > them around the world (Gen. 11:1–9). He then enlarged His mission, calling Abram (who later became Abraham) to be a channel of His blessings to the whole world (Gen. 12:1–3). God's promises to Abraham and his descendants were multifold, but one emerges above all. Several times God basically declared to them: "I will be [your] God." "I will be with you." "I am with you" (see Gen. 17:7, 8; Gen. 26:3, NKJV; Gen. 28:15, NKJV). (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 8).

Why did God confuse the languages at Babel?

Did God do this as punishment? Was God angry? Was He seeking to destroy? Or was this an act of love, an act of mercy, grace, and redemption?

The lesson then uses language that I find a little strange, in fact I am not sure what is meant, so I will ask you, what do you think they mean by: "He then enlarged His mission, calling Abram (who later became Abraham) to be a channel of His blessings to the whole world (Gen. 12:1–3)."

I don't understand the word "enlarged" in this context. Wasn't God's mission to send Jesus as our Savior announced in Genesis 3:15?

And weren't the following part of that mission to send Jesus, destroy sin, death, Satan, and save humanity:

- Barring the way to the Tree of Life?
- The animal sacrifices?
- The confrontation with Cain?
- The preaching of Noah for 120 years followed by the Flood
- The confusion of the languages and scattering of the people and, in my view, it was there that the different genetic racial differences were introduced to separate people into different groups—why? To prevent the world from uniting again in a total, global, worldwide rebellion against heaven, in order to give time for God's mission, the plan of salvation, Jesus to come.

So, I don't understand the word enlarged in this context—it is the carrying out what was already promised, and the Bible focus narrows. We no longer focus on the entire world, but only on Abraham's family, which narrows to Isaac's descendants, which narrows to Jacob's which narrows eventually to the tribe of Judah—why? Because the entire Bible story is the coming Messiah, the plan of salvation, which is focused upon Jesus.

Let's be very clear about something—no human can be saved from sin at any from Adam and Eve all the way down to the last sinner saved at the end of time without Jesus. Jesus is the only means of salvation for every single human being. Human salvation required Jesus to become part of the human species, a real human being; it required He be tempted like us in every way; it required that He overcome every temptation and be sinless; it required that He develop a perfect mature human character; and that required Him to die to destroy the infection of fear and selfishness and to establish by action, by deed, by choice, by faith and trust in His Father the eternal law of love sealed into His human character; and having done this human salvation required Him to arise from the dead because He defeated and destroyed the cause of death and restored the law of life back into the species human. And thus Jesus becomes the connecting link, the only means whereby every other human, who is born dead in trespass and sin, can experience through their faith in Him a recreation of their inner person and be reborn with God's law of love, law of life, restored within them. Thus they are reconciled to God through faith in Jesus.

Does that mean that one has to place their faith in a Savior they call Jesus? What if they call Him Joshua, or Yoshua, or El-Shaadi, or Elohim, or Yahweh, or Yah, or any of a variety of other names?

What if someone does accept Jesus by that name as their Savior and is baptized into a Christian church and spends their life doing Christian mission—does that mean they are saved? We already quoted this earlier, but Jesus Himself said,

- "Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven. Many will say to me on that day, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and in your name drive out demons and perform many miracles?' Then I will tell them plainly, 'I never knew you. Away from me, you evildoers!'" (Matthew 7:21-23 NIV84).

Jesus is describing people who are calling Him Lord and doing all their works in His name, in other words, these people would identify themselves as Christians, but Jesus said He never knew them and they are evil doers.

How can this be?

What does it mean to be a follower of Jesus? In other words, what does it mean to be truly saved?

What is the problem that sin caused that God's mission through Jesus is fixing?

Is the problem a legal problem or a problem of our actual condition?

If we replace God's design law with human imposed law, then the problem is misconstrued as a legal problem in which God is required by law and justice to inflict a legal death penalty, and salvation becomes some means to get that legal penalty paid. And people can claim legal salvation and the acceptance of the payment of Jesus' blood to pay their sin debt, go through ritual baptism, join a church, spend their lives in mission, but never know Jesus, never have their hearts renewed to be like Jesus.

The Bible does not teach that Jesus came to take away our punishment for sin. The Bible teaches that Jesus came to take away the sin of the world, to take away the cause of pain, suffering, and death and that cause is sin, not God. But Satan, the master deceiver has duped billions into believing God is the cause of inflicted pain, suffering, and death as punishment for sin.

So the promise to Abraham—what is that promise? Is it a different promise than given to Adam in Genesis 3:15? If it is the same promise, then is that promise restricted to the biological, the genetic, descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob?

The promise to Abraham had two meanings—one that the genetic descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob would be the biological branch of the human family tree through which Messiah would come. The land that was shown to Abraham would be given to them for them to carry out the purpose of being the repository of Scripture, the symbolic theater of the sanctuary, and being the avenue through whom Jesus would be born. This promise was given in Genesis 12:7.

- The LORD appeared to Abram and said, "To your offspring I will give this land" (Genesis 12 7).

But God was not sending Jesus to save only biological descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. God was sending Jesus to save the entire world. And God was not promising Abraham's descendants only a narrow strip of land in the Middle East, He was telling Abraham that through the fulfillment of His promise to Adam of the promised seed of the woman, who would be born to one of Abraham's descendants, the entire human family would be saved and they will inherent the entire world. Just as Jesus said: "the meek will inherent the earth" not the "meek will inherent Palestine."

It is Abraham's descendant Jesus who sets up a kingdom that encompasses the entire world, the rock that destroys the image in Daniel 2, He reigns on a throne that will never be removed, and the New Jerusalem comes down from Heaven and God moves the throne of the universe to this planet.

This is the promise given to Abraham. Through God's constant mercy, grace, and discipline the biological descendants were able to barely succeed in being the avenue through which Jesus was born as a human 2000 years ago. That part of their calling and God's promise to given them that land to fulfill that part of their mission is complete. Now, what we are waiting for God to fulfill is the larger, final, aspect of His promise, for Jesus to come again and to purify the earth from all sin and given the entire planet to the saved.

Thus the Bible teaches that

- If you belong to Christ, then you are Abraham's descendants, heirs according to the promise. (Galatians 3:29 NET).

To be a descendant of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in salvation is not about biology—it is about experiencing what they did:

- A descendant of Abraham has the saving faith that Abraham had and thus their heart is set right or justified with God from the natural state of distrust to trust in that trust they
- Become a descendant of Isaac as they experience the miracle of rebirth—Isaac was the miracle birth child and we are his descendant when we are reborn through the miracle of God's divine power working in us and
- We become a descendant of Jacob when in our faith relationship with Jesus, with our new reborn heart, we yoke up with Jesus and wrestle against our own fears > and selfishness to be an overcomer—thus we get a new name that Jesus writes on our foreheads, just as Jacob's name was changed from deceiver, to Israel—one who with God overcomes.

And the writer of Hebrews agrees with our assessment. Hebrews tells us that the faithful of God in Bible times—Abel, Enoch, Noah, along with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob who lived "in the promised land" (Hebrews 11:9)—"did not receive the things promised" (Hebrews 11:13), that they were "looking forward to the city with foundations, whose architect and builder is God" (Hebrews 11:10). "All of these people" of faith "did not receive the things promised; they saw them and welcomed them from a distance. … They were longing for a better country—a heavenly one" (Hebrews 11:13, 16).

The Bible says that "all of these people" did not receive the things promised; note who is included on that list—Enoch, who was taken to heaven! Enoch, who has already received eternal life, a glorified body, who currently lives in heaven with Jesus, surely he has received the promise, hasn't he? Not in its complete and fullest sense. What was Abraham promised? That his spiritual descendants would inherit the earth. This promise will not be realized until Jesus comes again, all sin and sinners are eliminated, the New Jerusalem comes down from heaven, and the earth is made new to be the home of the righteous. Then the promise will be realized and we, who have faith like Abraham, will receive our inheritance of a goodly land, a beautiful home, perfect and flawless that God intended Adam and Eve to possess. It is true that the meek will inherit the earth, for what God has promised He will fulfill.

In the last paragraph, the lesson asks, "What was one of the main purposes of the Old Testament sanctuary?"

What do you think?

The lesson has a quote from one of the founders of the SDA church, which reflects the SDA church's position:

- "The sacrificial offerings, and the priesthood of the Jewish system, were instituted to represent the death and mediatorial work of Christ. All those ceremonies had no meaning, and no virtue, only as they related to Christ."—Ellen G. White, Advent Review and Herald of the Sabbath, December 17, 1872.

Do you agree with this? Is there Biblical evidence to support this position?

- "The gifts and sacrifices being offered were not able to clear the conscience of the worshiper. They are only a matter of food and drink and various ceremonial washings—external regulations applying until the time of the new order… But those sacrifices are an annual reminder of sins, because it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins. (Hebrews 9:9.10, 10:3,4).

But this was not something new to the New Testament writers, God told them this all through the Old Testament:

- "The multitude of your sacrifices— what are they to me?" says the Lord. "I have more than enough of burnt offerings, of rams and the fat of fattened animals; I have no pleasure in the blood of bulls and lambs and goats… wash and make yourselves clean. Take your evil deeds out of my sight! Stop doing wrong, learn to do right! Seek justice, encourage the oppressed. Defend the cause of the fatherless, plead the case of the widow." (Isaiah 1:11,16,17)
- "I want your constant love, not your animal sacrifices. I would rather have my people know me than burn offerings to me." (Hosea 6:6)

So, the position that the OT sanctuary was only theater, a teaching tool, object lesson, ceremony with no saving value in the rituals is biblical.

However, not all Christians see it this way, some believe that in Old Testament times it was the sacrifices of animals and animal blood that took care of the sin problem, despite the texts I read.

Here is a quote from a theology professor heard on Christian radio:

- In the Old Testament, the death of an animal was required to take care of the human sin problem and now we have not the death of an animal, but of the very Son of God, who dies for us. And so his loss of blood is the thing whereby He succumbed on our behalf. (Chris Fabry Live Radio Show March 23, 2016, Moody Broadcasting).

The reason this idea exists is that many good Christian people fail to recognize the Great Controversy perspective, that there is only one sin problem and only one solution for it, and the entire Bible is teaching the exact same truth—the truth about God, the truth about sin, the truth about the purpose of the creation of humankind and the fall, the truth about God's design law and heavenly government, the truth about Jesus as our Savior as the only avenue for salvation for any human being. All the parts of the Bible teach the same eternal truths and must be harmonized together in order to understand correctly these truths.

Sadly, much of Christianity has broken the Bible into various parts and believe that salvation had other avenues than Jesus in Old Testament times.

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 2
God's Mission to Us: Part 2

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read Memory Text:

- Therefore go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit (Matthew 28:19 NIV84).

What do you think of this text? Those who don't believe that God is an infinite being of love of Three individualities united in a way we cannot fully comprehend, claim that this text is not in original manuscripts. However, this claim is disproved.

I put the references for any scholars who would like to do their own research, but:

- Early church writings attest to baptismal interrogations, in which the baptismal candidates are given an opportunity to confess their faith in connection with baptism (Kinzig and Vinzent, "Recent Research", 542; von Campenhausen, "Das Bekenntnis im Urchristentum", 228). According to the second-century church father Tertullian, the baptismal candidate would renounce Satan and profess Christian faith in response to a set of three formal questions about belief in God as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. Hippolytus (AD 215) described the baptismal rite of the church of Rome in comparable language (Stevenson, New Eusebius, 141–43). Cyprian reports a similar practice in Rome. Similar questions are found in Palestine, Cappadocia, and Alexandria (compare Kinzig and Vinzent, "Recent Research," 542–43).

  These confessions of faith at the entrance to church membership were interrogative or dialogical in structure. The baptismal candidate would respond "I believe" to questions, likely adapted from the Trinitarian baptismal formula, about God and His salvific acts (Matt 28:19; Didache 7.1.3; Kinzig and Vinzent, "Recent Research", 547).

  By the mid-fourth century, baptismal questions were changed into a declaratory creed, the so-called Roman Creed, which emerged in connection with the Arian controversy (Kinzig and Vinzent, "Recent Research", 545–52). The oldest witness to the Roman Creed is Marcellus' letter to Julius of Rome in AD 340/41. His confession of faith needed the authority of Rome and the apostles in order to guarantee its continuing existence in the liturgy. It was called the Roman Creed partly because its text was composed and approved in Rome. In the seventh century, the first and third articles were extended to become the Apostles' Creed (Vinzent and Kinzig, "Recent Research," 559). (Hasel, F. M. (2016). (Creeds and Confessions. In J. D. Barry, D. Bomar, D. R. Brown, R. Klippenstein, D. Mangum, C. Sinclair Wolcott, L. Wentz, E. Ritzema, & W. Widder (Eds.), The Lexham Bible Dictionary. Lexham Press.)

- Although some scholars have denied that the trinitarian baptismal formula in the Great Commission was a part of the original text of Matthew, there is no manuscript support for their contention… For discussion (and refutation of the conjecture that removes this baptismal formula), see B. J. Hubbard, The Matthean Redaction of a Primitive Apostolic Commissioning (SBLDS 19), 163–64, 167–75; and Jane Schaberg, The Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit (SBLDS 61), 27–29. (NET commentary on Matthew 28:19).

So, historical review does not support the idea that the early church baptized only in the name of Jesus and not in the name of the Father and Holy Spirit.

More importantly, what does the Bible itself reveal?

- When they arrived, they prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Spirit, because the Holy Spirit had not yet come upon any of them; they had simply been baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus. Then Peter and John placed their hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit. (Acts 8:15-17 NIV84).

- At that time Jesus, full of joy through the Holy Spirit, said, "I praise you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and learned, and revealed them to little children. Yes, Father, for this was your good pleasure. (Luke 10:21 NIV84).

- To God's elect, strangers in the world, scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia and Bithynia, who have been chosen according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through the sanctifying work of the Spirit, for obedience to Jesus Christ (1 Peter 1:1–2 NIV84).

But let's look at the divinity of all three:

- In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. He was with God in the beginning. Through him all things were made; without him nothing was made that has been made. In him was life, and that life was the light of men...The Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us. We have seen his glory, the glory of the One and Only, who came from the Father, full of grace and truth. From the fullness of his grace we have all received one blessing after another... No one has ever seen God, but God the One and Only, who is at the Father's side, has made him known. (John 1:1-4, 14, 16, 18 NIV84).

Who was the Word that became flesh? Jesus, and Jesus was with God from the beginning and it was through Jesus that all things were made; Jesus had life in Himself, and Jesus became human and lived among us, and it is His grace that blesses us, and He is God equal to and revealing the Father to us.

As the Bible says elsewhere about Jesus:

PO Box 28266, Chattanooga, TN 37424
topics@comeandreason.com

- He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn over all creation. For by him all things were created: things in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or powers or rulers or authorities; all things were created by him and for him. He is before all things, and in him all things hold together. (Colossians 1:15-17 NIV84).

What does firstborn mean? It depends on context—grammatically the word itself can mean the one who is literally born into existence, like one's firstborn child, but it also has another meaning—it means the one who holds the family authority, who receives the inheritance. In Abraham's family, who was the biological first born son of Abraham? Ishmael, but who is considered the firstborn, the one through who received the family authority and through who the promises were to be fulfilled? Isaac. So, firstborn doesn't necessarily refer to biological birth, the context must determine. And in Colossians Paul is clearly referring to authority.

Jesus also claimed to be God, one with the Father:

- "I tell you the truth," Jesus answered, "before Abraham was born, I am!" (John 8:58)
- I and the Father are one." (John 10:30)

The Apostles recognized Jesus as God:

- Thomas said to him, "My Lord and my God!" (John 20:28)
- We know also that the Son of God has come and has given us understanding, so that we may know him who is true. And we are in him who is true—even in his Son Jesus Christ. He is the true God and eternal life. (1John 5:20)

Jesus taught there was a third member of the Godhead called the Comforter, Counselor or Spirit:

- "If you love me, you will obey what I command. And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Counselor to be with you forever—the Spirit of truth. The world cannot accept him, because it neither sees him nor knows him. But you know him, for he lives with you and will be in you. (John 14:15-17)
- But the Counselor, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, will teach you all things and will remind you of everything I have said to you. (John 14:26)
- "When the Counselor comes, whom I will send to you from the Father, the Spirit of truth who goes out from the Father, he will testify about me. (John 15:26)

The Old Testament teaches God is a plurality, not a singularity:

- Then God said, "Let us make man in our image, in our likeness… (Genesis 1:26)
- Even the text quoted by Jews and Muslims that "God is one" teaches a plurality, not a singularity:
    - Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God is one LORD: (Deuteronomy 6:4)
        - Notice the passage in English uses "Lord" and "God". The reading of this passage with the Hebrew names for "Lord" and "God" would go like this: "Hear, O Israel: Yahweh our Elohim, Yahweh is One."

PO Box 28266, Chattanooga, TN 37424
topics@comeandreason.com

- What is interesting is that the word Elohim in Hebrew is plural and is the same word used for God in Genesis 1:26. Thus an accurate English reading might go like this: "The One is more than One yet is One"
- In Hebrew there are two words for one, Yacheed and Echad. The first indicates singular unity as in one and only, the second indicates compound unity, as the oneness of two or more. In this text Echad is used along with the plural name of God Elohim indicating the oneness of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

The Old Testament also provides texts in which all members of the Godhead are referenced:

- And now the Sovereign Lord [Father] has sent me [Son], with his Spirit [Holy Spirit]. This is what the Lord says— your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel: (Isaiah 48:16,17)
- "Here is my [Father] servant [Son], whom I [Father] uphold, my [Father] chosen one [Son] in whom I [Father] delight; I [Father] will put my Spirit [Holy Spirit] on him [Son] and he [Son] will bring justice to the nations. (Isaiah 42:1)

The Bible gives strong evidence for the plurality of our One God, supporting the idea that the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are a perfect unity of three separate individualities.

But, for me all the above evidence is not what is most compelling. The most compelling evidence for me that God exists in plurality rather than singularity is the nature and character of God Himself.

The Bible says, "God is love." 1John 4:8. Further the Bible teaches that this love is "not self seeking." 1Corithians 13:5. Love is outward moving, other-centered. Therefore, God, being love, could not be love in isolation because love requires an object to pour itself upon. Love is other-centered! God's nature and character of love, rightly understood, is the most powerful argument for the plurality of God and we see this in the Old Testament texts above as the Father is delighting in the Son and the Son rejoicing in the Father and the Spirit loving them both.

Therefore, when God created us in His image He created "them male and female" and the "two shall become one" united in a triune relationship – husband, wife and God indwelling their hearts via His Spirit!

Those who seek to destroy the truth about the plurality of the Godhead seek to destroy the truth about God's character of love and, in so doing, place an obstacle to the only healing remedy for sin: God's "perfect love [that] casts out all fear."

If Jesus is not fully and equally God, then we do not learn from Jesus about God, we learn that God was willing to sacrifice a subordinate to protect Himself.

Amongst the founders of the SDA church there was great debate regarding the doctrine of the Trinity. Some saw Christ as the offspring of God and, as such, He was not a "created" being, but was of the same "substance" as the Father, yet still not equal to the Father for the Son arose from the Father. This idea goes back millennia and is sometimes referred to as Arian theology.

But, Ellen G. White opposed this theology and came out strongly in favor of the Bible position above. Here are a few of her quotes:

- Christ, the Word, the only begotten of God, was one with the eternal Father,–one in nature, in character, in purpose,–the only being that could enter into all the counsels and purposes of God. "His name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of peace" (Isa. 9:6). His "goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting" (Micah 5:2).–Patriarchs and Prophets, p. 34. (7ABC 437.2)

  The Jews had never before heard such words from human lips, and a convicting influence attended them; for it seemed that divinity flashed through humanity as Jesus said, "I and my Father are one." The words of Christ were full of deep meaning as he put forth the claim that he and the Father were of one substance, possessing the same attributes.–The Signs of the Times, Nov. 27, 1893, p. 54. (7ABC 437.3)

- "In him was life; and the life was the light of men" (John 1:4). It is not physical life that is here specified, but immortality, the life which is exclusively the property of God. The Word, who was with God, and who was God, had this life. Physical life is something which each individual receives. It is not eternal or immortal; for God, the Life-giver, takes it again. Man has no control over his life. But the life of Christ was unborrowed. No one can take this life from Him. "I lay it down of myself" (John 10: 18), He said. In Him was life, original, unborrowed, underived. This life is not inherent in man. He can possess it only through Christ. He cannot earn it; it is given him as a free gift if he will believe in Christ as His personal Saviour. "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent" (John 17:3). This is the open fountain of life for the world. (1 Selected Messages 296)

- In describing to His disciples the office work of the Holy Spirit, Jesus sought to inspire them with the joy and hope that inspired His own heart. He rejoiced because of the abundant help He had provided for His church. The Holy Spirit was the highest of all gifts that He could solicit from His Father for the exaltation of His people. The Spirit was to be given as a regenerating agent, and without this the sacrifice of Christ would have been of no avail. The power of evil had been strengthening for centuries, and the submission of men to this satanic captivity was amazing. Sin could be resisted and overcome only through the mighty agency of the Third Person of the Godhead, who would come with no modified energy, but in the fullness of divine power. It is the Spirit that makes effectual what has been wrought out by the world's Redeemer. It is by the Spirit that the heart is made pure. Through the Spirit the believer becomes a partaker of the divine nature. Christ has given His Spirit as a divine power to overcome all hereditary and cultivated tendencies to evil, and to impress His own character upon His church. (The Desire of Ages 671)

- There are three living persons of the heavenly trio; in the name of these three great powers–the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit–those who receive Christ by living faith are baptized, and these powers will co-operate with the obedient subjects of heaven in their efforts to live the new life in Christ. (Evangelism, p. 615)

So, for me personally, I find the evidence overwhelming for the Triune God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit—from Scripture, historical records of the early church, from EGWs writings, from how relationships work where more than one individual can become one with another.

But, I don't believe it is directly a salvation question—it becomes a question, like all issues of theology do, if our conclusions lead us to replace the truth of God with a false God, if we replace the methods of God with the methods of this world, if we practice in our characters the authoritarian principles of Satan. So, I believe there will be people in heaven who have believed what I believe about the Godhead, but there will be people in heaven who have believed an Arian view that Jesus came later and there is no Holy Spirit. But everyone in heaven will believe God is love, and will have His living law of love, truth, and liberty restored within them and have the character of Christ.

MONDAY

The lesson title is "Making Disciples" –what is a disciple? They are pupils, students of another. Disciples of Christ would be students of His.

In Luke, written by the physician Luke, Jesus is often called Teacher and historically those who were teachers were called doctors. We have doctoral degrees for various professions and eventually physicians were called doctors. And the students of a physician are called either interns or residents so in my paraphrase of Luke I use the term interns when referring to the disciples to emphasize the learning aspect of what they were to be doing. As in Luke 12:22:

- Then turning to his interns, Jesus said: "Therefore I tell you, do not worry about how the future will turn out, about where your next meal will come from, or with what to clothe your body. (Luke 12:22 REM)

What does it mean to be a student/intern/disciple of Jesus?

Is being a disciple of Jesus determined by which church one belongs?

What about whose Bible class one attends or which theology professor one had?

- I appeal to you, brothers, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that all of you agree with one another so that there may be no divisions among you and that you may be perfectly united in mind and thought. My brothers, some from Chloe's household have informed me that there are > quarrels among you. What I mean is this: One of you says, "I follow Paul"; another, "I follow Apollos"; another, "I follow Cephas"; still another, "I follow Christ." Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Were you baptized into the name of Paul? (1 Corinthians 1:10-13 NIV84)

What about today—someone says, "I follow Luther; I follow Calvin; I follow Wesley; I follow White; I follow the Pope?" Or within a denomination, do we say "I follow Maxwell; I follow Batchelor; I follow Jennings." Is Christ divided?

If we are all disciples of Christ, why are there so many divisions within Christianity? Is it because we have separate Scripture from God's other lesson books, nature/science, and life's experiences? Is it because we have accepted the view that God's law is amendable and changeable and therefore it is all about finding the right rules, rituals, ceremonies, procedures, doctrinal beliefs, creeds to adhere to? That our salvation is not truly in Jesus, but in our right thinking, our right procedure of Christianity?

How do we tell who is following Christ and who is not—more importantly, how can we tell if we are following Christ or not?

- "A new command I give you: Love one another. As I have loved you, so you must love one another. By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you love one another." (John 13:34-35 NIV84).

What does this mean? Is this love observable? Is it measurable? Does it have real world impact, or is it merely an internal emotional state that no one else can know?

If it is only internal emotional state how could all people know we are Christ's disciples by our love? It must be something actionable, observable—what does it look like? How does love function?

Some years ago I was consulted to see a man admitted to the ICU after a suicide attempt. After introductions, I asked him, "Tell me, what's going on in your life that brought you to the point that you tried to take your own life?"

He said, "My wife is leaving me; and I love her so much I don't want her to leave. I told her that if she left me I would kill myself. If she leaves me I want her to regret it and know how much she hurt me."

I asked him, "So your goal is to die and punish your wife?" He said, "No I want her to come back to me because I love her so much."

He says he loves her; he is so committed to his declarations of love that he is willing to put his life on the line, but does he in reality love her? Are his actions the actions of love? No!

Love seeks to do what is in the best interest of others, not self. This man's behavior was not focused on what was good for his wife, her best interests. He showed no interest in understanding her, discovering why she wanted to leave—could it be because he manipulated, controlled and emotionally abused her? He was only interested in getting for himself, actually taking away her liberty under emotional manipulation.

So, our first step in being disciples of Christ is that we must be converted, our self-centered, me-first motives must be replaced with love for God and others. We must have the desire, the intent, the motivation to bless, uplift, and benefit other people because we want what is best for them. Without this change of heart, we might make action that is objectively beneficial—like give a donation that helps build an orphanage, but if our motive is so that we can get a tax write off rather than love, then we are not disciples of Jesus. Disciples of Christ love God and others. So, the first step is to be reborn with a new heart.

But, one can be an immature disciple of Jesus, be a person who has been converted, has the motive to bless others, and takes actions with all good will to be a blessing, but the actions harm another. An example would be the doctors who treated George Washington when he had pneumonia—they bled him and leached him to get out the evil humors, and thereby destroyed his immune system contributing to his death. Their intention was love, to help, to protect, to heal, but their actions harmed.

We can still recognize that their motivation was to bless even though the action was harmful—but this gives a good example of how love must move past compassionate, altruistic desire, and intention to be truly healing and beneficial.

What must be coupled with love in order for it to become powerful for good?

Truth, those doctors didn't have the truth about infections and the immune system, and despite their love, the falsehood they were operating under impaired their ability to BE a blessing to others.

Jesus is the source of both our new hearts of love and the truth—and who is it that makes Jesus' love and truth functional and real inside of us? It is the Holy Spirit—who is described in Scripture as the Spirit of truth and love.

Remember in Eden, Adam and Eve had pure love for God and each other, but the lies they believed broke the circle of love and trust and resulted in fear and selfishness—the carnal, me-first, survival of the fittest drives that cause anti-love, or sin.

Thus, to be powerful, the disciples of Jesus we must be reborn with hearts that love God and others, but we must also be lovers of truth, be individuals who hunger and thirst for truth, who long to comprehend and apply the truth to our own lives at the earliest possible moment that we are capable of doing so.

Then when love is coupled with truth, we are able to become mighty agents for good, true disciples Jesus. And the most important truth that we must know is the truth about God's character—which is determined by how we understand God's law. If we understand God's law to be imperial, imposed, made up rules, then we introduce falsehood into our hearts and minds that will cause us to take actions, that even if our intent is to bless, will cause harm.

I had a woman who was suffering from depression and she was a Christian, married to a Christian husband and she belonged to a tradition that taught women are to be subordinate to their husbands and husbands are to rule over them. So in her marriage her individuality was constantly submersed under that of her husband's, and as is predictable when a design law is violated, she suffered, and eventually she became depressed. When she became my patient, I began to teach her about the law of liberty, of thinking for herself, of giving her husband respect and allowing him to have his own views, perspectives, ideas, but that she was not required to agree until she was fully persuaded in her own mind of the truth. As she began thinking and acting for herself in harmony with the truth to fulfill what she understood God would have her do her depression lifted. But in the middle of one our sessions her husband actually barged into my office with his Bible in his hand, forcefully laid it on my desk and said, "Will you tell my wife that the Bible says that a wife is supposed to submit to the leadership of her husband!?!"

Prior to his entry she was sitting up, making eye contact, smiling. But as he said this, her head dropped, her shoulders rolled in and her hands went between her knees and she looked fearful and hopeless.

What do you think I said? I quoted Ephesians 5:25…

Fortunately, for this family the husband had a good heart and was seeking to love his wife, but he was also a victim of the lies about God and believed God's law functioned like human law and was practicing the worldly methods of rulership and not God's methods of loving leadership. When I pointed this out to him he began attending marital therapy and began applying God's law of liberty to his own self in how he treated his wife and their marriage healed and her depression resolved.

The point here is that even with good motives, if one believes lies about God and His law and methods, they can take actions that harm rather than heal.

I think Paul was referring to this in 1 Corinthians chapter three:

- If any man builds on this foundation using gold, silver, costly stones, wood, hay or straw, his work will be shown for what it is, because the Day will bring it to light. It will be revealed with fire, and the fire will test the quality of each man's work. If what he has built survives, he will receive his reward. If it is burned up, he will suffer loss; he himself will be saved, but only as one escaping through the flames. (1 Corinthians 3:12-15 NIV84).

The actions of these workers are to build up, are to bless, or to help, thus their actions suggest they have converted hearts and thus they will be saved. However, there is an objective difference between gold, silver, costly stones—which are symbols of righteousness and used in the building of the temple, and wood, hay, or straw which are burned up in fire.

This suggest some people who had love in their hearts built upon the reality of God's kingdom, they understood God's character and His design laws, while others who had come to love God and people, were not freed of the imposed law lies and tried to build for God's kingdom using the methods of this world. What they built will be lost because they built on the wrong foundation, but they themselves will be saved because their hearts were motivated by love.

So I paraphrased it this way:

- One can build on this foundation using pure, holy and costly materials, or using ordinary, common and cheap materials, but ultimately, the work will reveal itself for what it is, because the day on which Christ returns will bring everything into the light of truth. On that day, the quality of a person's character-building will be revealed by the fiery glory of God's presence– for only those whose characters are in harmony with God's character will be able to stand in the fiery presence of his life-giving glory. And if those whom the builders have worked to build up in Christ survive, the builders will be rewarded with happiness and joy. If, however, the builder's work is burned up, the builder will suffer great sorrow and loss: the builder will be saved, but only as one whose misunderstandings, errors, misconceptions and mistakes are consumed in the fire of God's truth and love. (1 Corinthians 3:12-15 REM).

So with this in mind, how do we identify who are disciples of Jesus? Wouldn't it be those who love others and work for the benefit of others?

But who are the mature disciples of Jesus, the wise ones, the faithful servant who hears "Well done" from Jesus, the ones who celebrate in the end?

They are the ones who not only have hearts that love God and others, but who have loved the truth and grown in the truth (not know all truth—only God knows all truth) of God's character, design law methods and have built using the methods and principles of God.

So, some thought problems on how love functions when combined with truth:

If your friend is hungry because they have a serious drug problem, won't work, has been arrested multiple times for shoplifting in order to fund their addiction, and then they ask you for money for food, what does love do in that situation?

If you're hiking with your spouse and she falls and breaks a leg, and you need to splint her leg, but doing so will cause more pain, would it be an act of love to splint the leg? Would it be loving to have surgery even if that caused pain? And when it is time for physical therapy and your spouse cries from the pain, is it an act of love to do her exercises for her?

What if it is not a broken leg, but a broken heart—she has been traumatized in the past and is hurting—is it an act of love to focus merely on relieving her pain, or does love focus on the truth, on healing the emotional wound even if the work to heal it is painful? What if she gets angry and accuses you of attacking her—is it love to accept the accusation and apologize for trying to help?

Once there is brokenness, there are no pain-free options. The path of love is to bring healing, even though the healing interventions are painful. Unfortunately, many wounded people focus merely on the immediate experience and instead of seeking to heal, seek to relieve the pain or discomfort and, thus, actually harm. And many of the helpers focus on the other person's response, their discomfort level as the measure of whether what they are doing is right or not and thus allow the injured, the wounded, to direct the actions of those seeking to heal.

But genuine godly love becomes powerful and healing only when it is united with the truth, only when it applies the truth, God's design laws and operates in harmony with reality.

So, when we seek to make disciples for Jesus does it require us to do more than teach them a Creed, more than attestation to a list of Fundamental Beliefs, more than participation in a ceremonial event, more than joining a denomination and sending in the proper tithe?

Making disciples of Jesus requires that we first know Jesus for ourselves, love Him as our Savior, know the truth of His character and methods, and then we have something to share and teach others. We invite people to know Jesus as their Savior, but we also invite them into a community of believers who love Jesus and who are also lovers of the truth, seeking to better understand God, God's methods, principles, design laws, will, and purpose and live God's calling in their lives.

TUESDAY

And that takes us right into TUESDAY's lesson which is about the eternal gospel. What is the eternal good news, the news that has been good throughout all eternity, both eternity past and eternity future?

How would you describe the eternal gospel, good news, to someone?

Let's read the first paragraph in Tuesday's lesson:

- This is the only place in Scripture in which the words "eternal" and "gospel" are connected. The gospel is the good news of grace offered to all through Jesus Christ. He came into our world to show us "grace and truth" (John 1:14). He lived a sinless life and died on the cross as a substitutionary sacrifice to bear the penalty of our sins (Isa. 53:4, 5; 1 Pet. 3:18). He rose to life, returned to heaven, was exalted by the Father, and today intercedes for us in the heavenly sanctuary (Rev. 1:18, Acts 2:33, Heb. 7:25). He will soon fulfill His greatest promise—to return in majesty and glory and, ultimately, after the millennium to establish God's kingdom on earth (John 14:1–4, Acts 1:11, Rev. 21:1–4). These are all essential realities of the eternal gospel. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 17).

Thoughts? There is good news described in this paragraph—it is certainly good news that Jesus is for us, that God's grace is manifest to us to save us from sin, that Jesus came to reveal the truth and save us, to bear the penalty of our sins—that expression isn't terrible, it didn't say the penalty of God inflicted as punishment for sin, but the penalty for our sins could mean the penalty that sin brings, pain, suffering, death etc.

But, is our salvation in Jesus the good news that is eternally true? Was this the good news the angels needed when Lucifer started his war in heaven? Did the angels need to hear about a future event in which Jesus would become human and give his life for humans who didn't even exist yet in order for them to resist what Lucifer was doing in heaven? Was that the good news the angels needed?

But Colossians 1:18 tells us that some aspect of what Jesus did at the Cross was good news for the heavenly beings.

The unfallen angels didn't need a Savior to die to pay their sin debt; but they did need the gospel, the good news, what good news?

What did Lucifer do in heaven that caused 1/3 of the angels to rebel? He lied about God, and lies believed break the circle of love and trust. Thus, the eternal good news is the good news about the Eternal One, the good news about God that is always true, that God is not the kind of being Satan alleges. That God is not arbitrary, that God's law is not made up rules, that God is love and His law is an expression of His character, the protocols upon which life is built.

It is incredible good news to realize God is not the source of inflicted pain, suffering, and death as punishment for sin—He never was and never will be. Thus, the eternal good news is tied with the call to worship our Creator, Him who made the heavens, earth, sea, and fountains of water.

What about the idea of Jesus interceding for us in the heavenly sanctuary? What does that mean? Have you heard this presented in a way that was not good news, but actually taught bad news?

Read last paragraph,

- "The proclamation of the judgment [Rev. 14:6, 7] is an announcement of Christ's second coming as at hand. And this proclamation is called the everlasting gospel. Thus the preaching of Christ's second coming, the announcement of its nearness, is shown to be an essential part of the gospel message."—Ellen G. White, Christ's Object Lessons, pp. 227, 228. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 17).

This is referring to the 3 Angels' messages,

- Then I saw another angel flying in midair, and he had the eternal gospel to proclaim to those who live on the earth—to every nation, tribe, language and people. He said in a loud voice, "Fear God and give him glory, because the hour of his judgment has come. Worship him who made the heavens, the earth, the sea and the springs of water." (Revelation 14:6-7 NIV84).

What does this mean? How is this judgment connected with the eternal gospel and the announcement of Christ's soon return?

Which judgment is it?

What law model are we reading through? For those who have Romanized Christianity and replaced God's design law with imposed human law, then they read this as a legal proceeding, with the heavenly magistrate reviewing legal records and determining guilt and innocence.

There are so many problems with that view it is mind boggling that so many believe it—but just to bullet point a few of the problems:

- It misdiagnosis sin as a legal problem
- It replaces God's law with human law
- It mischaracterizes God as the source of death as inflicted punishment for sin
- It has God acting a con, working to erase records and pretend that things that are one way when they are in reality another way
- It places God in the role of punishing the innocent and declaring the guilty innocent
- It has a god that requires something be done to protect us from him and we thus have an intercessor pleading our case to protect us from that god
- It creates distrust in god and trust in another—the intercessor, the mechanism, means, mode to appease, propitiate, or assuage the god, the law, our behavior, something other than actual love and trust for the punishing god

But when we return to design law, we recognize that the war in heaven began when Satan lied about God and caused angels to distrust God. It spread to Earth when Satan lied about God and Adam and Eve believed those lies and broke trust with God and infected themselves with fear and selfishness. And it resolves by the truth about God replacing the lies and winning us back to trust. Thus, the final movements are when the truth of God is accepted by the jury pool, you and me, and we stop judging God to be like a Roman Caesar and judge Him to be Creator. This requires we reject the Roman view of God's law and again worship Him who made the heaven, earth, sea and fountains of water by returning to design law understanding of reality.

So the good news is about God, when we accept the good news about God we judge Him to be like Jesus revealed and we reject all the Roman penal legal lies and we stop worshiping a creature and worship the Creator, and in that worship we open the heart in trust and receive the indwelling Spirit, we become like Him, sealed and settled into the truth that we cannot be moved, and thus Jesus comes to take us home!

This is what Paul meant when he wrote:

- Let God be proven true, and every human being shown up as a liar, just as it is written: "so that you will be justified in your words and will prevail when you are judged." (Romans 3:4 NET).

WEDNESDAY

Who are God's people? They are the ones who are like God—the ones who know God, trust God, and have God's law written upon their hearts and minds.

Is this determined by denomination? What determines this?

For what purpose did God call the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob?

- To be the avenue for the birth of the Messiah
- To evangelize the world and tell people about the coming Messiah, thus bringing people back to faith in God and the coming Messiah

How did they do?

What interfered with their effectiveness in carrying out that mission?

For what purpose has God called Christians?

- To evangelize the world with the truth about Himself as revealed in Christ and the plan of salvation—how we can be reconciled to God and delivered from sin and thus prepare the world for the second advent of the Messiah

How is the Christian world doing?

What interferes with our ability to be effective in fulfilling this mission?

THURSDAY

What are the three fields we are called to witness in?

- To the people closest to us (family and friends)
- To our local communities who share our language and culture
- The world at large, foreigners

How can we be more effective in any or all of these fields?

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 3
God's Call to Mission

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read Memory Text:

- "But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes on you; and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth." (Acts 1:8 NIV84).

What power? What kind of power? From who does the power come? What is the purpose of the power?

Are their conditions on receiving this power? What are those conditions?

In the book The Desire of Ages it describes the power this way, what do you think?

- Christ has promised the gift of the Holy Spirit to His church, and the promise belongs to us as much as to the first disciples. But like every other promise, it is given on conditions. There are many who believe and profess to claim the Lord's promise; they talk about Christ and about the Holy Spirit, yet receive no benefit. They do not surrender the soul to be guided and controlled by the divine agencies. We cannot use the Holy Spirit. The Spirit is to use us. Through the Spirit God works in His people "to will and to do of His good pleasure." Philippians 2:13. But many will not submit to this. They want to manage themselves. This is why they do not receive the heavenly gift. Only to those who wait humbly upon God, who watch for His guidance and grace, is the Spirit given. The power of God awaits their demand and reception. This promised blessing, claimed by faith, brings all other blessings in its train. It is given according to the riches of the grace of Christ, and He is ready to supply every soul according to the capacity to receive. (The Desire of Ages 672)

What are the conditions to receive the Holy Spirit? That we surrender self—our selfishness, our self-promotion, our own agenda, our need to do things our way, or seeking to make ourselves successful. We must be willing to be taught, to be lead, to be instructed, corrected, guided, molded, reshaped, healed, cleansed, renewed.

But what does it mean that the Holy Spirit uses us—does that mean we become pawns, puppets, playthings, toys, disposable objects like we use a dishrag—a dishrag doesn't use us? No!

In order to understand how the Holy Spirit "uses" us correctly, we must understand the character of God and His design law methods. If we do understand this, then we know that God is always for His people—Romans 8 "If God is for us…" God is always using His energy for the best interest of every person. God doesn't choose to lead them in ways they would disagree with if they could know all the variables that God knows. Thus, the same author wrote the following, do you believe this to be true?

- God never leads His children otherwise than they would choose to be led, if they could see the end from the beginning, and discern the purpose they are fulfilling as coworkers with Him. (Ministry of Healing 479).

So God's "use" of us is for our good, for our higher development, for our eternal life, for our ability to grow, mature, attain, fulfill, and eventually discern and be thankful for our amazing God who condescended to meet us in our ignorant and childlike need.

And this is why the Bible says, when we do surrender to the Holy Spirit and allow the Holy Spirit to use us, to do in us exactly what the Holy Spirit desires we develop fruits of the Spirit which are:

- But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control. (Galatians 5:22-23 NIV84).

We do NOT become puppets when we are being used by the Holy Spirit, we become freed from fear, freed from selfishness, freed from addictions, old destructive habits, freed from the control and manipulation of other people—and restored to God's original design to be self-governed, self-controlled, individuals who live out God's design laws for life in all that we do.

Will God empower people to lie about Him, to misrepresent Him?

If you are an SDA or familiar with the SDA church, have you ever wonder why the SDA church preaches that they have a message that is to lighten the world to hasten the second coming, but the second coming has been delayed? Is it possible that there has been a delay because the church leadership officially rejected the special message that they are to be giving and therefore the Holy Spirit, which empowers the people to do the work, has not been poured out and instead God is waiting for a people to embrace the final message so He can empower them to give it?

Consider these two quotes from the same author, who was at the 1888 GC and is the most influential founder of the SDA church:

> "When I purposed to leave Minneapolis, the angel of the Lord stood by me and said: [The following is a quote is written as coming from the angel of the Lord, which is one of the names for Jesus (see Exodus 3) as the context of the quote has the speaker claiming that the people are His and He is the source of grace given to the people.] "Not so; God has a work for you to do in this place. The people are acting over [re-enacting] the rebellion of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. I have placed you in your proper position, which those who are not in the light will not acknowledge; they will not heed your testimony; [What was EGW advocating? The healing view of the gospel promoted by Jones and Waggoner, which recognized design law even though they didn't label it design law and advocated that the written law that was added included the Ten Commandments. They taught that righteousness by faith is actual, real, genuine restoration to righteousness within the heart/mind of those who trust in Jesus, which is also the rebuilding and healing of our characters when we trust in Jesus—which is metaphorically taught in the fulfillment of the day of at-one-ment, the purifying of the bride, the groom receiving His bride bringing her into unity/oneness with Him. But the church leadership rejected this healing view and chose instead to embrace the false imperial legal view of declaring people legally righteous even though they remain unrighteous. Like Korah, they rejected the manna (heavenly bread of truth) and chose the fleshpots of Egypt (worldly ways and methods which are death). This, is, according to the angel of the Lord, like Korah saying "we can't succeed in going into the promised land." And church leaders, who prefer the imperial law view, have been telling Adventists ever since that we can't succeed in experiencing Christ's righteousness, sin is too great, God can't give us power to be victorious in our lives so we will be prepared to stand in God's presence when Jesus returns, no we are only legally declared in courts of heaven to be righteous while we remain unrighteous.] but I will be with you; My grace and power shall sustain you. It is not you they are despising, but the messengers and the message I send to My people. [Friends of Come and Reason around the world, realize that when you are told you are not welcome, you cannot teach your Bible class, that you cannot share the wonders of God's love that has so transformed your life—that it is not you they are rejecting but Christ they are rejecting.] They have shown contempt for the word of the Lord. Satan has blinded their eyes and perverted their judgment; and unless every soul shall repent of this their sin, this unsanctified independence that is doing insult to the Spirit of God, they will walk in darkness. I will remove the candlestick out of his place except they repent and be converted, that I should heal them. They have obscured their spiritual eyesight. [What does this mean? By refusing the truth of God's design law, by holding to Rome's imperial law lie, they have blinded themselves to how reality works and live in a religious legal fantasy of confusion and contradictions mirroring this sinful world with a god who is the source of pain, suffering and death which they call justice. And if they persist in teaching this, they become blind and incapable of seeing the truth or leading others into the promised land. And the SDA church has been wandering in the wilderness for over 135 years. God is waiting for a people to return to worshiping Him as Creator and then His Spirit will empower them to lighten the world for His return.] They would not that God should manifest His Spirit and His power; for they have a spirit of mockery and disgust at My word. [This again, is presented as the voice of Jesus talking] Lightness, trifling, jesting and joking are daily practiced. They have not set their hearts to seek Me. They walk in the sparks of their own kindling, and unless they repent, they shall lie down in sorrow. Thus saith the Lord: "Stand at your post of duty; for I am with thee, and will not leave thee nor forsake thee." These words from God I have not dared to disregard."–Letter 2a, 1892, pp. 4, 5. (To "Dear Nephew and Niece, Frank (F.E.) and Hattie," Nov. 5, 1892.) {3 Manuscript Release 191}

- An unwillingness to yield up preconceived opinions, and to accept this truth [that the Ten Commandments were added] lay at the foundation of a large share of the opposition manifested at Minneapolis against the Lord's message through Brethren [E.J.] Waggoner and [A.T.] Jones. By exciting that opposition Satan succeeded in shutting away from our people, > in a great measure, the special power of the Holy Spirit that God longed to impart to them. The enemy prevented them from obtaining that efficiency which might have been theirs in carrying the truth to the world, as the apostles proclaimed it after the day of Pentecost. The light that is to lighten the whole earth with its glory was resisted, and by the action of our own brethren has been in a great degree kept away from the world (1 Selected Messages 234).

Do you see the exact same problems still occurring today? Perhaps even worse as these imperial lies have become imbedded into our schools and published materials.

Do we want the power of the Holy Spirit today?

What are the conditions?

- We must surrender ourselves first to be cleansed in heart, mind, soul, and spirit
- We must be willing to be transformed, changed, renewed, recreated
- We must be willing to give up wrong ideas for the eternal truth as God reveals it to us—thus we must be lovers of truth, not lovers of creeds, or fundamental beliefs, or doctrinal statements, or other people's opinions, or holding some office, or position in an organization.
- We must know and be willing to share the truth of God's character of love and His design law methods and principles.

When we do this, then we will receive power to advance the truth.

I must take a minute and discuss the process of what I just did—for invariably I will receive an email expressing dissatisfaction with me, suggesting that I have been attacking the church, suggesting that I am embittered, that I am voicing sour grapes and being negative, and that I should instead focus on the positive, lift up Jesus and stop being so critical of the errors in the system.

Let me be clear—I am not against the SDA church anymore that Jesus and the Apostles were against the Jewish people or the Jewish nation. I love the church like Jesus and the Apostles loved the Jewish nation and people. They were against the lies that had infected the Jewish system that prevented those people from recognizing the Messiah. Likewise, I am against the legal lies, the imposed law imperial Romanization of Christianity that has infected the church and presents God as a dictator who is the source of inflicted pain and suffering and has resulted in the shutting away the power of the Holy Spirit. I want to see those lies removed so the transforming, saving, power of the Holy Spirit might be poured out and the Latter Rain occur and Jesus come.

SUNDAY

Read first paragraph:

- In order to reach others, God intends for us to move beyond our comfort zone. The desire to remain only with our own ilk and ethnic or social kind can lead to selfishness, even evil. This danger is one of the lessons derived from the story of Babel. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 23).

What is the problem with this paragraph? It misplaces the problem, it says:

- The desire to remain only with our own ilk and ethnic or social kind can lead to selfishness, even evil.

But it is the reverse—we are born with selfishness, none of us chose to be sinners, we were born in sin conceived in iniquity (Psalms 51:5). This is the carnal nature, the me-first orientation that drives us to choose actions that violate God's design laws, what we call sins.

It is selfishness that is the problem, and selfishness if not replaced in our hearts as our primary motivator with love for God and others—which occurs when we are reborn to love—if the selfish motivation is not replaced with love then we divide into various groups that make us feel good about ourselves and we find others that we can denigrate and project our own flaws and self-dissatisfaction upon.

In other words, instead of hating the evil within our own selfish hearts, we justify our selfishness and see the evil in others and seek to destroy what we believe is evil by dominating, controlling, or destroying others who we identify as evil.

So humans divide—we always divide—because that is what sin and selfishness does, sin breaks down the bonds of love and trust.

If fear and selfishness doesn't lead people to divide by ethnic or social commonality, then they divide into other groups and pit themselves against others such as:

- Nationality (nation states are artificial, yet people will identify with their nations and pit themselves against others, claiming those other nationalities are evil)
- Sports teams—have you noticed the hostility an violence that happens toward others who root for a different team
- Gangs—consider how gangs divide and they make up their artificial standards that members must meet to join
- Political parties—consider how societies divide along these artificial lines

Sin divides, but at the Tower of Babel they were united—why? Because they had what they perceived was a common enemy or a common threat—they were afraid of another Flood, they didn't trust God, and thus they united to protect themselves from what they perceived was a common existential threat.

What would happen to all the divisions we see in the world today if it was known that an asteroid was on a collision course with Earth and it would wipe out all life? Wouldn't all the nation states unite in common cause to use their military power and technology to try and alter the course of the asteroid? Wouldn't all the peoples begin praying in common cause for protection and success in redirecting the asteroid?

So, we see at the Tower of Babel the people were motivated by fear, by selfishness, and identified God as the enemy and threat and they united against their source of life.

So, what did God do?

- The LORD said, "If as one people speaking the same language they have begun to do this, then nothing they plan to do will be impossible for them. Come, let us go down and confuse their language so they will not understand each other." So the LORD scattered them from there over all the earth, and they stopped building the city. (Genesis 11:6-8 NIV84).

First, what does it mean that if they have begun to do this speaking the same language that nothing they plan will be impossible for them?

Does this mean:

- That if they planned to become angels, then they could become angels?
- That if they planned to create a new planet, that they could create a new planet?
- That if they planned to become God themselves, that they could become God?
- That if their men planned to become women, that the men could actually become women?

So, the text doesn't mean that they could actually do anything they plan, because they cannot do everything or anything, there are limitations by reality on what they can do. So, what might this text mean?

What is the context? What is the meaning of what they are doing? They are rejecting God's Word; they do not trust God; and they are choosing to do their own thing, they are choosing sin and selfishness by building this tower. Thus, the context is that of refusing God and in doing that there is no evil or sin that they plan that they won't be able to do.

Why did God confuse their languages?

What just happened—The human race, having one language from Eden, had just united in selfishness and every single human, except for Noah and his family, hardened their hearts against God and the avenue for Messiah (genesis 3:15) was almost closed. God acted in mercy to keep open the avenue for Jesus to come and save humanity by sending the Flood.

But at Babel the people are already uniting in rebellion against God again, thus God mercifully and therapeutically confused the languages to prevent another worldwide rejection of Him, to prevent the hardening of all human hearts, to slow the spread of evil and sin, and keep open the avenue for Messiah. And the Bible says that the people of the world will not be fully united against heaven as they were at the time of the Flood until the final conclusion when all the world wonders after the beast.

This is described in Revelation 17:

- The beast, which you saw, once was, now is not, and will come up out of the Abyss and go to his destruction. (Revelation 17:8 NIV84).

The beast described here is the worldwide violent, beastly system of satanic rule of coercion, force, intimidation, domination, and selfishness which was in existence before the Flood when the entire world was united against heaven, but hasn't existed since then, but will exist again right before Jesus comes, but is destroyed by the second coming of Jesus!

So why did God confuse the languages? To keep open the avenue for Messiah, to slow the spread of sin and evil, it was an act of love and mercy.

The Bible is clear that it was at the Tower of Babel that God confused the languages, and it is my conclusion that at that time God also caused the racial differences we see in the different human races on Earth, such as height, facial structure, skin color, eye color and shape etc.

The SDA Bible commentary seems to agree with this:

- By confusing their language and thus forcing them to separate, God designed to forestall future united action. Each of the groups might yet pursue an evil course, but the division of society into many groups would prevent concerted opposition to God. Upon repeated occasions since the dispersion of the races at Babel, ambitious men have sought, unsuccessfully, to contravene the divine decree of separation... Evidence from many lands testifies to the presence of human beings within a comparatively short time after the Flood. Archeological discoveries point to the Mesopotamian valley as the first locality to develop a distinct civilization. Similar civilizations sprang up soon afterward in Egypt, Palestine, Syria, Anatolia, India, China, and elsewhere. All available evidence supports the cryptic saying of Holy Writ that "the Lord scattered them abroad from thence upon the face of all the earth." (Nichol, F. D., ed. (1978). The Seventh-day Adventist Bible Commentary (Vol. 1, pp. 285–286). Review and Herald Publishing Association.)

So God divided humanity in mercy to prevent the human race from uniting in sin against heaven. But God also provided the gift of languages so that the gospel was not obstructed from reaching all the people groups on Earth. And the Bible tells us that when Jesus comes the saved will be:

- a great multitude that no one could count, from every nation, tribe, people and language, standing before the throne and in front of the Lamb (Revelation 7:9 NIV84)

This division of society is only remedied, eliminated, resolved, removed by Jesus, by returning into the hearts of people the living law of love and when that happens we become one, just as Jesus prayed that we would be one as He and the Father are one.

Read last paragraph,

- Though Scripture does not say it explicitly, Ellen White says that they didn't trust God's promise that He would never destroy the earth with water again (Gen. 9:14, 15). They intended to build for their own perceived safety rather than to trust God's Word. Whatever their ultimate motives, God knew that their intentions were not pure but were filled with selfish ambition, and so He prevented them from achieving their stated goals. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 23).

This beast that existed before the Flood the Bible tells us will exist again before Jesus comes. The people after the Flood were uniting against heaven because they didn't believe God's promise to never destroy the world again by water, with a Flood.

What about today? Will a similar lie be used to unite the world against heaven? Do you see the same disbelief, distrust of God and His promise made right after the Flood uniting the world against heaven today?

- As long as the earth endures, seedtime and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, day and night will never cease (Genesis 8:22 NIV 84).

God made a promise about our climate—is that promise believed or is the world uniting again against heaven, against God, on the lie about climate change?

Understand how evil people and angels work:

- They identify some threat that you yourself cannot see, touch, taste, feel, hear, or identify with any means God has given you—such as climate change.
- They bombard us with propaganda from all sources to promote a lie, a false narrative, they take unrelated events and claim those events are due to climate change—such as a heat wave, or a hurricane, or a fire.
- Then, they make decisions to artificially create consequences they can attribute to climate change—like shutting down our production of oil, which raises energy costs, and decreases the production of fertilizers and result in reduction of crop production thus increasing food and energy prices—which results in the mega rich getting richer as they can charge more for the artificially reduce products their corporations produce, and the poor getting poorer and lose freedoms.
- All of this increases fear in the people who believe the lie that it is all happening because of climate change, so they go along with the artificial interventions claimed to stop climate change, such as—climate saving light bulbs and straws that have no evidence of protecting the environment, but do result in enriching the companies that are producing them at the expense of the poor who are forced to buy them.

Do you see how the nation states are uniting on the climate change lies, because they reject God, and they reject God's promise and they are using fear to exploit, dominate, and enslave the masses. Jesus said:

- As it was in the days of Noah, so it will be at the coming of the Son of Man. For in the days before the flood, people were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, up to the day Noah entered the ark; and they knew nothing about what would happen until the flood came and took them all away. That is how it will be at the coming of the Son of Man (Matthew 24:37–39 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Despite Noah's preaching of the impending flood for 120 years, the people didn't know, they didn't understand, they didn't recognize what was about to happen. Why? Because they accepted the false narrative and rejected the message of truth coming from God.

If you lived back in Noah's day, with your current belief in God and the Bible, who would you have believed: Noah or the media and scientific experts of the day?

Jesus said something similar would happen in our day: As His second coming approaches, people will be unaware of it and will be unprepared for His return. Why? Because they, like the wicked antediluvians, will reject the message of God and, instead, choose to believe the false narratives that comes from Satan.
And one of Satan's false narratives deluding the world today is a direct denial, rejection, and replacement of a promise given to humanity by God in the aftermath of the Flood.

God's promise is that our climate and seasons will continue until the second coming of Christ—that is, "as long as the earth endures." But the lie of Satan, the false narrative of this corrupt world, is that of "climate change," climate disaster, the ending of human life through the destruction of the climate.

And just like the antediluvians, we must decide which view we believe: the godless, the evolutionists, the pundits of this world, the same people who foisted COVID mandates upon the world, restricted our liberties, and injured our children—or our Creator?

We are not facing a global climate disaster—we are facing a global spiritual disaster.

We are not facing man-made global warming—we are facing man-made global coldness of heart; Jesus said,

- "Because of the increase of wickedness, the love of most will grow cold" (Matthew 24:12 NIV84).

Satan blinds people to reality by getting them to focus on something emotional as a distraction to what is really happening:

- The god of this age has blinded the minds of unbelievers, so that they cannot see the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God (2 Corinthians 4:4 NIV84).

Satan's end-time push is active and aggressive and turns the mind away from God, away from the Bible, away from the hope of a new heaven and new earth, to a future in which we supposedly destroy ourselves through overpopulation and climate disaster. And he offers the false solution that we must save ourselves through activities that actually harm the people—the many various solutions proposed by the so-called "green" movement. Their proposed solutions are anti-human, anti-science, and anti-liberty, and they are pro-elite, designed to help the ruling class dominate and control others. The green movement of climate change propogandists is a movement of the godless bent on destroying the image of God in people and the liberty of conscience.

MONDAY

The lesson focuses our attention on the focal point of the Bible, the key to understanding the Old Testament, the most important text that anchors the rest of Scripture—Genesis 3:15, God is speaking to the serpent after the fall of Adam and Eve:

- "And I will put enmity
  Between you and the woman,
  And between your seed and her Seed;
  He shall bruise your head,
  And you shall bruise His heel." (Genesis 3:15 NKJV)

What is the significance of this passage?

This passage sets the stage, the context, the focus of the entire Old Testament. Everything recorded in the Old Testament is about the fulfillment of this promise—the war between God and Satan. Satan is working to stop the fulfillment of this promise and God is working to keep it.

The focus on Abraham and the promises made to him are the outworking of this promise made in Eden. Abraham doesn't get a new promise with a different Messiah—he and his descendants are the branch of the human family through whom the Genesis 3:15 promise will be fulfilled.

And thus the Bible narrows its focus from the entire world at the time of the Flood, to the family of Abraham, and the Bible continues to narrow its focus staying with the Isaac, not Ishmael's children, then Jacob, not Esau's children, and then keeping the focus on the tribe of Judah after the ten tribes to the north broke away and were dispersed, because the Messiah, the fulfillment of the promise in Genesis 3:15 was coming through Judah.

And while it was difficult, while the children of Abraham were to a great degree unfaithful, rebellious, and failed to prepare the world for the Messiah—they did survive with enough faithful people that Jesus was born to a Jewish woman in Bethlehem, and He was able to call from the descendants of Abraham a following of disciples who were able to throw of the legal misunderstandings that corrupted the system that God had given them and embrace the reality it was all designed to teach.

And then the Bible focus shifts away from the Jewish people because their purpose in being the avenue through whom Messiah would be born was accomplished and focuses on the good news that Jesus brought and accomplished for the completion of the promise of Genesis 3:15 the crushing of the serpent and all the sin and evil he has caused.

TUESDAY

The lesson focuses on Abraham's call and how when he initially arrived in the new land he lied to Pharaoh and Abimelech about his wife being his sister—and she was his half-sister, so it wasn't a full lie, he just didn't tell the truth about her status as his wife.

Why did Abraham do this? Because he was afraid—and when in Abraham's life did such fear get into his heart and mind?

He was born with it, just like you and me. As soon as Adam and Eve sinned they ran and hid because they were afraid—fear is part of the infection of sin that causes people to act selfishly, like Abraham did.

While he trusted God enough to leave his home and go to a new land, he still was not free of fear and suffered temptation that in these two occasions caused him to act out of fear and not out of faith or trust in God. And "everything that does not come from faith is sin" (Romans 14:23 NIV84).

So, with this in mind, what does God want for Abraham? He wants to heal Abraham; God wants to free Abraham from being controlled by fear, from making fear-based decisions and increase Abraham's faith in Him.

So God intervenes in both of this situations to protect Sarah and teach Abraham some lessons, but then God later puts Abraham in a situation that was specifically designed to get Abraham over this vulnerability—what therapeutic measure did God bring to Abraham?

God placed Abraham in a position where Abraham had to choose to trust or not trust God.

This is the only way God can heal the heart of a person and have that person's individuality, identity, and personhood retained. We must actively choose to participate with God. When we trust Him, receive the indwelling Spirit, and then choose to do God's will, despite feelings of fear and insecurity, then our brains rewire and our characters become changed.

Abraham was a sinner, just like the rest of us, and he needed the same divine Remedy, so what does Abraham's experience teach us about God's plan to heal and restore?

We see in Abraham our model of faith, but he became a model of faith; he was not born as a model of faith. Abraham struggled with the same temptations and failings with which you and I struggle. God led Abraham on a path designed to mature him and instill in him a trusting, god-like character.

The only way this could happen was to bring Abraham to points of decision where he had to exercise his will—to choose—to trust God, open his heart to the Spirit, and then choose to do what he knew was right in the face of powerful feelings tempting him to move in the opposite direction. One Bible commentary describes it this way:

- God had called Abraham to be the father of the faithful, and his life was to stand as an example of faith to succeeding generations. But his faith had not been perfect. He had shown distrust of God in concealing the fact that Sarah was his wife, and again in his marriage with Hagar. That he might reach the highest standard, God subjected him to another test, the closest which man was ever called to endure. In a vision of the night he was directed to repair to the land of Moriah, and there offer up his son as a burnt offering upon a mountain that should be shown him. (Patriarchs and Prophets, p. 147).

Why did God call Abraham to sacrifice Isaac? For multiple reasons.

The first reason was for Abraham's character development. Abraham needed to choose to trust God and overcome his own fear, insecurity, and patterns of seeking to save self.

- You fool! Do you want to be shown that faith without actions is useless? How was our ancestor Abraham put right with God? It was through his actions, when he offered his son Isaac on the altar. Can't you see? His faith and his actions worked together; his faith was made perfect through his actions. And the scripture came true that said, "Abraham believed God, and because of his faith God accepted him as righteous." And so Abraham was called God's friend. You see, then, that it is by people's actions that they are put right with God, and not by their faith alone (James 2:20–24 GNT).

We must come to know the truth, but the knowledge of truth is not enough; we must put the truth into action before we are changed by the truth.

If you are sick with pneumonia and the doctor gives you an antibiotic, and you believe the antibiotic will help you (and in truth it will), but you never take the antibiotic, does your belief of the truth without applying it (taking the antibiotic) heal you? Of course not. Likewise, believing the truth without putting it into action doesn't result in healing and transformation in our lives. Why? Because the only way our individuality can be retained and our characters transformed is for each of us to choose to trust God, open our hearts to the Spirit, and then apply to our own lives His directions.

The second reason God called Abraham to sacrifice Isaac is found in John 8:56. Jesus said, "Your father Abraham rejoiced at the thought of seeing my day; he saw it and was glad" (NIV84).

Abraham longed to know God more intimately, to understand God's character and plan of salvation, and to comprehend and see the Savior. God instructed Abraham to sacrifice Isaac as a means to fulfill Abraham's desire of understanding, connecting with, empathizing with, knowing, and moving into greater intimacy with God. It was God's answer to Abraham's own request. In the agonizing struggle to sacrifice his son, Abraham identified with and gained insight into the heart of God.

The third reason God called Abraham to sacrifice Isaac was to demonstrate to the intelligent beings in heaven, the sinless angels, that those who trust God are healed and restored—to show that God's methods work!

The apostle Paul wrote:

- "I think that God has displayed us, the apostles, last, as men condemned to death; for we have been made a spectacle [theater] to the world, both to angels and to men" (1 Corinthians 4:9 NKJV).

The apostle Peter wrote:

- "It was revealed to them that they were not serving themselves but you, when they spoke of the things that have now been told you by those who have preached the gospel to you by the Holy Spirit sent from heaven. Even angels long to look into these things" (1 Peter 1:12 NIV84).

Angels cannot read the secrets of the heart—only God can. If angels could see the secrets of the heart, then a third of them would not have been deceived by Lucifer. Therefore, God must demonstrate that His methods work.

Just as he did in the case of Job, Satan, in heaven before God and the angels, made allegations against Abraham—claiming he had lied and broke trust with God. Therefore, Satan accused that Abraham was not fit to be the father of the faithful, the father of the family through whom the Messiah would come. But God knew Abraham's heart and that, though Abraham struggled with fear and selfishness, he had come to trust God. Therefore, God provided this unorthodox intervention to give Abraham the opportunity to choose to trust God under careful observation of the intelligences in heaven, to show them that Abraham was transformed within and that selfishness no longer ruled in his heart.

The book Patriarchs and Prophets, page 154, describes it this way:

- The sacrifice required of Abraham was not alone for his own good, nor solely for the benefit of succeeding generations; but it was also for the instruction of the sinless intelligences of heaven and of other worlds. The field of the controversy between Christ and Satan—the field on which the plan of redemption is wrought out—is the lesson book of the universe. Because Abraham had shown a lack of faith in God's promises, Satan had accused him before the angels and before God of having failed to comply with the conditions of the covenant, and as unworthy of its blessings. God desired to prove the loyalty of His servant before all heaven, to demonstrate > that nothing less than perfect obedience can be accepted, and to open more fully before them the plan of salvation. (Patriarchs and Prophets p. 154)

One More Reason

We must also remember that in the instructions for Abraham to sacrifice Isaac, God never intended for Abraham to actually kill his son. God already knew what Abraham was willing to do, so while God called Abraham to sacrifice his son for the reasons already stated, he also accomplished one more thing: to demonstrate that human sacrifice is not what God wants, nor will God accept it.

Many pagan cultures in Abraham's time and throughout history have promoted human sacrifice. God, through Abraham, demonstrated that He does not require, nor accept, human sacrifice as payment. Through the prophet Micah, the Bible states:

- With what shall I come before the LORD and bow down before the exalted God? Shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves a year old? Will the LORD be pleased with thousands of rams, with ten thousand rivers of oil? Shall I offer my firstborn for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? He has showed you, O man, what is good. And what does the LORD require of you? To act justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with your God (Micah 6:6–8).

When we embrace God's design law, we can read frightening stories like God's instructions to Abraham to sacrifice Isaac and realize there is much more to them than what we have been led to believe. They are meant to show us that, yes, humans are sick in sin, but that God is the source of goodness, truth, love, and life, and that He is always working to heal and restore all who trust Him.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson focuses on Peter and how he identified with the "circumcision" group, the Jewish converts who were still strongly dedicated to the forms and customs of Judaism and wanted to bring many of those over into Christianity. And how Peter shied away from the uncircumcised and had to be corrected by Paul.

This is such a powerful story and lesson for us, because it teaches us some important truths.

First, was Peter an Apostle blessed by Jesus to carry forward the gospel? Was Peter inspired to write Scripture?

And yet, despite being an inspired Apostle and Bible writer, Peter was wrong on some matters of theology and had to be corrected by Paul.

What does that mean?

- Does inspiration of an individual make them sinless?
- Does inspiration of an individual make them all knowing?
- Does inspiration of an individual make them flawless?
- Does inspiration of an individual mean they get everything on Bible matters correct?
- Does the fact an inspired individual make mistakes, like Peter, does that mean they are not inspired and that we should throw away their writings?

So what is the point? Romans 14:5 every person must be fully persuaded in their own mind—we cannot surrender our thinking, our judgment to another person even if that person is inspired by God and has the gift of prophecy.

One of the problems some have within Christianity is proof text or quote approach, finding some statement, instruction, declaration written by an inspired writer and then applying it without thought, without understanding, as a rule to be kept.

And often using quotes as proofs if the Bible said it I believe it and there is nothing more to say about it.

Am I saying that the Bible can't be trusted or the Bible has errors? Absolutely not—the Bible is the inspired Word of God and is completely trustworthy on all matters related to salvation from sin. But, the Bible is not the authority on music theory, or mathematics, or mechanical engineering, or the practice of medicine.

The Bible sets the standards of morality and the design laws of God upon which life and health operate, reveals the eternal truths of God's character, and the protocols for life—but the application of God's principles require individual though and understanding to the life and situation.

FRIDAY

The lesson is about missions and carrying out the gospel mission, being missionaries to the world.

Why do you think many of our institutions have removed "missionary" from their names:

- Emmanuel Missionary College changed its name to Andrews University
- Southern Missionary College changed its name to Southern Adventist University

Why?

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 4
Sharing God's Mission

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read Memory Verse:

- A new command I give you: Love one another. As I have loved you, so you must love one another. By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you love one another (John 13:34-35 NIV84).

When Jesus told His disciples that He was giving them a new command to love one another, He did not mean it was a new teaching, principle, directive, instruction, or idea that God had not previous given, but that it was new to them. For God had previously already instructed them to:

- "Love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength" and to "love your neighbor as yourself" (Deuteronomy 6:5; Leviticus 19:18 NIV84).

This means that despite God having previously given them the instruction to love God and each other, they somehow didn't know it, didn't understand it, and therefore Jesus said His command to love was something new to them.

What about for us today? Surely, we have all heard that God is love and that we are to love God with all our hearts and our neighbors as ourselves. And even more, we know Jesus told us to love not just our neighbors but our enemies. Yet, could we also need Jesus' "new" command? Could we struggle with a similar need to the disciples?

- Where does this love that Jesus said we are to have for each other originate?
- Are we able to produce it because Jesus has told us to?
- Is this love something we have within ourselves and we only need to have better psychological attitude and choose to love, or is it something that only comes from outside of us and we must choose to receive it, be transformed by it and then act in harmony with it?

Jesus gives us additional insight in John 15:

- As the Father has loved me, so have I loved you. Now remain in my love. If you obey my commands, you will remain in my love, just as I have obeyed my Father's commands and remain in his love. I have told you this so that my joy may be in you and that your joy may be complete. My command is this: Love each other as I have loved you. Greater love has no one than this, that he lay down his life for his friends. You are my friends if you do what I command. I no longer call you servants, because a servant does not know his master's > business. Instead, I have called you friends, for everything that I learned from my Father I have made known to you. You did not choose me, but I chose you and appointed you to go and bear fruit—fruit that will last. Then the Father will give you whatever you ask in my name. This is my command: Love each other (vss. 9-17 NIV84, emphasis mine).

The first truth Jesus tells us is that love originates in God, love's source is God, for God is love (1 John 4:8). This love flows from God among the Godhead and thus God loves Jesus the Son and it is through Jesus that God's love reaches us.

We do not possess this love in and of ourselves, but we receive it as we receive the sunshine—it constantly shines down upon us from heaven above. Yet, just like sunshine, which never stops streaming from the sun, can sometimes be hidden behind storm clouds, so too God's love, despite never ceasing, can sometimes feel hidden behind our emotional storms. That is when, we must turn to reality as revealed in Scripture and know that God's love never fails and never ceases, just as surely as we know on the stormiest day that the sun continues to shine!

We receive love just as we receive sunshine—by placing ourselves in its rays. But we can choose to stay in the dark, to cover the windows with blinds, to never go outside during the day and cut ourselves off from the sun. Likewise, despite God's love constantly flowing from heaven, we can choose to cut ourselves off from it, to stay in the darkness of bitterness, resentment, hatred, bigotry, selfishness, fear, doubt, idolatry, legalistic religious enslavement, entertainment, or various forms of substance induced stupors.

And when we cut ourselves off from sunlight, we necessarily suffer various forms of physical and mental breakdown. Likewise, when we cut ourselves off from God's love and fill our hearts with fear, selfishness, and the false numbing comforts of this world we invariably suffering various physical and mental breakdowns.

The love of God shines everywhere and when God's love is combined with the truth that Jesus revealed, we realize how empty we are without Him, how sick of heart and mind our natural selfish state is, how exhausting it is to constantly work to prove ourselves and get ahead, how much we need God's love. Thus, when by the truth and love of God we are won back to trust, we open our hearts to Him and are set right with God (justified) and He pours His love into our hearts (Romans 5:5) which transforms and heals us (sanctified). Paul puts it this way:

- Since we have been made right with God by our faith, we have peace with God. This happened through our Lord Jesus Christ, who through our faith has brought us into that blessing of God's grace that we now enjoy. And we are happy because of the hope we have of sharing God's glory. We also have joy with our troubles, because we know that these troubles produce patience. And patience produces character, and character produces hope. And this hope will never disappoint us, because God has poured out his love to fill our hearts. He gave us his love through the Holy Spirit, whom God has given to us (Romans 5:1-5 NCV, emphasis mine).

Love and truth originate in God and it is this reality, the goodness of God that wins us back to trust (Romans 2:4). When we trust God we give God our consent, our permission to work in us and it is then that we are transformed and healed through the application of truth and love in our hearts by the Holy Spirit.

We are then to "remain" in God's love. We don't earn God's love; we don't fight for it; we don't have to prove ourselves, to work, to compete, or in any other fashion struggle to receive God's love. God's love is not conditional, we are to abide in His love, to rest in His presence, love, goodness, grace. We are to remain and live in God's love every single day, but we are to especially "rest" in His love on the Sabbath.

The Sabbath is a special gift from God built into time especially for human beings designed for us to exercise our rest—for us to choose to stop all our working—whether working for our own advancement here on earth (business, school etc.), working to earn love or prove ourselves to others (working to get six-pack abs to win a romantic interest, housework or yardwork to win affection), or working to save ourselves through various religious rituals and law-keeping.

The Sabbath is God's gift to us, made for humans (humans were not made for the Sabbath) to give us the time to exercise our rest in Jesus, to rest in God's love and be renewed, refreshed, and strengthened. But the Sabbath is only a blessing if it is a delight—if it is a rule we must keep in fear of doing something wrong then we are not resting, we are working on the Sabbath. (Isaiah 58:13)

But remaining in God's love means we are to obey His commands, but can we command people to love us and get love? Can you get more love from your spouse or children by commanding love with authority and threats of punishment? No, for ordering others against their will only destroys love and incites rebellion—so what does this mean that Jesus commands us to love but love cannot be commanded?

Our understanding and experience with God are directly connected to how we understand God's character and law. If we believe Satan's lie that God's law functions like human law, imposed rules that require legal oversight and infliction of "just" punishments from the ruling authority, then we hear the words "command" or "commandment" as something legal, imposed, a rule to be enforced. But to worship a being like this is to worship a creature—for creatures, not the Creator, makes up rules that require legal enforcement.

When we return to worshiping the Creator, we understand that He built the cosmos and His laws are design laws—the protocols reality exists and functions upon—like the laws of health, physics, and the moral laws. We realize that life and health are only possible in harmony with God and His design protocols built into reality itself. Then we understand what Jesus is saying. He is saying that if you want to be healthy and thrive, then live in harmony with the laws of health—obey the laws of health. If you want to remain in my love then don't break the law of love—if you want to remain healthy, don't break the laws of health. It is that simple.

Sin breaks God's design (law) for life. It is driven by fear and fear turns the mind toward self and the me-first survival drives dominate. But God's perfect love casts out all fear (1 John 4:18). When we experience and remain in God's love His love frees us from being controlled by fear. And instead of seeking to protect self at the expense of others, we sacrifice ourselves to uplift and benefit others—just as Jesus has done for us!

This selfless love is not of this sinful world; it is not found in Satan or the kingdoms of this world. This eternal, healing, life-giving love comes only from God and flows to us through Jesus Christ via the work of His representative on Earth, the Holy Spirit. Whenever and wherever we see such love we are seeing the outworking of the Holy Spirit applying the victory of Jesus to individual lives, whether the people who love like this realize it or not, whether they acknowledge Jesus or not.

Understand this very clearly—no human since Adam sinned possesses self-sacrificial love for others as a natural expression of their heart. Therefore, anytime you see selfless love in action, it is evidence of God's working in their heart to save them from fear and selfishness.

Then Jesus does the most incredible, unbelievable, truly preposterous thing from and worldly standpoint—He refuses to accept us in the role of servants to Him the King of kings and Lord of lord, the Creator and Sustainer of all reality, and instead tells us His desire, intent, wishes, and will for us—that we are to be His friends! This is astonishing—can you really imagine it? God, our Creator, our Savior, the infinite one Himself invites you and me to be His friends!

What does it mean to be a friend of God? Have you considered yourself God's friend? What is the difference between a servant and a friend?

As Graham Maxwell used to ask: Is there a difference between friendly service and a serving friend? What is that difference?

So, does being a friend of God mean that we don't serve or that we give the only type of service that matters—the service that comes from understanding love, which friends have, and not the service that comes from fear, which servants have?

So, the first step in being a friend of God is that we must first and foremost be won back to love and trust in God and Jesus. As long as fear and selfishness dominate us, as long as we love ourselves more than God, we will eventually betray God to protect ourselves. So in order to be a true friend of God we must be won back to trust in Him, complete, abiding, and settled trust. This requires that we know God (John 17:3) not know about God. Sadly, far too many Christians know about God, like studying the biography of Abraham Lincoln they get doctoral degrees to be experts in knowing all about God—but that doesn't mean they actually know Him. And if we don't actually know Him for ourselves, if we only know about Him, then we don't truly trust Him, and therefore are not His friends.

This is what Jesus meant when He foretold of the day when Christians will say to Him,

- "'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and in your name drive out demons and perform many miracles?' Then I will tell them plainly, 'I never knew you. Away from me, you evildoers!'" (Matthew 7:22-23 NIV84, emphasis mine).

These people worked, served, in the name of Jesus, but they never knew Jesus, they were not His friends.

We become Jesus' friend when we are reborn to love and trust and know Him personally, our hearts are settled into the truth and love of God: This is the sealing. And then, like Job, we might not understand what is happening, we might experience frustration, we might have many questions—but we trust God so that our hearts stay focused on seeking God, on talking with God, on searching out the answers from God—just like Job did.

Despite all the world can throw at us, if we are God's friend, we will never believe God is against us, that God is our enemy, that God is the source of pain, suffering, and death. We will be true friends of God, and like Job say of God what is right!

But this requires that we not only love God, but as Jesus explicitly said, that we understand God's business! Servants don't understand the master or his business—they simply do what they are told. Servants are focused on the rules, the commands, the instructions—if the master said, they believe, and that is all there is to it.

But friends go beyond rule-keeping, beyond simply doing what they are told—they enter into understanding relationship, empathy, and appreciation with and for the master. A friend of God's shares in His desires, values, methods, principles and they align themselves with Him in heart. They are jealous for His reputation, His goals, His kingdom. They love what He loves and hate what He hates.

And then, as God's friends, who are won to love and trust, who understand His methods, principles, and design laws—His business of saving souls, we choose to work in God's field, God's garden, seeking to tend to hurting souls to bring them back into friendship with God.

- Anyone who is joined to Christ is a new being; the old is gone, the new has come. All this is done by God, who through Christ changed us from enemies into his friends and gave us the task of making others his friends also. Our message is that God was making the whole human race his friends through Christ. God did not keep an account of their sins, and he has given us the message which tells how he makes them his friends. Here we are, then, speaking for Christ, as though God himself were making his appeal through us. We plead on Christ's behalf: let God change you from enemies into his friends! (2 Corinthians 5:17-20 GNT).

SUNDAY

The lesson focuses on the gift of hospitality—what do you understand this gift to be?

The dictionary definition is: "the friendly reception and treatment of guests or strangers."

What does this mean today? Does this mean we have no boundaries, that every person is welcomed? Or do we need to have discernment and not open our hearts, homes, and resources to individuals intent on doing harm?

Jesus said,

- "Do not give dogs what is sacred; do not throw your pearls to pigs. If you do, they may trample them under their feet, and then turn and tear you to pieces." (Matthew 7:6, NIV84).

Paul wrote:

- But mark this: There will be terrible times in the last days. People will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boastful, proud, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, without love, unforgiving, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, not lovers of the good, treacherous, rash, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God—having a form of godliness but denying its power. Have nothing to do with them. (2 Timothy 3:1-5 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Should we show hospitality to everyone, or should we have discernment and set some boundaries and limit our contact with some people?

How do we love our enemies as Jesus did, show godly hospitality, yet also set healthy boundaries to limit and restrict the ability of those intent on doing evil from harming us and those we love, those put in our care to protect, and the mission God has called us to carry out?

MONDAY

Love for everyone—what does this mean in action?

Does it mean giving every person what they want, what they say they want? What about what they say they need? What about if they need it? What if they need it but they could procure it on their own, but their choices prevent them from doing so?

What about what Paul writes here in Romans 5:

- We also rejoice in our sufferings, because we know that suffering produces perseverance; perseverance, character; and character, hope. And hope does not disappoint us, because God has poured out his love into our hearts by the Holy Spirit, whom he has given us. (Romans 5:3-5 NIV84).

What does this mean? We want God to pour His love into our hearts, and Paul connects suffering, persevering, and character building with God's love being poured into our hearts—what is the connection?

Is suffering required for character building? Do we help people if in all circumstances we seek to relieve their suffering? Or is suffering sometimes necessary for spiritual victory and character building?

- Did Jacob experience any trials and sufferings? Were those trials and sufferings important for Jacob's ultimate victory and being renamed Israel? Would we have helped Jacob if we would have done something to relieve the night of his trouble, the night he wrestled with the angel?
    - Couldn't God have inspired Esau to send a messenger ahead before that night to let Jacob know he was forgive and all was well? If Jacob had received that assurance prior to the night he wrestled with the angel would that information have been a benefit to him or not? Why not?
- Did Peter suffer for a period of time after he denied Jesus? Would we have helped Peter during that suffering, that emotional anguish, if we could have offered him a Xanax or valium to relieve his anxiety and emotional distress? Why or why not? Would it be an act of love to seek to relieve his suffering, or in that circumstance was the most loving action anyone could take be to allow Peter to wrestle out his own turmoil with God?

Love seeks to do what is in the best eternal interest of others, not what they want, or what will make them feel better in the moment, but which will help them achieve victory, spiritual victory and get better. And that often requires some period of suffering.

Do you understand how corrupt and evil the current demonic philosophy that is overtaking our society and culture is—which suggests that if it feels bad it is bad and that feelings are what matters, emotions are what defines reality?

Love is only love when, as Paul wrote in 1 Corinthians 13, it rejoices with the truth! If it is not truthful, it is not love.

The lesson points out that Abraham demonstrated love for the people of Sodom and Gomorrah when he asked God to spare the city for 50, 40, 30, 20, and 10 righteous people.

Abraham had concern for the sin-sick, the wicked, the perishing and he asked God not to destroy the city if ten righteous remained.

We see the heart of compassion and love from Abraham, but we also see God acting to destroy the city. Does that mean God has less love and compassion than Abraham?

If God has more love and compassion than Abraham, then why did He destroy Sodom and Gomorrah?

Genesis 3:15—it is all about the promised Messiah—even without these five cities that were destroyed—how many tribes of Israel made it through to the day Jesus was born? Only two—the other ten tribes had been dispersed.

In other words, God looking down the corridor of time, saw the ongoing war against Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob's children, the branch of the family tree through whom Messiah would come, and understood that if He didn't act that the corruption and perversity of the nations around them would destroy that branch of the human family. So, God like a good surgeon, excised the necrotic tissue, the corrupt and hardened people that were beyond salvation and who lived in that area as a means to limit their ability to work against the plan of salvation—for without Jesus no human could be saved from sin.

God first discussed it with Abraham, foreknowing Abraham would ask these questions so that God could answer them and let Abraham and EVERYONE OF US know these people were beyond saving, they had so hardened there hearts there was nothing more God could do for them—just like the people who died in the Flood. So God's actions here are not actions to punish sin, they are therapeutic actions to keep open avenue for Messiah.

We must also remember that these "deaths" are what the Bible calls sleep deaths, they are the first death, the same type of death that Daniel experienced. And all of these people will arise in a resurrection to complete their own life by their exercise of their own free will choices—at the end of the 1000 years.

And remember, that even in the false legal model, punishment for sin doesn't happen until after the judgment and the judgment is future from these events, so God's actions here, even in the false legal model do not fit with the punishment for sin.

Abraham also had concern for God and God's reputation, but Abraham's prayer not to destroy the city was based upon limited knowledge. Abraham didn't know the future and Abraham assumed that there were more than ten righteous people in Sodom, more than ten people who had not permanently destroyed the faculties that respond to love and truth, people who could still come to repentance and be saved. But, there were not, so God listens to Abraham, but then does what love requires in order to save and heal.

As we read about Abraham talking with God, could we consider that Abraham was praying? And he was praying for the saving of others, but what do you make of John's instructions in 1 John 5:16-17?

- If anyone sees his brother commit a sin that does not lead to death, he should pray and God will give him life. I refer to those whose sin does not lead to death. There is a sin that leads to death. I am not saying that he should pray about that. All wrongdoing is sin, and there is sin that does not lead to death. (1 John 5:16-17 NIV84).

What does this mean? How do we understand it? If we view it through a legal model it becomes quite confusing—it sets up all kinds of ideas that don't make sense—like some sins are mortal sins but other are not. But if we understand design law it is easy to understand, and thus I paraphrased it this way:

- If you see a fellow Christian who desires to be Christlike commit an act of sin, you should talk with God about them, knowing that God will completely heal them and give them life if they open their heart in trust to God. Such sin does not result in eternal death, as it is merely a residual symptom of a heart in the process of being healed. However, there is no use in asking God to heal and give eternal life to the sinners who close their hearts to God and stubbornly refuse to allow God to heal them. Love cannot be forced, and God cannot force people to love and trust him, so there is no use in praying for God to force people to accept him. All violations of love are sin, but violations of love which occur in someone who opens their heart to God do not lead to eternal death. (1 John 5:16-17 REM)

TUESDAY

Read the first paragraph,

- The dialogue between Abraham and God is a type, a representation, of intercessory prayer. Abraham is presented in this chapter as an intercessor before God for the people of Sodom and Gomorrah. He was pleading for them, in behalf of them; that is, he was in a way acting as a type, a symbol, of Jesus as our Intercessor before the Father. Our mission today will be successful only if we proceed with these kinds of prayer. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 33).

What does this mean?

- Does this mean God must be plead with in order to show us mercy?
- Does this mean that Jesus is pleading with His Father in heaven right now in our behalf?
- Have you ever heard it presented that we can have assurance because Jesus is our intercessor with the Father? But is that true?
    - Jesus Himself said, "In that day you will ask in my name. I am not saying that I will ask the Father on your behalf. No, the Father himself loves you" (John 16:26 NIV84).
    - Romans 8—if God is for you who can be against you…

Jesus said that if we have seen Him we have seen the Father—they are one. To suggest that one member of the Godhead is for us, but another member requires something done to Him to get Him to support us is diabolical, it is evil, it is a lie, and it comes from the father of lies—Satan himself.

It is rooted in the lie about God's law, the idea that God's law functions like human law and therefore God is required to use His power to inflict punishment for sin, which is death, and therefore Jesus took our punishment and offers His blood as a payment to God to pay for our sins and propitiate the righteous wrath of the Father which burns against us.

Understand, those who believe God's law functions like human law cannot understand the truth of Jesus' ministry as our intercessor. They will always distort it into teaching a lie, to teaching things that undermine our trust in God.

It is only when we return to worshiping God as Creator and realize that His law is design law that things make sense.

I am going to read you a passage from one of the founders of the SDA church, this paragraph is often used by those who hold to the lie that God's law is like human law and believe falsely that Jesus as our intercessor is pleading to God in our behalf. Consider this quotation and think, what would you say if it was used in conversation with someone who was arguing for the penal legal view and that Jesus is in fact pleading in our behalf to the Father.

> Man cannot meet these charges himself. In his sin-stained garments, confessing his guilt, he stands before God. But Jesus our Advocate presents an effectual plea in behalf of all who by repentance and faith have committed the keeping of their souls to Him. He pleads their cause and vanquishes their accuser by the mighty arguments of Calvary. His perfect obedience to God's law, even unto the death of the cross, has given Him all power in heaven and in earth, and He claims of His Father mercy and reconciliation for guilty man… But while we should realize our sinful condition, we are to rely upon Christ as our righteousness, our sanctification, and our redemption. We cannot answer the charges of Satan against us. Christ alone can make an effectual plea in our behalf. He is able to silence the accuser with arguments founded not upon our merits, but on His own. (5 Testimonies 470).

What do you hear? Are you hearing a legal proceeding in heaven in which Satan accuses us and Jesus acts as our defense attorney before God the ultimate judge and Jesus wins the case with His Father by arguing His perfect righteousness as our defense?

It doesn't say or mean anything close to that. Such conclusions are not in the text, but read into the text by those whose minds are biased by the lie about God's law.

We know that the quote doesn't mean something penal/legal because first Jesus said He would not pray the Father in our behalf—there is no need. And anything true will always harmonize with Scripture.

But such a legal conclusion contradicts the setting from where that paragraph was drawn. So when dealing with quotes like this we must first know the Bible and know the truth of God's character and design law, and then we will resist false interpretations, but second, we must go to the source being quoted for ourselves and read it in its larger setting, and also read from the same author other places that speak to the same issue. But for now, we will just examine this quote in a three-paragraph setting and as we do you will note how it becomes very clear nothing penal legal is going on, but something healing and restorative.

- As Satan accused Joshua and his people, so in all ages he accuses those who are seeking the mercy and favor of God. In the Revelation he is declared to be the "accuser of our brethren," "which accused them before our God day and night." The controversy is repeated over every soul that is rescued from the power of evil and whose name is registered in the Lamb's book of life. Never is one received from the family of Satan into the family of God without exciting the determined resistance of the wicked one. Satan's accusations against those who seek the Lord are not prompted by displeasure at their sins. He exults in their defective characters. Only through their transgression of God's law can he obtain power over them. His accusations arise solely from his enmity to Christ. Through the plan of salvation, Jesus is breaking Satan's hold upon the human family and rescuing souls from his power. All the hatred and malignity of the archrebel is stirred as he beholds the evidence of Christ's supremacy, and with fiendish power and cunning he works to wrest from Him the remnant of the children of men who have accepted His salvation. (5 Testimonies 470.1) [where is such a battle taking place? Where is the work of Jesus occurring that will rescue a sinner from Satan's power? Where does Satan's powers of lies and selfishness occur? Who listens to Satan's lies, who believes Satan's accusations? Who would Christ need to plead with to persuade them that His sacrifice is sufficient to free the sinner from sin? Would God need to be persuaded that the sacrifice of Christ is sufficient? Would the sinner?]

  He [Satan] leads men into skepticism, causing them to lose confidence in God and to separate from His love; [who is listening to Satan's accusations? With whom will Christ need to plead in order to overcome the accusations and restore their confidence?] he tempts them to break His law, and then he claims them as his captives and contests the right of Christ to take them from him. He knows that those who seek God earnestly for pardon and grace will obtain it; therefore he presents their sins before them *to discourage them. [Notice the dynamic here. The author doesn't say that Satan knows if he can find a sin the person committed that they forgot to confess and ask forgiveness for that it remains on the legal registry in heaven and God will be forced to pronounce them guilty and Satan wins his legal case. NO! Satan knows that all who trust God will, as Isaiah 55 says, receive FREE pardon from God and grace that heals and restores them and gives them a new heart and empowers them to overcome the accusations and temptations of Satan. So Satan accuses the sinner to the sinner to discourage the repentant sinner tempting them to give up and let go of their faith in Jesus. So, again, where is Christ plea directed?] He [Satan] is constantly seeking occasion against those who are trying to obey God. Even their best and most acceptable services he seeks to make appear corrupt. [To whom is Satan seeking to make our best seem corrupt? To the repentant sinner in order to discourage and dishearten them so THEY GIVE UP. So, to whom would Christ be pleading for them not to listen to the accusations of Satan?] By countless devices, the most subtle and the most cruel, he [Satan] endeavors to secure their condemnation. [By whom? From whom is Satan seeking to get the sinner condemned? Christ Jesus He is at the Father's right hand and is also interceding for us—also, in addition to who, the Father and who is the Father interceding with? With the accusations of the devil that try and discourage us!] Man cannot meet these charges himself. In his sin-stained garments, confessing his guilt, he stands before God. [Exactly, we don't stand before God and say, "I don't need Jesus. I can cure my own sin condition. In fact, I really haven't sinned, I am righteous in my own strength." NO! We stand before God and say, "Father I acknowledge I was born in sin and conceived in iniquity. I was born with a terminal sin condition I didn't choose this condition and I have had many symptoms along the way many sins and shortcomings from your glorious ideal. I have been fearful and selfish and acted out against your law. I have no ability to change my heart, to heal my condition. I confess I am dead in trespass and sin. I am only here before you because Jesus overcame where I cannot and Jesus has gifted me His victory, His mind, His heart, His love, His motives, His character and it is no longer I that live but Jesus lives in me through the indwelling Spirit." Note what happens next.] But Jesus our Advocate presents an effectual plea in behalf of all who by repentance and faith have committed the keeping of their souls to Him. He pleads their cause and vanquishes their accuser by the mighty arguments of Calvary. [For all who acknowledge their condition Jesus pleads effectively TO THEM, "My grace is sufficient for you." I have engraved YOU on the palm of my hand. My victory is your victory. Trust me and I will make you whole! The accusations of Satan that we are too sinful to be saved are vanquished by the effectual plea of Jesus to you and to me!] His perfect obedience to God's law, even unto the death of the cross, has given Him all power in heaven and in earth, and He claims of His Father mercy and reconciliation for guilty man. [Whose mercy? God's mercy, God so loved the world that He sent Jesus to procure the Remedy and then empowers Jesus with all the power of heaven to distribute it to us to heal and save us. God doesn't win God's mercy, or beg God to be merciful, He claims the mercy that is God's, because of God's mercy Jesus was sent and became our Remedy to sin.] To the accuser of His people He declares: "'The Lord rebuke thee, O Satan.' These are the purchase of My blood, brands plucked from the burning." [Jesus doesn't plead His blood to the Father, Jesus rebukes Satan and refutes his accusations. And listen to what Jesus says to us.] Those who rely upon Him in faith receive the comforting assurance: "Behold, I have caused thine iniquity to pass from thee, and I will clothe thee with change of raiment." [He removes the fear, the guilt, the shame, the selfishness, the sin-condition and gives us a new heart and right spirit, writes His law of love into our inmost beings so that it is no longer I that live but Christ lives in me.] All that have put on the robe of Christ's righteousness will stand before Him as chosen and faithful and true. Satan has no power to pluck them out of the hand of Christ. Not one soul that in penitence and faith has claimed His protection will Christ permit to pass under the enemy's power… Angels of God will walk on either side of them, even in this world, and they will stand at last among the angels that surround the throne of God. (5 Testimonies 470.2)

The fact that the acknowledged people of God are represented as standing before the Lord in filthy garments should lead to humility and deep searching of heart on the part of all who > profess His name. Those who are indeed purifying their souls by obeying the truth will have a most humble opinion of themselves. [This is the investigative judgment. The investigation of our own hearts/minds/characters and the investigating the truth about God to experience the healing power of Christ purging and cleansing us from sin to prepare us to meet Him face to face.] The more closely they view the spotless character of Christ, the stronger will be their desire to be conformed to His image, and the less will they see of purity or holiness in themselves. But while we should realize our sinful condition, we are to rely upon Christ as our righteousness, our sanctification, and our redemption. We cannot answer the charges of Satan against us. Christ alone can make an effectual plea in our behalf. He is able to silence the accuser with arguments founded not upon our merits, but on His own. (5 Testimonies 471.1)

Jesus pleads before the Father not to the Father; Jesus is carrying out the Father's purpose to save sinners, the Holy Spirit listens to Christ and works in you and me to communicate the love, grace and pleas of Christ to you and me to win us back to trust, so we will open the door to our hearts and let Him save us from fear and selfishness!

WEDNESDAY

What is Abraham's mission? In the context of the lesson, Abraham had a mission to save people—that is what the lesson wants us to notice.

Then, why didn't Abraham open a children's center, rehab center, center for porn addiction in Sodom? Why didn't Abraham open a church, a Sabbath school class, a Bible study—oh, because no Bible's existed yet. Okay, then why didn't he put an altar to God in Sodom and regularly offer sacrifices to Yahweh and preach on the streets of Sodom?

The point I am making is that I believe Abraham did have love for people, but that doesn't mean all actions are beneficial in all circumstances and settings.

Likewise today, do you think it will be beneficial to stand on a street corner in New York City with a sign "Repent" and shout "Repent, Jesus is coming soon and if you don't repent you will burn!"

THURSDAY

Read the last paragraph,

- Destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah: When God revealed to Abraham the destiny of these two cities, Abraham, full of love, tried to save the cities. Because there were not even ten righteous persons in the cities, the cities were destroyed. Abraham submitted to the will of God and > accepted God's judgment of these cities. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 35).

It is true that there were less that ten righteous people in Sodom, but is that the reason the city was destroyed? Or was there another reason that must be included to understand why the city was destroyed—it was the two elements together. In other words, if more than ten righteous were in the city it wouldn't have bene destroyed despite this other element, but because there were not ten righteous along with this other element the combined points required the city to be destroyed?

Let me put it another way—do we think that through all of human history Sodom was the only city in which there were less than ten righteous people? Or, do we consider that throughout all human history if any city has less than ten righteous people God will show up and destroy them, that having less than ten righteous people is some cosmic threshold that triggers God to act?

I am suggesting that it was the combination of the city being completely corrupt in unrighteousness, and its location in the geographic area where the Israelites would life for the fulfillment of the promise of Genesis 3:15 and their ability to seduce and corrupt the Israelites, thus obstructing the plan of salvation, had they remained.

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 5
Excuses to Avoid Mission

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

What do you think if the title?

We will explore the lesson's focus in a moment, but what are the excuses you have heard or perhaps even used?

- Someone else will do it?
- I am not good that—is that an excuse or a fact? When does this become a fact to act on rather than an excuse?
- It is uncomfortable?
- It will take too long?
- I am busy?
- I am tired?
- I don't feel like it?
- I have other priorities?

Should we stop and inquire—what does it mean to be on Mission for God? Should we define what it means to "do mission"?

Are we on mission everywhere all the time no matter what we are doing?

Was Jesus describing mission when He said this?

- "You are the light of the world. A city on a hill cannot be hidden. Neither do people light a lamp and put it under a bowl. Instead they put it on its stand, and it gives light to everyone in the house. In the same way, let your light shine before men, that they may see your good deeds and praise your Father in heaven" (Mathew 5:14-16 NIV84).

Or was Jesus describing mission only when He gave the gospel commission to make disciples baptizing people into the church?

What about a parent who works 80 hours a week to provide for their children and get them a Christian education, but doesn't have time to volunteer at a food kitchen, or go on a mission trip—are they doing mission for Jesus?

If we define mission only as seeking out people in evangelistic series to convert for the first time to Jesus do we have too narrow a definition of what mission for Jesus means?

When Solomon built the temple was on mission for God? What about the woodsmen who fell the trees, the stonemen who cut the stone, the craftsmen who made the lamp stands, altars and ark—were they on mission for God when they did these things, or is mission only seeking out those who don't yet know about God?

What about writers, artists, publishers, IT people who keep websites operating—if those books, artwork, and sites are used for the gospel are those people doing mission?

So, what would it mean to avoid mission—doesn't avoiding mission ultimately mean avoiding living our lives as God would have us live, in other words, living for self and this world?

Can people live for self and this world why they are actively evangelizing for the church and winning converts?

Jesus said,

- Woe to you, teachers of the law and Pharisees, you hypocrites! You travel over land and sea to win a single convert, and when he becomes one, you make him twice as much a son of hell as you are. (Matthew 23:15 NIV84).

Weren't these members of God's chosen people who were evangelizing to convert people to God's chosen church group doing mission for God? Why not?

What about the Good Samaritan, when he stopped to help the beaten man and cared for him, was he on mission for God? But do we have any record that the Good Samaritan preached the gospel, gave a Bible study, won the person to be baptized? Then how was the Samaritan on mission for God?

Is there a difference from being on mission for Jesus Christ and being on mission for the denomination? What is that difference?

What is the mission God wants all of us to be on—how would you describe it? Is the mission that we are to be on at this time in history to convert people to membership in a denomination—is that the mission? Is it to obstruct people from joining a denomination? It is neither—membership in denominational churches to not determine salvation—what does?

In the lesson it focuses on Jonah and compares his mission to Nineveh with Abraham's conversation with God over Sodom. Why did God destroy Sodom but not Nineveh? Why didn't God send someone to Sodom like He sent Jonah to Nineveh?

Because there were no people in Sodom who were capable of repentance, the people in Sodom had destroyed the faculties that respond to love and truth, whereas, the people in Nineveh had not destroyed their ability to respond to love and truth and thus repented.

SUNDAY

The lesson points out that Nineveh was known as a violent city, cruel, abusive, and that perhaps Jonah was afraid of what they might do to him. Thus, the lesson points out one obstacle to mission is fear.

Read last paragraph,

- In spite of all of this, we often read Jonah's story with disapproval for letting fear get in the way of carrying out God's instructions. What we fail to realize is that we can do the same thing (i.e., allow ourselves to be controlled by our fears rather than by God). (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 39).

What causes fear? From where does fear come?

When did fear become part of the human experience? And what does fear motivate people to do?

How does fear manifest itself in the action and conduct of people?

What is the motive for

- the greedy?
- the abuser?
- the cheat?
- the liar?
- the megalomaniac?
- the religious oppressor?
- the legalist?
- essentially all actions that seek to control others?

Have you seen any people in the church being controlled by fear to such an extent that they run away from their mission like Jonah?

What about during COVID? Did churches shut down? Did people stop visiting the shut ins, stop evangelism, stop schools, stop almost all mission? Why?

Did you hear the claims that this was all done in love? But does love stop ministering to others, stop seeking to save souls, stop their mission for God? And does love take away liberty, seek to coerce conscience? No, it was driven by fear and fear is a tool of Satan—and fear rises where lies abound, and the fear over COVID was based upon mountains of lies and misinformation, that continues to this day.

What is the solution to this infection of fear?

Truth and love, the truth sets us free and love casts out fear—from where does this truth and love originate or come?

How do we experience or participate in God's eternal truth and love?

Satan counterfeits truth with all forms of propaganda, through authority of office, of getting people to believe based on what an expert says rather than examining and understanding the evidence, facts, truth, principles, methods for oneself. This happened in the Dark Ages church when the religious authorities made proclamations that were enforced—such as the Earth is the center of God's universe and rejected Galileo's observations of reality.

And it happens today all the time from the godless left when they declare things to be so but without evidence.

What counterfeits does Satan offer to God's love?

- Love in a bottle—alcohol, ecstasy, and other drugs
- Porn and erotic exploitation
- Fame and glory seeking—being loved by the masses
- Codependent fear-based relationships of control and manipulation but with intense emotional attachment
- Being loved for your sin—loved/valued by a group like a gang for doing gang violence, or cults for joining the cult, or deviant groups for being deviant
- Others?

MONDAY

The lesson is on false views that interfere with our mission for God. Can you think of any false views that interfere with the church's mission today?

Read first paragraph, which I found quite astounding, true, but astounding that it is in the lesson guide:

- When the storm came, Jonah blamed himself (Jon. 1:1–12). His attitude does reveal something about the kind of worldview and understanding of God or "gods" that many had back then. While various gods, they believed, ruled in their various lands, the sea was deemed the chaotic realm of demons. In the worldview of the mariners, sacrifice was needed to appease their wrath. Although Jonah was a Hebrew, he quite possibly had a worldview that was influenced by the traditional beliefs of his times. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 40, emphasis mine).

Do you think the lesson is suggesting that we should not believe in a god who requires sacrifice to appease its wrath? Or should we believe in that god?

Do Christians teach a god who requires the sacrifice of an innocent human to propitiate, assuage, appease, expiate, or in some way turn away its wrath?

- Roman Catholic:
  Christ, because he was guiltless, sin-free and in favor with God, could offer himself up as a means of persuading God to relent of his angry wrath against the sins of mankind (emphasis mine). (Sungenis, Robert. Not By Faith Alone. Queenship, 1997. As quoted in Webster, William. "The Roman Catholic Teaching on Salvation and Justification." Christian Resources, https://christiantruth.com/articles/rcjustification, pp. 107, 108).

- Eastern Orthodox
  Christ was for us a curse, through being hung upon the tree of the cross, so as to offer Himself as a sacrifice to His Father, to annihilate the sentence of God by the superabundant worth of the sacrifice (emphasis mine). (Saint Symeon the New Theologian. "On the Transgression of Adam" (homily). As quoted in "Thinking About the Atonement: The New Testament." Orthodox Church in America, https://www.oca.org/reflections/fr.-lawrence-farley/thinking-about-the-atonement-the-new-testament).

- Methodist
  The sufferings of Christ are an atonement for sin by substitution, in the sense that they were intentionally endured for sinners under judicial condemnation, and for the sake of their forgiveness. They are an atonement for sin in the sense that they render its forgiveness consistent with the divine justice. They provide for such consistency, in the sense that justice none the less fulfills its rectoral office in the interest of moral government. Such office of justice is so fulfilled in the sense that, in granting forgiveness only on the ground of such a substitution in atonement, the honor and authority of the divine Ruler, together with the rights and interests of his subjects, are equally maintained as by the infliction of merited penalty upon sin (emphasis mine). (John Miley, D.D., 1813–1895, Methodist theologian and professor of systematic theology at Drew Theological Seminary in Madison, New Jersey. The Atonement in Christ. 1881. As quoted in "The Governmental Theory of Atonement." Truth in Heart, http://truthinheart.com/EarlyOberlinCD/CD/4/Miley/miley.htm, Chapter 8).

- Reformation Theology
  Jesus Christ took upon himself the punishment that the sins of his people deserved. In other words, the Reformers understood that the atonement was a satisfaction by means of punishment (emphasis mine). (Waddington, Jeffrey. "Surveying the Wondrous Cross: The Atonement in Church History." Reformation 21, Alliance of Confessing Evangelicals, Nov. 2008, http://www.reformation21.org/articles/surveying-the-wondrous-cross-the-atonement-in-church-history.php).

- Evangelical
  We affirm that the atonement of Christ by which, in his obedience, he offered a perfect sacrifice, propitiating the Father by paying for our sins and satisfying divine justice on our behalf according to God's eternal plan, is an essential element of the Gospel (emphasis mine).

(Neff, David. “A Call to Evangelical Unity.” Christianity Today, June 14, 1999, https://www.christianitytoday.com/ct/1999/june14/9t7049.html).

- Pentecostal
  The word “propitiation” properly signifies the turning away of wrath by a sacrifice. Thus it signifies appeasement. … According to Leon Morris: “The consistent Bible view is that the sin of man has incurred the wrath of God. That wrath is averted only by Christ’s atoning offering. From this standpoint his saving work is properly called propitiation” (emphasis mine). (Van Cleave, Nathaniel M., and Duffield, Guy P. Foundations of Pentecostal Theology. L.I.F.E. Bible College, 1983).

- Seventh-day Adventist
  The Hebrew wording in both Leviticus 9:24 and 10:2 was the same: “and fire came out from before the Lord and consumed …” (9:24, NKJV). Consumed what? In the first case, the offering; in the other, the sinners. What a powerful representation of the plan of salvation. At the Cross, the “fire from God,” the wrath of God, “consumed” the offering, and that was Jesus (emphasis mine). (Goldstein, C. “Fire From Before the Lord.” Adult Sabbath School Bible Study Guide, Jul. 25, 2011, https://www.ssnet.org/lessons/11c/less05m.html, p. 40).

Does Christianity teach that a human sacrifice of an innocent is needed to appease the wrath of God?

If this is true, then, where is the sacrifice being applied, where is it doing its work, having its influence, applying its merits, or exercising its power—it is working on God. Then what does that mean? If God is the one to whom the sacrifice of Christ must be given, applied, or presented, then something is wrong with God that needs fixing. Is that true?

Who is the one who suggests that there is something wrong with God that needs fixing? It is Satan, the liar from the beginning. And he has introduced his lie into Christianity under the guise of holiness, righteousness, justice, perfection, to have good people believe and teach lies about God, pagan lies, lies that our gracious God functions like a pagan deity who requires sacrifice to appease his wrath.

How did this happen? What is the root lie that causes this lie? It is the lie that God’s law functions like human law. Whenever and wherever people believe that God’s law functions like human law, the laws that creatures make up and enforce through punishment, they always believe—in fact they are powerless not to believe the subsequent lies about God—that God in order to be just must use His power to inflict punishment for sin. Therefore, the sacrifice of Jesus must be used to pay that punishment payment to the offended deity, that is paganism. And that is what happened when Rome took over Christianity, it substituted Roman law for God’s law and teaches that God functions like a creature rather than the Creator.

This is why before Christ returns a message is to lighten the world that calls people to stop judging God to be like a creature, and worship Him who made the heavens, earth, sea, and fountains of water. Worship of the Creator requires we reject imposed law and realize God’s laws are design laws.

But just to be sure no one things that we reject substitutionary atonement, let me state it very clearly, we do not reject substitutionary atonement but teach it the way the Bible does. No human could be saved from sin without the incarnation of Jesus, His sinless life, voluntary self-sacrificial death, resurrection, and ascension. But for the reasons the Bible says—not to appease God or do something to God, but to do something to and in humanity:

- God made him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God. (2 Corinthians 5:21NIV84, emphasis mine).
- the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world! (John 1:29 NIV84, emphasis mine).
- Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; the old has gone, the new has come! All this is from God, who reconciled us to himself through Christ and gave us the ministry of reconciliation: that God was reconciling the world to himself in Christ, not counting men's sins against them. (2 Corinthians 5:17-19 NIV84, emphasis mine).

All of Scripture teaches the reality that God was working through Jesus for the purpose of removing sin from human beings so that we can be restored to at-one-ment, unity, harmony, with God.

Satan's lies have perverted the gospel into a message that states Jesus died to do something to God to get God to be loving, kind, forgiving, gracious, unwrathful to us.

Read third paragraph,

- We, too, can have misunderstandings about God and what He expects of us. One common misunderstanding is that God's desire for us is to focus on our own salvation and to remove ourselves from the wickedness of the world around us. Though we are instructed to keep ourselves "unspotted from the world" (James 1:27, NKJV), our focus should be on how we can bring God's blessings and hope to those in need. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 40, emphasis mine).

This is sad, they recognize that we can have misunderstandings about God, but fail to realize the most serious misconception of all—the imperial Roman dictator view of God that comes from believing the lie that God's law functions like human law and causes people to teach the pagan notion that God requires sacrifice to appease His wrath.

Instead, they focus on one narrow consequence that lie has on the worshiper—focusing on one's behavior, attempts to save self through legal means, or by hiding away from the world. But the real problem is the root to all of this, which is believing lies about God that cause of to fear Him as the source of punishment for our sins.

TUESDAY

The lesson focuses on inconvenience as an obstacle to fulfilling the mission God has called us to fulfill.

Read first paragraph,

- Jonah's experience in the belly of the fish (see Jonah 2) was a dramatic show of God's love and mercy, and Jonah's prayer reveals that he didn't miss God's message of love. But just because he had had an incredible encounter with God didn't mean that his old thought habits or attitudes would easily change, even though he went to Nineveh anyway. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 41, emphasis mine).

This is a very important point and one that many Christians don't fully appreciate. When we are truly converted to Jesus, we have a wonderful and powerful experience with Him, we experience peace, the removal of guilt and shame; we have joy and a desire for better living, a new lease on life, a new perspective, a new heart and right spirit. But all of these new attitudes, desires, motives of the reborn person is still functioning, living, operating on the old hardware, the brain that we built by our life experiences prior to our full conversion to Jesus.

Because of this, even though we have new desires, new motives, a new heart that rejoices in the truth and is repulsed by evil, we still have habits, preconditioned responses, and neural pathways that were built by us before we were converted. These habits and conditioned responses often exert themselves and we sometimes react and do things we no longer intend or want to do.

If we don't understand this process then we are vulnerable to discouragement, about ourselves and God.

- We begin to doubt our conversion—"was I really converted, maybe I just had an emotional high during a powerful sermon."
- We doubt our salvation—"God gave me His grace, but I just blew it again, it was more than 70 times 7, more than the 490th time, there is no hope for me."
- We are vulnerable to doubt God—"my godless friends are right, Christianity is just a lie, if God were real then I wouldn't keep falling back into old habits, after all God is supposed to be all powerful, more powerful than me and my habits."

But when we understand reality—that we get new hearts and right spirits here and now—but we do not get new biology until this mortal puts on immortality and this corruption puts on incorruption at the second coming and that means that we will still struggle against old habits and preconditioned responses, but when those moments occur where we fall short, having been converted we are grieved in our hearts, we recognize it wasn't our true selves doing this, but vestiges of old habits that haven't been fully eliminated from our neurobiology and reflexive responses. We go to God and confess and thank Him for His mercy and long for our full deliverance, and we choose new actions and over time our brain circuitry does change, we wire in new healthy habits. This is what Paul wrote about in Romans chapter seven, this is from The Remedy:

- We know that the law is consistent, reliable and reasonable; but I am inconsistent, unreliable and unreasonable, because the infection of distrust, fear and selfishness has warped my mind and damaged my thinking. I am frustrated with what I do! For having been restored to trust, I want to do what is in harmony with God and his methods and principles; but I find that even though I trust God, my old habits, conditioned responses, preconceived ideas and other remnants of the devastation caused by distrust and selfishness are not yet fully removed. And if I find an old habit causing me to behave in ways that I now find detestable, I affirm that the law is a very helpful tool revealing residual damage in need of healing. What is happening is this: I have come to trust God, and I desire to do his will, but old habits and conditioned responses — which present almost reflexively in certain situations — have not yet been totally eliminated and thus cause me to do things I do not want to do. I know that my mind was completely infected with distrust, fear and selfishness, which totally perverted all my desires and faculties, so that even when distrust has been eradicated and trust has been restored, the damage caused by years of distrustful and selfish behavior has not yet been fully healed. So, I find that at times, I have the desire to do what is right, but do not yet have the ability to carry out the desire. For the old habits and conditioned responses are not the good I want to do: No! They are remnants of my selfish, unconverted mind. So, if I find myself doing what I no longer desire to do, it is not myself that acts, but the vestiges of old habits and conditioned responses that have yet to be removed. And through God's grace, they will soon be removed.

  So I find this reality at work: When I want to do good, my old selfish habits and residual feelings of fear are right there with me. In my mind, I rejoice in God's methods and principles, but I recognize that I remain damaged from years of being infected with distrust and practicing Satan's methods, so that even though the infection of distrust has been removed, the old habits of fear and self-promotion tempt me from within. What a damaged and corrupt man I am! Who will deliver and heal me from a brain and body so diseased and deformed? Praise be to God– for he has provided the healing solution through Jesus Christ our Lord! So then, I find that in my mind I am now renewed with trust in God and love of his methods, but my brain and body remain damaged by years of self-indulgent behavior. (Romans 7:14-25 REM).

Read fifth paragraph,

- And finally, being involved in mission often requires that we change how we feel about and use our money. Whether related to providing care for people, purchasing literature and outreach materials, or paying for services or conveniences to free up time for mission work, there are expenses related to mission. Whatever form it may take, mission work requires sacrifice. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God’s Mission My Mission p. 41).

What message do you hear from this paragraph?

Since they are talking about monetary sacrifice and supporting the mission with money—would this include prayerfully and carefully considering where one donates? What is the message being presented by the materials and organization to which one is donating? Do we want to donate to organizations that we believe are misrepresenting God and obstructing the final message of mercy to the world? I can't tell anyone where to give their tithes and offerings, but I can advance the principles of God that we are to support the gospel ministry and that requires us to individually know what the gospel is and then to evaluate what the organizations we are supporting to promoting—doesn't it?

WEDNESDAY

Read second paragraph,

- Jonah had such a deep hatred for the people God sent him to that he felt it was better that he die than to lose face when the failure of his doomsday preaching against Nineveh was revealed. Jonah wanted Nineveh to be the next Sodom and Gomorrah. He was hoping for God's judgment on these hated people. When it didn't happen, his worldview was being shaken to the core, and Jonah would rather die than allow his world to be turned upside down. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 42).

The day's title is uncomfortable confrontation—what is the uncomfortable confrontation Jonah had to face? Was it confronting the people he hated, or was it confronting the emotions in his own heart?

Consider this quotation from the book Steps to Christ:

- The warfare against self is the greatest battle that was ever fought. The yielding of self, surrendering all to the will of God, requires a struggle; but the soul must submit to God before it can be renewed in holiness. (Steps to Christ 43).

The most uncomfortable confrontation we have is internal, confronting our own fears, guilt, shame, self-righteousness, pride, expectations, fantasies, desires, demands, selfishness.

Many people think that others are their problem, when the problem is how we feel, react, and respond to others, our anger, resentment, bitterness, hurt, hatred, bigotry, prejudice is the problem—especially when dealing with the objectively offensive, rude, cruel, and evil.

When Jesus instructs us to love our enemies and pray for those who abuse us, who is the primary beneficiary of such instruction? Who is the one who reaps the most benefit from doing this, who will 100% of the time be benefited if they do it?

What happens inside of us when someone does objective wrong to us and we don't forgive them, we don't respond with grace, mercy, love and instead respond with righteous indignation, bitterness, resentment, and desire for revenge—even if that desire is processed through our legal justice system, or anticipating a future in which God makes them pay? What happens in us?

The lesson talks about worldviews and how our worldview often takes something dramatic in our life to get us to reevaluate it and change it.

What they are speaking about is our way of understanding why things happen the way they happen, the system we orient life through that gives us a sense of security, peace, safety, and control.

If we believe in the law and order method, that the system works, that if you do good you get a good reward and if you do bad you get punishment, then when injustice happens, when people who riot are called peaceful protestors and peaceful protestors are called insurrectionists, when violent criminals are not incarcerated and non-violent political opponents are imprisoned, when innocents go to jail and the guilty get off—our worldview is challenged, and we either reevaluate our worldview or surrender our thinking to others and trust them mindlessly. Do you see this happening to so many in the world?

God permits events to happen so that objective reality, consequence of decision-making, including breaking His design laws, will be evidenced and people can see that evidence, that truth and reevaluate the fantasy belief system that comes from Satan.

This is part of the working out of the truth—the false systems always break down, and those who love the truth will, during difficult times, search for answers that are ever more consistent with the truth and ultimately lead back to God.

This process includes the emotional detachment from things that give us security and instead attaching to God, if we are following the truth.

THURSDAY

The lesson asks us to read Isaiah 1:1-8:

- In the year that King Uzziah died, I saw the Lord. He was sitting on his throne, high and exalted, and his robe filled the whole Temple. Round him flaming creatures were standing, each of which had six wings. Each creature covered its face with two wings, and its body with two, and used the other two for flying. They were calling out to each other:

  "Holy, holy, holy!
  The LORD Almighty is holy!
  His glory fills the world."

  The sound of their voices made the foundation of the Temple shake, and the Temple itself was filled with smoke.

> I said, “There is no hope for me! I am doomed because every word that passes my lips is sinful, and I live among a people whose every word is sinful. And yet, with my own eyes, I have seen the King, the LORD Almighty!”
> Then one of the creatures flew down to me, carrying a burning coal that he had taken from the altar with a pair of tongs. He touched my lips with the burning coal and said, “This has touched your lips, and now your guilt is gone, and your sins are forgiven.”
>
> Then I heard the Lord say, “Whom shall I send? Who will be our messenger?”
> I answered, “I will go! Send me!” (Isaiah 6:1-8 GNT).

What lessons do we learn from this passage?

- Did Isaiah feel condemnation when he saw the glory of God?
- Did that condemnation come from God?
- From where did it come?
- What was necessary to resolve Isaiah’s guilt?
- What did the angel do?
- What happened to Isaiah?
- What was necessary for Isaiah to be useful in God’s mission?
- What is represented by the burning coal?

Do we find any other Scriptures that give insight into this scene?

Revelation 14:18-19 reads:

- Still another angel, who had charge of the fire, came from the altar and called in a loud voice to him who had the sharp sickle, “Take your sharp sickle and gather the clusters of grapes from the earth’s vine, because its grapes are ripe” (Revelation 14:18, 19 NIV84).

And this was interpreted in our study guide to mean the following:

- “Another angel came out from the altar, who had power over fire” (Rev. 14:18, NKJV). Here is the angel who commands the fires of God’s final judgment (Adult Sabbath School Bible Study Guide, 2nd Quarter, 2023, “Three Cosmic Messages,” p. 23).

From your reading of Revelation 14:18 in light of Isaiah 6, do you agree with the interpretation of the quarterly? Why or why not?

- Does the angel in Revelation 14 use the fire to inflict punishment?
- Is fire used at all?
- If you allow the text to influence your conclusion about this fire, what fire would you say it is?
- From where is the angel coming?
- The altar of God.

- And when it says that the angel is in charge of the fire, would the text be suggesting that the fire is the fire associated with the altar in God's temple?
- And is it likely that this "fire" is literal, a fire of combustion, or is it symbolic of something else?
- Is it the same type of fire described in Daniel 7:9, 10, as coming out like a river from the throne of God with billions standing in it?
- Then consider what we just read in Isaiah—the angel comes with coal and fire from the altar and does what with it?

- "This has touched your lips, and now your guilt is gone, and your sins are forgiven" (Isaiah 6:1–7 GNT, emphasis mine).

The fire from this altar cleansed Isaiah—burning away his guilt and bringing healing and forgiveness from sin. So, the angel in Revelation 14, who is God's agent, is in charge of this cleansing fire! He is the one who is represented in the prophecy as administering the purifying power of God to cleanse the saints from sin. (Do you think this is a symbolic representation of Jesus in His high priestly role of cleansing His people from sin?)

This angel then leaves his cleansing work and tells the other angel with a sharp sickle to harvest the wicked. Why? Because there are no more people who are willing to be cleansed by the fires of truth and love that flow from the temple of God. Every person has already either been cleansed by the fire from the altar and, therefore, are settled, sealed, solidified into loyal love to God—or they have hardened themselves into rebellion, sinfulness, and selfishness and destroyed within themselves the faculties that respond to truth and love so that they are beyond healing. Therefore, the angel from the altar, the one who is in charge of the cleansing fire, goes to the harvesting angel and says: There is no one left for me to heal; the harvest is ripe; it is time to reap.

God's fires are not the source of pain, suffering, and death—they are the cleansing fires of truth and love that originate in His infinite being.

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 6
Motivation and Preparation for Mission

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

What do you think about the title?

What is to be our motivation? Love for God and love for others.

Can people have godly motivation, be reborn—but still not be ready for mission? Can people start mission without proper preparation and things not go well?

Any Bible examples of people needing preparation before mission?

- Moses—he started his own mission at 40 by murdering an overseer, but wasn't truly ready for God's mission for another 40 years.
- Elisha—had a training period with Elijah
- The Apostles—who spent 3.5 years with Jesus and then reorganized after the resurrection waiting for the Holy Spirit
- Paul after his conversion on the Damascus road, went to Arabia to commune with Jesus and only after that time of preparation did he engage in ministry
- Others?

Read the first two paragraphs,

- Wrote Paul to the Philippians: "Some indeed preach Christ even from envy and strife, and some also from goodwill: The former preach Christ from selfish ambition, not sincerely, supposing to add affliction to my chains; but the latter out of love, knowing that I am appointed for the defense of the gospel. What then? Only that in every way, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is preached; and in this I rejoice, yes, and will rejoice" (Phil. 1:15–18, NKJV).

  Powerful words! Whether in "pretense or in truth," Christ is preached—and that is what mattered to Paul. Ideally, though, our motives for preaching Christ, for mission, for reaching others with the good news, should be out of love, and out of truth—and not from selfish ambition, envy, or strife. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 46).

Does this mean Paul takes no issue with false doctrines or false teachings, he voices no concerns about what it means to be Christian, or what is necessary for converts to do to experience the blessings of God in their lives? No! He takes strong stances in opposing false ideas—like Peter not associating with the circumcision group, and basically every teaching that tries to make Christianity into a works program, or burden people with legal concepts of salvation.

Why does Paul take this stance against false ideas, but doesn't take a stance against preachers preaching with selfish motives?

Have you ever heard that "all publicity is good publicity"—especially where the idea, concept, person, or product is new and unknown? In Paul's day, Jesus was unknown to the entire world. Paul's primary concern was to get the word about Jesus out, to get people to hear about Jesus and have an opportunity to investigate for themselves so that they could choose Jesus.

What is the principle that Paul practicing when he refuses to silence people who are preaching from selfish motives? Freedom, liberty, freedom of speech, liberty of conscience, freedom of self-determination.

But promoting liberty is not the same thing as agreeing with the false ideas, or letting the falsehoods go unchallenged by the truth.

You will notice that those who love truth do not seek to censor or silence those who are wrong, who are presenting falsehoods, they counter the false with the truth and the truth prevails. But those who are advancing falsehoods must silence the sources of truth because their views will be destroyed by the truth.

This, the action to censor and silence, the actions to restrict liberties of conscience such as freedom of worship, speech, peaceful assembly, communication, and bodily autonomy is always a sign that evil is being practiced and is what Jesus meant when He said, by their fruits you will know them. By the methods they practice, not by the words they declare.

In fact, the truly evil will frequently espouse words that you can agree with, but will practice the methods of evil—coercion, force, intimidation, censoring, restricting liberty—but it will all be done under the claim of seeking some good, seeking to stomp out an evil, to protect, to save.

The forces of evil always oppose the methods of God, which means they will oppose the truth. But they won't do it by saying they are opposing truth—they will do it by saying they are screening out misinformation, censoring disinformation, or deplatforming speakers with dangerous ideas.

But the lovers of truth don't use such methods, they are open and invite honest investigation and questions.

What are some of the ways that evil forces seek to silence the truth?

By Direct Destruction of the Speakers of Truth

Execution—consider all the martyrs executed through time for so-called heresy.

By Imprisonment

Consider all the truth-speakers imprisoned and sent off to concentration camps or gulags or city jails.

By Devaluing the Messenger

- "Isn't this the carpenter's son?" (Matthew 13:55 NIV84).
- "How does this man have such learning, when he has never been taught?" (John 7:15 NRSV).

Who is he to teach about theology when he doesn't have a degree in theology—you can't trust what he says!

Name Calling and Character Assassination—Attacking the Messenger Instead of the Message

- But when the Pharisees heard this, they said, "It is only by Beelzebub, the prince of demons, that this fellow drives out demons" (Matthew 12:24 NIV84).
- The Jews answered him, "Aren't we right in saying that you are a Samaritan and demon-possessed?" (John 8:48 NIV84).

Accusing the Righteous of the Evil That They Are Doing

- Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, "He has spoken blasphemy! Why do we need any more witnesses? Look, now you have heard the blasphemy. What do you think?" (Matthew 26:65, 66 NIV84).

Twisting Words and Perjury

- Finally two came forward and declared, "This fellow said, 'I am able to destroy the temple of God and rebuild it in three days'" (Matthew 26:60, 61 NIV84).

Appeal to Expert Opinions Rather than the Truth to Intimidate

- Finally the temple guards went back to the chief priests and Pharisees, who asked them, "Why didn't you bring him in?"

  "No one ever spoke the way this man does," the guards declared.

  "You mean he has deceived you also?" the Pharisees retorted. "Has any of the rulers or of the Pharisees believed in him? No! But this mob that knows nothing of the law—there is a curse on them" (John 7:45–49 NIV84).

Intimidation via Sanctions and Restricting Liberties

- His parents said this because they were afraid of the Jews, for already the Jews had decided that anyone who acknowledged that Jesus was the Christ would be put out of the synagogue (John 9:22 NIV84).
- No one would say anything publicly about him for fear of the Jews (John 7:13 NIV84).

Rejection and Mob Violence

- All the people in the synagogue were furious when they heard this. They got up, drove him out of the town, and took him to the brow of the hill on which the town was built, in order to throw him down the cliff (Luke 4:28–30 NIV84).

Shouting Down Voices of Truth to Silence, Intimidate, and Incite Riots

- When they heard this, they were furious and began shouting: "Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!" Soon the whole city was in an uproar. The people seized Gaius and Aristarchus, Paul's traveling companions from Macedonia, and rushed as one man into the theater. Paul wanted to appear before the crowd, but the disciples would not let him. Even some of the officials of the province, friends of Paul, sent him a message begging him not to venture into the theater.

  The assembly was in confusion: Some were shouting one thing, some another. Most of the people did not even know why they were there. The Jews pushed Alexander to the front, and some of the crowd shouted instructions to him. He motioned for silence in order to make a defense before the people. But when they realized he was a Jew, they all shouted in unison for about two hours: "Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!" (Acts 19:28–34 NIV84).

Refusing to Listen and Murdering Voices of Truth

- At this they covered their ears and, yelling at the top of their voices, they all rushed at him, dragged him out of the city and began to stone him. Meanwhile, the witnesses laid their clothes at the feet of a young man named Saul. While they were stoning him, Stephen prayed, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." Then he fell on his knees and cried out, "Lord, do not hold this sin against them." When he had said this, he fell asleep (Acts 7:57–60 NIV84).

Do we see all of these methods being employed today? And who is employing them? Do the righteous use them? No, only those without the truth. And are these methods used only by the godless, or do those who claim a belief in God also use these methods? What does that mean?

SUNDAY

The lesson points us to the women who went to Christ's tomb Sunday morning and found it empty and met the two angels who told them Jesus had risen from the dead. How they immediately went to tell the disciples, but the disciples didn't believe them.

Read second paragraph,

- Can you imagine how the women must have felt? They had just had an amazing experience, one that certainly filled them with awe, but the disciples called their experience "idle tales" and would not believe them. Thus, not sure whether to believe the women or not, Peter ran to the tomb to see for himself. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 47).

Have you ever had the experience of sharing truth with others, including church leaders, only to have them reject the message and belittle you telling you that you were bearing idle tales or some falsehood or been duped by someone?

What do we do when we are advancing the truth and are met with hostility, incredulity, disbelief, and rejection—especially from those in church leadership?

What have you found to be helpful in coping with such rejection?

- Don't take it personal, remember Jesus said:
    - "He who listens to you listens to me; he who rejects you rejects me; but he who rejects me rejects him who sent me." (Luke 10:16 NIV84).
    - "If the world hates you, just remember that it has hated me first. If you belonged to the world, then the world would love you as its own. But I chose you from this world, and you do not belong to it; that is why the world hates you. Remember what I told you: 'Slaves are not greater than their master.' If people persecuted me, they will persecute you too; if they obeyed my teaching, they will obey yours too. (John 15:18-20 GNT).

  So, when we find that church leaders or others reject the truth, don't take it personal, it is not us they are rejecting, it is the truth that Jesus brought they are rejecting, and ultimately they are rejecting Him, for the truth is an expression of His character and those who reject it prefer a god that functions like this world, power over others, force, compelling power, coercion, inflicted punishment.

  Does this mean that all initial presentations of truth will be accepted, or all who initially reject the truth are enemies of Christ? No! Look at our story when the disciples heard about Christ's resurrection—they initially rejected it, but then the Holy Spirit convicted them, they went and investigated, and Jesus brought more truth to them and they eventually accepted it. Sometimes, people will initially reject the truth, but the seed is planted and the Holy Spirit begins to work, and the same truth is brought to their mind from different sources and those with hearts that love the truth eventually embrace it.

- Pray—pray for wisdom from God on who to share the truth with, who is open to the truth; and pray for efficiency in how to present the truth; pray for the Holy Spirit to bring the truth home to heart of those who hear it.
- Share how the new truth has been a blessing to you, how it has brought you closer to Christ, helped you experience a deeper faith, resolved some struggle you have had for years, whether guilt, shame, fear, or overcoming some habit. Share how the new truth has brought you greater love and appreciation for God. It is difficult to argue against a person's experience, especially when that experience is bearing fruits of the Spirit.
- Get to know people, build a relationship, if people know you, know your heart for the Lord, know you care about them, they will be more willing to listen to what you have to share.

- Leave people free, present the truth under the umbrella of liberty, let every person be fully persuaded in their own mind. This means, that it is presented in a way that they know if they don't agree with you, you will still value and love them as a friend, family member, or church member.
- Discern the attitudes, mindsets, and motivations of those with whom you seek to share. If, after prayerful consideration, you conclude certain people are not only closed, but hostile to the truth, leave them be and seek new people who are open. As Jesus said, "Do not give dogs what is sacred; do not throw your pearls to pigs. If you do, they may trample them under their feet, and then turn and tear you to pieces" (Matthew 7:6 NIV84).
- Other methods or actions?

Read last paragraph,

- Of course, we need a personal experience with God ourselves before we can share it with others. Our desire to share with others what we love so much must be a crucial part of our motivation for mission. In the end, we can't share what we ourselves don't have, can we? (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 47).

If one doesn't have a personal experience with God, but is actively sharing their faith—what are they sharing? Anything that they themselves have found that gives them comfort, a sense of security, safety, meaning, purpose—but it might not be God. Consider those religious leaders Jesus confronted when he told them that they search the world for a convert and make them twice the son of hell as they were.

These religious leaders were sharing what they knew—but they didn't know God. They knew law, rules, elitism and they developed a certain security in their beliefs, but those beliefs did not result in actual salvation, despite being based on Scripture and being religious in nature.

What kinds of things become replacements or proxies for a saving relationship with God?

- Faith in a false god—so the person is exercising faith, is worshiping, is religious, but the god they believe in is not the true God—this would be all the false gods in the world, but also the false versions of God taught in Christianity.
- Faith in self under the guise of religion—faith in law-keeping, Sabbath keeping, performance, Pharisaical legalism.
- Faith in a religious leader—whether priest, pope, pastor, cleric, rabbi, or other.
- Faith in denominational affiliation—feeling secure for being part of a church organization that one believes is God's remnant or God's church on Earth; like the Jews 2000 years ago had faith in being descendants of Abraham.
- Faith in sacraments, rituals, ceremonies

All of these proxies have a place in a genuine saving relationship with God. In a saving relationship we do:

- worship, but we worship the true God
- obey the law of God, but not as a means to make us feel safe or secure, or a work, but as a fruit, a result, a free choice because we love God and love His methods and agree with Him
- respect, but do not place our faith in religious leaders; we place our faith in God. Thus while we respect God's workmen, we do not surrender our thinking to them, and we recognize they can be wrong
- become part of a body of believers, whether denominational or non-denominational, in order to organize ourselves, pool resources, share our gifts more efficiently for the spreading of the gospel—but our security is not found in the organization, it is found in Jesus.
- practice certain ceremonies or rituals because they help us in our development, solidifying our commitments, such as baptism, or child dedication, or weddings, or communion, but we do not place our faith in the ceremony—we carry out the ceremony as a public testimony to our faith in Jesus and our desire to live out His principles.

MONDAY

The lesson asks us to read Luke 24:36-49:

- While they were still talking about this, Jesus himself stood among them and said to them, "Peace be with you."

  They were startled and frightened, thinking they saw a ghost. He said to them, "Why are you troubled, and why do doubts rise in your minds? Look at my hands and my feet. It is I myself! Touch me and see; a ghost does not have flesh and bones, as you see I have."

  When he had said this, he showed them his hands and feet. And while they still did not believe it because of joy and amazement, he asked them, "Do you have anything here to eat?" They gave him a piece of broiled fish, and he took it and ate it in their presence.

  He said to them, "This is what I told you while I was still with you: Everything must be fulfilled that is written about me in the Law of Moses, the Prophets and the Psalms."

  Then he opened their minds so they could understand the Scriptures. He told them, "This is what is written: The Christ will suffer and rise from the dead on the third day, and repentance and forgiveness of sins will be preached in his name to all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. You are witnesses of these things. I am going to send you what my Father has promised; but stay in the city until you have been clothed with power from on high." (Luke 24:36-49 NIV84).

Why didn't the disciples believe?

- Fear—at first they were startled and afraid, and fear neurobiologically interferes with the ability to assimilate new information, to think, to process, we simply react. So they are initially startled, and Christ reassures them and tells them not to be afraid.
- Joy—it is too good to be true—it can't be real, can it? They start to believe, but this is all they hoped, dreamed, wished for can it really be true. So they move from startled fear, to nothing this good can really be true, the doubt of joy.

What did Jesus do to help them? He used the integrative evidence-based approach, revealing truth to them from all three threads, Scripture, Science, and Experience:

- He had them touch Him, experience for themselves that He was real
- He then ate fish, showing the laws of nature in operation, scientific demonstration of objective reality
- Then He took them through Scripture documenting how His life fulfilled all that was prophesied confirming their experience and the scientific evidence.

All three threads agreed—Jesus was risen from the dead!

Read the fourth paragraph,

- Here, too, we find a powerful motivation for witness, for mission: the Word of God. Jesus knew that to solidify the disciples' experience, they needed to understand why He had to die and what His resurrection signified. They needed their worldview to be shifted from a political and earthly kingdom to the great solution to sin and the victory of Christ over death. The gospel was so much more than achieving political sovereignty for Israel. It revealed Christ's victory over Satan and guaranteed that one day all wickedness in the world would be destroyed, that the earth would be created anew, and that God would be among His people. He "opened their understanding" (Luke 24:45, NKJV) so they could comprehend these truths, which they were to share with the world. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 48).

The lesson points out that the disciples needed their worldview shifted—they needed to realize that Jesus did not come to establish an earthly kingdom, built upon the principles, methods, and laws of this world. He did not come to use might and power, coercion, force, threats, punishments, physical war to overthrow the earthly enemies of Israel and establish an earthly kingdom that functions like all the other kingdoms of this world.

He came to eradicate the root to all conflict, war, division, hostility, fighting, abuse, exploitation, injustice and establish a kingdom of truth, love, and righteousness. And that requires the eradication of fear, selfishness, and sin out of the hearts of all who will be part of His kingdom.

So the disciples had to have a shift in understanding, what is called a worldview. They had believed rightly that Israel was called by God for a mission, but they believed wrongly that the mission was to establish and earthly kingdom that ruled by the same sinful and evil methods of all the other nations of the world.

What about Christianity—did Jesus, after His resurrection, call His followers to advance His kingdom on Earth? Yes! But did Christianity fall into the same trap as the Jewish nation, of thinking that the kingdom was to be advanced by using the same methods, principles, and processes that the evil nations of this world use? Did the church go to physical war, use imposed law, coercion, force, intimidation, imprisonment, and death to advance itself?

Why? Because the church accepted the lie that God's law functions like human law and justice is the punishing of law-breaking.

What about today? Are Christian's vulnerable to being drawn into sinful, worldly, fallen, kingdoms and support the practice of coercion, force, threat, punishment upon others on issues of conscience because they believe it is right to do so—because they believe it will save lives?

How do we protect ourselves from falling into this trap? By having a change in worldview, in understanding of the kingdom of God. And the core truth that determines our understanding of all if it, is our understanding about God's law. If we believe God's law functions like human law, imposed rules, we will always conclude God's justice is infliction of just punishment. This is why we must reject the Roman view of God's law and return to worshiping the Creator God whose laws are design laws.

Consider this historical quote from one of the founders of the SDA church:

- The great controversy [is] between Christ, the Prince of life, the Author of our salvation, and Satan, the prince of evil, the author of sin, the first transgressor of God's holy law. Satan's enmity against Christ has been manifested against His followers. The same hatred of the principles of God's law, the same policy of deception, by which error is made to appear as truth, by which human laws are substituted for the law of God, and men are led to worship the creature rather than the Creator, may be traced in all the history of the past. Satan's efforts to misrepresent the character of God, to cause men to cherish a false conception of the Creator, and thus to regard Him with fear and hate rather than with love, his endeavors to set aside the divine law, leading the people to think themselves free from its requirements, and his persecution of those who dare to resist his deceptions, have been steadfastly pursued in all ages. They may be traced in the history of patriarchs, prophets, and apostles, of martyrs and reformers (emphasis mine). (E.G. White, Great Controversy x.1).

This is the entire basis of the conflict, Satan alleges God makes up rules and then uses power to inflict punishment for rule-breaking, and people worship a creature rather than the Creator. We only return to worshiping the Creator when we reject the imposed law lie and realize God's laws are design laws.

TUESDAY

The lesson focuses upon the disciples waiting for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit before they begin their mission.

Thoughts? What is your understanding of the balance between waiting on and acting for the Lord?

Here are the lyrics to a song released by the Christian group Petra back in 1982—41 years ago. The song is entitled More Power to Ya

You say you've been feeling weaker, weaker by the day
You say you can't make the joy of your salvation stay
But good things come to them that wait
Not to those who hesitate
So hurry up and wait upon the Lord

More power to ya
When you're standing on His word
When you're trusting with your whole heart in the message you have heard
More power to ya
When we're all in one accord
They that wait upon the Lord, they shall renew, they shall renew their strength

Jesus promised His disciples He'd give strength to them
Jesus told them all to tarry in Jerusalem
When they were all in one accord
The power of His Spirit poured
And they began to turn the world around

So be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might Put on all His armor and fight the good fight
In all of our weakness, He becomes so strong
When He gives us the power and the strength to carry on

I love the truth in this song and the word play, we are both to wait—i.e. pause, cease, be still and know that God is the Lord, and to know His will, but we are also to actively be waiting, i.e. His wait staff, carrying out His will and purposes. A waiter is to wait nearby a table until something is needed and then carry out the duty—we are do wait upon the Lord, wait for our empowering, our enabling, out instructions, but then we are carry out our duties.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson points us to Acts chapter two, the outpouring of the Holy Spirit and Peter's sermon, how he called them out for crucifying Jesus and…

- When the people heard this, they were cut to the heart and said to Peter and the other apostles, "Brothers, what shall we do?" (Acts 2:37 NIV84).

What did Peter tell them?

- Peter replied, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins. And you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. The promise is for you and your children and for all who are far off—for all whom the Lord our God will call." (Acts 2:38-39 NIV84).

First note that the promise is not just for those individuals but for every person called by God—which is every person.

But what is promised if we repent and are baptized? The NIV says "the forgiveness of your sins" does that mean legal pardon or something else?

The KJV and NKJV read:

- Repent, and let every one of you be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins; and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. (Acts 2:38 NKJV).

The various lexicons give this definition for the Greek:

- ἄφεσις [aphesis /af·es·is/] translates as "remission" nine times, "forgiveness" six times, "deliverance" once, and "liberty" once. 1 release from bondage or imprisonment. 2 forgiveness or pardon, of sins (letting them go as if they had never been committed), remission of the penalty. (Strong, J. (1995). In Enhanced Strong's Lexicon. Woodside Bible Fellowship).

- the process of setting free or liberating—'release, liberty.' ἀπέσταλκέν με κηρύξαι αἰχμαλώτοις ἄφεσιν 'he has sent me to proclaim liberty to the captives' Lk 4:18. (Louw, J. P., & Nida, E. A. (1996). In Greek-English lexicon of the New Testament: based on semantic domains (electronic ed. of the 2nd edition., Vol. 1, p. 487). United Bible Societies).

So, this Greek word translated forgiveness means to release, set free, provide liberty—the question is from what?

And that is determined by the law lens one uses. If one uses the human law lens, and thereby is worshiping a creature rather than the Creator, then they think forgiveness is legal pardon by God achieved through the penalty being paid by Jesus. But when we worship the Creator and understand His laws are design laws, we realize that we are held in bondage by the lies about God we believe and our own sinful, carnal, nature with its fear, selfishness, guilt, and shame. And we are set free by the truth about God—the truth will set you free Jesus said (John 8:32), and we are set free when we respond to that truth in repentance and experience the baptism of the Holy Spirit which cleanses us, we are cleansed from guilt and shame through God's grace, and we receive new hearts and right spirits and are reborn with new desires that love God and others—all symbolized by baptism, the dying to the old life and the rising to the new life of trust in Jesus. Thus Biblical forgiveness for salvation is not a legal pardon, it is a restoration to righteousness through the grace and power of God.

Consider this quote from Thoughts from the Mount of Blessing:

- But forgiveness has a broader meaning than many suppose. When God gives the promise that He "will abundantly pardon," [modern translations read "freely pardon"] He adds, as if the meaning of that promise exceeded all that we could comprehend: "My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways My ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts." Isaiah 55:7-9. [Human ways are legal, based on imposed law and payment and punishment is required. But God's ways are the ways of the Creator whose laws are design laws. And payments and punishments are not required, healing and restoration is!] God's forgiveness is not merely a judicial act by which He sets us free from condemnation. It is not only forgiveness for sin, but reclaiming from sin. It is the outflow of redeeming love that transforms the heart. David had the true conception of forgiveness when he prayed, "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me." Psalm 51:10. And again he says, "As far as the east is from the west, so far hath He removed our transgressions from us." Psalm 103:12. (Thoughts from the Mount of Blessing 114, emphasis mine).

THURSDAY

The lesson asks us to consider how the early church functioned:

- They devoted themselves to the apostles' teaching and to the fellowship, to the breaking of bread and to prayer. Everyone was filled with awe, and many wonders and miraculous signs were done by the apostles. All the believers were together and had everything in common. Selling their possessions and goods, they gave to anyone as he had need. Every day they continued to meet together in the temple courts. They broke bread in their homes and ate together with glad and sincere hearts, praising God and enjoying the favor of all the people. And the Lord added to their number daily those who were being saved. (Acts 2:42–47 NIV84).

Where did they meet? In homes
What kind of services did they have? Discussion, like SS, not sermons.
What does it mean they had everything in common, selling their possessions and goods to help those in need?

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 7
Mission to My Neighbor

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read memory verse:

- He answered: "'Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength and with all your mind'; and, 'Love your neighbor as yourself.'" (Luke 10:27 NIV84).

What does this text mean to you?

We are to love our neighbor, but as we love ourselves, what does that mean?

- Do unto others as you would have them do unto you?
- Does it mean we have a responsibility to love ourselves—a duty?
- Does it mean that if we don't love ourselves that we are breaking the law of God?
- Is loving self the same as being selfish? What is the difference?
- What is love?
- Love is the principle of giving—but not giving anything, only giving that which is in harmony with God's designs for life, giving what is right, good, noble, true, pure, holy—giving what heals, restores, recreates, builds up, refreshes, nurtures. In other words, giving what is necessary to fulfill God's purposes.
- So what does it mean to love oneself?
    - It means to love oneself enough that we do not poison our bodies with substances that damage the brain, impair thinking, destroy one's health, and enslaves one.
    - It means loving oneself enough to give self healthy foods, reasonable exercise, adequate sleep, hydration, mental and spiritual rest—keeping oneself in the best health and condition to be able to fulfill God's purpose in one's life
    - It means ingesting the word of God into one's mind and meditating on Him, His character, His blessings and seeking to worship (model) oneself to be like Him
    - It means to be true to yourself—i.e., don't betray yourself by choosing to do that which you already know is wrong for you to do, is harmful. It means you don't give in to peer pressure, or emotional manipulation from others who try to get you to do something in governance of self that you know is wrong for you to do. It might be a moral issue like taking drugs; it might be a non moral issue like someone asking you to adopt their dog so they can go off to college. But if you love yourself, you are true to yourself, you choose to do that which your judgment determines is best for you in harmony with God's will for your life, not what others think.

- What does it mean to love others like this? It means that we seek to use our abilities and resources to bless others, to present truth in love that others need, that will bless them if they choose to accept it; it means we model godly living and the application of God's design laws to our own lives as a witness; it means we don't participate in clearly unhealthy and destructive practices and we give warning to those who do. And it means we always leave people free to reject the truth and suffering the consequences, and then bring grace and healing options to them when they seek help from those consequences.
- What does it mean to love God with all one's heart, soul, strength, and mind?
    - Doesn't it mean we are dedicated to God completely, our entire selves and thus seek with all our abilities to glorify God and advance His kingdom?
    - Does that mean we don't take a vacation because it would be selfish to do so? No—it means we do take a vacation because we want to love ourselves in a godly way—we want to have rest, time to rejuvenate, to keep ourselves healthy. But vacation means a break, time away, from our work, meaning we can't take a vacation if we aren't engaged in productive activity in the first place. So we are also actively engaged in productive living, whether for a paycheck, or volunteering, or running a household and homeschooling your children.

One of Satan's traps, if he cannot get good people to choose evil, is to overwhelm them with so many worthy and good projects, responsibilities, duties that they forget to love themselves, they stop resting, overwork themselves on the good to the point that they burn out and are no longer useful in God's cause.

Thus, we are to live lives of love for God and others, but that requires we love ourselves in a God-designed way. Which brings us to the first rule of caregiving.

If you are caregiver, whether a parent caring for a child, a nurse or doctor caring for a patient, a child caring for an elderly parent—the first rule is the health of the caregiver, because if you don't maintain your health then you cannot provide care to others and will need others to care for you. Thus it is important to step back and establish the baseline requirements in your life to maintain your health—such as 7-8 hours of sleep per night, regular healthy meals, time for exercise, time for personal meditation and prayer, time for Sabbath rest, relaxation, recreation. And we only compromise these routines for true emergencies, and only for brief periods of time.

Even Jesus our Savior and model, regularly took time away from needy people to sleep, eat, spend time with His Father, and with His friends.

Read first paragraph,

- We all know the text: " ' "Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength and with all your mind" ' " (Luke 10:27, NIV). Yet, our love for God can become superficial if we say that we love God but do not obey Him. We think that we love God, but how is this love demonstrated in our day-to-day life? Loving God requires full commitment of our heart, soul, body, and mind—daily. Anyone can say that he or she loves

> God; doing it, however, requires conscious effort. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 56).

How do you hear this sentence? "Yet, our love for God can become superficial if we say that we love God but do not obey Him"?

Have you ever heard this before? Jesus of course said that if we love Him we will obey His commandments—so this is quite a righteous idea; it is absolutely true. Yet, is it possible this truth, straight from Jesus, can be twisted to teach a lie, to discourage and tear down rather than encourage and build up? Can people who love God and seek to obey Him because they love Him actually have that love destroyed and end up leaving God because they sought to obey Him?

If this can happen how and what is the underlying problem, distortion, or lie that causes the one seeking to obey God because they love Him to leave Him?

How about this scenario—and you tell me if I am merely making up something that is complete fantasy, make-believe, has never happened, or is so remote it basically doesn't really occur, or is this something you have seen and heard of?

A young person goes to a Christian high school or college for the first time, and while there they meet Christian friends who share Jesus with them, and the Holy Spirit moves on their heart, and they experience the joy of salvation. They give their heart to Jesus and are thrilled with His love in their heart and they are on fire with love for Jesus and want to tell everyone they know about Him.

They eagerly want to get baptized, so they go to the local church pastor, with joy and happiness in their heart, telling of their love for Jesus and ask for baptism. But the pastor, instead of celebrating their conversion and scheduling a baptism, asks them if they have accepted the 28 fundamental beliefs and begun obeying God's law?

The young person looks confused and admits they haven't heard of the 28 fundamental beliefs. So the pastor goes on to tell them that if they love God they will obey His commandments and do all that God has instructed us to do. He then shows the Scripture where Jesus says "if you love me you will keep my commandments", and then tells the young student that there are 28 fundamental beliefs that Jesus commands us to accept and follow. Well the new convert certainly doesn't want to disobey Jesus, so they eagerly agree to baptismal classes to learn how to obey.

In the classes they learn that before they can be baptized, they:

- Must, as at absolutely minimum, stop eating pork, shellfish, or other "unclean" meats, but it would be much better if they became a vegetarian and also gave up cheese.
- Must stop wearing jewelry, wedding rings are acceptable, but it would be better to not wear those either.
- Must stop having the occasional glass of wine with dinner or beer during a ball game.
- Must absolutely stop their smoking habit, for God would not allow such a filthy habit to go through the cleansing waters of baptism.

- Must, as a minimum, stop paid employment from Friday sunset to Saturday sunset—(unless of course they work in the healthcare industry for a corporation that makes billions of dollars, but if it is their own private practice they must close it down each week). They are also given a long list of traditional rules that must be followed during the Sabbath hours, like not eating out in restaurants on Sabbath, unless one has pre-purchased voucher to pay for the meal ahead of time, and many more similar rules that must be obeyed in order to love Jesus.
- They are told they must start paying a faithful tithe of 10% pretax dollars to the local church, and offerings on top of that.
- They are taught that sin is breaking God's law and if we love God we don't break his rules, that we obey. And whenever we do break God's law, He records it in His heavenly record and if we don't get Jesus' blood applied to our account by repentance and confession and claiming His blood as our payment, then that sin remains and will come up against us in the judgment and God will be required to punish us for our sin, which means torture and execution. So, it is important to always, every single day obey, to not do anything wrong, and not get into any legal trouble with God, but if you do slip up it is imperative to confess it right away, for if you sin and suddenly get hit by a car before you have time to claim the blood of Jesus, then that sin will remain and God will find you guilty and you will not be saved.

And after weeks of working hard to obey, of going to indoctrination classes to be told what to think, of being scared out of their love and into fearful obedience, they are finally baptized, but the joy, the love, the passion for Jesus—the light has gone out. Instead, they live in fear of making a mistake, of not doing things right, of forgetting something that could be disobedience and getting them in legal trouble. They either live a miserable joyless legalistic Christianity, or they leave the church.

Is this scenario a complete fantasy or has it happened to far too many people? And what is the root cause to this false Christianity? The lie that God's law functions like human law.

So, what does it actually mean to obey? It means we have in our heart the desire to listen, understand, and follow God's instructions, directions, leadings, and design laws to the best of our ability.

It is like the little child who eagerly wants to please mommy or daddy.

Consider, a parent out weeding in their garden and behind them walks up their three-year-old and the three-year-old sees what they are doing and pulls up a tomato plant with a big smile and says, "help daddy?" Is this a rebellious and disobedient child? But how is their performance? They pulled up a tomato plant not a weed?

Alternatively, you send your fourteen-year-old son out to weed the garden and they pull up only weeds, yet while they do it they curse daddy because they can't be inside playing on their game station.

Which child is the obedient child? Biblical obedience is having the heart right with God, a willingness to listen and do—to the best of our ability and understanding what God would have us do. It is not about how well we do something, or even if we are doing it right at all—the action of the child who pulled up the tomato plant was completely wrong—but the heart attitude was completely right. And as soon as that child can comprehend the difference, that child will stop pulling tomato plants and joyfully pull only weeds.

The imposed law view, Satan's view, focuses on the behavior, the outward appearance, but God focuses on the heart!

SUNDAY

Read first paragraph,

- Who are we? Why are we here? What happens when we die? What is our ultimate fate? These are, in many ways, the most important questions mortal beings, beings who know that they are mortal (oysters and chickens are, too, but don't know it), can ask. And in the Gospel of Luke, someone comes to Jesus with what is, in fact, the most crucial question of all. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 57).

How do you answer these questions?

- Who are we?
    - Human beings—intelligent creatures, created by God in the image of God to be the living repository of God's living law of love, His character, His methods, the primary operating code upon which God Himself functions—and we have been given godlike abilities—the ability to procreate beings in our image, dominion to govern a planet, intelligence, self-determination, capacity to think and to act. We are created to be God's offspring, God's children, God's special creation.
- Why are we here?
    - Because God is love and God wanted a creation like ours to possess as many of His abilities as a creature could possess, to be able to pro-create, to make little beings in our image and to raise them and share in the joy of God when He creates beings and raises them—the joy of seeing them grow and learn. He wanted a creation that could share in some of His experiences, what it is like to govern in love, to dumb down your explanations in the treatment of children, or given none at all when lovingly caring for dogs, cats, goats, sheep. If Adam and Eve would have remained loyal. They would have had children in a world without sin, they would have governed over the entire planet, and they would have interacted with their children differently than the other creatures. God and humans would have grown in fellowship, intimacy as they shared their parenting and governing experiences together.
    - But we are here in this circumstance because of evil, because of Satan, because he was jealous of Jesus and because he began lying about God in heaven and lied about God to Adam and Eve. Those lies were believed and the circle of love and trust was broken. Adam and Eve infected themselves with fear and selfishness, known as sin, and their condition was no longer in harmony with God and God's law of life. Thus they became terminal, dead in trespass and sin. And because they still had the ability to procreate beings in their image, they had children born infected with fear and selfishness, born with a terminal sin condition. This is our state now. But God loved us too much to let us die of this condition, so He sent Jesus to take up our terminal condition and cure it, to eradicate from the humanity He partook the infecting death causing element and restore humanity to perfect sinlessness thus becoming the second Adam, the new head of humanity. And through trust we can participate in that victory and experience the indwelling Holy Spirit who takes what Christ achieved and reproduces it in us. We are reborn with new hearts and right spirits that again operate upon God's law of love and truth.

- What happens when we die?
    - The hardware degrades, the body turns to dust
    - The energy (breath of life) returns to God who gave it
    - The soul/psyche/individuality/software is stored safely with Jesus in heaven on the heavenly servers the Bible calls the Lamb's book of life, asleep, waiting for download into new hardware at the second coming.
- What is our ultimate fate?
    - It depends on whether we have accepted the remedy to our terminal condition—
        - For those who have taken the Remedy of Jesus their ultimate fate is eternal life
        - For those who have not their ultimate fate is eternal non-existence

These are my answers to the questions above—does the world offer different answers?

And what is the result of the world's answers?

What happens to a person if they believe that they are only a biological accident, the latest evolutionary change brought about by random forces, that they have no Creator, no purpose, no future, and that the principle of life is kill competitors in order to pass your genes along to another generation?

This godless philosophy is demonic, it is a hopeless discouraging worldview, that increases fear, despondency, discouragement, and people, seeking to avoid this demoralizing experience turn to all forms of distractions and entertainments—alcohol, drugs, gaming, movies, adventure seeking—all purposeless simply to divert their minds away to momentary pleasures, or they seek ever more power and control to make themselves feel safe.

MONDAY

Read third paragraph,

- Sometimes we want answers but do not put in the work ourselves to find them. Jesus said: " 'What is written in the Law? How do you read it?' " (Luke 10:26, ESV). Jesus pointed to a > very important aspect of learning. Instead of only listening to what others have to tell us, we need to read the Scriptures (the Word of God) for ourselves. The answers already are there, and the Holy Spirit works on our hearts to impress upon us what we need to do. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 58).

The lesson points out a very important truth, that all strength, all learning, is the result of personal effort, exertion, application. But often people who want answers, rather than studying for themselves they ask someone else to tell them the answer.

There is certainly a place for teachers, parents, professors to instruct students, to teach the facts, the principles, the methods, the protocols, reality—for without someone to tell us the basics we wouldn't know anything. A child wouldn't know the sky is blue and the grass is green if they are not told. But, teaching facts, design laws, reality, is not the same things as telling people how to problem solve, the answers to difficult questions, the explanations of life. Each person must study and know for themselves.

There is a difference between knowing the right answer and knowing why it is the right answer. For instance, if your child says—"2 plus 2 is 4" and you say, "How do you know that?" and they say, "because the teacher said so." They have the right answer, but they don't know how to math, they can't problem solve, they need someone else to tell them the answers. And if it isn't math, if it is a life problem, same concern—can they problem solve without someone telling them the answer. And if it is a spiritual issue, do they know the truth for themselves, or only the answers someone else has told them?

In relationships—can one person tell you ABOUT another person? Can one person KNOW another person FOR YOU?

Can other people tell you the facts, principles, science of buoyancy, and the mechanics of swimming? Can other people swim for you?

Can other people describe the nutritional facts of oranges? Can other people enjoy the taste of the orange and absorb the nutrients for you?

Understand design law—it is reality. Our God is the God of reality. And no other person can know God for you, can experience salvation for you, can mature and gain wisdom for you, can understand how reality works for you.

We can tell you how to swim, but you must get in the water, we can share the joy of what God's love and grace has done in our lives, but you must experience it for yourself.

The problem with the evil systems of the world—Satan's systems is that he doesn't want people to develop like this. He wants people to be mindless, thoughtless drones, serfs, slaves that allow another to do their thinking for them, who have accepted what another says, and obey because someone else has decided.

Consider these two historic quotes, what do you think?

> Under the guidance and control of the Holy Spirit, the powers of the missionary of the Lord are to be put to their very highest use. It is thus that man may become a laborer together with God. All whom God has endowed with reasoning powers may become intellectual Christians. God has given abundant evidence of the truth of his word, and he requires that those who would be counted as the followers of Christ should study the Scriptures, that they may be able to give to every man a reason of the hope that is in them, with meekness and fear. He has not required any one to believe without evidence. Let the inquirer after truth put to the stretch his mental powers in diligent study of the word of God. To neglect this duty is to place the soul in peril of eternal death. Each one is required to understand the conditions upon which eternal life depends. We must know what saith the Lord, that we may be able to live "by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord." We cannot afford to have another settle questions of such momentous import as those concerning our soul's salvation. We must open the Scriptures for ourselves, searching the word of God prayerfully, that we may know the truth as it is in Jesus. We cannot afford to trust to the ministers, to follow idle traditions, to subject our souls to human authority, but we must know for ourselves what God has said. We are to be laborers together with God, and we must know, we must be determined to know, what are the conditions upon which we may become heirs of salvation. If we neglect this important duty, we shall die in our sins. (Medical Missionary May 1, 1892, par. 5).

What is being described? Is what is being described true? Why?

- Is there a difference in an external authority granting a legal declaration over someone and someone experiencing a change in their internal operational functions?
- Is there a difference in a doctor declaring someone cancer free and the person actually being cancer free?
- Is there a difference in a judge declaring someone free of guilt and the person actually being free of guilt?
- Is there a difference in a teacher declaring that a student knows how to do calculus and the student actually being able to do calculus?

God is the God of reality—of truth, of what is real. Satan is the father of fantasy, of pretend, of make believe, of declaring what is not true to be true. Thus, if we want salvation we must in reality experience the indwelling of the Holy Spirit who transforms us. We must know God and Jesus Christ for ourselves. Consider this quote:

> If we get the wisdom of man before us as the wisdom of God, we are led astray by the foolishness of man's wisdom. [What is the wisdom of man? That God's law is imposed, that justice is holding people accountable for their crimes by the infliction of punishment. That we can have an orderly society by exercising more might, power, and force. That God is the source of inflicted death for sin. That authority comes from the one with the most power and therefore we are to surrender our thinking to those who make the rules and do what they say lest we be punished. Thus, we let the pastor, pope, priest, rabbi, cleric, doctor, governor, president, head of the CDC tell us what to think.] Here is the great danger with many. They have not an experience for themselves. [They believe what they are told, they have not examined and tested things for themselves and come to their own conclusion based on objective reality.] They have not been in the habit of prayerfully considering for themselves, with unprejudiced, unbiased judgment, questions and subjects that are new, which are liable to arise. [They don't examine the questions, the issues, based on the merits, based on the facts, evidence, truths, and principles of God—the design law of how life operates. No! They answer questions through biases, assumptions, prejudices of what they have been previously taught, through traditions of the church or society, through the human imposed law lie.] They wait to see what others will think. If they dissent, that is all that is needed. The evidence in their own minds then is positive that it is all of no account whatever. [They surrender their thinking to others. They replace objective truth with the opinion of the scholar or theologian or some other subject matter expert, rather than examining the evidence for themselves and prayerfully coming to their own conclusion.] This class is not small; but although their numbers are large, it does not change the fact that they are weak minded through long yielding to the enemy, inexperienced, and will always be as sickly as babes, walking by others' light, living on others' experience, feeling as others feel, acting as others act. They act as though they had not an individuality. Their identity is submerged in others. They are merely shadows of others whom they think [are] right. [Having spent their lives surrendering their thinking to others, allowing others to tell them the answers, they don't know how to problem solve, they don't know how to differentiate objective facts for claims, opinions, and proclamations, they don't know the design laws of God. They only know what others have told them. They know doctrines, they know rules, they know what others will think, what the media tells them, but they don't have a clue for themselves of what is right and wrong.] These will all fail of everlasting life unless they become sensible of their wavering character, and correct it. They will be unable to cope with the perils of the last days. They will possess no stamina to resist the Devil; for they do not know that it is he. Some one must be at their side to inform them whether it is a foe approaching, or a friend. [They don't have the ability to discern, they have never developed by practice the ability to tell right from wrong (Hebrews 5:14. They have not exercised their God given ability to reason, think, weigh evidences—and if you don't use it you lose it.] They are not spiritual, therefore spiritual things are not discerned. They are not wise in those things which relate to the kingdom of God. [Which is reality, objective truth, design laws. They have accepted fantasy, imposed law, rules, made up consequences, the belief in a future in which the Creator is the source of death inflicted out of unpropitiated wrath.] None, young or old, are excusable in trusting to another to have an experience for them. Said the angel, "Cursed be man who trusts in man, and makes flesh his arm." A noble self-reliance is needed in the Christian experience and warfare. (Review and Herald August 10, 1886).

So how do we have an experience for ourselves?

Consider this historical quote, do you agree or disagree?

> Experience is said to be the best teacher. Genuine experience is indeed superior to mere theoretical knowledge, but many have an erroneous idea as to what constitutes experience. Real experience is gained by a variety of careful experiments, made with the mind free from prejudice, uncontrolled by previously established opinions and habits. The results are marked with careful solicitude, and an anxious desire to learn, to improve, and to reform on every point that is not in harmony with physical and moral laws. (Christian Temperance and Bible Hygiene p. 109).

This is the integrative evidence-based approach, studying God's word and comparing it with God's laws built into nature and how life actually works, our experiences.

Fantasy is when we believe things that contradict objective reality—like there is no male and female, gender is a social construct etc. That is fantasy, falsehood, demonic.

And the goal of all of this is to decouple minds from reality, to get minds to live in a fantasy world a "reimagined" world, where lies are accepted as truth. This has been done throughout history through religions of all kinds, and is done in Christianity when we accept the fantasy that God functions like a human dictator making up rules and using power to inflict punishment for rule breaking—the penal legal punishment theory of atonement. And it is being done today by the godless left with their fantasies about essentially everything.

TUESDAY

Read first two paragraphs,

- The lawyer had asked the question, and he himself gave the answer: " ' "Love the Lord your God with all your heart . . ." and "Love your neighbor as yourself" ' "(Luke 10:27, NIV).
  What was the response of Jesus? He said, " 'You have answered rightly' " (Luke 10:28, NKJV). Jesus went on to challenge him to do something about it, by saying, " 'Do this and you will live' " (Luke 10:28, NKJV). (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 59).

Is Jesus' instruction to "do this and you will live" a rule one must keep in order to avoid getting into legal trouble and executed by the rule-giving judge?

Why did Jesus say that if you love God and others you will have eternal life?

What is the basis of life? Life comes from God, and God is love—and God has built living organisms to operate upon certain design protocols. What are those protocols called? His laws, and what happens if we break the design protocols for life? Injury, suffering, and if not healed, death. Thus the plan of salvation is the plan of life, it is a rescue plan, a recovery plan, a redemption plan, a healing plan that restores those out of harmony with how life is built to operate to be back in harmony to how God constructed life to operate. It is restoring God's living law into the heart and mind of the sinner:

- This is the covenant I will make with the house of Israel after that time, declares the Lord. I will put my laws in their minds and write them on their hearts. I will be their God, and they will be my people. (Hebrews 8:10 NIV84).

This is why the Bible says:

- The law of the LORD is perfect, reviving the soul. (Psalm 19:7 NIV84).

Jesus is simply saying if you live in harmony with the laws of life you have life.

It is sin, fear, selfishness, the breech in love that severs your connection with God that causes death. Restoration of trust/faith, based upon the truth, results in opening the heart to receive the indwelling Spirit who purges the fear and selfishness, strengthens our trust and love and solidifies our understanding in truth.

The lesson cites James 2:17-22:

- In the same way, faith by itself, if it is not accompanied by action, is dead. But someone will say, "You have faith; I have deeds." Show me your faith without deeds, and I will show you my faith by what I do. You believe that there is one God. Good! Even the demons believe that—and shudder. You foolish man, do you want evidence that faith without deeds is useless? Was not our ancestor Abraham considered righteous for what he did when he offered his son Isaac on the altar? You see that his faith and his actions were working together, and his faith was made complete by what he did. (James 2:17-22 NIV84).

What does this mean?

Martin Luther rejected the book of James as inspired because of this passage. He considered this adding works to faith and Martin Luther while seeking to follow the truth created a new theological theory that moved away from old ideas, but sadly that idea itself was based upon imposed human law and thus was also false, but still a move in the right direction. And that made up theological construct is called penal substitution theology which Martin Luther invented in order to overthrow the false teaching about purgatory. But his penal/legal theory sadly was based on the human law lie and while moving away from some of the errors of the past, like purgatory, his theories did not complete the Reformation. More truth was needed for that—and the key truth, which many theologians in our own church have not accepted is the truth that God's laws are design laws, not imposed rules like Rome makes.

If you understand the law as imposed rules then you teach various systems of works or vicarious legal theologies with law keeping done by Jesus that frees us of the responsibility to keep the law.

But if you come back to worship God as Creator and understand His law as design law, it makes perfect sense. It is simply saying that:

- believing that it is beneficial to eat a healthy diet does you no good if you eat only junk food
- believing that being faithful to one's spouse is right, builds trust, prevents guilt and shame does you no good if you cheat on your spouse
- believing that an antibiotic will cure your pneumonia does you no good if you don't take it
- believing that exercise will make you stronger does you no good if you don't exercise
- believing in Jesus and believing that salvation is through trust in Him, does you no good if you don't actually trust Him. And how do we trust Him? By putting into action what we know He would have us do with our lives—we do what is right in governance of ourselves and we trust Jesus with how things turn out, instead of calculating how to get every advantage for self or make things turn out the way we want. Abraham is an example, the three worthies on the plain of Durah are an example.

WEDNESDAY

Read second paragraph,

- "Love is the underlying principle of God's government in heaven and earth, and it must be the foundation of the Christian's character. This alone can make and keep him steadfast. This alone can enable him to withstand trial and temptation."—Ellen G. White, Christ's Object Lessons, p. 49. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 60).

What is another name for "principle"? Law, thus the underlying law of God's government is love.

The same author is a variety of places makes this clear, here is one example:

- It will be seen that the glory shining in the face of Jesus is the glory of self-sacrificing love. In the light from Calvary it will be seen that the law of self-renouncing love is the law of life for earth and heaven; that the love which "seeketh not her own" has its source in the heart of God; and that in the meek and lowly One is manifested the character of Him who dwelleth in the light which no man can approach unto. (The Desire of Ages p. 19).

The law of love is the law of life—what does this mean? Is it a rule that God says you must do or He will kill you? Or is it operational, functional, a design protocol upon which life is actually built by God to operate?

It is the principle of giving upon which all life is constructed to operate—we have given many examples of this, such as the oxygen/CO2 cycle, the water cycle and more.

And this law, this principle, this motive to actions must be the basis of Christian character—why? For it is the only basis for life, it is the only possible way to be at-one with God who is love; any other basis takes us out of harmony with God and His kingdom.

How do we experience this love? By coming to know God:

- We love because he first loved us. (1 John 4:19 NIV84)
- God's kindness leads you toward repentance (Romans 2:4 NIV84).

It is only through experiencing, knowing, God for ourselves that our fears can be overcome by His goodness, mercy, love, kindness, grace and that we surrender our hearts to Him and invite Him and our hope for transformation is not disappointed because:

- God has poured out his love into our hearts by the Holy Spirit, whom he has given us. (Romans 5:5 NIV84)

THURSDAY

The lesson focuses on the story of the Good Samaritan, read the second and third paragraph,

- Are there people around us who have been unjustly treated by others? Have we done whatever we can to help them?

  It is true that sometimes pastors, elders, and members do not help those who need help. Sometimes people of another faith may be kinder toward people in the community than we are. We may talk about being kind; yet, others may meet the needs of people that we don't address. If our faith means anything, we must reach out and help those in need. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 61).

When the lesson says, "Sometimes people of another faith may be kinder toward people in the community than we are" what do they mean? They are primarily meaning people of another Christian denomination, not people who don't believe in God and who have faith in Buddha, or godless science.

But if people actually have a different "faith" than you and I do not mean a different denomination than you, but a different faith—what would that mean?

In Revelation chapter 7 it described the company of the saved at the end of time in these words:

- a great multitude that no one could count, from every nation, tribe, people and language, standing before the throne and in front of the Lamb (Revelation 7:9 NIV84).

Do the people described in this verse have a different faith or the same faith? Don't they all have saving faith in Jesus as their Savior?

Does this describe people from one denomination?

So, how can people from more than one denominational or cultural group have the same saving faith?

Do we err when we change the definition of faith from what the saved experience in their relationship with Jesus, into a euphemism for a belief system, a creed, a list of fundamental beliefs, membership in a denomination?

The lesson rightly points out that if our faith means anything we are to help those in need, but that begs the question what does it mean to help those in need?

Consider this case of a man who came to Jesus seeking help to solve a family dispute—did Jesus help Him?

- Someone in the crowd said to him, "Teacher, tell my brother to divide the inheritance with me." Jesus replied, "Man, who appointed me a judge or an arbiter between you?" (Luke 12:13-14 NIV84)

Did Jesus help this man?

Was Paul refusing to help people who were hungry when he wrote:

- For even when we were with you, we gave you this rule: "If a man will not work, he shall not eat." (2 Thessalonians 3:10 NIV84).

What does it mean to help people?

When we love others we do help—but we can only actually help if we understand reality, if we understand God's design laws of how He built life and health to operate. We cannot help people by allowing empathy, compassion, sympathy to lead us to do for others that which is their responsibility to do for self. For instance,

- We do not help people by solving life's problems for them, but by teaching them how to think and discern for themselves
- We do not help someone by doing their physical therapy exercises for them…even if they are crying because the exercises hurt
- We do not help someone by doing their psychotherapy for them, even if their psychological work is painful and causes them to cry
- We do not help people by insulating them from the consequences of destructive choices, but by opening avenues to heal and recover from those choices—but those avenues will always require their choice to actively engage and apply to their own lives—why? Because God's healing is not about simple relief of pain, but of healing the underlying pathology that is causing the pain. And that is sin-sickness of heart and mind, fear and selfishness, and that can only be removed by the choice of the sinner to exercise their trust in God, to confront the fear, the same, the guilt, and choose to stop running from it and instead to stand and face it by trusting God with their lives, stop trying to protect self, and instead choosing to live the truth that God has convicted them to live.

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 8
Mission to the Needy

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read memory text:

- "The King will reply, 'I tell you the truth, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers of mine, you did for me.'" (Matthew 25:40 NIV84).

In the parable these words are spoken to a certain group of people at a certain time in human history—who hears these words and when?

- "When the Son of Man comes in his glory, and all the angels with him, he will sit on his throne in heavenly glory. All the nations will be gathered before him, and he will separate the people one from another as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats." (Matthew 25:313-32 NIV84).

So when are these words being spoken? At the end of time, when Jesus comes, this is the final conclusion of what determines who is saved and who is lost, who is going to heaven and who is not.

And what did Jesus say makes the difference, what is the separating factor?

Jesus lists many specific items that separates the sheep from the goats. Note what Jesus recites:

- "Then the King will say to those on his right, 'Come, you who are blessed by my Father; take your inheritance, the kingdom prepared for you since the creation of the world. For I was hungry and you gave me something to eat, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you invited me in, I needed clothes and you clothed me, I was sick and you looked after me, I was in prison and you came to visit me.'" (Matthew 25:34-36 NIV84).

What are the elements Jesus recites? Every element is an act of love, of beneficence, of giving to bless, heal, uplift, another person.

Did Jesus list any of the following as determining who is among the sheep or goats:

- You have had the right ceremonial baptism?
- You partook of the right ceremonial communion wafer?
- You engaged in ceremonial foot washing before taking the ceremonial wafer?
- You didn't wear any jewelry?
- You didn't eat flesh foods?

- You accepted the seventh day Sabbath and closed your business and started going to church on the Sabbath?
- You accepted the 28 fundamental beliefs and publicly declared me as your Savior?
- You were a member of X denominational church?

Why did Jesus list what Jesus' listed and why do so many Christians focus upon things like ceremonies, doctrinal correctness, diet, dress, or organizational membership?

Can everyone of the items I listed be done from fear and selfishness without being reborn, without love in the heart, without actually knowing God?

But do people genuinely sacrifice their time and energy to uplift others without love in their heart?

Again, Jesus reveals God's kingdom is the kingdom of truth, love, and freedom, built by God upon design laws that are functional, that life itself is constructed to operate upon. God does not run His universe like a Roman dictator, like a creature, with made up rules requiring external infliction of punishment.

But because Christianity became Romanized when it accepted Rome's version of law, almost all of Christianity teaches that God's law is imposed and God's justice is legally enforce through His use of external power to punish sinners, and salvation is legal adjustment through external application of some blood payment to an account in heaven, and that we participate through a faith-based claim, but then must start keeping the rules—so Christianity becomes a doctrinal battle of various Bible scholars to analyze the Scripture and determine what are the true legal requirements that apply, what laws are still "on the books" and what laws has God rescinded, amended, or revoked.

It is really a sad state of affairs because it keeps Christianity divided into over 41,000 different groups arguing this text and that text, this requirement and that requirement, all focused on self, and fear of missing something, of not knowing some fact, remembering some sin, doing the ceremony the wrong way, or believing the wrong doctrine.

But when Jesus comes back—there are only two groups—the sheep and the goats, and all the saved are among the sheep, and all the sheep will not be from one earthly denominational church, all the sheep when Jesus comes will not have participated in communion in the same way, will not all have been baptized in the same way, will not all dress in the same way, or have eaten the same diet, or gone to church on the same day—but they will all have been reborn to live out God's law of truth, love, in freedom in how they treat others.

Jesus said,

- The kingdom of God does not come with your careful observation, nor will people say, "Here it is," or "There it is," because the kingdom of God is within you (Luke 17:20, 21 NIV84).

I am suggesting that Satan's true end-time deception is not about a wrong doctrine it is in getting Christians to adopt his false methods and principles, regardless of doctrinal purity.

Consider those religious leaders who crucified Christ; their primary issue wasn't that they had a different Sabbath, Bible, feast days, diet, or dress code than Jesus. What was different was their methods and principles. They were driven by fear and survival drives and, thus, accepted the methods and principles of this fallen world, which is might makes right, survival of the fittest, the strongest survive, those with power win, so right is to impose one's will through law and law enforcement and justice is to punish rule breakers—and Jesus was a rule breaker.

And what did those religious leaders do? By their methods and motives, "it is better for you that one man die for the people than that the whole nation perish" (John 11:50 NIV84). The ends justify the means.

The Jewish leaders who rejected Christ did not do so because of a disagreement over a list of doctrines. They did so because they hated His methods of truth, love, and freedom. They hated Jesus' compassion, His grace, His forgiving of sinners, His healing of the unclean, His method of Sabbath observance, and His treating women and foreigners as having equal value as human beings. They hated His shift away from behavioral and doctrinal rules to character development based upon love for God and others.

As we approach the second coming of Christ, Satan will not limit his attacks upon the saints to false doctrines. It will not simply be a question of whether one claims faith in Jesus, observes a day of worship, or practices a certain method of religious ceremony. The final test will be about whether we maintain loyalty to Jesus by being like Jesus in the methods we practice in how we live and treat others! When at the second coming the King separates the sheep (saved) from the goats (lost), He specifically tells us what makes the difference—how they treated others!

Are we the type of people who, while claiming to be followers of Jesus, would use the power of our position to intimidate, coerce, or pressure people to violate their consciences—to do what we believe is right what they believe is wrong? What if it were to "save lives"—perhaps even an entire nation? Isn't it better for one man to die for the people than for the nation to be destroyed? Isn't it better for a few healthy, symptom-free employees to be forced to take a medicine they don't want than for the business to be fined, closed, or for people to die?

Satan's final deception will be along these lines: Attacking the saints with a false allegation that threatens our reputations, livelihoods, status, or income—all designed to incite fear and our desire to survive, to protect ourselves, to protect our reputations, to lash back, to attack and destroy the enemy who is falsely accusing us. We will be tempted with anger, resentment, and a desire to take revenge, to "punish" our enemies. However, if we do that—even when the other party is in the wrong—whose methods are we practicing, whose kingdom are we advancing, whose character are we forming? Thus, Paul advised:

- Bless those who persecute you; bless and do not curse. … If your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him something to drink. In doing this, you will heap burning coals on his head. Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good (Romans 12:14, 20, 21 NIV84).

And Jesus said:

- You have heard that it was said, "Love your neighbor and hate your enemy." But I tell you: Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, that you may be sons of your Father in heaven. He causes his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sends rain on the righteous and the unrighteous. If you love those who love you, what reward will you get? Are not even the tax collectors doing that? And if you greet only your brothers, what are you doing more than others? Do not even pagans do that? Be perfect, therefore, as your heavenly Father is perfect (Matthew 5:43–48 NIV84).

When we are wronged, we have to decide how we will respond, whose method, law, principle will we apply to ourselves in our response to injustice? Will we apply to our own hearts and minds faith/trust in Jesus, choose to love our enemies and trust Jesus with righting the wrongs, closing the lions' mouths, shielding us from the flames of persecution, or do we seek to use the methods of the world kill or be killed?

What happens in our hearts and minds if we retain resentment, bitterness, anger, or a desire for payback against those who have wronged us? And what happens if we justify those desires by seeking payback through human law and human justice? Have you seen the various groups fighting around the world for greater political power in order to enforce their version of what is right upon others? And what is happening to the people who do this? What is happening in such communities? Do you see the destruction that comes when we seek to achieve our understanding of righteousness through the methods of imposed law and coercive enforcement?

But what happens to our characters if we choose to accept Jesus, choose to reject fear and survival drives, and, instead, choose to bless those who persecute us and to love our enemies?

The final deceptions will be how do we treat those who we believe are wrong, who worship on the wrong day, who believe in the wrong god, who don't eat the right foods, who are not part of our community—it will not be proving our position right, but loving people who we believe are wrong.

For it is about whether we have had God's character, His living law restored within us and whether we love like God loves in how we govern ourselves, and this determines which law is written upon our hearts.

SUNDAY

The lesson focuses our attention on the story of friends bringing the paralytic man to Jesus and lowering him down through the roof. Read second paragraph,

- By bringing their friend to Jesus, these men took on the responsibility to care for him. God is calling us to be like this man's friends—to lead the needy to Jesus Christ. This work requires faith, action, patience, and a willingness, if need be, to be unconventional. The men came to Jesus but encountered barriers. They could not bring their helpless friend to Jesus through traditional means. They did not give up; instead they found an innovative way of getting the man to Jesus Christ. Dropping their friend down from the roof! Yet, according to Luke, Jesus approved of what they did (see Luke 5:20). (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 65).

I am not sure what the lesson means by the first sentence, "By bringing their friend to Jesus, these men took on the responsibility to care for him."

What do you think they mean by this? It seems confusing to me? Are they saying that if Jesus didn't heal the man that they were taking responsibility for his lifelong care? That his family were not going to care for him, or only that they took the responsibility to get him to Jesus? But that seems like a weird way to say it, why not say, they took the responsibility to get him help, to get him to Jesus?

Are they suggesting that if we help someone who is wheelchair bound by giving them a ride to the doctor that we take on the responsibility to care for them from that point onward?

I am not understanding what they are saying, it must mean something else?

If they mean that they took the responsibility to get him to Jesus—okay that makes sense, in that context, because Jesus was physically right there and it was within their power to bring the man physically into Jesus' presence. And the lesson highlights the creative way they did it.

If that is what they mean, how do we apply those insights to our lives today?

Do we have a responsibility to share Jesus with people, to creatively do things to place the gospel, the truth about Jesus, within the reach of people, and to invite people to meet and know Jesus by sharing our experiences with Jesus, the lessons we have learned in nature and Scripture, valuable resources etc.?

What are ways you have found effective in leading people to Jesus?

Read the third paragraph,

- Jesus' desire is for us to bring our helpless friends to Him. The Bible refers to Jesus as the Great Physician who longs to forgive and heal those who are suffering, whoever they are. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 65).

Does Jesus forgive only those who come to Him, or does Jesus forgive everyone, but only those who come to Him receive the forgiveness that He has already chosen and enacted from His heart? And it is only by receiving into our hearts the love, grace, forgiveness of God through Jesus that we are won to trust and open the heart for healing.

So, yes Jesus does long to heal everyone, and Jesus actually forgives everyone—but not everyone accepts and experiences His forgiveness and thus even though forgiven by Him, they remain in fear, selfishness, rebellion, and dying from the terminal sin condition.

MONDAY

The lesson focuses on the methods of Jesus in reaching people and highlights four steps or actions that Jesus took that we are to employ in our mission to others:

- He mingle, socialized, and got out with people actually connecting and meeting them
- He showed sympathy
- He ministered to their needs
- He won their confidence

This certainly makes sense, it is hard to help people if we never connect with them in some way, and it is hard to help people if we don't sympathize or care about them, and people will often reject any helpful intervention if they don't trust or have confidence in the one offering to help.

So it makes sense that we need to connect with people, care about them, sympathize with their situation, and build some basis for them to have confidence in us enough to consider and try whatever we are offering to help them.

But that begs the question—what does it mean to help someone?

It is enough to meet them, sympathize with them, and truly and genuinely want their best interest, and therefore win their trust in order to be able to actually help them, or is something more needed?

Well on a purely emotionally relational level if you meet someone, care about them, and empathize with them—there is a benefit to doing that and nothing more. So it is helpful for people to know they are valued, cared about, loved as the person they are, so that will always be helpful. But does that mean the specific need or problem will be resolved by our connecting, sympathizing and engendering trust?

What else is needed to move beyond the human connection compassion benefit?

Possessing and administering truth—it requires that we understand God's design laws for life and health, and we examine the individual and their circumstance through the lens of how God built life and health to operate and that we diagnose accurately what is the cause of the problem, and then we bring to bear—as we are able—interventions that are in harmony with God's design laws to restore the person to wellness.

In other words, we meet, we care for (love), we are genuine and honest i.e. trustworthy—thus build rapport, build a therapeutic alliance, but we must also have something to offer that is objectively, factually, true—reality based and not fantasy, false, mythical, magical, fake, wrong, or in any other way violating the protocols life and health are built upon.

Like the doctors who treated George Washington's pneumonia—they met him, sympathized with him, won his confidence, and then bled him and leeched him to bleed out the evil humors. Were they trying to harm him? No! They were trying to help, their consciences were clear, they did not seek to harm, or exploit, or abuse. They were acting in love, but they were not acting with truth and thus they harmed him.

Can this be done on a spiritual level, people meet others, sympathize with them, win their trust and then intervene with some spiritual intervention that harms rather than heals? How? Because they introduce something that violates some aspect of God's design law for life and health.

Can you think of any examples?

Jesus said to the Jewish evangelists of His day,

- "Woe to you, teachers of the law and Pharisees, you hypocrites! You travel over land and sea to win a single convert, and when he becomes one, you make him twice as much a son of hell as you are." (Matthew 23:15 NIV84).

Winning people to false systems of theology, views of God that are wrong, that incite fear, that crush love do not bring healing, such falsehoods damage and destroy.

The methods of mingling, showing sympathy, ministering to real needs, and engendering trust can not only be done by good hearted and innocent people who love but are ignorant of the truth like the doctors who treated George Washington, but these same methods can be used by people who do not love, cult leaders, fanatics, and purveyors of evil. The difference between the good and evil is that the good not only love but they also possess and advance truth.

So the point is that what Jesus did is absolutely right—but Jesus also brought truth to bear as well as healing the person physically, he told the man after healing him:

- “See, you are well again. Stop sinning or something worse may happen to you.” (John 5:14 NIV84).

This particular man’s condition was a result of his lifestyle choices; we are not told specifically what his sin was, but there are sinful choices that can result in paralysis. Jesus is saying, now that the consequences of sinful living have been removed, stop choosing to injure yourself in this way.

It would be like an alcoholic in liver failure getting a liver transplant—and if they want to avoid liver failure again, then they need to stop drinking and live in harmony with the laws of health. If the alcoholic doesn’t stop drinking no legal or medical authority will impose punishment on them, but they will destroy their health again.

Likewise, if this man that Jesus healed went back into sinful living, God would not impose legal punishment upon him, but he would again destroy himself, physically, mentally, emotionally, and spiritually.

TUESDAY

The lesson is about refugees and immigrants—any thoughts about this?

In God’s universe, in the way God looks down on earth—there is only one human race all descended from Adam and Eve, and every single person born into this world is born as a part of that biological family tree.

And every single person is born with a terminal sin condition and is destined to eternal death from what we inherit from Adam…but God loved the world too much to let us die, so He sent Jesus to be born into this very same sick and dying family tree and to open a new door, a new path, a new branch of the human family tree that leads to eternal life with a new head a second Adam. And because of Jesus there are now two human family trees—the family born of Adam, born in sin, conceived in iniquity, and the family reborn of God, born of Jesus, restored, recreated, and renewed in righteousness.

The human beings born of Adam have the law of sin and death written upon their heart. The human beings reborn of God have the law of God, the law of life written upon their hearts.

Thus, on Earth today there are only two human races—the saved and the lost, the healed and the terminal, the sheep and the goats—those who have been reborn with Jesus as their head and those who have rejected that opportunity and retained fear, selfishness, rebellion, sin as the inheritance from Adam.

The two antagonistic principles, God’s principles of truth, love, freedom are at war against lies, fear based selfishness, and coercion. It is like two different operating systems driving the function of people. And it is these two systems, methods, motives, that divide society.

The first set of brothers, Cain and Abel, were not united in godly love but were divided in sin—in fear and selfishness—which inflamed envy and jealousy in Cain, who murdered his righteous brother (Genesis 4:8).

There has been a division in the human family ever since—a division between those who, despite being born in sin and conceived in iniquity (Psalm 51:5), have been won back to trust in God and reborn with righteous hearts and those who have hardened their hearts against God and become solidified in selfishness and sin.

At the time of the Flood, only one righteous man remained on the earth with his family. The rest of the human population had solidified into a worldwide rebellion against God. In mercy, in love, as a therapeutic act to keep open the avenue for the Messiah and fulfill the promise of Genesis 3:15, God put that rebellious world to sleep in death.

But shortly thereafter, the rejectors of God's mercy began to unite again in a unified rebellion against God, seeking to build a tower into heaven. So, once again, God therapeutically intervened by confusing the languages and scattering the people around the world (leading to the distinct racial divisions we see today), steps designed by God to slow the lies of Satan and impede humanity's rebellion against heaven and, thereby, allow the plan of salvation to be completed (Genesis 11:8, 9).

These language, tribal, racial, national, and ethnic differences are not evil; these differences are not sinful—they have no bearing on our worth as human beings, they have no value in determining good or evil, but God did foresee that these differences along superficial characteristics would work to keep the sinful human race from uniting in a worldwide rebellion against Him and heaven, like the people did at the time of the Flood.

In God's kingdom we do not divide ourselves based on race, tribe, language, national or ethnic differences.

But there is to be an intelligent and purposeful division that we as Christians actively seek to create and promote among all people.

The Bible recognizes this division as the only one that righteous people are to act upon—the division between good and evil. The Bible describes this division between the righteous and the unrighteous in these terms:

- The sheep and the goats
- The wheat and the tares
- The fruitful vine and withered vine
- The pure woman and the harlot
- The faithful and unfaithful
- The holy and the unholy
- The saved and the lost

Dividing along these lines is godly. Differentiating the righteous from the unrighteous in order to wisely discriminate regarding whom to associate with, date, marry, hire, place on our boards, and allow to be our friends is a very godly approach to life.

- Do not be yoked together with unbelievers. For what do righteousness and wickedness have in common? Or what fellowship can light have with darkness? What harmony is there between Christ and Belial? What does a believer have in common with an unbeliever? What agreement is there between the temple of God and idols? For we are the temple of the living God. As God has said: "I will live with them and walk among them, and I will be their God, and they will be my people. Therefore come out from them and be separate" (2 Corinthians 6:14–17 NIV84).

We are called to discriminate the honest from the dishonest, the loyal from the disloyal, those who love others from those who are selfish and exploit others. We are to actively discern the wise from the foolish, the kind from the cruel, and the merciful from the vengeful.

The apostle Paul taught that as we approach the second coming of Christ, we are to be purposeful in disassociating ourselves from certain people:

- But mark this: There will be terrible times in the last days. People will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boastful, proud, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, without love, unforgiving, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, not lovers of the good, treacherous, rash, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God—having a form of godliness but denying its power. Have nothing to do with them (2 Timothy 3:1–5 NIV84, emphasis mine).

We are to be discriminating in our associations, relationships, hiring, and friends because, as Paul also wrote, "Bad company corrupts good character" (1 Corinthians 15:33 NIV84).

God created human beings to be united in love and trust, but humanity became divided when Adam and Eve sinned. The natural state of this sinful world is selfishness, and Jesus did not come to unite with sin and selfishness but to set people free from sin and restore them to righteousness and eternal life. This necessarily means separating people from all that is unholy and ungodly.
Jesus cannot provide eternal life to people who refuse to leave sinfulness behind.

Therefore, Jesus seeks to separate people from sin—and all associations that keep sin active in their lives!

But Satan works to get people to embrace the fear, selfishness and sin and to divide society based on race, ethnicity, language, national origin and other innocuous differences.

Satan knows he cannot win if Jesus is uplifted, if the gospel is made central. Therefore, he actively opposes it. The evil one does not want people to focus upon Jesus and then recognize the righteous divide between truth and lies, love and selfishness, good and evil, so he has a two-step trap to keep people from turning to Jesus and thereby inflame evil divisions.

Step One: Satan replaces the godly dividing line between moral and characterological good and evil with some other superficial difference occurring among people groups—race, gender, language, ethnicity, national origin, etc.—and causes people to attribute value, privilege, and superiority/inferiority to those differences, thereby inflaming fear, selfishness, jealousy, envy, hate, and violence and inciting acts of injustice against those deemed inferior.

In step one, he deceives some people into believing the lie that skin color or gender or national origin makes some people inferior or less valuable or worthy. This lie leads to the creation of various caste systems (including the historical notion of "divine right" of rulers and the lie that there is an actual difference between people in the royal class and commoners). And these false divisions cause people to inflict real injustice upon the innocent—slavery, Jim Crow, aristocratic oppression of the commoner, and many other forms of exploitation, abuse, and restrictions of human freedom.

His step-one lie has divided society for millennia—and people still fight over this lie today. But as evil as Satan's step-one deception is, his step-two lie is even more diabolical.

Step Two: Satan's second step to ensnare people into becoming like him and dividing society is by tricking good people who recognize his step-one lie into seeking to rectify the step-one injustices by using Satan's methods.

This means that rather than pursuing justice by advancing the gospel and placing Jesus and God's methods of doing right at the center, Satan tricks people into placing the various injustices of the wicked at the center. Racism, sexism, and various other wrongs are focused upon, which inflames anger, outrage, and our sense of injustice—and then Satan offers his solution, "social justice," by the application of law, coercion, and external power to force behavior change, rather than winning people to love and trust. This two-step deceit keeps society divided, inflicts more layers of injustice upon more innocents, and actively keeps Jesus out of heart and mind, obstructing the only solution to racism and all other forms of human injustice.

What makes this so diabolical is that this method of seeking "social justice" causes people to feel good, to feel they are doing right, to even believe they are advancing God's kingdom—after all, they are opposing evil—but all the while, they are advancing Satan's kingdom, practicing his methods, spreading more evil, corrupting their own character, obstructing the gospel, and inciting greater societal division.

The only solution for division is to cut fear, selfishness, and sin out of human hearts. And the only way that can happen is to place Jesus Christ at the center. We must advance the gospel of Jesus Christ and practice His principles of truth, love, and freedom in how we treat others.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson focuses on helping the hurting…what does it mean to help?

If the government shows up and says they are here to help—do you feel immediate relief?

What is genuine help?

I have patients say all the time about some loved one, "I just want to help them."

But, what often happens is that the person seeking to help actually interferes with the health of the one they claim they want to help. Why and how?

Because many people are motivated by sympathy and empathy—they see someone they love hurting, struggling, in some form of pain—and they seek to help—by relieving the pain, the suffering, the immediate distress—but not the cause and often that action removes the impetus for the hurting one to get well.

Like removing the pain of someone with a cavity, but not filling the cavity. It is the pain that motivates the person to go to the dentist. Without the pain the cavity will grow.

What about a person doing physical therapy and they cry because it hurts—do you help them by doing the exercises for them?

What if it isn't physical therapy but psychotherapy, working through some past trauma—can you do that work for another? And do we help by focusing only on relieving the pain?

What about if a child is really struggling to learn math, they are angry, frustrated, throwing a temper tantrum—do we help the child by sitting down and basically doing their homework for them?

How much help is helping with a child writing a paper for school or doing other projects?

Where is the line between helping and infantilizing?

Remember God's design laws, if we want any ability to get stronger we must exercise it. If we want our children to develop skills we must give them opportunities to exercise those skills without us intervening to do it "better."

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 9
Mission to the Powerful

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

What do you think of the title?

The lesson points out that God loves the rich and powerful just as much as He loves the poor and powerless—and this is absolutely true.

But are there obstacles that obstruct the rich and powerful from receiving Jesus that the poor and powerless don't have? What are some of those?

- A diminished awareness of need? Can fame, power, and wealth deceive people into thinking that they are good, that they don't need God, or that they are already right with Him, whereas sickness, poverty, and powerlessness leads people to seek help from God?
- Can the rich and powerful be pursued by people wanting something from them—money, favors, (including from church organizations) so much so that they put barriers up (security, gated communities, staff and employee screeners) so that it is more difficult to reach them individually and also difficult to get materials into their hands?
- Can the rich and powerful have more distractions from whatever real life problems they struggle with—such as travel, entertainments, new and worldly exciting adventures that prevent them from considering the important questions of life?

Any suggestions on reaching the rich and powerful with the gospel?

SUNDAY

The lesson asks us to read Daniel chapter four, which is the dream of Nebuchadnezzar about a great tree that is cut down. That dream prophesied the coming 7 years in which Nebuchadnezzar would be in a psychotic state, living among the animals, and that when he acknowledges the God of heaven his sanity would be restored and he would be restored to the throne of his kingdom.

All of this came to pass and Nebuchadnezzar finally acknowledge the God of heaven.

Read second paragraph,

- A striking example in the Bible of how God reaches powerful unbelievers is the story of King Nebuchadnezzar. God's judgment was executed on him in a way similar to some Israelite kings (see, for example, 2 Chron. 32:25, 26; 1 Kings 14:21–31; 1 Samuel 28). The biblical account of > Nebuchadnezzar, who came to his senses and acknowledged the Creator God, shows that God cares about the wealthy and powerful, as well as the weak and needy. In verse 37, the most powerful man on the earth declared, “Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise and extol and honor the King of heaven, all of whose works are truth, and His ways justice. And those who walk in pride He is able to put down” (Dan. 4:37, NKJV). If only all the rich and powerful and haughty among us mortal beings understood this truth! (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God’s Mission My Mission p. 73).

Several lessons in this story, first the lesson points out that “God’s judgment was executed” on Nebuchadnezzar in a similar way to some kings of Israel.

What does this mean? How do you hear “judgment”? Was it punishment? Stories like this are sometimes used to suggest God is the source of punishment, the word judgment is understood judicially, is that what is happening here?

The author’s rightly connect God’s judgment against Nebuchadnezzar to His judgment’s against Israel in the past. The author of the book Patriarchs and Prophets writes the following, do you agree?

- "How great is the long-suffering of God toward the wicked! The idolatrous Philistines and backsliding Israel had alike enjoyed the gifts of His providence. Ten thousand unnoticed mercies were silently falling in the pathway of ungrateful, rebellious men. Every blessing spoke to them of the Giver, but they were indifferent to His love. The forbearance of God was very great toward the children of men; but when they stubbornly persisted in their impenitence, He removed from them His protecting hand. They refused to listen to the voice of God in His created works, and in the warnings, counsels, and reproofs of His word, and thus He was forced to speak to them through judgments." (Patriarchs and Prophets 587).

What type of judgment is described here and what type of judgment was visited upon Nebuchadnezzar this?

In Scripture there are four judgments:

The First Judgment—is our judgment of God. We see this judgment in Eden when Adam and Eve had to make a judgment, is God trustworthy, or was the serpent right and God is untrustworthy? This same judgment is the one every single human must face—we must decide for ourselves, we must judge, is God trustworthy or not. We see this judgment throughout Scripture, at Mount Carmel, when Elijah confronts the 450 priests of Baal and challenges the people:

- If the LORD is God, worship him; but if Baal is God, worship him! (1 Kings 18:21 GNT).

The apostle Paul picks up this theme and states it explicitly in Roman 3:4:

- Let God be true but every man a liar. As it is written: "That You may be justified in Your words, and may overcome when You are judged" (NKJV).

Notice the capital "You." It is God being judged.

But this judgment of God is not a judicial judgment, it is not a courtroom; it is the judgment of reality, the choice every sentient being throughout the entire universe must make in the aftermath of Satan's rebellion. And this is the judgment the entire world enters before the second coming of Christ, the judgment we are to call the world to enter:

- I saw another angel flying in midair, and he had the eternal gospel to proclaim to those who live on the earth—to every nation, tribe, language and people. He said in a loud voice, "Fear God and give him glory, because the hour of his judgment has come. Worship him who made the heavens, the earth, the sea and the springs of water" (Revelation 14:6, 7).

This means that we understand God's laws are design laws, the protocols that govern reality, and that they are not imperial imposed laws that He must enforce externally.

The first judgment is our judgment of God.

The Second Judgment—are God's therapeutic judgments to remedy the sin problem.

When we understand design law, we can see that Adam and Eve's sin did not create a legal problem; it created a lethal problem.

They were not loyal, faithful, and holy beings filled with godly love and trust who were now suddenly in legal trouble with God. No—their sin altered them in such a way that without direct intervention from God, they would die. Their condition was terminal, and every human being born since is born with this same terminal condition.

The Messiah, the Remedy to their terminal state, was promised in Genesis 3; the seed of the woman would come to crush the serpent's head. While Adam's sin introduced the death condition, the promised Messiah would bring the cure.

Thus, the entire Old Testament is a record of the battle for human salvation—God working through His agencies to bring Christ, for the purposes of overcoming sin and healing humanity, and Satan working to stop God's plan.

How could Satan prevent Jesus from being born as a human? By getting every human being to harden their heart so that there wouldn't be a single woman willing to be the mother of our Messiah. God would not force a woman against her will, and God would not have Jesus born to a vile, hate-filled woman like Jezebel.

The Bible tells us that at the time of the global flood, there was only one righteous man left on the earth. Think about it: An entire planet of people and only one person was still loyal to God. The avenue through which the Messiah would come was almost closed. So God made a "judgment." It was not a judicial judgment. It was a judgment of what was needed to save His precious creation. God decided—judged—that He must protect the family of the one man left loyal to Him so that the Messiah could come, lest every single human be lost. Thus, God sent the flood not as a legal punishment for sin, but as a therapeutic intervention for all humanity, for those who died before the flood (they still needed Jesus to come) and those who have lived since. And also for those who died in the flood.

Noah preached for 120 years, warning of the coming flood and proclaiming God's grace in providing the ark for anyone who was willing to get on board. No one else did. But think of the gracious opportunity the flood provided those rebellious people. The rains and rising waters were evidence that Noah had been telling the truth. Those evidences gave the rebellious people time to repent before their mortal lives were lost and to experience salvation and receive eternal life. They would be like the thief on the cross next to Christ; he had lived rebelliously but, at the end of his life, he accepted Jesus and received salvation even though his temporal death was unavoidable. The flood was a therapeutic act to keep open the avenue for Messiah to save the world, but it was also therapeutic for the people of that time, giving them one final opportunity to repent. What the flood was not was an infliction of judicial punishment for sin. Even for those who insist on believing the lie that God's law functions like Satan's law, I would remind them that even in their false narrative, the judgment for sin is a future event—and punishment for sin is not inflicted before judgment. Thus, the flood is not judicial in any shape or fashion. It is therapeutic.

We find God's "judgments" throughout history to fall into this category. God's "judgments" on Egypt were His therapeutic interventions to expose the Egyptian gods as false and to turn the hearts of the people—both Hebrew and Egyptian—to Him for salvation.

And here in Daniel we find God's judgment, His diagnosis and therapeutic judgment, intervention, on what was needed to eradicate selfishness and restore Nebuchadnezzar to love and trust.

This is the judgment of our heavenly physician both providing the Remedy to sin and applying that Remedy to our hearts and minds.

Malachi describes this judgment:

- "Suddenly the Lord you are seeking will come to his temple; the messenger of the covenant, whom you desire, will come," says the Lord Almighty. But who can endure the day of his coming? Who can stand when he appears? For he will be like a refiner's fire or a launderer's soap. He will sit as a refiner and purifier of silver; he will purify the Levites and refine them like gold and silver. Then the Lord will have men who will bring offerings in righteousness, and the offerings of Judah and Jerusalem will be acceptable to the Lord, as in days gone by, as in former years. "So I will come near to you for judgment" (Malachi 3:1–5 NIV84).

This is the "judgment" of the Great Heavenly Physician, our Creator: examining us, diagnosing what is wrong in us, and determining what is the best therapeutic intervention to bring to bear to heal and restore us. This is the judgment of our High Priest going on in heaven as He examines the people and prepares them for His return, to complete His healing of them so that when He does come, we will be like Him—for "we know that when he appears, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is" (1 John 3:2 NIV84). This healing, this transformation, this final work of preparation is what Malachi describes above—the cleansing of our temples, the purifying of the Levites (His people today), is all taught metaphorically in the Day of Atonement rituals. (You can read more about this incredible truth in our Heavenly Sanctuary and Investigative Judgment for the Modern World pamphlet.)

The first judgment is our judgment of God and the second judgment is God's therapeutic diagnosis of the problem and therapeutic intervention to treat the problem. Neither the first or second judgment is a judicial process.

The Third Judgment—is the judgment that the righteous render during the thousand years after they are taken to heaven and all the evidence of history is before them.

- I saw thrones on which were seated those who had been given authority to judge. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of their testimony for Jesus and because of the word of God. They had not worshiped the beast or his image and had not received his mark on their foreheads or their hands. They came to life and reigned with Christ a thousand years (Revelation 20:4–6 NIV84).

This is also not a judicial process; it is an answering of all the questions people have about the great controversy. It is the assessment, discerning, and settling of minds regarding how God's laws govern all reality. It is the confirmation of what sin does and how salvation occurs—and why some are saved and others are not when God loves all equally, wants all to be saved, and is all powerful.

This judgment by the saints includes more than judging why some of our friends and loved ones are not in heaven; it also includes judging what the angels did and how they possibly could have rebelled:

- "Do you not know that we will judge angels?" (1 Corinthians 6:3 NIV84).

This is the judgment in which the saved exercise their God-given ability to think, reason, discern and settle all their questions so that sin will never arise again.

The third judgment is also not a judicial process but a review of reality, of actual history, of applying our understanding of the design laws of God and making the judgment that all who are lost are lost because that is what they prefer and that there was nothing more God could have done for them.

The Fourth and final Judgment—is the judgment that occurs at the end of the thousand years. It is often called the Great White Throne Judgment.

- I saw a great white throne and him who was seated on it. … And I saw the dead, great and small, standing before the throne, and books were opened. Another book was opened, which is the book of life. The dead were judged according to what they had done as recorded in the books (Revelation 20:11, 12 NIV84).

Surely this judgment must be judicial … right? No, it isn't.

What is recorded in the books of life? The names of people (Philippians 4:3, Revelation 3:5, 13:8, 17:8, 20:15, 21:27). But in Scripture, names are symbolic of one's character. So, what is recorded is our actual characters, which we have developed through our judgment of God—our judgment to trust Him, to open our hearts to Him, to embrace His design laws and methods of truth, love, and liberty or not. Our judgments of God result in whether we open the heart and are reborn—or harden our hearts in selfishness. Our characters develop along whichever line our judgment decides about God, whether we trust Him and His methods or reject them. Thus, we are judged, diagnosed, based on what is the actual condition of our character.

Here's another way to say it: The books record the accurate picture of who we are in heart—they are like medical records. The records don't determine the condition; they merely record the condition.

This is exactly what Jesus taught when He said:

- Make a tree good and its fruit will be good, or make a tree bad and its fruit will be bad, for a tree is recognized by its fruit. You brood of vipers, how can you who are evil say anything good? For out of the overflow of the heart the mouth speaks. The good man brings good things out of the good stored up in him, and the evil man brings evil things out of the evil stored up in him. But I tell you that men will have to give account on the day of judgment for every careless word they have spoken. For by your words you will be acquitted, and by your words you will be condemned (Matthew 12:33–37 NIV84).

What is being described? Character—the actual condition of each heart, a diagnosis of what the reality actually is. God is the God of reality, the builder of all Creation. His laws are the protocols upon which life operates. There has never been a heavenly judicial law court like humans make; the idea that God is an arbitrary judge who is the source of inflicted punishment for sin is a lie from Satan.

The fourth and final judgment is not judicial; it is the final confirmation of the accurate diagnosis of each heart and mind:

- He who is unjust, let him be unjust still; he who is filthy, let him be filthy still; he who is righteous, let him be righteous still; he who is holy, let him be holy still (Revelation 22:11 NKJV).

Another lesson from this story of Nebuchadnezzar is to contrast his response from the events in Daniel 3, when the three worthies were saved from the fiery furnace and his response here.

Let's contrast the two responses of the king identify what is different and decide if there is a lesson in that for us today:

- Then Nebuchadnezzar said, "Praise be to the God of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego, who has sent his angel and rescued his servants! They trusted in him and defied the king's command and were willing to give up their lives rather than serve or worship any god except their own God. Therefore I decree that the people of any nation or language who say anything against the God of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego be cut into pieces and their houses be turned into piles of rubble, for no other god can save in this way." (Daniel 3:28-29 NIV84).

- At the end of that time, I, Nebuchadnezzar, raised my eyes toward heaven, and my sanity was restored. Then I praised the Most High; I honored and glorified him who lives forever. His dominion is an eternal dominion; his kingdom endures from generation to generation. All the peoples of the earth are regarded as nothing. He does as he pleases with the powers of heaven and the peoples of the earth. No one can hold back his hand or say to him: "What have you done?" At the same time that my sanity was restored, my honor and splendor were returned to me for the glory of my kingdom. My advisers and nobles sought me out, and I was restored to my throne and became even greater than before. Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise and exalt and glorify the King of heaven, because everything he does is right and all his ways are just. And those who walk in pride he is able to humble. (Daniel 4:34-37 NIV84).

First what are the similarities about the two events:

- In both God provided a dream of the future to the king, in the first in was the dream of the multi-metal man and in the second it was the dream of the tree
- In both God intervened with a miracle, the miracle of protecting the three worthies from the fiery furnace and the second the miracle of the restored sanity
- In both the king acknowledges the God of heaven

So God's actions are quite similar in both situations and Nebuchadnezzar acknowledges the God of heaven in both. But there is a key difference in the second experience than the first what is it?

In the first situation the king responds with imperialism, with power, might, coercion. He acknowledges the God of heaven as a powerful being, but not as a righteous being and thus Nebuchadnezzar promotes falsehoods about God by creating a religious edict under threat of external punishment.

In the second experience Nebuchadnezzar also acknowledges God as the powerful God of heaven, but now also acknowledges God as righteous, as a being worthy of trust and does not impose laws for force others to worship, but instead gives his testimony, presenting the truth, but leaving others free to decide for themselves.

Is there a lesson for us in this?

MONDAY

The lesson is about Naaman the commander of the armies of Aram who had leprosy and whose slave girl was Jewish and told him about Elisha. How he went to Elisha and was told to wash 7 times in the Jordan. How he initially didn't want to do this, but was encouraged by his advisors and did so and was healed of the leprosy and in the aftermath became a worshiper of Yahweh.

When he meets with Elisha before returning to Aram, he makes two requests, read the second and third paragraphs:

- In 2 Kings 5:17–19, Naaman made two unusual requests after God healed him of leprosy. First, he asked to take two mule-loads of earth from Israel back to Syria for the purpose of worshiping the living God. He states, "For your servant will no longer offer either burnt offering or sacrifice to the other gods, but to the Lord" (2 Kings 5:17, NKJV). Though Naaman is clearly now a believer in the only true God, his first request shows that pagan influences still held sway over his thinking to a degree. The Syrian commander regarded the God of Israel as a divinity who must be venerated on soil native to that land. Although Naaman acknowledged the reality that there was no God aside from the Lord of Israel, he had not wholly dispossessed himself of the notion that God was, by some particular means, connected to the land of Israel. Thus, in his own country he desired to worship God on Israelite soil.

  Naaman's second petition shows the sincerity of his faith. While he resolved to serve only the God of heaven, he realized carrying out such a resolution in his own idolatrous country wouldn't be easy. Moverover, the king of Syria still worshiped the god Rimmon, and in this occupation Naaman would serve as the king's escort. While Naaman had no intention of forsaking his duties to his earthly king, he did not wish to be deemed as bowing in worship to Rimmon. Having surrendered his heart to Jehovah, Naaman desired not to make any concessions to idolatry by worshiping the heathen god. Nor did he want word to get back to Elisha that he was doing so. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 74).

What do you think of Naaman, his conversion, and his requests?

First the request to take soil back to his homeland to in order to worship God—what is this about? Is this necessary? Why does Naaman do it? What is it evidence of? Limited understanding of God and the reality of our Creator and the universe He governs. Naaman is thinking with limited understanding, perhaps that God is a local god, or His power is connected to the local land in some way and without having some of that soil then Naaman will be disconnected from the power of God.

Would this be a form of superstition? Have superstitions and superstitious thinking ever entered into Christianity? Any examples?

- Veneration of relics
- Pilgrimages—the idea of going to a certain place in order to receive a blessing not obtainable without going to that place

- What about magical thinking regarding Christian ceremonies—like communion? Can superstitious ideas be attached to the communion ceremony? What about the wafer become the literal human flesh of Jesus? What about the wafers becoming somehow holy in a way that they cannot be donated for food to the needy but must be burned if not used in the ceremony?
- Certain types of dress that have religious value?
- Do we ever believe we have to go to certain geographical locations to worship God—perhaps a denominational building of some sort? If we, instead of going to a church building, instead went to someone's home for worship would it be as legitimate?

If some people do attach superstitious meanings to things like communion, or where one worships—does that mean there is no righteous, healthy, legitimate utility in going to a church to worship or participating in communion?

What about the second request—to not have to take a public stand and refuse to bow down to the idol of Rimmon? And who was Rimmon? It was another name for Baal—and who was Baal?

- The son of El
- The god of weather, thunder, lightning, and harvest
- The god who fought the great leviathan—the serpent
- The god who fought against Mot the god of death and in his battle with Mot died and rose again to bring new life and harvest to the land

This was the god previously confronted by Elijah at Mount Carmel—and what was wrong with this god? Baal required appeasement, payment, offerings be made to him to provide blessings.

Baal became Zeus to the Greeks, Jupiter to the Romans, Thor to the Norse people and Jesus Christ to all Christians who worship a god who requires the blood of a human sacrifice be offered to him on order for him to provide blessings.

Do we today want to act the part of Naaman, say to God, I believe in you the Creator. I know you are not like Baal, but let me be like Naaman, let me quietly bow down in my church where they present Baal in your place, where the people are worshiping a god of thunder, a god of wrath, a god that requires the blood payment of Jesus be presented in order for that god not to harm. You know I don't believe it, but forgive my compliance with the religious edits coming from church authority as I bow, for I might be called to account by the church board, I might be disfellowshipped, I might lose my job for I like Naaman work for those who worship Baal in your place.

Do we live in a different time than Naaman? Is God, at this time in human history, calling for a people to no longer bow down to the false views of Him presented by church leaders and for His people to take a stand for His true character of love, to stand up and worship Him as Creator, to worship Him who made the heavens, earth, sea and fountains of water, whose laws are design laws, to give glory to God for the hour has come for people to make a right judgment about God—the hour of HIS judgment has come!

TUESDAY

The title for the day's lesson is Witnessing to the Learned: Nicodemus

What is the key to witnessing to the learned, to those who are considered, by themselves and others, to be subject matter experts?

It requires a disruption in their current understanding, what we call cognitive dissonance. This can occur from:

- presenting something new and positive that intrigues them to study from a new angle and incorporate previously unconsidered evidence
- presenting evidence or questions that don't fit their current understanding, questions or facts important enough that they can't simply ignore them or brush them aside
- or life experiences, typically painful ones, that their current understanding don't explain and resolve
- others?

But if a person doesn't have any interest, if their minds are closed into a belief system that doesn't allow for questions, doesn't allow for growth and development, then truth is not received positively, it is received as a threat, as a challenge, typically to their authority, their security, their orthodoxy and new truth is often labeled heresy and the ones bringing it are called heretics and are exterminated—either literally or structurally—i.e. disfellowshipped, disavowed, removed from office, slandered, and ridiculed.

One of the primary beliefs that prevents the learned from accepting greater light and truth is the belief that "We have the truth" and that idea is typically set up as a system of orthodox doctrines, a creed, or a set of fundamental beliefs, and any new truth that either overthrows or expands or redefines the current belief is considered heresy. The fear is that if our current belief is not 100% accurate then we were wrong, led astray, deceived, and therefore our movement our system, our church is illegitimate. So we must resist any changes advancements and unfolding of truth for fear of being wrong.

But the true of heart recognize that we created beings are finite and God is infinite and His truth is unfolding and we never stop advancing in the truth, so we eagerly pursue new truth that will correct any actual error but often will simply redefine truths in deeper and more meaningful ways with greater insight and understanding toward ultimate reality.

Such as moving from metaphor, symbol, ritual to reality—a good example is sanctuary service of the Old Testament being moved toward the heavenly sanctuary with our heavenly High Priest in Hebrews and then moving from symbolic understandings of events happening in books, to the reality of the sanctuary being the living beings where God dwells by His Spirit and Jesus working to cleanse people, not records, from sin.

But some have difficulty in moving past the symbolic to the reality, of following the truth—the Jews had this problem and rejected Jesus and many Adventist have this problem and reject the healing understanding of salvation and continue to teach legal mechanics in heavenly courtrooms.

So how do we witness to the learned?

The lesson uses the example of Nicodemus—did Jesus pursue Nicodemus, seek him out, go to his house, send him literature, invite him to a Bible study, email him links to sermons? Or did Jesus go about revealing in the community the truth and allow the impact of Jesus' teaching to reach Nicodemus and the Holy Spirit flamed those truths into conviction which eventually led Nicodemus to search for answers himself, ultimately from Jesus?

Is there a lesson for us in this?

If we have a relationship with the learned, they are our friends or family members, then certainly engage them in conversation and share materials with them to try and lead them into truths you are convicted they need to understand. But has not been my experience that it is fruitful to seek out the professors and scholars to inform them of what they don't know if they are not seeking on their own.

One way, if you have a relationship with someone of learning, to get them to evaluate something new, is to ask them to read it and share their critique. However, this is likely to harden them from the truth rather than lead them into it, why? Because they are reading it not to learn truth, but to discover the errors in it, thus they read it with a bias seeking to confirm their preconceived understanding, rather than to expand their understanding.

Read bottom pink section:

- Why must we be careful of the trap of thinking that because "we have the truth" (which we do), then the knowledge of this truth alone is enough to save us? How many souls will be lost who had more than enough knowledge, even of the three angels' messages, to be saved? (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 75).

Don't most people believe that they have truth? Does believing one has the truth mean one has the truth?

- Did Saul of Tarsus, before the Damascus road, believe he had the truth? Did he?
- What about Peter when Paul had to correct him, do you think Peter thought, "I know I am misrepresenting Christ and not presenting the truth" or do you think he thought he had the truth?
- What about in Luke 9:54 when James and John saw Jesus being rejected and asked if they should call fire down from heaven to destroy the people—do you think they believed their request was based on truth?

So, the lesson says that we have the truth and they specifically mention the truth of the three angels—but does our church present the truth of the three angels, or has the truth been replaced with a counterfeit?

EGW wrote:

- It is a fact that we have the truth, and we must hold with tenacity to the positions that cannot be shaken; but we must not look with suspicion upon any new light which God may send, and say, Really, we cannot see that we need any more light than the old truth which we have hitherto received, and in which we are settled. While we hold to this position, the testimony of the True Witness applies to our cases its rebuke, "And knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked." Those who feel rich and increased with goods and in need of nothing, are in a condition of blindness as to their true condition before God, and they know it not. (The Review and Herald, August 7, 1894).

- Greater light shines upon us than shone upon our fathers. We cannot be accepted or honored of God in rendering the same service, or doing the same works, that our fathers did. In order to be accepted and blessed of God as they were, we must imitate their faithfulness and zeal,—improve our light as they improved theirs, and do as they would have done had they lived in our day. We must walk in the light which shines upon us, otherwise that light will become darkness. (Testimonies for the Church 1:262).

What do these statements mean? Do you agree with them?

How can light become darkness? Was it light in AD 5, when Jesus was two years old, that the Messiah was soon to be revealed in Israel? That the Savior of the world was coming to fulfill the promises made to Adam and Eve and Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob? Absolutely! After AD 33, after Jesus' rejection and crucifixion, resurrection, and ascension into heaven—is it still light, still truth, that the Messiah is going to be born in Israel, that the Messiah is yet to come or has that truth now become darkness for those who do not advance in truth?

If you haven't read our magazine The Final Message of Mercy to the World: The Three Angels I would encourage you to do so, for we go into great detail revealing what we understand to be the truth of this message, and it is quite distinct from what we read in much of the SDA literature.

And the root cause of the difference is how one understands God's law. If one understands God's law to be imposed rules like humans make up, then the interpretation of Scripture including the 3 angels goes down a legal path, a path that creates a god that functions like a creature, a false god, the modern-day Baal worship.

But when we return to worshiping the Creator and understand His laws are design laws, then one reads the 3 angels as they are supposed to be read—God's final warning of how reality works and what happens to those who reject Him and His design laws.

The high points of the messages are:

- The central thread of the messages are about worship
- The first angel focuses on the eternal good news—which is the good news about God—that He is not like Satan alleged, He is the God of Creation, whose laws are design laws. We are called back to worship Him as Creator and not as a creature, and thus give Him glory in our lives for the hour in human history has come for people to make a right judgment about God.
- When we recognize the truth about God then we realize the system of imposed law with a punishing god is the fallen system of Babylon of confusion with over 41,000 different groups arguing this text or that text and we leave that way of thinking and functioning behind and return to worship our Creator.
- But if we don't do that then, by the law of worship, by beholding we are changed, and we become like the false creature god we worship, and are marked in our characters (foreheads) and works (hands) to be like the beastly god we worship and
- Via the law of liberty we are set free to reap that which we have sown into our hearts, minds, and souls and God gives people freedom, and let's them go to reap the results of their own choice when He stops using His power to protect them from what sin does and this is know as God's wrath. And when God no longer shields people they reap the suffering unremedied sin brings when
- Via the law of love and truth they come into full awareness of their own selfishness, guilt, shame, when they can no longer hide from the reality of who they are by their own choice.

Nothing in the messages are imperial, legal, penal, they are all descriptions of God's character of love and design law methods being worked out.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson references the rich young ruler who came to Jesus, what lessons can we learn from that story?

- A certain ruler asked him, "Good teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?" (Luke 18:18 NIV84).

The story begins with the young man addressing Jesus as though Jesus were no different than any other Bible teacher, Rabbi, or theology professor. He does not acknowledge Jesus as the Son of God, the Savior, God in human form. Jesus will draw his attention to this shortly.

And upon what is the young man's primary focus, the central issue of his concern? On self, on securing for himself eternal life. He did not ask Jesus, "What must I do to bring honor to God?" Or "What must I do to fulfill God's purpose for my life?" Or "How can I serve God most fully?" Or "How can I know God's will for my life?"

How much of church tradition encourages this same self-centered focus? How much evangelism suggests that the gospel message is primarily about individual salvation? Certainly, Jesus came to save sinners—absolutely true:

- For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life. (John 3:16 NIV84).

But the more important question in this wonderful promise is: What does it say about God that He would sacrifice Himself to save us? It is certainly good news that we can be saved from sin, but isn't the better news that God is love? After all, who would want to live forever with God if God was like Satan in character?

We are called to bring sinners to Christ for salvation. But is it possible that if Christianity takes the primary focus off of God and His character of love and places it on ourselves, it can become something selfish—something that burdens people, because it becomes about what they must do, focuses on their behavior, with the do's and don'ts of various lists of rules that all work to keep self at the center, preoccupied with a fear of sinning, ruminating on the memories of our past sins, and suffering with chronic guilt and shame and worries of not being good enough? And might we find that we end up like this young man, going to Jesus and saying, "What else must I do to be saved?"

Notice how Jesus responds:

- "Why do you call me good?" Jesus answered. "No one is good—except God alone (Luke 18:19 NIV84).
- "Why do you ask me about what is good?" Jesus replied. "There is only One who is good. If you want to enter life, obey the commandments" (Matthew 19:17 NIV84).

Jesus does several things here. First, by pointing out that only God is good and asking why the young man called Him good, Jesus is seeking to help the man realize that Jesus is God in human form. But Jesus is also saying, "If you don't recognize me as God, if you recognize me only as a teacher, then why are you calling me good—all goodness comes from God. Don't fall into the trap of attributing to human teachers or church leaders the admiration, respect, and trust that belong only to God."

Jesus then turns the attention to the path of life, which is living in harmony with God's law, for God's law—of health, physics, and morality—is the protocol upon which life is constructed to operate. Life and health are only possible as one lives in harmony with the laws of health, and Jesus is trying to help this young man realize that by first drawing his attention to the commandments and then expanding their meaning to something far beyond rule-keeping. But the young ruler doesn't appear to comprehend.

- "Which ones?" the man inquired.
  Jesus replied, "'Do not murder, do not commit adultery, do not steal, do not give false testimony, honor your father and mother,' and 'love your neighbor as yourself.'"

> "All these I have kept," the young man said. "What do I still lack?" (Matthew 19:18–20 NIV84).

Here Jesus recites some of the Ten Commandments but then adds the meaning "love your neighbor as yourself." Love honors others; love doesn't seek to harm, exploit, or take advantage of others. Therefore, love doesn't murder, cheat, bear false witness, or steal; love doesn't even have the desire in the heart to harm; thus, love doesn't covet. Jesus is saying, "If you want to have life, you must be restored to my kingdom of love, and then you will keep the commandments."

Jesus was not reciting a list of rules for a legal religion; instead, He was describing what people look like when love is restored in the heart. Jesus is revealing that the commandments are not legal; they are not a code of conduct to be legally enforced; they are a description of how love functions and how people who love others live.

When we have God's love restored into our hearts, we affirmatively do not commit adultery, steal, murder, bear false witness, or covet because we love others and it would be disgusting and repulsive to do such things. Just consider how repulsive even the mere thought of abusing your child is. Those who are like Christ would rather die than harm those they love. This is what Jesus is describing—people who love simply do not do these things to others.
But notice that the young man did not respond with, "I have loved like this my entire life." Instead, he responded by focusing on rule-keeping without regard to a heart renewed to love, merely a legal performance of external behavior. Yet, he realized that such a legal performance lacked something, so he asked Jesus what was missing from his life.

All those who have a legal religion also experience the same lack of inner peace, and what kind of people do they become if they don't experience God's love transforming their heart? Pharisaical, legalists, judgmental, critical, controlling of others, imperial—just like those religious people who crucified Jesus.
So…

- Jesus answered, "If you want to be perfect, go, sell your possessions and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven. Then come, follow me" (Matthew 19:21 NIV84).

Jesus is not setting up a new rule here to be obeyed if we want treasure in heaven. He is accurately pointing out to this young man that the man valued his riches and trusted in material things more than he loved and trusted Jesus. He trusted his wealth in part because it was taught that wealth was evidence of being right with God, while poverty meant one was cursed by God. But eternal life cannot be found in earthly wealth, power, position, or status—only in surrendering the heart fully to Christ.

- When the young man heard this, he went away sad, because he had great wealth (Matthew 19:22 NIV84).

Why did the young man leave sorrowful? Because he placed his security in earthly treasure rather than in Jesus. Contrast this man's response with that of Zacchaeus:

- But Zacchaeus stood up and said to the Lord, “Look, Lord! Here and now I give half of my possessions to the poor, and if I have cheated anybody out of anything, I will pay back four times the amount.”

  Jesus said to him, “Today salvation has come to this house, because this man, too, is a son of Abraham. For the Son of Man came to seek and to save what was lost” (Luke 19:8–10 NIV84).

Zacchaeus found something he valued more than money, and he suddenly found joy in using his money to help others. Sadly, the rich young ruler did not.

As we face the final events leading up to Christ’s return, many of us will be faced with a similar choice—do we, like Zacchaeus, value Jesus more than our material possessions, or do we, like the young ruler, value our wealth more than Christ? Do we cling to our possessions to make us feel safe? Do we love God and others more than self, or do we fear for ourselves so that we will join with the government to exploit others? Will we obey the government and join in coercing consciences so that we can keep our wealth so we can continue buying and selling, or will we stand firm for God’s kingdom and lose our earthly wealth and cling to Jesus and the treasures of heaven?
Jesus is coming soon—make Him your greatest treasure!

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 10
Mission to the Unreached Part 1

by Tim Jennings

Before we start this week's lesson, I want to follow up with a point we didn't get to from lesson 9, Tuesday's lesson.

LESSON 9 - TUESDAY

The title for the day's lesson is Witnessing to the Learned: Nicodemus

What is the key to witnessing to the learned, to those who are considered, by themselves and others, to be subject matter experts?

It requires a disruption in their current understanding, what we call cognitive dissonance. This can occur from:

- presenting something new and positive that intrigues them to study from a new angle and incorporate previously unconsidered evidence
- presenting evidence or questions that doesn't fit their current understanding and unsettles them enough that they can't simply ignore the issue or brush them aside
- or life experiences, typically painful ones, that their current understanding doesn't explain or resolve
- others?

But if a person doesn't have an interest in learning, if their minds are closed into a belief system that doesn't allow for questions, doesn't allow for growth and development, then truth is not received positively; it is received as a threat, as a challenge to their authority, security, reputation, or orthodoxy and new truth is often labeled as heresy and the ones bringing it are called heretics and are exterminated—either literally or structurally—i.e. disfellowshipped, disavowed, removed from office, slandered, and ridiculed.

One of the primary beliefs that prevents the learned from accepting greater light and truth is the belief that "We have the truth" and that idea typically results in setting up doctrinal litmus tests, a system of orthodox doctrines, a creed, or a set of fundamental beliefs, and any new truth that overthrows, expands, or redefines the current belief is considered heresy. The fear is that if our current beliefs are not 100% accurate then we were wrong, mislead, deceived, and therefore our movement, our system, our church is illegitimate. So we must resist any changes, advancements, and unfolding truth for fear of being wrong.

But the pure of heart recognize that created beings are finite and only God is infinite and therefore we realize that His truth is unfolding and we never stop advancing in the truth, so we eagerly pursue new truth that will correct any actual errors but or which will redefine our current truth with in deeper and more meaningful ways with greater insights and understandings toward ultimate reality.

An example would be moving away from metaphor, symbol, ritual to reality—a good example is the sanctuary service of the Old Testament being moved toward the heavenly sanctuary with our heavenly High Priest in Hebrews and then moving from symbolic understandings of events happening in books, to the reality of the sanctuary being the living beings where God dwells by His Spirit and Jesus working to cleanse people, not records, from sin.

But some have difficulty in moving past the symbolic to reality, of following the truth—the Jews had this problem and rejected Jesus and many Christians have this problem and reject the healing understanding of salvation and continue to teach legal mechanics in heavenly courtrooms.

So how do we witness to the learned?

The lesson uses the example of Nicodemus—did Jesus pursue Nicodemus, seek him out, go to his house, send him literature, invite him to a Bible study, email him links to sermons? Or did Jesus go about revealing, in the community, though His actions, the truth and allow that truth to reach Nicodemus and the Holy Spirit convict those truths in the man's heart which eventually led Nicodemus to search for answers himself, ultimately coming to Jesus?

Is there a lesson for us in this?

If we have a relationship with the learned, if they are our friends or family members, then certainly engage them in conversation and share materials with them and try and lead them into truths you are convicted they need to understand. But it has not been my experience that it is fruitful to seek out the professors and scholars to inform them of what they don't know if they are not seeking on their own.

With all of this in mind, let's read bottom pink section in lesson 9 Tuesday:

- Why must we be careful of the trap of thinking that because "we have the truth" (which we do), then the knowledge of this truth alone is enough to save us? How many souls will be lost who had more than enough knowledge, even of the three angels' messages, to be saved? (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 75).

Don't most people believe that they have truth? Does believing one has the truth mean one has the truth?

- Did Saul of Tarsus, before the Damascus road, believe he had the truth? Did he?
- What about Peter when Paul had to correct him, do you think Peter thought, "I know I am misrepresenting Christ and not presenting the truth" or do you think he thought he had the truth?
- What about in Luke 9:54 when James and John saw Jesus being rejected and asked if they should call fire down from heaven to destroy the people—do you think they believed their request was based on truth?

So, the lesson says that we have the truth and they specifically mention the truth of the three angels—but does our church present the truth of the three angels, or has the truth been replaced with a counterfeit?

EGW wrote:

- It is a fact that we have the truth, and we must hold with tenacity to the positions that cannot be shaken; but we must not look with suspicion upon any new light which God may send, and say, Really, we cannot see that we need any more light than the old truth which we have hitherto received, and in which we are settled. While we hold to this position, the testimony of the True Witness applies to our cases its rebuke, "And knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked." Those who feel rich and increased with goods and in need of nothing, are in a condition of blindness as to their true condition before God, and they know it not. (The Review and Herald, August 7, 1894).

- Greater light shines upon us than shone upon our fathers. We cannot be accepted or honored of God in rendering the same service, or doing the same works, that our fathers did. In order to be accepted and blessed of God as they were, we must imitate their faithfulness and zeal,—improve our light as they improved theirs, and do as they would have done had they lived in our day. We must walk in the light which shines upon us, otherwise that light will become darkness. (Testimonies for the Church 1:262).

What do these statements mean? Do you agree with them?

How can light become darkness? Was it light in AD 5, when Jesus was two years old, that the Messiah was soon to be revealed in Israel? That the Savior of the world was coming to fulfill the promises made to Adam and Eve and Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob? Absolutely! Since AD 33, after Jesus' rejection and crucifixion, resurrection, and ascension into heaven—is it still light, still truth, that the Messiah is going to be born in Israel, that the Messiah is yet to come, or has that truth now become darkness for those who do not advance in truth?

If you haven't read our magazine The Final Message of Mercy to the World: The Three Angels I would encourage you to do so, for we go into great detail revealing what we understand to be the truth of this message, and it is quite distinct from what we have often heard.

And the root cause of the difference is how one understands God's law. If one understands God's law to be imposed rules like humans make up, then the interpretation of Scripture, including the 3 angels, goes down a legal path, a path that creates a god that functions like a creature, a false god, the modern-day Baal worship.

But when we return to worshiping the Creator and understand His laws are design laws, then one reads the 3 angels as they are supposed to be read—God's final warning of how reality works and what happens to those who reject Him and His design laws.

The high points of the messages are:

- The central thread of the messages is about worship
- The first angel focuses on the eternal good news—which is the good news about God—that He is not like Satan alleged, He is the God of Creation, whose laws are design laws. We are called back to worship Him as Creator and to stop worshiping a creature in place of the Creator, and thus give glory to God for the hour in human history has come for people to make a right judgment about God.
- When we recognize the truth about God then we realize the system of imposed law with a punishing god is the fallen system of Babylon of confusion with over 41,000 different groups arguing this text or that text and come out of that way of thinking and functioning and return to worshiping our Creator by living in harmony with His designs for life.
- But if we don't do that then, by the law of worship, by beholding we are changed, and we become like the false creature-god we worship, and are marked in our characters (foreheads) and works (hands) to be like the beastly god we worship and
- Via the law of liberty we are set free to reap that which we have sown into our hearts, minds, and souls. As God gives people freedom and lets them go to reap the results of their own choices, He stops using His power to protect them from what sin does and this is know as God's wrath. And when God no longer shields people then they reap the suffering unremedied sin brings when
- Via the law of love and truth—when they stand in God's life-giving glory, the eternal fires of truth and love, they come into full awareness of their own selfishness, guilt, shame, when they can no longer hide from the reality of who they have chosen to become.

Nothing in these three messages are imperial, legal, or penal, they are all descriptions of God's character of love and His design law methods being worked out.

LESSON 10 - Mission to the Unreached Part 1 - SUNDAY

Read first two paragraphs,

- The city of Athens was "given over to idols" (Acts 17:16, NKJV). Knowing the history of his own people and their proclivity (despite the endless warnings) to idolatry, Paul was upset at all the idols he found in Athens, as well. No question, Paul was motivated by compassion for the Athenians, who would die in their sins if they did not learn of the true God.

  Today, our cities are still full of idols, even though they are less obvious than what Paul saw. And unfortunately, many believers are fully capable of walking through a city without reacting in the least to its idols. Paul, though, was tuned in to the Holy Spirit enough to respond. Out of step with some other believers, who still didn't grasp that the gospel was for all the world, Paul knew that God wanted the Athenians to be saved along with everyone else. He understood that the global mission concept was to take the gospel to those who were entirely unreached, including idol-worshiping pagans, as well as the philosophers who filled the streets of Athens. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 81).

What idols fill our cities today?

What is the original sin—Lucifer's sin?

- Your heart became proud on account of your beauty, and you corrupted your wisdom because of your splendor. (Ezekiel 28:17 NIV84).

- How you have fallen from heaven, O morning star, son of the dawn!.. You said in your heart, "I will ascend to heaven; will raise my throne above the stars of God; I will sit enthroned on the mount of assembly, on the utmost heights of the sacred mountain. (or the north) I will ascend above the tops of the clouds; I will make myself like the Most High." (Isaiah 14:12-14 NIV84).

What was Lucifer's original sin? Pride, self-centeredness, narcissism, self-worship.

What do you think is the root of all idol worship? Is it possible that all idol worship is all a form of self worship—that we make gods in our own image to idolize the power, attributes, longings we want to procure or perhaps the negative attributes of self we want to deny so we place them in some false deity and try to appease it?

The law of worship—by beholding we become changed (2 Corinthians 3:18). We become like that which we admire, watch, read, esteem, and worship.

As Jeremiah wrote:

- They worshipped worthless idols and became worthless themselves. (Jeremiah 2:5 GNT).

What happens when people worship anything other than God, including self?

Let's read Romans 1:18-32 and see if what Paul described there is happening today and see if we can understand the design laws involved:

- The wrath of God is being revealed from heaven against all the godlessness and wickedness of men who suppress the truth by their wickedness, since what may be known about God is plain to them, because God has made it plain to them. For since the creation of the world God's invisible qualities—his eternal power and divine nature—have been clearly seen, being understood from what has been made, so that men are without excuse. (Romans 1:18-20 NIV84).

What is described in this first paragraph?

The truth about God, His character, His methods, His design laws are evident in nature because God is Creator and His laws are design laws. All one has to do is open their eyes to consider this evidence and they can learn truth, so no one has an excuse for not knowing it. But the wicked, those who don't love God or others, but who love self reject truth, deny it, do everything can to hide and suppress it and God surrenders them to their choices. They make gods in their own image, gods who make up rules and use power to inflict punishment on rule-breakers. He lets them go to reap what they choose, what they sow into their own hearts, minds, and characters, and this is known as God's wrath. Paul makes this clear in versus 24, 26, 28.

- For although they knew God, they neither glorified him as God nor gave thanks to him, but their thinking became futile and their foolish hearts were darkened. Although they claimed to be wise, they became fools and exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images made to look like mortal man and birds and animals and reptiles. (Romans 1:21-23 NIV84).

What is described here? They make images with their own hands and worship this creature rather than the Creator and they become foolish, their thinking futile, they cannot figure things out because they don't know how reality works because they deny reality by replacing facts, truth, objective design laws with fantasy, make-believe, made up ideas, their own preferred way of understanding—like gender is a social construct. Purposeful and intentional choices to deny reality, facts, truth and lead people to live in a virtual world, a fake world, a world no longer governed by God but by the father of lies.

The Bible is making the case that idol worship corrupts the mind, perverts the character, makes one foolish, the thinking futile—why does idol worship do this? Because reality is replaced with fantasy, falsehood, imaginary virtual make-believe concepts and worldviews—and by the law of worship we are changed. Thus exchanging the truth for fantasy, for lies, minds become darkened, depraved, and futile.

We look at those who worship idols made of stone and metal as primitive, consider these words:

- Thousands have a false conception of God and His attributes. They are as verily serving a false god as were the servants of Baal. Are we worshiping the true God as He is revealed in His Word, in Christ, in nature, or are we adoring some philosophical idol enshrined in His place? God is a God of truth. Justice and mercy are the attributes of His throne. He is a God of love, of pity and tender compassion. Thus He is represented in His Son, our Saviour. He is a God of patience and long-suffering. If such is the being whom we adore and to whose character we are seeking to assimilate, we are worshiping the true God. (Faith I Live By 59).

Do you agree? What is being described? That the beliefs we hold exert power over us—if we believe lies, especially lies about God, we are damaged by those beliefs. And idol worship doesn't have to include physical idols, it can be conceptual ones, false ideas about God. And all who worship any false god, even if they call that god Jesus Christ, but believe lies, such that they actually are worshipping a god who is like Satan in character, then they become like that false god. Their mind becomes damaged, their thinking futile. They will be the worshipers who Jesus said would come to Him and claim to have done all kinds of works in Jesus' name, but Jesus tells them, to go away, they worked iniquity and they were never His friends (Matthew 7:22-23).

Continuing on with Romans 1:

- Therefore God gave them over in the sinful desires of their hearts to sexual impurity for the degrading of their bodies with one another. They exchanged the truth of God for a lie, and worshiped and served created things rather than the Creator—who is forever praised. Amen. (Romans 1:24-25 NIV84).

What does God do to those who reject Him, those who reject the truth, prefer self and the lusts of this world? He gives them up or lets them go to do what they insist upon doing—and what happens when one breaks God's design laws for life? They damage themselves and they end up worshiping and serving a creature—the fallen angel known as Satan, even if they don't know it.

- Because of this, God gave them over to shameful lusts. Even their women exchanged natural relations for unnatural ones. In the same way the men also abandoned natural relations with women and were inflamed with lust for one another. Men committed indecent acts with other men, and received in themselves the due penalty for their perversion. (Romans 1:26-27 NIV84).

This is not talking about people born with various biological conditions that have occurred because of sin and cause same sex attraction. It is describing people who are born heterosexual but through lies, the rejection of God, false worship, including worshiping false philosophies, through porn, through propaganda, media influences, believing lies, and all forms of narcissistic adoration damage their natural desires and exchange their natural desires for unnatural ones, for desires they never had until they damaged themselves through perverted worship—through esteeming, valuing, choosing, and finding worthy of emulation that which is perverse.

Can a person with a blue shirt exchange it for a red shirt if they don't have a blue shirt? Paul is not describing the various conditions with which people are born but in which they had no choice—like the man born blind—neither he nor his parents sinned to cause the blindness. It was not sin for that man to be blind or live like a blind person. However, it would be sin to willfully choose to engage in activities that willfully caused blindness in those with good vision.

And this is what is happening in our society today. People are corrupting themselves by rejecting the truth about God and worshiping the created things, including self, and they are becoming inflamed with all kinds of destructive lusts. They deny the most obvious truths in nature such that there are males and females and men cannot become women and women cannot become men. They are so perverted in their thinking that some people now are seeking to become animals, what are called furries, others claim they are star people, people who are non-human entities living in human bodies. And this only happens as minds are disconnected from objective reality, truth, evidence, and facts. And what is happening in society? Listen to what Paul wrote:

- Furthermore, since they did not think it worthwhile to retain the knowledge of God, he gave them over to a depraved mind, to do what ought not to be done. They have become filled with every kind of wickedness, evil, greed and depravity. They are full of envy, murder, strife, deceit and malice. They are gossips, slanderers, God-haters, insolent, arrogant and boastful; they invent ways of doing evil; they disobey their parents; they are senseless, faithless, heartless, ruthless. Although they know God's righteous decree that those who do such things deserve death, they not only continue to do these very things but also approve of those who practice them. (Romans 1:18-32 NIV84).

Do we see this happening today? The rejection of God, the teaching of godless evolution, that the strongest, those with the most power, cunning, ability to exploit others are the gods of this world and all who worship such false gods become ever more self-centered and corrupt.

And society divides into ever more disunity, hostility, conflict, and hate. The claim is made that this is due to racism, sexism, transgenderism—but all of these allegations are distractions from the truth. All the conflict and division in society today is driven by one core root problem—unrestrained selfishness, narcissism, the lack of love for others.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Justice Statistics the rate of white-on-white violent crime (12.0 per 1,000 white persons) was about four times higher than black-on-white violent crime (3.1 per 1,000). The rate of black-on-black violent crime (16.5 per 1,000 black persons) was more than five times higher than white-on-black violent crime (2.8 per 1,000).[i]

Did you know that people of your same race are the ones most likely to commit crimes against you, 4-5 times more likely than a person from another race—yet this is not the feeling, belief, or attitude that most have. Why? Because of propaganda, lies, misinformation designed to divide the people who, if they worshiped Christ would instead experience ever greater unity. But because God is rejected and self is worshiped people fear that which is not like self and believe lies that those different from them are their enemies. We do not have a race problem in this country—we have a sin problem in this country and the world.

Jesus, speaking about this time in human history, said:

- Sin will be rampant everywhere, and the love of many will grow cold (Matthew 24:12 NLT).

The apostle Paul said:

- There will be terrible times in the last days. People will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boastful, proud, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, without love, unforgiving, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, not lovers of the good, treacherous, rash, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God (2 Timothy 3:1–4 NIV84).

Recent studies have demonstrated that narcissism has steadily increased in the United States since the 1970s, with each subsequent class of college freshmen scoring higher on narcissism rating scales than the class before.[ii] This rise in selfishness, this "me-first" mentality, is rife in society today and heralds the death of love for our fellow human beings.

So what is destroying love and increasing selfishness?

The Bible teaches that:

- There is no fear in love. But perfect love drives out fear, because fear has to do with punishment. The one who fears is not made perfect in love (1 John 4:18 NIV84).

Love and fear are inversely proportional; as love increases, fear decreases—and as fear increases, love decreases. The more fear we experience, the more quickly we see threats, real or imagined, and take actions designed to make us feel safe. Rather than searching ourselves to identify and overcome our deficiencies in character, fear focuses our minds on self-protection, making us look outward to identify potential threats. This can lead to the projection of one's own shortcomings onto others and can cause greater division and loss of love for our fellow human beings.

Why is fear and selfishness rising and love declining, with its subsequent increase in violence? I would like to suggest several factors.

Historically, in America, the national consciousness focused on three other-than-self objects; these virtues were considered so vital that it was worth sacrificing self to defend. These big three were love for God, love for family, and love for country. These three objects—God, family, country—were promoted as being greater than self and worthy of our sacrifice to support.

But in society today, it is taught that there is no God; all families are dysfunctional and not to be trusted to raise children—it takes a village to raise children is the godless mantra and therefore the school system should decide for parents what is best; and our country, being an evil exploiter of minorities and the poor, cannot be trusted. Thus, a mindset of altruism, of love, of higher purpose is replaced with a sense of fear and isolation; when there is nothing greater than the self, and no higher power or institution can be trusted, fear increases and each person becomes an island to themselves, seeing threats all around them, frantically struggling to survive and breaking up from a united people living on common principles of civil and religious liberty, to racial, religious, political, and ethnic factions fighting against those different than they are.

This is further inflamed by social media isolation, fear-inducing propaganda, and the constant manipulation of events to incite fear—like manipulating energy prices, food prices and production, wars, creating man-made diseases, the made-up climate crisis, restrictions on various liberties and the list goes on and on.

When selfishness reigns and love dies, people exploit those around them.

So, understanding this, how do we reach people? What method can we use that will help us present the gospel?

This is where the truth about God and His design laws come in, teaching people how reality works, why things happen, and the predictable laws upon which life and health are based. God's designs are the only path to life, health, safety, and security. Being able to present a coherent, reality-based understanding of the world and God's design draws people. But if we go to the world trying to replace their fantasy world with a different fantasy it won't work.

What happens when we present a god that has a law that works like the laws of every government of the world, who is the source of inflicted pain, a god that one must appease with the blood of a human sacrifice? Do such false god concepts result in the eradication of fear and the reduction in selfishness? No! Such religion incites fear and spreads selfishness. This is the problem with most religions of the world. Only the true gospel of Jesus Christ presents the truth of God's character of love and His design laws for life and health.

MONDAY

The lesson asks us to read Acts 17:18-21:

- Certain Epicurean and Stoic teachers also debated with him. Some of them asked, "What is this ignorant show-off trying to say?" Others answered, "He seems to be talking about foreign gods." They said this because Paul was preaching about Jesus and the resurrection. So they took Paul, brought him before the city council, the Areopagus, and said, "We would like to know what this new teaching is that you are talking about. Some of the things we hear you say sound strange to us, and we would like to know what they mean." (For all the citizens of Athens and the foreigners who lived there liked to spend all their time telling and hearing the latest new thing.) (Acts 17:18-21 GNT).

Epicureanism is a system of philosophy founded around 307 BCE based upon the teachings of Epicurus, an ancient Greek philosopher. It is a philosophy based on materialism and is reductionistic, all things being caused naturally. It's primary motivation was the avoidance of pain and fear which is supposed to result in the experience of the greatest pleasure. It advocated for a simple life removed from politics and many societal struggles, seeking tranquility and avoidance of mental stress and bodily pain.

Stoicism is the philosophy which taught that virtue is the highest good and the practice of virtue is the means to experience a well ordered, healthy, and happy life. Stoics advocated for virtues such as courage and temperance and living in harmony with nature. Such things as wealth, health, power, position were only means upon which virtue could act to impact the world.

These were the two main mindsets Paul was facing in Athens—what obstacles might Paul face? Which group would naturally find more in common with Paul and which would be more likely to oppose him?

Wouldn't Paul's life, practices, and teachings be more closely aligned with the Stoics than the Epicureans?

But what would be the greatest obstacle for both groups? Moving away from self to surrendering self to an intelligence higher than their own. The obstacle being human pride and self-sufficiency.

When we face people of another belief system, what are effective ways to introduce the gospel?

Is it helpful if we get to know people first, to understand their current beliefs, perspectives, biases, assumptions so that we know what truths they currently hold, and what natural struggles they are having in living or understanding the world? If we know some of this, might we be able to offer ideas that interest them?

Another methods is seen in how Jesus often appealed to everyday life experiences and the natural world, which operates upon design law. Common understood experiences that evidenced the principles of God's kingdom.

TUESDAY

Read first paragraph,

- Notice that Paul did not disparage the false religion or false gods of the Athenians. He gathered whatever points of good he could find, few as they were, and capitalized on them. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 83).

Did Paul use this method in all his interactions with others who held to different religious beliefs, or only with those unfamiliar with Scripture?

When dealing with those who were trying to introduce legalism into Christianity Paul wrote:

- I am astonished that you are so quickly deserting the one who called you by the grace of Christ and are turning to a different gospel—which is really no gospel at all. Evidently some people are throwing you into confusion and are trying to pervert the gospel of Christ. But even if we or an angel from heaven should preach a gospel other than the one we preached to you, let him be eternally condemned! As we have already said, so now I say again: If anybody is preaching to you a gospel other than what you accepted, let him be eternally condemned! (Galatians 1:6-9 NIV84).

And Paul had religious critics who were not only misrepresenting him and what he taught but were teaching legalism and lies about the need for bodily circumcision, and Paul wrote:

- I wish that the people who are upsetting you would go all the way; let them go on and castrate themselves! (Galatians 5:12 GNT).

So while Paul did seek to avoid offending these pagans, did he avoid direct confrontation of the lies being circulated among the believers? Is there a difference between attacking a person and attacking the lies that are presented?

Read bottom pink section,

- What bridges and points of contact can you think of that would open opportunities for deeper conversation with others with whom you come in contact? (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 83).

I have found discussing the design laws that are applicable to a person's life to be helpful, law of liberty, exertion, worship, love—how reality works and connecting it to their current struggles and then lead them to the Creator who built reality.

What methods have you found helpful?

THURSDAY

After Paul does all that he can to build bridges and establish common ground, there comes the point when he introduces new ideas, truth, to lead them out of their current understanding into greater light.

However, that didn't happen, they rejected what he presented. Read the third paragraph,

- We know that some people will reject the gospel, but we must do everything possible to ensure that before they reject it, they understand what they are rejecting. Paul, by his method of working among the Athenians and his strategic use of what he had studied and learned of them, ensured that they heard with open minds that a God existed whom they did not know but who had created them. This God loved them and wanted to be known by them. He had been merciful to them in spite of their ignorance. But Judgment Day was coming. And if all of this sounded too unbelievable, there was verifiable evidence for it in the resurrection of Christ. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 85).

It is interesting how the lesson focuses upon judgment, but the protestations of the audience were about the resurrection of Jesus.

Let's read Paul's presentation as recorded in Acts 17, from The Remedy:

- So Paul took the stage at the meeting of the Areopagus and said: "People of Athens! I see that you are very conscientious people who take your religious beliefs seriously. As I walked through your city, I noted your points of worship, and I found an altar with this inscription: 'To an Unknown God.' It is this unknown God that I am here to tell you about. "The God who built the fabric of the cosmos, including this world and everything in it, is Master of heaven and earth and does not live in shrines built by created beings. Human beings do not provide for him–as if there was anything he needed. No! He is the source of all and gives of himself for our good. From him come life, health, and everything else. He created the human species in one individual, and from that one man, all human beings from all the nations in the world have descended. He provided the entire earth for us to inhabit, and created time and space for us to live within. He did all of this so that human beings would experience the joy of discovering him–actually reaching out and connecting with him, for he is near to each one of us. As some of your own poets have said, 'In union with him we live and move, and have existence. We are his offspring.' "So, since we are the offspring of God, how can God be an inanimate, lifeless object made by human beings out of gold, silver or stone? God didn't expect any better when you didn't know any better, but now God has provided the evidence — so you do know better — and calls all humanity to a renewed mind and unity with him. For he has set a time when all humanity will be accurately diagnosed, defects from his design will be permanently eliminated, and all creation will be set right by the Man whom he has selected to be the Remedy. He has proven it by raising this Man from the dead." When they heard him mention the resurrection, some scoffed, but others said, "We would like to hear more about this." With that, Paul left the meeting. A few people, including Dionysius, who was a member of the Areopagus, a woman named Damaris, and a number of others accepted what Paul taught, partook of the Remedy, and trusted Jesus. (Acts 17:22-34 REM).

Why did they protest the resurrection? Why does the lesson focus on judgment?

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 11
Mission to the Unreached Part 2

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read first paragraph:

- From the beginning, a loving God sought His lost children (Gen. 3:9); and, to our day, this same loving God is still seeking to reach the lost (see Rev. 14:6–12), including the lost in the cities. In 2018, the United Nations published its latest findings, which say that 55 percent of the planet's population lives in urban areas, and this will grow (if time should last) to 68 percent by 2050. We have no choice: we must witness to those in the cities. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 88).

Has anyone done ministry or mission in the cities? Any thoughts on what this entails? What might it look like? The ministries in the cities that I am most familiar with are for the most vulnerable populations, which represent a very small percentage of the population of cities. Such things as:

- Homeless shelters
- Food kitchens
- Battered women's shelters
- Goodwill
- Toys for tots
- Free medical clinics

All of these are worthy and righteous ministries—yet is the majority of a city's population reached with these services?

How do we reach those who do not needs such services?

- I have seen street preachers standing on the street shouting about the end of days or some other issue they are passionate about—do you think this would be an effective means to reach people in the cities?
- I have seen people standing on streets or subway stations handing out literature to anyone walking by—do you think this is effective?
- What about door to door canvasing by literature evangelists seeking to sell various books?
- What about door to door ingathering, asking people to donate to our missions, is this likely to be an effective way to reach them with the truth?
- What about TV, radio, internet, social media programming that contains the truth?
- What about advertising of websites that contain the truth?

- What about moving to the city and living in a community and seeking to meet your neighbors and inviting them to your church?
- Other ideas?

SUNDAY

The lesson asks us to read Judges 3:1-6:

- These are the nations the LORD left to test all those Israelites who had not experienced any of the wars in Canaan (he did this only to teach warfare to the descendants of the Israelites who had not had previous battle experience): the five rulers of the Philistines, all the Canaanites, the Sidonians, and the Hivites living in the Lebanon mountains from Mount Baal Hermon to Leboc Hamath. They were left to test the Israelites to see whether they would obey the LORD's commands, which he had given their forefathers through Moses.

  The Israelites lived among the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites and Jebusites. They took their daughters in marriage and gave their own daughters to their sons, and served their gods. (Judges 3:1-6 NIV84).

What do you understand these verses to mean?
- What law lens do you read them through?
- What is the overall context of Scripture, the grand central theme?
- What is the purpose of God in having the Scriptures written and inspiring which stories are recorded?

When the Lord puts someone to the test—what is He testing? It is always the same ultimate test—will they trust God or not, will they choose to exercise faith/trust/confidence in God or not?

And when they do then their faith/trust/confidence grows beyond the belief of devils who tremble, to the faith that is a living faith that results in loyalty to God.

We cannot grow in faith, in trust, unless we are placed in position where we are required to exercise our faith, where our faith is tried or tested and we choose to say no to the fear, the insecurity, the doubts, the temptations to act to save self and instead choose the truth and choose to do what is right in governance of ourselves while we trust God with the outcome.

This is the issue, it has always been the issue—are we faithful, loyal friends of God who actually trust Him? Not people who believe in Him but distrust Him and do things the world's way, the devil's way, the way of fear and selfishness while claiming to be friends of God.

Jesus asked this very question about the second coming:

- When the Son of Man comes, will he find faith on the earth? (Luke 18:8 NIV84).

When Jesus comes again will He find people who trust Him, who are faithful to Him, who have chosen to trust Him with their lives, future, fortunes, and families. Or will He only find people who claim to believe in Him, but who have put their trust in their rules, rituals, ceremonies, blood payments, wealth, institutions, and the power they can wield over others?

Paul said,

- Everything that does not come from faith is sin (Romans 14:23 NIV84).

God wants us to return to a living confidence, trust, faith in Him and He allows events to come upon us that will test our faith, put us into positions where we have to decide, do we scheme, calculate, plot, plan, connive, manipulate, bend the rules, make excuses, cheat in order to save self, or do we stand for what we know is right and trust God with how things turns out.

David, when he was dedicating materials and his son for the building of the temple, prayed:

- I know, my God, that you test the heart and are pleased with integrity. All these things have I given willingly and with honest intent. And now I have seen with joy how willingly your people who are here have given to you. O LORD, God of our fathers Abraham, Isaac and Israel, keep this desire in the hearts of your people forever, and keep their hearts loyal to you. (1 Chronicles 29:17-18 NIV84).

Examples of testing faith throughout human history?

- The Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil
- Abraham when he was told to sacrifice Isaac—
    - Some time later God tested Abraham. He said to him, "Abraham!"
      "Here I am," he replied. Then God said, "Take your son, your only son, Isaac, whom you love, and go to the region of Moriah. Sacrifice him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains I will tell you about." (Genesis 22:1-2 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Why does God "test" like this? Is it a test to trip people up, to trap them, to get them to fall, or is it some aspect of the outworking of design law?

These are the laws of truth, love, liberty, and exertion—what God wants cannot be created by Him nor chosen by Him. God wants our love, devotion, trust, friendship, and loyalty—He wants us to internalize and live out His living laws and thus develop Christlike character.

Loyalty, trust, devotion, friendship cannot be created—it is developed between two intelligent and free beings based on their mutual trustworthiness and righteousness of character and then the experiences they have with each other over time.

God provides everything for our healing, our salvation, and our deliverance from sin—fear and selfishness.

- He provides the truth that destroys lies and wins us to trust
- He provides the love that casts out the fear
- He provides the Savior, His Son, who became a real human and as a human, using only human abilities, chose to love and trust His Father in all things and received as a human the empowering of the Holy Spirit to succeed in all things. And as a human, Jesus developed a perfect righteous and mature human character and destroyed the infection of fear and selfishness that Adam introduced into humanity when he broke trust with God. Thus Jesus became the new head of humanity, the second Adam.
- He provides the Holy Spirit to bring the truth home to our hearts and minds, to convict of sin, to convict of duty, and then
- He provides freedom, real freedom to accept and choose the truth or reject it and when we choose the truth
- He provides the opportunity to test our faith, situations that require us to choose—do we trust God? Do we choose what we know is in harmony with His will, purposes, instructions, guidance, design laws for life and trust Him with outcomes, or do we choose to break trust with Him and seek to advance and save ourselves and
- When we choose to trust Him, then He provides divine power, the indwelling Holy Spirit to give us the ability to carry out the truth, to stand firm in the face of fear, threat, selfish temptations with a peace that passes understanding, with love for our enemies, with a vision of eternity as we choose to keep our eyes fixed on Jesus and our hearts loyal to Him.

So what was the test that God wanted the Israelites to face and pass?

The lesson asks us to read 1 Kings 11:1-6:

- King Solomon, however, loved many foreign women besides Pharaoh's daughter—Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Sidonians and Hittites. They were from nations about which the LORD had told the Israelites, "You must not intermarry with them, because they will surely turn your hearts after their gods." Nevertheless, Solomon held fast to them in love. He had seven hundred wives of royal birth and three hundred concubines, and his wives led him astray. As Solomon grew old, his wives turned his heart after other gods, and his heart was not fully devoted to the LORD his God, as the heart of David his father had been. He followed Ashtoreth the goddess of the Sidonians, and Molech the detestable god of the Ammonites. So Solomon did evil in the eyes of the LORD; he did not follow the LORD completely, as David his father had done. (1 Kings 11:1-6 NIV84)

What was the test they were to pass? Was it about killing enemies? Was it about being friendly? Was it about marrying people of foreign descent? If we say yes, then what about Moses marrying Zipporah or Salmon marrying Rahab who had a son Boaz who married Ruth, and both Rahab and Ruth are in the genealogy of Jesus?

So was it that they broke a rule not to marry non-Israeli women, or was it something else? What was the true test about? It was about not being loyal to God—about giving one's heart to other gods. The marrying of other women did not have to do with genetics, ethnicity, or race, it had to do with character, with loyalty to God. When the women of foreign nations chose to give their hearts to God then they were perfectly fine to marry—but when the women of other nations remained loyal to their false gods, then they were not suitable to marry. Why?

Read the fifth paragraph,

- Yet, despite the history of paganism and idolatry, and their negative influence on the chosen nation, Jesus still brought His disciples to these places. In this way He initiated them in cross-cultural urban mission, confronting their bias and bigotry, and modeled for His followers wholistic urban mission to all cultures and nationalities. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 89).

Why did Jesus seek out these people who had been a source of temptation, false god worship and interference with God's purpose for Israel?

Because there is only one human race all descended from Adam, and every single human being is infected with the same terminal sin condition, and every single human being needs the same remedy of Jesus Christ, and God's plan for Israel was for them to be the branch of the human family through whom He would come to provide that remedy, and they were to share the light, the truth, with all other peoples to bring them to salvation. So His going to visit these other groups was the exact working out of the plan of salvation—bringing the only healing solution to every single son and daughter of Adam and Eve.

MONDAY

The lesson asks us to read Matthew 9:35-38:

- Jesus went through all the towns and villages, teaching in their synagogues, preaching the good news of the kingdom and healing every disease and sickness. When he saw the crowds, he had compassion on them, because they were harassed and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd. Then he said to his disciples, "The harvest is plentiful but the workers are few. Ask the Lord of the harvest, therefore, to send out workers into his harvest field." (Matthew 9:35-38 NIV84).

We at Come and Reason Ministries have resonated with this passage, we look around and see so many people both in the organized churches and outside of them in need of the gospel, the eternal gospel, the truth about God and His design law methods of truth, love, and freedom. And we see how limited we are and how we need workers to come and join us in sharing this. We have been praying for years for more people around the world to take up this message and share it in their communities. And we have seen a steady growth in people embracing and supporting this eternal good news about God from all different denominational backgrounds, why? Because the truth about God is not restricted by denomination, it is not restricted by race, by national original, or by any other human division. It is restricted only when people refuse the truth and cling to lies, but when the truth is embraced it is unifying, people from all backgrounds find common purpose, common understanding, common principles for life and health, and common respect for the individuality of others.

What suggestions do you have on how we could be more effective in reaching the multitudes?

What have you found to be helpful?

TUESDAY

The lessons asks us to read Matthew 15:22-28:

- A Canaanite woman from that vicinity came to him, crying out, "Lord, Son of David, have mercy on me! My daughter is suffering terribly from demon-possession." Jesus did not answer a word. So his disciples came to him and urged him, "Send her away, for she keeps crying out after us." He answered, "I was sent only to the lost sheep of Israel." The woman came and knelt before him. "Lord, help me!" she said. He replied, "It is not right to take the children's bread and toss it to their dogs." "Yes, Lord," she said, "but even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall from their masters' table." Then Jesus answered, "Woman, you have great faith! Your request is granted." And her daughter was healed from that very hour. (Matthew 15:22-28 NIV84).

What do you think of this story?

Did Jesus not care about this woman? Did Jesus have any less love for her than the Jews? What is going on here?

The lesson cites commentary from the book The Desire of Ages:

- "Christ did not immediately reply to the woman's request. He received this representative of a despised race as the Jews would have done. In this He designed that His disciples should be impressed with the cold and heartless manner in which the Jews would treat such a case, as evinced by His reception of the woman, and the compassionate manner in which He would have them deal with such distress, as manifested by His subsequent granting of her petition." (The Desire of Ages, p. 400).

Do you agree with this understanding? This is an interpretation for the Bible itself doesn't give us these motives for the action. Much of the Bible is like this, it provides historical events, describes what happened, but doesn't always explain why, the motives, or other contextual details that make the story understandable—like the woman caught in adultery and cast before Jesus.

So why should we accept this interpretation of why Jesus did what He did here? I have had others who reject the Bible use this story to prove that Jesus was just as prejudiced as the other Jews and was demeaning to this woman calling her a dog.

Because the rest of Scripture, the record of Jesus' life shows that He never went around hurting others, seeking for self, but was always living out love and seeking to save people. So the action here was the outworking of love and truth for the saving of others because Jesus has proven that is what He does.

Who are the primary recipients of Jesus' work, activity, concern in this text? Isn't it the disciples? Hasn't he chosen them to invest in, to spend extra time and energy upon them to train, teach, and equip them to be His agents to spread the gospel to others?

So, in this story, while He loves this woman, Christ's way of dealing with the situation was a teaching moment for the disciples. But what enabled Christ to have this opportunity? It was not only the need of the woman's child—but the strength of the woman's faith. Because her faith was strong enough, Jesus could work through the event to expose bigotry in the disciples. But had this woman's faith been weak such that His initial response would have discouraged her and caused her to turn away in depression, then Jesus could not have used that moment as an opportunity to teach His disciples.

This is similar to how Shadrack, Meshack, and Abednego's faith was of such a quality that God could use the circumstance of the fiery furnace to reach Nebuchadnezzar.

God longs for people to trust Him enough to allow Him to work through their real life circumstances to reach others who would not be reached without those circumstances, or to enlighten and improve the faith of those who already are followers of Jesus.

The lesson points in the bottom pink section to 1 John 2:2, let's read 1 John 2:1-2:

- My dear children, I write this to you so that you will not sin. But if anybody does sin, we have one who speaks to the Father in our defense—Jesus Christ, the Righteous One. He is the atoning sacrifice for our sins, and not only for ours but also for the sins of the whole world. (1 John 2:1-2 NIV84).

The NIV in the footnote says:

- Or He is the one who turns aside God's wrath, taking away our sins, and not only ours but also but the sins of the whole world.

What law lens are you hearing this through? What law lens are these translators translating through? This is a great example of the bias people can have when they translate—I want to say this translation is an honest, linguistically legitimate translation—yet it connotes the imposed law view and thus misrepresents the true meaning.

Here is the Good News translation:

- I am writing this to you, my children, so that you will not sin; but if anyone does sin, we have someone who pleads with the Father on our behalf—Jesus Christ, the righteous one. And Christ himself is the means by which our sins are forgiven, and not our sins only, but also the sins of everyone. (1 John 2:1-2 GNT).

A little better as the "pleads with" is ambivalent, can be pleading to the Father or can be pleading along side in harmony with the Father, in other words both the Father and Jesus are pleading together for a common cause.

If we believe Jesus is pleading to the Father then that would contradict Jesus' own testimony in John 16:26 where He said He would not pray the Father for us. So harmonizing those two texts leads us to consider that Jesus is pleading along with the Father, not to the Father.

The Greek word translated intercessor, or one who pleads in our behalf, is the word: parakletos /par·ak·lay·tos—which is the word translated in other places as counselor or comforter and refers to the Holy Spirit, the one who walks along side, the helper, the comforter, the advocate, the one who pleads to another.

So if we accepts the imposed law lie, the belief that God's law works like human law, then we believe God is required by law to use His power to inflict punishment for sin and thus the pleading must be done by Jesus to God to get God to accept His blood as payment and offer us forgiveness. This is Satan's view, it is pagan, and it is not what the Bible is teaching.

Jesus said in John 14:16:

- I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Helper, who will stay with you for ever. (John 14:16 NIV84)

The word "Helper" is parakletos /par·ak·lay·tos. Jesus is saying that another Helper, another, Counselor, another, Advocate, another Intercessor—the Holy Spirit is the new other, so who is the first Helper, Counselor, Advocate, Intercessor?

Jesus Himself:

- For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the government will be upon His shoulder. And His name will be called Wonderful, Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. (Isaiah 9:6 NKVJ).

Jesus is our Helper, Intercessor, Advocate—the question is to whom and for what?

But Jesus is already working with another for our good, so Jesus said to His Father, I will ask for another, one in addition to you and I Father. Notice what Paul wrote in Romans 8:

- What, then, shall we say in response to this? If God is for us, who can be against us? He who did not spare his own Son, but gave him up for us all—how will he not also, along with him, graciously give us all things? Who will bring any charge against those whom God has chosen? It is God who justifies. Who is he that condemns? Christ Jesus, who died—more than that, who was raised to life—is at the right hand of God and is also interceding for us. (Romans 8:31-34 NIV84).

What does "also" mean? In addition to, Jesus is interceding in addition to the Father, NOT to the Father. So the Father is interceding for us, or helping us, or working for our good and thus He sent His Son Jesus because He loved the world so much, and the fullness of the Godhead dwelled in Jesus, and God was in the Son reconciling the world to Himself. And Jesus said to His disciples, even though the Father and I are already interceding for you, I will ask the Father to send a Third intercessor, another counselor, comforter to come to you the Holy Spirit who will not speak on His own but will take what I mine and make it known to you.

This is the reality of our human sin situation, as soon as Adam and Eve sinned the entire Godhead began interceding for us. And they intercede in three places. They intercede:

- In our hearts and minds to convict of sin, to put a desire for healing and reconciliation, to break up an alignment and unity with Satan. God did this in Eden when speaking to the serpent God said, "I will put enmity between you and the woman between you offspring and hers." This desire for good instead of evil is a result of God interceding in sinful hearts.
- With the principalities and powers of darkness holding at bay the winds of strife and demonic powers to allow the plan of salvation to be worked out in our individual lives and throughout human history.
- With the natural course of sin itself when Jesus who knew no sin became sin in order to destroy death and bring life and immortality to life and open a new path, a new way back into unity with God and eternal life.

God has never had a member of the Godhead interceding with Him, we have had God the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit interceding for and with us.

This historical description makes it very clear what the issues are, who is pleading with who when one returns to design law understanding:

- As Satan accused Joshua and his people, so in all ages he accuses those who are seeking the mercy and favor of God. In the Revelation he is declared to be the "accuser of our brethren," "which accused them before our God day and night." The controversy is repeated over every soul that is rescued from the power of evil and whose name is registered in the Lamb's book of life. Never is one received from the family of Satan into the family of God without exciting the determined resistance of the wicked one. Satan's accusations against those who seek the Lord are not prompted by displeasure at their sins. He exults in their defective characters. Only through their transgression of God's law can he obtain power over them. His accusations arise solely from his enmity to Christ. Through the plan of salvation, Jesus is breaking Satan's hold upon the human family and rescuing souls from his power. All the hatred and malignity of the archrebel is stirred as he beholds the evidence of Christ's supremacy, and with fiendish power and cunning he works to wrest from Him the remnant of the children of men who have accepted His salvation. (5 Testimonies 470.1) [where is such a battle taking place? Where is the work of Jesus occurring that will rescue a sinner from Satan's power? Where does Satan's powers of lies and selfishness occur? Who listens to Satan's lies, who believes Satan's accusations? Who would Christ need to plead with to persuade them that His sacrifice is sufficient to free the sinner from sin? Would God need to be persuaded that the sacrifice of Christ is sufficient? Would the sinner?]

He [Satan] leads men into skepticism, causing them to lose confidence in God and to separate from His love; [who is listening to Satan's accusations? With whom will Christ need to plead in order to overcome the accusations and restore their confidence?] he tempts them to break His law, and then he claims them as his captives and contests the right of Christ to take them from him. He knows that those who seek God earnestly for pardon and grace will obtain it; therefore he presents their sins before them to discourage them. [Notice the dynamic here. The author doesn't say that Satan knows if he can find a sin the person committed that they forgot to confess and ask forgiveness for that it remains on the legal registry in heaven and God will be forced to pronounce them guilty and Satan wins his legal case. NO! Satan knows that all who trust God will, as Isaiah 55 says, receive FREE pardon from God and grace that heals and restores them and gives them a new heart and empowers them to overcome the accusations and temptations of Satan. So Satan accuses the sinner to the sinner to discourage the repentant sinner tempting them to give up and let go of their faith in Jesus. So, again, where is Christ plea directed?] He [Satan] is constantly seeking occasion against those who are trying to obey God. Even their best and most acceptable services he seeks to make appear corrupt. [To whom is Satan seeking to make our best seem corrupt? To the repentant sinner in order to discourage and dishearten them so THEY GIVE UP. So, to whom would Christ be pleading for them not to listen to the accusations of Satan?] By countless devices, the most subtle and the most cruel, he [Satan] endeavors to secure their condemnation. [By whom? From whom is Satan seeking to get the sinner condemned? Christ Jesus He is at the Father's right hand and is also interceding for us—also, in addition to who, the Father and who is the Father interceding with? With the accusations of the devil that try and discourage us!] Man cannot meet these charges himself. In his sin-stained garments, confessing his guilt, he stands before God. [Exactly, we don't stand before God and say, "I don't need Jesus. I can cure my own sin condition. In fact, I really haven't sinned, I am righteous in my own strength." NO! We stand before God and say, "Father I acknowledge I was born in sin and conceived in iniquity. I was born with a terminal sin condition I didn't choose this condition and I have had many symptoms along the way many sins and shortcomings from your glorious ideal. I have been fearful and selfish and acted out against your law. I have no ability to change my heart, to heal my condition. I confess I am dead in trespass and sin. I am only here before you because Jesus overcame where I cannot and Jesus has gifted me His victory, His mind, His heart, His love, His motives, His character and it is no longer I that live but Jesus lives in me through the indwelling Spirit." Note what happens next.] But Jesus our Advocate presents an effectual plea in behalf of all who by repentance and faith have committed the keeping of their souls to Him. He pleads their cause and vanquishes their accuser by the mighty arguments of Calvary. [For all who acknowledge their condition Jesus pleads effectively TO THEM, "My grace is sufficient for you." I have engraved YOU on the palm of my hand. My victory is your victory. Trust me and I will make you whole! The accusations of Satan that we are too sinful to be saved are vanquished by the effectual plea of Jesus to you and to me!] His perfect obedience to God's law, even unto the death of the cross, has given Him all power in heaven and in earth, and He claims of His Father mercy and reconciliation for guilty man. [Whose mercy? God's mercy, God so loved the world that He sent Jesus to procure the Remedy and then empowers Jesus with all the power of heaven to distribute it to us to heal and save us. God doesn't win God's mercy, or beg God to be merciful, He claims the mercy that is God's, because of God's mercy Jesus was sent and became our Remedy to sin.] To the accuser of His people He declares: "'The Lord rebuke thee, O Satan.' These are the purchase of My blood, brands plucked from the burning." [Jesus doesn't plead His blood to the Father, Jesus rebukes Satan and refutes his accusations. And listen to what Jesus says to us.] Those who rely upon Him in faith receive the comforting assurance: "Behold, I have caused thine iniquity to pass from thee, and I will clothe thee with change of raiment." [He removes the fear, the guilt, the shame, the selfishness, the sin-condition and gives us a new heart and right spirit, writes His law of love into our inmost beings so that it is no longer I that live but Christ lives in me.] All that have put on the robe of Christ's righteousness will stand before Him as chosen and faithful and true. Satan has no power to pluck them out of the hand of Christ. Not one soul that in penitence and faith has claimed His protection will Christ permit to pass under the enemy's power. His word is pledged: "Let him take hold of My strength, that he may make peace with Me; and he shall make peace with Me." The promise given to Joshua is made to all: "If thou wilt keep My charge, ... I will give thee places to walk among these that stand by." Angels of God will walk on either side of them, even in this world, and they will stand at last among the angels that surround the throne of God. (5 Testimonies 470.2)

The fact that the acknowledged people of God are represented as standing before the Lord in filthy garments should lead to humility and deep searching of heart on the part of all who profess His name. Those who are indeed purifying their souls by obeying the truth will have a most humble opinion of themselves. [This is the investigative judgment. The investigation of our own hearts/minds/characters and the investigating the truth about God to experience the healing power of Christ purging and cleansing us from sin to prepare us to meet Him face to face.] The more closely they view the spotless character of Christ, the stronger will be their desire to be conformed to His image, and the less will they see of purity or holiness in themselves. But while we should realize our sinful condition, we are to rely upon Christ as our righteousness, our sanctification, and our redemption. We cannot answer the charges of Satan against us. Christ alone can make an effectual plea in our behalf. He is able to silence the accuser with arguments founded not upon our merits, but on His own. (5 Testimonies 471.1)

So this is how I paraphrased 1 John 2:1-2:

- My precious children, I am writing to you so that you will realize the power of God's love to free you from selfishness; and therefore experience God's healing and no longer live selfishly. But if relapses into selfishness occur during the healing process, don't be discouraged: Jesus Christ stands at the helm of all power, right next to God, and is pouring his love into our hearts to complete his restoring and healing work. He is the reconciling Remedy to the infection of selfishness and fear, and not just for our terminal condition: he is also the Remedy–freely available–to heal the entire world. (1 John 2:1-2 REM).

WEDNESDAY

Read the second paragraph,

- While waiting for lunch, Peter was given a vision of a rooftop buffet complete with a tablecloth filled with unclean animals and birds. Three times he was told in this vision to get up and eat. God used these visions to confront Peter's religious pride and bigotry against the Gentiles. Peter eventually understood this truth: "Then Peter opened his mouth and said: 'In truth I perceive that God shows no partiality. But in every nation whoever fears Him and works righteousness is accepted by Him' " (Acts 10:34, 35, NKJV). (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 92).

Then in the last paragraph the lesson states,

- Jesus patiently taught His disciples, who did not yet fully understand that God's great plan of salvation was for the entire human family, not just one nation or rural ethnic group. The Holy Spirit can help us to overcome our prejudice and bias in order to complete our mission to the cities. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 92).

Why is there division of human beings in the world—why are we not one as Jesus prayed that His followers would be?

Did God create human beings to be divided into different antagonistic groups that do not love and trust each other?

When did humanity divide like this? In Eden when Adam and Eve sinned they immediately divided and Adam blamed Eve for his sin.

Cain and Abel were divided by sin, by fear, envy, and jealousy.

But the world seemed to be on the verge of almost uniting against heaven at the time of the Flood. At that time there was only one righteous man left and his family so God put that hardened rebellious generation to sleep in order to keep the avenue for Messiah open. And after the Flood what did the people do?

The rejectors of God's mercy began to unite again in a unified rebellion against God, seeking to build a tower into heaven. And what did God do?

God therapeutically intervened by confusing the languages and scattering the people around the world (leading to the distinct racial divisions we see today), steps designed by God to slow the lies of Satan and impede humanity's rebellion against heaven and, thereby, allow the plan of salvation to be completed (Genesis 11:8, 9).

The language, tribal, racial, national, and ethnic differences we see in the world are not evil; these differences are not sinful—they have no bearing on our worth as human beings, they have no value in determining good or evil, but God did foresee that these differences along superficial characteristics would work to keep the sinful human race from uniting in a worldwide rebellion against Him and heaven, like the people did at the time of the Flood.

But there is evil in this world, and we are to recognize it and separate from it. There is to be an intelligent and purposeful division that we actively seek to create and promote among all people, without regard to their language, tribe, race, nationality, or ethnicity, for God loves all people equally. The Bible recognizes this division as the only one that righteous people are to act upon—the division between good and evil. The Bible describes this division between the righteous and the unrighteous in these terms:

The sheep and the goats
The wheat and the tares
The fruitful vine and withered vine
The pure woman and the harlot
The faithful and unfaithful
The holy and the unholy
The saved and the lost

Dividing along these lines is godly. Differentiating the righteous from the unrighteous in order to wisely discriminate regarding whom to associate with, date, marry, hire, place on our boards, and allow to be our friends is a very godly approach to life.

- Do not be yoked together with unbelievers. For what do righteousness and wickedness have in common? Or what fellowship can light have with darkness? What harmony is there between Christ and Belial? What does a believer have in common with an unbeliever? What agreement is there between the temple of God and idols? For we are the temple of the living God. As God has said: "I will live with them and walk among them, and I will be their God, and they will be my people. Therefore come out from them and be separate" (2 Corinthians 6:14–17 NIV84).

We are called to discriminate the honest from the dishonest, the loyal from the disloyal, those who love others from those who are selfish and exploit others. We are to actively discern the wise from the foolish, the kind from the cruel, and the merciful from the vengeful. The apostle Paul taught that as we approach the second coming of Christ, we are to be purposeful in disassociating ourselves from certain people:

- But mark this: There will be terrible times in the last days. People will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boastful, proud, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, without love, unforgiving, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, not lovers of the good, treacherous, rash, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God—having a form of godliness but denying its power. Have nothing to do with them (2 Timothy 3:1–5 NIV84, emphasis mine).

We are to be discriminating in our associations, relationships, hiring, and friends because, as Paul also wrote, "Bad company corrupts good character" (1 Corinthians 15:33 NIV84).

Jesus Himself said that He came to divide society:

- I have come to ignite the fire of truth and love upon the earth, and oh how I wish it were already an inferno! But I have a mission to complete, and the pressure on me to complete it is overwhelming. Do you think I have come to make peace with this selfish world? Absolutely not! I have not come to make peace with selfishness but to cut selfishness out of the hearts of people. From now on, those who choose the Remedy will cut dysfunctional family ties, and a family of five will be divided — two against three and three against two. Love will free a son from selfish loyalty to his father's ambitions and feuds, and a father from the selfish exploits of his son; love will sever a daughter from the control of an oppressive and manipulative mother, and a mother from the selfish demands of her daughter; love will cut through the fear and hostility a daughter-in-law has toward her mother-in-law, and mother-in-law toward daughter-in-law (Luke 12:49–53 REM).

God created human beings to be united in love and trust, but humanity became divided when Adam and Eve sinned. The natural state of this sinful world is selfishness, and Jesus did not come to unite with sin and selfishness but to set people free from sin and restore them to righteousness and eternal life. This necessarily means separating people from all that is unholy and ungodly.

Jesus cannot provide eternal life to people who refuse to leave sinfulness behind.

Therefore, Jesus seeks to separate people from sin—and all associations that keep sin active in their lives!

Yes, there is a real division in the world; it is a division between God and Satan, between holiness and vileness, between good and evil, between love and selfishness, truth and lies, freedom and coercion. And as Jesus is uplifted, as the gospel advances, as people surrender to Him and draw closer to Him, then fear and selfishness are replaced with love and trust and we are drawn together as a united people (Ephesians 4:13), just as Jesus prayed:

- I pray also for those who will believe in me through their message, that all of them may be one, Father, just as you are in me and I am in you. May they also be in us so that the world may believe that you have sent me. I have given them the glory that you gave me, that they may be one as we are one: I in them and you in me. May they be brought to complete unity to let the world know that you sent me and have loved them even as you have loved me (John 17:20–23 NIV84).

The Bible describes this end-time unity, when the gospel is advanced, as the reversal of the scattering God initiated at Babel. The Bible describes

- "a great multitude that no one could count, from every nation, tribe, people and language, standing before the throne and in front of the Lamb. They [are] wearing white robes," (Revelation 7:9 NIV84) which represent their characters having been purified to be like Jesus.

These diverse people come together in love, loyalty, and devotion to God, a united human family woven together in the bonds of godly love and trust, practicing the principles of Jesus in how they live and treat others. But this restoration into one united human family is only possible when Jesus is placed at the center.

Satan knows he cannot win if Jesus is uplifted, if the gospel is made central. Therefore, he actively opposes it. The evil one does not want people to focus upon Jesus and then recognize the righteous divide between truth and lies, love and selfishness, good and evil, so he has a two-step trap to keep people from turning to Jesus and thereby inflame evil divisions.

Step One: Satan replaces the godly dividing line between moral and characterological good and evil with some other superficial difference occurring among people groups—race, gender, language, ethnicity, national origin, etc.—and causes people to attribute value, privilege, and superiority/inferiority to those differences, thereby inflaming fear, selfishness, jealousy, envy, hate, and violence and inciting acts of injustice against those deemed inferior.

In step one, he deceives some people into believing the lie that skin color or gender or national origin makes some people inferior or less valuable or worthy. This lie leads to the creation of various caste systems (including the historical notion of "divine right" of rulers and the lie that there is an actual difference between people in the royal class and commoners). And these false divisions cause people to inflict real injustice upon the innocent—slavery, Jim Crow, aristocratic oppression of the commoner, and many other forms of exploitation, abuse, and restrictions of human freedom.

His step-one lie has divided society for millennia—and people still fight over this lie today. But as evil as Satan's step-one deception is, his step-two lie is even more diabolical.

Step Two: Satan's second step to ensnare people into becoming like him and dividing society is by tricking good people who recognize his step-one lie into seeking to rectify the step-one injustices by using Satan's methods.

This means that rather than pursuing justice by advancing the gospel and placing Jesus and God's methods of doing right at the center, Satan tricks people into placing the various injustices of the wicked at the center. Racism, sexism, and various other wrongs are focused upon, which inflames anger, outrage, and our sense of injustice—and then he offers his solution, "social justice," by the application of law, coercion, and external power to force behavior change, rather than winning people to love and trust. This two-step deceit keeps society divided, inflicts more layers of injustice upon more innocents, and actively keeps Jesus out of heart and mind, obstructing the only solution to racism and all other forms of human injustice.

What makes this so diabolical is that this method of seeking "justice" causes people to feel good, to feel they are doing right, to even believe they are advancing God's kingdom—after all, they are opposing evil—but all the while, they are advancing Satan's kingdom, practicing his methods, spreading more evil, corrupting their own character, obstructing the gospel, and inciting greater societal division.

The only solution for division is to cut fear, selfishness, and sin out of human hearts. And the only way that can happen is to place Jesus Christ at the center. We must advance the gospel of Jesus Christ. As people open their hearts to Him, focus upon Him, make Christ their supreme Lord, the One whom they long to be close to and to emulate in all things, they draw closer to Him and, simultaneously, to each other. We become unified in love, just as Jesus prayed, and experience the unity that inherent in our faith (Ephesians 4:13).

THURSDAY

The lesson brings us full circle back to Luke 18 where Jesus asks when He returns if He will find faith on the earth. Let's read the fuller context from The Remedy:

- Then Jesus told a parable to his interns to help them understand the importance of regular conversations with God and not quit talking with him. He said: "There was a judge who didn't believe in God or care about the welfare of people. And a widow, who had been exploited, kept petitioning the judge to do what was right and restore what her adversary had taken.

  "The judge refused for a long time, but he finally said to himself, 'Even though I don't believe in God or care about people, I am tired of this woman bothering me, so I will do what is right and she will finally leave me alone!' "

  Then the Lord explained: "Take a lesson from this unjust and godless judge: If he — not caring about anyone but himself — finally did the right thing, won't God set all things right for his children who cry out to him constantly? Will he ignore them? I tell you truly, he will set all things right, and quickly. But when the Son of Man comes, will he find any on earth who trust him to set things right?" (Luke 18:1-8 REM).

- Do we trust Jesus to set things right or do we get drawn in by the injustice to use Satan's methods to set things right?

- Do we join forces with various political groups to seek to pass laws that coerce others to conform to our way of living?
- Do we believe that the injustices of this world can be solved by law and law enforcement?
- Do we believe that the injustices will be solved by God using the exact same methods of this world, a legal tribunal followed by inflicted punishments?

The only way for their to be eternal peace, health, harmony, happiness is to restore God's living law of love into the hearts and minds of people—to win people to loving loyal trust, i.e. faith, so that they trust God with outcomes and are willing to lay down their lives for Him and others.

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 12
Esther and Mordecai

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 12
Esther and Mordecai

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read memory text:

- I will also make you a light for the Gentiles, that you may bring my salvation to the ends of the earth." (Isaiah 49:6 NIV84).

What does this text mean?

I want to be very respectful and careful lest someone misconstrue my following comments. I want to recognize how special, blessed, and chosen were the children of Israel—blessed by God, chosen by God, they received the prophets and the inspired writings, the object lessons and teaching tools of the ceremonial system, and the Messiah, God Himself in human form was born into their family tree. What incredible privilege and blessing. And because of this Satan has targeted this people throughout human history and they have suffered terrible persecution—first and foremost, as the Bible prophets write, because they kept betraying God and going after false gods and thus leaving God's protective care and opening themselves up for satanic attack—and Satan has used the ungodly of the world to attack and persecute this people throughout history.

So I have great admiration and respect for the Jewish people through history for they were called by God, as Isaiah has written, to be a light to the entire world and bring salvation to all peoples of the world.

But as a nation today, are they still fulfilling God's purpose? If we want to find God's truth for this time in human history, will we find it in the nation-state of Israel—is that where God is actively working to reveal the final message of mercy to the world?

Jesus said,

- "My kingdom is not of this world. If it were, my servants would fight to prevent my arrest by the Jews. But now my kingdom is from another place." (John 18:36 NIV84).

The Jewish people still existed under Roman occupation—they still had kings—remember King Herod. They still had their legal code and police force—the temple guards. In other words, their government was still in existence at that time. But Jesus said that that Jewish government was not His.

Satan claimed that Jewish government for his own along with all the rest of the kingdoms of the world that he offered to Jesus:

- Again, the devil took him to a very high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their splendor. “All this I will give you,” he said, “if you will bow down and worship me.” (Matthew 4:8-9 NIV84)

The Bible writers didn’t write that Satan showed Jesus all the kingdoms except Israel/Judah, no Judah was part of this fallen, rebellious, sinful world and was led by the same unrighteous leaders as the rest of the world and used the same imposed laws that are easily manipulated for selfish purposes as the rest of the world—the nation, while used by God to protect the Scriptures and to be the branch of the human family through whom Messiah would come, was not God’s kingdom and did not function upon heavenly law.

What about today, having rejected Jesus as Messiah, does the nation state of Israel today possess the gospel, function as God’s true church, and contain the heavenly light the world needs?

The first point, from our memory text, is that God called Israel for a mission—and that mission was to be a light to the entire world of the truth about God, the coming Messiah, and the plan of salvation. They were to call all people to repentance and trust in the true God. But they instead rejected the truth and rejected the Savior and the purpose of God in their calling was only partially fulfilled. They did bring the Scriptures down through time for the world to access and we have the Old Testament because of them, and Jesus was born descended from them. But they as a nation, as an organized religious system, did not accept Jesus as the Messiah; and all those symbols, ceremonies, object lessons that when connected to Jesus and objective reality become powerful tools to enlighten the mind, when they are disconnected from Jesus and objective reality they become powerful tools to keep people from seeing the truth. There is no salvation, path to heaven, eternal life other than that which God has provided in and through Jesus. The Jewish people have been so blessed to be the family through whom God has worked and sent the Messiah—incredible privilege. But sadly, it will do them no good if they reject the very remedy to our human sin condition that they were integral in bringing into the world.

Read the second paragraph,

- Esther and Mordecai, her cousin, were Jews living in the capital of the Persian Empire, Susa. For whatever reason, unlike other Jews who had returned to Judah, they, along with others, remained in the land of their captivity. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God’s Mission My Mission p. 96).

What lessons can we draw from this fact?

Where had God called the Jews to be at this time in history? They were to return to Palestine and rebuild the temple. Where were Esther and Mordecai? In Persia, so this means, according to the evidence we have, that Esther and Mordecai were not where God called them to be. And they ended up in trouble—did God abandon them because they weren't where they were supposed to be?

Have you ever heard the idea that if you go into a movie theater your guardian angel will stay outside? This story about Esther refutes that idea. God did not abandon them even though they were not where He instructed them to be.

But does that mean they didn't suffer hardship because of their choice not to go back to Jerusalem?

If they had been back in Jerusalem Mordecai would not have been in the situation where he refused to bow to Haman. Without that perceived slight Haman may not have had his attention drawn to the Jews and he may not have plotted to kill them. Had they returned to Jerusalem Esther would not have become queen and she wouldn't have had to risk her life going into the king.

So, one possibility is that the very problems, trials, and tribulation we see in this book is the result of their choice not to listen to God and not go where He wanted them to be and had they done so they may have avoided these problems. But, we also learn that despite their choice not to go, God did not abandon them but instead worked through them to protect the line for the Messiah, which Satan was actively seeking to destroy.

This process is a recurring theme we see in the lives of every person who seeks to follow God. God will give us various insights, truths, directions, callings, and we are left free to follow or not. If we choose not to listen right away, we may experience struggles, problems, conflicts, trials that God was trying to protect us from. When we find ourselves in such straights and call out to God, like Esther did, God always intervenes to heal and save—and I mean eternal salvation, not necessarily temporal salvation.

- Jacob—we can make the case that Jacob deceiving his brother goes against God's calling to live an honest and righteous life—and that act resulted in his many trials, but God did not abandon him and when Jacob turns to God God is there every time to help him and ultimately transform him giving him a new name Israel. Had Jacob not deceived Esau God would have given Jacob the blessing in God's way and Jacob would have avoided many trials.
- Jonah—called by God to go to Nineveh but runs, and experiences trials and tribulations he would not otherwise experience, and calls out to God and is delivered. Had he followed God's direction he would have avoided the storm and being swallowed by the fish.
- Samson didn't listen to God's instructions and suffered the results, but when he finally repented and turned back to God, God poured out His Spirit upon him and saved him eternally even though Samson died at that time. Had Samson stayed faithful he would have avoided such suffering. Samson ended up where God did not want him to be, but God did not abandon him; God waited for Samson to open his heart for God to heal and deliver.
- David didn't listen to what he knew was right in his affair with Bathsheba and murder of Uriah and he suffered consequence, but when he turned back to God in repentance he experienced a new heart and right spirit. He was saved eternally, but still had family and political problems as a result of his actions. David ended up in a situation where God did not want him to be, but God did not abandon him, but sent a message to lead David to repentance.

Do you see this process over and again throughout history and your own life?

These stories are given to use to reveal reality, how we thrive when we trust and follow God and choose His methods, principles, design laws and instructions. But we cause ourselves injury, hardship, burdens, trials when we do things our own way—but God does not abandon us, He keeps watch over us, letting us experience what we have chosen, but waiting but us to learn from reality and to call out to Him and then He always steps in to save, deliver, and heal.

We see this same pattern in the story of Esther, and her story raises all kinds of questions and concerns.

Let's review the setting:

- Xerxes is having a great banquet with a lot of alcohol being served. He calls for his queen, Vashti, to come so he can show her off. She refuses. The counselors counsel Xerxes to strip her of her position, forbid her to ever enter his presence again, and replace her with another queen. So Xerxes removes Vashti and starts the search for her replacement
- The most beautiful virgins throughout the empire were brought to the palace and placed in Xerxes harem. The women underwent 12 months of beauty treatments and then one by one they went into the king, after they left the king they went to where the concubines were kept under the care of one of the eunuchs.
    - What is likely the reason they became concubines at this point?
    - Then what did the interview likely entail?
- What would you have advised your daughter to do?
- Hmmm…would this be adultery?
- Would it be adultery for Esther to participate in a premarital tryout? Would it be adultery for her to marry a man who put away his first wife for political reasons?
    - Jesus said, "It has been said, 'Anyone who divorces his wife must give her a certificate of divorce.' But I tell you that anyone who divorces his wife, except for marital unfaithfulness, causes her to become an adulteress, and anyone who marries the divorced woman commits adultery. (Matthew 5:31-32 NIV84).
    - Are Jesus' words true only after He spoke them, or were they true before He said them? Were Jesus' words true in Esther's day?
    - If it is adultery how can God bless her if she is actively sinning?
    - Or do these apparent exceptions to the rules give insight into design law principles?
    - What is sin? Lawlessness—breaking trust with God and acting in selfishness, exploiting, abusing others.
    - And are people responsible for what they did not choose?
    - In that culture what were women raised to believe and what authority were they given in governance of self?

- Women didn't have the same freedom to choose to initiate these marriage or divorce in that culture that they have in our culture. Women didn't get to choose their husbands, they were treated as property and often traded by their fathers. They couldn't initiate a divorce, only the husband could.
- So, is adultery about the act, or the heart attitude? Adultery is betrayal of trust, the heart attitude. When Mordecai instructed her to do this, she was fulfilling her duties to her family, people, culture and would have engaged in this activity with a clear conscience. She was not seeking to betray anyone, or exploit anyone and thus her conscience was clear and God could work through her.

SUNDAY

Read second and third paragraph,

- None of us, for instance, lives in an Adventist country where the principles of our faith are, to some degree, the law of the land. But before being deported, the Jewish people had been living in their own country, where the principles of their faith were also enshrined in the law of the land.

  On one level, think how easy that should have made it to be faithful to God. After all, how much easier would it be to keep the seventh-day Sabbath if, in fact, keeping the seventh-day Sabbath were enshrined in the legal codes of the nation? (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 97).

Hmmm…why were the Jewish people at the time of Esther in this foreign land? Because they had been taken captive by Babylon some 70 years or so before, and why were they taken captive? Because they had been unfaithful, rebellious, disloyal to God. But how could that happen if they had the principles of their faith enshrined into the legal code making is so much easier for them to obey?

This is what happens when one accepts Satan's lie that God's law functions like human law—an inability to see objective reality and what it means, minds clouded by rules and rule-keeping.

Did anyone read my blog for this week? This is a perfect opportunity to explore a question that comes up often by those who value the imposed law view and even those who don't but who struggle with the many verses in the Bible where God did give rules, laws, with imposed penalties. If God's kingdom and government do not function like human law and governments, how do we explain the many laws given, often with what appears to be harsh penalties, like stoning someone who picks up sticks on Sabbath.

How we understand the Bible often depends on the presuppositions we hold as we read it. Do we understand the setting in which the inspired message was given? What do we understand the problem being addressed to be? How do we understand God's law—do we believe it is imposed, like human law, or is it design law? What do we understand the central theme of Scripture to be? What is God's intention, preference, and desire, and are God's actions His preferred way or what the people He is dealing with require for their current situation, needs, or understanding?

So why did God use such laws if His kingdom doesn't function in this way?

The answer is simple and straightforward: The rules given to Israel were for the setting up of a civil government in a sinful world to bring order and stability to a rebellious, unrighteous, self-centered, and sinful people who did not have hearts reborn to love God and others, people who had not experienced the new covenant of having design law written upon their hearts, a people who functioned upon the same me-first, fear-based, survival-of-the-fittest principles as the godless world around them, people who were just freed from being slaves to pagans.

The imposed rules were not intended to represent how God's government works; rather, they were intended to establish societal order among this sinful people to protect them from decaying into infighting, political intrigue, and tribal wars, which was already starting to occur with Korah and his rebellion, so that they could accomplish the mission for which they were called—to be the human avenue through whom the promised Messiah of Genesis 3:15 would come and to preserve the inspired writings.

In Romans 13 the apostle Paul describes how God uses human imposed law via civil governments to provide order in a sinful world but contrasts it with the law of love—God's design to love our neighbors which must be written upon the heart. And to help people realize the need to have the law of love written upon their hearts God added laws, both ceremonial and the Ten Commandments (Galatians 3). The Ten Commandments did not exist in heaven when Lucifer rebelled; it is a written code specifically tailored for sinful humans. Angels don't have a law to honor their mothers (because they don't have mothers), that sins pass down their generations (because they don't reproduce), or not to commit adultery (because they don't marry).

But God was the one who gave Israel its imposed laws—why?

To provide both a protective hedge and a diagnostic instrument to convict the people of their terminal sin condition, which was designed to lead them to surrender their hearts to God so they would experience the new covenant, recreating them and restoring His living design law of love into their hearts and minds (Jeremiah 31:33; Hebrews 8:10). David understood this when he prayed,

> Surely you desire truth in the inner parts; you teach me wisdom in the inmost place. … Create in me a pure heart, O God, and renew a steadfast spirit within me (Psalm 51:6, 10 NIV84).

When Adam and Eve sinned, they changed themselves, took themselves out of harmony with life, and infected themselves with death. And because we are all descended from Adam and Eve, we are all born in sin, conceived in iniquity (Psalm 51:5)—we are all born with a terminal condition.

But God loves us too much to let us die (John 3:16), so immediately after Adam and Eve sinned, He promised to send the Messiah to save humanity from its terminal condition (Genesis 3:15). The entire

Old Testament narrative is the story of God fulfilling that promise and Satan working to stop it. Satan nearly succeeded in preventing the plan when he deceived the entire pre-Flood population of the world into hardening their hearts permanently against God—all except one man and his family. But God acted in love, in mercy, therapeutically, to keep open the avenue for the Messiah in order to save humanity. (You can read more about this in our blogs The Flood and Questions of Whether God Kills, Part 1 and Part 2.)

After the Flood, the Bible shifts from a global focus to the family of Abraham, which was further narrowed down through Isaac and then Jacob, because it is through their descendants that the promised Messiah would come.

At the time when the various laws were given to Israel, God was establishing them as a nation, an organized group of sinful humans who had not become His friends, like Abraham had become, but whom He wanted to be His friends. But because they were not reborn with new hearts, because they were still unconverted and, therefore, ruled by fear and selfishness and were untrustworthy, God intervened to establish a society that would function and survive in this world of sin, a society that would be made up of a few of His loyal friends (who didn't need the written law because God's design law was written upon their hearts) but also many more rebels and unrighteous idol worshipers (who did need the written law to diagnose and provide order—1Timothy 1:8-11). Thus, God established a code of civil conduct to restrain evil and prevent societal decay in a world of sin—which included the laws and penalties referenced in the emails above.

However, God's establishment of the rule of law in this world of sin does not represent the eternal government of God but is part of His condescension, part of His grace, mercy, and love, demonstrating how God is willing to step down and meet sinful humans where we are and provide what we need in order to keep open the avenue for the Messiah, who taught about a new kingdom with a new law and new methods that are written upon hearts and minds and not stone tablets or legal registries.

As Jesus said:

> The kingdom of God does not come with your careful observation, nor will people say, "Here it is," or "There it is," because the kingdom of God is within you (Luke 17:20, 21 NIV84).

In order to save humanity, God must eradicate fear and selfishness from our hearts and write into our hearts and minds His living law of love (Hebrews 8:10). This cannot be done through imposed law, which is legal enforcement with threats of punishment. It can only be done through truth and love while leaving beings free—the eternal attributes, powers, and laws of God. It is why Paul wrote "that God's kindness leads you to repentance" (Romans 2:4 NET).

And when we are won back to trust in God, when we repent, we receive Jesus Christ into our hearts as our Friend and Savior. And Jesus applies His remedy, which He achieved as our human substitute. But for Jesus to become our Savior, He had to be born as a human—He had to become part of the species descended from Adam. He had to partake of this fallen humanity to cure this fallen humanity. And Jesus did this for us. But in order for Jesus to do this, God had to preserve a branch of the human family through whom He would be born—along with the inspired record through which Jesus, as a human child, would learn, just as we learn about heaven's revelations.

Thus, God provided civil laws with civil penalties to create a human society of some order to prevent the destruction and dissolution of the descendants through whom the Messiah would come.

God cannot get what He wants through imposed law—He can only restrain the unrepentant in some semblance of order to prevent anarchy and chaos for the purpose of allowing the gospel to heal hearts and minds.

This is also demonstrated throughout the biblical record—every time God uses might and power He restrains immediate evil but does not get more love and loyalty, he gets more rebellion, because force leads to rebellion:

- God sent the flood to keep open the avenue for Messiah, but after that great display of power the people began building a tower, why? Because they trusted God or didn't trust Him?
- After the 10 plagues of Egypt and thundering at Sinai what did the people do? More love and loyalty or rebellion after rebellion?
- After Mount Carmel when the great display of power of fire raining down did Israel remain faithful and loyal or back into idolatry?

One of the founders of the SDA church understood this and wrote:

- The man who attempts to keep the commandments of God from a sense of obligation merely--because he is required to do so--will never enter into the joy of obedience. He does not obey. When the requirements of God are accounted a burden because they cut across human inclination, we may know that the life is not a Christian life. True obedience is the outworking of a principle within. It springs from the love of righteousness, the love of the law of God. The essence of all righteousness is loyalty to our Redeemer. This will lead us to do right because it is right--because right doing is pleasing to God. Christ's Object Lessons 97, emphasis mine)

- A sullen submission to the will of the Father will develop the character of a rebel. By such a one service is looked upon as drudgery. It is not rendered cheerfully, and in the love of God. It is a mere mechanical performance. If he dared, such a one would disobey. His rebellion is smothered, ready to break out at any time in bitter murmurings and complaints. Such service brings no peace or quietude to the soul. (Signs of the Times, July 22, 1897, emphasis mine).

This is why, regarding Sabbath observance, God through Isaiah said that we are only keeping it if we enjoy it, if it is a delight to us.

Can you use threat, power, coercion to intimidate your children into eating spinach? Can you make them enjoy it?

The use of law coerces behavior but it does not transform hearts and true obedience only comes from converted hearts, this is design law. We must stop teaching Satan's lie that God's law functions like human law. We must understand that God's use of various imposed laws in Bible times was not for the setting up of His eternal government but because He was dealing with unconverted sinners who needed restraint.

MONDAY

The lesson focuses on Mordecai's instruction to Esther to hide her Jewish heritage.

What are your thoughts about this?

Is there a difference between withholding information and breaking the 9th commandment?

What is the 9th commandment?

- "You shall not give false testimony against your neighbor." (Exodus 20:16 NIV84)

Is withholding information the same as giving false testimony against someone?

Well if one is in court and are asked a specific question that would enlighten the issues and you withhold exculpatory information for the purpose of allowing people to draw a false conclusion then, yes, in that circumstance withholding information would be bearing false witness.

However, in day-to-day conversations, if you keep certain things about yourself private is that the same as bearing false witness against your neighbor?

Notice the motive of the commandment, it is prohibiting evil, and what is evil?

In every culture of the world the root definition of evil is the same—exploitation of others. So the commandment is prohibiting actions designed to exploit, injure, harm, take advantage of another. In other words, it prohibits selfishness, it prohibits anti-love.

But withholding information may very well be an act of love. Jesus said

- "I have much more to say to you, more than you can now bear." (John 16:12 NIV84).

TUESDAY

Read second paragraph,

- In Esther 3, we learn that King Xerxes (Ahasuerus) honored Haman and gave him a high position full of power. Everyone was told they must bow down before Haman. But we read: "Mordecai would not kneel down or pay him honor" (Esther 3:2, NIV). The Bible does not give the reason that Mordecai did not kneel before this man. But we know why. He is a faithful Jew. Mordecai is not willing to pay homage to a descendant of Agag, an Amalekite, enemies of his people since the Exodus (Deut. 25:19). How could a faithful Jew kneel down before an Amalekite? Or, for that matter, worship anyone but the Lord? (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 99).

To the degree this was about worship, then certainly a person who is faithful to God cannot worship another, whether a person, angel, or idol. So, if this is about worship then well done Mordecai.

But is worship the only possibility here?

In Eastern cultures is there bowing that does not have to do with worship, but with respect and greeting?

Is it likely that Xerxes would have given an order for Haman to be worshiped as a god and be revered above Xerxes himself?

Is it possible that this is about authority, about position, about bending the knee not in religious worship but in submission to authority with cultural overlay of bowing to show one's respect and willingness to submit to the authority and leadership of the one to whom they are bowing? And could Mordecai object to this because he first, didn't respect Haman as a person, second discerned the hatred and selfishness in his heart, and third recognized him as coming from a long-standing enemy of his people? And perhaps as an official of the government there may have been aspects of the officials representing the pagan gods of the government and bowing had some element of reverence for the gods—but if that were the primary issue here wouldn't Mordecai have already refused to bow to Xerxes at some point and been in trouble?

The author of the book Prophets and Kings, seems to blend the various motives:

- Through Haman the Agagite, an unscrupulous man high in authority in Medo-Persia, Satan worked at this time to counterwork the purposes of God. Haman cherished bitter malice against Mordecai, a Jew. Mordecai had done Haman no harm, but had simply refused to show him worshipful reverence. Scorning to "lay hands on Mordecai alone," Haman plotted "to destroy all the Jews that were throughout the whole kingdom of Ahasuerus, even the people of Mordecai." Esther 3:6. (Prophets and Kings 600, emphasis mine).

Mordecai certainly would not worship this man, but he also would not give this man the idea that he would submit to his unscrupulous abuse of authority that was being used by Satan to work against God.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson points our attention to Esther 4:13-14 perhaps the most important and often quoted portion of the book:

- And Mordecai told them to answer Esther: "Do not think in your heart that you will escape in the king's palace any more than all the other Jews. For if you remain completely silent at this time, relief and deliverance will arise for the Jews from another place, but you and your father's house will perish. Yet who knows whether you have come to the kingdom for such a time as this?" (Esther 4:13-14 NKJV).

Can this sentiment, this idea, "who knows whether you have come to the kingdom for such a time as this?" be true for each of us? That we might find ourselves in circumstances that God specifically called us to?

Has God, in fact, made a call for His people who are living today, at this time in human history? What is that call?

Here is an historical quotation from one of the founders of the SDA church that suggests a purpose for God's people at this time in human history. Do you agree or disagree?

- It is God's design to manifest through His people the principles of His kingdom. [which are what? Truth, love, freedom, the design laws that life is created by God to operate upon. And when we live in harmony with God's design laws what happens in us? We become healthier, happier, holier, and reveal more fully the truth by our very being. Notice what comes next] That in life and character they may reveal these principles. He desires to separate them from the customs, habits and practices of the world. [Does this mean only villainy, perversion, crime, abuse, or does it also include the pursuit of justice through the customs, habits, and practices of the world?] He seeks to bring them near to Him that He may make known to them His will… (Kress Collection 12).

  To the same work He has called His people in this generation. To them He has revealed His will, and of them He requires obedience. In the last days of this earth's history the voice that spoke from Sinai is still saying to men, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." Exodus 20:3. [What does this mean? Is it restricted to godlessness or pagan idols? Or do we recognize that when we replace the truth of God's design law with human imposed laws that we replace the God of heaven with a creature in our worship? If we worship a god who functions like a human we are not worshiping the Creator.] Man has set his will against the will of God, but He cannot silence this word of command. The human mind can never fully comprehend its obligation to the higher power, but it cannot evade the obligation. Profound theories and speculations may abound, may try to set science in opposition to revelation, and thus do away with the law of God: but stronger and still stronger will the Holy Spirit bring before them the command, "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve." Matthew 4:10. (Kress Collection 12.3) [Consider the generations that have been taught the lie of godless evolution—but their false theories do not change objective reality. Look at what is happening all over the world where godlessness is taught, decay and disintegration of common decency.]

How is the world treating the law of God? Everywhere men are working against the divine precepts. Even the churches are taking sides with the great apostate. [How by teaching God's law is imposed law. That justice is through punishment and legal payments. That it is right and good to coerce consciences of people if it is for a greater good, like saving lives.] Men in their blindness boast of wonderful progress and enlightenment, but the heavenly see the earth filled with corruption and violence. Because of sin the atmosphere of our world has become as the atmosphere of a pesthouse. (Kress Collection 12.4) [Do you see the degradation of the human condition wherever these godless policies are taking hold? Look at the homelessness, drug abuse, rioting, open violence, gang shoplifting, hatred of the truth, hatred of virtue, rejection of objective reality, rejection of God's design for families, devaluing of human life).

A great work is to be accomplished in saying before men the saving truths of the gospel. This is the means ordained by God to stem the tide of moral corruption. This is His means of restoring His moral image in man. It is His remedy for universal disorganization. It is the power that draws men together in unity. (Kress Collection 12.5) [What is God's means? The presentation of the gospel, the truth, presented in love, while leaving people free. What is NOT the means? It is not the method of law, of force, of coercion, of threat, of imprisonment, of physical war, of intimidation, of politics, of control of consciences, of economic sanction. Why is the means that God uses that of the gospel? Because what God wants is our love, trust, loyalty, devotion, friendship and this can only be achieved through our conversion, our freewill agreement, our choice to surrender. And the methods of Satan, the methods of this world destroy individuality, destroy love, incite fear, stoke selfishness, inflame violence, and efface the image of God in people and instead make people to be like Satan.]

To present these truths is the work of the third angel's message. [This is the message of design law, of returning to worship God as Creator. To present the 3 angels through imposed law with rules that must be kept and a god who inflicts punishments for rule breaking is to present the Satan's false version of God and obstructs the final message, delays the second coming, hardens hearts and minds against heaven.] The Lord designs that the presentation of this message shall be the highest, greatest work carried on in our world at this time. That this work may be carried forward on correct lines, He has directed the establishment of schools, sanitariums, publishing houses, and other institutions. In these institutions the attributes of God are to be unfolded, and the glory and excellence of the truth is to be made to appear more vivid. (Kress Collection 13.1) [But instead our institutions have become infected with imposed law and the pagan punishing god who requires the blood of a human sacrifice in order not to kill us. If we want to accomplish the mission, if we want to hasten the day, we must reject the imposed law lie and reset our message in the design law reality of God's kingdom and character of love.]

> The Lord years ago gave me special light in regard to the establishment of a health institution where the sick could be treated on altogether different lines from those followed in any other institution in our world. It was to be founded and conducted on Bible principles as the Lord's instrumentality. Those who had any connection with this institution were to be educated in health restoring principles. (Kress Collection 13.2) [The laws of health are what kind of laws? Design laws, and these principles are to be what our institutions operate upon. When she began this health reform the world leaders were practicing various superstitious treatments, bleeding, leaching, and using various poisons to treat diseases.]
> The human family is suffering because of the transgression of the laws of God. [Why? Because breaking rules gets one in trouble and God uses power to inflict punishments? No! because God's laws are like the laws of health and breaking them causes us injury and harm, physically, mentally, emotionally, relationally, and socially] Satan is constantly urging men to accept his principles, and thus he is seeking to counterwork the work of God. [Like using coercion to force people against their will to take an experimental injection with no evidence of safety, like colluding with governments to shut down worship centers and ministries—for what? Fear without respect to conscience.] He is constantly presenting the chosen people of God as a deluded people. He is an accuser of the brethren, and his accusing power he is constantly using against those who work righteousness. The Lord desires through his people to answer Satan's charges by showing the result of obedience to right principles… (Kress Collection 13.3) [Have you not seen this over the last several years the constant accusations against anyone with truth, accusations of racism, sexism, transgenderism against anyone who advances principles of equality rather than equity
> Still greater truths are unfolding for this people as we draw near the close of time, and God designs that we shall everywhere establish institutions where those who are in darkness in regard to the needs of the human organism may be educated, that they in turn may lead others into the light of health reform. The blind leaders of the blind must learn the truth in regard to healthful living as taught in the Scriptures. (Kress Collection 13.5)

The Christian leaders and staff at Honey Lake Clinic are fully on board with these principles, with making decisions to heal the whole person through the application of biblical truth—which are design laws. The truth of God is not restricted by denominational boundaries, God's truth is for all people and any person who loves the truth will find the Holy Spirit leading them into ever increasing truth. I pray for God to send more lovers of His truth to the field to help us share this message and win more people out of the pagan system of imposed laws with its punishing god.

2023 4Q God's Mission My Mission Lesson 13
The End of God's Mission

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read Memory Verse:

- Therefore, since all these things will be dissolved, what manner of persons ought you to be in holy conduct and godliness, looking for and hastening the coming of the day of God… (2 Peter 3:11-12 NKJV)

I love this verse, the inspiration and hope that we can hasten or speed the coming of Jesus. Have you ever thought about that? And have you considered what we could do to make that happen? Ideas?

- First and foremost is for us individually to prepare ourselves—God waits patiently for all savable people to settle into the truth of salvation. So, if there are choices that we need to make in governance of self to settle us into our loyalty, devotion, and friendship with God then that is our first duty—to cooperate with God for our own sealing.
- Then, second, we are to use our abilities to advance God's kingdom—to take actions that help others come to salvation—what might those be? How would you describe it?
- Take the gospel to the world—but isn't that the mission of every Christian? And if all Christians are doing that why hasn't Jesus come? Is it possible the gospel that has been taken to the world is incomplete, is missing some vital element, has been altered through history in some way such that it is not the message God wants taken?
- Take the 3 Angels messages—which starts with the eternal gospel, the gospel that is the same through all eternity both past and future. Do we have a gospel—good news—that is eternally true and contains truth that has been lost to Christianity over the millennia and until this truth is returned to the gospel then what is being presented by the majority of Christianity remains incomplete?
- What is the missing piece?
- The truth about God's law which determines the way we understand God's character, government, methods, the problem of what sin is and the plan of salvation.

We believe that Christ has not yet returned because the true gospel is yet to be presented in its full light. That the gospel has only been presented in a partial light, but that eternal truth that is essential to not only save sinners from sin, but to settle the loyal angels into eternal loyalty, truth that is necessary to insure sin never arises again is yet to be included in the final message to the world.

We believe this centers on the truth about God's law, His law being design law and the belief about God's law directly determines how one understands God's character and thereby determines what kind of people we become. Are we transformed into people who bear the image of God because we are fixing our eyes on Christ and seeing Him in His true light and by beholding we are changed, or do we hold to traditional teachings that misrepresent God and Christ and while we still worship a being called Jesus and our Heavenly Father, we attribute to them traits that make them like Satan in character and by beholding and worshiping this distorted god we become marked beastly?

We have a new magazine coming out in a few weeks entitled The Lie—That Deceived Angels, Infects Christianity, and Delays the Second Coming of Christ. In this magazine we start by describing our motive—to hasten the coming of the Lord, and then make the case that the Lord delays because He is waiting for the eternal gospel, the truth about His design law to be recovered and returned to the presentation of the gospel because in order God to win the war for hearts and minds He has to do more than destroy Satan, He has to destroy Satan's lies that infect hearts and minds. And lies cannot be destroyed by force and might, but only by truth and love.

In this magazine we describe this battle through history and how Adventist Reformers brought this larger view over God's law to Christianity and in 1888 the legalists rejected it and the SDA organization joined the rest of Christianity in advancing a Romanized version of Christianity in which it is taught that God's law functions like Roman law, with imposed rules that require the supreme dictator to impose penalties. God is then presented as the source of inflicted pain, suffering, and death that require Him to be appeased by the blood of an innocent sacrifice.

We document, from the published materials of a wide variety of Christian denominations, that this lie about God's law infects them all, including the SDA church, yet the message given to the SDA Reformers overthrows this Romanized human distortion of the gospel.

We will let you know when it is available so you can get copies, read it, and then when you are persuaded in your own mind, share it with as many people as you can.

Read first paragraph,

- The book of Revelation fills the mind with scenes of the end. The epicenter of the book deals with the cosmic conflict between Christ and Satan. Satan has lost his legal hold over the earth, and now he pursues those who remain loyal to God. The book climaxes with Jesus' return to deliver His children, both the living righteous and those faithful ones who have died since the fall of Adam and Eve. The book shows us, too, the destruction of Satan and the wicked by fire, and Jesus' establishment of His eternal kingdom on the earth made new. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 104).

What do you think of this sentence "Satan has lost his legal hold over the earth, and now he pursues those who remain loyal to God"?

Has Satan ever had a legal hold over the earth? What legal hold does Satan have? If one must use legal language has Satan done anything legally or are all of his actions illegal? Can someone do illegal acts to obtain a legal hold?

What does it mean that the lesson uses such language? It is evidence that the authors have accepted the Romanized version of the Bible and Christianity, the lie that God's law functions like human law, a system of imposed rules with legally imposed consequences.

But this is all false—Satan never had a legal hold. His hold has always been through deception, through lies, through falsehood, and the hold has been on the hearts and minds of intelligent beings, not upon territory.

And his hold upon sinners is an illegitimate and illegal hold—we are slaves to sin—but Satan doesn't hold us as slaves to sin legally, it is against the law of God and heaven. It is so sad, but this type of thinking, this distortion in the presentation of the gospel is exactly why the church has not finished its mission to give the gospel to the world and why Christ delays. And it is exactly how we can hasten the day of Christ's return by rejecting the Romanized view of God's law and presenting the eternal gospel to the world.

Consider this commentary from the book The Desire of Ages in regard to Satan's legal hold, do you agree?

- When Satan declared to Christ, The kingdom and glory of the world are delivered unto me, and to whomsoever I will I give it, he stated what was true only in part, and he declared it to serve his own purpose of deception. Satan's dominion was that wrested from Adam, but Adam was the vicegerent of the Creator. His was not an independent rule. The earth is God's, and He has committed all things to His Son. Adam was to reign subject to Christ. When Adam betrayed his sovereignty into Satan's hands, Christ still remained the rightful King. Thus the Lord had said to King Nebuchadnezzar, "The Most High rules in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever He will." Daniel 4:17. Satan can exercise his usurped authority only as God permits. (The Desire of Ages 129).

Do you see how deeply the lie is in Adventism that despite having commentary like this, they still claim that Satan had a legal hold on earth—he did not.

What do you think of the last sentence, "The book shows us, too, the destruction of Satan and the wicked by fire, and Jesus' establishment of His eternal kingdom on the earth made new"?

Does the way one understands God's law impact how one understands the destruction of the wicked, including Satan, in the end?

How is the destruction of the wicked taught by those who accept Rome's view of God's law? That sin is lawbreaking and justice requires the infliction of punishment and therefore in the end, God uses His power to not just kill the wicked for their sin-crimes, but to torture them the appropriate amount of time before He kills them. But these same people turn around and say that God is love and that all He wants for us is our love and loyalty. In this they reveal that they are exactly like the blind religious leaders Christ confronted, people who do not comprehend how reality works for they do not understand God's design law, character, government, or methods.

They are blind because they think they are presenting ideas that will advance God's kingdom and eradicate sin, but instead the lie that God's is the source of inflicted punishment for sin violates God's law of liberty and incites more rebellion, distrust, and sin.

This is Satan's goal to have the very people who claim to worship God teach lies that result in the destruction of love, increase rebellion, and for those who stay in this system of belief to destroy their individuality and make them into mindless pawns who merely look to authority to tell them what to do—very much like the Dark Ages church, and more recently mindlessly going along with the coercion of consciences in promoting experimental medical treatments.

Consider these historical quotes documenting a different message was part of the founding of the Adventist church, but that message has been suppressed and replaced with the Roman version ever since 1888. As I read these comments I want you to specifically ask yourself, do these comments harmonize with the Roman imposed law lie or with Design law?

- The earth was dark through misapprehension of God. That the gloomy shadows might be lightened, that the world might be brought back to God, Satan's deceptive power was to be broken. This could not be done by force. The exercise of force is contrary to the principles of God's government; He desires only the service of love; and love cannot be commanded; it cannot be won by force or authority. Only by love is love awakened. To know God is to love Him; His character must be manifested in contrast to the character of Satan. This work only one Being in all the universe could do. Only He who knew the height and depth of the love of God could make it known. Upon the world's dark night the Sun of Righteousness must rise, "with healing in His wings." Mal. 4:2. (The Desire of Ages 22).

What law is described? What is Satan's power? Lies about God, and can the lie that God's law is imposed requiring God to use power to punish lawbreakers by hurting and killing them be refuted by using power to force compliance? What is required to destroy this lie? The truth—and does that mean simply the declaration of the truth or the objective demonstration of the truth lived out for all to see? And do you see in Jesus' life, when Peter pulled out a sword to use physical power, Jesus told him to put it away and said:

- "Do you think I cannot call on my Father, and he will at once put at my disposal more than twelve legions of angels? But how then would the Scriptures be fulfilled that say it must happen in this way?" (Matthew 26:53-54 NIV84).

And Jesus said to Pilate:

- "My kingdom is not of this world. If it were, my servants would fight to prevent my arrest by the Jews. But now my kingdom is from another place." (John 18:36 NIV84).

Jesus, God in human form, demonstrates that He does not use physical might and power to advance His kingdom. He could have used such methods, but they are not part of God's kingdom, for they are contrary to His character of love, they are the actions of a creature, not the Creator. God is waiting for His people to fully throw of all this creature worship that stems from believing God's law functions like human law, and return to worshiping Him in His true light, to make a right judgment about Him, to glorify Him in our lives and we can only do this in the fullness of God's design by rejecting Roman imposed law and all the penal legal lies that come with it and embrace the truth that God's laws are design laws.

Consider this historical quote:

- In the work of redemption there is no compulsion. No external force is employed. Under the influence of the Spirit of God, man is left free to choose whom he will serve. In the change that takes place when the soul surrenders to Christ, there is the highest sense of freedom. (The Desire of Ages 466).

If the Roman view of God's law is correct and that God is required by law and justice to use His power to punish law breakers, then are we left free or is there compulsion, pressure, external force being applied?

Consider this quote:

- We are not to regard God as waiting to punish the sinner for his sin. The sinner brings the punishment upon himself. His own actions start a train of circumstances that bring the sure result. Every act of transgression reacts upon the sinner, works in him a change of character, and makes it more easy for him to transgress again. By choosing to sin, men separate themselves from God, cut themselves off from the channel of blessing, and the sure result is ruin and death. (Selected Messages volume 1, p. 235).

Can this be true if God's law functions like human law? This quote is describing Galatians 6:8, those who sow to the carnal nature, from that nature reap destruction. Or James 1:15, sin when full grown brings forth death. Or Romans 6:23 the wages of sin is death. But in case this quotation is not clear enough on the describing these Bible texts, there is one even more explicity in the book The Great Controversy:

- God does not stand toward the sinner as an executioner of the sentence against transgression; but he leaves the rejecters of his mercy to themselves, to reap that which they have sown. Every ray of light rejected, every warning despised or unheeded, every passion indulged, every transgression of the law of God, is a seed sown, which yields its unfailing harvest. The Spirit of God, persistently resisted, is at last withdrawn from the sinner, and then there is left no power to control the evil passions of the soul, and no protection from the malice and enmity of Satan. (The Great Controversy 36)

And so there can be no doubt as to the message that the Adventist Reformers believed was to be the message that is lighten the world for Christ return, which when given in its full light will hasten the coming of Jesus, because what is needed requires more than mere destruction of Satan, but the destruction of his lies also, consider this quote:

- God could have destroyed Satan and his sympathizers as easily as one can cast a pebble to the earth; but He did not do this. Rebellion was not to be overcome by force. Compelling power is found only under Satan's government. The Lord's principles are not of this order. His authority rests upon goodness, mercy, and love; and the presentation of these principles is the means to be used. God's government is moral, and truth and love are to be the prevailing power. (The Desire of Ages 759).

  It was God's purpose to place things on an eternal basis of security, and in the councils of heaven it was decided that time must be given for Satan to develop the principles which were the foundation of his system of government. He had claimed that these were superior to God's principles. Time was given for the working of Satan's principles, that they might be seen by the heavenly universe. (The Desire of Ages 759).

What does this mean? What are the principles of Satan which is the foundation of his government? Lies, fear, selfishness, power over, made up rules, inflicted punishments—in other words all the governments of this world that Satan claims as his and which Jesus affirmed are not part of the heavenly government.

Why must time be given? Because a mere claim cannot reveal how things work, truth, based in reality, must be demonstrated by cause and effect. Thus to return the universe to universal peace and eternal security, not only must Satan and his agents be eliminated, but their lies must be eliminated from all minds—which requires all the saved to be fully persuaded in their own minds of the truth of God's character, methods, principles and design laws.

SUNDAY

Read second paragraph,

- After revealing in the first verses that Jesus is the source and focus of Revelation, Revelation 1:4, 5 alludes to all Three Members of the Godhead, who are working unitedly to save human beings. The Father is the eternal one who was and is and is to come. The Holy Spirit, who is working powerfully among the first-century churches, is named. Then John recalls the status of Jesus Christ—the "faithful witness," "the firstborn of the dead" (Rev. 1:5, NRSV), who possesses legal ownership of this planet. Satan's attempt to use this earth to establish his kingdom is ruined. In addition to God's victory over Satan, our Creator's shed blood washes away our guilt and shame. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 105).

If we must use legal language, then it is true that Jesus has legal ownership of this planet—when did Jesus obtain His legal ownership? At creation—He is the Creator—all things were made by Him and through Him all things hold together. Jesus has always been the legal owner and there has never been another legal owner of this planet. Satan's claim to be the legal owner does not make Satan the legal owner.

What about the last sentence which says, "In addition to God's victory over Satan, our Creator's shed blood washes away our guilt and shame," what does this mean?

The talk of the blood of Jesus is precious language, we have songs about being cleansed by the blood, and the power of the blood—but what does it actually mean? Are we cleansed by red corpuscles? How does the "blood" of Jesus wash away our guilt and shame?

The use of blood as a metaphor to describe the saving truth is from Jesus who said,

- "I tell you the truth, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you have no life in you. Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood has eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is real food and my blood is real drink. Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood remains in me, and I in him. Just as the living Father sent me and I live because of the Father, so the one who feeds on me will live because of me. This is the bread that came down from heaven. Your forefathers ate manna and died, but he who feeds on this bread will live forever." (John 6:53-58 NIV84).

What does this mean? The Jewish religious leaders of His day did not like these words, even some of His own followers didn't like these words. The Bible says that:

- On hearing it, many of his disciples said, "This is a hard teaching. Who can accept it?" (John 6:60 NIV84).

Why were they having a hard time accepting these words? Because they were thinking literally, not figuratively. Do we do the same thing when we sing there is power in the blood, or write that we are cleansed from guilt and shame by the blood?

Do we ever teach that Jesus presents His blood to the Father to pay for our sins?

What is the reality that the metaphor is teaching?

What does Scripture say about the blood?

Does blood represent the death of the animal sacrifice or its life?

According to the penal view, the legal view, the blood represents the death, the price paid—thus we are forgiven or legally pardoned by Jesus dying to pay the legal penalty.

But the Bible doesn't teach this, notice what the Bible actually says about the blood:

- For the life of a creature is in the blood, and I have given it to you to make atonement for yourselves on the altar; it is the blood that makes atonement for one's life. (Leviticus 17:11 NIV84).

So what does this mean? Does it say the death of the animal is in the blood and that the death penalty paid provides legal pardon? No! It says that the life is the blood and the life cleanses from sin and by being cleansed from sin we are restored to being at-one with God again.

The NIV leans toward a forensic or legal interpretation, so consider this same verse from the Good News Translation:

- The life of every living thing is in the blood, and that is why the LORD has commanded that all blood be poured out on the altar to take away the people's sins. Blood, which is life, takes away sins (Leviticus 17:11 GNT).

So, if we understand that the blood represents the life, not the death, what was Jesus saying when He said that we must eat His flesh and drink His blood?

The flesh and blood were replaced with new symbols, bread and wine, but they represent the same thing—which is what?

Jesus is the Word made flesh—thus the flesh represents the Word, the truth of God as embodied in, lived out through, and taught by Jesus. To partake of the flesh of Jesus means we ingest into our minds and hearts the truth of God that Jesus embodied and lived out—that God is not the kind of person Satan has represented Him to be; that if we have seen Jesus we have seen the Father; that no one needed to intercede with Jesus to wash Judas' feet; that no one had to pay Jesus to forgive His crucifiers; and that all we see in Jesus is true of God!

When we partake of the flesh, the bread, the truth that Jesus brought, it becomes building blocks of our beliefs and understanding displacing the lies and leads us back to trust. Then when, based on the truth, having been fully convinced in our own minds, having partaken of Jesus, we open our heart's door and invite Him in and we receive the life of Jesus, we receive new motives, desires, longings, and the old fear-based, guilt ridden, shame oppressed self dies and we arise to a new life, new beings, who like Paul can say, "it is no longer I that live but Christ lives in me." We receive a new life gifted to us by Jesus and instilled in us via the Holy Spirit.

We are still ourselves, with our own individuality, our own personhood, our own histories. The history of Jesus' earthly life does not become ours. What becomes ours is the pure, holy, righteous, loving, godly character that He developed. It becomes ours as we ingest Jesus, as we internalize into our being the truth He brought and then in trust we choose to apply His methods, principles, design laws to how we live and treat others, trusting God moment by moment with how things turn out. In so doing, our hearts affections, desires, motives, longings are changed and we become like Jesus in heart, motive, and character. And then when the Father looks upon us He does not see our previous unhealed, fear-ridden, selfish, vile old selves, He sees our healed, renewed, reborn, Christlike selves—and this is what it means to be clothed in the robes of Christ's righteousness.

So how does the blood of Jesus wash away our guilt and shame? By healing and transforming us as we partake of the life of Christ through our trust in Him.

So the only way to take the blood of Jesus to our heavenly Father—is by ingesting Christ into our inmost beings and taking the life of Jesus within us to the Father when we meet Him face to face.

Read third paragraph,

- The focus of God's mission is not simply to drag perishing people to safety. God's salvation offers a new and honorable status, because God's image is restored in us. The redeemed become royalty (kings) because we are blood-related to the King of the universe through Jesus' shed blood. Now, as royal family members, we join the mission of the royal family in the salvation of other human beings. This makes us priests! Christ had constituted His church a "kingdom" and its individual members "priests." To be a member of the kingdom is to be a priest. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 105).

What do you think of the sentence, "The redeemed become royalty (kings) because we are blood-related to the King of the universe through Jesus' shed blood"?

Are they explaining the metaphor and teaching the reality that the blood of Jesus is His life, and we are blood related because we are renewed in heart and mind to be like Jesus in character and thus we again bear the image of our Creator, i.e. look like Jesus and are thus part of His heavenly family, or are they making this more legal, more literal, concrete in some way?

Didn't the Jews in Christ's day make an argument about right to heaven based on blood relationship and not character? Notice the logic and progression of thought here:

- To the Jews who had believed him, Jesus said, "If you hold to my teaching, you are really my disciples. Then you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free."

  They answered him, "We are Abraham's descendants and have never been slaves of anyone. How can you say that we shall be set free?"

  Jesus replied, "I tell you the truth, everyone who sins is a slave to sin. Now a slave has no permanent place in the family, but a son belongs to it forever. So if the Son sets you free, you will be free indeed. I know you are Abraham's descendants. Yet you are ready to kill me, because you have no room for my word. I am telling you what I have seen in the Father's presence, and you do what you have heard from your father."

  "Abraham is our father," they answered.

> "If you were Abraham's children," said Jesus, "then you would do the things Abraham did. As it is, you are determined to kill me, a man who has told you the truth that I heard from God. Abraham did not do such things. You are doing the things your own father does."
> "We are not illegitimate children," they protested. "The only Father we have is God himself." (John 8:31-41 NIV84).

What are the Jews doing? Claiming rights, status as children of God by blood relationship, by genetics. What did Jesus do? He refuted this, and stated that only those who have faith like Abraham are His children—why? Because when we trust Him, we open the heart and we become partakers of the divine nature and the image of God is restored in us. If we do not trust Him then we have the image of Satan formed in us.

So the blood is only symbolic of the life, the character, of Christ, not the genetics of Christ. And we are joint heirs with Christ and considered royalty only if we are partakers of His nature in heart, mind, character.

MONDAY

Read first paragraph,

- The book of Revelation gives us a powerful and graphic representation of the great controversy theme, perhaps most dramatically depicted in Revelation 12:12: " 'Therefore rejoice, O heavens, and you who dwell in them! Woe to the inhabitants of the earth and the sea! For the devil has come down to you, having great wrath, because he knows that he has a short time' " (NKJV). It's hard to imagine how anyone can understand anything in Scripture apart from the great controversy motif, which will climax in the last days. (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 106).

What is the difference between Satan's wrath and God's wrath?

- If Satan's wrath is able to have its way, if we are not shielded or delivered from Satan's wrath what is the result—are we blessed or harmed?
- If God's wrath is poured out without mixture, if we are not shielded or delivered from God's wrath what is the result—are we blessed or harmed?
- Does that mean Satan's wrath and God's wrath are manifestations of the same power, methods, actions but merely with different motives? In other words, both Satan and God use power to harm people but Satan does it from a position of envy, selfishness, hatred, and evil, while God uses power to torture and kill only from a position of judicial requirement because the law and justice require it—but both use power to harm others? No—this is Satan's lie to project his character, methods, and principles upon God so that we interpret God's actions as being satanic in nature and character.

- While it is true that if we experience unshielded wrath from either Satan or God that we will be harmed—what their wrath actually is, are opposites, while the impact upon us is harm, the actions of both God and Satan are opposite. And we can only understand this if we understand reality, God's design law.
- Satan's system of government, as a creature who cannot create reality, is that of made-up rules enforced through the application of external force. Thus Satan's wrath is the use of power to punish, to inflict harm upon those whom he is wrathful toward. God's agencies shield us from Satan's use of power, restraining and holding Satan at bay. We see this all through Scripture.
- God, however, is the Creator, the builder of reality and His laws are the laws that life and health operate upon. If we break God's laws we take ourselves out of harmony with life and automatically suffer pain, injury, and eventual death if not healed and restored into harmony with God's law by our Creator.
- While Satan uses power to inflict harm, God uses power to heal, restore, recreate, renew, and rebuild.
- While Satan's wrath is the active use of power, God's wrath is the cessation of the use of His power that He has been expending which has been mercifully shielding us from the full consequences of what sin would do to us without His power, presence, mercy and grace holding that destruction at bay. But when the wicked harden themselves and permanently reject God's mercy, He, in harmony with His character, His methods, His law of love and liberty, sets them free to reap what they have chosen, to be separate from Him—He stops using power and that is God's wrath—and they suffer terribly and die as a result of God's letting them go to experience what they have insisted upon.

So, both God's wrath and Satan's wrath result in harm to us, but Satan's is the active use of energy and power to inflict harm, while God's wrath is the cessation of the use of power, the setting of people free to reap what they have sown.

This is exactly what Paul describes in Romans chapter one:

- The wrath of God is being revealed from heaven against all the godlessness and wickedness of men who suppress the truth by their wickedness, since what may be known about God is plain to them, because God has made it plain to them. For since the creation of the world God's invisible qualities—his eternal power and divine nature—have been clearly seen, being understood from what has been made, so that men are without excuse.

  For although they knew God, they neither glorified him as God nor gave thanks to him, but their thinking became futile and their foolish hearts were darkened. Although they claimed to be wise, they became fools and exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images made to look like mortal man and birds and animals and reptiles.

  Therefore God gave them over in the sinful desires... They exchanged the truth of God for a lie, and worshiped and served created things rather than the Creator—who is forever praised. Amen.

Because of this, God gave them over to shameful lusts…

Furthermore, since they did not think it worthwhile to retain the knowledge of God, he gave them over to a depraved mind, to do what ought not to be done. They have become filled with every kind of wickedness, evil, greed and depravity… (Romans 1:18–29 NIV84).

Commenting on these verses, scholars from the book Hard Sayings of the Bible, published by Intervarsity Press, write:

- In some sense, God's wrath is built into the very structure of created reality. In rejecting God's structure and establishing our own, in violating God's intention for the creation and substituting our own intentions, we cause or own disintegration.

  The human condition, which Paul describes in Romans 1:18-32, is not something caused by God. The phrase "revealed from heaven" (where "heaven" is a typical Jewish substitute word for "God") does not depict some kind of divine intervention, but rather the inevitability of human debasement which results when God's will, built into the created order, is violated. Since the created order has its origin in God, Paul can say that the wrath of God is now (constantly) being revealed "from heaven." It is revealed in the fact that the rejection of God's truth (Rom 1:18-20), that is, the truth about God's nature and will, leads to futile thinking (Rom 1:21-22), idolatry (Rom 1:23), perversion of God-intended sexuality (Rom 1:24-27) and relational-moral brokenness (Rom 1:28-32).

  The expression "God gave them over" (or "handed them over"), which appears three times in this passage (Rom 1:24,26,28), supports the idea that the sinful perversion of human existence, though resulting from human decisions, is to be understood ultimately as God's punishment which we, in freedom, bring upon ourselves.

  In light of these reflections, the common notion that God punishes or blesses in direct proportion to our sinful or good deeds cannot be maintained… God loves us with an everlasting love. But the rejection of that love separates us from its life-giving power. The result is disintegration and death. (Hard Sayings of the Bible p. 543).

This is from a non-Adventist Christian commentary—and it describes truth, universal truth of God's kingdom that is the outworking of design law. Now, consider what EGW wrote commenting on the final plagues, which are the outpouring of God's wrath, the seven bowls of wrath, which is the message given to the SDA church, which leadership rejected in 1888 and because of that rejection the organized church has not yet completed its mission to lighten the world with the eternal gospel because it continues to take the imperial dictator version of God to the world.

- "I was shown that the judgments of God would not come directly out from the Lord upon them, but in this way; They place themselves beyond His protection. He warns, corrects, reproves, and points out the only path of safety; then if those who have been the objects of His special care will follow their own course, independent of the Spirit of God, after repeated warnings, if they choose their own way, then He does not commission His angels to prevent Satan's decided attacks upon them.

"It is Satan's power that is at work at sea and on land, bringing calamity and distress, and sweeping off multitudes to make sure of his prey, and storm and tempest both by sea and land will be, for Satan has come down in great wrath. He is at work. He knows his time is short and, he is not restrained; we shall see more terrible manifestations of his great power than we have ever dreamed of." (Manuscript Release vol. 14, p. 3)

Now what about Jesus as our Savior and substitute—did Jesus experience God's wrath and is what Jesus experienced different than what the wicked in the end experience or the same?

If God's wrath is giving up and letting go, do we have Scripture to confirm that God did this to His Son at the cross? Jesus' own testimony

- "My God, my God, why did you abandon me?" (Matthew 27:46 GNT).

Paul uses the exact same Greek words he used in Romans 1:24,26,28 about God's wrath when describing Jesus' experience on the cross in Romans 4:25, the problem is the translators use different English words making it difficult for people to realize that Jesus was not punished by His Father, He was let go by His Father:

- Because of our sins he was handed over to die, and he was raised to life in order to put us right with God. (Romans 4:25 GNT).

And what does God do to the wicked in the end? He lets them go to reap what they have chosen. God stops using His power to protect and shield them and they reap the full weight of what sin does.

Does God treat the sinners in the end differently that He treated Jesus on the cross? No! God treats them the same, God's action toward both is the same. Then why did Jesus rise again and the wicked die eternally?

Because of the actual, objective, reality-based difference between the condition of Jesus' heart, mind, character and that of the wicked in the end.

Jesus died when love overcame fear, selfishness, and sin and by His death he destroyed death and brought life and immortality to light, by His death He destroyed the devil and the power of death, by His death He destroyed the lies of the devil, the infection of fear and selfishness and the actual cause of death—which is the break from God and His design law for life. In Jesus, the law of God, the living law of love and truth was fully and perfectly restored in the humanity that He assumed and Jesus exercised His human faculties fully and perfectly to live out God's living law and died to reveal the truth about God, what sin does, and to destroy the infection of sin that Adam brought into the species and establish a purified and holy branch of the human family that we can be grafted into through faith.

The wicked die in the end when God treats them exactly the same, He lets them go to reap what they have chosen. But they have chosen to reject truth, despise love, and solidify into their hearts, minds, and characters fear, selfishness, and all villainy and thus they reap what they have chosen when God no longer uses His power to artificially sustain their existence and they pass from existence into eternal death.

With all of this in mind then, how do we present the 3 Angels' Messages?

If you haven't read our Magazine The Final Message of Mercy to the World: The Three Angels I encourage you to do so.

- What is the eternal gospel?
- What is the hour of God's judgment? What law lens do you understand judgment through? Who is being judged? Who is doing the judgment?
- What does it mean to fear God?
- What does it mean to give God glory?
- Why does God need us to give Him glory? Does our glorifying God have some role in the judgment?
- What does it mean that we are called to worship Him who made the heavens, earth, sea, and fountains of water?
- What is represented by Babylon and who are to come out?
- What does it mean to come out of Babylon?
- What is the central issue of these three messages?
- What if we reject the first and second angels' messages and continue to worship a dictator instead of the Creator, and thereby we don't give God glory, we misjudge God to be like Satan, a creature who makes up rules and inflicts penalties and we thus remain in Babylon and refuse to come out?
- Then God sets them free to reap what they have chosen—by the law of worship they become like the false god they worship and mark themselves in their characters (foreheads) and hands (works) to be beastly
- Through the law of liberty they are set free to reap the full weight of what sin does when God's wrath is poured out without mixture—in other words when God stops using power to protect them from what sin has done and is doing to them
- Through the law of love and truth they are tormented in their being when infinite truth and love burn free when God unveils His life-giving glory and they become fully aware of their own corruption, the pain, suffering, and harm they have inflicted on others when their denial, lies, distortions and blame can no longer hide them from objective reality—the truth itself. And this happens in the presence of the holy angels and the lamb.

Have we presented the three angels in the true light of God's character of love and He design laws? Or have we presented these messages through the Roman imperial law perversion of Christianity?

Consider this quote from one of the founders of the SDA church about how the messages are to be presented:

- Men and women cannot violate natural law by indulging depraved appetite and lustful passions, and not violate the law of God. Therefore He has permitted the light of health reform to shine upon us, that we may see our sin in violating the laws which He has established in our being. All our enjoyment or suffering may be traced to obedience or transgression of natural law. Our gracious heavenly Father sees the deplorable condition of men who, some knowingly but many ignorantly, are living in violation of the laws that He has established. And in love and pity to the race, He causes the light to shine upon health reform. He publishes His law and the penalty that will follow the transgression of it, that all may learn and be careful to live in harmony with natural law. He proclaims His law so distinctly and makes it so prominent that it is like a city set on a hill. All accountable beings can understand it if they will. … To make plain natural law, and urge the obedience of it, is the work that accompanies the third angel's message to prepare a people for the coming of the Lord (emphasis mine). (White, E. G. Testimonies for the Church, vol. 3. Pacific Press Publishing Association, 1872, p. 161).

TUESDAY

Read fourth paragraph,

- Since the beginning, human beings have had evidence of who God is and of His way of righteousness and love (Rom. 1:18–21). Therefore, all human beings from ages past will be judged based on how they cooperated with God and how they lived—regardless of how much they did or didn't understand (Rom. 2:11–16). (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 107).

How do you understand this paragraph, particularly the idea of being judged based on how we cooperate with God and live?

Is this a judicial, legal, judgment or is this a diagnosis—judging the actual condition of heart and mind, the state of being? Have people been restored to love and trust in God or remained in fear, selfishness and sin?

Read the bottom pink section:

- Dwell on the fact that Christ has died for you personally. What could possibly make you think that anything you have done, no matter how bad, could not have been sufficiently paid for by the death of Christ on the cross? (Adult SS Guide 4th Q 2023, God's Mission My Mission p. 107).

Thoughts? Is this question helpful to you? What elements or ideas of this question are a blessing to you? Are there any ideas expressed that are troublesome to you or confusing?

What about the idea that Jesus died to pay for our sins—does that idea raise any questions? Such as:

- To whom is the payment made?
- Why is a payment necessary, who requires it?
- What if Jesus doesn't make the payment?
- What if we don't accept the payment?
- If the payment is made to God what will God do to us if He doesn't get it?
- Is the payment related to forgiveness if so how does that work? Does God forgive us our sins, or do we get our sins paid for?
    - If you owed someone 1 million dollars and couldn't pay it back and your brother steps up and pays off your entire debt, does the person who receives the full payment get to turn around and say to you—now that I have received payment for your debt I forgive your debt?
    - Do some people in Christianity teach that Jesus paid our sin debt but God also forgives our sin debt—do you see any conflict in these ideas?
    - These are the problems that the false imposed law view creates.

When we return to worshiping the Creator and understand His law is design law, and sin is not a legal problem but an actual problem, defect, in our being that needs healing, then we can understand all of this.

If you child was dying of kidney failure and you donate a kidney to save them, could we say "you paid a high price to save your child?" Certainly, but is the price a legal price or a price the condition requires in order to save your dying child? And who receives the payment of your kidney—the dying child. And what happens if you refuse to pay this price? What happens if the child refuses to receive it?

The price Jesus paid He referred to as a ransom price, Jesus said,

- The Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many. (Matthew 20:28 NIV84).

A ransom is the price necessary to free someone held in captivity or bondage. The question is, what holds us sinners in bondage?

- The lies about God that we believe that keep us from trusting Him and
- Our own fallen, carnal, fear-driven, selfish nature that we inherited from Adam

What is the price to set us free? The truth that destroys lies and restores us to trust in God sets us free and in that trust we receive a new nature worked out by Jesus.

Thus the ransom price is paid to us—and it cost Jesus an infinite amount to provide us this truth and a new human nature.

WEDNESDAY

How would you describe our mission for God at this time in human history?
What would you like to see us do that would advance that mission?
What obstacles do you see in the way of that mission?

THURSDAY

The lesson focuses on the New Heaven and earth when the mission is complete and “Death and sin will be gone, Satan and wickedness destroyed.” How does God eliminate death and Satan so that sin never arises again?

SABBATH

When you consider the Psalms, what comes to mind?

The title for Sabbath's lesson is "How to Read the Psalms" –thoughts?

Read the last paragraph,

- The Psalms have been written in Hebrew poetry by different authors from ancient Israel, and so, the Psalms reflect their particular world, however universal their messages. Accepting the Psalms as God's Word and paying close attention to the Psalms' poetic features, as well as their historical, theological, and liturgical contexts, is fundamental for understanding their messages, which reach across thousands of years to our time today. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 4).

What is this paragraph telling us?

When we read any Scripture what is the most important aspect—the specific words or the meaning that is conveyed? It is the meaning that is the important part, not the specific words.

So, when translators translate the goal is to bring the meaning across, but there are obstacles to bringing the meaning across accurately, and these include:

- There is no such thing as a word for word translation. Essentially every word has more than one meaning and the translators have to determine which is the best new language word to convey that meaning of the old language word while keeping in mind that the new language word chosen also has multiple meanings.

- Translating idioms, ideas, references from one culture to the next can introduce error if the original use isn't understood. If you were going to translate to ancient Hebrew the following, "If you don't know the answer, just Google it." How would you translate that? Can you do a word for word translation? What about translating, "We will not go to work on President's day," into ancient Hebrew? If you translate "We will not go to work on the King's birthday"—have you introduced the idea of an aristocracy? Or, if someone today reads a letter from a person written in 1900 and they say they are in London having a "gay" time.
- Further complicating translation is the use of metaphors, symbols, allegories, parables which can be easily misconstrued
- In the psalms we have the added complexity poetry and poetic license
- Finally we always have the biases, assumptions, presuppositions of the translators

With all of this in mind, I thought it might be beneficial to read the Preface to The Remedy of the Lord in Song: The Psalms:

> In 2016, The Remedy New Testament Expanded Paraphrase was released. In the Preface of that volume, I documented the process of Christian thought being infected by the idea that God governs like Caesar—imposing rules enforced by punishment. The traditional view has been that God's law functions in the same way as imposed human laws—which would require God to punish the perpetrator for breaking His rules—rather than recognizing God's laws as design laws—the protocols upon which the Creator built reality to operate. This view has led to the penal/legal theological constructs of Christianity, giving birth to the notion of a punishing god requiring legal appeasement. When translators—despite all innocence of motive—approach the text with this worldview in mind, they all too often bring this legal distortion of a punishing god into the translation.
> Additionally, a single Hebrew word can be translated into multiple various English terms, frequently over one hundred, leaving the decision as to which is the most suitable one, to the translator's discretion. This practice opens itself to the biases of the translator.
>
> While paraphrasing the Psalms, I have discovered that the Hebrew language is much more susceptible to the biases of the translators than the Greek. This is because the Hebrew is much more removed from our modern language, and there are many words in the ancient text that scholars have little or no understanding of. Repeatedly, the lexicons note, "Hebrew unknown" or "Hebrew not clear."
> Please understand that I believe that the various standard Bible translations are done by good-hearted people giving their honest best to deliver the most accurate translation possible. Unfortunately, they are still subject to their own biases, preconceived ideas and premises—just as I am. My premise is that God is the Creator, operating upon the principles of His grand law of love and expressing His love to all creation by establishing and putting into practice natural/design laws, upon which reality is constructed to operate. Because of Adam's choice, humankind is out of harmony with God's design and is therefore in a terminal state—"dead in trespass and sin." Nevertheless, God, through Christ, has been working to heal and restore all who trust Him, back into unity with Him; back into harmony with His design laws—His original design for human life.

Finally, in the Psalms, poetic license is taken by the original author. Many Hebrew words are used poetically (symbolically or metaphorically), thus adding another layer of interpretive license.

Consequently, within the Psalms, even among non-controversial translations, there are wide differences in translation. Here are a couple of examples:

Psalm 29:9

The Good News Bible: The Lord's voice shakes the oaks and strips the leaves from the trees while everyone in his Temple shouts, "Glory to God!"

English Standard Version: The voice of the Lord makes the deer give birth and strips the forests bare, and in his temple all cry, "Glory!"

Psalm 32:3,4

The Good News Bible: When I did not confess my sins, I was worn out from crying all day long. Day and night you punished me, Lord; my strength was completely drained, as moisture is dried up by the summer heat.

English Standard Version: For when I kept silent, my bones wasted away through my groaning all day long. For day and night your hand was heavy upon me; my strength was dried up as by the heat of summer.

King James Version: When I kept silence, my bones waxed old, through my roaring all the day long. For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me: my moisture is turned into the drought of summer.

The Remedy: When I held onto my guilt and shame, refusing to talk to God, I stressed myself and my body decayed, because every day I screamed, "no!" denying the truth. But day and night your healing hand pressed firmly upon me; my resistance evaporated like water in the summer heat.

In the process of creating a paraphrase, the importance is not so much on being a language expert (as many lexicons and language databases are readily available) but on understanding the subjects of the nature of the war between Christ and Satan (2Cor 10:3-5), God's design laws, and His character of love.

> Without understanding these essential truths, the bias of human law (based on imposed rules) and the subsequent distortion of God (portraying Him as a dictator) get artificially woven into the translation, and thus misunderstanding is perpetuated.
> The foremost intention of this paraphrase is to make the concepts of God's design law, His character of love and His healing truth more accessible to people, in the hope that everyone may come into a personal, saving relationship with our amazing Creator God!

The Psalms are a collection of songs and prayer, what impact have they had on your life?

Paul wrote,

- May God himself, the God of peace, sanctify you through and through. May your whole spirit, soul and body be kept blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ (1 Thessalonians 5:23 NIV84).

Have you ever considered that the Scripture provides resources to "sanctify" us in spirit, soul, and body?

Have you considered the three parts of our being and all three parts need healing?

Remember the Greek for body is soma—the physical structure of our being which is the easiest for us to identify and differentiate from soul and spirit. And the Bible is filled with many instructions for the health of the body, guidance on hygiene, on diet, on exercise and rest.

Soul—the Greek is psyche, from which we get psychiatry and psychology and means our individuality, character, unique personhood and would correspond to the software of a computer and encompasses all the things we believe, learn, hold to be true.

Spirit—the Greek is pneuma—and is translated into a variety of English words, wind, breath, spirit, ghost… and corresponds to the energy of our being—the first and foremost is the life-giving energy from God, the breath of life. But we also have an energy of our being that we develop based on our experiences. Paul is telling us that our energies need to be sanctified, and I want to talk about that process today.

The Bible contains truth for the soul/mind, to provide us understanding in who we are, where we came from, why we are here, what the problem of sin is, the truth about God, the plan of salvation—truths that give us a framework to orient us and through which we can filter life experiences and controversial ideas. A system of truth that as we grow and advance in it heals our minds.

But the Bible also contains guidance/resources for our spirits, and I believe the Psalms are specifically intended to benefit our spirits, but of course they also benefit our minds and that has a beneficial impact upon our bodies because we are integrated beings.

So let's explore this idea of our spirit. The spirit is the part of our being that connects with the Spirit of God, and is the means whereby God inspires, energizes, encourages, motivates, convicts—the healing harmonics, the vitalizing power of God.

The spirit is the wellspring, the energy source, the life giving power that fuels our being; it is our—affection, attitude of the heart— and where God works via His Spirit to cause us to be dissatisfied with sin, to give us a longing for something more, to create a conviction, an uneasy restlessness when we are departing from Him and His path for our lives. The spirit is our inner most heart's affections attitudes and desires. Think of your closest loved one, a child or spouse going on a dangerous trip, perhaps going off to a war zone and with tears you say to them, "I will be with you in spirit." What do you mean?

- Are you saying you will go along with them bodily, in person? No, you will not be with them physically when you are with them in spirit.
- Are you saying that you are going to have an out of body experience and float along beside them in some ghost-like apparition? No,
- You are saying you will be with them in heart, sympathy, compassion, attitude, desire for their good, sharing in their struggles, hurts, rejoicing in their triumphs, celebrating their success. You have your heart's energies oriented toward them for their good. To be with your child in spirit is to be in harmony of the inmost being, resonating and connecting along unseen energy bonds of the quantum universe that God has created. It is the alignment of one's heart, affection, good will, intentions for their health and happiness.

Likewise, when we are filled with God's Spirit we are filled with the presence of God, His life, His energy, His love, His affection, kindness, goodness, grace, truth, and power.

Our spirit is our life energy—God's Spirit is the living divine third Person of the Godhead who unites with us with the full power of the Godhead bringing us the "Spirit" of the Lord—the new attitude of love rather than fear, selfishness, and hate.

Consider this historical quote from one of the founders of the SDA church, describing what physicists would more than a half a century later describe as quantum mechanics, do you agree?

- The striking feature of divine operations is the accomplishment of the greatest work that can be done in our world by very simple means. It is God's plan that every part of His government shall depend on every other part, the whole as a wheel within a wheel, working with entire harmony. He moves upon human forces, causing His Spirit to touch invisible chords, and the vibration rings to the extremity of the universe.—(Evangelism 93).

Now consider this quote from the same author from The Ministry of Healing:

- From age to age the Lord has been seeking to awaken in the souls of men a sense of their divine brotherhood. Be co-workers with Him. While distrust and alienation are pervading the world, Christ's disciples are to reveal the spirit that reigns in heaven.

> Speak as He would speak, act as He would act. Constantly reveal the sweetness of His character. Reveal that wealth of love which underlies all His teachings and all His dealings with men. The humblest workers, in co-operation with Christ, may touch chords whose vibrations shall ring to the ends of the earth and make melody throughout eternal ages. (The Ministry of Healing 159).

What is being described with the phrase "reveal the spirit that reigns in heaven" and "touch chords whose vibrations shall ring to the ends of the earth and make melody throughout eternal ages"?

When our spirit is renewed in the purity of heavenly love and truth, we get new desires, new attitudes, new longings that do not originate in us, but are gifted to us from Jesus through the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

We then must choose to apply these new attitudes that are the pure energies resonating in our spirits to our souls, our beliefs, our understandings, our minds, our characters, our choices which purge the lies, resolve the guilt, remove the shame, eradicate the resentment, and live the love.

As Paul wrote to Timothy:

- For God has not given us a spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind. (2 Timothy 1:7 NKJV).

Our spirit is our life energy and if we foster a negative spirit, allowing ourselves to be filled with hate, resentment, fear—fear of rejection, fear of financial loss, fear of failure, fear of condemnation by God and others, the negative spirit with its fear, guilt, shame, doubt, and worry corrupts our minds. The negative spirit leads to the formation of negative beliefs about ourselves—I am no good, everything I do I mess up, I don't deserve love, I have ruined everything, everyone hates me, I have sinned beyond forgiveness, I deserve punishment, those people are racists, the church doesn't care and on the list goes. The negative spirit corrupts our thinking infecting our beliefs which impact our life choices and relationships increasing stress and undermining our health as our bodies respond with increased inflammation and stress.

Salvation starts with the spirit—as the Holy Spirit moves upon our spirit to instill a desire for love, holiness, purity, peace, acceptance, goodness, reconciliation with God and heaven and convicts us of areas where we are out of harmony with what is good and healthy. When we are convicted in our spirits we must then choose how to respond—do we deny, distort, avoid the truth, double down on the sin, justify rebellion, numb ourselves with substances, find others who will endorse and support our destructive ways or do we embrace the leading of the Holy Spirit and choose to apply to ourselves the new desires and move these desires into the soul, our minds, our beliefs, our perspectives, as we choose to apply God's principles as we comprehend them? Do we choose to love and forgive or resent and hate and seek vengeance? If we choose to follow the leading of the Holy Spirit working upon our spirit then we experience rebirth, renewal, healing, recreation and restoration from the damage and infection of sin, of fear and selfishness. And our salvation ends with the second coming when this mortal body is replaced with a glorified body. But only those who have experienced the cleansing of their spirit and the healing of their souls will receive a glorified body.

And this cleansing of the spirit and soul is called the seal of God—and what is the seal of God? Here is one Bible commentary on what the seal is, written by one of the founders of the SDA church—do you agree?

- Just as soon as the people of God are sealed in their foreheads—it is not any seal or mark that can be seen, but a settling into the truth, both intellectually and spiritually, so they cannot be moved—just as soon as God's people are sealed and prepared for the shaking, it will come. Indeed, it has begun already.—(The S.D.A. Bible Commentary 4:1161 1902. Last Day Events 219, emphasis mine).

Intellectually would be healing our minds/beliefs/understandings our souls and spiritually would be healing our spirits—our affections, longings, desires, energies that drive us.

With all of this in mind, I would like to suggest that the Psalms are particularly designed to cleanse our spirits—to invigorate us with inspiring truths that bring us into awe, admiration, amazement of our incredible God, to win us to trust, to look beyond the fears to an abiding confidence in our Creator, Redeemer, Protector, and Savior.

Do you have a favorite Psalm that has been healing to your spirit?

SUNDAY

Read second paragraph,

- In the Hebrew Bible, the title of the book of Psalms, tehilim, “praises,” reflects its main purpose—that is, the praise of God. The English title Book of Psalms is derived from the Greek psalmoi, found in the Septuagint, an early (second and third century B.C.) Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 5).

Do you see a connection between praising God and the attitude of your heart, do praises to God have a sanctifying effect upon your spirit?

Read the bottom green section,

- Though we, of course, do not worship God in an earthly sanctuary like the temple, how can we use the Psalms in our own worship, whether in a private or in a corporate setting? (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 5).

What was the purpose of the earthly sanctuary? Was there anything in the OT sanctuary rituals, ceremonies, sacrifices that had any ability to save from sin? Or was it all educational, designed to teach the true plan of salvation?

- The gifts and sacrifices being offered were not able to clear the conscience of the worshiper. They are only a matter of food and drink and various ceremonial washings—external regulations applying until the time of the new order… But those sacrifices are an annual reminder of sins, because it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins. (Hebrews 9:9.10, 10:3,4)

- "The multitude of your sacrifices— what are they to me?" says the Lord. "I have more than enough of burnt offerings, of rams and the fat of fattened animals; I have no pleasure in the blood of bulls and lambs and goats… wash and make yourselves clean. Take your evil deeds out of my sight! Stop doing wrong, learn to do right! Seek justice, encourage the oppressed. Defend the cause of the fatherless, plead the case of the widow." (Isaiah 1:11,16,17).

- "I want your constant love, not your animal sacrifices. I would rather have my people know me than burn offerings to me." (Hosea 6:6 GNT).

What was the purpose of the OT sanctuary—theater, object lesson, a teaching platform—to teach reality. And what is the reality that the sanctuary theater was intended by God to teach?

Consider this commentary from the book The Desire of Ages, do you agree or see it differently?

- "In the cleansing of the temple, Jesus was announcing His mission as the Messiah, and entering upon His work. That temple, erected for the abode of the divine Presence, was designed to be an object lesson for Israel and for the world. [What is an object lesson? Is the object lesson reality or does it illustrate reality? Is the object lesson required for salvation? Is the reality to which the object lesson is teaching required for salvation?] From eternal ages it was God's purpose that every created being, from the bright and holy seraph to man, should be a temple for the indwelling of the Creator. [What kind of a temple is this? Is the temple that is suggested here, that is composed of living beings, one built by human hands or by God? And is this the temple that Jesus is working to cleanse? Before we look at more evidence, just consider—in reality, if God wants to eliminate sin from His universe where is the place cleansing needs to happen—in the library of heaven, in court records, or in the hearts and minds of intelligent beings? So if this cleansing of the sanctuary is teaching us something about the plan of salvation, shouldn't it be connecting our minds to reality—the reality of where sin happens and where it needs to be removed? And sin does not happen in record books and erasing historical records does not remove sin. This alone should cause many SDAs to rethink their assumptions and reevaluate the evidence. The entire legal records idea is based on Satan's lie that God's law functions like human law.] Because of sin, humanity ceased to be a temple for God. Darkened and defiled by evil, the heart of man no longer revealed the glory of the Divine One. But by the incarnation of the Son of God, the purpose of Heaven is fulfilled. [What is God's purpose for humanity? And what was God's purpose in the incarnation of Jesus? God's purpose for humanity is that human beings are living temples where God dwells by His Spirit that we bear His image. Sin effaced the image of God and man placed Satan's image, methods, principles into the heart of human beings. In Jesus the principles, character, image of Satan was purged from humanity and the fullness of God dwelt bodily and the image of God was restored into the species human for Jesus was fully human. In Jesus the purpose of Heaven is fulfilled!] God dwells in humanity, and through saving grace the heart of man becomes again His temple. [What does this mean? And if the heart of a sinner is to become again the temple where God dwells would that require some type of cleansing work to be done? Where is that cleansing taking place? Could we call that purification the cleansing of the temple?] God designed that the temple at Jerusalem should be a continual witness to the high destiny open to every soul. But the Jews had not understood the significance of the building they regarded with so much pride. [How about Christians today, have we understood? How about SDA Christians have we understood despite various founders of the church writing things like this?] They did not yield themselves as holy temples for the Divine Spirit. [How about Christians today? How about SDA Christians today?] The courts of the temple at Jerusalem, filled with the tumult of unholy traffic, represented all too truly the temple of the heart, defiled by the presence of sensual passion and unholy thoughts. In cleansing the temple from the world's buyers and sellers, Jesus announced His mission to cleanse the heart from the defilement of sin,--from the earthly desires, the selfish lusts, the evil habits, that corrupt the soul. [Where is the cleansing taking place? Now notice what this author cites next.] "The Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to His temple, even the Messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, He shall come, saith the Lord of hosts. But who may abide the day of His coming? and who shall stand when He appeareth? for He is like a refiner's fire, and like fullers' soap: and He shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver: and He shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver." Mal. 3:1-3. (The Desire of Ages 161).

What is described as being the temple which Jesus cleanses?

Now what is interesting is that this author, who is a central figure in the SDA church developing its doctrine of the Investigative Judgment and the cleansing of the sanctuary, describes the cleansing of the sanctuary as the cleansing of people and ends this description with the application of Malachi 3:1-3. Do you agree that this author applies Malachi 3:1-3 to the cleansing of sinful hearts and minds and not to a building or records in heaven?

Then, notice what this same author says about Malachi 3:1-3:

- The coming of Christ as our high priest to the most holy place, for the cleansing of the sanctuary, brought to view in Daniel 8:14; the coming of the Son of man to the Ancient of Days, as presented in Daniel 7:13; and the coming of the Lord to His temple, foretold by Malachi, are descriptions of the same event… (The Great Controversy 426).

So, if you agree with the author that the verses in Malachi describe as Jesus cleansing the spirit temple to prepare us to meet Jesus, then do you agree when the same author asserts that this cleansing of people is the same event as that of Daniel 8:14—which means that the cleansing of the sanctuary which began in 1844 is not cleansing a building in heaven or legal documents but it is the exact same cleansing as that which Malachi describes, the cleansing of the Levites, the priesthood of believers.

Is the author correct and the cleansing is the cleansing of people and not books in a courtroom in heaven? Yes, why? Because God is the God of reality, not make-believe, and human-like court systems are made up based on made up laws, they are not the laws reality operates upon. God operates upon reality and He is healing creation itself, including human beings who are part of that creation and in order to do that He has to cleanse us, His creatures, from the infection of sin, not erase facts from books.

Thus the cleansing that occurs before Jesus comes again, which is prophesied in a variety of places and symbolically taught in the sanctuary, is the removing from us of our fear, guilt, shame, selfishness, and all elements of our old selves and renewing us in the gold of Christlikeness, settling and sealing us so that we cannot be moved.

This is not a legal process happening in court rooms. It is an actual process happening in hearts and minds. And in fact, the legal description is a barrier that obstructs the work of God in healing hearts and minds.

Then someone may ask what is the significance of 1844? Wasn't Jesus working to do this for every repentant sinner throughout all human history, didn't Enoch, Moses, and Elijah already experience this, so what is special about 1844?

The symbolism of the sanctuary theater answers this—and the answer is yes—God has been working through Jesus to heal every human mind throughout all human history and Enoch, Moses, and Elijah did experience all of this. And this is represented as the daily sacrifices that occurred all year long.

The difficulty people have in understanding these things is that they mix. metaphors or symbols. This happens all the time with first death and second death—people using first death events in Scripture to make conclusions about the second death. In other words, people identifying places in Scripture where God puts some people to sleep (first death—Flood, Sodom etc.) and then concluding God will use power to eternally destroy and kill the wicked in the end. That is a false conclusion because the events are not the same, the deaths are not the same, so mixing the two together causes error.

The same happens when people mix the daily sacrificial symbolic teachings with the annual feasts.

The annual feasts are intended to teach the larger landscape of the plan of salvation being worked out through history, from Adam's fall all the way to the earth made new. These feasts were to be held in a recurring annual cycle to teach the larger plan of salvation of the entire universe, the elimination of sin. The daily sacrifices taught the salvation of individuals.

All of this is described in detail in our Magazine The Wedding of Christ to His Bride: Preparing the Church for the Second Coming.

Each of the seven major feasts had a real-life fulfillment and covered a portion of human history from Adam's fall all the way to the earth made new:

- Passover: The first feast in the annual cycle was the Passover. As soon as Adam and Eve sinned, God "passed over" their sins. He "left the sins committed beforehand unpunished" (Romans 3:25 NIV84) and promised a Passover Lamb who "takes away the sin of the world" (John 1:29 NIV84). This feast had its fulfillment in Jesus—the Passover Lamb, who was crucified on Passover Friday. The time in human history covered by this feast was from Adam's sin until Christ's death on the cross.
- Unleavened Bread: This feast was concurrent with the Passover and symbolizes that after Adam's sin, God immediately began dispensing truth unmixed with error (symbolized by the unleavened bread) to nurture and feed His children. The bitter herbs represent the bitterness caused by sin, which became a part of human life. Both the Lamb slain and the bread without yeast represent Christ, the source of truth and healing for sinful humanity.

  This Passover meal was eaten before the death angel came, which symbolizes that God had predetermined to "passover" our transgression and provide a remedy to save and heal us from our terminal sin condition. Jesus is our remedy; He is the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world (Revelation 13:8).

  The Feast of Unleavened Bread symbolized the internalization of the truth about God as provided by Christ. The time period represented in the Feast of Unleavened Bread is from Adam's fall until the crucifixion of Christ. This feast was replaced with the communion service to commemorate the sacrifice of Christ after the crucifixion and to represent the continual necessity of the partaking of Jesus to be saved.
- The Wave Sheaf: This was also symbolic of Christ, who is the sinless first fruit raised from the dead. Just as the wheat is buried in the ground, symbolically dying, and comes forth in newness of life, so also Christ was buried in the ground, came forth in newness of life, and brought forth many righteous with Him. The time frame represented by this ceremony was from the time of Christ's resurrection until Pentecost—the time Jesus and those resurrected with Him witnessed in person in Jerusalem (Matthew 27:52, 53).
- Feast of Weeks (Pentecost): The truth spreads and takes root in many hearts and a harvest is experienced. This was fulfilled during Pentecost two thousand years ago, when the Holy Spirit fell upon those believers of the early church and the truth about God spread throughout the known world. The time frame covered is from AD 31 (Pentecost) until the nineteenth century.
- Trumpets: A special message for the end of time that is to awaken the end-time church (symbolized by the ten virgins in Christ's parable) from their slumber and announce Jesus, the Bridegroom, is coming soon. Prepare! Get Ready! Christ is coming back soon! This trumpet call is to call the people to the wedding of Christ, the Groom, with His bride, the church, and occurred with the Great Awakening in the nineteenth century.

- Atonement: At-one-ment is the time immediately before the second coming of Christ, when the Groom puts the final cleansing touches upon His bride, wedding her to Himself, purifying her into complete harmony of heart, mind, motive, method, and character with Him, for "we know that when he appears, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is" (1 John 3:2). This is the time in which we are living today!
- Tabernacles: This feast symbolically taught the time after the wedding (two becoming one), when the saints tabernacle (dwell) with God away from the world of sin in the earth made new. This is the wedding supper of the Lamb.

So what is the point of 1844? It is a prophecy given by God to Daniel. God, looking down the corridors of time tells Daniel that 70 prophetic weeks are left for the Jews to fulfill their mission and for the Messiah to come and fulfill His mission. But after Jesus comes and completes His mission, there will be an attack upon truth, upon the saints by the little horn power, also represented by the man of sin in Thessalonians. This man of sin sets himself up in God's temple proclaiming himself to be God. He does this be infecting Christianity with the lie that God's law functions like human law and the Creator is replaced in the hearts and minds of Christians with a creature who is the source of inflicted pain and suffering. God tells Daniel that in this spiritual war it will be 2300 years, all the way down to 1844 until enough truth is recovered to destroy the lies that have taken root in the spirit temples of people in order to cleanse them of these lies and prepare the entire world all at one time for the second coming. This is the end time message that we have been given, and this is the significance of 1844—the time of the end has come, the final message of mercy has been revealed, the truth of God's character of love has been recovered, because we have rejected the Romanization of Christianity and returned to worshiping God as Creator by rejecting the lie that God's law is imposed and embraced the truth that God's laws are design laws.

MONDAY

The lesson points out that the psalms were authored by at least 8 individuals:

- King David, whose name appears in the titles of most psalms, Asaph, Korah, Heman, Ethan, Solomon, Moses and Jeduthun.

And these individuals wrote psalms about real life events, not fantasy. Such as Psalm 88:1-8, from The Remedy:

Lord God, you are my Savior; it is to you that I cry out—day and night.
2 May my prayer touch your heart—listen tenderly to my plea,
3 for my troubles overwhelm me; I feel like I'm about to die.
4 To my friends I'm useless, like one already dead—I'm so weak and worn out.
5 I'm abandoned among the lifeless; I feel like those already in the grave, like one you have forgotten—whose life is beyond your care.
6 You have let me sink so deep that I am close to death; I am in the darkest pits of despair.

7 I feel like you are angry with me; I am drowning in waves of discouragement.
8 My friends have abandoned me—they find me repulsive;
I feel trapped with no way out.
9 My eyes are swollen from crying. Lord, to you I cry out all day long;
I reach out my hands to you. (Psalm 88:1-9 REM)

Can you relate to this Psalm?

What does it mean to you to know that these God-inspired Bible writers struggled with the same problems that we do?

TUESDAY

The lesson asks us to read Psalms 2, from The Remedy:

Why are the nations of this selfish world angry at God's character of love?
Why do their people plot in vain against God's design? [thoughts? Why? Could it be they don't even know about God and His design for life and health? Could it be they believe the lie that there is no God and that the way to succeed is by the survival of the fittest method, do whatever it takes to advantage oneself? But is objective reality, how things work, demonstrating that the ways of the world do not bring health and wellbeing?]
2 World leaders take their stand and the rulers unite together
against the Creator and his design for life and against the One anointed to be our Remedy. [Do we see world leaders forming a new world order organizing themselves to oppose Christianity and the principles of liberty, autonomy, and seeking to make people into mindless drones to be herded and exploited like cattle?]
3 They say, "Let us break free from God's design and reject God's protocols for life and health." [Do you see the godless policies being employed and enforced, not just in communist countries like China, but in Canada and in various states in America? And what is the result?]
4 The Creator, who from heaven sustains reality, hates their foolishness; [Why does God hate their foolishness? Because they are insolent and rude to Him and He gets offended? No! Because breaking away from God's design destroys them and God loves them. It would be like a parent hating their childing doing drugs—they don't hate their child, they hate their child doing something that destroys them]
the Lord knows that their words don't change reality—they're just meaningless noise. [Do you also know that the theories of the worldly don't change reality? What about when those same theories are Christianized and taught by theology professors—the idea that justice is using force to inflict punishment upon people? Do we recognize the foolishness in such teachings, that such methods cannot win people to trust, cannot instill love, cannot eradicate sin, fear, and rebellion from hearts and minds, but rather perpetuates it?]

5 He fiercely corrects their misunderstanding and persistently assails their false perspectives, instructing them,
6 "I have chosen who will reign in Zion;
my King will rule in sinless perfection." [who is this King? It is Jesus—and how did Jesus rule when He was here? What did Jesus say about His kingdom? What did He say about the use of might and power to physically fight? Jesus explicitly stated that His kingdom is not of this world, if it were His followers would fight. His kingdom is the kingdom of truth, love, and freedom and is the foundation of all reality. But the religions of the world, including Christianity reject Jesus' own testimony and teach that He is coming back to rule just like every other dictator by force and power to inflict death upon those who refuse to love Him. This is why Jesus waits, because such a teaching incites rebellion.
7 The King will make God's healing plan known:
God said to me, "You are my Son;
today my fatherhood to you has become known.
8 Ask me, and I will give you all the nations—
the entire world will be yours.
9 You will govern them with an unbreakable shepherd's rod of truth and love;
you will destroy selfishness and crush their ability to coerce and deceive like iron crushes pottery." [How does this happen if Jesus doesn't use might and power? How can one destroy fear and selfishness?]
10 Therefore, worldly rulers, wise up!
You, who govern the earth, have been warned as to how reality works.
11 So, with humble admiration, live in harmony with God and his designs, celebrate him with fervor.
12 Accept the Son with a loving heart lest he let you go to die from your terminal condition,
for he may release you to your choice at any moment.
Happy and healthy are they who abide in him.

Let's do a comparison between a Psalm from the NIV and the Remedy.

What is the most important aspect of what is recorded in the Bible—the words, or the meaning contained in the words?

Is it legitimate to replace Hebrew, Greek and Aramaic words with English ones as long as the meaning is retained?

What about a translation in which the words are accurate but the meaning is wrong?

For instance, there is a culture in which only thieves knock on doors, when friends come they stand at the door and call out. So, when the translators translated Revelation 3:20 where Jesus says He stands at the door and knocks, they translated it as He stands at the door and shouts.

Now, which is the more accurate translation—the one which clearly substitutes a word with actions that were not described, Jesus shouting rather than knocking, yet has Him approaching as a friend, OR the one which translates knocking as knocking but communicates to the people that Jesus comes with the character of a thief and not a friend?

So, let's compare Psalm 32 from the NIV and the Remedy, and see if they impact you the same and which do you think is conveying the inspired message more accurately for our time?

Verse 1:

- Blessed is he whose transgressions are forgiven, whose sins are covered. (NIV84).

How do you hear this verse? What does it mean? If we have a legal model is the forgiving of sin what blesses, is covering over the record what matters? If Jeffrey Dahmer were still alive and the governor pardons him and they erase his legal records—would you want him as your neighbor? And do you think a person who lives in sin, whether murder, or a thief, or simply in chronic fear and guilt and shame is happy? Legal forgiveness doesn't provide God's blessing to anyone—what is the true blessing of God? It is being sanctified, made righteous, restored to perfection, harmony with God, having God's law written upon the heart and mind. Thus from the Remedy:

- Happy are they whose wicked minds are restored to perfect purity, whose selfishness is eradicated. (REM)

God's forgiveness is not legal, it is transformational, healing, restorative, and the covering of God is not covering over, but covering for, taking over the responsibility to cure the condition and eradicate the infection of sin and selfishness.

Verse 2:

- Blessed is the man whose sin the LORD does not count against him and in whose spirit is no deceit. (NIV84)

What does this mean? Does God count people's sins against them? If you believe this then what does 1 Corinthians 13:

- Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It is not rude, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, it keeps no record of wrongs. (1 Corinthians 13:4–5 NIV84, emphasis mine).
- God was reconciling the world to himself in Christ, not counting men's sins against them. (2 Corinthians 5:19 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Does God count anyone's sins against them? This is Satan's lie of imposed law, that God's government and law works like human law, it is the penal legal way of doing things. But when we return to worshiping the Creator whose laws are design laws we realize the law giver doesn't have to keep score, if God doesn't heal the devastation from unremedied sin will destroy.

So God is removing the disease of sin and restoring the sinner to righteousness and when this happens God doesn't find any sin in the sinner because it has been eradicated from their hearts, minds, and characters. So from the Remedy:

- Happy is the person whose infected heart the Lord transforms to perfection, in whose mind there is no deceit. (REM)

Verse 3:

- When I kept silent, my bones wasted away through my groaning all day long. (NIV84)

What does this mean? What is going one?

- When I held onto my guilt and shame, refusing to talk to God, I stressed myself and my body decayed because every day I screamed, "no!" denying the truth. (REM)

This is reality—this is what happens when we hold onto guilt and shame, we activate inflammatory cascades in our bodies which ruin our health and actually turn on osteoclasts the decay our bones.

Verse 4:

- For day and night your hand was heavy upon me; my strength was sapped as in the heat of summer. (NIV84).

What is described here? How is it typically read? God's hand is inflicting harm, causing pain, punishing for sin?

- But day and night your healing hand pressed firmly upon me; my resistance evaporated like water in the summer heat. (REM)

But in reality God is the source of truth and love and He loves us too much to let us go our own self-destructive way. So His Spirit bears down upon our consciences, convicts us of our sins, He disciplines us to lead us back into the path of healing and salvation and away from the destruction that breaking away from His designs for life bring. Thus, His hand is a healing hand and it bears down upon us not to punish, but to save, ultimately leading us out of fighting God and our resistance to the truth evaporates and we surrender to Him and are healed.

Verse 5:

- Then I acknowledged my sin to you and did not cover up my iniquity. I said, "I will confess my transgressions to the LORD"— and you forgave the guilt of my sin. (NIV84).

When does God forgive, before or after we confess? When do we experience the forgiveness God gives before or after we confess? God's forgiveness comes first—For God so loved the world He sent His only Son… and While we were still sinners Christ died for us. Because God is forgiveness, He forgives, but we don't benefit from His forgiveness in a saving way until we surrender, confess, repent then we experience in our being His forgiveness which transforms and heals us.

- Then I admitted my sin-sickness to you and did not hide my character-deformity. I said, "I will confess my selfishness to the Lord"—and you healed me and freed me from guilt. (REM)

This is the reality—opening our hearts and minds to our Creator for Him to heal and transform.

Verse 6:

- Therefore let everyone who is godly pray to you while you may be found; surely when the mighty waters rise, they will not reach him. (NIV84).

What does this mean? Does there come a time when God says, the saving shop is closed, I am no longer available? Or does this mean something else? Does God ever close Himself off from anyone who wants to be saved? And is it that when problems arise, when floods come we will be unable to reach God? Is that the message? Or is there a different message of hope from God lost in translation?

- Therefore let all the faithful ask you for this same healing while healing is still possible; then when the guilt, shame and regrets of life come flooding in, the faithful will not drown in them. (REM)

What is it that cuts us off from God—is it God's impatience, fatigue, time-limit, or is it that our own hardness of heart, fear, guilt, shame, that we refuse to let go off cuts us off from God. So those who are healed will never drown in sorrow guilt and shame but the unhealed will.

Verse 7:

- You are my hiding place; you will protect me from trouble and surround me with songs of deliverance. (NIV84).

From what are we being delivered? God's punishment for sin? Temporal enemies? Sin within us?

- You are my safe harbor; you protect me from the storms of life and turn my life into a song of deliverance. (REM)

Verse 8:

- I will instruct you and teach you in the way you should go; I will counsel you and watch over you. (NIV84).

What does this mean? What job to take, what city to live in, whom to marry? Or is it talking about how to live in harmony with God's methods, will, and purposes?

- The Lord says, "I will teach you my methods and how to live in harmony with my designs; I will guide you and watch over you. (REM)

Verse 9:

- Do not be like the horse or the mule, which have no understanding but must be controlled by bit and bridle or they will not come to you. (NIV84).

How do servants function? How do those who advance the penal legal imposed law model approach things? What does God want from us, to simply do what we are told for fear of punishment, to be lead around like mule with rules and threats of punishments, or does God want us to be His friends who agree with Him?

- Don't be like the unthinking horse or mule that do not reason or understand and must be forced by bit and bridle to follow the simplest instructions." (REM).

Verse 10:

- Many are the woes of the wicked, but the LORD's unfailing love surrounds the man who trusts in him. (NIV84).

Why do the wicked have many woes?

It is the only possible outcome for breaking the laws of health. Thus in Matthew 23 where Jesus gives a long list of woes to the pharisees and teachers of the law, I paraphrase the woe as "misery is yours" because misery, hurt, heartache, suffering, pain, and ultimately death is the only outcome possible for those who won't have the laws of life restored within them. But God's love heals those who trust Him.

- Many are the sufferings of those who defy your designs, but those who trust the Lord are healed by his never-failing love. (REM)

Verse 11:

- Rejoice in the LORD and be glad, you righteous; sing, all you who are upright in heart! (NIV84)

- Celebrate God's goodness and be happy, you spiritually-healthy; sing for joy, all you with hearts like God's! (REM)

What do you think of the Remedy Paraphrase? Does it make the meaning more clear?

Let's do one more, Psalms 137:1-3:

- By the rivers of Babylon we sat and wept when we remembered Zion. There on the poplars we hung our harps, for there our captors asked us for songs, our tormentors demanded songs of joy; they said, "Sing us one of the songs of Zion!" (NIV84).

- By the rivers of Babylon, as captives in this selfish world, we wept when we remembered Zion — God's fortress of spiritual health and wellness. There on the willows we hung our harps while our captors told us to sing: they demanded songs of happiness and joy; they said, "Sing us a song of health about Zion!" (REM).

Verses 4-6:

- How can we sing the songs of the LORD while in a foreign land? If I forget you, O Jerusalem, may my right hand forget its skill. May my tongue cling to the roof of my mouth if I do not remember you, if I do not consider Jerusalem my highest joy. (NIV84)

- How can our lives be songs revealing God's character of love while our hearts are held captive to this selfish world? If I forget the truth about you, O Jerusalem—the center of God's healing plan—may I write no more music. May I sing no more songs, if they are not about you; if they do not teach God's healing plan centered in you, O Jerusalem, as my highest joy. (REM)

Verses 7-9:

- Remember, O LORD, what the Edomites did on the day Jerusalem fell. "Tear it down," they cried, "tear it down to its foundations!" O Daughter of Babylon, doomed to destruction, happy is he who repays you for what you have done to us—he who seizes your infants and dashes them against the rocks. (NIV84).

- Remember, O Lord, what the Edomites did the day Jerusalem — your spiritual treatment center — fell? They shouted, "Tear it down, tear it down to the ground!" O people of Babylon, who cling to selfishness, you are doomed to destruction! Happy are those who are finished with you, just as you deserve; who have weaned themselves from you. Happy are they who take your children to fall upon the Rock and be broken

2024 4Q Psalms Lesson 2
Teach Us to Pray

by Tim jennings

SABBATH

The First paragraph states,

> A simple way of introducing the Psalms into daily life is to devote time each day to the reading of psalm, beginning with Psalm 1, and following the order given in the psalter. Another way is to read the psalms that correspond to your present situation, whatever it happens to be… (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 13).

I have personally benefited from meditating on the Psalms each morning. Sometimes I go through them in order, sometimes I pick one randomly, sometimes I pick one based on subject matter. But the idea of having a morning devotional from the Psalms is a good one.

At a conference I attended April 2023 one of the speakers, Gary Oliver, ThM, PhD, led the group in a form of Christian meditation called Lectio Divina. He gave each attendee a handout that included a brief history of Lectio Divina, some instructions, and a copy of Psalm 1:1–3 from four different versions: King James, New Living Translation, The Message, and The Remedy of the Lord in Song: The Psalms.

I did not know that Dr. Oliver was going to speak or that he was going to lead the entire group in a thoughtful, hour-long reflection of one of the psalms, especially not one that included The Remedy paraphrase. But it just so happened that Come and Reason Ministries was offering free copies of The Remedy of the Lord in Song: The Psalms for the participants, and many attendees, who came from all over the country, took one. Many personally thanked me for the paraphrase, telling me how much they were blessed from meditating upon The Remedy version.

In the aftermath of that meeting, I decided to research Lectio Divina and in May I wrote a blog on it. Lectio Divina means “divine reading.” It is an ancient Christian practice that goes all the way back to Origen of Alexandria in the third century. The intention of the practice is to help the Christian internalize the Scripture beyond mere fact or head knowledge to a deep experience, heart appreciation, and practical living out of the things of God. As we discussed last week, to allow the Psalms to be part of our spiritual healing.

Lectio Divina has four distinct actions or steps:

- Bible reading
- Meditation upon the passage read, which means reflecting on its meaning
- Prayer (conversation with God) about the passage

- Contemplation or experiencing its application to the inner workings of one's heart, attitudes, motives, and affections—i.e., abiding in and experiencing the Holy Spirit applying the truth to the heart.

A couple of important points about Lectio Divina: First, this form of meditation always starts with the inspired Word of God. If one replaces Scripture with other writings, then the meditation will serve to strengthen those writings' ideas into one's being rather than God's Word.

A second point is that this form of meditation requires deep thinking, reflection, active thought, and communion/prayer with God. It is not an emptying of the mind, nor is it a repetitive mantra. The goal is to expand our finite awareness, both cognitively and experientially (intellectually and spiritually), of our knowledge of God, so that we may know God for ourselves just as Jesus prayed that we would (John 17:3).

As we engage with God, actively connecting with Him and applying His methods to our lives, we experience healing, cleansing, recreation, renewal, transformation, which is also known as sanctification:

- May God himself, the God of peace, sanctify you through and through. May your whole spirit, soul and body be kept blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ (1 Thessalonians 5:23 NIV84).

God wants to sanctify, heal, make us holy in spirit, soul, and body.
Lectio Divina meditation engages all aspects of our being. We engage our body when we disengage from the daily activities of life, put down the digital devices, and sit quietly with God, often in nature—breathing in the fragrance of the flowers, hearing the songs of the birds, appreciating the beautiful rainbow, feeling the warmth of the sunshine, being caressed by the gentle breeze. Our experience in the natural world that God has created stimulates our senses and turns our minds toward our Creator in awe and appreciation.

In such a state of reverence, we turn our attention to the written word, focusing upon a specific passage of Scripture, and in that place of natural quiet, we meditate deeply upon the message of God. We reach out to God with our heart, reflecting upon the meaning, asking Him for greater insight, understanding, and wisdom. We praise God for His providence, presence, faithfulness, and goodness and for connecting the truths in Scripture in our minds and for its application to our life at that moment in time.

And then we pour out our affection, love, appreciation, and adoration to God, inviting His Spirit to cleanse and purify our attitudes, feelings, and longings to be ever more united with His so that we experience the joy, love, and presence of God in our inmost being.

I hadn't heard the term Lectio Divina before Dr. Gary Oliver introduced me to it. But as I studied out what this method of meditation was functionally doing, I realized that its steps are the very practices I had been doing throughout my Christian journey because I had read other Christian writers who described these very things without using that Latin term.

Most interesting, I found that one of the founders of the Seventh-day Adventist church advocated these very same practices, also without ever using the term Lectio Divina. Consider the following historical quotes, keeping in mind the four components of Lectio Divina: Bible reading, meditation, prayer, and contemplation.

- Merely to hear or to read the word is not enough. He who desires to be profited by the Scriptures must meditate upon the truth that has been presented to him. By earnest attention and prayerful thought he must learn the meaning of the words of truth, and drink deep of the spirit [contemplation] of the holy oracles (Christ's Object Lessons, 59).

- It would be well for us to spend a thoughtful hour each day in contemplation of the life of Christ. We should take it point by point, and let the imagination grasp each scene, especially the closing ones. As we thus dwell upon His great sacrifice for us, our confidence in Him will be more constant, our love will be quickened, and we shall be more deeply imbued with His spirit. If we would be saved at last, we must learn the lesson of penitence and humiliation at the foot of the cross (The Desire of Ages, 83).

Regardless of what you call it, I encourage you to take time daily to be apart from this busy world in order to spend time with God, to read His Word, meditate deeply upon its meaning, talk to God about it, and invite the Holy Spirit into your heart to bring the truths home to your inmost experience.

SUNDAY

Read first paragraph,

- All Christians know, and have experienced, times of despair and suffering, times when they have wondered what the Lord is doing, or why the Lord is allowing these things to happen to them. The psalmists themselves went through similar things. And, through divine inspiration, they recorded what they had experienced. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 14).

If a person feels discouraged, feels down, feels so despondent that they actually wish they could die, does that mean they are out of favor with God?
Could a person be in despair, even to the point they want to die and still be in a saving relationship with God?

Consider Elijah, would we consider him one of the faithful, a person who succeeded? He was taken to heaven in a fiery chariot and never died. He was sent to encourage Jesus along with Moses at the transfiguration. Yet, after Jezebel threatened to kill him, we read the following about Elijah:

- He came to a broom tree, sat down under it and prayed that he might die. “I have had enough, LORD,” he said. “Take my life; I am no better than my ancestors.” (1 Kings 19:4 NIV84).

Was Elijah no longer in good standing with God? Or did Elijah struggle with human emotions that discouraged him? Were Elijah’s feelings of depression and despair an accurate indicator of how God felt toward him?

Commenting on Elijah’s experience, the author of the book Prophets and Kings, writes the following:

- Into the experience of all there come times of keen disappointment and utter discouragement—days when sorrow is the portion, and it is hard to believe that God is still the kind benefactor of His earthborn children; days when troubles harass the soul, till death seems preferable to life. It is then that many lose their hold on God and are brought into the slavery of doubt, the bondage of unbelief. Could we at such times discern with spiritual insight the meaning of God's providences we should see angels seeking to save us from ourselves, striving to plant our feet upon a foundation more firm than the everlasting hills, and new faith, new life, would spring into being. (Prophets and Kings 162).

The Bible stories are there not just as historical records, but as lessons for us, to show us God’s dealing with people. When Elijah became discouraged by his human emotions, God did not abandon him, God did not look down on him, condemn him, reject him, but God moved in love, in sympathy, in compassion, with grace and truth to save Elijah from his own discouragement. And God works for every single person in the same way, the difference is that not every person responds to God’s love, grace, and truth the way Elijah did. Not everyone when discouraged turns to God and prays as Elijah did—some instead turn to destructive things. But God is still there working to reach them, to save them from their own feelings of discouragement.

In my own life I have had moments of despair, weakness, discouragement, depressed mood and feelings of hopelessness where the feelings tempted me to think that it would be better if God were just to take me, to just die. But at those times, I remembered Elijah, and I remembered this quotation from Prophets and Kings and realized those emotions that were tempting me were not from God, but from my own fears and insecurities and I turned my mind, my heart to Jesus and cried out to Him to send His angels and deliver me from my own self—and in each and every time He did and my spirit was imbued with hope, and after each experience my faith in God increased.

This is part of the journey for every person, and the Psalms are filled with helpful songs. Consider Psalms 143:

- Lord, respond favorably to my prayer, intervene mercifully to my plea!

Because you are faithful and always do what is right, come to my relief.
Do not judge me responsible for my sin-condition, for no one living can set themselves right with you.
The enemy hounds me, crushing my joy for life into the dirt, driving me into darkness with no zest for living — like those already long dead.

I am tired of living, I am discouraged and ready to give up, but then I remember what happened in the past — I focus upon your design and all you have done and think about your plan and all you have made.
I surrender myself to you; my inmost being thirsts for your life-giving presence like dry land thirsts for rain.
Respond to me quickly, O Lord; I am dying inside. Do not keep your life-giving presence from me or I will surely die and join those in the grave.
Let each day start with your love filling my heart, for I have put my trust in you. Teach me the way to live, for I surrender myself to you.
Rescue me from my enemies, O Lord, for I place myself under your protection.
Teach me to fulfill your purposes, for you are my God; may your Spirit of truth and love lead me to the world recreated to your design.
Heal me, O Lord, to magnify your character of love; cleanse my soul from sinfulness, because you always do right.
Show mercy to my enemies and let them go; let perish all those who reject healing and persist in attacking me, for I am your faithful follower. (Psalm 143:1-12 REM).

We find the psalmist and others in Scripture going through the same struggles with painful human emotions, whether from grief, fear, threats, guilt, shame or something else. But in all situations and circumstance, Jesus has a solution, a remedy to heal our hearts and minds and place us back on a solid foundation if we will turn to Him and trust Him.

TUESDAY

The lesson points us to Psalm 22:

Verse 1:

- My God, my God, why have you forsaken me? Why are you so far from saving me, so far from the words of my groaning? (Psalm 22:1 NIV84).

The lesson notes that these words are famous because Jesus quoted them while on the cross.

What do these words of Jesus reveal? Did God reject Jesus? Did God become angry, upset, mad at Jesus? Did God use power to harm Jesus at the cross?

What happened at the cross? Why did Jesus die? What kind of death did Jesus die? What was the necessity of Jesus' death in the plan of salvation? What did the Father do to Jesus at the cross?

What law lens do you understand all of this through?

Do we agree that the plan of salvation centers upon Jesus, His sinless life, His voluntary sacrificial and substitutionary death, His victory over death and resurrection?

So, Jesus is the solution! The plan of salvation is God's plan to resolve the sin problem; it is the treatment to the sin problem—then what we understand about the healing plan, the solution, the remedy, the treatment, the fix to the sin problem is determined by what we think the sin problem is?

What is the problem that sin caused that the plan of salvation fixes? And our answer to this question is determined by how we understand God's law.

If we believe that God's law functions like human law, imposed rules that require the rule-giver to inflict punishment, then we falsely conclude that the sin problem is a legal problem and the just solution is the infliction of punishment, the minimum punishment being death. Then we falsely conclude that Jesus' mission was to come, live a sinless life so that He personally did not break any rules and thus did not personally deserve any inflicted punishment so that God could place all our rule-breaking deeds (sins) on Him and do make-believe, pretend trick and treat the innocent Jesus as if Jesus was the one who did all the bad stuff and broke all the rules and then make a claim not actually true in reality, that it is right and just to punish an innocent person for the crimes of the guilty—and then teach that God used His divine power to inflict death upon Jesus so that He won't have to kill us—and then we claim, again contrary to all reality, that it is just, reasonable and true to declare a guilty person to be innocent if an innocent person is punished in place of the guilty.

This is all pagan, false, a lie, and stems directly from the lie that God's law functions like human law. It contradicts Scripture, it contradicts reason, it contradicts how God's design law of love and liberty works.

Can you get people to love you and trust you by threatening to kill them if they don't?

And this pagan lie is what is being taught actively in our church today. The following quote is from the Review December 8, 2023:

- "To spare us, God poured out His wrath against the violation of His law (sin), not on the violators of His law (sinners) but on the sinless Jesus, the only way that God could "be just and the justifier of the one who has faith in Jesus" (Rom. 3:26). In short, rather than killing us for violating His law, the Father killed Jesus instead. … Or, to put it crudely, the Father killed Jesus so that He wouldn't have to kill us" (emphasis mine). (Goldstein, C. "Law, Freedom, Love." Adventist Review online edition, Dec 8, 2023, https://adventistreview.org/cliffs-edge/law-freedom-love/?fbclid=IwAR3wAGrpMo-HQQi2KFAlHxfD47q5Aam6lZ6yJTNk-5FH7QZr66b8h_3CqX0)

Can you find anywhere in Scripture where the Bible shows God using power to harm Jesus? No! What you find is God stops using power and let's go of Jesus allowing Jesus to experience what Jesus chose, which was to be our Savior, to take up the responsibility to confront Satan and "destroy him who holds the power of death that is the devil" (Hebrews 2:14).

Who does Scripture say holds the power of death? Satan does! Jesus holds the keys to life, the power over death, Jesus destroyed death and brought life and immortality to light (2 Timothy 1:10). In the quote I just cited from the Review, place who is placed in the role of inflicting death? God, thus they are teaching that God wields Satan's power—in other words the man of sin has set himself up on God's temple, the spirit temple, proclaiming himself to be God. People are worshiping a god who has the attributes of Satan. This is why we have been given an end-time message that calls people to make a right judgment about God, for the hour of God's judgment has come.

But people persistently make the wrong judgment about God if they believe the lie that God's law functions like human law, and they conclude that God is the source of death, that God uses power to inflict death, that God is the one from whom we need to be protected.

But when we return to design law all the confusion resolves and we can answer all the questions.

What happened at the cross?

- Jesus completed the mission that He, the Father, and the Holy Spirit were jointly carrying out—for Jesus to destroy death (2 Timothy 1:10), Satan and his power (Hebrews 2:14; Colossians 1:20), the work of Satan (1 John 3:8), and fulfill God's purpose for humanity (Genesis 1:26,27), and redeemed Adam's fall becoming the new head of humanity the second Adam (1 Corinthians 15:47) and thereby restoring the species human back into perfection and at-one-ment with God.

- God was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself, not imputing their trespasses to them, and has committed to us the word of reconciliation. (2 Corinthians 5:19 NKJV)

Why did Jesus die?

To destroy death and fear and selfishness from within humanity and replace it with the divine nature, God's design law of love. He did this when, as a human, He was tempted by human emotions to save self (Gethsemane) but with each temptation, as a human, with human powers and human abilities, He chose to love perfectly and trust completely in His Father.

- Greater love has no one than this, that he lay down his life for his friends. (John 15:13 NIV84).

Thus He not only demonstrated the truth about God, but also developed a new sinless perfected and sealed human character, human being by restoring God's perfect living law into humanity. As Scripture says,

- once made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey him (Hebrews 5:9 NIV84).

What was the necessity of Jesus' death in the plan of salvation?

It was the only means whereby God could destroy sin—not just Satan, but sin itself, the roots of sin, the lies that broke trust in sinless beings, and destroy the carnal nature, the fear-driven, me-first, anti-love, rebellious survival driven motives of sin out of the human species, thereby destroying the death causing principle out of humanity.

What kind of death did Jesus die? Did Jesus die the first death—the sleep death? No, did Jesus die the second death?

Before we can answer that we need to define what we mean by the term, "second death." So, what is the second death? Do we have any inspired references to inform us of what that death is?

- He who overcomes will not be hurt at all by the second death. (Revelation 2:11 NIV84).
    - This text doesn't tell us what the second death is, but does inform us that those who overcome won't be hurt by it.
    - What about Jesus, did He overcome? Then was Jesus hurt by the second death or not hurt by the second death?
- Blessed and holy are those who have part in the first resurrection. The second death has no power over them, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with him for a thousand years. (Revelation 20:6 NIV84).
    - This text also doesn't tell us what the second death is, only that the second death has no power over those who arise in the first resurrection, and that they will be priests of God.
    - Again, what about Jesus, does the second death, whatever it is have power over Him? And is Jesus a priest—in fact the High Priest of God?
    - So, we haven't yet defined what the second death is, but thus far we must question the idea of whether such a death could hurt Jesus or have power over Him.
- The lake of fire is the second death. (Revelation 20:14).
- Their place will be in the fiery lake of burning sulfur. This is the second death. (Revelation 21:8)
    - Did Jesus die in the lake of fire? Do we have any evidence that fire rained down from God upon Jesus at the Cross or in Gethsemane?
    - Do we have any evidence that God used any kind of power on Jesus? Or do we have the opposite, Jesus crying out "my God, my God why have you forsaken me" (Matt 27:45, 46)?
    - So we haven't fully defined what the fire is, but we have no evidence that Jesus experienced it at the cross.

These are the only Bible texts that directly mention the term second death.

Some Bible commentators add further clarification between the first and second death noting that the first death is the death from which a resurrection occurs but the second death is the death from which there is no resurrection. There is sound Biblical evidence for this conclusion (1Cor 15:12-21, 42-49, 1Thes 4:16, Rev 2:11, 20:5,6,14, 21:8). If we accept this additional demarcation then we must ask,

- Did Christ die a death from which there was no resurrection or did Christ rise again? "If Christ has not been raised, our preaching is useless and so is your faith" (1Corinthians 15:13).

While the Bible doesn't use "second death" language in any other place, Jesus actually described the two deaths (first and second) in Matthew 10:28 when He said:

- "Do not be afraid of those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul. Rather, be afraid of the One who can destroy both soul and body in hell." (Matthew 10:28 NIV84).

Christ makes a distinction between two types of death. The first in which only the body is destroyed and the second in which the body and soul is destroyed. Amazingly, the word translated "soul" is the Greek word "psyche" which means "mind, identity, individuality."

So, we can inquire about Jesus, when He died on the cross, did He have His mind, identity, individuality destroyed or did He rise again as the "same Jesus" (Acts 1:11) who died?

If we use the Bible as our guide, we have three demarcating features of the second death:

- lake of fire
- death without resurrection
- death which destroys both body and soul (psyche, individuality, mind)

When Jesus died were any of these identifiers met? No! The Bible seems to be making a strong case that Jesus did not "die" the second death. If He didn't die the second death, then what was the significance of His death?

Jesus' death was the means of actually destroying death!

Christ confronted the second death and conquered it, not "paid" it.

- Jesus "destroyed death and brought life and immortality to life." (2 Timothy 1:10).

- Christ destroyed the elements of Satan's government that bring death "by his death he destroyed him who holds the power of death that is the devil" Hebrews 2:14.

Christ died in order to eradicate the death causing principle of fear and selfishness and restore God's design law of love back into the human species.

His life on earth was accomplished through the exercise of human abilities. Jesus was tempted in His humanity, not His divinity. He chose with His humanity to say no to temptation, to trust the Father, to surrender His life in love.

And Jesus died when love overcame selfishness in His humanity, when He gave His life freely, when He chose to lay down His life voluntarily, when He refused to act selfishly, when He refused to use power to "save self."

In Christ the law of love, the law of life, was fully lived out when Christ refused to use His power to save self, but rather gave His life freely in love. In Christ, giving destroyed taking, love destroyed selfishness, life destroyed death!

So, because Jesus was a unique being whose mother was a sinful woman but whose Father was God, in the person of Jesus from His birth He had the ability to experience temptation in every way like we do, but He also had the ability, through trust to resist those temptations. It would be like you and me after rebirth—when we are reborn with new hearts that desire righteousness and we through faith can resist and say no to temptation. Jesus was born in this state. And because of this, Jesus never developed any bad, sinful, habits that needed to be overcome.

Jesus was,

- tempted in every way, just as we are—yet was without sin. (Hebrews 4:15 NIV84).

And,

- each one is tempted when, by his own evil desire, he is dragged away and enticed. (James 1:14 NIV84).

If both of these passages are true, and they are, then Jesus had a humanity that could tempt Him. And we see that in Gethsemane, when He experienced terrible human emotions that tempted Him to not go through the cross, to "save Himself." But with each temptation, Jesus chose, with His human abilities, to say no to the desire to save self and instead trust His Father, carry out the mission, and lay His life down freely.

And thus, Jesus He destroyed the infection of fear and selfishness that all humanity inherits from Adam, and restored perfectly God's love and trust and became the second head of humanity. And this is why He rose again, and could so accurately tell His disciples that He was going to die and rise again, because He understood that death is caused by deviation from God's design and that He was going to eradicate all deviations that He inherited from Mary, and He understood that life comes from God and is sustained by living in harmony with God's design laws for life and once He completed His mission, life would be restored into the humanity He possessed.

Thus, Christ's death destroyed death and brought life and immortality to light!

Christ's experience on the cross stands in sharp contrast to that of those who die in the lake of fire where they are overcome by selfishness. The differences between Christ's death and that of those who die the second death are stark:

Christ died trusting the Father – Luke 23:46
The wicked die distrusting the Father – Revelation 6:16

Christ died longing to see the Father – Mark 15:34

The wicked die hiding from the Father – Revelation 6:16

Christ died when the Father's presence was hidden – Mark 15:34
The wicked die when the Father is fully revealed – 2 Thessalonians 2:8

Christ died less than 72 hours – Luke 24:1-8
The wicked die eternally – Malachi 4:1-3; Romans 6:23; James 1:15; 2 Peter 3:10-12

Christ died when love overcame selfishness – John 3:16, 10:17,18; 1John 3:16
The wicked die overcome by selfishness – Revelation 21:8

If the Scriptures teaches that Christ did not die the second death, then why do so many insist that He did?

Because they have accepted the lie that God's law functions like human law and therefore they have misdiagnosed the problem of sin as being a legal problem rather than a terminal problem. And in the legal fantasy view, the problem is the inflicted second eternal death, and someone as to pay that penalty, thus it is taught Jesus died the second death so they can teach their penalty is paid.

Where some get confused is in focusing on the Father's actions, what the Father did do to Jesus at the cross, where the Bible describes the wrath of the Father being poured out on Jesus.

But this is because they confuse God's wrath with Satan's wrath. Satan's kingdom is the kingdom of imposed rules, made up laws, enforce through inflicted punishments. Thus Satan's wrath is always the use of power to inflict harm.

God's kingdom is the kingdom of reality, built by the Creator upon design laws that are the protocols for life, health, and happiness. Breaking God's design laws always results in pain, suffering, and eventual death unless remedied or cured by God. Thus God's use of power is to hold at bay the harm that sin brings and God's wrath is not the use of power to inflict harm, but the stopping of the use of power that has been preventing the harm. And on the cross, Jesus experienced the wrath of God when God let Him go, gave Him up, stopped using power.

And why did God do this? So that They, the Godhead, could accomplish the mission for which Jesus came—for Jesus to destroy the death causing principle and restore the life causing principle into the humanity He assumed and destroy the devil's power and lies, and to secure the universe into loyalty to God. And the only way for that to happen was for the Father, the source of life, to let go of His Son and allow Jesus to experience what Jesus had freely chosen, to be our Savior! If God would not have let go, then Jesus could not have completed His mission—He could not have died.

And in the end, God treats the wicked the same, God lets them go to reap what they have chosen, but they have chosen selfishness and rejected love, they have chosen rebellion rather than loyalty, distrust instead of trust, unfaithfulness rather than faithfulness, wickedness and not righteousness, evil rather than goodness, dishonesty rather honesty, and preferred lies to the truth. They have chosen to harden themselves in evil, sin, guilt, shame and when God ceases to use His power to shield them they reap what sin does, eternal destruction and they die the second death and never rise again.

WEDNSDAY

Read last paragraph,

- However, a mere repetition of the words of the Psalms with only a slight comprehension of their meaning will not produce the authentic transformation intended by their use. When praying the Psalms, we should seek the Holy Spirit to enable us to act in the way demanded by the psalm. The Psalms are the Word of God by which believers' characters and actions are transformed, not simply informed. By God's grace, the promises of the Psalms are made manifest in the lives of believers. This means that we allow God's Word to shape us according to God's will and to unite us with Christ, who demonstrated God's will perfectly and, as the incarnate Son of God, prayed the Psalms, as well. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 16).

Have you ever heard, pain is fertilizer for the soul?

Paul wrote,

- We also rejoice in our sufferings, because we know that suffering produces perseverance; perseverance, character; and character, hope (Romans 5:3-4 NIV84).

What does this mean?

Is this true? Is this what is being taught today?

I read a very interesting book entitled The Coddling of the American Mind: How Good Intentions and Bad Ideas Are Setting Up a Generation for Failure by Greg Lukianoff, Jonathan Haidt.

- Lukianoff is a graduate of American University and Stanford Law School. He has described himself as a "pro-choice liberal" and an atheist.

- Jonathan David is an American social psychologist, Professor of Ethical Leadership at New York University Stern School of Business, and author. His main areas of study are the psychology of morality and moral emotions.

I share their backgrounds because I want you all to understand, universal truths of God's kingdom can be understood by anyone with an honest heart to know the truth. As Paul wrote in Romans 1:20:

- For since the creation of the world God's invisible qualities—his eternal power and divine nature—have been clearly seen, being understood from what has been made, so that men are without excuse. (Romans 1:20 NIV84)

These writers are not conservative Christians, but they have discovered eternal truths, which are outworking of God's design laws and methods.

In their book they do an excellent job of describing three lies, they call them untruths, that are ravaging college campuses and society in general and have become dominant with the igen or generation Z, which is the group that began college in 2013. The three big lies or untruths are:

- What doesn't kill you makes you weaker
- Always trust your feelings
- Life is a battle between good people and evil people

They identify from ancient wisdom writings—Confusion, Buddha, Socrates, Plato etc. common truths that all the great sages agree upon and then demonstrate that the three core untruths popular and taught on campuses today are opposite ancient wisdom.

- What doesn't kill you makes you weaker
    - Truth—what doesn't kill you makes you stronger—the idea being that we only grow through challenges, through overcoming obstacles, through the painful and difficult experiences in life. This is an outworking of one of God's design laws—which one? The law of exertion.
        - "we also rejoice in our sufferings, because we know that suffering produces perseverance; perseverance, character" (Ro 5:3–4 NIV84).
    - So accepting the lie has led to concepts of avoiding things that are difficult, trials, obstacles, emotionally upsetting things. We must be safe, we need safe spaces, places where our ideas won't be challenged, where our concepts won't be exposed as flawed, where words won't upset us. We must remove names from buildings, or statues, or books, we must change names of teams because these are insensitive and hurt us and it isn't safe to be in a society that would injure us in this way. And in the church we must remove people who challenge our orthodoxy with evidence and truth we can't refute. Rather than struggling through in deep study and embracing unfolding truth, we instead must create safe theological spaces where the minds of our members are never challenged by new ideas. And what happens to minds and characters when the lie that what is challenging makes you weaker is accepted? Destruction of minds and characters, people get weaker, they don't get stronger.
- Always trust your feelings
    - All the great sages have taught that emotions energize us but are not to be trusted as emotions can lie. Can you think of a Bible text that supports this?
        - When tempted, no one should say, "God is tempting me." For God cannot be tempted by evil, nor does he tempt anyone; but each one is tempted when, by his own evil desire" (James 1:13–14 NIV84).
    - When people accept this lie then if they feel pain they conclude that the other person has assaulted them. And anything that hurts is aggression, words are redefined as violence and it is okay to use physical violence to stop the speech of others because their words hurt us and are violent. Facts, evidences, and truths don't matter, only our feelings matter.

        - They create falsehoods like this: Words that offend cause stress; stress increases inflammatory factors in the body which causes physical harm; thus offending words are acts of violence. What is wrong with this thinking? Replace words causing stress with anything else—such as your boyfriend or girlfriend break up with you causes stress, stress causes physical harm, therefore a breakup is an act of violence. Or, making a poor grade on an exam causes stress, stress harms the body, therefore if a teacher gives a bad grade it is an act of violence against you. Or being held accountable for sin, being brought to conviction, this causes stress and stress harms the body therefore the Holy Spirit convicting of sin is an act of violence.
- Life is a battle between good people and evil people
    - Throughout human history the sages have described that there is a battle between good and evil occurring in every human heart. But the new view is there isn't a battle between good and evil as principles, methods, motives of our hearts—there are only good and evil people. Thus, if someone disagrees with your view, challenges your beliefs and hurts your feelings, they are evil and evil must be destroyed.

They cite several studies on how humans divide into groups, and that it doesn't matter how people get divided into groups, once they are divided into groups they begin thinking of "us versus them" and they treat people in the "us" category better than the "them" category. Studies have demonstrated that it doesn't matter if people are divided by a coin toss, or by guessing the number of dots on a page full of dots, once they are divided into groups, people that are not in their group are treated worse than those in their group.

THURSDAY

Read last paragraph which is a historical quote from EG White:

- "This world is a vast lazar house, but Christ came to heal the sick, to proclaim deliverance to the captives of Satan. He was in Himself health and strength. He imparted His life to the sick, the afflicted, those possessed of demons. He turned away none who came to receive His healing power. He knew that those who petitioned Him for help had brought disease upon themselves; yet, He did not refuse to heal them. And when virtue from Christ entered into these poor souls, they were convicted of sin, and many were healed of their spiritual disease, as well as of their physical maladies. The gospel still possesses the same power, and why should we not today witness the same results?"—Ellen G. White, Welfare Ministry, pp. 24, 25. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 17).

The gospel does still possess the same power—but only if we are presenting the actual true gospel and not a counterfeit. What do you understand the gospel to be, the good news that is eternally good?

2024 Q1 Psalms Lesson
3 The Lord Reigns

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH and MONDAY

We are starting with Sabbath and Monday together because the title for the week and the title for Monday are the same, "The Lord Reigns"

The lesson points us to Psalm 93 for our memory text. Let's read the entire five verses, first from the NIV and then from the Remedy:

- The LORD reigns, he is robed in majesty;
the LORD is robed in majesty and is armed with strength.
The world is firmly established;
it cannot be moved.
2 Your throne was established long ago;
you are from all eternity.
3 The seas have lifted up, O LORD,
the seas have lifted up their voice;
the seas have lifted up their pounding waves.
4 Mightier than the thunder of the great waters, mightier than the breakers of the sea—
the LORD on high is mighty.
5 Your statutes stand firm;
holiness adorns your house for endless days, O LORD. (Psalm 93:1-5 NIV84)

Don't you love this psalm? What do you understand the meaning to be? Is it simply and only a testimony to the creatorship, eternal essence, and infinite power of God? Or is this a psalm inspired by the Holy Spirit in the context of the universal war over God's trustworthiness and is it intended to inspire us with eternal truths about God in that context?

In other words, is there deeper meaning contained in this psalm that goes beyond the obvious that God is Creator, infinite, eternal, and powerful?

Consider the Remedy paraphrase:

- The Lord reigns supreme, covered in majesty;
the Lord is covered in majesty — the majesty of infinite love secured and bound by the strength of infinite truth.

> The world is established as the showcase of your methods of love; > your design laws for life cannot be changed.
> 2 Your rulership was established long ago when you built all reality;
> you created time and existed before time began.
> 3 Seas of selfish beings have risen up, O Lord, > the seas of the selfish have raised their voices in opposition to your rule;
> the seas of the selfish have pounded against your kingdom of truth and love.
> 4 Love is mightier than the thundering flood of selfishness; > truth is mightier than the stormy seas of lies and deceit —
> the Lord, Creator God on high, is mighty!
> 5 Your design protocols for life can never be changed;
> holiness and healthiness — perfection in all things — adorn your house > for all eternity, O Lord. (Psalm 93:1-5 REM)

This paraphrase magnifies a certain meaning, but is that meaning a violation of the text? In other words, when you read the more conservative text is this meaning one possible interpretation? And are there Bible texts that support such interpretations—like the seas representing people (Rev 17:15)? And in the context of the Great Controversy, what is the most likely truth the Holy Spirit wants people to know—simply and only that God is powerful—or that God is not only powerful but trustworthy? Don't the devils believe God is powerful and it scares them?

Read the first paragraph,

- The Psalms unswervingly uphold the foundational belief in God's sovereign reign. The Lord created and sustains everything that He had created. He is the Sovereign King over the whole world, and He rules the world with justice and righteousness. His laws and statutes are good and bring life to those who keep them. The Lord is a just Judge who ensures that the world remains well ordered, and He does so by rewarding the righteous and punishing the wicked, but in His time, not ours. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 20).

What do you understand God's "sovereign reign" to be? What does it mean? How is God sovereign?

The question of God's sovereignty and what it entails has generated debate throughout Christianity history, yet there is a clear and understandable, truthful, factual, and testable answer—but what is the first question we must answer in order to answer other questions?

How do we understand God's law functions? If we understand God's law functions like human law and government, then sovereignty becomes Calvinistic, God's sovereignty is taught to be first His right to control everything, and second His use of power to control everything. Therefore, it is taught that while evil is still evil, it is good for evil to have happened because it couldn't have happened except God, in His sovereignty, chose for it to happen.

Those who accept the lie that God's law functions like human law, will describe God's sovereignty in ways like this: "the right to exercise his ruling power over his creation." Or "God is in control of all things" or "God controls everything that happens."

The question that arises with such assertions about God's sovereignty is one of human freewill, do we have freewill, or does God's sovereignty determine our decisions for us? Are we predestined by God to do evil and good things because He is in control or is God's control limited by our freewill?

What do you think would happen if you were counseling a rape victim, or someone whose family was kidnapped and killed by terrorists, and you said to them, "Don't worry, God is in control"?

Would such a statement likely be therapeutic, healing, helpful for them to hear? Would saying those words most likely enlighten the individual to eternal truths and lead them to trust God more, or might those words put barriers between that person and God?

Would it be true or false to say to the rape victim, "God is in control"?

- If we say it's true, what does that say to the rape victim about her rape and about God?
    - Did God instigate the rape?
    - Did God motivate, control, and inspire the rapist to rape them?
    - Did God want the person to be raped?
    - If God is in control and chose for the rapist to rape then does that mean rape just and good?
    - If we conclude that rape is evil but God is in control and still caused the rape then does God support, choose, and cause evil; is God the source of evil?
    - And how could anyone ever trust such a god?

- If we tell the rape victim that God is not in control, are we speaking truthfully?
    - Or are we misrepresenting God in some way?
    - Are we limiting God's power and sovereignty?
    - Do we enhance or undermine faith in God if we teach that God doesn't have control over His creation?
    - Is a god with limited control merely like the many regional pagan gods a being with limited power and susceptible to forces beyond its control?
    - Would it bring healing to the rape victim to believe God is not in control?
    - Would they be able to move forward in this sinful world with less anxiety if they believe in a god who is limited in their ability to protect and save because they have limited control?

What is the root to all of these apparent problems and what will cause all of these problems to evaporate? The cause of all of this confusion, comes from Satan the author of confusion, and is his lie that God's law is imposed law. To clear up the confusion one only needs to reject the lie and embrace the truth that God's law is design law.

It is the use of the lie that God's law is imposed and trying to answer these questions through that law-lens that directly causes all the confusion and conflicts described above, but as soon as we return to design law all the problems disappear.

God's laws are the protocols upon which reality is built to operate, such as the laws of physics, gravity, law of love, truth, worship, liberty, exertion, laws of health, and so many more. It is how reality works.

Thus, God is in control of what God controls — and God controls Himself and all His laws. He sustains reality; He keeps the universe running upon the protocols and laws He established. And one of those laws is the law of liberty, which grants real freedom to sapient beings. Why? Because God is love and love only exists in an atmosphere of freedom.

Robots cannot choose and robots cannot love and if God acted to restrict freedom to choose, He would destroy love. Understanding design law, including the law of liberty, clears up apparent contradictions—like the apparent contradictions in Scripture where it teaches all of the following:

- God hardened Pharaoh's heart (Exodus 4:21; 7:3)
- Pharaoh hardened his own heart (Exodus 8:15, 32).
- Pharaoh's heart became hard or was hardened (Exodus 7:22)

Are all three statements true? If we have the imposed law view, then someone is responsible, someone makes it happen the way it does, and God as supreme is the one who does it, thus Pharoah didn't have a choice, God used him like a pawn and forced a hard heart upon Pharaoh. This is a lie, an untruth, a false understanding that occurs when we believe God's law functions like human law.

When we return to design law, how reality works, we understand exactly how all three statements of Scripture are true and the fact the Bible says it in all three ways is proof, evidence, that the design law understanding of God's law is the right understanding.

But here is how it works. What actually hardens a heart? The choice to reject love and truth and act upon fear, selfishness and lies. In other words, sin itself hardens the heart.

Then how did God harden Pharaoh's heart? By presenting the truth and leaving Pharaoh free to accept or reject it. The accepting or rejecting causes the end result — healing or hardening. The act of choosing to accept or reject truth; to embrace love or embrace selfishness; to steal, lie, cheat, or be honest, truthful and loyal, changes the person who makes the choice. Without the truth presented and the freedom to reject it, Pharaoh's heart would not have become as hardened. Thus, God hardened Pharaoh's heart through the laws of truth and freedom; He presented truth and left the ruler free. God controlled Himself and His laws, but Pharaoh exercised his own will and controlled his own choice, operating upon the law of liberty God was sustaining, and in choosing to reject the truth, he hardened his own heart. This is how reality works and how God is in control.

One might ask however, if God foreknew that Pharaoh would reject the truth, and this would result in hardening of Pharaoh's heart, why did God do it? Because of reality—Pharaoh, like every human born since Adam's sin, was born in sin and conceived in iniquity (Ps 51:5). He had the same terminal sin condition as every other human and needed the same remedy from God. If God did not present the truth to Pharaoh then Pharaoh would have had no opportunity to be saved from sin, and what would it say about God if God withheld saving truth? So God presents the truth because He is love, and He loved Pharaoh and wanted Pharaoh to come to salvation, but Pharaoh chose to reject it and hardened his own heart.

So, what do we say to the rape victim?

If the person is a believer and ready for a discussion about such things, we tell them that God is love and love only exists in freedom—and as the sovereign Creator, He could have made us all robots, beings programmed to act the way He chooses—but such beings only simulate life, they are not alive, they cannot love, create, develop, hope, be friends. God created human beings in His image, to be like God in our entire being—to love, to create, to be loyal, to develop friendships, especially friendship with God. But all of this requires real and genuine freedom, thus one of God's laws is the law of liberty and God sustains this law and leaves all His intelligent creatures free to choose for themselves. And when Lucifer chose rebellion and evil, God did not use power to destroy him, but left him free and countered that assault with truth and love and ultimately sent Jesus to take up the responsibility of eliminating the damage and restoring love and trust—of healing all the damage. God is not responsible for evil, He is responsible for love and freedom, and He takes responsibility to heal and restore all who love and trust Him.

But what do we do with texts like this one?

- See now that I myself am He! There is no god besides me. I put to death and I bring to life, I have wounded and I will heal, and no one can deliver out of my hand. (Deuteronomy 32:39 NIV84).

How do we understand this? Didn't I just last week read the following quote from the Adventist Review December 8, 2023:

- "To spare us, God poured out His wrath against the violation of His law (sin), not on the violators of His law (sinners) but on the sinless Jesus, the only way that God could "be just and the justifier of the one who has faith in Jesus" (Rom. 3:26). In short, rather than killing us for violating His law, the Father killed Jesus instead. … Or, to put it crudely, the Father killed Jesus so that He wouldn't have to kill us" (emphasis mine). (Goldstein, C. "Law, Freedom, Love." Adventist Review online edition, Dec 8, 2023, https://adventistreview.org/cliffs-edge/law-freedom-love/?fbclid=IwAR3wAGrpMo-HQQi2KFAlHxfD47q5Aam6lZ6yJTNk-5FH7QZr66b8h_3CqX0)

And then quoted Hebrews 2:14

- Since the children have flesh and blood, he too shared in their humanity so that by his death he might destroy him who holds the power of death—that is, the devil (Hebrews 2:14 NIV84).

And then I stated that the author attributes to God Satan's power, the power of death. Didn't I do that last week?

But now we read,

- See now that I myself am He! There is no god besides me. I put to death and I bring to life, I have wounded and I will heal, and no one can deliver out of my hand. (Deuteronomy 32:39 NIV84).

So, was I wrong last week? Is God truly the author of death, the source of death, the one who wields the power of death? We cannot ignore this text in Deuteronomy, so how do we understand it?

As we do with all Scripture, we must place it in the setting of the rest of Scripture, the entirety of the inspired record, and the setting of the Great Controversy and not take one text by itself to make a conclusion. And with just a little more Bible searching we find this text:

- The LORD brings death and makes alive; he brings down to the grave and raises up. (1 Samuel 2:6 NIV84).

Ah, and the light goes on. We see an expansion through Hebrew parallelism where the second phrase expands on the first phrase, and what do we learn? That God is speaking of sometimes putting people into the first death experience but not the second death experience, and God will raise people from the first death experience.

In Scripture the word "death" is applied to two very different and distinct states of being.

- First death, which the Bible describes as s sleep death in which only the body dies, but the soul, the individuality sleeps, like a computer whose battery dies sleeps, and from which there is a resurrection. First death is not the end of life, it is a pause in one's life—the life continues at the resurrection.
- Second death, is when both body and soul are destroyed. And the second death is the death that is the wages of sin, the death that occurs when one is completely and permanently cut off from God, the source of life and from which there is no resurrection—it is the end of one's life for all eternity.

Now which of these two deaths does the Deuteronomy and 1 Samuel texts attribute to God controlling? The first death, the sleep death, which is not the wages of sin death. It is an artificial state of suspended animation, i.e. asleep, that is permitted by God's grace to limit the destructiveness of sin and rebellion and to allow for the plan of salvation to be carried out. If not for God's grace there would be no first death, only second death. Thus the Bible rightly tells us that God is in control of the sleep death. God in many places, put people to sleep, but God will also wake them up. Going to sleep is not death, it is suspension of life, it is a time out from living, a sleep.

But the second death is the eternal cessation of life and that is what choosing Satan and his ways cause. As the Bible says, "those who sow to the carnal nature reap destruction" (Galatians 6:8) and "sin when full grown brings forth death" (James 1:15). Eternal death, the wages of sin death does not come out from God, it comes out from sin, from breaking away from God and His design laws for life.

So, was I wrong last week when I pointed out that the Review article attributed to God the power of death and that power is Satan's power? No, I stand by what I said, it is the truth, reality. God is the source of life, Satan and sin severe our connection with God and life and is the cause of death. Death does not come out from God.

Or what about this text:

I received an email asking how we understand:

- I form the light, and create darkness: I make peace, and create evil: I the LORD do all these things." (Isaiah 45:7 KJV emphasis mine).

However, this is not the only possible translation, and the translation informs us of the biases of the translator—perhaps having an imperial law understanding of Sovereignty.

Henry Wright, in his book, A More Excellent Way, clarifies this verse:

- Some say God created evil because of Isaiah 45:7

  "I form the light, and create the darkness. I make peace and create evil: I the LORD do all these things. Isaiah 45:7"

  In the Strong's Concordance, the Hebrew word for create, under #1254 is bara. It is the same word used when God created. But the second meaning for the Hebrew word create is "to break down, tear down, cut down like wood."

  Now let's read the Scripture again with the Strong's definition in it.

  I form the light, and I tear down and destroy darkness. I make peace and tear down and cut down like wood everything that is evil. I am the author of the destruction of evil" (A More Excellent Way To Be in Health by Henry W. Wright, p. 130. emphasis mine)

Which translation do you think is the more accurate one?

Do you see how a design law understanding brings everything into harmony?

In the first paragraph in Sabbath's lesson and third paragraph in Monday's lesson the author uses the language that God's reign is established in both justice and righteousness.

What does this mean?

This is evidence of the infection of imposed law into our theology. Sentences like this are evidence of the Romanization of Christianity, the belief in the lie that God's law functions like human law.

In the Bible there is no word “justice” or “justification” or “righteousness.” These are English words. And “justice, justify, justification” all come from Latin roots, which is the basis of much of our legal language—i.e. Latin = Roman, the Romanization of Christianity.

In the Greek New Testament there is only one root word for all of these terms. If you look up these words in any lexicon this is what you will find:

- Just is δίκαιος [dikaios /dik·ah·yos/]
- Righteous is δίκαιος [dikaios /dik·ah·yos/]

- Justifies and Justify is δικαιόω [dikaioo /dik·ah·yo·o/]
- “Be righteous” is δικαιόω [dikaioo /dik·ah·yo·o/]

- Justice is δικαιοσύνη [dikaiosune /dik·ah·yos·oo·nay/]
- Righteousness is δικαιοσύνη [dikaiosune /dik·ah·yos·oo·nay/]

If the authors understood design law and did not infect our theology with Romanism, they would never separate justice and righteousness—because these two terms are always the exact same thing.

When your child disobeys your clear warning to never take medicine from the medicine cabinet and overdoses on an entire bottle of some pharmaceutical, and you see them seizing and dying from their action—what is the right thing for you to do? What is the just thing for you to do? If you do what is just do you take out your belt and beat them? Do you tell them, “Well I could let you die from the consequences of your action, but justice demands that I pour gas on you and burn you as long as you deserve. Now, I would prefer to just let you die, you see, but I am a just parent and I am required to enforce my rules so, as much as it grieves me, I must torture and kill you.”

Or, does justice seek to save and restore, to heal? And isn’t that the right thing?

And thus we read Romans 3:23-26 from the NIV, which leans strongly in the Romanized view of penal legal language and from the GNT which is less so, and from the Remedy:

- For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, and are justified freely by his grace through the redemption that came by Christ Jesus. God presented him as a sacrifice of atonement, through faith in his blood. He did this to demonstrate his justice, because in his forbearance he had left the sins committed beforehand unpunished—he did it to demonstrate his justice at the present time, so as to be just and the one who justifies those who have faith in Jesus. (Romans 3:23-26 NIV84).

- Everyone has sinned and is far away from God’s saving presence. But by the free gift of God’s grace all are put right with him through Christ Jesus, who sets them free. God offered him, so that by his blood he should become the means by which people’s sins are forgiven through their faith in him. God did this in order to demonstrate that he is righteous. In the past he was patient and overlooked people’s sins; but in the present time he deals with their sins, in order to demonstrate his righteousness. In this way God shows that he himself is righteous and that he puts right everyone who believes in Jesus. (Romans 3:23-26 GNT)

- For all humanity is infected with the same disease — of distrust, fear and selfishness — and is deformed in character and falls far short of God's glorious ideal for humanity. Yet all who are willing are healed freely by God's gracious Remedy which has been provided by Jesus Christ. God presented Jesus as the way and the means of restoration. Now, through the trust established by the evidence of God's character revealed when Christ died, we may partake of the Remedy procured by Christ. God did this to demonstrate that he is right and good — because in his forbearance he suspended, for a time, the ultimate consequence of us being out of harmony with his design for life — yet he has been falsely accused of being unfair. He did it to demonstrate at the present time how right and good he is, so that he would also be seen as being right when he heals those who trust in Jesus. (Romans 3:23-26 REM)

SUNDAY

What do you think of title "The Lord Has Made Us"?

Is this referring to our individual biological existence?
Is it referring to a collective us—the Lord made the human species, the Lord made Israel a nation; the Lord made the SDA church into a worldwide organization?

God is the Creator—no question about it. He spoke all things into existence, space, time, matter, energy, and life. All living things were created by Him, including humanity. And I believe God created Adam from the dirt of the earth and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and Adam became a living being. And I believe God created Eve from tissue taken from Adam.

So both Adam and Eve were created directly by God, by divine action to specifically bring them into existence as living beings.

And I believe God, sometime later, took divine action to bring Jesus into the world as our Savior, to cause Mary to become pregnant and give birth to Jesus a blend of our humanity and His divinity.

And all three of these beings—Adam, Eve, and Jesus when God completed His action to bring them into human existence were sinless.

What about you and me, did any of us, as individuals, come into the world by a direct act from God to create a sinless being?

How did we come into the world?

God gave Adam and Eve a godlike ability, the ability to create beings in their image. He created human beings with the ability to make freewill choices and those choices will develop and change us. As we develop and change, either for good or evil, we make changes in our being, epigenetic changes in how our DNA is expressed, and then when we procreate we pass along to our offspring attributes of ourselves. This is well documented and proven scientific fact, as the Bible says, the sins pass down three and four generations.

All of this ability to procreate is only possible because of God's creation, His design, the delegated and endowed ability to procreate, and God's ongoing sustaining of life and the laws upon which life exists and operates. In other words, having children is only possible because of God's original creation and His ongoing sustaining of the laws that govern life and health.

However, does that mean that God acts with divine power to create each of us as we are? Does God create defective, sinful beings? No, God creates sinless beings. That is why the Bible teaches we were all in Adam when Adam sinned and that we are born in sin, conceived in iniquity.

The reason I am here as the unique person I am is not because God chose to use divine power in special creation from heaven to create me as a unique being, but because my mother and father chose to use the delegated abilities God invested in humanity to have a child. And had my mother and father chosen to skip the one month in which I was conceived and had a child conceived the next month, their second child wouldn't be me but one of my siblings.

Do you agree or disagree with this? What are the implications? Do we understand that God does not create sickness, defects, sinners, but that His creation has been damaged by sin and sickness, defects, and sinners are born because God continues to sustain His creation and give us freedom in harmony with His character and laws of love and liberty? And God is working to eliminate all sin, sickness, and defects from His creation and restore us to perfection?

In the fourth paragraph the lesson states,

- "Only the Creator has the power to bless and cause His people to increase, and thus, He is the only One worthy of their worship and trust." (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 21).

What do we understand this to mean? Does it mean that all births are God's will, God using power to create new humans? So when men rape women and they get pregnant was that an act of God? Or when that happens do we see that human beings are abusing the abilities and powers God has given them?

TUESDAY

The title for the lesson is God is Judge, when you hear this title what thoughts, images, feelings, beliefs come to mind?

Do you think of images like these?

Or do you instead, when you think of God as judge think of these?

Consider both places, the courtroom and the hospital:

- Do people get examined and have things about themselves revealed in both places—sometimes things they prefer to keep hidden?
- Are judgments made in both places?
- Are verdicts given in both places?
- Are decisions made by others that impact the one being examined in both places?
- Are decrees or findings made by the examining authority in both places?

- Then are the same things happening to the one being examined in both places?
- What is the difference? The law which is being followed!

In the first setting—the courtroom—the law being followed and applied is worldly, imposed, made up, arbitrary rules that created beings make and which require judicial oversight and external enforcement.

In the second setting—the hospital—the law being followed and applied is God's law, design law, the laws of health, the laws that the Creator built reality to operate upon and that life requires harmony with, thus the sick one requires healing, restoration, lest they die from their terminal condition.

Which judgment do you think represents the truth about God's government?

The judicial model, the penal legal salvation model, is a lie, it is based on accepting Satan's lie that God's law functions like human law.

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 75, let's read verses 2-8 in the GNB and the Remedy, and I want you to notice how the two laws come out in the translations:

- "I have set a time for judgement," says God,
"and I will judge with fairness.
3 Though every living creature tremble and the earth itself be shaken,
I will keep its foundations firm.
4 I tell the wicked not to be arrogant;
5 I tell them to stop their boasting."
6 Judgement does not come from the east or from the west, from the north or from the south;
7 it is God who is the judge, condemning some and acquitting others.
8 The LORD holds a cup in his hand, filled with the strong wine of his anger.
He pours it out, and all the wicked drink it;
they drink it down to the last drop. (Psalm 75:2-8 NIV84).

What do you hear? Which law does this sound like?

- God says, "When the time is right, I will unite with my people and govern them uprightly.
3When the earth and all its selfish inhabitants slowly decay, it is I who holds the cure — the foundational design for life.
4To the arrogant I say, 'Stop bragging about yourselves — you have no remedy,' and to the wicked, 'Do not blow your own horn of self-exaltation.
5Do not trumpet your own spiritual health, trying to exalt yourselves; do not be proud, with heads held high and necks unwilling to bend in humility and accept treatment.'"

6The exaltation and restoration of humanity does not come from anywhere on earth — east or west, north or south.
7It is the Creator God who governs! The proudly-selfish die, while the humbly-righteous live.
8In the hand of the Lord is a cup filled with the unfermented wine of absolute truth and love; he pours it out, and all the selfish of the earth drink down the truth of their true condition, bitterly swallowing every evil and corrupt fact they have thus far denied. (Psalm 75: 2-8 REM)

So, why do you think the boasting of wicked is in vain? It would be like:

- declaring that people who jumps off the Empire State Building live longer than those who takes the elevator down?
- someone claiming that cigarettes improve their lung function?
- putting a screen door on a submarine?
- declaring a man can become a woman or a woman can become a man?

But do you understand why these illogical declarations like declaring a man can become a woman has happened? It is because people believe that human law systems are the way reality works, made up rules determine right and wrong, and made up rules can be changed. Thus, if reality is determined by made up rules, then if we change the rules, then we change reality.

This is what happens when we teach God's law functions like human law, we teach lies about God, lies about reality, lies about right and wrong, lies about judgment and justice.

I recently read about a global study of 15-year-olds that tested their reading comprehension nad found that 91 percent of them could not tell the difference between fact and opinion! https://www.oecd-ilibrary.org/docserver/a9b5930a-en.pdf?expires=1704112635&id=id&accname=guest&checksum=EFFF5DF3ED7066C7FAF93D58F06D0FC3

What happens when we substitute opinion for facts, for truth? We end up doing irrational and destructive things like walking around with a mask on our face believing it somehow can stop the spread of a virus, or take an experimental injection with no evidence of long term safety because the people in authority declared it is safe, or we believe that a man can become a woman etc.

We must lead people to objective reality and the God of reality and we do that be rejecting the Romanized view of Christianity with its made up laws and satanic god who is the source of inflicted torture and death.

Do you have any questions about judgment? –well turn to Wednesday and the first question at the top…

WEDNESDAY

Read the question at the top of the day's lesson:

- The theme of God's judgment prompts a significant question: How can God's people have peace with God and assurance of salvation at the time of judgment? (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 24).

This is an incredible question—what is implied by the question? Doesn't the question imply that God has something against us, that God needs something done to Him so that He won't judge and punish us?

Jesus taught us that from the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks—people reveal what they think and believe by how they live and what they say. The lesson authors and editors reveal that they believe God's law functions like human law—I don't judge their motives. In fact, I view them like I do Saul of Tarsus before the Damascus road—zealous for God but ignorant of the truth. Saul of Tarsus thought he was serving God when in fact He was opposing God. I pray for those in leadership who are like Saul, I pray that God will give them the experience they need in order for them to reject the imposed law view and embrace design law.

So, how can people have peace with God and assurance of salvation in the judgment—by being healed, trusting God and receiving from the Holy Spirit a new heart and right spirit, by being reborn, by being recreated, by having God's living design law of love and truth written upon our hearts and minds so that we are sealed, so settled into the truth both intellectually and spiritually that we cannot be moved. So that in God's examining room God finds within each person Jesus living there (Gal 2:20).

Read the first paragraph,

- God's people are secure because the Lord placed His dwelling place in Zion (Ps. 76:1, 2) and established His everlasting covenant with them as His treasured possession (Ps. 94:14, Ps. 105:8–10). God does not simply promise not to reject His covenantal people—He actively works to keep them secure in Him. He forgives their sins (Ps. 103:3); He instructs, blesses, and strengthens His people (Ps. 25:8−11, Ps. 29:11, Ps. 105:24). God's judgments are given to turn the people to righteousness and to demonstrate that God cares for them (Ps. 94:8–15). (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 24).

Hmmm….I guess it depends on the meaning we attach to the words, but this is certainly not clear and in fact gives much opportunity for error, so let's unpack it.

- "God's people are secure because the Lord placed His dwelling place in Zion (Ps. 76:1, 2) and established His everlasting covenant with them as His treasured possession (Ps. 94:14, Ps. 105:8–10)."
    - What do we mean by "His dwelling place in Zion?" If we mean the building built by human hands and destroyed twice—then no, that is not what gives us security. That building is only an object lesson, a teaching tool, a stage where a play was enacted to teach reality. But if we mean by "His dwelling place" "The Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us." (John 1:14 NIV84), then this is absolutely true, our security is found in Jesus!

    - What about the second part, His everlasting covenant with them as His treasured possession? What is that covenant? The covenant of grace—when was that covenant given? In Eden to Adam and Eve after they fell and the Messiah was promised. So, to whom is that covenant promised and made available? To all humanity. And who receives the blessing of that covenant? All those who have faith like Abraham:
        - a man is a Jew if he is one inwardly; and circumcision is circumcision of the heart, by the Spirit, not by the written code. (Romans 2:29 NIV84).
        - If you belong to Christ, then you are Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise. (Galatians 3:29 NIV84).
        - Understand, then, that those who believe are children of Abraham. The Scripture foresaw that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, and announced the gospel in advance to Abraham: "All nations will be blessed through you." So those who have faith are blessed along with Abraham, the man of faith. (Galatians 3:7–9 NIV84).
- God does not simply promise not to reject His covenantal people—He actively works to keep them secure in Him. He forgives their sins (Ps. 103:3); He instructs, blesses, and strengthens His people (Ps. 25:8−11, Ps. 29:11, Ps. 105:24).
    - Who are His covenant people? All who have faith like Abraham and thus have circumcision of the heart, i.e. are reborn, are transformed, are healed, are set right in heart and mind. It is reality based, actual transformation of the sinner from distrust and enmity of God to love and trust in God.
- God's judgments are given to turn the people to righteousness and to demonstrate that God cares for them (Ps. 94:8–15).
    - And how do they use judgments here? This is a correct use of the word, as therapeutic interventions that are judged to be healing and redemptive. This is a design law application and we agree!
    - But is this how judgment is always used by the authors?

THURSDAY

Read the first paragraph,

- The Lord's supremacy in the world as the Sovereign Creator, King, and Judge has theological implications for the reliability of His testimonies. The testimonies (Hebrew 'edut, "decree," "law") refer to the body of laws and ordinances with which the Lord governs the religious and social life of His people (Exod. 32:15). They are "very sure" (Ps. 93:5), reflecting the stability and permanence of God's throne and the world that God created and sustains (Ps. 93:1, 2). The Hebrew word translated as "sure" (the English word amen derives from this word) conveys the notion of reliability, faithfulness, and firmness (2 Sam. 7:16, 1 Chron. 17:23). God's laws are unchangeable and indestructible. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 25).

The first sentence is absolutely true, "The Lord's supremacy in the world as the Sovereign Creator, King, and Judge has theological implications for the reliability of His testimonies."

What is another way to say this? What we believe about God determines whether we can trust Him!

And what we believe about God—His Sovereignty, Him as ruling King and righteous Judge are all determined by what we believe about God's law.

Consider standing at the foot of the cross and asking those religious leaders who were crucifying Jesus:

- Do you believe in the Bible? Absolutely, and that is why we are here because this man refused to follow the Bible and wouldn't stone a woman caught in adultery.
- Do you believe in God as Creator? Of course, and that is why we are here because this man claimed He was equal with the Creator.
- Do you believe in God as Sovereign and Judge of all the Earth? Absolutely, and that is why we are here because this man usurped God's authority and healed on Sabbath and law breaking requires inflicted punishment and we are here to ensure He is judged and punished.

If you went down the list of doctrines—did they eat a different diet from Jesus? Did they have a different Bible? Did they have a different understanding of creation? Did they have a different sanctuary? Did they observe different festivals? Did they have a different Sabbath?

What did they have different? The law of God and thus they worshiped a false pagan god with all the right doctrines.

This is happening to our own church today! Those who are worshiping and teaching the false views of God are not deniers of God as Creator, King or Judge—they all believe passionately those things, but because they believe all those things through the framework of Satan's lies about God's law, because they believe God's law functions like human law, they come to a completely different conclusion about who God is, His character, methods, principles, government, the problem of sin, the solution for it, and ultimately they teach things about God's law and justice that undermine our ability to trust Him. They create theologies in which to trust—they trust in:

- A blood payment to keep them safe from the god they don't trust
- A mediator to stand between them and protect them from the god they don't trust
- A covering of some type to hide them from the god they don't trust
- A legal adjustment in books to force the god they don't trust to follow the law and declare them innocent

Understand, the penal legal system of theology is a fraud that teaches people to trust in various things that influence, shield, protect, or control the god they do not trust. They do not want to go into God's presence directly, they want these mechanisms involved.

2024 Q1 Psalms Lesson 4
The Lord Hears and Delivers

ANNOUNCEMENTS:

NEW MAGAZINE: The Lie that Deceived Angels, Infects Christianity, and Delays the Second Coming of Christ, is now available!

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read Memory Text:

- The righteous cry out, and the LORD hears them; he delivers them from all their troubles (Psalm 34:17 NIV84).

Don't you love Bible promises like this? Haven't you found comfort in the assurance of God's watch care that they bring?

- Is this a promise we can rely upon? For what?
- Does God always deliver those who cry out to Him?
- If God does not deliver someone who cries out to Him does that mean that they are not righteous?
- If God only delivers some of the time, then is this text wrong, should it instead read as, "The righteous cry out and the Lord sometimes listens and sometimes the Lord delivers"?

What is the cause of these apparent problems in understanding and applying the text? The problems arise when we take a verse in isolation and place a meaning on it that it was not intended to convey.

In my understanding, this verse was not intended to indicate that God delivers the righteous from all temporal troubles, but delivers the righteous from all troubles of sin that interfere with salvation—in other words, God delivers the righteous from sinfulness and every obstacle sin causes that would prevent a person from being saved if they were not delivered from it; He does not deliver from every earthly trouble.

Why do I think this? First, consider the examples of the righteous in Scripture:

- The Apostles John, Peter, and Paul—were they delivered from all earthly troubles? Or did John end up isolated on an island, and Peter and Paul both martyred, and Paul beaten multiple times, shipwrecked, and imprisoned?
- Peter wrote:

- In this you greatly rejoice, though now for a little while you may have had to suffer grief in all kinds of trials. These have come so that your faith—of greater worth than gold, which perishes even though refined by fire—may be proved genuine and may result in praise, glory and honor when Jesus Christ is revealed (1 Peter 1:6-7 NIV84).

Would these people to whom Peter is referring, who are suffering griefs and all kinds of trials—are they righteous or unrighteous?

He tells us these kinds of troubles are not removed because they are not an obstacle to our salvation, but somehow involved in helping us overcome fear, selfishness, distrust in our salvation journey.

And the context of the Psalm itself leads me to understand verse 17 referring to something other than earthly troubles, starting back at verse 14:

- Turn from evil and do good; seek peace and pursue it. The eyes of the LORD are on the righteous and his ears are attentive to their cry; the face of the LORD is against those who do evil, to cut off the memory of them from the earth.

  The righteous cry out, and the LORD hears them; he delivers them from all their troubles. The LORD is close to the brokenhearted and saves those who are crushed in spirit. A righteous man may have many troubles, but the LORD delivers him from them all; he protects all his bones, not one of them will be broken. Evil will slay the wicked; the foes of the righteous will be condemned. The LORD redeems his servants; no one will be condemned who takes refuge in him. (Psalm 34:14-22 NIV84).

And understanding the overall context of Scripture, the grand central theme and purpose of the Bible—the truth about God and the plan of salvation, here is how I paraphrased it:

- Those set right with God call to him and he answers them; he heals them from all their sin-sickness. (Psalm 34:17 REM).

Read first paragraph,

- Again and again, the Psalms highlight the truth that the Sovereign Lord, who created and sustains the universe, also reveals Himself as a personal God who initiates and sustains a relationship with His people. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 28).

When we think of God's Sovereignty what comes to mind?

- His power?
- His authority?
- His rulership?
- And if we think of His rulership, His governing of the His universe, what comes to mind? His law—and how do we understand God's law functions?

- What is Satan's lie about God's law? That God's law functions like the laws creatures make, made up rules that require legal enforcement. And today we are releasing our new magazine,

  The Lie that Deceived Angels, Infects Christianity, and Delays the Second Coming of Christ. This magazine will document this original lie, how it began in heaven, spread to Adam and Eve, infected God's people, was corrected by Jesus and the truth was taught by the Apostles, but the church became reinfected with this lie, how the Reformation arose to return Christianity to what Jesus Himself taught, and that the Reformation is a process of unfolding truth. How the Reformers in 1888 were confronted by the legalists in the SDA church and how the SDA leaders rejected the advancing truth of the Reformation and this has directly caused a delay—just like the children of Israel were delayed 40 years in the desert because of their unbelief. And how we can free ourselves from this lie and return to worshiping God as Creator. It is time for this message to go forward, the message that is to lighten the world for Christ's return. I encourage you to get a copy, read it for yourself, and when you agree with its contents, please share it far and wide. We will ship these to any US postal address at no cost. It is available online to be read or downloaded. And then please share with us any feedback you have or hear.

- And if we believe God's law functions like human law, and God's government runs legally, with judicial oversight and infliction of external penalties, then we end up worshiping a creature instead of the Creator, and it impacts how we translate and understand Scripture.

This one lie about law bends, twists, perverts, corrupts everything we teach about God, the sin problem, and the plan of salvation so that the theology taught actually support Satan's view of God.

Let's consider Psalm 75 and read it through the GNT and see how the translators honestly translate the language, but because of the belief that God's law functions like human law, judicial/legal concepts get brought over. But their interpretation of the text is not the only legitimate one. I will contrast it with the Remedy version.

Verse 2:

- "I have set a time for judgement," says God, "and I will judge with fairness. (Psalm 75:2 GNT)
- God says, "When the time is right, I will unite with my people and govern them uprightly. (Psalm 75:2 REM)

Verse 3:

- Though every living creature tremble and the earth itself be shaken, I will keep its foundations firm. (Psalm 75:3 GNT)
- When the earth and all its selfish inhabitants slowly decay, it is I who holds the cure — the foundational design for life. (Psalm 75:3 REM)

Verse 4:

- I tell the wicked not to be arrogant; (Psalm 75:4 GNT)
  The GNT truncated this verse significantly, leaving out a second phrase. The NIV reads:
  To the arrogant I say, 'Boast no more,'
  and to the wicked, 'Do not lift up your horns. (Psalm 75:4 NIV84).
- To the arrogant I say, 'Stop bragging about yourselves — you have no remedy,' and to the wicked, 'Do not blow your own horn of self-exaltation. (Psalm 75:4 REM)

Verse 5:

- I tell them to stop their boasting." (Psalm 75:5 GNT)
  The GNT truncated this verse significantly, leaving out a second phrase. The NIV reads:
  Do not lift your horns against heaven;
  do not speak with outstretched neck.' " (Psalm 75:5 NIV84).
- Do not trumpet your own spiritual health, trying to exalt yourselves; do not be proud, with heads held high and necks unwilling to bend in humility and accept treatment.'" (Psalm 75:5 REM)

Verses 6-7:

- Judgement does not come from the east or from the west, from the north or from the south; it is God who is the judge, condemning some and acquitting others. (Psalm 75:6-7 GNT)
- The exaltation and restoration of humanity does not come from anywhere on earth — east or west, north or south. It is the Creator God who governs! The proudly-selfish die, while the humbly-righteous live. (Psalm 75:6-7 REM)

Verse 8:

- The LORD holds a cup in his hand, filled with the strong wine of his anger. He pours it out, and all the wicked drink it; they drink it down to the last drop. (Psalm 75:8 GNT).
- In the hand of the Lord is a cup filled with the unfermented wine of absolute truth and love; he pours it out, and all the selfish of the earth drink down the truth of their true condition, bitterly swallowing every evil and corrupt fact they have thus far denied. (Psalm 75:8 REM)

So, why do you think the boasting of wicked is in vain? It would be like:

- declaring that people who jumps off the Empire State Building live longer than those who take the elevator down
- someone claiming that cigarettes improve their lung function
- putting a screen door on a submarine
- declaring a man can become a woman or a woman can become a man

But do you understand why these illogical declarations, like declaring a man can become a woman, have happened? It is because people believe that human law systems are the way reality works, made up rules determine right and wrong, and made up rules can be changed. Thus, if reality is determined by made up rules, then if we change the rules, we can make what was illegal legal and thus we can change reality.

This is what happens when we teach God's law functions like human law, we teach lies about God, lies about reality, lies about right and wrong, lies about judgment and justice. And people believe that when the government passes a law that marijuana is legal then it is now also healthy.

I recently read about a global study of 15-year-olds that tested their reading comprehension and found that 91 percent of them could not tell the difference between fact and opinion! https://www.oecd-ilibrary.org/docserver/a9b5930a-en.pdf?expires=1704112635&id=id&accname=guest&checksum=EFFF5DF3ED7066C7FAF93D58F06D0FC3

What happens when we substitute opinion for fact and truth? We end up doing irrational and destructive things like walking around with a mask on our face believing it somehow can stop the spread of a virus, or take an experimental injection with no evidence of long-term safety because the people in authority declared it is safe. Or we believe that justification is when God declares us righteous while we remain unrighteous, or a myriad of other fantastical things taught in Christianity that contradict objective reality and Scripture itself.

We must lead people to objective reality and the God of reality and we do that be rejecting the Romanized view of Christianity with its made up laws and satanic god who is the source of inflicted torture and death.

SUNDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 139:1-18, which will address the question brought up last week about being knit together in our mother's womb.

Let's read these verses, from the NIV and the REM and then consider their meaning:

Verses 1:4:

- LORD, you have searched me and you know me. You know when I sit and when I rise; you perceive my thoughts from afar. You discern my going out and my lying down; you are familiar with all my ways. Before a word is on my tongue you know it completely, O LORD. (Psalm 139:1-4 NIV84).
- Lord, you have examined me and you know everything about me. You know every action I take; from across the cosmos, you know every thought I think. You know whether I am working or resting; you know my heart motives — the way I operate. Before the words come out of my mouth you know exactly what I will say, O Lord. (Psalm 139:1-4 REM).

What is the theme of these verses? What truths are contained within? These verses are about God's foreknowledge, omniscience, ability to know all things. Some don't like the idea of God foreknowing our thoughts and choices, as if that restricts our liberty, that is because they confuse knowledge with causality.

Verses 5-6:

- You hem me in—behind and before; you have laid your hand upon me. Such knowledge is too wonderful for me, too lofty for me to attain. (Psalm 139:5-6 NIV84).
- You seek me to lead me — you surround me, guiding me and protecting me. The full knowledge of you is too immense for me; you are infinite, and I cannot comprehend it. (Psalm 139:5-6 REM).

Do you hear a difference in these translations?

Verses 7-12:

- Where can I go from your Spirit? Where can I flee from your presence? If I go up to the heavens, you are there; if I make my bed in the depths, you are there. If I rise on the wings of the dawn, if I settle on the far side of the sea, even there your hand will guide me, your right hand will hold me fast. If I say, "Surely the darkness will hide me and the light become night around me," even the darkness will not be dark to you; the night will shine like the day, for darkness is as light to you. (Psalm 139:7-12 NIV84).
- Where can I go and be away from your Spirit? You sustain all reality — where can I flee and be beyond your presence? If I go to heaven, your sustaining presence is there; if I sleep in the grave, your sustaining presence is there as well. If I rise with the beams of sunlight in the east, if I settle beyond the ocean waves in the west — even there your Hand would guide me, the One at your right hand would keep me safe. I could claim that darkness will hide me and the light around me turn to night, but my claim doesn't change reality and no darkness is impenetrable to you; for night becomes day in your presence and darkness becomes light. (Psalm 139:7-12 REM).

What is the theme of these verses? These verses again speak of the omniscience and omnipotence of God. The Remedy emphasizes the reality behind these truths, that God as Creator sustains all reality, thus it is not magic, or wishful thinking, but objective reality. And the Remedy emphasizes that the Right Hand of God is a symbolic representation of the Son of God, Jesus, the member of the Godhead who wields the power of God, through whom all things were made and who sustains all things and who is the one who carried out by deed and action the fulfillment of the plan of salvation, the one who keeps us safe.

Now we get into the verses that, in my opinion, have been misunderstood to teach something never intended and not found in the verses themselves.

Verses 13:

- For you created my inmost being; you knit me together in my mother's womb. (Psalm 139:13 NIV84)
- For you have redeemed my heart and mind; you covered me with grace from the moment I was conceived in my mother's womb. (Psalm 139:13 REM).

Do these say the same thing or do you hear very different meaning? Which is most accurate?

Before we get into the Hebrew words, think through the meaning—does God create sin, sinfulness, sickness, defects in His creation? Or when God creates does He create in perfection—does God create sinless beings without defects?

If we say God is creating us in our mother's wombs by using the same level of divine power and direct action that He did in Eden—then we have a real problem, for none of us chose to be born sinners, and if God is in fact the one who directly made us the way we are then we can rightly turn to Him and say, "How dare you call me to account for my sinfulness when you made me a sinner and you never gave me a choice not to be born a sinner."

In other words, to interpret this text to mean that God directly made each one of us by His divine action, is to make God the source of sin also our personal, individual sinfulness. This is a lie.

God created Adam and Eve directly and they came to life sinless and flawless. God, when He created them in sinlessness, endowed them with an ability to create beings in their own image, to make choices and those choices would develop and change them and when they had children their children would reflect aspects of them. Thus when Adam and Eve sinned, they passed along to their children what they possessed, a sinful nature, and the Psalms elsewhere tell us we are born in sin conceived in iniquity (Psalm 51:5).

Further the Bible tells us we are one human family, all branched out of the human family tree that descended from Adam. Thus we were all in Adam when Adam sinned, offspring of Adam, not new creations created by God. We only become new creations by God's divine power at conversion, when we are reborn. As Paul wrote to the Corinthians:

- Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; the old has gone, the new has come! (2 Corinthians 5:17 NIV84).

We are a new creation by rebirth, not by our first birth! We are new individuals descended from Adam by our first birth but that is part of the old creation, the creation damaged by sin. Our first birth is not the action of divine energy to create a new species, a new humanity, but is the outworking of God's gift of procreation given to Adam and Eve.

The way God used divine power, prerogative, action, initiative, and energy to create a new purified humanity was through the work of Jesus!

So, I cannot accept the idea that Psalm 139 means that God acts directly to create each one of us individually as new creations. Then what does the text mean? My paraphrase:

- For you have redeemed my heart and mind; you covered me with grace from the moment I was conceived in my mother's womb. (Psalm 139:13 REM).

This is the footnote in the Remedy Psalms explaining my paraphrase:

- The Hebrew word translated in many Bible versions as "formed" or "made" is קנה [qanah], and according to the New American Standard Hebrew-Aramaic and Greek Dictionaries is translated most commonly as "bought," "buy," "purchased," and also as "redeemed." The Hebrew word translated as "inmost being" is כליה [kilyah /kil·yaw/] and means "seat of emotions or affections," thus the author's translation of "heart and mind." The Hebrew word translated as "knit me together" according to the Enhanced Strong's Lexicon is סוּך, סכך, שׂכך [cakak, sakak /saw·kak/]… 23 occurrences; AV translates it as "cover" 15 times, "covering" twice, "defence" once, "defendest" once, "hedge in" once, "join together" once, "set" once, and "shut up" once. Contrary to popular translations, the context of this verse is not about physical embryological development, or God using power to physically create a new human life, but is about the plan of redemption. The Psalmist in Psalms 51:5 describes that he was "born in sin, conceived in iniquity" and here acknowledges that despite his sinful origins, God was already there acting to redeem him and cleanse him from sinfulness.

Verses 14-16:

- I praise you because I am fearfully and wonderfully made; your works are wonderful, I know that full well. My frame was not hidden from you when I was made in the secret place. When I was woven together in the depths of the earth, your eyes saw my unformed body. All the days ordained for me were written in your book before one of them came to be. (Psalm 139:14-16 NIV84).
- I praise you because you are awesome; wonderful and marvelous are all your works, and I know this very well. You know my entire being — how I was built from your secret code, constructed from the elements of the earth. You saw me before I was born; my entire life was recorded in your book of foreknowledge before one day came to be. (Psalm 139:14-16 REM).

What is the theme of these verses? It is again about God's sovereignty—His rulership through design law. He is the Creator and Sustainer of reality. He built reality and it runs on His protocols, including the law of liberty. Thus when Adam and Eve abused the privileges given them and produced new sinful beings in their image—God intervened to reverse this choice and to bring about a new creation, a recreation of holiness from the fallen sinful humanity. And God foreknows us before we are born, and the outcome is already written because God lives outside of time and is not confined to time. But because one of God's laws is the law of liberty, His foreknowledge in no way restricts our freedom to choose. Another way to say this, is that the only reason God knows what is in His book is because we chose for it to happen. God's foreknowledge doesn't put events in His book, our choices do.

Verses 17-18:

- How precious to me are your thoughts, O God! How vast is the sum of them! Were I to count them, they would outnumber the grains of sand. When I awake, I am still with you. (Psalm 139:17–18 NIV84).
- To me, your thoughts and purposes are the most precious, O God — the infinite source of all reality; if I could count them, they would outnumber all the grains of sand. No matter what I think or do, it bears witness to your foreknowledge. (Psalm 139:17-18 REM).

Does this answer the question that came up last week?

Read third paragraph,

- This wonderful truth about God knowing us intimately should not scare us but instead drive us into the arms of Jesus and what He has accomplished for us at the Cross. For by faith in Jesus, we have been given His righteousness, "the righteousness of God" Himself (Rom. 3:5, 21). (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 29).

What does this mean? Why are the authors encouraging us to run to the arms of Jesus? Would there be any objection or problem if instead we ran to the arms of the Father?

Why doesn't it say "drive us to the arms of the Father and what He has done for us through Jesus at the cross?" Didn't Jesus tell us that life eternal was intimacy with the Father, knowing God and Jesus? Didn't Jesus pray we would be one with the Father and Jesus? We, of course, are never wrong to run to Jesus—but when we run to Jesus does Jesus want us to know, realize, understand, experience, that truth that He brought us is all about the Father—if you have seen me you have seen the Father? Does Jesus want us to realize,

- For unto us a Child is born, Unto us a Son is given; And the government will be upon His shoulder. And His name will be called Wonderful, Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. (Isaiah 9:6 NKJV).

So, if some don't make this connection between Jesus and the Father, is it because they believe that Jesus must do something to the Father for us? That Jesus, as our High Priest, must plead to the Father His blood to pay for our sins and that it isn't safe to run directly to the Father?

But Jesus also said the following, telling His disciples He would speak plainly to them, no more parables, figures of speech, or metaphors, but tell them directly and specifically what it is like:

- "Though I have been speaking figuratively, a time is coming when I will no longer use this kind of language but will tell you plainly about my Father. In that day you will ask in my name. I am not saying that I will ask the Father on your behalf. No, the Father himself loves you because you have loved me and have believed that I came from God. (John 16:25-27 NIV84).

Jesus is saying that He will not pray the Father for us, because the Father Himself loves us—there is no need. In fact, God so loved the world that He sent His Son, and God was in the Son reconciling the world to Himself, not keeping a record of their sins against them.

When Jesus washed Judas' feet, who stood between God and Judas? Do you believe Jesus is God? Did someone have to plead with Jesus to be kind to Judas? Do we see the Father in that moment?

But there is someone who has worked to get in between us and God and who is that? It is Satan—Satan is the one who wants to stand between us and God, to intercept every ray of light coming from the throne of God. And Satan does this through a variety of lies:

- There is no God so people put up a mental barrier
- Through false gods and false religious beliefs
- Through sensualism, humanism, materialism
- But also through impersonating and angel of light, through standing in the place of Jesus and pretending to be Jesus, through impersonating our High Priest but changing the role and function of our true High Priest into one we will like more, into one that functions like we do, into one who practices the laws that are like our laws. Satan stands between us and God when we believe in a heavenly high priest who must plead to the Father his blood to pay our legal debt, who must propitiate the wrath of God.
- Through attacks on the Trinity, the idea that Jesus is a second order being, not fully equal to the Father, some offspring, or later created being like Satan, a created being

MONDAY

Read Psalm 40:1-3:

- I waited patiently for the LORD; he turned to me and heard my cry. He lifted me out of the slimy pit, out of the mud and mire; he set my feet on a rock and gave me a firm place to stand. He put a new song in my mouth, a hymn of praise to our God. Many will see and fear and put their trust in the LORD. (Psalm 40:1–3 NIV84).

What do you hear in this psalm? What is the message?

Does the Remedy version add any insights? Do you agree with this emphasis?

- With eager expectation I looked for the Lord: he drew near to me and heard me crying. I was drowning in despair, near death, but he pulled me out; he pulled me out of the miry abyss. He placed me on the solid Rock and gave me a new firm standing. He inspired me to sing a new song — praise to our God of love. May many see what God has done and be overwhelmed with admiration and trust the Lord completely. (Psalm 40:1-3 REM).

TUESDAY

Read Psalm 17:7-9:

- Show the wonder of your great love, you who save by your right hand those who take refuge in you from their foes. Keep me as the apple of your eye; hide me in the shadow of your wings from the wicked who assail me, from my mortal enemies who surround me. (Psalm 17:7–9 NIV84).

What is the meaning? What does it mean to be saved by God's right hand? Is this speaking of saving from the mortal enemies around us? If so, then did God not save Peter and Paul by His right hand? Was God's right hand weak when Stephen was stoned? Or is the Psalm primarily about eternal salvation and not temporal life?

From the Remedy:

- Pour out your wonderful love and kindness — your healing power to transform and restore to your ideal all those who seek you to deliver them from selfishness. Lord, you keep your eye on me — watch me closely, but hide me in the shadow of your wings from the selfish who seek to destroy me — from enemies all around who seek to kill me. (Psalm 17:7-9 REM).

Read Psalm 31:1-3:

- In you, O LORD, I have taken refuge; let me never be put to shame; deliver me in your righteousness. Turn your ear to me, come quickly to my rescue; be my rock of refuge, a strong fortress to save me. Since you are my rock and my fortress, for the sake of your name lead and guide me. (Psalm 31:1–3 NIV84).

What is the meaning? What kind of refuge? What is the relationship between shame and righteousness and how are we protected from shame?
Is this primarily temporal protection or spiritual?

- Lord, I come to you for healing: don't let guilt and shame destroy me; restore me to your perfect design. Listen to me — listen closely and heal me — heal me quickly; be my unfailing remedy, a healing sanctuary to renew me. Since you are my remedy and my sanctuary, reveal your character of love by recreating me in your image. (Psalm 31:1-3 REM).

WEDNESDAY

The lesson points out that in 1 Corinthians 10 Paul uses the experiences of Israel leaving Egypt, going through the Red Sea, eating manna as metaphors for the plan of salvation. The lesson states,

- All through the Old Testament, and even in the New, the deliverance from Egypt was seen as a symbol of God's power to save His people. Paul in these verses in 1 Corinthians does just that, seeing the whole true story as a metaphor, a symbol of salvation in Jesus Christ. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 32).

How do you see the true story of Israel's deliverance from Egypt as a metaphor for our deliverance from sin?

- Egypt represents this sinful godless world—all through Scripture Egypt represents godlessness, rebellion and rejection of God—"who is God that I should know Him" Pharaoh says.
- Pharaoh represents Satan, who rejects knowing God as a friend, rejects trusting God.

- The descendants of Israel are initially invited into Egypt but are then taken as slaves.
- Satan invites/tempts people into sinful living practices which will become habits and addictions that enslave them.
- Moses, a deliverer was born from among the people
- Jesus our deliverer was born from among humanity

- The people resisted and rejected Moses
- Humanity has resisted and rejected Jesus

- Moses confronts Pharaoh and secures the slaves freedom
- Jesus confronts Satan and secures our freedom from sin

- Moses leads the people out of bondage to the promised land
- Jesus leads us out of the bondage of sin to our heavenly promised land

- The people grumble along the way because they had to give up the comforts of Egypt
- We grumble along the way to salvation because we have to give up our comforts, our addictions, our sinful habits, our false beliefs that give us false security

- They walk through the Red Sea and metaphorically are baptized
- We go through the ceremony of water baptism to symbolize the true baptism of immersing our hearts and minds in the Holy Spirit to be reborn

- They drank water from the rock
- We drink living water of truth and love from the living Rock Jesus Christ

- They ate manna, heaven's bread
- We eat the living manna, the Word made flesh, by eating the words of truth that become building blocks of our understanding and beliefs.

- God approached them at Sinai to talk with them directly, with no other being in between, but they rejected that and asked for Moses to appoint intercessors, go-betweens, to talk to God and then talk to them
- God still seeks to talk to us directly, but we prefer to teach that we need a go-between an intercessor to plead to God in our behalf

- God wanted to take them directly into the promised land, but their distrust and rebellion caused them to wander in the wilderness for forty years
- God has wanted to take us to our heavenly home long before this, but because of our distrust, our refusal to accept the true message of God's character of love, His design law as the foundation of His government, and our insistence on presenting a Romanized version of god to the world, we have been wandering in the wilderness of this world and will continue to wander until we present the truth and all who are healable accept the truth and are won back to love and trust.

THURSDAY

The title is Help From the Sanctuary—what does this title mean to you?

Is there help from the sanctuary? What help? What sanctuary?

Read the first two paragraphs,

- The motif of spiritual and physical refuge and help notably appears in the context of the sanctuary. The sanctuary is a place of help, of safety, and of salvation. The sanctuary provides a shelter to the troubled. God defends the orphans and widows and gives strength to His people from His sanctuary. When "out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God will shine forth" (Ps. 50:2, NKJV), God's righteous judgments are proclaimed, and the Lord's blessing goes forth (Ps. 84:4, Ps. 128:5, Ps. 134:3).

  The refuge in the sanctuary surpasses the security provided by any other place in the world because God personally dwells in the sanctuary. The presence of God, not merely the temple as a firm building, provides safety. Likewise, being the mountain where the Lord dwells, Mount Zion surpasses other mountains though in itself it is a modest hill (Ps. 68:15, 16; Isa. 2:2). (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 33).

What do you think of this idea that our security is in the sanctuary? Do we mean the building that humans built or something else? Of course we mean the God who was represented as dwelling in that building

But what did that building represent?

What do you think these verses mean, in light of our sanctuary and safety?

- Tell him this is what the LORD Almighty says: ‘Here is the man whose name is the Branch, and he will branch out from his place and build the temple of the LORD. 13 It is he who will build the temple of the LORD, and he will be clothed with majesty and will sit and rule on his throne. And he will be a priest on his throne. And there will be harmony between the two.’ (Zechariah 6:12–13 NIV84).

- Jesus answered them, “Destroy this temple, and I will raise it again in three days.” (John 2:19 NIV84).

What sanctuary or temple is our refuge? Is it not referring to Jesus Himself who left heaven to build the temple, with Himself as the chief cornerstone and we receive Jesus via the Holy Spirit and become living stones built together into a house for the Lord?

The temple concept is a metaphor that is to point us to reality. Is our security in any of the metaphors of Scripture or only in God? Is our security in:

- The blood or in Jesus who shed His blood?
- The animal sacrifice or in Jesus the lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world?
- The temple sanctuary building or system or the God of the temple?
- In communion bread or Jesus whose body was broken for us?
- In law keeping or in having the Spirit taking the victory of Jesus writing God’s living law in our hearts and minds restoring us to unity with God?
- In the Bible or in Jesus? Jesus said to the religious leaders of His day that they search the Scriptures thinking that in them they will find eternal life, but the Scriptures teach of Jesus.

Where is our security? In Jesus and all these things God has given to us, the Scriptures, the object lessons, parables, metaphors, ceremonies, feast days, all of it is intended to help us understand and experience reality—to know God and Jesus Christ—this is our security, the reality of knowing God as our friend and thereby being transformed to become like Abraham and Moses God’s friend.

Singing the Lord's Song in a Strange Land

SABBATH

The memory verse for this week's lesson is Psalm 137:4, however the entire Psalm is about the captivity in Babylon and I thought it might be interesting to compare this nine verse psalm from the NIV and the REM, and as we do so to allow you to consider the difference in meaning that comes across—and consider not only the historical captivity of the ancient Israelites, but the object lesson meaning of prophetic captivity of God's people in Babylon as well.

My view of accurate Bible translation is primarily about bringing the meaning across, not the exact word for word translation across, especially if the new language word means something different than the old language word intended. And to bring across the most accurate meaning one needs to understand the truth about God's character, His design law, the nature of sin, God's solution for the sin problem—and if when translating one's understanding of those elements is tainted by the imperial, imposed, human law lie then the translation of the Bible, while being linguistically appropriate, will almost always be slanted to bring legal ideas into the text that are not reality-based and miss the larger reality of the plan of salvation.

So, consider these two versions:

- By the rivers of Babylon we sat and wept when we remembered Zion. (Psalm 137:1 NIV84).
- By the rivers of Babylon, as captives in this selfish world, we wept when we remembered Zion—God's fortress of spiritual health and wellness. (Psalm 137:1 REM).

The Remedy version expands the meaning from merely the literal historical people who were held captive in the historical kingdom of Babylon, to include the spiritual object lesson that both ancient Israel and Babylon represent—God's people enslaved by Satan's kingdom of fear and selfishness that operates upon imposed human law, a legal justice system of inflicted penalties, which stands in contrast to God's kingdom which as Jesus said is within you—the kingdom of spiritual health and wellness. Thus, the Remedy immediately draws the mind to consider the deeper lessons that the historical events in the OT were recorded to teach us.

What do you believe is the primary purpose of Scripture—what is the intention of the Holy Spirit in having the writers record what is written in the Bible? Is the Bible merely and only a history book, or is the purpose of the recorded history to reveal through the truth about our existence, the sin problem, and God's solution for it, the plan of salvation?

- There on the poplars we hung our harps, for there our captors asked us for songs, our tormentors demanded songs of joy; they said, "Sing us one of the songs of Zion!" How can we sing the songs of the LORD while in a foreign land? (Psalm 137:2-4 NIV84).
- There on the willows we hung our harps while our captors told us to sing: they demanded songs of happiness and joy; they said, "Sing us a song of health about Zion!" How can our lives be songs revealing God's character of love while our hearts are held captive to this selfish world? (Psalm 137:2-4 REM).

The Remedy again expands the meaning beyond the historical people in the land of Babylon to the larger meaning, that the song is not merely a tune that is sung from the mouth, but the song is the melody of our lives, that our lives are to be songs of truth and love that harmonize with God's kingdom of truth and love.

But how can our lives be songs that resonates truth and love if our hearts are held captive to this selfish world? Which introduces the reality, that while we are in the world, we are not to be of the world. And even if we end up imprisoned by the powers of this world, like Jesus and so many of His faithful followers throughout history, the evil powers of this world cannot imprison our hearts and minds without our consent. The only way we can have lives that are songs of truth and love to God is by having our hearts circumcised by the Holy Spirit, hearts set free from the captivity to the fear and selfishness of this world.

Do you agree with my understanding of the true meaning of what the psalm is intended to lead us to understand?

- If I forget you, O Jerusalem, may my right hand forget its skill. May my tongue cling to the roof of my mouth if I do not remember you, if I do not consider Jerusalem my highest joy. (Psalm 137:5-6 NIV84).
- If I forget the truth about you, O Jerusalem—the center of God's healing plan—may I write no more music. May I sing no more songs, if they are not about you; if they do not teach God's healing plan centered in you, O Jerusalem, as my highest joy. (Psalm 137:5-6 REM).

What do you hear here? That the psalmist would rather be silent that use his talent to misrepresent God! This is our prayer, we at Come and Reason Ministries pray that we will only say of God what is right, that our classes, presentations, publications, programs will constantly improve and refine our ability to give ever more clear presentations about God, to advance and grow in truth, to eliminate any remnants of misunderstanding and falsehood that we have believed or taught. We would rather be silent than to teach things about God that are not true.

And now the final three verses, verses that have been very difficult for people to understand and explain, verses that confound people, and even those who say we should take the Bible just as it reads and apply it to our lives, don't want to do that with these verses—why? Because the way these verses are rendered doesn't fit with what we understand from Jesus, and that is because I believe the common translation misunderstands the true meaning that was intended…but let's compare the two versions.

- Remember, O LORD, what the Edomites did on the day Jerusalem fell. "Tear it down," they cried, "tear it down to its foundations!" O Daughter of Babylon, doomed to destruction, happy is he who repays you for what you have done to us—he who seizes your infants and dashes them against the rocks. (Psalm 137:7-9 NIV84).

Do you think that this is true as it reads? Do you think that one can find true, genuine, godly happiness by killing the babies of one's enemies? In this world, the psalm could link a truth with killing of enemies babies—such as increased safety and reduced risk of future conflict if you wipe out all your enemies and kill their babies—but that isn't the same thing has happiness, or is taking vengeance oneself on one's enemies, which the Bible tells us not to do. So, on its face this version isn't translated in a way that, if taken as it reads, communicates truth.

Some scholars have then understood this to be a Psalm that rather then communicating the truth of how reality works, the true way to find happiness, it instead communicates the struggles of the psalmist, his anger, temptations, carnal desires for vengeance and then models going to God in prayer with such angry motives where in conversation with God they are worked out. This principle of going to God with our anger, ungodly desires and talking with God for heart change is absolutely a healthy action to take, yet if that was the intent of this psalm, I would expect a few more verses, like we see in other psalms where the psalmist goes from the despair, discouragement, anger, to hope and trust in God for the conclusion. This psalm doesn't do that, so while I think it is right to go to God with one's frustrations, anger, desire for vengeance and work it out with God, I do not think this psalm was written to model that, because I think it is a poetic description, inspired by the Holy Spirit of what brings true happiness in the plan of salvation. This is how I rendered it:

- Remember, O Lord, what the Edomites did the day Jerusalem—your spiritual treatment center—fell? They shouted, "Tear it down, tear it down to the ground!" O people of Babylon, who cling to selfishness, you are doomed to destruction! Happy are those who are finished with you, just as you deserve; who have weaned themselves from you. Happy are they who take your children to fall upon the Rock and be broken. (Psalm 137:7-9 REM).

Do you hear a difference between these two versions? Can you see two different laws being applied—the imposed law in the NIV and Design law in the REM? And which is most consistent with the plan of salvation? What is it that God is trying to do to sinners—destroy them or turn them from enemies into friends by bringing them to Jesus the Rock of our Salvation and have us fall upon Him and have our fear, selfishness, guilt, shame, and sinfulness broken up so we can be reborn in righteousness? And what brings genuine happiness? Isn't it when we turn our enemies into our friends by bringing them to Jesus and have them experience salvation and heart transformation?

Do you think the Remedy paraphrase has misrepresents the Scripture or brings a more accurate understanding, making the true meaning clearer?

Read first paragraph,

- We do not need to get deep into the book of Psalms in order to discover that the Psalms are uttered in an imperfect world, one of sin, evil, suffering, and death. The stable creation run by the Sovereign Lord and His righteous laws is constantly threatened by evil. As sin corrupts the world more and more, the earth has increasingly become "a strange land" to God's people. This reality creates a problem for the psalmist: How does one live a life of faith in a strange land? (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 36).

What do you think of this paragraph?

What law lens do you hear "righteous laws" through?

Do we recognize the strangeness that sin has brought into the world, or do we see the sin, Satan's methods, Satan's structure, as normal and think God's ways are strange?

- "What is this babbler trying to say?" Others remarked, "He seems to be advocating foreign gods." They said this because Paul was preaching the good news about Jesus and the resurrection. Then they took him and brought him to a meeting of the Areopagus, where they said to him, "May we know what this new teaching is that you are presenting? You are bringing some strange ideas to our ears, and we want to know what they mean." (Acts 17:18-20 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Why was the truth Paul presented in Athens considered strange to the people there? Because they had accepted false gods, with worldly methods, and Paul was presenting the truth about the Creator.

What about today? If we present the truth about God as Creator, that His laws are design laws, the protocols reality operate upon, that God's laws are not the type of laws sinful humans make up, rules that require legal oversight and enforcement, do people complain that our view is strange, that it doesn't make sense to them? Why is it strange to so many people? Because the lies about God's law, God's government, and God's character have accepted and viewed as normal or true, thus when we present the truth the truth is not known, it seems strange—and what do people often do with strange or unknown ideas—feel threatened and resist or fight against them.

This is what the Bible calls stiff-necked, an unwillingness to turn the mind, consider other possibilities, to learn, to examine the evidence, to follow the truth. It is the opposite of obedience—Biblical obedience is not about rule-keeping, it literally means a humble willingness to listen, be instructed with truth and follow the truth applying it to one's life. But, when one accepts the imposed law lie then obedience becomes rule-keeping and righteousness becomes misrepresented as a stiff-necked resistance to advancing truth—to clinging to the traditions, or in Adventism claims of standing by the old landmarks which shuts out advancing truth—consider this historical quote from one of the founders of the Adventist church after 1888, where the official leadership rejected the truth about God's design law and chose Romanism, the lie that God's law is imposed:

- In Minneapolis God gave precious gems of truth to His people in new settings. This light from heaven by some was rejected with all the stubbornness the Jews manifested in rejecting Christ, and there was much talk about standing by the old landmarks. But there was evidence they knew not what the old landmarks were. There was evidence and there was reasoning from the word that commended itself to the conscience; but the minds of men were fixed, sealed against the entrance of light, because they had decided it was a dangerous error removing the "old landmarks" when it was not moving a peg of the old landmarks, but they had perverted ideas of what constituted the old landmarks. (Counsels to Writers 30, emphasis mine).

The reality is that we are in a land that is enemy territory, all the kingdoms of the world are Satan's, they all run on made-up rules with judicial oversight and inflicted punishments—the laws that creatures make. Jesus said His kingdom was not of this world, it does not operate like these earthly governments. Yet, the church has become Romanized, infected with the lie that God's law is like human law, made up rules requiring God to use His power to inflict punishment for sin. Thus, rather than realizing the world is a strange place, they think the gospel is strange, the truth that God does not have to use power to inflict punishment for sin is strange. They don't know what to do with passages like:

- Let the wicked forsake his way and the evil man his thoughts. Let him turn to the LORD, and he will have mercy on him, and to our God, for he will freely pardon. "For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways declares the LORD. "As the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways and my thoughts than your thoughts. (Isaiah 55:7–9 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Freely pardon? This doesn't make sense, to pardon people freely, without a price being paid, without a penalty being inflicted, without someone taking the punishment is strange. Freely pardoning doesn't make sense to those who believe God's government functions like human governments.

But when we return to design law, we realize that God's pardon does not reverse the damage of sin, to reverse the damage of sin requires divine intervention in the heart and mind of the sinner to recreate them in righteousness and that requires they trust God and open their heart to Him.

So, God pardons everyone freely, but only those who trust God and receive His indwelling Spirit are reborn, healed, renewed, recreated, receive the mind of Christ, have the living law of God written into their heart and mind, become friends of God, have fear, selfishness, and distrust removed from their being and are reconciled, restored to at-one-ment with God. All those who reject the truth, who cling to the lies and distrust God will die from their sin-sickness, but God is still forgiving toward them, because that is who God is. Just like a doctor who forgives his patient who lied and didn't take the medicine, but despite the doctor's forgiveness, the patient still dies.

But this free pardon doesn't make sense if one believes God's law is like human law, made up rules, because our laws require external enforcement. And thus we have many church leaders, with sincere hearts, functioning like Saul of Tarsus, persecuting the followers of Christ who are advancing in the truth through various means of censure, removal from office, disfellowship, deplatforming, slander, labeling them as heretical and so forth. We pray for these sincere Sauls of our day that they may have a Damascus road experience and become powerful agents for the true gospel just like Paul became.

The second paragraph says,

- As we already have seen, the psalmists acknowledge God's sovereign rule and power, as well as His righteous judgments. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 36).

What do you understand God's righteous judgments to be? What law lens do you hear judgments through?

Do you think human law and think judicial findings with the infliction of just punishments, or do you think Design law and think diagnosis of what is wrong and the reality-based judgment of what is the best therapeutic intervention to advance the plan of salvation—the plan of healing?

Consider this historical quote from Patriarchs and Prophets what type of judgment is described here, what law lens is used in this description?

- "How great is the long - suffering of God toward the wicked! The idolatrous Philistines and backsliding Israel had alike enjoyed the gifts of His providence. Ten thousand unnoticed mercies were silently falling in the pathway of ungrateful, rebellious men. Every blessing spoke to them of the Giver, but they were indifferent to His love. The forbearance of God was very great toward the children of men; but when they stubbornly persisted in their impenitence, He removed from them His protecting hand. They refused to listen to the voice of God in His created works, and in the warnings, counsels, and reproofs of His word, and thus He was forced to speak to them through judgments." (Patriarchs and Prophets 587).

What type of judgment is being described? What law in operation? Why does God intervene like this? Is it judicial or is it remedial, healing, discipline, redemptive, teaching by experience how reality works, and in OT times God working to protect the branch of the human family tree through whom Jesus will be born?

Read the question from the bottom of THURSDAY's lesson:

- How does the promise of God's judgment upon the world, and upon all its evil, give you comfort when so much evil now goes unpunished? (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 41).

What law lens is this question presenting? Is this question even true? Do the unrepentant ever get away with evil? Why or why not?

What happens in the heart, mind, character, soul of a person who sins? Every choice to sin, whether in heart, mind, or deed, damages the person, perverts the mind and soul of the sinner, hardens the heart, sears the conscience, corrupts the character, incites fear, guilt, shame, and if the person doesn't repent and experience God's healing power in their lives, then their sin eventually sears the conscience and destroys the faculties that are sensitive to the Spirit of God, to truth and love.

The idea that sin goes unpunished is an idea that presents Satan's lie from the beginning, that sin doesn't harm, but God harms you for it by inflicting punishment—which leads people to solve the false-problem that we are in legal trouble with a punishing god by telling more lies, like god requires appeasement, assuaging of His wrath, a legal penalty to be paid, and we must have someone interceded with this god to protect us, hide us, erase our records of sin so this god won't punish us.

These lies undermine love and trust and prevent hearts and minds from being healed, from being restored to unity or at-one-ment with God. It may lead people to cognitive conversion, the legal conversion of claiming legal justification, but it does not lead to spiritual renewal, the new covenant where the living law of God is written upon the heart and the character of Christ is reproduced within.

SUNDAY

Read the second paragraph,

- The problem of evil in the Psalms is primarily theological; it inevitably concerns questions about God. Thus, the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple is seen principally as a divine scandal because it provided an opportunity for the heathen to blaspheme God. God's inheritance (the people of Israel) is the sign of His divine election and covenant (Deut. 4:32-38; Deut. 32:8, 9) that will never fail. The concept of God's inheritance also contains an end-time dimension, as one day all nations will become God's inheritance and will serve Him. The notion that the nations invaded God's inheritance threatens these divine promises. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 37).

What do you think? The problem of evil is primarily theological—it concerns questions about God is well said, Satan lies about God to undermine our trust in God. So, what are the questions that have arisen and what are the answers?

What are the questions that need answering as you understand them?

The lesson makes a suggestion and a suggested answer in the fourth paragraph,

- However, more important than the restoration of Israel's fortunes is the defense of God's character in the world (Ps. 79:9). If the evil actions of the nations go unpunished, it will appear that God has lost His power (Ps. 74:18-23, Ps. 83:16-18, Ps. 106:47). Only when God saves His people will His name be justified and uplifted. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 37).

The lesson is absolutely right to focus our attention on God's character, but what character does the lesson suggest God has, and is presenting God as a punishing god, who will inflict punishment, as the lesson suggest, defending God's true character or misrepresenting God and supporting Satan's charges against God?

Here is a quote from the book The Desire of Ages that details one of the charges of Satan:

- In the opening of the great controversy, Satan had declared that the law of God could not be obeyed, that justice was inconsistent with mercy, and that, should the law be broken, it would be impossible for the sinner to be pardoned. Every sin must meet its punishment, urged Satan; and if God should remit the punishment of sin, He would not be a God of truth and justice. (The Desire of Ages 761, emphasis mine).

Hmmm….if we present God as a powerful being who uses power to inflict punishment for sin are we defending the character of God or are we advancing Satan's rebellion by perpetuating his lies about God?

Consider these historical quotes, which document what the Adventist Reformers wanted the church to teach, but which got rejected in 1888 and instead the institutional church has embraced and still is teaching the imposed Roman view of law with its imperial punishing false god:

- We are not to regard God as waiting to punish the sinner for his sin. The sinner brings the punishment upon himself. His own actions start a train of circumstances that bring the sure result. Every act of transgression reacts upon the sinner, works in him a change of character, and makes it more easy for him to transgress again. By choosing to sin, men separate themselves from God, cut themselves off from the channel of blessing, and the sure result is ruin and death. (Selected Messages vol. 1, p 235, emphasis mine)

- The Jews had forged their own fetters; they had filled for themselves the cup of vengeance. In the utter destruction that befell them as a nation, and in all the woes that followed them in their dispersion, they were but reaping the harvest which their own hands had sown. Says the prophet: "O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself;" "for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity." Hosea 13:9; 14:1. Their sufferings are often represented as a punishment visited upon them by the direct decree of God. It is thus that the great deceiver seeks to conceal his own work. By stubborn rejection of divine love and mercy, the Jews had caused the protection of God to be withdrawn from them, and Satan was permitted to rule them according to his will. The horrible cruelties enacted in the destruction of Jerusalem are a demonstration of Satan's vindictive power over those who yield to his control. (The Great Controversy 35, emphasis mine).

- From the beginning it has been Satan's studied plan to cause men to forget God, that he might secure them to himself. Hence he has sought to misrepresent the character of God, to lead men to cherish a false conception of Him. The Creator has been presented to their minds as > clothed with the attributes of the prince of evil himself,--as arbitrary, severe, and unforgiving,--that He might be feared, shunned, and even hated by men. Satan hoped to so confuse the minds of those whom he had deceived that they would put God out of their knowledge. Then he would obliterate the divine image in man and impress his own likeness upon the soul; he would imbue men with his own spirit and make them captives according to his will. (Testimonies volume 5, p 738, emphasis mine)

And how does Satan do this? By getting us to accept the lie that God's law function like human law. When we do this, we always teach that God is required by law to use His power to inflict death as punishment for sin. We deny the plain teachings of Scripture that death comes from sin when it is full grown James 1:15, or as the wages of sin (Romans 6:28), or that death is Satan's power (Hebrews 2:14), or that Jesus destroyed death (2 Tim 1:10), or that God did not use power to execute Jesus on the cross. This one single lie about law causes the clearest evidences of Scripture to be twisted, denied, and distorted.

And thus the quarterly rightly teaches that God's character is under assault and God's character must be revealed in truth, but then sadly turns around and presents Satan's lies about God to misrepresent God's character as punishing.

When one believes God's law functions like human law, then the issue becomes one of power, which god is most powerful, because that god can overthrow all the others and enforce his ways through punishment—but this was never the question, the devils believe in God's power and they tremble in fear. The question was over God's trustworthiness, can we trust the one with the power to not to use His power to coerce, force, compel, and inflict punishment, for all such use of power destroys love and individuality and creates either rebels, or slaves, mindless drones doing what the master says without question.

Read the bottom green section,

- "The honor of God, the honor of Christ, is involved in the perfection of the character of His people."—Ellen G. White, The Desire of Ages, p. 671. How do you understand this important truth and what it should mean in your own Christian life? (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 37).

How is God honored? How does God get His character restored into people? Can character be created by God? Can God use power to force people to love Him, to trust Him, to be loyal in heart to Him, to actually be His friends?

How does God get what He wants, His character restored into us?

- Not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit,' says the LORD Almighty. (Zechariah 4:6 NIV84).

And how does the Spirit work? Truth and love—truth presented in love while leaving us free to choose. It is our choice to respond to truth and love and then when we choose yes, we receive divine power to succeed and thus our characters are transformed by a trusting/faith connection with God!

It is by beholding we are changed, the design law of worship—but when we replace the truth of God as Creator, with a Roman god who makes up laws and uses power to inflict punishment, we become like that false god and do not glorify the Creator, but the enemy, just like so many religious people through history who have used power over others to punish heretics.

MONDAY

The lesson asks us to read Psalm 41:1-3:

- Blessed is he who has regard for the weak; the LORD delivers him in times of trouble. The LORD will protect him and preserve his life; he will bless him in the land and not surrender him to the desire of his foes. The LORD will sustain him on his sickbed and restore him from his bed of illness. (Psalm 41:1-3 NIV84).

What does this text mean?

From what trouble does the Lord deliver these righteous people? Is this a promise to deliver from earthly enemies, disease, and death?

Many Jews went into the gas chambers in Nazi Germany claiming promises like this one—and what happened? And in the aftermath of the Holocaust, many Jews stopped believing in God because of promises like this when God didn't deliver from their enemies.

What about Christians, does God protect all Christians who are faithful and loyal to Him from earthly enemies and disease and death?

Then what does this mean? Is it just a psalm of wishful thinking? A psalm of what God can do, but not something we can have faith in?

Or is it about the central theme of Scripture?

What is the central theme of Scripture? Is the Bible narrative about earthly dominance and earthly delivery, or is it about deliverance from sin and the restoration of righteousness?

Then could the psalm, inspired by the Holy Spirit, be about something larger than earthly deliverance?

Here is how I paraphrased it:

- Happy and spiritually-healthy are those who care for the helpless; in the time of trouble, the Lord will deliver them. The Lord will preserve their individuality and give them eternal life; they will live and be happy upon the earth. The Lord will not give them up to die from selfishness — their enemy. He will provide remedy to their sin-sickness and restore them back to his perfect design. (Psalm 41:1-3 REM).

- Did Stephen experience happiness and spiritual health?
- Did Stephen get delivered from his time of trouble—what law lens and what do we understand his true time of trouble to be? Was his time of trouble merely physical persecution, or was his real battle the temptation to hate his persecutors, the fear of death, and any temptation to retaliate with earthly means against his enemies, to curse them, a desire for vengeance upon them?
- Did Stephen, by being delivered from fear, selfishness, evil retaliation, with a heart of love that forgave those who stoned him, have his individuality preserved and will he receive eternal life?
- Will Stephen live happily upon the earth—the earth made new?
- Will Stephen be given up to die of selfishness and decay in an eternal grave?
- Will Stephen benefit from the Remedy Jesus procured and be restored to God's perfect design?

Do you think the Psalm could really mean this larger view?

TUESDAY

Read Psalm 42:1-3

- As the deer pants for streams of water, so my soul pants for you, O God. My soul thirsts for God, for the living God. When can I go and meet with God? My tears have been my food day and night, while men say to me all day long, "Where is your God?" (Psalm 42:1-3 NIV84).

Read third paragraph,

- It is remarkable that the psalmists resolve not to keep silent in the face of God's silence. The psalmists unswervingly believe in prayer because prayer is directed to the living and gracious God. God is still there, even when He is apparently absent. He is still the same God who heard them in the past, and so, they are confident that He hears them now. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 39).

What do you think of God keeping silent? Does God sometimes keep silent? What would be the reason for this? Are there times when God is trying to communicate to us but something on our end prevents us from hearing Him and so it seems to us He is keeping silent? What kinds of things interfere with our ability to hear God?

- Mind altering substances
- Entertainments
- Busyness
- Anger, frustration, powerful feelings
- Denial, fear of hearing what God wants to tell us
- Not taking time to listen, not even considering God is trying to talk to us
- Not believing in God, or not believing God is good

But what about when people are seeking God and it seems like He is silent, what might that mean?

Could God keep silent because God has already provided the answer, the evidence, the direction, the truth but we didn't like it and are petitioning for a different answer?

Could God keep silent because in some way the struggle we are in is part of our growth, our journey, our development?

WEDNESDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 77 and notes that the psalm begins with a plea to God for help, but notes "remembering God appears to intensify his anguish" and asks "How can remembering God produce such strong feelings of distress?" And then notes the psalmist asks a serious of troubling questions.

Let's compare Psalm 77:1-9 from the NIV and the REM:

And you will note it really does depend on what law lens one sees the Bible through, because that determines how we diagnose the problem, and then understand the struggle or problem to be.

- I cried out to God for help; I cried out to God to hear me. When I was in distress, I sought the Lord; at night I stretched out untiring hands and my soul refused to be comforted. (Psalm 77:1-2 NIV84)
- I cry out to God — Help me, please help me! I cry out to God — O hear my plea! When I was in trouble, overwhelmed and afraid, I ran to the Lord; all night I prayed with my hands reaching out toward heaven, but my heart resisted his comfort. (Psalm 77:1-2 REM)

- I remembered you, O God, and I groaned; I mused, and my spirit grew faint. You kept my eyes from closing; I was too troubled to speak. (Psalm 77:3-4 NIV84).
- I thought of you—your methods of love and truth—and I groaned; I brooded, clinging to my selfish desires, and I became even more overwhelmed. You opened my eyes to my true condition; it was so upsetting I couldn't talk about it. (Psalm 77:3-4 REM)

- I thought about the former days, the years of long ago; I remembered my songs in the night. My heart mused and my spirit inquired: “Will the Lord reject forever? Will he never show his favor again? Has his unfailing love vanished forever? Has his promise failed for all time? Has God forgotten to be merciful? Has he in anger withheld his compassion?” (Psalm 77:5–9 NIV84).
- My thoughts went back to better times, to years long ago; at night I remembered my songs from the past. My heart searched deeply; my mind thought intensely about the differences. "Will the Lord let me go my own way forever? Will he never be pleased with my choices again? Has his perfect love disappeared from my heart completely? Has his promise to heal me been permanently hindered? Has God forgotten his merciful plan? Has he given up on me and withheld his remedy?" (Psalm 77:5-9 REM).

Do you see a difference? Which is more consistent with the central theme of Scripture?

Now let’s look at verse 10:

- Then I thought, “To this I will appeal: the years of the right hand of the Most High.” (Psalm 77:10 NIV84)
- It sickens me to think that I could obstruct the plan of the Creator God to heal me. (Psalm 77:10 REM)

Do these sound even close or similar? What is going on?

Consider these translations:

- And I said, “This is my fate; the Most High has turned his hand against me.” (Psalm 77:10 NLT).

Does God ever turn against us? Doesn’t Paul write:

- If God is for us, who can be against us? He who did not spare his own Son, but gave him up for us all—how will he not also, along with him, graciously give us all things? (Romans 8:31-32).

Is God truly against us, or is God for us? So perhaps the NLT isn’t the best translation.

- And I say, “It is my grief that the right hand of the Most High has changed.” (Psalm 77:10 NRSV)

Does God change, or is God the same yesterday, today, and forever (Hebrews 13:8)? So maybe this isn’t the best translation. And are you noticing how different these various translations are?

- Then I said, “What hurts me most is this—that God is no longer powerful.”[t] (Psalm 77:10 GNT) (footnote: t “Verse 10 in Hebrew is unclear”).

Is it true that God is no longer powerful? But the footnote is quite helpful, it tells us the Hebrew is unclear. People are making their best educated guess as to what it means and they struggle because they really don't understand design law.

So my paraphrase, what is actually happening in the salvation process? Where is the tension between God's power and our healing? Isn't always with our willingness to cooperate with God or not? So, I paraphrase it as:

- It sickens me to think that I could obstruct the plan of the Creator God to heal me. (Psalm 77:10 REM)

THURSDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 73 which teaches the foolishness of looking at the apparent blessings of the godless as evidence of success. Let's read from the Remedy:

> 1We know that God is good to the upright — > to those who are pure in heart.
> 2But I almost tripped myself up;
> I nearly slipped away from the truth:
> 3I began to envy the arrogant
> when I saw how the selfish prospered in this world.
> 4They don't suffer with physical disabilities;
> their bodies are strong and healthy.
> 5They are privileged — not burdened with the problems of ordinary people;
> they do not have the daily struggles that others endure.
> 6Their pride and arrogance are flaunted like a necklace;
> violence and exploitation cover them.
> 7They go about draped in extravagant riches, > intoxicating themselves with whatever their selfish hearts can imagine.
> 8They belittle others and speak harmful words designed to injure;
> they exalt themselves, lording over others and threatening oppression.
> 9They claim to speak for heaven, > and with their decrees they seek to rule the earth.
> 10People turn to them > and sadly, have the water of life drained away from them.
> 11These haughty ones say, "God will not know.
> The Most High will not find out."
> 12Look at what the selfish are like:
> concerned only with self, they get richer and richer.
> 13I wondered, "Has my pure living been for nothing?
> Did I keep myself innocent for no reason?
> 14All day long I am touched by problems and temptation;

every day is a struggle."
15If I had shared these ideas as truths with others,
I would have betrayed all who are loyal to you.
16When I tried to understand why the selfish seem to prosper, it made no sense to me
17until I studied the lessons revealed in the holy places of God:
then I understood their inevitable end.
18Truly you gave them the freedom to slip around your design for life;
you surrender them to their own terminal condition.
19Their desolation is swift — they are consumed completely by the terrors of unremedied selfishness.
20Selfish success is like a dream when one awakes:
When the Creator restores earth to his design of love, all will realize that selfish prosperity is mere fantasy.
21When my heart was sour, discontented and torn up inside,
22I was ignorant and didn't understand reality at all;
I must have seemed like a dumb animal to you.
23Nevertheless, I have always stayed close to you, and you hold my hand as I journey through life.
24With your wise counsel, you lead me in the way of life to the complete restoration of your glory within me.
25There is nothing in all the heavens or anything on earth that I desire besides you.
26My mind and body may grow weak, but God is my remedy —
my source of eternal life.
27Those who separate from you will perish; all who choose selfishness betray you and your kingdom of love —
they will be severed from life and cease to exist.
28But as for me, being united with God is my greatest delight — to find healing and restoration with my Creator, and to proclaim all that you have done!

2024 Q1 Psalms Lesson 6
I Will Arise

by Tim Jennings

SUNDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalms 18, let's compare the first 15 verses from the NIV to the REM version, keeping in mind the differences and what do you think of those differences.

- I love you, O LORD, my strength. The LORD is my rock, my fortress and my deliverer; my God is my rock, in whom I take refuge. He is my shield and the horn of my salvation, my stronghold. (Psalm 18:1-2 NIV84)
- I love you, O Lord; you are my strength. The Lord unites my will with his, making my resolve rock-solid: he makes me strong and heals my brokenness. God is my solid foundation; I trust him completely. He cleanses my mind, protecting me from lies; he is the source of my healing—my Savior. (Psalm 18:1-2 REM)

If you think about the reality of the sin problem and God's interventions to solve it and save you and me—what is God doing? Is God merely creating fortresses around us, places we can hide from external assault, or have many of God's faithful been physically assaulted, imprisoned, tortured and killed but their hearts and minds were fortresses; so God is healing us, recreating us, establishing us as spiritual fortresses built upon love and trust in Him so that we stand firm in face of the assaults of this world—isn't that the reality? Isn't that the true meaning of the psalm presented through various images?

- I call to the LORD, who is worthy of praise, and I am saved from my enemies. The cords of death entangled me; the torrents of destruction overwhelmed me. The cords of the grave coiled around me; the snares of death confronted me. In my distress I called to the LORD; I cried to my God for help. From his temple he heard my voice; my cry came before him, into his ears. (Psalm 18:3-6 NIV84).
- I call out to the Lord—the source of goodness, love and truth—and he saves me from my enemies. The tendrils of death creep through me; the undertow of selfishness fills me with fear. The grave has hold on me and pulls me down; the chains of death have captured me. In my terminal state I call out to the Lord; I cry out to my God for healing. He hears me from where he dwells; he hears my call for help. (Psalm 18:3-6 REM)

What is the real problem that we sinners face—is it external enemies that can kill our bodies, or is it the sin condition, being dead in trespass and sin, having the infection of fear and selfishness that without remedy results in an eternal death? So, what is the Holy Spirit desiring for us to truly understand, that God is powerful and can deliver from an earthly enemy, or that God is good, a being of infinite power but one whose character is love and who is not the source of death but of life and will heal us if we trust Him?

- The earth trembled and quaked, and the foundations of the mountains shook; they trembled because he was angry. Smoke rose from his nostrils; consuming fire came from his mouth, burning coals blazed out of it. (Psalm 18:7-8 NIV84)
- The earthly systems shake and shudder, the foundations of the pagan high places quiver; they tremble, because God's passion to heal is fired up. The creative breath of life blew from his nostrils like smoke; the fire of truth came from his mouth, the burning flames of infinite love blazed forth from him. (Psalm 18:7-8 REM)

Is the message of Scripture focused only on God's physical power? Again the devil's know that God is powerful and it scares them. If people know God is powerful, but believe His law is like human law and believe God, in so called justice, must use His infinite power to inflict punishment for sin, will that solve the sin problem, will that result in sinners being won to trust and becoming loyal friends of God? No! The message of Scripture of course informs us that God is Creator and God is powerful—but that was never in question. Satan didn't question whether God was powerful in heaven—the question that causes rebellion and distrust of God is over whether we can trust God with the power and if we teach His law is like ours, then we always teach that God is not trustworthy, that God is the source of pain, suffering, and death inflicted as punishment for sin, and then teach theologies that function to hide us or protect us from God—think of all such theologies that have the action of hiding or protecting us from God, why? Because those who believe those theologies believe something about God that scares them and that God in some way will harm them if something isn't done to Him.

So the message of Scripture is that God's powers that shake the earth up are the powers of truth and love that overthrow the carnal powers of this world, overthrow lies, fear, and selfishness.

- He parted the heavens and came down; dark clouds were under his feet. He mounted the cherubim and flew; he soared on the wings of the wind. He made darkness his covering, his canopy around him—the dark rain clouds of the sky. (Psalm 18:9-11 NIV84).
- He stepped down to earth from his heavenly dwelling place, he entered into darkness, establishing himself in human form. He came, swiftly flying on the wings of angels; he appeared by the power of the Spirit. Making humanity his tabernacle, he veiled his glory in darkness surrounded by amniotic fluid—a dark cloud of water. (Psalm 18:9-11 REM)

Do you see a difference? What do you think is the central theme of the Bible? What is the Holy Spirit inspiring the writers to teach about? When God comes down from heaven, does He come down to destroy or to save? I think this is a Messianic Psalm describing the plan of salvation.

- Out of the brightness of his presence clouds advanced, with hailstones and bolts of lightning. The LORD thundered from heaven; the voice of the Most High resounded. He shot his arrows and scattered the enemies, great bolts of lightning and routed them. The valleys of the sea were exposed and the foundations of the earth laid bare at your rebuke, O LORD, at the blast of breath from your nostrils. (Psalm 18:12-15 NIV84)

- The light of truth goes forth from him—a hailstorm of fiery truth powerful like lightning. The Lord spoke truth like thunder from heaven; the Creator voiced words that burned like fire. His sends out his arrows of truth broadly across the earth—great flashes of light that only confuse those who prefer darkness. When you rebuke selfishness, O Creator God, when your nostrils breathe out your life-giving power of love, the channels of water that bring life are seen, the foundations that you built life upon are understood. (Psalm 18:12-15 NIV84)

Again, what message do you believe God wants us to understand from Scripture?

MONDAY

The title is Justice for the Oppressed—What is justice? Isn't it doing what is right? How do you know what is right? What defines what is right?

Doesn't the law determine what is right in any system?

Then, what law lens do we understand God's justice through—is it Roman imposed law, or Creator design law? And what difference does it make?

In our Magazine The Lie that Deceived Angels, Infects Christianity and Delays the Second Coming of Christ we have a table in the back that contrasts various words like justice through the two law lenses:

Justice in the imposed law view is: Punishing the oppressor
Justice in the design law view is: Delivering the oppressed

Which do you think is God's justice? Even for the wicked in the end? Does God use power to inflict punishment on the unrepentant oppressors and call it justice, or does God stop using power and thereby deliver the oppressors from their suffering and that is His justice?

Jump to WEDNESDAY's lesson and from the lesson we read the following:

- Some psalms beseech God to take vengeance on individuals and nations who intend to harm, or who have already harmed, the psalmists or their people. These psalms can sound perplexing because of their harsh language and apparent discord with the biblical principle of love for enemies (Matt. 5:44)…

  However, nowhere does the psalmist suggest himself to be the agent of vengeance. Instead, he leaves retribution solely in God's hands. The Psalms evoke the divine covenant curses (Deut. 27:9-16) and implore God to act as He has promised.

  The Psalms are prophetic proclamations about God's impending judgment; they are not solely the psalmist's prayers. Psalm 137 reflects the announcements of divine judgment on Babylon, as seen in the prophets. The devastation that the Babylonians brought to other nations would turn back on them. The Psalms convey divine warnings that evil will not go unpunished forever.

God's retribution is measured with justice and grace. God's children are called to pray for those who mistreat them and even to hope for their conversion (Ps. 83:18, Jer. 29:7). (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 48).

What do you hear in these paragraphs? What law is the lesson describing God applying? Imposed law, the types of laws that creatures make up, which make God out to be the source of pain, suffering, and death. This is Satan's view of God. It is contrary to the message that is to lighten the world for Christ's return, it is an exact refutation of the message given to the Adventist church at 1888 and through the ministry of Ellen White.

We addressed psalm 137 last week, so if you would like an exploration of that psalm and didn't get to join us for class last week, you can find that discussion on our website along with the notes.

But notice the lesson uses language of retributive justice, vengeance, judgment which lead the mind to think of inflicted punishment. But consider how EGW uses these terms in the book The Great Controversy, specifically note the terms used, then note the description of what occurs, how the punishment happens, what God is actually doing, the actions God takes. You will note that, God uses power to heal, to protect and restore, but please notice that the justice of God, the justice of design law is the merciful delivering of the wicked from suffering, not the use of power to inflict suffering:

- God has given to men a declaration of His character and of His method of dealing with sin. [what do you think that declaration is?] "The Lord God, merciful and gracious, long-suffering and abundant in goodness and truth, keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, and that will by no means clear the guilty." [What do you hear? What is His method? Why will God not clear the guilty? What law lens do you see it through, imposed or design? Because of a judicial system or because of reality, because the guilty remain infected, in rebellion, hostile, selfish, terminal in sin and God will not pretend that unhealed, unreborn, unrenewed, unrighteous people are righteous. God will not commit fraud and declare unrighteous people to be righteous as the penal legal system claims.] Exodus 34:6, 7. "All the wicked will He destroy." "The transgressors shall be destroyed together: the end of the wicked shall be cut off." Psalm 145:20; 37:38. The power and authority of the divine government will be employed to put down rebellion; yet all the manifestations of retributive justice will be perfectly consistent with the character of God as a merciful, long-suffering, benevolent being. (The Great Controversy 541.2) [What does this mean? Do you hear retributive justice and think using power to inflict harm, pain, punishment? This would be human law, imposed law, Satan's method and if we apply it to God we misrepresent God. So, let's keep reading and see how this author applies these words to God, what law is applied in bringing about this retributive justice, how reality works.]

  God does not force the will or judgment of any. He takes no pleasure in a slavish obedience. He desires that the creatures of His hands shall love Him because He is worthy of love. [If this is true, can God then be the source of inflicted suffering, punishment, and death? If you understand how reality works—God's law of love and liberty, then you recognize that the human imposed law understanding of retributive justice with inflicted pain and death is incompatible with the very next sentence from the author. It is impossible to get anything other than slavish obedience from inflicted punishment; inflicted punishments do force the will, and it is impossible to get love and trust by threatening to kill people who do not love and trust you. Thus, immediately this author is calling every person who is still capable of thinking for themselves, every person who is not blinded by the lies of Romanism and the imposed law system, to stop, think, and inquire—how can God apply retributive justice and at the same time not be forcing people? And that is only possible when we understand design law.] He would have them obey Him because they have an intelligent appreciation of His wisdom, justice, and benevolence. [What reason would God have us obey? Not fear of punishment, but appreciation of His character of love, which cannot exist if God is the source of inflicted punishment. It is Satan's view that God must punish sin because when this lie is believed it undermines love. DA761] And all who have a just conception of these qualities will love Him because they are drawn toward Him in admiration of His attributes. (The Great Controversy 541.3) [But those who do not have a just conception of these qualities will either reject God or serve Him from fear, teach theologies that hide and protect them from God.]

The principles of kindness, mercy, and love, taught and exemplified by our Saviour, are a transcript of the will and character of God. [What are the principles of God's character? Do these principles coerce, compel, or torture?] Christ declared that He taught nothing except that which He had received from His Father. The principles of the divine government are in perfect harmony with the Saviour's precept, "Love your enemies." [What are principles? Laws, protocols, standards, and in this case it is God's character of love, which is His law of love, which is a transcript of His character. Does love seek to inflict pain and suffering to torture and punish or to deliver? But notice what is describe next as love for our enemies] God executes justice upon the wicked, for the good of the universe, and even for the good of those upon whom His judgments are visited. [What is justice? Doing what is just or right, and what determines what is actually just or right? The law—so it comes back to how one understands God's law functions. Those who accept the Roman lie that God's law is like human law believe the lie that God's execution of justice is the infliction from God of pain and death. But, when we return to worshiping the Creator and realize His laws are design laws, such as the law of love, liberty, worship and more, we realize that God uses power to heal, to save, and when people refuse Him, then God uses power to minimize pain, minimize suffer, and to stop the torment of those who won't allow Him to heal them—by applying the law of liberty and letting them go to reap what they have insisted upon, separation from Him and thus they die eternally and stop suffering. Thus, God's justice is like the parent whose child is in liver failure and refuses to be healed, the parent does not seek to prolong and protract the suffering, but allows the suffering to end. Notice what is described next.] He would make them happy if He could do so in accordance with the laws of His government and the justice of His character. [Why can't God make them happy? Because they refuse to participate in His methods, they refuse to allow Him to heal them. Love cannot be forced and thus God cannot use might and power to make them happy.] He surrounds them with the tokens of His love, He grants them a knowledge of His law, and follows them with the offers of His mercy; but they despise His love, make void His law, and reject His mercy. [How do they make void His law? By replacing it with a false law—imposed law. Think how sad it will be for those legal Sabbath keepers who wouldn't enter Pilates house while they sought to kill Jesus. Law keepers, but the wrong law—not the wrong Sabbath day, the wrong law—the human imposed law with inflicted penalties, how many today are in the same situation?] While constantly receiving His gifts, they dishonor the Giver; they hate God because they know that He abhors their sins. The Lord bears long with their perversity; but the decisive hour will come at last, when their destiny is to be decided. [Who determines their destiny? Is it a heavenly judge making a legal ruling in a heavenly court, or is the decision that of the sinner who permanently hardens their heart to the work of the Holy Spirit?] Will He then chain these rebels to His side? Will He force them to do His will? [These are rhetorical questions, meaning that God will not do this, God has the power to do this, to artificially keep people alive and chain them to His side. But He won't use power in this way, why? Because it would inflict torture and pain and God is the source of healing and life. Note what comes next…] (The Great Controversy 541.4)

Those who have chosen Satan as their leader and have been controlled by his power are not prepared to enter the presence of God. [Why are they not prepared? Is it that they don't have the right blood, don't have the right legal payment, don't have the right robe to hide behind so the Father won't see their true self? Or is it that they don't have the right heart, mind, character, within them?] Pride, deception, licentiousness, cruelty, have become fixed in their characters. [How did it become fixed? Who fixed it there? If God "judges" their characters as fixed in sin and beyond saving, does that mean God's judgment is what makes their characters fixed in sin or is God's judgment simply the accurate diagnosis of what they have chosen to do to themselves?] Can they enter heaven to dwell forever with those whom they despised and hated on earth? Truth will never be agreeable to a liar; meekness will not satisfy self-esteem and pride; purity is not acceptable to the corrupt; disinterested love does not appear attractive to the selfish. What source of enjoyment could heaven offer to those who are wholly absorbed in earthly and selfish interests? (The Great Controversy 542.1)

Could those whose lives have been spent in rebellion against God be suddenly transported to heaven and witness the high, the holy state of perfection that ever exists there,-- every soul filled with love, every countenance beaming with joy, enrapturing music in melodious strains rising in honor of God and the Lamb, and ceaseless streams of light flowing upon the redeemed from the face of Him who sitteth upon the throne,--could those whose hearts are filled with hatred of God, of truth and holiness, mingle with the heavenly throng and join their songs of praise? Could they endure the glory of God and the Lamb? No, no; [Why not? Because God uses divine power to prevent them, to torture them, to inflict harm upon them, or is their condition incompatible with God's design for life?] years of probation were granted them, that they might form characters for heaven; but they have never trained the mind to love purity; they have never learned the language of heaven, and now it is too late. A life of rebellion against God has unfitted them for heaven. [Why are they unfit? Is it that they don't have the right legal payment in record books, or is it something actually incompatible with life within them? Notice why they are not fit] Its purity, holiness, and peace would be torture to them; the glory of God would be a consuming fire. [This is huge, what do they experience as torture? Purity, holiness and peace! Is this God using His power to cause pain, to inflict suffering, is there something coming out from God other than goodness, mercy, love and truth? It is their condition which experiences goodness as pain, purity as torment, holiness as suffering. The torture happens because of sin in them, not as an infliction from God!] They would long to flee from that holy place. They would welcome destruction, that they might be hidden from the face of Him who died to redeem them. [What do the wicked actually want? Separation from God! Why do they want it? To be at peace, to stop their suffering; So, in this situation what is the just action for God to take, what is the merciful action for God to take? Is there a difference between justice and mercy? Notice the next sentences] The destiny of the wicked is fixed by their own choice. Their exclusion from heaven is voluntary with themselves, and just and merciful on the part of God. (The Great Controversy 542.2)

Like the waters of the Flood the fires of the great day declare God's verdict that the wicked are incurable. [This is design law, this is justice and mercy, and justice and mercy rightly understood is always an expression of God's character of love and does the same thing] (The Great Controversy 543.1)

What justice is described here? What is God's retributive justice? It is God delivering the wicked in the end from torment, torture, and suffering by the application of God's law of love and liberty! God's justice is NEVER the infliction of pain, suffering, and torment—it is delivering from it.

But some get confused because they don't differentiate discipline from punishment, they don't distinguish therapy from torture, treatment from torment. Thus, they will take examples of God disciplining or therapeutically intervening and argue that God is punishing.

But when we return to worshiping God as Creator and understand God's laws as design laws, then we can discern reality and differentiate the true from the false.

TUESDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 82, let's compare the NIV and REM

- God presides in the great assembly; he gives judgment among the "gods" (Psalm 82:1 NIV84)
- God takes a stand against the assembly of false gods; he presents his diagnosis regarding all pagan gods. (Psalm 82:1 REM)

Does your version read similarly? Am I just making things up, or does the Hebrew allow for a wide range of interpretations?

Consider these two versions:

- God presides in the heavenly council; in the assembly of the gods he gives his decision (Psalm 82:1 GNT)

Well that seems a little confusing—are there many gods in heaven where God presides? Is it like Greek mythology with Zeus managing a bunch of lesser gods and demi-gods?

- God stands in the assembly of El; in the midst of the gods he renders judgment. (Psalm 82:1 NET).

And the NET has this explanation:

- The phrase עֲדַת אֵל (’adat ’el, “assembly of El”) appears only here in the OT. (1) Some understand “El” to refer to God himself. In this case he is pictured presiding over his own heavenly assembly. (2) Others take אֵל as a superlative here (“God stands in the great assembly”), as in Pss 36:6 and 80:10. (3) The present translation assumes this is a reference to the Canaanite high god El, who presided over the Canaanite divine assembly. (See Isa 14:13, where El’s assembly is called “the stars of El.”) In the Ugaritic myths the phrase ’dt ’ilm refers to the “assembly of the gods,” who congregate in King Kirtu’s house, where Baal asks El to bless Kirtu’s house. If the Canaanite divine assembly is referred to here in Ps 82:1, then the psalm must be understood as a bold polemic against Canaanite religion. Israel’s God invades El’s assembly, denounces its gods as failing to uphold justice, and announces their coming demise.

  The present translation assumes that the Hebrew term אֱלֹהִים (’elohim, “gods”) here refers to the pagan gods who supposedly comprise El’s assembly according to Canaanite religion. Those who reject the polemical view of the psalm prefer to see the referent as human judges or rulers (אֱלֹהִים sometimes refers to officials appointed by God, see Exod 21:6; 22:8–9; Ps 45:6) or as angelic beings (אֱלֹהִים sometimes refers to angelic beings, see Gen 3:5; Ps 8:5). (The NET Bible First Edition)

The Remedy takes the position similar to the NET that this is God’s indictment of the false gods of this world with their imposed law systems that always render injustice under the guise of justice.

- God presides in the great assembly; he gives judgment among the “gods”: “How long will you defend the unjust and show partiality to the wicked? (Psalm 82:1-2 NIV84)
- God takes a stand against the assembly of false gods; he presents his diagnosis regarding all pagan gods. He says, "When will you stop using a list of rules to govern? When will you stop protecting selfishness with your legal system? (Psalm 82:1-2 REM).

Imposed law systems with legal oversight and inflicted punishments never provide justice—someone is always getting misjudged, innocents punished, guilty set free, corrupt judges, abuse of power and on and on. And this corrupt system of imposed laws was incorporated into Christianity through Rome and it is taught that God’s system works this way and God’s justice is for God to punish an innocent person and declare the guilty innocent. And the blind guides who are leading the blind don't even realize how unjust this is—they, with all sincerity, declare such actions to be just.

- Defend the cause of the weak and fatherless; maintain the rights of the poor and oppressed. Rescue the weak and needy; deliver them from the hand of the wicked. (Psalm 82:3-4 NIV84)
- Do what is actually right, healthy, and loving for all people; protect the poor and the fatherless; do what is right to the poor and oppressed — what heals and restores. Rescue the weak and needy; deliver them from the power of selfishness. (Psalm 82:3-4 REM)

Here we see the justice of design law, the justice of God is delivering the oppressed, not the infliction of punishment on the oppressors.

- "They know nothing, they understand nothing. They walk about in darkness; all the foundations of the earth are shaken. (Psalm 82:5 NIV84)
- These false gods don't understand reality; they don't understand my design-laws—how I built life to function; they operate in the darkness of a rule-enforcement system and the world is crumbling all around them. Psalm 82:5 REM)

Do you see the world crumbling all around us as governments try and pass more laws, use more force, to bring order? But as more laws are passed do you see that things are getting better or worse? Consider some of the laws:

- Laws that define more than 27 different gender identities—does this bring more unity, harmony, clarity, stability or contribute to confusion, division, and the crumbling of society?
- Laws that declare intoxicating substances as legal are not the same as making them healthy—and the data now shows that in Colorado where marijuana is now legal, mental health disorders are 35% higher than the national average, why? Because our laws do not change God's laws and violations of God's laws, including the laws of health, always damage.
- Laws that tell you what light bulbs, appliances, and straws you must use? Do these things actually have any bearing upon reality—no, they are all based off lies designed to trick people into going along with force that enslaves the masses and takes buying power from the masses to enrich the elite titans of industry, thereby making the wealthier wealthier and the poorer poorer—but they do it in a way that they not only steal wealth, and take away freedom, but the blind masses believe they are improving themselves and saving the planet. If you would like more data on this read our blogs God's Promises and Climate Change Part 1 and Part 2

- "I said, 'You are "gods"; you are all sons of the Most High.' But you will die like mere men; you will fall like every other ruler." (Psalm 82:6-7 NIV84)
- I say to you, fallen angels pretending to be gods, "Even though you are all children of the Most High, you will die like mortals; your life will end like that of any ordinary ruler." (Psalm 82:6-7 REM).

All the false gods of this world are proxies for Satan and his fallen angels and we are either worshiping God or one of Satan's proxies.

- Rise up, O God, judge the earth, for all the nations are your inheritance. (Psalm 82:8 NIV84)
- Rise up, O God, and diagnose the earth, for the entire world belongs to you. (Psalm 82:8 REM)

Is there a difference when you hear judge and diagnose? When the king at the end separates the sheep from the goats, does the judgment of the king make a sheep a sheep and a goat a goat? It is not the judgment of the judge that determines the outcome as happens in human courts, it is the condition of the people, goats are goats and sheep are sheep and God's judgment in the end is simply accurate diagnosis of who partook of the Remedy provided by Jesus and was reborn and restored into godliness and who did not.

THURSDAY

The Title of the lesson is The Lord's Judgment and the Sanctuary

And the question that defines how the Bible is interpreted and taught is relevant here again—and that is what law lens does one hold when they read the Bible. Sadly, the authors again reveal that they have accepted Romanism, the lie that God's law functions like imposed human law that requires legal enforcement and thus they interpret the beautiful sanctuary message in a false legal light that obstructs the healing power God intended it to provide us.

Let me show you, the first paragraph reads:

- The Lord's judgment is closely related to the sanctuary. The sanctuary was the environment where the psalmist's understanding of the problem of evil was transformed (Ps. 73:17-20). The sanctuary was designated as the place of divine judgment as indicated by the judgment of Urim (Num. 27:21) and by the breastplate of judgment of the high priest (Exod. 28:15, 28-30). Accordingly, many psalms depict God on His throne in the sanctuary ready to judge the world for its sin and evil. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 49).

The lesson points to Exodus 28:15 & 30 to support this view, so let's read these verses:

- "You shall make the breastplate of judgment… And you shall put in the breastplate of judgment the Urim and the Thummim, and they shall be over Aaron's heart when he goes in before the LORD. So Aaron shall bear the judgment of the children of Israel over his heart before the LORD continually. (Exodus 28:15 & 30 NKJV).

What law lens do you read these verses through? The lesson clearly reads them through imposed law and believes judgment means something judicial. But judgment can also mean discernment, decision-making, determining the right and the wrong action to take, not judging someone else legally. And it is in fact the exercise of discernment, wise decision-making type of judgment that is intended here for that is how Urim and Thummin were used. Urim and Thummin were not used judicially! And most other translations translate it this way. Here is the NET:

- "You are to make a breastpiece for use in making decisions… You are to put the Urim and the Thummim into the breastpiece of decision; and they are to be over Aaron's heart when he goes in before the LORD. Aaron is to bear the decisions of the Israelites over his heart before the LORD continually. (Exodus 28:15 & 30 NET)

And the NET commentary on these verses reads:

- The Urim and the Thummim were two objects intended for determining the divine will… or "judgment" (KJV, ASV, NASB, NRSV). The term is מִשְׁפָּט (mishpat), the same word that describes the breastpiece that held the two objects. Here it is translated "decisions" since the Urim and Thummim contained in the breastpiece represented the means by which the LORD made decisions for the Israelites. The high priest bore the responsibility of discerning the divine will on matters of national importance.

And here is commentary on Urim and Thummin from the book Patriarchs and Prophets:

- At the right and left of the breastplate were two large stones of great brilliancy. These were known as the Urim and Thummim. By them the will of God was made known through the high priest. When questions were brought for decision before the Lord, a halo of light encircling the precious stone at the right was a token of the divine consent or approval, while a cloud shadowing the stone at the left was an evidence of denial or disapprobation. (Patriarchs and Prophets 351, emphasis mine).

So, the idea that the High Priest was acting in a judicial manner is not supported by the breastplate and Urim and Thummin, but the idea that the High Priest acted to discern, make wise decisions to lead the people is supported. This is design law, truth being unfolded and revealed and people seeking to understand the truth and follow the truth where it leads. This is the purpose of the Sanctuary, to reveal truth, the truth about God and the plan of salvation to lead people out of sin, out of alienation, out of fear, selfishness and death, back into unity, at-one-ment with God.

That requires accurate diagnosis of what is wrong and the application of the remedy from God that heals and restores. That is the message of the sanctuary. I can tell you with confidence, there is nothing penal legal going on in the sanctuary—there is something real, actual, in harmony with God's kingdom and design law going on and that is the removal of lies, fear, selfishness, from hearts and minds and restoring in people Christlikeness.

The lesson states,

- At the sanctuary, the plan of salvation was revealed… the Bible presents sin as a violation of God's moral law. God's holiness means that He loves justice and righteousness. Likewise, > God's people should pursue justice and righteousness and should worship God in His holiness. To do that, they must keep God's law, which is an expression of His holiness… Yet, the "God-Who-Forgives" takes vengeance upon the wicked deeds of unrepentant people (Ps. 99:8, NKJV). The practical implications of the sanctuary being the place of divine judgment are seen in the constant awareness of God's holiness and demands for righteous living according to God's covenantal requirements. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 49).

Thoughts? What do you hear in this description? Do you hear design law or the Roman infection of human law?

SABBATH

Read the third paragraph,

- Yes, the Lord is long-suffering and holds His wrath in His great forbearance, not wanting anyone to perish but to repent and change their ways (2 Pet. 3:9-15). And though God's proper time for His intervention does not always coincide with human expectations, the day of God's judgment is coming (Ps. 96:13, Ps. 98:9). We just need to trust in Him, and in His promises, until that day comes. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 44).

How we understand three words in this paragraph significantly impact what we understand this paragraph to mean, particularly what we understand about God and the sin problem and God's solution for it.

Those three words are:

- Wrath
- Intervention
- Judgment

And what determines how we understand these words? What law lens we read the Bible through.

Did anyone read my blog for this week, God's Wrath Versus Satan's Wrath—What's the Difference?

The Bible says,

> Therefore rejoice, O heavens, and you who dwell in them! Woe to the inhabitants of the earth and the sea! For the devil has come down to you, having great wrath, because he knows that he has a short time (Revelation 12:12 NKJV, emphasis mine).

So what is the difference between Satan's wrath and God's wrath?

- Do we understand wrath to be the same functionally regardless of who the agent of that wrath is?
- Do we see God and Satan acting in similar ways, using similar powers, and causing similar outcomes?
- Do we differentiate God's wrath and Satan's wrath only by motive—for instance, saying that God acts in justice whereas Satan acts in selfishness, but they both use power to inflict harm?

There is certainly one similarity, and that is the result when people are not shielded, protected, or delivered from either Satan's or God's wrath. The result of experiencing the full wrath of either being is bad, not good.

But does the result of experiencing unrestrained wrath from either God or Satan mean that Satan's wrath and God's wrath are manifestations of the same power, methods, and actions? Absolutely not! In fact, the wrath of God and that of Satan are exact opposites. God's wrath functions exactly the opposite of how Satan's wrath functions, and we can only understand this if we understand reality, which is to understand God's design law.

A Creature's Wrath

If we view the world through Satan's system of government, that of a creature who cannot create reality so, instead, makes up rules that are enforced through external punishments, then we understand wrath to be the use of power to punish—to inflict harm upon those whom one is wrathful toward. This is Satan's wrath, and it comes out as a result of satanic power.

Throughout human history, God has been shielding us from Satan's wrath, his evil use of power.

And God's active use of His power to protect us from what sin does and from Satan's wrath is God's interventions or intercessions. His first intervention or intercession was immediately after Adam and Eve sinned in Genesis 3 where God put enmity between sinful humans and Satan—meaning God intervenes in human hearts by His Spirit to convict of sin, to put a longing, a desire for love, truth, and heaven, to cause us to be unsatisfied with sin and this world—a conviction to seek our Creator.

God also intervenes to hold back the four winds of strife (Revelation 7:1); He restrains Satan and the principalities of darkness (Revelation 12:7; Colossians 2:15); and He has been sending angel armies to shield us (2 Kings 6:17–20).

And God intervened with what sin naturally does to the sinner—separates from God and causes death, by sending Jesus to be sin for us so that we might become the righteousness of God (2 Corinthians 5:21). In other words, God intervened with our sin condition to destroy the sin and open a path of eternal life for all who are restored to trust in Him.

We see God's interventions happening all throughout Scripture to hold at bay Satan's power, Satan's wrath.

Satan's wrath is the use of power to cause harm!

But God's wrath is the opposite—it is when He stops using power to protect us. God is the Creator, the builder of reality whose laws are the template of health and life. Breaking His laws directly causes us harm, and God, in harmony with His character of love, must expend His power, His energy, His resources, to hold at bay the harm that results from breaking His design-laws and to impart the healing solution. While Satan uses power to injure, God uses power to heal, restore, recreate, renew, and rebuild.

God's wrath occurs when He respects the choices of rebellious people and gives them what they have insisted upon—freedom from Him, His design laws for life, and His merciful healing power and presence.

This is exactly what Paul describes in Romans:

> The wrath of God is being revealed from heaven against all the godlessness and wickedness of men who suppress the truth by their wickedness, since what may be known about God is plain to them, because God has made it plain to them. For since the creation of the world God's invisible qualities—his eternal power and divine nature—have been clearly seen, being understood from what has been made, so that men are without excuse (Romans 1:18–20 NIV84).

Paul then goes on to explicitly state three times and describe with outcome-based evidence that God's wrath is letting people go to reap what they have chosen when they break away from His protective care. In verses 24, 26, and 28, Paul says that God gave them up, or let them go, or handed them over to what they insisted upon—and the only outcome from breaking away from the Creator and Sustainer of life and health is ruin and death.

The scholarly commentary Hard Sayings of the Bible, published by Intervarsity Press, explains these verses beautifully:

> In some sense, God's wrath is built into the very structure of created reality. In rejecting God's structure and establishing our own, in violating God's intention for the creation and substituting our own intentions, we cause or own disintegration.
> The human condition, which Paul describes in Romans 1:18–32, is not something caused by God. The phrase "revealed from heaven" (where "heaven" is a typical Jewish substitute word for "God") does not depict some kind of divine intervention, but rather the inevitability of human debasement which results when God's will, built into the created order, is violated. Since the created order has its origin in God, Paul can say that the wrath of God is now (constantly) being revealed "from heaven." It is revealed in the fact that the rejection of > God's truth (Rom 1:18–20), that is, the truth about God's nature and will, leads to futile thinking (Rom 1:21–22), idolatry (Rom 1:23), perversion of God-intended sexuality (Rom 1:24–27) and relational-moral brokenness (Rom 1:28–32).

> The expression "God gave them over" (or "handed them over"), which appears three times in this passage (Rom 1:24, 26, 28), supports the idea that the sinful perversion of human existence, though resulting from human decisions, is to be understood ultimately as God's punishment which we, in freedom, bring upon ourselves.
> In light of these reflections, the common notion that God punishes or blesses in direct proportion to our sinful or good deeds cannot be maintained. … God loves us with an everlasting love. But the rejection of that love separates us from its life-giving power. The result is disintegration and death (p. 543).

God is the God of reality—and His wrath is the exact opposite of Satan's; yet, sadly, billions believe that God's wrath is functionally no different than Satan's. Billions have been led to believe that God's wrath is when He uses His power to inflict pain, suffering, and torture upon His children. This is a lie! And this lie is the fruit, the unavoidable result, of believing another lie—that God's law functions like human law; that is, imposed rules. If one believes that any part of God's law is like human law, made up rules, then one always believes that God must use power to inflict punishment for rule-breaking, for if there is no punishment in this artificial system, then there is no "justice."

But God is calling people to reject this lie, to stop teaching others that He functions like a creature, and to return to worshiping Him as Creator—the One who speaks reality into existence and whose laws are design laws that all reality operates upon.

We have defined wrath and interventions, what about Judgment—what does this word mean, how do you hear it?

If we accept the lie that God's law functions like human law what does judgment mean?

Does judgment mean something different when we worship God as Creator, understanding His laws are design laws?

Yes, in fact in Scripture, in addition to the human judicial judgment we see when Pilate judged Jesus, there are four godly judgment types, or uses of the word to mean something quite different:

1. In Eden Adam and Eve had to make a judgment; at Mt. Carmel the people were called by Elijah to make a judgment; Paul in Romans 3:4 wrote:

   "Let God be true but every man a liar. As it is written: "That You may be justified in Your words, and may overcome when You are judged." (Romans 3:4 NKJV, emphasis mine).

The first type of judgment, is our judgment of God, deciding for ourselves whether to believe or reject Satan's lies about God. Sadly, far too many believe Satan's lies about God's law and thus judge God to be like Satan in character, the source of pain, suffering, and death inflicted as punishment for sin. This is why Revelation 14 tells us before Christ returns a special message is to go to the entire world calling people back to worship of the Creator—for the time in human history has come for people to make a right judgment about God. Sadly, however, is that the SDA church leadership, having rejected the message of design law brought to it in 1888 and instead embracing the imperial Roman view of law, has taught that the hour of God's judgment is judicial, tribunal, punitive, and misrepresents God and His kingdom.

2. The second judgment is God's diagnostic and therapeutic judgments—through history. These include in our hearts and minds and also globally, His judgments as to what is therapeutically necessary to fulfill the plan of salvation, to bring the promised Messiah of Genesis 3:15. These types of judgments are not judicial, i.e. required by law to punish sin, but therapeutic required by reality to destroy sin and heal God's creation. Such actions as the Flood, God's judgment that this was needed to preserve the human line through whom Messiah would be born, for without Jesus being born as our Savior no human being could be saved from sin. And all those who died in the Flood died the first/sleep death and will rise in one of two resurrections—thus the action was not a judicial one.

3. The third judgment happens during the 1000 years when the righteous in heaven examine the history of the Great Controversy, including how Lucifer and one third of the angels rebelled in heaven. And the righteous will make a judgment in their mind about these events and God's actions and the righteous will judge that all sin, all rebellion, all evil, all pain, suffering, destruction, death 100% come from Satan and none of it is because God failed in any way. We will judge that every single human not in heaven is not there because of their own choice and that there was nothing more God could do to save any one of them.
4. The fourth judgment is the Great White Throne Judgment:

- I saw a great white throne and him who was seated on it. … And I saw the dead, great and small, standing before the throne, and books were opened. Another book was opened, which is the book of life. The dead were judged according to what they had done as recorded in the books (Revelation 20:11, 12 NIV84).

  Surely this judgment must be judicial … right? No, it isn't.

  What is recorded in the books of life? The names of people (Philippians 4:3, Revelation 3:5, 13:8, 17:8, 20:15, 21:27). But in Scripture, names are symbolic of one's character. So, what is recorded is our actual characters, which we have developed through our judgment of God—our judgment to trust Him, to open our hearts to Him, to embrace His design laws and methods of truth, love, and liberty or not. Our judgments of God result in whether we open the heart and are reborn—or harden our hearts in selfishness. Our characters develop along whichever line our judgment decides about God, whether we trust Him and His methods or reject them. Thus, we are judged, diagnosed, based on what is the actual condition of our character.

Here's another way to say it: The books record the accurate picture of who we are in heart—they are like medical records. The records don't determine the condition; they merely record the condition.

This is exactly what Jesus taught when He said:

- Make a tree good and its fruit will be good, or make a tree bad and its fruit will be bad, for a tree is recognized by its fruit. You brood of vipers, how can you who are evil say anything good? For out of the overflow of the heart the mouth speaks. The good man brings good things out of the good stored up in him, and the evil man brings evil things out of the evil stored up in him. But I tell you that men will have to give account on the day of judgment for every careless word they have spoken. For by your words you will be acquitted, and by your words you will be condemned (Matthew 12:33–37 NIV84).

What is being described? Character—the actual condition of each heart, a diagnosis of what the reality actually is. God is the God of reality, the builder of all Creation. His laws are the protocols upon which life operates. There has never been a heavenly judicial law court like humans make; the idea that God is an arbitrary judge who is the source of inflicted punishment for sin is a lie from Satan.

The fourth and final judgment is not judicial; it is the final confirmation of the accurate diagnosis of each heart and mind:

- He who is unjust, let him be unjust still; he who is filthy, let him be filthy still; he who is righteous, let him be righteous still; he who is holy, let him be holy still (Revelation 22:11 NKJV).

2024 Q1 Psalms Lesson 7
Your Mercy Reaches Unto the Heavens

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

Read memory verse:

- I will praise You, O Lord, among the peoples; I will sing to You among the nations. For Your mercy reaches unto the heavens, And Your truth unto the clouds. (Psalm 57:9-10 NKJV)

- I will give thanks to you, O Lord, among the people; I will sing your praise with the family of God. For your great love is the basis of life in the entire universe, and your truth — the foundation of the smallest particle of matter. (Psalm 57:9-10 REM)

Do these sound different to you? What do we understand God's mercy to be? Is it something other than His love?

SUNDAY

- Psalm 136 summons God's people to praise the Lord for His mercy as revealed in creation (Ps. 136:4-9) and in Israel's history (Ps. 136:10-22). "Mercy" (Hebrew khesed, "steadfast love") conveys God's goodness and loyalty to His creation and to His covenant with Israel. The psalm shows that God's immense power and magnificence are grounded in His steadfast love. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 53).

The Hebrew for mercy is the same Hebrew for steadfast love, so many other translations also translate this verse as God's love rather than God's mercy (NIV, GNT, NET, NRSV, ESV, NCV).

And what do we understand God's love to be—is it merely sentiment, emotion, positive attitude? Or is it functional, operational, directional, motivational to action—and actions that are beneficial to others, giving, altruistic? Does love compel God to act in certain ways and to restrain or forbid other activities?

What does love compel a person to do when the object of that person's love is in danger? Isn't the one who is motivated by love compelled by love to act in ways that save, redeem, heal, relieve, deliver, and restore? Is love ever the source of harm, evil, torture, or death?

Does love sometimes act in ways, that given the situation, results in transitory pain, such as doctor setting a broken bone, or a parent cleaning dirt out of their child's wound? Does that mean love harms?

What about the phrase, "Mercy conveys God's goodness and loyalty to His creation and to His covenant with Israel"?

Does Israel have a covenant that is restricted to Israel? What is the covenant to Israel? Isn't it the covenant of the promised Seed, which was promised to Jacob, but before that was promised to Isaac, but before that was promised to Abraham? But wasn't that same covenantal promise previously given to Adam after the fall? So when we think of the covenant to Israel are we allowing our minds to become sectarian and restrictive, or are we seeing the larger view, the outworking of God's promise, God's covenant, to the entire human race and realizing that the Bible narrative focuses in on the branch of the human family tree through whom God's promise to the entire human race will be accomplished?

Would it be more accurate to say, "Mercy conveys God's goodness and loyalty to His creation and to His covenant with the human race that was being worked out through Israel"?

I find that far too many people somehow think the covenant to Israel is restrictive, limited, unique to the descendants of Jacob, but it is not. The promise was for the Messiah to come so that the human species would be saved from sin and the entire Earth returned to human governance—reclaimed from Satan's infection.

The covenant of grace, the promise that God would save sinners, was given immediately after Adam sinned:

- And I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your seed and her Seed; He shall bruise your head, and you shall bruise His heel (Genesis 3:15 NKJV).

This covenant contains God's promise to send Jesus, the Seed of the woman, to overcome and destroy Satan and sin and redeem humanity. The entire Old Testament is the outworking of this promise.

The promise to Abraham is the recommunication of the promise made in Eden, with the promise that it would be one of Abraham's descendants who is the fulfillment of that promise:

- In your seed all the nations of the earth shall be blessed, because you have obeyed My voice (Genesis 22:18 NKJV, emphasis mine).

And this promise was repeated to Isaac and Jacob.

There is no doubt that God made a covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, but that covenant is the same covenant that was given to Adam, but with Abraham we now have the identification of the specific branch of the human family through whom the Messiah would come.

The apostle Paul, a former Pharisee of the tribe of Benjamin and a highly trained Jewish theologian of the first century, wrote:

- You are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, for all of you who were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, slave nor free, male nor female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. If you belong to Christ, then you are Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise (Galatians 3:26–29 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Is there some covenant to the Jews that is not to the rest of the world? Some might argue it was for the land, that Abraham was promised the land of Palestine—but that regional land was promised as part of this global covenant; Abraham's descendants would occupy the local regional area of Palestine until the Messiah came, and then through the promised Seed, Jesus Christ, the full covenantal promise will be accomplished so that the meek will inherit the entire Earth. The covenantal promised land is the entire planet and it is promised to those who belong to Christ—these are the heirs of Abraham and that is the true land of inheritance.

Remember what the writer of Hebrews wrote, because it agrees with our assessment. Hebrews in chapter 11, the hall of faith, tells us that the faithful of God in Bible times—Abel, Enoch, Noah, along with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob who lived in the regional promised land (Hebrews 11:9)—"did not receive the things promised" (Hebrews 11:13), but that these faithful were "looking forward to the city with foundations, whose architect and builder is God" (Hebrews 11:10). "All of these people" of faith "did not receive the things promised; they saw them and welcomed them from a distance. … They were longing for a better country—a heavenly one" (Hebrews 11:13, 16).

Hebrews tells us that "all of these people" did not receive the things promised; note who is included on that list—Enoch, who was taken to heaven! Enoch, who has already received eternal life, a glorified body, who currently lives in heaven with Jesus, surely he has received the promise, hasn't he? Not in its complete and fullest sense. What was Abraham promised? That his spiritual descendants would inherit the earth. This promise will not be realized until Jesus comes again, all sin and sinners are eliminated, the New Jerusalem comes down from heaven, and the earth is made new to be the home of the righteous. Then the promise will be realized and we, who have faith like Abraham, will receive our inheritance of a goodly land, a beautiful home, perfect and flawless that God intended Adam and Eve to possess.

The point is that God was fulfilling his covenant to the human race through Abraham's family tree—but the covenant is not restricted to Abraham's genetic descendants, it is for the entire human race.

Read the bottom green question:

- How does the image of Jesus on the cross, dying as a Substitute for our sins, most powerfully reveal the great truth about God, that "His love endures forever"? (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 53).

Before we discuss this question—let's affirm that we believe in the substitutionary nature of Christ's sacrifice in our behalf, to save us from sin. As Paul wrote:

- God made him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God. (2 Corinthians 5:21 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Note, according to Paul in this verse, the reason for Christ's substitutionary sacrificial death was not legal, it was not penal, it was not a payment, it was not to assuage God's wrath or propitiate God for God was never the problem. When Adam sinned God did not get changed, God's law did not change, the condition of Adam changed from sinless, loyal, faithful, trustworthy, to sinful, disloyal, unfaithful, untrustworthy fear ridden and selfish.

Thus Jesus became our substitute so that we might become the righteousness of God, so that we sinful humans might be cleansed from sin and restored to God's perfect ideal for humankind.

We believe that Jesus came and voluntarily put Himself into a position that was not naturally His own for the purpose of delivering us from the position that was naturally our own—He took our place. He substituted Himself.

We should never deny this—for it is eternally true.

The question that arises is, why? Why was it required for us to become righteous? Why was it necessary for humans to be saved from sin? How did Christ's voluntary and substitutionary sacrifice achieve the righteousness of God in humanity?

If God is love and He loved the world so much He sent His Son, if God is merciful—full of mercy, if God pardons freely as Isaiah 55 says, if God does not keep a record of our wrongs as 1 Corinthians 13 says—then why couldn't God just forgive us outright without the death of Jesus?

And the answer of course is that God did forgive us outright, and it is because of God's love and forgiveness that He sent His Son to do what Jesus needed to do, because God's forgiveness extended freely from His heart does not remove sinfulness from us. And salvation, healing, requires that sinfulness in sinners be replaced with sinlessness, righteousness, purity, holiness. And once Adam sinned, every human being has been born infected with sinfulness, with fear and selfishness, with unholiness. Thus, Jesus had to partake of this humanity and merge His sinless, holy, pure, self with this damaged humanity—be tempted in all points like we are, yet with His human abilities choose holiness, righteousness, and reject the pull of sin, and ultimately take the fallen, diseased, carnal nature to the cross and kill it and rise in a new purified humanity free from the infection of fear and selfishness. This is reality, it is design law, it is restoring, cleansing, purifying and fixing the problem by removing the defect.

Thus Jesus came, as John the Baptist said, "the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world." Jesus came to take away sin, to destroy death, to destroy the cause of death, and thereby heal this creation.

God can create a new species any time God wants. After Adam sinned, God was still free to gather some dirt together, form a new body, breathe the breath of life into that body and create a new sinless human being—but such a being would not be part of the creation He made in Eden. It would not be related to Adam and Eve, but a new, similar yet distinct, creation. Creating a brand new human would not save Adam and Eve, it would not save this creation, the one God made in Eden.

When God made Adam He breathed into Adam the breath of life—every other human being received life from that breath of life given to Adam. Eve was not formed out of dirt and she did not receive her own breath of life, she was formed from the living tissue of Adam's body, tissue that was already alive—an extension of that same breath of life, or live energy that God breathed into Adam. And that Greek and Hebrew word for "breath" is the same work as "spirit." It is the internal motivational energy that invigorates and animates all of us. Because God gave Adam and Eve procreative abilities that same life breathed into Adam is shared with every single human being. But the sad reality is that Adam altered the quality of that life energy. His sin changed the motivational energy from pure love, to energy contaminated with fear and selfishness and we are all born with motivational drives of fear and selfishness.

So, what was needed? A human being that is part of Adam, part of this creation, a human being who partakes of that same life, life-energy, given to Adam in Eden, that life which is now infected with fear and selfishness so that this Savior could purify that life, could destroy the terminal condition and restore God's perfect living law of love, His protocols for life, back into this human creation.

Thus Jesus came as the second Adam, partaking of the very same human life that was given to Adam through His mother Mary, the humanity that has been damaged by sin and terminal because of Adam's fall, but because the Father for His human body was the Holy Spirit Jesus was also invigorated with spiritual purity, a life energy undefiled by sin and as a real human being, partaking of the life given to Adam, He could face temptation like every human does yet Jesus was able to choose, with His human abilities, to say no to every temptation and live a life of purity. And on the Cross Jesus destroyed death causing principle, the impure energy of fear and selfishness contaminating the life energy breathed into Adam. At the cross, Jesus destroyed the carnal terminal sin nature, and arose in a purified humanity and became the new head of humanity and He now stands in God's presence not only in His preincarnate position as the Son of God—but Jesus now stands in God's presence as the representative head of humanity—a real human being, sinless and perfect. He stands as Adam's substitute—in the place in the heavenly counsel that God designed Adam to stand. And through faith, we can each receive that same divine energy of the Holy Spirit, that takes what Christ achieved and invigorates us with a reborn spirit, new life motives, so that we become literal partakers of the divine nature as our spirits, our internal energies, motivations, drives, change from fear and selfishness to love and trust via the indwelling Holy Spirit.

So how do you answer the question:

- How does the image of Jesus on the cross, dying as a Substitute for our sins, most powerfully reveal the great truth about God, that "His love endures forever"? (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 53).

This takes us right into MONDAY's lesson because Christ came to fix what Adam did to the species, and because Christ fixed it, then we can partake of His victory so that "it is no longer I that live but Christ lives in me" (Galatians 2:20) and we become partakers of the divine nature, we get new hearts and right spirits, the mind of Christ, reborn, recreated, the law written on our hearts and minds etc.

This is the true plan of salvation—and there is nothing penal legal going on, it is real, actual, literal, regenerational, the restoration of God's living law into you and me through the accomplishments of Jesus Christ.

So, Monday the lesson focuses our attention on Psalms 51, in which David prays for a new heart and right spirit, to be cleansed in the inner man, that is what salvation is, healing, recreating, cleansing of the sinner—not cleansing of books.

But let's read the first two paragraphs:

- King David pours out his heart before the Lord, asking for the forgiveness of sin during the spiritually darkest moments in his life (2 Samuel 12). Forgiveness is God's extraordinary gift of grace, the result of the "multitude of Your tender mercies" (Ps. 51:1, NKJV). King David appeals to God to deal with him not in accordance with what his sin deserves (Ps. 103:10) but in accordance with His divine character, namely His mercy, faithfulness, and compassion (Ps. 51:1; Exod. 34:6, 7).

> Divine forgiveness involves more than a legal proclamation of innocence. It produces a profound change that reaches the most inner parts of human self (Ps. 51:6, Heb. 4:12). It brings about a new creation (Ps. 51:10, John 3:3-8). The Hebrew verb bara', translated "create," depicts divine creative power (Gen. 1:1). Only God can bara'; only God can produce a radical and lasting change in the repentant person's heart (2 Cor. 4:6). (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 54).

There is so much that is very well said in these two paragraphs. There is no question that God's forgiveness is a manifestation of His grace, love, mercy, and character, and that the experience forgiveness from the sinner's perspective involves a profound change of the inmost being, a new creation, brought about by divine power. This is all well said.

But what about the idea of forgiveness involving a legal proclamation of innocence? This idea is dropped in as an assumed truth, as if "we know forgiveness is when the guilty are legally proclaimed innocent, but forgiveness also includes so much more…" It seems the lesson assumes this to be true and wants to make special emphasis of the transforming nature of forgiveness. I am glad the lesson has emphasized the healing, transforming elements, because they are the truth of forgiveness, what forgiveness actually is. But is the assumed legal innocence proclamation true—or is that a falsehood based on accepting the lie that God's law functions like human law?

When will it be true that Adam and Eve are innocent? Does accepting Jesus as our sinless Savior change the history of what Adam and Eve did, or what you and I have done? Do any humans ever get to say they are in fact innocent of sin? So, if we are not in truth, in fact, in reality, innocent of sin and God proclaims that we are, what are we teaching about God? That God is bearing a false witness, God is declaring something to be true when it is in fact false.

As I understand it, there is nothing in Scripture that says we will be declared innocent. What gets declared, and this is said in a variety of ways but it all means the same thing, is that the saved sinners are:

- Healed
- Redeemed
- Recreated
- Renewed
- Reborn
- Perfected
- Restored
- Made Christlike
- Made Righteous
- Set right
- Put right
- Made Holy
- Purified
- Made Faithful

None of us ever get proclaimed or declared to be innocent, no, we all are guilty—but all the saved are also all healed, reborn, recreated, renewed, delivered, made righteous, made holy, purified, and cleansed. This is the gospel through design law, taking what has been damaged by sin and restoring it to perfect, holy, righteousness.

In fact, it is the truth of our sickness in sin and God's saving us from it that gives us a story to tell, the song of the redeemed—if we are all declared innocent, if we have had our records erased and there is no memory of our sinfulness from which Jesus cleansed and healed us, then what will we witness about?

If you had had a terrible cancer, suffered greatly, and Jesus healed you fully into robust perfect vibrant health—would you have a story to tell? Do you need to forget your sickness or as you recall what you have been saved from do you rejoice in Jesus and what He has done for you? But what if after your healing you have your memory erased and no longer recall the sickness of the past, do you have the same appreciation for what Jesus did to heal you?

It is an eternal truth that God forgives us—but God forgives the unrepentant also, Jesus forgave those who crucified Him. The difference between the saved and the lost is not in God's attitude toward them, it is in the sinner's attitude toward God. The saved respond to God's forgiveness, are convicted in heart, won by His love, and repent and are reborn with new hearts and right spirits; whereas the wicked reject and despise God's forgiveness, harden and close their hearts, and solidify themselves in sin and selfishness.

TUESDAY

Read first paragraph:

- The psalmist's great affliction is related to his own and his people's sins (Ps. 130:3, 8). The people's sins are so grave that they threaten to separate the people from God forever (Ps. 130:3). Scripture speaks of the records of sins that are being kept for the Judgment Day (Dan. 7:10, Rev. 20:12) and of sinners' names being removed from the book of life (Exod. 32:32, Ps. 69:28, Rev. 13:8). (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 55).

Why would sin separate people from God? Is it that God cannot stand it and gets offended, or is it that the people in sin cannot stand holiness and flee from God's presence?

When Moses came off the mountain reflecting God's glory what did the people do? They shied away, begging him to cover his face, why? Because they could not tolerate the heavenly light. When Jesus appears at the second coming, what to the wicked plead for? For the mountains to fall on them and hide them from the presence of Jesus.

Please note, that sin cuts people off from God and that alienation happens in the heart and mind of the sinner. As soon as Adam and Eve sinned they ran and hid, but God, in love, mercy, and with forgiveness ran after them and has been pursuing sinful humanity ever since.

The Bible tells us that while we were still sinners Jesus died for us (Romans 5:8). For God so loved the world He sent His Son (John 3:16). So sin does not cause God to pull away from us; it is unhealed, unremedied, unremoved sin in the sinner that causes the sinner to pull away and cut themselves off from God. And eventually, when the unremedied sin destroys the faculties that respond to love and truth and no further amount of love and truth will have any saving impact, then God let's go, He stops using His power to prevent the separation and the sinner reaps what they have sown—eternal separation from source of life and they die.

What about the idea that "Scripture speaks of the records of sins that are being kept for the Judgment Day (Dan. 7:10, Rev. 20:12)"

This is a sad misunderstanding that people draw when they read the Bible with the lie that God's law functions like human law.

The lesson cites Daniel 7:10:

- A river of fire was flowing, coming out from before him. Thousands upon thousands attended him; ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him. The court was seated, and the books were opened. (Daniel 7:10 NIV84).

Is there anything in this text that says these books are books that contain records of sin? Is there anything in the text that says this is a legal proceeding?

Some argue that the "court" being seated indicates a courtroom, a legal court with a judge and jury. And that is exactly how people read it when they go to the Bible with the Roman view of law, when they falsely believe God's government works like Rome's with imposed law and legal proceedings. But the text doesn't actually say any of that, it is all presumed and projected in.

There is another type of judgment that is not legal in nature—the judgment that is at the center of the Great Controversy, the judgment that the entire universe is required to make, the judgment that must occur and is required for the sin problem to come to an end—and that judgment is what Paul describes in Romans 3:4. And it is that judgment which is being described here in Daniel 7:10.

- Let God be proven true, and every human being shown up as a liar, just as it is written: "so that you will be justified in your words and will prevail when you are judged." (Romans 3:4 NET, emphasis theirs)

The issue in the entire Great Controversy is whether God is trustworthy, did Satan tell the truth about God or did Satan lie about God? Are we safe with God when God is all powerful and all-knowing, including knowing the future before it even occurs?

So Daniel describes a time when the heavenly court is seated, but this is not a legal court, it is the heavenly royal court, and the court in which Jesus is coronated and receives His kingdom. And when Jesus, in His humanity, receives His throne then the books are opened so that the onlooking universe can see the evidence and make a right judgment about God, so that the Great Controversy can be ended. For this is hour in history for God to be judged, the hour of His judgment has come! It is the time for Satan's lies about God to be permanently rejected and God to be judged righteous!

The court in Daniel 7 is the exact same court we see in Revelation 4 & 5, and we know how Daniel and Revelation go hand in hand and complement each other.

In Revelation 4 and 5, you will find that, just as in Daniel 7, there is:

- a great assembly in heaven
- that the ancient of days has taken His throne
- he is surrounded by the 24 elders and the four living creatures
- Jesus comes and is recognized as worthy—is coronated as righteous ruler
- and a book which is sealed with seven seals is opened

Daniel 7 and Revelation 4 and 5 are describing the same event.

And what is recorded in the book with seven seals?

In my view, this is the book of God's foreknowledge, what He foreknew would happen before He created anything including Lucifer. God recorded it all and sealed it with seven seals. Then He began to create and created recording angels to document history as it unfolded in accurate detail. At some point in time Lucifer rebels and the entire Great Controversy unfolds, Adam falls, Jesus comes and redeems humanity and then a time comes in history when a grand court is seated and the books are opened, and those books are both the books are both of history recorded by the recording angels and the book sealed with seven seals, which Jesus the Lamb opens. And as the books are compared all see that God, though He has foreknowledge, never uses that knowledge to restrict our freedom, that God didn't manipulate, or act in any way with His use of power but that which was the outworking of love for the good of His creation. And God is judged righteous and innocent of all of Satan's charges and Satan is judged as guilty of all sin, pain, suffering, and death.

This is the judgment of Daniel 7, and we participate in that investigative judgment as we also are called to investigate the evidence God has given at such extreme cost to Himself and make a right judgment about God, to stop worshiping the imperial Roman dictator god and return to worshiping Him who made the heavens, earth, sea, and fountains of water, to return to Creator worship which means rejecting the imposed law lies with its penal legal system and understand God's laws as design laws.

There is another set of books mentioned in Revelation 20:12, the Great White throne Judgment, the books from which the wicked are judged according to the deeds recorded there. And what are these books? Revelation 20:12 explicitly states it is the book of life, the place in heaven where God keeps the sleeping souls, where individualities and characters are recorded. And the wicked are judged, diagnosed, by what is actually in their hearts, minds, and characters. It is not a judicial proceeding, it is an accurate diagnosis of what they have chosen to become when they refused the Remedy of Jesus Christ which, had they accepted would have removed from them all sinfulness, all fear, guilt, shame, evil, and deceit. But having rejected Jesus they have solidified themselves in sin, thus the records being a full and complete transcript of their actual individuality and character contains all the ongoing evil they still have within them.

Thus, when the judge at the end separate sheep and goats the action of the judge to separate sheep and goats does not make sheep into sheep and goats into goats, it merely and accurately distinguishes what is.

Read the second paragraph,

- The psalmist thus appeals to God's forgiveness, which will eradicate the record of sins (Ps. 51:1, 9; Jer. 31:34; Mic. 7:19). He knows that "God is not angry by nature. His love is > everlasting. His ‘anger’ is aroused only by man’s failure to appreciate His love. . . . The purpose of His anger is not to wound, but rather to heal man; not to destroy but to save His covenant people (see Hos. 6:1, 2).”—Hans K. LaRondelle, Deliverance in the Psalms (Berrien Springs, MI: First Impressions, 1983), pp. 180, 181. Remarkably, it is God’s readiness to forgive sins, and not to punish them, that inspires reverence of God (Ps. 130:4, Rom. 2:4). Genuine worship is built on admiration of God’s character of love, not on fear of punishment. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 55).

There is much in this paragraph that we can appreciate, that God wants worship based on admiration and love not on fear—in fact if people are worshiping God out of fear what does that reveal and what happens to them if that doesn’t change? It reveals they don’t truly know God, but have some falsehoods about God still operating in their hearts, and if it doesn’t change they get harmed by it, physically and spiritually. Fear activates fear inflammatory cascades in the body causing health problems, and fear leads to distrust and rebellion, or submission and loss of individuality, mindless slaves. That is why the Bible teaches that perfect love casts out all fear.

Just to clarify, we mean fear as in terror, being afraid, not the old English definition of awe, admiration, and reverence, we are always to grow in awe, admiration, and reverence for God while we have no fear.

What of the sentence, “The psalmist thus appeals to God’s forgiveness, which will eradicate the record of sins”?

Does God erase the records, history, facts? If so, how can we still read about David in the Bible, haven’t those records been erased? Will there be no Bibles in heaven?

What about when David and Bathsheba are talking with Uriah and Solomon comes up and says hello mother? Hmmm…will they know how Solomon became their child? Will Uriah be aware?

Sin does not happen in record books and it doesn’t get erased from record books. Sin happens in hearts and minds and God cleanses hearts and minds from sin, not books. The penal legal model cheats people from genuine salvation by getting them to find security in a legal adjustment in books rather than actual healing of their hearts and minds.

What do you think of this sentence? “His ‘anger’ is aroused only by man’s failure to appreciate His love”?

This sentence could easily be misconstrued—let’s understand that the author meant it in the best light, that of a parent who is angry at disease that harms their child, but not at the child. So God’s anger is toward sin, not the child who is sinful, thus God’s anger is aroused when sin prevents people from appreciating God’s love.

But this choice of language could be easily misunderstood and confusing when discussing love, because love is relational and in this context it is being suggested that God gets angry when we don’t appreciate His love. I have had many female patients, wives, come to see me after their husbands got angry and beat them because they didn’t appreciate their love. Are we suggesting that if we don’t appreciate God’s love that God gets angry and His anger must be vented, and if we don’t love Him by accepting Jesus, then He will vent that anger on us? If so, are we presenting a god who functions no differently than a self-centered narcissistic and abusive husband?

Sadly, I have seen God presented in this way more than one. But this is a lie, God is never the source of inflicted harm, suffering, or death. God's anger is at the sin and situation, because He knows that those who don't appreciate His love will suffer terribly from unremedied sin and die eternally.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 113, let's compare the NIV and REM:

- Praise the LORD. Praise, O servants of the LORD, praise the name of the LORD. Let the name of the LORD be praised, both now and forevermore. From the rising of the sun to the place where it sets, the name of the LORD is to be praised. (Psalm 113:1-3 NIV84).
- Praise the Lord. Give praise, all who speak the truth about God; shine brightly, revealing the character and methods of the Lord. Let God's character of love be praised, both now and forevermore. Throughout all creation—from east to west—God's character of love is praiseworthy. (Psalm 113:1-3 REM).

In the Remedy, I attempted to bring forth the meaning in the setting of the GC. Who are the servants of the Lord? All throughout Scripture the servants of God are His prophets, which are not primarily prognosticators, but are the people who go out to others with a message from God for the people, they are God's spokespersons. And what does it mean to praise God? Does it not mean to reveal the truth about Him? Can we truly praise God if we are misrepresenting Him? So in this context I paraphrased the true message that we are to praise God by speaking the truth about Him, being bright lights of truth that reveal His true character—why? What does a name mean in the Bible context? It means their character, thus those who praise the name of God are elevating, praising, and magnifying the true character of God.

- The LORD is exalted over all the nations, his glory above the heavens. Who is like the LORD our God, the One who sits enthroned on high, who stoops down to look on the heavens and the earth? (Psalm 113:4-6 NIV84).
- The Creator is supreme — greater than all nations; his glory is higher than the heavens. Who is like our Creator God, the infinite One who sits enthroned high above our reality, who must bend down from infinity to look upon the heavens and the earth? (Psalm 113:4-6 REM)

My view elevates God as Creator as the One who sits above and outside of our linear plane of existence, sustaining all things and thus is beyond all of us, and is outside of time itself. This becomes important in understanding the plan of salvation and what God is seeking to fix, heal, resolve—not primarily temporal or earthly things, but God wants to restore His creation to harmony with the rest of the universe, free it from sin. This difference is noted in the following verses and how they are interpreted differently:

- He raises the poor from the dust and lifts the needy from the ash heap; he seats them with princes, with the princes of their people. He settles the barren woman in her home as a happy mother of children. Praise the LORD. (Psalm 113:7–9 NIV84).
- He raises from dust those dying in sin and exalts those who need healing from decay; he seats them upon thrones, with his royal family redeemed from the earth. He makes the barren place home—a happy motherland filled with his children. Praise the Lord. (Psalm 113:7–9 REM).

I think the true message inspired by the Holy Spirit, is the message of the plan of salvation from sin and the restoration of the Earth to God's home for human beings—as Jesus said, the meek will inherent the earth. I think that when we see the message of Scripture as primarily about this sinful plane of existence and delivering from earthly problems, we find promises that are unreliable, some people are delivered, but many righteous are not. But when we realize the true message of Scripture, every single righteous person is delivered.

THURSDAY

The lesson focuses our attention on Psalm 103, let's compare the NIV and REM:

- Praise the LORD, O my soul; all my inmost being, praise his holy name. (Psalm 103:1 NIV84).
- Praise the Lord, O my soul; with all that is within me, praise his perfect character of love! (Psalm 103:1 REM).

Do you hear these differently? Is my paraphrase leading away from the true meaning, or does the holy name of God mean His perfect character of love?

- Praise the LORD, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits—who forgives all your sins and heals all your diseases, who redeems your life from the pit and crowns you with love and compassion, who satisfies your desires with good things so that your youth is renewed like the eagle's. (Psalm 103:2-5 NIV84).
- Praise the Lord, O my soul, and do not forget all he does to heal us: He forgives all our deviations from his design-law for life and provides the remedy to our sin-sickness, delivering us from eternal death and enveloping us in his love and tender mercies; he fills and adorns us with his goodness and gives us new life—a rebirth—to soar free like an eagle. (Psalm 103:2-5 REM).

What do you think of these two versions? As you compare the Remedy with the NIV, do you think the Remedy introduces ideas that are not in the NIV, or does the Remedy simply make the true meaning clearer? What do you think the true message of Scripture is, about satisfying the earthly desires of our youth, or about being reborn into God's heavenly family?

- The LORD works righteousness and justice for all the oppressed. (Psalm 103:6 NIV84).
- The Lord does what is right—restores his creation to harmony with his design, healing those who are crushed by sin and selfishness. (Psalm 103:6 REM).

When you hear "justice" what do you think? What is justice for the oppressed? The Remedy understands justice through design law, doing what is right, which is restoring creation back to God's design for life. Notice a difference in the following verses:

- He made known his ways to Moses, his deeds to the people of Israel: The LORD is compassionate and gracious, slow to anger, abounding in love. He will not always accuse, nor will he harbor his anger forever; he does not treat us as our sins deserve or repay us according to our iniquities. For as high as the heavens are above the earth, so great is his love for those who fear him; as far as the east is from the west, so far has he removed our transgressions from us. (Psalm 103:7-12 NIV84)

- He made known his ways to Moses, his methods to the people of Israel: The Lord is merciful and gracious; he is infinite in love, holding on as long as there is hope—yet he will not strive for all eternity to win our hearts; he will not hold back forever letting us go our own rebellious way. He doesn't lay on us what our terminal sin-condition rightly deserves or leave us to rot in character, as our selfishness would naturally do. As high as heaven is above the earth, so mighty is his love to heal those who revere him; as far as the east is from the west, so far he removes the infection of fear and selfishness from us. (Psalm 113:7-12 REM).

Do you see how design law helps us understand the reality of what is happening, how God is always love, always gracious, always merciful, and that God in mercy will not allow the unrighteous to suffer forever, but stops pursuing when there is no longer any hope of cure. And what is God actually removing from sinners—Is God, in the plan of salvation. removing deeds from sinners, changing historical facts, removing records of deeds, or is God removing the sin, sinfulness, fear, selfishness, distrust and rebellion from our hearts and minds. In other words, removing the carnal nature from us and restoring in us the divine nature.

- As a father has compassion on his children, so the LORD has compassion on those who fear him; for he knows how we are formed, he remembers that we are dust. As for man, his days are like grass, he flourishes like a flower of the field; the wind blows over it and it is gone, and its place remembers it no more. But from everlasting to everlasting the LORD's love is with those who fear him, and his righteousness with their children's children—with those who keep his covenant and remember to obey his precepts. (Psalm 103:13-18 NIV84).
- As a father tenderly pours love upon his children, so the Lord tenderly pours his love upon those who revere him; for he knows how we are made, and he realizes we are descended from one man who was formed from mud. For human life is like grass: we blossom like flowers in the field, then the winds of time blow and the flower is gone, and where it grew no one remembers. But from eternity past to eternity future, the love of the Lord flows out to those who revere him—his righteous remedy healing all generations who participate in his treatment plan and live in harmony with his design protocols for life. (Psalm 103:13-18 REM).

Does it help you understand the meaning more clearly to shift away from "keep his covenant and obey his presents" to "who participate in his treatment plan and live in harmony with his design protocols for life"?

- The LORD has established his throne in heaven, and his kingdom rules over all. Praise the LORD, you his angels, you mighty ones who do his bidding, who obey his word. Praise the LORD, all his heavenly hosts, you his servants who do his will. Praise the LORD, all his works everywhere in his dominion. Praise the LORD, O my soul. (Psalm 103:19-22 NIV84)
- The Creator God has established his throne in heaven, and his kingdom of love governs over all creation. Praise the Lord, you loyal angels of God—you mighty beings who do his bidding, who carry out his commands. Praise the Lord, all who live in heaven—you who live devoted to doing his will. Praise the Lord, everything he has created, throughout his entire domain. Praise the Lord, O my soul. (Psalm 103:19-22 REM)

2024 1Q Psalms Lesson 8
Wisdom for Righteous Living

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

What is wisdom? Is it the same as IQ? Is it the same as knowledge?

Wisdom is the ability to discern, differentiate, prioritize, and choose what is actually, in reality, healthy, right, true, and good—what is the best conclusion, course, action in any given situation.

Can wisdom be achieved by following a list of rules? Even if those rules are good ones? Why or why not? Because wisdom requires understanding of the reasons—rule-keeping impairs growth in understanding! So legal religions actually interfere with growing in godly wisdom, because they keep believers functioning as children, on spiritual milk—we are not suggesting the babes in Christ are not saved, or don't love Jesus, we are simply describing reality—if one needs the rules one is still immature and therefore not yet wise.

What is required for wisdom? Understanding of reality—understanding God's character, God's design laws, God's purposes; understanding the problem, the circumstances, the situation, and then applying God's methods, God's design laws, God's principles to the problem in its setting or situation.

If one follows a list of rules, applying those rules in all circumstances, without understanding the design laws of God, the principles of God, the purposes of God, without understanding the real cause of the problem and the situation then such a person will follow rules seeking to do good, but will instead harm, instead of being wise, they will be foolish. This is what all legal religions and legal theologies do, though they claim to be wise they are fools. They have a form of godliness but without power to save. For example:

- The religious leaders who persecuted and crucified Christ—they criticized Him for healing on the Sabbath and His disciples for pulling heads of grain on the Sabbath—why? Because they had a rule—a rule that they wanted to apply without regard to God's design law and thus thinking they were wise in legal law keeping of God's commandments, they were fools and rejected the Creator and Lord of the Sabbath

This is what happens with all human governments; this is what happened during COVID, all kinds of harmful and provably destructive actions enforced upon people, and some are still doing them, because of following rules rather than thinking and applying wisdom. For example:

- People driving alone in their cars wearing masks.

- Law enforcement giving tickets to people who sit in their car in a parking lot listening to a sermon over a PA system or arresting people walking alone on in a park for not wearing a mask.
- Or people at sporting events required to wear a mask but the athletes in the event were not required to wear a mask.
- One of the primary goals of all of that was to condition people to stop thinking, to, based on fear, revert to childlike functioning, accept voices of authority without question. To become mindless pawns easily manipulated by the powerful elites. Sadly, throughout much of church history various church leaders have functioned exactly the same way.

Paul wrote:

- "For although they knew God, they neither glorified him as God nor gave thanks to him, but their thinking became futile and their foolish hearts were darkened. Although they claimed to be wise, they became fools and exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images made to look like mortal man and birds and animals and reptiles" (Romans 1:21-23 NIV84).

Are images made to look like mortal man restricted to statues? No, this would include creating a god of self, of evolutionary theology claiming humans are the highest evolved life form and working to create humans 2.0 by genetic and cybernetic manipulation. It would include the legal theologies in which it is taught that God functions like a mortal man, He makes up laws like mortal man does, and He uses external coercion like mortal man does to inflict legal penalties on people for rule breaking, and His justice is the same justice as mortal man's, the punishing of the law breaker. Thus, the glory of the immortal God is exchanged and people worship a mortal man in the place of God in their penal substitutionary theology, and because of the law of worship, they will become like that false god, and it will seem right and good to them to use the power of their office, of the state, to coerce the consciences of others for a good goal—such as "to save lives" or protect the environment etc.

What wisdom have you gleaned from God's Word that has helped you live righteously?

I love this paragraph from the book Education, do you see wisdom in this paragraph, and if so, what wisdom?

- The student should learn to view the word as a whole, and to see the relation of its parts. He should gain a knowledge of its grand central theme, of God's original purpose for the world, of the rise of the great controversy, and of the work of redemption. He should understand the nature of the two principles that are contending for supremacy, and should learn to trace their working through the records of history and prophecy, to the great consummation. He should see how this controversy enters into every phase of human experience; how in every act of life he himself reveals the one or the other of the two antagonistic motives; and how, whether he will or not, he is even now deciding upon which side of the controversy he will be found. (Education 190).

Tell me the wisdom of the following from this paragraph:

- Approaching the study of the Bible as a student
    - If we go to the Bible as an expert, as the teacher of the Bible, or as a cynic, critic, doubter, or as someone who already knows what the Bible teaches and is looking to support preconceived ideas, such as the idea that God's law functions like human law and God is the source of punishment etc.,—then our hearts and minds are closed to truth and we cannot learn. But if we have the heart and mind of a student, recognizing we are finite, and we have much to learn and the Bible is a source of God's inspired revelation to us, and we approach its study humbly, with eager desire to be instructed and learn, then the Bible becomes the bread of heaven to us.
- Viewing the word as a whole
    - If we take a little here and a little there we can make the Bible say anything and this is one of the reasons there are so many denominations. Wisdom is in recognizing that there is one God, one human race, one sin problem, one solution to the sin problem and the Bible teaches this reality and must be taken as a whole.
- Recognizing how various parts relate
    - Wisdom understands the various parts are teaching the same truth and applying the same principles, but if we confuse the parts and misconstrue the setting, for instance misunderstand that the theme of the OT is the coming Messiah, the promised Seed of Genesis 3:15, and instead think it is about a legal relationship with a specific branch of the human family, then some teach that in OT times God saved people through animal sacrifices, or if we misconstrue first and second death, or misconstrue God's design laws with God setting up a civil government that did NOT represent His kingdom, but merely kept open the avenue for the Messiah while teaching in object lesson the truth of His kingdom, then one will misread the Bible, and come to foolish, legal, human-law based beliefs that work against God, all the while claiming wisdom. But if we understand the principles then we can examine the various parts and realize that God is always apply the same principles, just like a parent who loves their child in one situation they hug and kiss, in another situation they yell out in warning, even with threats to stop their child from running in the street, and in another situation they set up rules with temporary made up inflicted punishments designed to discipline and protect, not set up a legal government.
- Gaining a knowledge of its grand central theme
    - The grand central theme is the Great Controversy over God's character and government, and humanity is caught up in this larger war and the theme is God working to eradicate sin from the universe through the outworking of His design laws—truth, love, and freedom, which expose the liar and win us to trust, while at the same time providing Jesus to restore humanity back to sinless perfection—to fix what Adam's sin did to humanity.
- God's original purpose for the world, of the rise of the great controversy, and of the work of redemption.
    - What is God's original purpose? What was happening in the universe when God made this planet with all its life, and the Sabbath—when God created it and what was its purpose?

- Understanding the nature of the two principles that are contending for supremacy
    - It is wisdom to recognize that God's divine nature is seen in what He has made so that men are without excuse—design laws that all reality are built upon, but also to recognize that all nature groans under the weight of sin, that the law of sin and death is at work in nature and the world. In other words, two antagonistic principles the law of life versus the law sin and death. Do we understand these two principles?
- Learning to trace their working through the records of history and prophecy, to the great consummation.
    - Can we see that through all human history these two powers, God versus Satan, Love, Truth, Freedom versus fear/selfishness, lies/deception, and coercion have been warring for hearts and minds? Do we see that these principles are coming to a head in world events leading up to the second coming? Do we see how they played out during the COVID crisis and how many so-called saints were duped into accepting and applying the methods of Satan under the guise of doing good—some were just babes in Christ and like good and obedient children followed the voices of authority, but others who were in leadership in the church demonstrated true foolishness while they claimed to be wise?
- Seeing how this controversy enters into every phase of human experience
    - Do we understand that it is not primarily about the behavior, but the motive of heart that leads to the behavior. Are we motivated by truth, love, and the respect for the freedom of others, or are we motivated by fear, insecurity, the need to protect self, a willingness to coerce others to advance what we believe is right?
- Applying all of this to learn how in every act of life he himself reveals the one or the other of the two antagonistic motives; and how, whether he will or not, he is even now deciding upon which side of the controversy he will be found.
    - Do we recognize that we are infected with fear and selfishness that our spirits are sick and that we must be reborn with new hearts and right spirits that love God and others more than self and that new spiritual vitality of love leads us to do what is right, healthy, and reasonable because it is so, not because a rule says it?

SUNDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 119 and in the commentary seems to equate the use of the word "law" in this psalm with the Ten Commandments, for instance, the second to the last paragraph states,

- God's commandments are a revelation of God's will for the world. They instruct people on how to become wise and to live in freedom and peace (Ps. 119:7-11, 133). The psalmist delights in the law because the law assures him of God's faithfulness (Ps. 119:77, 174). (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 61).

When you hear "God's commandments" what does that cause your mind to think? It is true the lesson doesn't say "the Ten Commandments," so maybe the authors don't mean that and maybe it is just that I am so conditioned to equate commandments with the Ten Commandments.

If we do consider the commandments as the Ten Commandments, would the sentence, "God's commandments are a revelation of God's will for the world," most accurately communicate the meaning of what psalm 119 is trying to tell us? Or, if we understand the law or commandments to mean the Ten Commandments then does this sentence create a framework that boxes in the psalm, an idea that ropes our thoughts into a legal way of thinking about God's law that is actually contrary to what the psalmist was intending, and is contrary to what Jesus was teaching?

In other words, is the psalm restricted to, primarily about, intended to focus our attention upon the Ten Commandments, or is the psalm leading us to move way past the Ten Commandments and understand God's law as design law and not a list of rules?

Jesus and the New Testament writers tried to teach us this:

- "The entire law is summed up in a single command: 'Love your neighbor as yourself.'" (Galatians 5:14, NIV84, emphasis mine)
- "If you really keep the royal law found in Scripture, 'Love your neighbor as yourself,' you are doing right." (James 2:8, NIV84 emphasis mine)
- "Jesus replied: 'Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind.' This is the first and greatest commandment. And the second is like it: 'Love your neighbor as yourself.' All the Law and the Prophets hang on these two commandments." (Matthew 22:37-40, NIV84, emphasis mine)

God's design laws are not lists of rules, and in fact, all the written laws were added after sin, including the Ten Commandments. And they were added because we needed them, not because God's government works on imposed written laws.

This was the controversy at the 1888 SDA General Conference, with the righteousness by faith message of the ongoing Reformation advancing the truth that the law in Galatians that was added was the Ten Commandments, and the legalist church leaders rejecting the advancing truth and declaring the Ten Commandments are eternal and not added, that God's law is imposed, that sin is legal, and that righteousness by faith is legal trick when God declares people to be righteous while they remain unrighteous, rather than the truth of Scripture 2 Corinthians 5:21, that we become righteous.

We will never finish the Reformation, never fulfill our end-time mission to lighten the world for Christ's return as long as we present God's law as imposed for that penal legal message is not the Testimony that Jesus gave. The final message that we are to give is the Testimony of Jesus—that if we have seen Him we have seen the Father, that God's laws are design laws and God is not the source of inflicted pain, suffering, and death as punishment for sin. The Adventist Reformers, whose message was rejected by the Adventist legalists in 1888, taught that the idea that God must punish sin is Satan's lie from the opening of the Great Controversy!

- In the opening of the great controversy, Satan had declared that the law of God could not be obeyed, that justice was inconsistent with mercy, and that, should the law be broken, it would be impossible for the sinner to be pardoned. Every sin must meet its punishment, urged Satan; and if God should remit the punishment of sin, He would not be a God of truth and justice. (The Desire of Ages 761, emphasis mine)

Psalm 119 is an incredible psalm that teaches the truth about God's law being design law, yet when people falsely believe that God's law is imposed they are vulnerable to read the psalm in legal ways, as rules enforced by external coercive force.

The lesson points our attention to the first 16 verses of psalm 119, let's contrast the first 8 verses from the NIV and REM:

- Blessed are they whose ways are blameless, who walk according to the law of the LORD. (Psalm 119:1 NIV84)
- Happy and healthy are those whose characters have been healed, who live in harmony with God's design for life. (Psalm 119:1 REM)

- Blessed are they who keep his statutes and seek him with all their heart. (Psalm 119:2 NIV84)
- Happy and healthy are those who preserve God's principles in their characters and seek him with all their heart. (Psalm 119:2 REM)

- They do nothing wrong; they walk in his ways. (Psalm 119:3 NIV84)
- They do no wrong; they walk in the Lord's ways. (Psalm 119:3 REM)

- You have laid down precepts that are to be fully obeyed. (Psalm 119:4 NIV84)
- You have established the laws upon which life and health are built, and they are to be eagerly observed. (Psalm 119:4 REM)

- Oh, that my ways were steadfast in obeying your decrees! (Psalm 119:5 NIV84)
- Oh, how I wish my nature was established to naturally live in harmony with your design protocols for life! (Psalm 119:5 REM)

- Then I would not be put to shame when I consider all your commands. (Psalm 119:6 NIV84)
- Then I would not feel ashamed when I compare my life to your perfect law of love. (Psalm 119:6 REM)

- I will praise you with an upright heart as I learn your righteous laws. (Psalm 119:7 NIV84)
- When your living law of love is assimilated into my mind and character, then I will praise you with a heart that is right with you. (Psalm 119:7 REM)

- I will obey your decrees; do not utterly forsake me. (Psalm 119:8 NIV84)

- I will live in harmony with your specifications for life; please don't let go of me. (Psalm 119:8 REM)

MONDAY

Read the third paragraph,

- God restrains His righteous wrath and extends His grace anew. The psalmist exclaims, "Who knows the power of Your anger?" (Ps. 90:11, NKJV), implying that no one has ever experienced the full effect of God's anger against sin, and so, there is hope for people to repent and gain wisdom for righteous living. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 62).

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 90:11, which, in the NIV, reads:

- Who knows the power of your anger? For your wrath is as great as the fear that is due you. (Psalm 90:11 NIV84).

What do you think? Let's read a little wider in psalm 90, verses 7-13 comparing the NIV with REM:

- We are consumed by your anger and terrified by your indignation. (Psalm 90:7 NIV84)
- Our sin-sickness comes to an end in your presence, therefore, it terrifies us to be abandoned by you. (Psalm 90:7 REM)

- You have set our iniquities before you, our secret sins in the light of your presence. (Psalm 90:8 NIV84)
- Our terminal condition is laid out before you, the corruption most deeply hidden in our souls is exposed in your presence. (Psalm 90:8 REM)

- All our days pass away under your wrath; we finish our years with a moan. (Psalm 90:9 NIV84)
- All of our days we struggle to turn away from the selfishness which you hate; our lives end in mournful meditation. (Psalm 90:9 REM)

- The length of our days is seventy years—or eighty, if we have the strength; yet their span is but trouble and sorrow, for they quickly pass, and we fly away. (Psalm 90:10 NIV84)
- We live for seventy years, or eighty years if we are strong; but our selfishness causes life to be hard — a struggle filled with sorrow; time flies by so quickly and we pass away. (Psalm 90:10 REM)

- Who knows the power of your anger? For your wrath is as great as the fear that is due you. (Psalm 90:11 NIV84)

- Who really knows how angry it makes you that this happened to us? Your wrath to destroy sin is awe-inspiring. (Psalm 90:11 REM)

- Teach us to number our days aright, that we may gain a heart of wisdom. (Psalm 90:12 NIV84)
- Help us understand our terminal condition—how short life really is—so that we may have the wisdom to partake of your remedy and experience renewed hearts. (Psalm 90:12 REM)

- Relent, O LORD! How long will it be? Have compassion on your servants. (Psalm 90:13 NIV84)
- When will you turn to us, O Lord—turn and comfort your helpers? (Psalm 90:12 REM)

Do you see how the law lens one holds completely changes how one understands the Scripture, how the legal law lens twists and undermines the gospel? When the human law lens is used to interpret the Scriptures instead of reading the truth about God that removes our fear and restores us to trust in God, the Scriptures are twisted to be a cause of fear. This is why the Bible tells is in Revelation 14 that the final message that lightens the world is the message of the eternal gospel; the message that calls people back to worship God as Creator and calls people to stop worshiping Him as a Babylonian dictator, to finally make a right judgment about God, which means we must reject the human imposed law lie and return to design law understandings!

And this leads us to a proper understanding of wrath, the difference between Satan's wrath and God's wrath.

How would you describe the difference between Satan's wrath and God's wrath?

Satan's wrath is the application of might, power, and force to inflict and cause pain, suffering, torment upon whomever the wrath is vented—it is the wrath of a creature, the wrath of imposed law, the infliction of punishment.

God's wrath is the exact opposite, it is letting go, the cessation or stopping of the use of God's divine power that He has been using to hold at bay the pain, suffering, and injury that comes from breaking the laws that He built reality to operate upon.

Sadly, however, far too many people, having accepted the Romanization of Christianity, the lie that God's law functions like human law, teach that God's wrath is the use of power to inflict punishment or pain—and they interpret that false understanding into how they read Scripture.

For instance, someone listening might say—"sure, right, I bet that is what happened to Sodom and Gomorrah—God just stopped using power, He didn't use any divine power there—right?" And they use the story of Sodom and others like it, where God did use power to try and prove that God's wrath functions the same way that Satan's does and they reject design law and the truth we are teaching.

Those who do this do so because the human law system is so deeply embedded into their thinking that they take a very superficial understanding of what they are seeing, they deny evidence that would enlighten them, and conflate divergent issues. It would be like observing a surgeon using a scalpel to amputate a gangrenous leg and allege the surgeon's anger and wrath is the same as a pirate who uses a sword while marauding to cut off an enemy's leg—after all both sitautions have someone using a sharp instrument to cut off a leg.

This is what people who use examples like Sodom, the Flood, the 185,000 Assyrians, the 10 plagues of Egypt and God's actions in the OT do. They do not understand reality, they don't understand the situation, God's design laws and methods, and look only at the most superficial level of activity. For instance, they will claim those examples as God punishing sin—yet the punishment for sin is eternal death, not sleep death—and all of the deaths in OT times were sleep death, so they cannot be punishment for sin, yet they deny this very simple and obvious truth. Also, in their own false legal model, punishment comes after judgment and the judgment is future from the time of Sodom, so again it could not be punishment for sin.

So, if at Sodom, God wasn't acting in wrath, and clearly God was not just passively letting people go, or abandoning them to the consequences of their choices, and if God was not inflicting punishment for sin, then what?

God was fulfilling His promise of Genesis 3:15, to bring the Messiah, by working to preserve the line of the Messiah, to prevent Satan from destroying the avenue through whom the Messiah would be born. The entire OT is the outworking of the plan of salvation, which is the bringing of the Messiah. God, looking down the corridors of time, seeing the land where His helpers, the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob would live, saw that if Sodom and the other cities remained that they would be effective in seducing and destroying the branch of the human family from whom Jesus would be born. Even without those cities, only two tribes were still around by the time of Jesus, 10 tribes had been dispersed. So, we see God not acting in wrath against Sodom and Gomorrah, but in mercy, therapeutically, for without that action no human could be saved. And all of those people who died in Sodom and Gomorrah, died the sleep death, their life is not ended, just suspended, and they will arise in one of two resurrections to complete their life by their own free-will choices, for the wicked at the end of the 1000 years when they freely choose to join Satan and attack the city, rather than repent and submit to God. Thus demonstrating that God's actions in putting them to sleep in the grave in no way determined their destiny, for even with the New Jerusalem on the Earth, and the evidence of the saved inside the city, they still will not repent and be saved.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson title is Deceitfulness of the Wicked Way and the lesson focuses our attention on psalm 141, let's compare the NIV with the REM:

- LORD, I call to you; come quickly to me. Hear my voice when I call to you. May my prayer be set before you like incense; may the lifting up of my hands be like the evening sacrifice. (Psalm 141:1-2 NIV84)

- O Lord, I call for your help — come quickly to me. Respond kindly to my voice when I call to you. Make my prayers pure and sweet, like the most fragrant incense before you; I raise my hands, surrendering to your cleansing — just like the evening sacrifice depicts. (Psalm 141:1-2 REM)

- Set a guard over my mouth, O LORD; keep watch over the door of my lips. Let not my heart be drawn to what is evil, to take part in wicked deeds with men who are evildoers; let me not eat of their delicacies. (Psalm 141:3-4 NIV84)
- Lord, empower me with the ability to control what I say; let me speak nothing that misrepresents you. Turn the desires of my heart away from fear and selfishness, away from evil activity; don't let me share the pleasures of those who do wrong. (Psalm 141:3-4 REM)

- Let a righteous man strike me—it is a kindness; let him rebuke me—it is oil on my head. My head will not refuse it. Yet my prayer is ever against the deeds of evildoers; their rulers will be thrown down from the cliffs, and the wicked will learn that my words were well spoken. They will say, "As one plows and breaks up the earth, so our bones have been scattered at the mouth of the grave." (Psalm 141:5-7 NIV84)
- Let a godly person discipline me—it is a kindness; let the healthy person correct me—it is healing salve to my character. Don't allow the oil of selfishness to permeate my character; my constant prayer is to break the power of wickedness. When, at the judgment, they realize that choosing evil severs their connection to life—like falling off a cliff and expecting to live—they will learn that what I taught was true. They will admit, "As a plow cuts through the earth, so too our evil choices cut us off from life and we are consumed by the grave." (Psalm 141:5-7 REM)

- But my eyes are fixed on you, O Sovereign LORD; in you I take refuge—do not give me over to death. Keep me from the snares they have laid for me, from the traps set by evildoers. Let the wicked fall into their own nets, while I pass by in safety. (Psalm 141:8-10 NIV84)
- But I look to you and keep my trust in you, O Creator God; in you I seek healing—don't let me die. Keep me from the snares the selfish have laid for me—from the traps of the wicked. Those who persist in selfishness will be trapped by their own evil choices, while I pass by safely. (Psalm 141:8-10 REM)

How is it that wickedness deceives? How will the beast of Revelation deceive all but the very elect?

When the beast of Revelation rises, it will not rise to set up cult worship centers to worship some cartoonish depiction of Satan with hooves, a tail, and pitchfork. Satan does NOT want to be worshipped as Satan—Satan has always coveted Jesus' power and position and Satan wants to be worshiped as Christ. For a variety of reasons—for his own selfish ego sake, but also to spite Jesus, to say to Jesus, "Ha, ha, ha, they all claim to be worshiping you but they hate you; they prefer a god like me! They want you to be more like me. In fact, if you were more like me all these people would worship you just like they are worshiping me."

Understand this, Satan's final deception upon the world is to impersonate Jesus Christ—and he can only successfully do this by getting the world, including the Christian world, to accept a version of Jesus that he can impersonate. And Satan leads false Christianity to do this replacing God's design law with human imposed law, and then the god of that system, in justice, must use power to inflict punishment for sin.

So, Satan, right now, is having his forces sow chaos, discord, anarchy, all of which are working to increase fear—men run to and fro their hearts failing them for fear. And into this chaos, Satan will appear impersonating Jesus, claiming to be our Savior who has come to set things right, to do justice. He speaks melodiously, He apparently heals the sick and raises the dead, and offers salvation for all who will worship him, but he states that justice requires that he must punish sinners if they refuse to repent and accept his payment for their sins and him as their savior. He doesn't want to punish them because he claims he has died for them, so rather than kill them immediately he directs those loyal to him, the beastly governments of this world, to enforce economic sanctions, no buying or selling, to imprison, to give time to get them to repent and worship him. But if they still refuse, in then end, with tears in his eyes, he will claim that he is required by law and justice to inflict the death sentence upon them. And this satanic god will be embraced and worshiped by all those who have sealed their hearts and minds into the lie that God's law functions like human law.

THURSDAY

The lesson focuses our attention on the blessings of the Lord, and asks us to read Psalm 112, and Psalm 111 and 112 are the two psalms in which in the Hebrew the psalmist started each line of the psalm with the first letter of the Hebrew alphabet and each subsequent line with the next letter of the Hebrew alphabet. I could not find a translation that did this, so in the Remedy paraphrase I brought this over—however the Hebrew only has 22 letters while we have 26 in English, so the psalm stops after 22 letters.

- All praise be to the Lord!

  Altogether happy are people who live in harmony with the Lord,
  Because they find eternal healing as they delight in his law.
  Crowned victorious, their children will be mighty in love upon the earth;
  Descendants, set right with God, will live in happiness.
  Eternal prosperity and heavenly treasure is theirs;
  Forever righteous they stay.
  Glorious light shines through the darkness for those set right with God,
  Healing descends from him for the merciful, kind and true.
  Indeed, good comes to the generous who freely lend—
  Just and honest they are in all their dealings.
  Knowing God, they will not be corrupted with selfishness;
  Loving others, the righteous will always be remembered.
  Mastering themselves, they don't live in fear of bad news;

New hearts are theirs, fixed in trust of God.
Overcomers, their hearts are sealed to God so they have no fear,
Preserved in purity in the view of their enemies.
Quick to share, they give generously to the poor;
Renewed by God, their righteousness endures forever,
Sanctified character keeps them exalted and glorified.
The wicked will see and be infuriated;
Unhealed, they have no excuse and wither away to nothing;
Vain hope—all their dreams and plans will perish forever. (Psalm 112:1-10 REM).

TUESDAY

The lesson focuses our attention on when God tests us, what do you understand God's testing to mean?

- Is it like our schools when the teacher gives us a test—to find out how much we know?
- Is it to trip us up, to get tempt us to fall?

What about the Adam and Eve in Eden at the Tree of Knowledge, were they tested there? Was it placed there to get them to fall or for another purpose, what purpose?

When you think of God testing us, what law lens do you understand the testing through?

When the Lord puts someone to the test, what is He testing? It is always the same ultimate reason behind the test: Do they trust God or not? Do they have faith/ confidence in God or not? And does their faith/trust/confidence go beyond the belief of devils who tremble, to the faith that is a living faith that results in loyalty to God?

Such tests are necessary in this world of sin because we cannot grow in faith, in trust, unless we are placed in a position in which our faith is tried or tested and we choose to exercise our faith. We must choose to say no to the fear, the insecurity, the doubts, the temptations to act to save self and, instead, choose to apply the truth and do what we understand is right, what is God's will for us in that situation, and trust God with the outcome.

This is the issue; it has always been the issue—are we faithful, loyal friends of God who actually trust Him?

Jesus asked this very question about His second coming:

- When the Son of Man comes, will he find faith on the earth? (Luke 18:8 NIV84).

When Jesus comes again, will He find people who trust Him, who will be faithful to Him, who have chosen to trust Him with their lives, futures, fortunes, and families? Or will He only find people who claim to believe in Him, who have their religion, but who have put their trust in their rules, rituals, ceremonies, blood payments, wealth, institutions, and the power they can wield over others—all in His "name," of course?

Paul said, "Everything that does not come from faith is sin" (Romans 14:23 NIV84).

God wants us to return to a living confidence, trust, and faith in Him, and He allows events to come upon us that will test our faith, put us in positions in which we have to decide whether we scheme, calculate, plot, plan, connive, manipulate, bend the rules, make excuses, cheat in order to save self, or whether we stand for what we know is right and trust God with how it turns out.

David, when he was dedicating materials and his son for the building of the temple, prayed:

- I know, my God, that you test the heart and are pleased with integrity. All these things have I given willingly and with honest intent. And now I have seen with joy how willingly your people who are here have given to you. O LORD, God of our fathers Abraham, Isaac and Israel, keep this desire in the hearts of your people forever, and keep their hearts loyal to you (1 Chronicles 29:17, 18 NIV84, emphasis mine).

God doesn't test, as a human teacher would, to discover the answer—God already knows the answer. God tests so we can actively choose to trust and, thereby, grow, develop, advance, and mature. It is for our development that God tests.

What God wants cannot be created by Him nor chosen by Him. God wants our love, devotion, trust, friendship, and loyalty. He wants us to internalize into our hearts and live out His living laws and, thus, develop Christlike character. This requires us to be placed in circumstances and situations in which we have to choose to trust God or not. So God tests us, but He never allows the test to be more than we can handle at any given point in our development. He has promised:

- No temptation has overtaken you except such as is common to man; but God is faithful, who will not allow you to be tempted beyond what you are able, but with the temptation will also make the way of escape, that you may be able to bear it (1 Corinthians 10:13 NKJV).

God always provides everything necessary for our healing, salvation, and deliverance from fear and selfishness.

- He provides the truth that destroys lies and wins us to trust (John 8:32)
- He provides the love that casts out the fear (1 John 4:18)
- He provides the Savior, His Son, who became a real human and as a human, using only human abilities, chose to love and trust His Father in all things and received as a human the empowering of the Holy Spirit to succeed in all things. And as a human, Jesus developed a perfect righteous and mature human character and destroyed the infection of fear and selfishness that Adam introduced into humanity when he broke trust with God. Thus, Jesus became the new head of humanity, the second Adam (Hebrews 2:14, 4:15, 5:9; 2 Timothy 1:10; 1 John 3:8).

- He provides the Holy Spirit to bring the truth home to our hearts and minds, to convict of sin, to convict of duty, and then (John 14:16) …
- He provides freedom, real freedom, to accept and choose the truth or reject it—and when we choose the truth (Joshua 24:15; Galatians 5:1) …
- He provides the opportunity to test our faith, situations that require us to choose—do we trust God? Do we choose what we know is in harmony with His will, purposes, instructions, guidance, design laws for life and trust Him with outcomes, or do we choose to break trust with Him and seek to advance and save ourselves?
- When we choose to trust Him, He then provides divine power, the indwelling Holy Spirit, to give us the ability to carry out the truth, to stand firm in the face of fear, threat, selfish temptations with a peace that passes understanding, with love for our enemies, with a vision of eternity as we choose to keep our eyes fixed on Jesus and our hearts loyal to Him.

God brings people into circumstances that are beyond their ability so that they will choose to turn to Him, ask for His deliverance, and learn to trust Him; i.e., increase their faith in Him.

2024 1Q Psalms Lesson 9
Blessed is He Who Comes in the Name of the Lord

by Tim Jennings

SUNDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalms that describe Jesus as our Shepherd—and of course the most famous, Psalm 23. How many of you have memorized this psalm?

What a wonderful psalm of comfort—yet as I have grown in my understanding of God's kingdom of love, the sin problem, and God's solution for it, I have realized the Holy Spirit inspired this psalm with more than just comfort in times of earthly troubles, but a revelation of salvation from sin:

"The Lord is my shepherd I shall not want"

God is watching out for me and I don't need to worry about where my support will come from. He will provide all my soul needs.

"He makes me lie down in green pastures, he leads me beside the still waters"

To as sheep green pastures are food, it is our bread. Jesus provides the bread we need and the water we are to drink. Jesus said, I am the bread of heaven and if we would receive it He would give us living water. The Psalmist is teaching us the truth of the secrets to eternal life, notice what comes next after eating the food and drinking the water our Shepherd provides.

"He restores my soul"

He will heal my inner man, cleanse my conscience, and restore my individuality, purify my heart, restore within me the authority to be self-governed that Adam lost, the ability to choose what is right, to say no to evil, the last fruit of the Spirit—self-control!

"He leads me in the path of righteousness for his name sake"

He will lead me in the path which restores me to righteousness, the path that makes me right inside, like He originally intended, so that He and His ways will be glorified in my life—and notice where the path our Good Shepherd leads us that is required to restore us to righteousness…

"When I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil for you are with me"

He, then, after providing for me, strengthening me, cleansing my conscience, removing my guilt, restoring my individuality and ability to say no to evil, leads me in the path to ultimate righteousness, the path through the valley that feels like I am going to die. The valley in which self surrenders and is crucified, the valley which frees me from the domination of fear and selfishness. The valley that Jacob went through the night he wrestled the angel and finally died to the old deceiving ways and with God overcame his fear and selfishness and thus had his named changed from Jacob-deceiver, to Israel—one who with God overcomes, because his character changed. It was the valley that Peter went through after denying Jesus when he went out and wept bitterly and was fully converted. It was the valley David went through after confronted by Nathan and wrote the 51st psalm. It is the valley that every saved person must go through in order to be restored to righteousness. But while in that valley…

"Your rod and staff comfort me"

He comforts me with his shepherd's rod and staff, which is used by the shepherd to beat back my attackers, and lift me out of the ditch when I fall

"You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies"

With my critics and accusers and enemies all around He provides me a rich bounty of spiritual food to strengthen and develop my soul

"You anoint my head with oil"

He provides His Spirit to enlighten, cleanse, renew, empower, and give wisdom

"My cup runs over"

My heart, renewed, cleansed, and freed from fear and selfishness runs over with love for God and my fellow man

"Surely goodness and mercy will follow me all the days of my life"

Living a life of love results in goodness and mercy following in my wake wherever I go

"I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever"

And, having been recreated by God, I will forever be a living stone in the Lord's heavenly temple!

This is God's plan: to heal and restore us for eternal life with him, in reality!

MONDAY

Read second paragraph,

- The torment of Christ's separation from His Father, caused by Christ carrying the entire world's sins, can be measured only by the extent of their closeness, namely, their unparalleled oneness (John 1:1, 2; John 10:30). Yet, even the depths of inexplicable suffering could not break the unity between the Father and the Son. In His utter forsakenness, Christ unconditionally entrusts Himself to the Father, despite the utter depths of despair He faced. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 70).

Then the lesson quotes the following from of The Desire of Ages the following:

- Upon Christ as our substitute and surety was laid the iniquity of us all. He was counted a transgressor, that He might redeem us from the condemnation of the law. The guilt of every descendant of Adam was pressing upon His heart. The wrath of God against sin, the terrible manifestation of His displeasure because of iniquity, filled the soul of His Son with consternation. (The Desire of Ages 753).

Do you hear the following two sentences as being identical, meaning the same thing, or is there a very important difference?

- The torment of Christ's separation from His Father, caused by Christ carrying the entire world's sins, can be measured only by the extent of their closeness, namely, their unparalleled oneness…
- Upon Christ as our substitute and surety was laid the iniquity of us all.

Does one describe events through imposed law while the other through design law?

What is interesting is that EGW the author of The Desire of Ages quoted here advanced the message of the Adventist reformers who at the GC 1888 GC was opposed by the Adventists legalists. The legalists insisted that the Ten Commandments are eternal while the reformers argued they were added because of sinful human need by our gracious and merciful God. The reformers taught design law and that salvation is healing of the sinner from sin, while the legalist taught that sin is a legal problem and salvation is paying God a legal penalty to get legally declared to be righteous while we remain unrighteous. EGW, who the lesson quotes, here rejected the legalists view and advanced what we are teaching, but the church leadership, like the Sanhedrin in Christ's day, rejected the advancing truth and instead have promoted the legal lies of Satan in which God is the source of death inflicted upon sinners as punishment for sin.

So, in the quote for the lesson they have Christ carrying sins, as in bad deeds, behaviors, acts of sin—while EGW has Christ taking up our iniquity, or sinfulness, the sin-sickness with which each of us was born and which causes the symptoms known as sins. The legalists have Christ being externally punished for sin crimes of the people, while EGW has Christ taking up the infection if sinfulness in order to destroy it and take away the sinfulness itself thereby healing and curing humanity. As John the Baptist said about Jesus, He is the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world, not the punishment of God for the sins of the world.

So, in the very next chapter in the book The Desire of Ages that the lesson quotes, EGW makes in overwhelmingly clear that she taught design law and rejected the penal substitutionary legal lie that has infected the church and she describes how this conflict over God's law and how we understand it is at the root of the controversy and comes to a head before the coming of Christ. The Desire of Ages was written after the 1888 GC and was first published in 1898, it describes the message the Adventist Reformers wanted the church to take too the world, but as you will see, it is quite different than the message being taught in our official materials, like the Adult Study Guide.

So, as we examine this chapter, ask yourself, what law lens is the author describing things through, and is it the same as we have been taught in more recent publications?

- Christ did not yield up His life till He had accomplished the work which He came to do, and with His parting breath He exclaimed, “It is finished.” John 19:30. The battle had been won. His right hand and His holy arm had gotten Him the victory. As a Conqueror He planted His banner on the eternal heights. Was there not joy among the angels? All heaven triumphed in the Saviour's victory. Satan was defeated, and knew that his kingdom was lost. (The Desire of Ages 758.1) [But how was Satan defeated? What was necessary to defeat Satan? Was power used to punish Satan? If it was a power issue couldn’t God have defeated Satan long before the Cross? So, what was Christ providing and achieving that won the battle with Satan at the Cross?]

  To the angels and the unfallen worlds the cry, “It is finished,” had a deep significance. It was for them as well as for us that the great work of redemption had been accomplished. They with us share the fruits of Christ's victory. (The Desire of Ages 758.2) [Did the unfallen angels, like Gabriel, need a legal payment to pay for their sins? No, but did they need the Cross? Doesn’t Paul write in Colossians that “all things in heaven and earth are reconciled to Christ at the cross!” So, what did the angels need that Jesus provided at the cross if they didn’t need a blood payment to an angry god to keep that god from killing them? And do we need the same thing?]

  Not until the death of Christ was the character of Satan clearly revealed to the angels or to the unfallen worlds. The archapostate had so clothed himself with deception that even holy beings had not understood his principles. They had not clearly seen the nature of his rebellion. (The Desire of Ages 758.3) [God’s principles of truth, love, and freedom were warring against Satan’s principles the lies, fear, selfishness, and external coercive force—the lie of imposed law, made up rules, power over, inflicted punishments, which are all part of Satan’s kingdom. Fear and selfishness lead to dominance, use of power, coercion, making up rules, and infliction of punishment—Satan’s kingdom, the kingdoms of this world. And no one, including God, can get love, loyalty, friendship, trust, and devotion by threatening and inflicting punishment for not giving it.]

  It was a being of wonderful power and glory that had set himself against God. Of Lucifer the Lord says, “Thou sealest up the sum, full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty.” Ezekiel 28:12. Lucifer had been the covering cherub. He had stood in the light of God's presence. He had been the highest of all created beings, and had been foremost in revealing God's purposes to the universe. After he had sinned, his power to deceive was the more deceptive, and the unveiling of his character was the more difficult, because of the exalted position he had held with the Father. (The Desire of Ages 758.4) [Because Satan was in leadership, was loved and trusted, when he lied, his lies were more difficult to expose. And lies cannot be refuted by simply declaring the truth, evidence must reveal the lie to fully refute and eradicate it.]

God could have destroyed Satan and his sympathizers as easily as one can cast a pebble to the earth; but He did not do this. Rebellion was not to be overcome by force. Compelling power is found only under Satan's government. The Lord's principles are not of this order. His authority rests upon goodness, mercy, and love; and the presentation of these principles is the means to be used. God's government is moral, and truth and love are to be the prevailing power. (The Desire of Ages 759.1) [Can one destroy lies with power, might, inflicted punishments? This is why the penal legal lies perpetuate the sin problem and obstruct the actual power of the gospel from healing hearts and minds. Teaching God will use power to punish sinners and destroy sin is a lie, God cannot destroy sin by the use of might and power, He can only destroy sin by the power of the gospel—truth destroys lies, love destroys selfishness and fear. So when the church teaches that God uses power to punish sinners, they have God acting the role of Satan and they obstruct the gospel. Again, note this is the message that the Adventist Reformers wanted to take to the world, but this message has been replaced in our official publications with the penal legal lie of a punishing god.]

It was God's purpose to place things on an eternal basis of security, and in the councils of heaven it was decided that time must be given for Satan to develop the principles which were the foundation of his system of government. He had claimed that these were superior to God's principles. Time was given for the working of Satan's principles, that they might be seen by the heavenly universe. (The Desire of Ages 759.2) [Because eternal security means eliminating from the hearts and minds of intelligent beings the lies about God, the doubts, the fear, and selfishness. Simply destroying Satan and his angels while his lies are still believed would not restore love and trust in God, it would not eliminate the lies or stop the rebellion, in fact it would fuel more rebellion and fear of God.]

Satan led men into sin, and the plan of redemption was put in operation. For four thousand years, Christ was working for man's uplifting, and Satan for his ruin and degradation. And the heavenly universe beheld it all. (The Desire of Ages 759.3) [This is the entire story of the OT—the promise of Genesis 3:15, the coming Messiah. God working to bring our Savior to redeem us from sin, and Satan working to both obstruct it, by destroying the branch of the human family through whom the Messiah would come, but also to corrupt the plan by infecting the minds of people with his lie that God’s law functions like human law, so that all the truths God had been revealing through history would be misconstrued and misunderstood thereby keeping minds trapped in his fear-based, self-centered, human-devised imperial law concept with a punishing god who requires a sacrifice be paid to him.]

When Jesus came into the world, Satan's power was turned against Him. From the time when He appeared as a babe in Bethlehem, the usurper worked to bring about His destruction. In every possible way he sought to prevent Jesus from developing a perfect childhood, a faultless manhood, a holy ministry, and an unblemished sacrifice. But he was defeated. He could not lead Jesus into sin. He could not discourage Him, or drive Him from a work He had come on earth to do. From the desert to Calvary, the storm of Satan's wrath beat upon Him, but the more mercilessly it fell, the more firmly did the Son of God cling to the hand of His Father, and press on in the bloodstained path. All the efforts of Satan to oppress and overcome Him only brought out in a purer light His spotless character. (The Desire of Ages 759.4) [This is the first description, but not the last, of the objective nature of Christ's mission. Those who criticize us will lie and claim that we teach Moral Influence Theory, the idea that Christ only came to reveal truth to morally influence us back to trust in God. And it is true that was part of His mission, that alone would not save the species. The revelation of truth was all the loyal angels needed to solidify them in their loyalty, but fallen, sinful human beings needed something more. We needed a sinless humanity, a new heart and right spirit, a humanity purified from sin. And Jesus came to not only reveal the truth, but to purge the infection of sin from humanity and purify the species and offer us, through faith, a new life, a new heart and right spirit of love instead of fear and selfishness. Thus, this author describes how Jesus, as a human had to develop this perfect humanity through confrontation with the infection of sin and overcome it and eradicate it thus destroying death and the cause of death. In Jesus the living law of love and truth was lived out perfectly. When Satan attacked, Jesus loved, forgave, left others free. In His humanity Jesus chose to live out the principles of God's design laws rather than the principles of survival of the fittest.]

All heaven and the unfallen worlds had been witnesses to the controversy. With what intense interest did they follow the closing scenes of the conflict. They beheld the Saviour enter the garden of Gethsemane, His soul bowed down with the horror of a great darkness. They heard His bitter cry, "Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from Me." Matthew 26:39. As the Father's presence was withdrawn, they saw Him sorrowful with a bitterness of sorrow exceeding that of the last great struggle with death. The bloody sweat was forced from His pores, and fell in drops upon the ground. Thrice the prayer for deliverance was wrung from His lips. Heaven could no longer endure the sight, and a messenger of comfort was sent to the Son of God. (The Desire of Ages 759.5) [We are a theater to angels 1Cor 4:9, angels long to look into these things. Jesus, as our human substitute, taking up humanity damaged by Adam's sin, was tempted in all points like us, feeling the pull of fear and selfishness that our humanity tempts us with, chose to love, to give his life freely in order to destroy the infection and purify the life He took upon Himself from the death causing element that Adam introduced.]

Heaven beheld the Victim betrayed into the hands of the murderous mob, and with mockery and violence hurried from one tribunal to another. It heard the sneers of His persecutors because of His lowly birth. It heard the denial with cursing and swearing by one of His best-loved disciples. It saw the frenzied work of Satan, and his power over the hearts of men. Oh, fearful scene! the Saviour seized at midnight in Gethsemane, dragged to and fro from palace to judgment hall, arraigned twice before the priests, twice before the Sanhedrin, twice before Pilate, and once before Herod, mocked, scourged, condemned, and led out to be crucified, bearing the heavy burden of the cross, amid the wailing of the daughters of Jerusalem and the jeering of the rabble. (The Desire of Ages 760.1) [Can you imagine the fatigue, the pain, physical, mental, and emotional, the temptation to be angry, to be frustrated, the injustice, the lies, the wrongness of it all. Yet Jesus loved, He had all power given to Him yet He did not use it to punish sinners; He didn't use His power to restrict liberty, to punish wrong doers. He was showing the entire universe God's character of love, God's design law of love, truth, liberty, and how God wields power.]

Heaven viewed with grief and amazement Christ hanging upon the cross, blood flowing from His wounded temples, and sweat tinged with blood standing upon His brow. From His hands and feet the blood fell, drop by drop, upon the rock drilled for the foot of the cross. The wounds made by the nails gaped as the weight of His body dragged upon His hands. His labored breath grew quick and deep, as His soul panted under the burden of the sins of the world. All heaven was filled with wonder when the prayer of Christ was offered in the midst of His terrible suffering,—"Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." Luke 23:34. Yet there stood men, formed in the image of God, joining to crush out the life of His only-begotten Son. What a sight for the heavenly universe!.. (The Desire of Ages 760.2)

Satanic agencies confederated with evil men in leading the people to believe Christ the chief of sinners, and to make Him the object of detestation. Those who mocked Christ as He hung upon the cross were imbued with the spirit of the first great rebel. He filled them with vile and loathsome speeches. He inspired their taunts. But by all this he gained nothing. (The Desire of Ages 760.4) [If we are not surrendered to Jesus Christ, if we do not have the Holy Spirit indwelling our Spirit temples, our hearts and minds, then we are aligning ourselves with the demonic. And the more we choose the demonic, the more closely we harmonize our spirits with the demonic until we eventually are imbued with the spirit of Satan, the spirit of rebellion, of hate, of envy, jealousy, evil surmising, judgmentalism, discord, selfishness, exploitation, a willingness to abuse others, to inflict punishment upon others to make them pay for their sin crimes. We get the exact opposite fruits of those of the Holy Spirit, we get the fruits of demonic spirits and we end up warring against God, even if we are religious leaders of the church God set up, like those Jews who crucified Jesus.]

Could one sin have been found in Christ, had He in one particular yielded to Satan to escape the terrible torture, the enemy of God and man would have triumphed. Christ bowed His head and died, but He held fast His faith and His submission to God. "And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of His Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night." Revelation 12:10. (The Desire of Ages 761.1)

Satan saw that his disguise was torn away. His administration was laid open before the unfallen angels and before the heavenly universe. He had revealed himself as a murderer. By shedding the blood of the Son of God, he had uprooted himself from the sympathies of the heavenly beings. Henceforth his work was restricted. Whatever attitude he might assume, he could no longer await the angels as they came from the heavenly courts, and before them accuse Christ's brethren of being clothed with the garments of blackness and the defilement of sin. The last link of sympathy between Satan and the heavenly world was broken. (The Desire of Ages 761.2) [The Adventist Reformers identified Satan as the murderer of Jesus. The legalists that took control of the Adventists church identify God as the executioner of Jesus—but they say God killed Him to satisfy His divine justice. These are not reconcilable, they are opposites, diametrically opposed because they are rooted in two antagonistic systems, two divergent laws, God's design law of love versus Satan's imposed law system. This paragraph describes Jesus words that when He is lifted up the prince of this world will be cast out—and all will be drawn to Jesus. In most Bible translations the translators add the word “men” to the text reading, will draw all “men” but the word “men” is not in the Greek. Jesus was saying that He would draw all, angels and humans, and that for the angels Satan was unmasked, that Jesus revealed the truth to refute the lies and no longer would the angels listen to anything Satan had to say. Satan’s work was restricted, not by some force shield or use of external power like Satan or humans would use, but Satan was restricted by the power of truth and love being solidified in the minds and hearts of the loyal angels. They could no longer be deceived and had no remaining sympathy for Satan.]

Yet Satan was not then destroyed. The angels did not even then understand all that was involved in the great controversy. The principles at stake were to be more fully revealed. And for the sake of man, Satan's existence must be continued. Man as well as angels must see the contrast between the Prince of light and the prince of darkness. He must choose whom he will serve. (The Desire of Ages 761.3) [What was left to be revealed? What did man not yet understand or know that could only be understood by evidence, by the outworking of the principles in reality? Notice what comes next—and it is exactly where we are today, the conflict in Christianity and Adventism over which view of the law one holds]

In the opening of the great controversy, Satan had declared that the law of God could not be obeyed, that justice was inconsistent with mercy, and that, should the law be broken, it would be impossible for the sinner to be pardoned. Every sin must meet its punishment, urged Satan; and if God should remit the punishment of sin, He would not be a God of truth and justice. When men broke the law of God, and defied His will, Satan exulted. It was proved, he declared, that the law could not be obeyed; man could not be forgiven. Because he, after his rebellion, had been banished from heaven, Satan claimed that the human race must be forever shut out from God's favor. God could not be just, he urged, and yet show mercy to the sinner. (The Desire of Ages 761.4) [The principles to be more fully revealed were that imposed human law constructs do not heal hearts and minds, that legal penalties paid to a punishing deity do not restore love and trust, but instead perpetuate rebellion and sin, and we see the Dark Ages, the use of might and power to destroy enemies in the name of Jesus—such complete corruption based on what? The lie that God’s law functions like human law and thus justice is punishing the wicked. And this is how things will end with Satan impersonating Christ and claiming that his justice requires that unrepented sins must be punished and therefore those who refuse to accept him as their sin-bearer who has taken their punishment, he will be required to sadly punish. And billions will say, “this is our god we have waited for him.”]

But even as a sinner, man was in a different position from that of Satan. Lucifer in heaven had sinned in the light of God's glory. To him as to no other created being was given a revelation of God's love. Understanding the character of God, knowing His goodness, Satan chose to follow his own selfish, independent will. This choice was final. There was no more that God could do to save him. But man was deceived; his mind was darkened by Satan's sophistry. The height and depth of the love of God he did not know. For him there was hope in a knowledge of God's love. By beholding His character he might be drawn back to God. (The Desire of Ages 761.5) [Where is there hope for us human sinners? In the truth about God, His character of love, His design law methods—through God's truth we can have the lies purged from our hearts and be won back to trust in God and when we open our hearts in trust we receive, from the Holy Spirit His love poured into our hearts, we receive the life of Christ reproduced in us. We are reborn, recreated, renewed, cleansed, --this is not a legal adjustment, it is healing, renewing, recreating—it is reality. Through the design law of worship, by beholding we are changed, we are won to trust, receive the indwelling Spirit which imbues us with new desires and by worshiping God as Jesus revealed Him we become ever more like Him, transformed to love God and others.]

Through Jesus, God's mercy was manifested to men; but mercy does not aside justice. The law reveals the attributes of God's character, and not a jot or tittle of it could be changed to meet man in his fallen condition. God did not change His law, but He sacrificed Himself, in Christ, for man's redemption. "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself." 2 Corinthians 5:19. (The Desire of Ages 762.1) [Why could the law not be changed to meet man in His fallen condition? For the same reason the law of respiration cannot be changed to meet a person who ties a plastic bag over their head—the person must be changed, they must be put back in harmony with the law, for God's laws are the laws life are built upon. Jesus sacrificed Himself to eliminate the infection, the breach to love, the fear and selfishness and restore humanity back into harmony with God and His living law. What is justice? Doing what is right or just, according to what? The law, what law? If one believes the human law lie then they claim justice is inflicting punishment, but since the Adventist Reformers were advancing the design law reality of God as Creator, notice what they describe as justice what comes next:]

The law requires righteousness,—a righteous life, a perfect character; and this man has not to give. He cannot meet the claims of God's holy law. But Christ, coming to the earth as man, lived a holy life, and developed a perfect character. These He offers as a free gift to all who will receive them. His life stands for the life of men. Thus they have remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God. More than this, Christ imbues men with the attributes of God. He builds up the human character after the similitude of the divine character, a goodly fabric of spiritual strength and beauty. Thus the very righteousness of the law is fulfilled in the believer in Christ. God can "be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus." Romans 3:26. (The Desire of Ages 762.2) [Notice what justice is—she didn't write the broken law requires a death penalty be paid to the government, God, or the law in order to maintain justice. She wrote that the law requires righteousness, which is rightness, which is justice, which is the restoration of rightness into the human being for God's law is the basis of life. This requires a human being to DEVELOP a perfect character and this is what Jesus came to do. And having developed a perfect character, then righteousness, which is God's justice, or doing what is right is the application of what Jesus achieved in us to imbue us, with the attributes of God, to build us up into Christlikeness. We have forgiveness of our sins, not through a legal payment, but through God's forbearance, and the righteousness of the law is fulfilled in the believer in Christ—this is how God is just, by justifying—i.e., restoring us to be just or right with God by healing us from sin. This is the message the Adventist Reformers brought in 1888 and it is the message that was rejected by the legalistic leadership who continues to teach the lie that God's law functions like human law.]

God's love has been expressed in His justice no less than in His mercy. Justice is the foundation of His throne, and the fruit of His love. It had been Satan's purpose to divorce mercy from truth and justice. He sought to prove that the righteousness of God's law is an enemy to peace. But Christ shows that in God's plan they are indissolubly joined together; the one cannot exist without the other. "Mercy and truth are met together; righteousness and peace have kissed each other." Psalm 85:10. (The Desire of Ages 762.3) [How, by showing that God's law is design law, the living law of life and by restoring that law into humanity, God does what is right or just in eliminating sinfulness and restoring us to righteousness.]

By His life and His death, Christ proved that God's justice did not destroy His mercy, but that sin could be forgiven, and that the law is righteous, and can be perfectly obeyed. Satan's charges were refuted. God had given man unmistakable evidence of His love. (The Desire of Ages 762.4) [Jesus as a human, using only human abilities, chose to love perfectly and to voluntarily surrender His life in love, thus in His humanity Jesus destroyed the infection of fear and selfishness, the carnal nature, the me first principle that Satan sowed into humanity, and rose again in a purified humanity with a perfect, sinless, character that He developed. And we receive this as a free gift via the indwelling Holy Spirt—we get new desires, new motives, new insights, new inspiration and as we choose to say yes to the leading of the Holy Spirit we are transformed to grow ever more like Jesus.]

Another deception was now to be brought forward. Satan declared that mercy destroyed justice, that the death of Christ abrogated the Father's law. Had it been possible for the law to be changed or abrogated, then Christ need not have died. But to abrogate the law would be to immortalize transgression, and place the world under Satan's control. It was because the law was changeless, because man could be saved only through obedience to its precepts, that Jesus was lifted up on the cross. Yet the very means by which Christ established the law Satan represented as destroying it. Here will come the last conflict of the great controversy between Christ and Satan. (The Desire of Ages 762.5) [The replacement of design law with imposed law, the idea that God's law is changeable or amendable.]

That the law which was spoken by God's own voice is faulty, that some specification has been set aside, is the claim which Satan now puts forward. It is the last great deception that he will bring upon the world. He needs not to assail the whole law; if he can lead men to disregard one precept, his purpose is gained. For "whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all." James 2:10. By consenting to break one precept, men are brought under Satan's power. By substituting human law for God's law, Satan will seek to control the world. This work is foretold in prophecy. Of the great apostate power which is the representative of Satan, it is declared, "He shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High, and think to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hand." Daniel 7:25. (The Desire of Ages 763.1) [It doesn't matter on what point one claims God's law is changed, the real issues is the belief that God's law functions like human law. Satan loves to get people to argue whether the Sabbath was changed or whether images can be made, or methods of baptism etc., but the real issue is whether God's law is changeable at all, i.e imposed rules or design protocols.]

Men will surely set up their laws to counterwork the laws of God. They will seek to compel the consciences of others, and in their zeal to enforce these laws they will oppress their fellow men. (The Desire of Ages 763.2) [Did we not see this during COVID, men setting up laws to coerce the consciences of others and oppress their fellow men? And the church leadership went along with this because they rejected the message of 1888 and chose imposed human law instead.]

The warfare against God's law, which was begun in heaven, will be continued until the end of time. Every man will be tested. Obedience or disobedience is the question to be decided by the whole world. All will be called to choose between the law of God and the laws of men. Here the dividing line will be drawn. There will be but two classes. Every character will be fully developed; and all will show whether they have chosen the side of loyalty or that of rebellion. (The Desire of Ages 763.3) [The Adventist reformers taught that the warfare against God's law began in heaven, but the Ten Commandments didn't exist yet—angels didn't have a written law, there was no law against adultery, or sins passing down the generations, or honoring their mothers and fathers, or even a weekly Sabbath as this earth and the Sabbath hadn't been created yet. So, how did Satan begin his warfare against God's law? By alleging God's laws are imposed and God is required to punish sin. We develop our character based on the God we worship, by beholding we are changed, and the God we worship is determined by what we believe about God's law. If we believe God's law functions like human law we believe God functions like a creature, a being who uses power to inflict punishment for rule breaking. We can only be transformed to be like Jesus by returning to worshiping God as Jesus revealed Him to be, to worshiping our Creator whose laws are design laws exactly as this Adventist reformer wrote.]

Then the end will come. God will vindicate His law and deliver His people. Satan and all who have joined him in rebellion will be cut off. Sin and sinners will perish, root and branch, (Malachi 4:1),—Satan the root, and his followers the branches. The word will be fulfilled to the prince of evil, "Because thou hast set thine heart as the heart of God; ... I will destroy thee, O covering cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.... Thou shalt be a terror, and never shalt thou be any more." Then "the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be;" "they shall be as though they had not been." Ezekiel 28:6-19; Psalm 37:10; Obadiah 16. (The Desire of Ages 763.4) [What does this mean? Does it mean all this author wrote about design law is suddenly set aside and in the end God will use power to inflict punishment to destroy? Those who cling to the human law lie will use language like this to claim such a thing. But this author explains in the very next paragraph and notice it is entirely design law]

This is not an act of arbitrary power on the part of God. The rejecters of His mercy reap that which they have sown. God is the fountain of life; and when one chooses the service of sin, he separates from God, and thus cuts himself off from life. He is "alienated from the life of God." Christ says, "All they that hate Me love death." Ephesians 4:18; Proverbs 8:36. God gives them existence for a time that they may develop their character and reveal their principles. This accomplished, they receive the results of their own choice. By a life of rebellion, Satan and all who unite with him place themselves so out of harmony with God that His very presence is to them a consuming fire. The glory of Him who is love will destroy them. (The Desire of Ages 764.1) [Just as Paul wrote in Galatians 6:8 those who sow to the carnal nature from that nature reap destruction. This author is totally consistent with the Bible.]

At the beginning of the great controversy, the angels did not understand this. Had Satan and his host then been left to reap the full result of their sin, they would have perished; but it would not have been apparent to heavenly beings that this was the inevitable result of sin. A doubt of God's goodness would have remained in their minds as evil seed, to produce its deadly fruit of sin and woe. (The Desire of Ages 764.2)

But not so when the great controversy shall be ended. Then, the plan of redemption having been completed, the character of God is revealed to all created intelligences. The precepts of His law are seen to be perfect and immutable. Then sin has made manifest its nature, Satan his character. Then the extermination of sin will vindicate God's love and establish His honor before a universe of beings who delight to do His will, and in whose heart is His law. (The Desire of Ages 764.3) [God sets things on an eternal basis of security so that sin never arises again by the exercise of His methods, principles, and power—the power of truth, love, and freedom which wins our hearts to love and trust so that we will never be shaken from it.]

TUESDAY

The lesson is about the covenant with king David, we can find it in 2 Samuel 7, the lesson has a typo, which is easy to do and I have done myself more than once, citing 1 Samuel 7, but it is 2 Samuel, let's read it:

- "When your days are fulfilled and you rest with your fathers, I will set up your seed after you, who will come from your body, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build a house for My name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. I will be his Father, and he shall be My son. (2 Samuel 7:12-14 NKJV).

Is this a different covenant than God has given prior, or is it the same exact covenant given in Genesis 3:15?

It is the same—it is just as history unfolds the Bible keeps narrowing down our focus on the human family tree through whom the Messiah is coming.

- In Genesis 3:15—the Messiah is going to come from someone among the entire human race descended from Adam. Thus Satan works to corrupt the entire human race and almost succeeded at the time of the Flood, only one righteous man left on the earth, so God acted in mercy to keep open the avenue for the Messiah.
- God renewed His covenant with Noah and the promised Messiah would come from Noah's descendants, and God added some new promises that He would never destroy the world with a flood again, but also that the climate would continue in a stable fashion until the second coming, that the message of global climate disaster is a lie.
- God renewed His covenant with Abraham, now we know it is through Abraham's descendants that the promise of Genesis 3:15 will be fulfilled
- But not through Ishmael—it is through Isaac, so the Bible focuses on Isaac's children, but not through Esau
- The covenant was renewed through Jacob, whose name was changed to Israel and our focus narrows further
- And then Israel tells us it is through Judah's children and we narrow further
- And now we are told it is through David's line and our focus narrows further.

But the promise given to David is the exact same covenant that was given to Adam we are only having revealed to us through whose family the Messiah will be born.

WEDNESDAY

Read last paragraph,

- One graphic depiction of Christ's ultimate victory is found in the pre-Advent scene in Daniel 7, which shows that, after judgment is given " 'in favor of the saints of the Most High' " (Dan. 7:22, NKJV), His kingdom is established, and " 'His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom' " (Dan. 7:27, NKJV). Because of the Cross, the promise of the kingdom is assured. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 72).

What do you think of this sentence?

- Christ's ultimate victory is found in the pre-Advent scene in Daniel 7, which shows that, after judgment is given " 'in favor of the saints of the Most High' " (Dan. 7:22, NKJV).

The lesson had to edit the text in order to make it appear the Bible says what they want it to say—because the Bible doesn't actually say this.

Let's read it from the NKJV which they cite, then some other versions and find out what is really going on:

- I was watching; and the same horn was making war against the saints, and prevailing against them, until the Ancient of Days came, and a judgment was made in favor of the saints of the Most High, and the time came for the saints to possess the kingdom. (Daniel 7:21-22 NKJV).

The words "in favor" are italicized in the NKJV which indicates they are not in the Hebrew, they are added by the translators. The KJV reads:

- Until the Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the most High; and the time came that hithe saints possessed the kingdom. (Daniel 7:22 KJV).

The law lens makes all the difference, in the human law lie version, judgment is a judicial act by the ruling magistrate to determine guilt or innocence or if proper legal compensation and payment has been made to legally account for the violation of the law. In the legal view, the problem is our sin crimes which require punishment.

In the design law view the problem is that we have believed lies about God and broke trust with Him, and that the only way to restore us to trust is to remove the lies about God. And God's enemy, symbolized by the little horn power, is warring against the saints and winning until they are given judgment, in other words until the saints are given discernment, the ability to differentiate the truth from the lies of Satan. Which means until the truth of God's character and design law is recovered from the lies of Romanism which has corrupted Christianity with imposed law. And when the truth of God's true character as Creator and law as design law is recovered then the little horn power has no further power over the saints who make a right judgment about God.

To flush this out—consider what Paul says about this war:

- For though we live in the world, we do not wage war as the world does. The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. We demolish arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and we take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ. (2 Corinthians 10:3-5 NIV84).

We are at war with the liar who infects our minds about God and we are losing until we have discernment, judgment to know the difference and can make a right judgment about God.

- Let God be proven true, and every human being shown up as a liar, just as it is written: "so that you will be justified in your words and will prevail when you are judged." (Romans 3:4 NET)

God was accused, God has been on trial, and we are to decide if God is like Jesus revealed or like Satan alleges. Sadly, through the Romanization of Christianity the Christian world has accepted the lie that God is the source of inflicted pain and punishment for sin, and God is the problem we need to do something about with a blood payment to assuage His wrath.

But people are only held in this bondage if they believe the lie about God's law, when they return to worshiping the Creator, when they receive the 3 Angel's messages to worship Him who made the heavens earth and see they finally make a right judgment about God and thus the little horn no longer has power over them. This is the message to finish the Reformation and why Satan has worked so hard in Adventism to get us to reject it and hold to penal legal lies.

THURSDAY

Read first paragraph,

- God endows the Messiah with an everlasting kingship (Ps. 110:1-3) and a priesthood of a superior rank, the order of Melchizedek (Ps. 110:4-7). The Lord seals His word with a solemn promise (Heb. 6:18). God's oath not to relent from giving us a perfect Priest is a sign of His grace. People's sins and open rebellions constantly provoke God to abandon His people, but God's oath is unchangeable and guarantees God's grace in revoking His judgment over the repentant people (Exod. 32:14, Ps. 106:45). (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 73).

What do you hear in this paragraph?

I find it a mischaracterization of God to suggest we could "provoke" Him to abandon us. This is what happens when we judge God through the human law lens, we judge God to be like us. It is quite sad. God is not provoked by rebellion to abandon His people. God the Creator, the all-knowing God of love, mercy, goodness and truth, perfectly diagnosis the condition of every person—He is not provoked to abandon, He finally lets go when a person is beyond healing, when nothing, no amount of truth or love will have any saving impact and in fact the unveiled glory of God—His life-giving love and truth would be torment to them—then God let's go, sets them free to reap what they insist upon!

Also, I object to the sentence "God's oath is unchangeable and guarantees God's grace in revoking His judgment over the repentant people." Again, this mischaracterizes God and the problem of sin into the lie of legalism. God never "revokes" His judgment, for His judgment is the accurate diagnosis of what is. His diagnosis remains and His therapeutic judgments of what is needed to heal and restore remain, because God is the God of reality and His judgments of reality are accurate and true and thus He does not revoke them. It is so sad to see this corruption and mischaracterization of our incredible Creator God, being presented in such diminished ways, advocating for attributes that belong to God's enemy.

The last paragraph states,

- Being both Divine King and everlasting Priest, Christ has unprecedented superiority over human priests and kings; so, we may take hope. Christ upholds a superior covenant that is based on God's oath, not human promises. He serves in the heavenly sanctuary. His priesthood is not affected by sin or death, like that of human priests, and thus, He can intercede for and save His people forever. The reconciling work of Christ as the perfect and compassionate Priest gives His people a lasting assurance of abiding in God's very presence (Heb. 6:19, 20).

> Christ's royal priesthood will abolish the rule of evil, not only in people's hearts but also in the world. He will keep the promise of Psalm 2 that every nation and ruler will be subject to the royal judgment of Christ Jesus (Ps. 2:6-9; Ps. 110:1, 2, 5, 6). Jesus' wonderful royal priesthood makes an absolute claim on our obedience and trust. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 73).

I like the idea in this paragraph, "His priesthood is not affected by sin or death, like that of human priests…" because it leads us to think of

- Don't let anyone deceive you in any way, for that day will not come until the rebellion occurs and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the man doomed to destruction. He will oppose and will exalt himself over everything that is called God or is worshiped, so that he sets himself up in God's temple, proclaiming himself to be God (2 Thessalonians 2:3-4 NIV84).

The man who denies God's law, who sets up his own legal system of rules with imposed punishment rather than acknowledging God's laws are design laws, thus is against the law of God, without the law of God, or lawless. And he sets himself up in God's temple, but as the lesson points out it cannot be the temple in heaven, thus what temple is it? The Spirit temple our hearts and minds, this is the same little horn power that wars against the saints and prevails until we are given judgment to recognize God's law is not like human law and therefore God is not like a human dictator and salvation is not a penal/legal process.

God is waiting for His people to finally make a right judgment about Him and bring Him glory for the hour of His judgment has come. Worship Him who made the heavens, earth, sea, and fountains of water by returning to Design law understanding of God and His kingdom.

2024 1Q Psalms Lesson 10
Lessons of the Past

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

This lesson was a very sad lesson for me, it was difficult to study and is going to be difficult to teach because it is painful to realize how history is repeating itself in our very own day.

Read first paragraph,

- In numerous psalms, praise takes the form of narrating the Lord's mighty acts of salvation. These psalms are often called "salvation history psalms" or "historical psalms." Some appeal to God's people, telling them to learn from their history, particularly from their mistakes and the mistakes of their ancestors. Certain historical psalms contain a predominant hymnal note that highlights God's past wonderful deeds on behalf of God's people and that strengthen their trust in the Lord, who is able and faithful to deliver them from their present hardships. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 76).

Paul wrote:

- Now these things occurred as examples to keep us from setting our hearts on evil things as they did…These things happened to them as examples and were written down as warnings for us… (1 Corinthians 10:6 & 11 NIV84).

So the lesson brings forth such an important point—we are to learn from history. So, let's do that today.

Consider Jesus' words to the religious leaders of His day, and ask what can we learn from history?

- You diligently study the Scriptures because you think that by them you possess eternal life. These are the Scriptures that testify about me, yet you refuse to come to me to have life. (John 5:39-40 NIV84).

What lessons are there in this historical conversation that are applicable to us today:

- Who were the people Jesus said this to? The leaders of the Jewish religion, scribes, Pharisees, Sadducees.
- What are the Scriptures Jesus is referencing that these religious leaders diligently study? The Old Testament 39 books that we have in our Bible.
- Were the Jews studying the wrong Scriptures?

- Did they belong to the wrong religious organization?
- Were they worshiping as the wrong temple?
- Were they keeping the wrong Sabbath?
- Were they eating the wrong foods?
- Were they paying wrong amount of tithe?
- Were they paying the tithe in the wrong place?
- Were they wearing the wrong clothes?
- Were they friends of God?
- Were they teaching the truth?
- Or were they, despite teaching all the right doctrines enemies of God and teaching lies about God that were obstructing people from experiencing salvation?
- And who are the Jews at this time in history? God's chosen and especially blessed people, in other words God's church.
- And what does history teach us, and the Bible specifically say in Isaiah, Ezekiel and Romans about what God's specially chose people did for God?
    - "God's name is blasphemed among the Gentiles because of you." (Isaiah 52:5; Ezekiel 36:22; Romans 2:24 NIV84)

History teaches us that the people called and blessed by God with the Scriptures misunderstood the Bible in such a way that they lied about God, ended up worshiping such a false picture of God that when God came and stood among them, they not only hated Him and killed Him, they believed justice required them to inflict the most excruciating torture possible upon Him—just as some in our own church today teach—they blaspheme God today teaching that God's justice requires Him to torture people and then kill them.

Jesus further said,

- "Woe to you, teachers of the law and Pharisees, you hypocrites! You travel over land and sea to win a single convert, and when he becomes one, you make him twice as much a son of hell as you are. (Matthew 23:15 NIV84)

What are we learning from history?

- These religious leaders belonged to the right, God ordained, organization; they studied and taught from the right Bible; they ate the right foods; they worshiped on the right day; and they engaged in active evangelism, mission work but when they did convert a person to their religion they make them twice the son of hell.
- What is the lesson? What do we learn from history?
- Is there something wrong with the Bible they used?
- Is there something wrong with the Sabbath they kept?
- Is there something wrong with evangelizing?
- Is there something wrong with eating a healthy diet?
- Is there something wrong with paying tithe?

- What was wrong?
- The interpretation they put on the Bible!

There are facts and there are interpretations of the facts. What we learn from history is that one can have the right facts, belong to the right organization that is set up by and called by God for a special mission, and yet, interpret the facts in a way that form false beliefs about God, so significantly that people end up hating and crucifying God, and then persecute and eliminate from their membership those who tell the truth about God, and thus corrupt the organization God set up to lighten the world for His coming.

Is it possible that these same things have happened to Christianity and to Adventism?

Did the Christian church end up interpreting Scripture in such a way that people, claiming to be Christian, claiming to be representing Jesus, went to wars with crosses on their tunic to kill the non-Christians? Did they persecute and burn at the stake Christians who didn't worship the way the persecutors believed was correct? Did they seek to silence voices of truth? Did people within the organized churches, people who called themselves Christians practice the same abusive methods as those who crucified Christ?

Does the fact the Jews did this to Jesus mean that the Jewish nation was not called by God? No, they were! Does it mean they had the wrong Bible? No, they had the right Bible.

What about in Adventism? Has the Adventist organization repeated what the Jews did 2000 years ago? Consider these words from one of the founders of the SDA church, they were written after the 1888 GC, after church leadership rejected the healing truth, the design law truth, the righteousness by faith message and instead chose, like the Jews 2000 years ago the legal way, the fallen human rules and rule enforcement through inflicted punishment way:

- On many occasions the Holy Spirit did work, but those who resisted the Spirit of God at Minneapolis were waiting for a chance to travel over the same ground again, because their spirit was the same. Afterward, when they had evidence heaped upon evidence, some were convicted, but those who were not softened and subdued by the Holy Spirit's working, put their own interpretation upon every manifestation of the grace of God, and they have lost much. They pronounced in their heart and soul and words that this manifestation of the Holy Spirit was fanaticism and delusion. They stood like a rock, the waves of mercy flowing upon and around them, but beaten back by their hard and wicked hearts, which resisted the Holy Spirit's working. Had this been received, it would have made them wise unto salvation; holier men, prepared to do the work of God with sanctified ability. But all the universe of heaven witnessed the disgraceful treatment of Jesus Christ, represented by the Holy Spirit. Had Christ been before them, they would have treated him in a manner similar to that in which the Jews treated Christ. (1888 1478.2, emphasis mine)

- An unwillingness to yield up preconceived opinions, and to accept this truth [that the Ten Commandments were added] lay at the foundation of a large share of the opposition > manifested at Minneapolis against the Lord's message through Brethren [E.J.] Waggoner and [A.T.] Jones. By exciting that opposition Satan succeeded in shutting away from our people, in a great measure, the special power of the Holy Spirit that God longed to impart to them. The enemy prevented them from obtaining that efficiency which might have been theirs in carrying the truth to the world, as the apostles proclaimed it after the day of Pentecost. The light that is to lighten the whole earth with its glory was resisted, and by the action of our own brethren has been in a great degree kept away from the world (Selected Messages, vol. 1. pp. 233, 234, emphasis mine).

Does the Adventist Church:

- Have the wrong 66 books of Scripture?
- The wrong Bible Sabbath?
- The wrong percentage of tithe?
- The wrong historical record?

There are facts, and there are interpretations of facts. The Jews interpreted the right Bible in the wrong way and ended up rejecting and murdering Jesus.

The Adventist leadership in 1888 did the same thing with the message that was to lighten the world for Christ's second coming.

The Jews after crucifying Christ, as an organization, did not repent but doubled down on their rejection of Christ and began persecuting the Jewish members who had the truth and tried to teach the truth in their organization, thus driving them out of the organization and shutting the heavenly light out of that system.

Have we learned from that history? Has the Christian church done the same thing? In the Dark Ages did those with advancing truth get persecuted and driven out of fellowship from their church by the church leaders, who claimed to be protecting orthodoxy and stopping heresy?

What about in Adventism? Have Adventist leaders been doing the same thing—have many of them, rather than accepting the advancing light of design law, doubled down on the imposed penal/legal lies and have actively sought to expunge from fellowship members and pastors who know the truth and are sharing the light of God's design laws and character of love with the people?

What was wrong with the Jews 2000 years ago—they had a legal way of understanding Scripture—they believed God's law is imposed and that justice is punishing rule-breakers, and that dealing with sin requires a sacrifice be offered to the offended god to pay for one's sins. They interpreted the right Scriptures in the wrong way.

The SDA church's official publications have done the same thing since 1888.

Is the SDA church the wrong organization—I do not believe so—I believe it was blessed by God with truth for this time for the mission of taking an end-time message to the world to prepare the world for Christ's second advent, just like the Jews were called to prepare the world for Christ's first advent. However, just like the Jews had leaders who created an orthodoxy of lies, based on human law, so too in the Adventist organization there is a cadre of leaders who have promoted the penal/legal orthodoxy that is based on Satan's lies about God's law and those who hold to those lies specifically opposed and obstruct the final message of mercy to the world, just as EGW wrote happened at the 1888 GC.

And I believe, just like the 2000 years ago, from the Jewish people came the Apostles, who from their witness converted Gentiles to the true message, from the Adventist membership will arise non-clergy, fisherman, tax collectors, physicians, who understand the true message and will share that message where God opens doors and from their witness and great multitude of people will also leave the Babylonian system if imperial rule with its false punishing god and return to worshiping the Creator in truth and in love. But, they will not join with the SDA organization any more than the converted pagans joined with the Jewish religion—because the legal lies that dominate the system are contrary to the saving truth.

SUNDAY

The lesson focuses on the history of Israel as a people and their problems as lessons for us. And it is such a rich history, with so many powerful historical lessons but also object lessons for us to learn from.

The lessons mentions many, including the Exodus and settlement in Canaan—are there any lessons from that history that apply to us today?

- Slaves in Egypt symbolically represent being slaves in sin
- Moses a deliverer represents Jesus our deliverer from sin
- The people who left were not just Jews, but a mixed multitude—all those who during the 10th plague put the blood of the sacrificial lamb on their door posts. This represents those who claim Jesus as their Savior being part of those who are on their way to the heavenly Promised land.
- This group is a mixed multitude, as Jesus said, the wheat and tares grow up together until the harvest, until we enter the promised land. And in the wilderness we see all kinds of problems from people constantly rebelling against God and His plan. Likewise, we see in the history of Christianity rebellion against God, and in the history of Adventism rebellion against God.

Consider this quote, in which the author in the aftermath of 1888, compares the Adventist leaders with Korah, Dathan, and Abiram who led a rebellion against Moses during the Exodus on the way to Canaan. And our question is, can we learn from history?

- “When I purposed to leave Minneapolis, the angel of the Lord stood by me and said: "Not so; God has a work for you to do in this place. The people are acting over [re-enacting] the rebellion of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. I have placed you in your proper position, which those who are not in the light will not acknowledge; they will not heed your testimony; [What was EGW advocating? The design law healing view of the gospel promoted by Jones and Waggoner. Righteousness by faith message—which is actual, real, genuine righteousness within the heart/mind of those who trust in Jesus. The rebuilding and healing of our characters when we trust in Jesus—the fulfillment of the day of at-one-ment metaphor, the purifying of the bride, the groom receiving His bride bringing her into unity/oneness with Him, the cleansing of the sanctuary. But church leadership rejected this healing view and chose instead to embrace the false imperial legal view of declared righteousness even though we are not. They rejected the manna and chose the fleshpots of Egypt. This, is, according to the writer a message from the angel of the Lord, which tells us this idea is like Korah saying “we can’t succeed in going into the promised land.” And church leaders who prefer the imperial law view, have been telling Adventists ever since that we can’t succeed in experiencing Christ’s righteousness, sin is too great, God can’t give us power to be victorious in our lives, in fact God is the problem who will use His power to kill you if you don’t offer Him the blood of His Son to pay for your sin crimes.] but I will be with you; My grace and power shall sustain you. It is not you they are despising, but the messengers and the message I send to My people. [Friends of Come and Reason around the world, realize that when you are told you are not welcome, you cannot teach your Bible class, that you cannot share the wonders of God’s love that has so transformed your life—that it is not you they are rejecting but Christ they are rejecting.] They have shown contempt for the word of the Lord. Satan has blinded their eyes and perverted their judgment; and unless every soul shall repent of this their sin, this unsanctified independence that is doing insult to the Spirit of God, they will walk in darkness. [By refusing the truth of God’s design law, by holding to Rome’s imperial law lie, they have blinded themselves to how reality works and live in a fantasy of confusion and contradictions mirroring this sinful world with a god who is the source of pain, suffering and death which they call justice. They are in darkness and the SDA church has been wandering in the wilderness led by blind guides for over 130 years.]–Letter 2a, 1892, pp. 4, 5. (To "Dear Nephew and Niece, Frank (F.E.) and Hattie," Nov. 5, 1892.) {3MR 191.2}

Have we learned from history or are we repeating it right now today?

The lesson also points out the problem with Israel constantly turning to Baal worship, what are the lessons we need to learn from that today? Have we learned from history or are we repeating it?

Who was Baal?

- The son of El
- The god of weather, thunder, lightning, and harvest
- The god who fought the great leviathan—the serpent
- The god who fought against Mot the god of death and in his battle with Mot died and rose again to bring new life and harvest to the land

This was the god previously confronted by Elijah at Mount Carmel—and what was wrong with this god? Baal required appeasement, payment, offerings be made to him to provide blessings.

Baal became Zeus to the Greeks, Jupiter to the Romans, Thor to the Norse people and Jesus Christ to all Christians who worship a god who requires the blood of a human sacrifice be offered to him on order for him to provide blessings.

Consider this historical quote:

- Thousands have a false conception of God and His attributes. They are as verily serving a false god as were the servants of Baal. Are we worshiping the true God as He is revealed in His Word, in Christ, in nature, [the Creator whose laws are design laws that govern nature] or are we adoring some philosophical idol enshrined in His place? God is a God of truth. Justice and mercy are the attributes of His throne. He is a God of love, of pity and tender compassion. Thus He is represented in His Son, our Saviour. He is a God of patience and long-suffering. If such is the being whom we adore and to whose character we are seeking to assimilate, we are worshiping the true God. (Faith I Live By 9).

Are we worshiping the Creator God or have we repeated the history of ancient Israel and replaced the true God with that of Baal, a god whose laws are imposed and who is required by law and justice to kill you unless he receives the blood of a sacrifice?

Consider this quote:

- While God has desired to teach men that from His own love comes the Gift which reconciles them to Himself, the archenemy of mankind has endeavored to represent God as one who delights in their destruction. Thus the sacrifices and the ordinances designed of Heaven to reveal divine love have been perverted to serve as means whereby sinners have vainly hoped to propitiate, with gifts and good works, the wrath of an offended God. At the same time, Satan has sought to arouse and strengthen the evil passions of men in order that through repeated transgression multitudes might be led on and on, far from God, and hopelessly bound with the fetters of sin. (Prophets and Kings 685).

Have we learned from history, or are we teaching, just like the ancient Jews, the lie that God's law functions like human law, and that God requires legal payment or God will kill us for our sins, and therefore, God killed Jesus so He wouldn't have to kill us, that if we don't propitiate God with the gift of His Son's blood then God's wrath will burn against us?

Don't you see how our church is repeating all the errors of the Jews, teaching the very same lies, the very same distortions, going after Baal in a more modern form, the penal legal substitutionary form?

MONDAY

The lesson focuses on God's promise to give Abraham the Promised Land—what do you think of this promise?

Is this a standalone promise? In other words, Abraham has faith in God and God rewards Him with the present of land? Or is this promise of the land part of another promise and is only being given to Abraham in conjunction with that other promise?

God's promise to Abraham that his descendants would inherit the land was part of the covenant God made with Abraham. But that covenant that God made with Abraham was simply God carrying out the covenant that He made with Adam in Eden previously.

The covenant of grace, the promise that God would save sinners, was given immediately after Adam sinned:

- And I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your seed and her Seed; He shall bruise your head, and you shall bruise His heel (Genesis 3:15 NKJV).

This covenant contains God's promise to send Jesus, the Seed of the woman, to overcome and destroy Satan and sin and redeem humanity. The entire Old Testament is the outworking of this promise.

The promise to Abraham is the recommunication of the promise made in Eden, that the seed of the woman would crush the serpent's head.

- In your seed all the nations of the earth shall be blessed, because you have obeyed My voice (Genesis 22:18 NKJV).

And this promise was repeated to Isaac:

- Live in the land of which I shall tell you. Dwell in this land, and I will be with you and bless you; for to you and your descendants I give all these lands, and I will perform the oath which I swore to Abraham your father. And I will make your descendants multiply as the stars of heaven; I will give to your descendants all these lands; and in your seed all the nations of the earth shall be blessed (Genesis 26:2–4 NKJV).

And God repeated this promise to Jacob:

- And behold, the LORD stood above it and said: "I am the LORD God of Abraham your father and the God of Isaac; the land on which you lie I will give to you and your descendants. Also your descendants shall be as the dust of the earth; you shall spread abroad to the west and the east, to the north and the south; and in you and in your seed all the families of the earth shall be blessed." (Genesis 28:13–14 NKJV).

There is no doubt that God made a covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob promising that that region of land would be given to them and their descendants but that was for the purpose of fulfilling the original promise to humankind to bring the promised Messiah so that all the nations of the earth would be blessed, not just the biological descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

And that promise to Abraham was a type of the ultimate promise to the entire human race, also to be received through faith like Abraham received the local promise, we become heirs to the promise—but not to a little strip of land in the Middle East, but to the entire world! How is this? Because God gave Abraham a dual promise or two promises, a local regional one to be fulfilled with the first coming of Jesus and a larger global promise to be fulfilled after the second coming of Jesus.

The Bible is filled with dual prophecies and promises:

- Joel's prophecy about the outpouring of the Holy Spirit before the second coming of Christ (Joel 2:28–32) is also applied by Peter to the day of Pentecost (Acts 2:14–21).
- Isaiah 14 and Ezekiel 28 both start out referring to an earthly king and then transition to the fall of Lucifer.
- Jesus' prophecy about the second coming is also blended with the destruction of Jerusalem (Matthew 24).

In all these dual-fulfillment prophecies, there is a lesser application and a greater application—the lesser is regional; the greater is global.

The covenant with Abraham is the same covenant that was given to Adam, but with Abraham we now have the identification of the specific branch of the human family through whom the Messiah would come. And with the recommunication of the covenant to Abraham, God gives a dual-fulfillment prophecy concerning the land: 1) A smaller, local, regional promise that Abraham's genetic descendants would inherit the land of Canaan in order to fulfill their mission to be the genetic family through whom Jesus would be born; and 2) the larger, global, spiritual fulfillment, that the true descendants of Abraham, those who are like Abraham in faith and character would inherit the entire earth!

The covenant with and promises to Abraham focus on two promised lands. The local application is the one in which Abraham's genetic decedents are the branch of the human family through whom God accomplishes the promise of Genesis 3:15 and through whom the Messiah is born. This local regional promise to Abraham informs him that his children would inherit the land in Canaan for the purpose of fulfilling their mission of being the avenue through whom Messiah would come so that Jesus can fulfill God's greater promise, the covenant of grace given in Genesis 3:15, and crush the serpent's head so that the "meek will inherit the earth" (Matthew 5:5)—the true Promised Land.

Abraham has two descendants of a promise—the genetic descendants who inherited Canaan in order to be the avenue for Jesus our Savior to be born and fulfill the covenant given to the entire human family in Genesis 3:15 so that …

… the spiritual descendants of Abraham—all those who have faith like Abraham—will inherit the entire planet, the earth made new.

Here is the biblical evidence for this position:

- The LORD appeared to Abram and said, “To your offspring I will give this land” (Genesis 12:7).

This is the regional promise for the genetic descendants to occupy Canaan for the purpose of being the branch of the human family through which the Messiah would be born.

- The LORD said to Abram after Lot had parted from him, “Lift up your eyes from where you are and look north and south, east and west. All the land that you see I will give to you and your offspring forever. I will make your offspring like the dust of the earth, so that if anyone could count the dust, then your offspring could be counted. Go, walk through the length and breadth of the land, for I am giving it to you” (Genesis 13:14–17 NIV84).

This is the larger, global, promise—that the entire earth (east, west, north, south, all points of the compass) will be given to the people of God; the earth will be made new, and those who are like Abraham in character, in faith, whose hearts have been circumcised from sin, will be heirs to this promise and inherit the earth.

The apostle Paul, a former Pharisee of the tribe of Benjamin and a highly trained Jewish theologian of the first century, wrote:

- You are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, for all of you who were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, slave nor free, male nor female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. If you belong to Christ, then you are Abraham’s seed, and heirs according to the promise (Galatians 3:26–29).

Jesus Himself, in John chapter 8, explicitly told the Jewish leaders of His day these very truths, that genetics did not determine who is considered an heir of Abraham and who would inherit the promise.

The dual-fulfillment promise to Abraham had two starting points and two ending points. The starting point of the global promise was in Eden, in Genesis 3:15; the starting point of the regional promise was with Abraham when he was called out of Ur. The ending point of the global is when Jesus recreates the earth and the meek inherit it; the ending point of the regional promise for the genetic people to be the avenue for the Messiah was when they crucified Christ and Jesus said to them, “Your house is left to you desolate” (Matthew 23:38 NIV84).

Jesus masterfully weaves these two covenant promises together in His prophetic description of the destruction of Jerusalem and His second coming as described in Matthew 24 and Mark 13. The destruction of Jerusalem occurs because the regional fulfillment of the promise has ended. The genetic descendants kept open the avenue, Messiah had come, but they rejected Him and now there is no further purpose for a regional land to be occupied by them. The gospel must now go to the world. It is time for the global application, which culminates in the second coming and the meek inheriting the earth.

And the writer of Hebrews agrees with our assessment. Hebrews tells us that the faithful of God in Bible times—Abel, Enoch, Noah, along with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob who lived "in the promised land" (Hebrews 11:9)—"did not receive the things promised" (Hebrews 11:13), that they were "looking forward to the city with foundations, whose architect and builder is God" (Hebrews 11:10). "All of these people" of faith "did not receive the things promised; they saw them and welcomed them from a distance. … They were longing for a better country—a heavenly one" (Hebrews 11:13, 16).

The Bible says that "all of these people" did not receive the things promised; note who is included on that list—Enoch, who was taken to heaven! Enoch, who has already received eternal life, a glorified body, who currently lives in heaven with Jesus, surely he has received the promise, hasn't he? Not in its complete and fullest sense. What was Abraham promised? That his spiritual descendants would inherit the earth.

TUESDAY

Read first paragraph,

- Psalm 106 also evokes the major events in Israel's history, including the Exodus, sojourn in the wilderness, and life in Canaan. It stresses the heinous sins of the fathers that culminated in the generation that was carried into exile. Thus, the psalm almost certainly was written when the nation was in Babylon, or after they had returned home, and the psalmist, inspired by the Holy Spirit, recounted for God's people these historical incidents and the lessons that the people should have learned from them. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 79).

What can we learn from this history?

Is there an object lesson for us?

They went into captivity because they worshiped false gods, because they preferred Baal to the true Creator God. And they went into Babylon.

Babylon is symbolic of the systems of imperialism. In Daniel 11 it represents the King of the North, those who believe in the God of the Bible but teach that righteousness is using power to punish those who don't. As soon as Nebuchadnezzar believed in Daniel's God he passed a law that any who spoke bad about Daniel's God were to be killed.

Babylon, of all the nations interacting with Israel in the Bible, is the first nation to make a codified system of law and order, the code of Hammurabi. Thus Babylon rightly represents a legal religious system with a god who makes up rules like humans make up and a god who will use his power to punish rule breakers.

So, Israel is captive in Babylon and God has them set free so they can return to Jerusalem and rebuild the temple and only about 50-60,000 returned, the vast majority stayed in Babylon.

And today, Revelation has a message, Babylon has fallen come out of her my people. It is time to stop judging God to be like a human dictator, to reject the imposed law lie, to worship Him who made the heaven, earth, sea and fountain of water—to come of the penal legal theological lies. But sadly, only a remnant will come out, the vast majority will stay in Babylon just like Israel did, and teach God is like a Roman dictator who makes up rules and is required by law and justice to use His power to torture and kill the wicked.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson is about the metaphor of Israel being God's vineyard that He tends,

Read first paragraph,

- However, in Psalm 80, God's vineyard is under His wrath (Ps. 80:12). The prophets announce the vineyard's destruction as the sign of God's judgment because the vine has turned bad (Isa. 5:1-7, Jer. 2:21). (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 80).

What law lens do you hear these words through? Is this judicial—the people broke rules so God had to inflict punishment on them for sin? Or is this design law, God judging what the problem is and diagnosing it accurately and then therapeutically judging what action is best to both discipline the people but even more important, keep open the avenue for Messiah and bring salvation to humanity?

And do you read God's wrath as His active use of power to inflict harm, or God's stopping His use of power that was restraining the damage that sin and rebellion would cause?

Consider the following from an Adventist Reformer whose message was rejected by the legalistic leadership in 1888. Notice how these quotes describe God's judgment and wrath:

- "How great is the long - suffering of God toward the wicked! The idolatrous Philistines and backsliding Israel had alike enjoyed the gifts of His providence. Ten thousand unnoticed mercies were silently falling in the pathway of ungrateful, rebellious men. Every blessing spoke to them of the Giver, but they were indifferent to His love. The forbearance of God was very great toward the children of men; but when they stubbornly persisted in their impenitence, He removed from them His protecting hand. They refused to listen to the voice of God in His created works, and in the warnings, counsels, and reproofs of His word, and thus He was forced to speak to them through judgments." (Patriarchs and Prophets 587)

- The Jews had forged their own fetters; they had filled for themselves the cup of vengeance. In the utter destruction that befell them as a nation, and in all the woes that followed them in their dispersion, they were but reaping the harvest which their own hands had sown. Says the prophet: "O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself;" "for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity." Hosea 13:9; 14:1. Their sufferings are often represented as a punishment visited upon them by the direct decree of God. It is thus that the great deceiver seeks to conceal his own work. By stubborn rejection of divine love and mercy, the Jews had caused the protection of God to be withdrawn from them, and Satan was permitted to rule them according to his will. (The Great Controversy 35)

- We cannot know how much we owe to Christ for the peace and protection which we enjoy. It is the restraining power of God that prevents mankind from passing fully under the control of Satan. The disobedient and unthankful have great reason for gratitude for God's mercy and long-suffering in holding in check the cruel, malignant power of the evil one. But when men pass the limits of divine forbearance, that restraint is removed. God does not stand toward the sinner as an executioner of the sentence against transgression; but He leaves the rejectors of His mercy to themselves, to reap that which they have sown. Every ray of light rejected, every warning despised or unheeded, every passion indulged, every transgression of the law of God, is a seed sown which yields its unfailing harvest. The Spirit of God, persistently resisted, is at last withdrawn from the sinner, and then there is left no power to control the evil passions of the soul, and no protection from the malice and enmity of Satan. (The Great Controversy 36)

What have we learned from history? That we are making the same errors the Jews made by believing in a legal god who is the source of inflicted penalties.

THURSDAY

Read last paragraph,

- The Lord's faithfulness to His people leads the psalmist to affirm the nothingness of idols and to the unique supremacy of the Lord in the world (Ps. 135:15-18). Reliance on idols renders their worshipers as hopeless and powerless as their idols are (Ps. 135:18). The psalm demonstrates that God is to be praised as both Creator and Savior of His people. This is wonderfully conveyed in the two complementary versions of the fourth commandment of the Decalogue (Exod. 20:8-11, Deut. 5:12-15). Because God's power in creation and history is unparalleled in the world, God's people should always rely on Him and worship Him alone. As our Creator and our Redeemer, He alone should be worshiped, and worship of anything else, or anyone else, is idolatry. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 81).

The lesson does a good job of describing the design law of worship, by beholding we are changed, to worship a false god damages the minds and hearts of those who worship them.

But the lesson also says this,

- This is wonderfully conveyed in the two complementary versions of the fourth commandment of the Decalogue (Exod. 20:8-11, Deut. 5:12-15). Because God's power in creation and history is unparalleled in the world, God's people should always rely on Him and worship Him alone. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 81).

Is there a subtle misunderstanding written here? The Sabbath is associated with Creation week in Exodus 20, but is what makes the Sabbath holy according to the commandment that God used power to create or something else? The point of the Sabbath is not that God is powerful, the devils believe that and tremble, the reason given right in the commandment is that yes, God is the Creator and therefore powerful, but on the Sabbath our Creator God STOPPED using power, that HE RESTED!!!!

There was never a question as to who has the power, the Bible says that the devils believe that and it scares them. So teaching that the Sabbath memorializes God as powerful doesn't really answer any questions or provide any evidence that in any way refutes Satan's lies and resolves the rebellion. But God RESTING, God ceasing His use of power in the face of Satan's rebellion—in other words God giving evidence that yes, He is the Creator, but more than that that God built reality to operate upon design law, so He just created an entire new world all operating upon design law, and God shared pro-creative power with a new intelligent creation and gave that creation dominion to govern—and then God ceased the use of His power, He refused to use power to inflict punishment upon Satan and his rebels, and instead God left all His intelligent beings free to decide for themselves. This is what the Sabbath reveals, but when we have an imperial dictator god whose laws function like human laws, then we refocus away from the truth to power, because we want a powerful god who can punish our enemies, just like the Jews 2000 years ago wanted, a god that would punish the Romans.

But the truth is God gave evidence by the use of His power that He is the Creator, and then God rested and this reveals the most important truth of all, the true character of our Creator, truth, presented in love, while leaving His intelligent beings free—and this is why the Sabbath is holy because it sets apart the character of our God from all the false gods. Yet sadly the Jews had the right weekly Sabbath, but the wrong god, so they killed the Creator and got Him off the cross in order to keep the day, legally, for they didn't want to get punished. And sadly, many Adventists do the exact same thing, teach the Sabbath as an arbitrary test of obedience, rather than evidence of God's character and design laws of life.

2024 1Q Psalms Lesson 11
Longing for God in Zion

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

A sentence in the first paragraph reads,

- These psalms often praise the merits of the Lord's house and express a love for the sanctuary that can be found in other psalms, as well. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 84).

Why does the psalmist love the sanctuary? The one of the disciples said to Jesus,

- "Look, Teacher! What massive stones! What magnificent buildings!" (Mark 13:1 NIV84).

Do you think that is what the psalmist is referring to, he loves the magnificence of the tent sanctuary that existed in his day looking forward to Solomon's temple—or is it something else he loves about the sanctuary?

Have you ever felt a love or appreciation for the Bible? Why?

- Was it the leather binding or the onionskin paper?
- Does the Bible have the ability to save people from sin?
- Does the Bible have magic powers?
- Or does the Bible contain truth that leads us back to a trust relationship with God, and also teach us principles to live by, how to apply to our lives God's designs for our lives, and reveals the pathology that occurs when people break God's designs for life? So why do we love the Bible? Because it contains the truth about God, reveals reality, the nature and problem of sin, and God's solution for it.
- Likewise, the sanctuary system was designed to teach, not through letter symbols, but the symbols of props, costumes, ceremonies, structure, materials, layout, and action. In other words, through theater, a drama enacted and renacted the truths about God the sin problem and God's solution were to be taught.
- We read through letters and words, which are a different type of symbolism. But it is the truth that leads us back to reality and a trust in God and God saves, not the symbols themselves, whether OT sanctuary symbols, or Hebrews letters, or English words from the King James Bible.

So the psalmist loved the sanctuary and longed to spend time there because in its services he grew in the knowledge and wisdom of the things of God and found in His relationship with God healing for his soul.

Can we still learn lessons from studying the sanctuary system of symbols? We can if we know how to read the symbols. It is like asking, can we still learn truth, God's lessons from reading the Hebrew Bible—if we know how to read Hebrew, if we understand the meaning of what is written.

But even if people can read the language, understand the symbols, can people still read the Bible and misunderstand it and draw the wrong conclusions from its words? And can people read the sanctuary symbolism and misunderstand and draw the wrong conclusions from its symbols?

What is the key to understanding both the Bible and the sanctuary correctly?

Of course, we must have the Holy Spirit lead us, for spiritual things are spiritually discerned, and our own human wisdom and reason, unenlightened by the Holy Spirit will not comprehend or understand eternal truths. So, we absolutely acknowledge our need to humble ourselves to the leading, direction, and enlightening of the Holy Spirit.

But with our hearts humbled to the Holy Spirit, what is the key to rightly interpreting both the Scriptures and the symbolism of the sanctuary?

Here is what one Christian writer suggests, do you agree or think another key is better?

- The significance of the Jewish economy is not yet fully comprehended. Truths vast and profound are shadowed forth in its rites and symbols. The gospel is the key that unlocks its mysteries. Through a knowledge of the plan of redemption, its truths are opened to the understanding. Far more than we do, it is our privilege to understand these wonderful themes. We are to comprehend the deep things of God. (Christ's Object Lessons 133)

What is the key? The gospel, the good news, and the plan of salvation.

So what is the gospel, the good news, the eternal gospel that is to lighten the world? The good news that was good news in eternity past before earth was even created and will good news in eternity future? What is the good news angels in heaven needed to comprehend to settle their questions and stop Satan's rebellion from spreading among them?

The good news, the eternal gospel, is the good news about God, that God is not like Satan alleges; and what has Satan alleged about God? That God is arbitrary, severe, unforgiving and the source of inflicted punishment for sin.

How has Satan advanced these allegations? By suggesting God's laws are the types of laws that created beings make up, rather than the truth that God's laws are design laws. If we teach that God's laws function like human laws, made up rules, then we teach that sin is a legal problem and God as Sovereign, is required by law and justice to use His power to punish rule breakers. God, in Satan's view, becomes the source of death, inflicted as punishment for sin-crimes, and God, in Satan's view, needs something done to Him to propitiate His wrath so He won't hurt us. Thus, the entire plan of salvation when taught through the penal legal view teaches us that we cannot trust God, but that God needs something done to Him to restrain Him from acting out against us.

The eternal good news, gospel, is that God is not like Satan alleges, that God is love, that, as Isaiah 55 states, God pardons freely, without payment, that God is the source of life, that God so loved the world He sent His Son to save the world not condemn it, that God is for us (Romans 8:31), that God is Creator and His laws are the laws of life, and it is transgressing His laws that take us out of harmony with life and results in death.

Thus, the key to understanding the gospel and therefore correctly understanding the sanctuary symbolism is returning to Creator worship, the eternal good news about God by understanding His law is design law and rejecting the penal/legal lies that infect Christianity. As long as we retain the lie in our hearts and minds that God's law functions like human law then we will misconstrue all the symbolism of this beautiful system and end up doing just like the Jews, rejecting and crucifying Christ.

Consider this quote, this describes what happens when one thinks through the human law lens:

- While God has desired to teach men that from His own love comes the Gift which reconciles them to Himself, the archenemy of mankind has endeavored to represent God as one who delights in their destruction. Thus the sacrifices and the ordinances designed of Heaven to reveal divine love have been perverted to serve as means whereby sinners have vainly hoped to propitiate, with gifts and good works, the wrath of an offended God." (Prophets and Kings, p. 685)

So if we want to understand the symbolism correctly, we must understand the gospel correctly, and the gospel is the good news about God that He is Creator, His laws are design laws and Jesus died to save us from sin, to cleanse us, restore us, renew and recreate us, not to save us from God or God's inflicted punishment.

SUNDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 84, let's read it from The Remedy:

- How I love your sanctuary—your dwelling place—O Creator God! My inmost self desperately craves your presence—to be in the courts where you dwell; my heart, my body—my entire being cries out for the God of life. (Psalm 84:1-2 REM)

Why does the psalmist crave God's presence? Have you ever been in a very smoke filled or pollution filled environment? Did you crave fresh clean air?

Many years ago we traveled in Beijing China, and the pollution was so think you could see a brown fog in the air, our eyes turned red and watered, our throats burned, we pulled our shirts up over our noses to try and filter the air. We craved fresh clean air.

Do you think the psalmist is craving God's presence because he realizes how polluted this world is with fear, selfishness, guilt, shame, cruelty, hate, conflict, bitterness, resentment, sickness, disease, and all types of suffering, and he longs for peace, joy, love, health and wellness for mind, body, and spirit—the purity of God's presence?

Do you crave for God's presence like the psalmist? The faithful described in Hebrews had this attitude, Hebrews 11 says about them,

- They were longing for a better country—a heavenly one (Hebrews 11:16 NIV84).

But what if we believe that God, instead of being the source of pure love, truth, forgiveness, goodness, mercy, kindness, patience, understanding, redemption, the one who sets us right, fixes what is wrong, purifies what is contaminated, cleanses what is dirty, heals what is broken—is instead a police officer in the sky watching to record every wrong or a judge waiting add up and inflict the proper amount of pain and suffering that justice requires—if this is how we see God, do we long for His presence? Or do we long for a mediator to hide us from Him, to protect us from Him?

So, how do we read the symbolism of the sanctuary, do we read it through the key of the eternal gospel, the good news about God, or have we been Romanized, and believe God's law functions like human law and believe Jesus' mediatorial work is to do something to God to protect us from Him?

We won't long for God's presence as long as we believe the lie that God's law functions like human law and God is the one from whom we need protection.

- Even the sparrow has a home, and the swallow a nest for herself, where she may care for her young—near your altar, O Creator and Sustainer of all, my King and my God. Oh what health and happiness for those who live in your house—lives of constant love and praise for you. (Psalm 84:3-4 REM)

What do you hear in these verses? Where is our true home? Where is the only place we are truly safe? Where is the only place where we can find health and happiness? And they have health and happiness because they live lives in harmony with God, His character and design laws of love, rather than living lives in fear and selfishness which destroy peace, health, and life.

- What health and happiness for those whose strength comes from you—who set their hearts on finding you. As they pass through life's valley of sorrows, you make it a place of renewal with life-giving springs; the rains become refreshing pools. They gain strength with each victory in life, until they appear before God in Zion. (Psalm 84:5-7 REM)

What is the lesson here? Is this magic? Is the psalmist saying if you keep the right rules God uses divine power to miraculously give you rewards—do good and get blessed to bad and get cursed? Or are there design laws involved?

What about the law of worship, by beholding we are changed, we become like the God we admire and worship. By worshiping the true God we experience maturity of character, peace with God, we experience resolution of guilt, shame and fear, and are infused with love, trust and admiration for our Creator God. As we worship God as Creator, as Jesus revealed Him to be, we calm our fear circuits, reduce inflammatory cascades in our bodies, gain wisdom into the physical laws of health, make healthier choices in how we treat our bodies, we forgive rather than resent, we avoid many conflicts, and all of this results in better mental, physical, emotional, relational, and spiritual health.

The trials, difficulties, and heartaches of life, drive us to our knees to a deeper and more intimate connection with God, to surrendering ourselves to Him and learning by experience to trust God with how things turn out. Thus we advance from victory to victory until we are ultimately glorified at the second coming and spend eternity with God in glory. This is not magic, it is not a rule-keeping reward and punishment system, it is reality, living, through trust in Jesus, in harmony with God and His design laws for life.

- O Lord, Mighty Creator God, hear my prayer; listen to me, O God who Jacob trusted. Take notice of our shield—the king; look favorably upon your anointed one. Better is one day spent in the courts where you dwell than a thousand away from you; I would rather stand at the entrance to the house of my God than live in comfort in the tents of the wicked. (Psalm 84:8-10 REM)

What do you hear?

Health, happiness, wellness, and eternal life are only possible in harmony with God and His design for life. To stand in God's presence means we have been restored to harmony with God, to true health, wellness, and life. But a thousand years away from God is a thousand years of suffering in sickness, fear, guilt, shame, conflict, fighting to survive against threats on every side, it is a living hell. Better for one day of true health, happiness, peace, joy, and life than 1000 days of hell.

- For the Lord God is our life-giving sun and our protective shield, providing continual grace to transform us to his glorious ideal; he will withhold nothing that is good from those who choose to live in harmony with his design. O Creator God, healthy and happy is the person who trusts in you. (Psalm 84:11-12 REM).

What do you hear? Do you see the reality of our Creator God, His goodness, how life is built by Him to operate and that breaking trust with Him, going our own way causes all the problems, all the pain, suffering, and ultimately death?

MONDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 122, let's compare the NIV with REM and then consider some of the conclusions from the lesson.

- I rejoiced with those who said to me, "Let us go to the house of the LORD." Our feet are standing in your gates, O Jerusalem. Jerusalem is built like a city that is closely compacted together. That is where the tribes go up, the tribes of the LORD, to praise the name of the LORD according to the statute given to Israel. (Psalm 122:1-4 NIV84).

This is a traditional and standard rendering, what do you hear? Is there a message for you and me in this psalm? Are you inspired by a closely compacted city, or knowing the various tribes went there to praise God? Here is how I paraphrased it for the Remedy, understanding God's design law and that the Holy Spirit inspires the eternal truth to save sinners:

- I was glad when they said to me, "Let us go to the Lord's temple." And now we are here, standing at your gates, O Jerusalem. Jerusalem is a city designed as a place of unity and loving fellowship. This is where the people gather—the people who love God—to praise and celebrate the character of God acting out his plan of healing, as given to Israel. (Psalm 122:1-4 REM).

Rather than a closely compacted city, the message is that God wants us to be closely united in love, as Ephesians states there is a unity inherent in our faith. Thus, God's plan of salvation, which was symbolically taught through the rituals contained in the system at Jerusalem brings us into the intimate bonds of love and trust so that we are one as Jesus and the Father are one (John 17).

Questions about these two versions? Any concerns with the Remedy paraphrase?

- There the thrones for judgment stand, the thrones of the house of David. (Psalm 122:5 NIV84).

What is the message you hear in this translation? Do you hear something judicial? This is certainly a legitimate linguistic translation, but not the only one. Consider thee Remedy:

- There, the descendants of David set their thrones to govern the people. (Psalm 122:5 REM).

Do you hear "thrones of judgment" and "govern" the same? The law lens used makes a difference, judicial judgment is only one narrow element of human governments. Jerusalem was designed to teach a larger reality, and God's system was not intended to teach human law, but was intended to teach restoration from sin to life. Thus governing from Jerusalem was supposed to model of how God governs His entire universe.

And in the Jewish legal system set up by God through Moses, the entire system was designed for the pardoning and setting free of the sinner, the criminal. There was no governmental prosecutor like we have, symbolically teaching that in God's government He keeps no record of wrongs, just like 1 Corinthians 13 teaches. No one in God's government brings charges against the sinner, it is Satan that is the accuser of the brethren, yet how often is it presented that God reviews the books, God determines guilt and innocence, God decides the punishment, God inflicts the punishment, and God needs a payment made to legally not punish? This is all satanic, it is a lie, it contradicts the teachings of Scripture because it is based on the lie that God's law functions like human law.

The entire Sanhedrin, and High Priest, who were the most highly trained theologians and lawyers of that system, were all supposed to function the role of defense attorneys, they were supposed to fight for the freeing of the accused. They are to represent Jesus our High Priest and all the saints who are battling for the salvation of every soul. But their argument was not to the Sanhedrin itself, it was to the accuser, who was the person wronged and they stand in the place of Satan, the accuser, they represent the people who refuse to forgive freely, the people who want to make others pay, the people who have accepted Satan's version of law and justice and rejected Jesus' teachings that we are to love our enemies, forgive those who mistreat us, and pray for those who spitefully abuse us, just like He did on the cross and Stephen did when he was being stoned. This person bringing charges represents the people who are still operating and functioning under Satan's system of imposed law and inflicted punishments and believe it is right and just to punish someone for their wrong. We have many of these people in our church and leadership today advancing accusations and teaching that God is the source of inflicted pain, suffering, and death, when the entire Jewish system was to teach the opposite.

- Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: "May those who love you be secure. May there be peace within your walls and security within your citadels." For the sake of my brothers and friends, I will say, "Peace be within you." For the sake of the house of the LORD our God, I will seek your prosperity. (Psalm 122:6-9 NIV84).
- Pray for the success of Jerusalem, that those who love this city be healthy and happy; that there will be restoration to godliness within its walls—that trust and friendship will be its fortress. For all my family and friends, I say, "May complete healing and restoration occur within you." In harmony with the purpose of God's temple, I will seek your eternal welfare. (Psalm 122: 6-9 REM).

Can one have peace while being out of harmony with God and God's designs for life? So real peace comes through restoring sinners back to unity with God, through removing from our hearts and minds our fear, selfishness, guilt, shame, bad habits, evil desires etc. It is only by experiencing the work of the Holy Spirit within us that we can have peace with God. There is no real peace in claiming legal pardon and adjustment in record books while we remain unrighteous in heart and mind.

Read second paragraph,

- Praying for the peace of Jerusalem invokes God's blessings upon the city and its inhabitants, and it unites the worshipers, causing peace to spread among them (Ps. 122:8). Jerusalem could be the city of peace only if peace existed between God and His people, and among God's children themselves. Thus, prayer for the peace of Jerusalem conveys an appeal to God's people to live in peace with God and one another. In Jerusalem's peace, the people will prosper (Ps. 147:12-14). (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 86).

Does praying for the peace of Jerusalem invoke God's blessings upon the city and its inhabitants? Hmmm…. Is that what history has revealed?

If we this psalm to refer the city of Jerusalem in the Middle East, rather than its symbolical significance as representation of the New Jerusalem, isn't it trust that millions of people have prayed through history for the peace of Jerusalem and today there are millions praying for the peace of Jerusalem—and what does history reveal to us about that city?

Is there any city with less peace in the world than Jerusalem? And why do you think that it is this way? It is because the people who are praying for peace have rejected the design laws of God and by worshiping an imperial dictator whose laws are made up rules requiring external enforcement, they become like that false god, and then believe it is right and just to make up rules and enforce them on others and use the power of arms to punish and even kill those who are not keeping the rules they believe are the right rules. They believe that if they don't enforce the rules as they understand them, then they are being disobedient to their office, their position, their duties and responsibilities, and thus they will be guilty of sin and thus they are required by law to use their office, power, position, to seek to enforce, fight, and defeat those parties who teach differently than they do. "The land was given to us it is ours, no it was given to us it is our, God has told us to do this, no He has told us to do this. You are a rebel no you are a rebel, you are a heretic, no you are an infidel" and on it goes. And believing God punishes, it is only right and just they seek to punish. So praying for the peace of Jerusalem doesn't bring God's blessing when people are praying to a false god who looks like Satan in character, instead they become like that false god and perpetrate all types of crimes in the name of doing justice and rush home to keep the Sabbath or whatever other holy day they value in the name of their god.

Can God bring peace through imposing made up laws upon people and then using might and power to punish people who break His rules and refuse to love Him? In fact, if God were to do this, what happens in the hearts of people? More rebellion, more distrust, less peace.

So, when we pray for peace, how does God answer our prayer, what action does God take, where is God at work to bring peace?

God's system is not external, not imposed, not through coercion, force, or punishment. As Jesus said, the kingdom of God is within you.

- God brings peace by removing the cause of division, by removing sin, fear, and selfishness from the hearts and minds of people
- God brings peace by love casting out fear, by truth eradicating lies, by grace purging guilt and shame, by mercy, kindness, and forgiveness cleansing hearts from cruelty, bitterness and a desire for revenge, by eliminating prejudice with fellowship, by turning enemies into friends.

This is the New Covenant when God writes His living law upon our hearts and minds so that we are no longer controlled by fear and selfishness but live lives of love and trust.

TUESDAY

Read first paragraph,

- Psalm 87 is a hymn celebrating Zion as God's specially chosen and beloved city. The foundation of God's temple is on Mount Zion (Ps. 2:6, Ps. 15:1). At the end of time, Zion will rise above all mountains, signifying the Lord's sovereign supremacy over the whole world (Ps. 99:2, Isa. 2:2, Mic. 4:1). Psalm 87 refers to Zion as "mountains" to highlight its majesty (Ps. 133:3). God loves the gates of Zion "more than all the dwellings of Jacob" (Ps. 87:2, NKJV), expressing the superiority of Zion over all other places in Israel that were special gathering places of God's people in the past, such as Shiloh and Bethel. Thus, the psalm affirms that true worship of God is in His chosen place and in His prescribed way. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 87).

What do you think of the idea that God loves the gates of Jerusalem? What does this mean?

In Revelation 21, in the description of the New Jerusalem, there are 12 gates, three on each side of the city, and on the gates are written the 12 tribes of Israel—what do you think this suggests?

The 12 tribes camped around the sanctuary three on each side, and the Levites camped in between, the Levites represent the priesthood of believers who minister the gospel of God from the sanctuary to the people in the four corners of the earth, symbolized by the 12 tribes. So, having gates to the New Jerusalem with the names of the 12 tribes would symbolize what? That God has people from every corner of the globe, from all nations, kindreds, tribes and languages saved.

So, God loves the gates because they simultaneously represent the way into the city, which is Jesus, but also that people from all over the world will find salvation through what Jesus has accomplished.

Let's read Psalm 87 from The Remedy:

- The Lord founded his plan of salvation in the hills set apart for his sanctuary. He loves the gates that lead to the restoration and healing of his children more than any other place in the world. Glorious things are told about you, O city of our Creator God: "I will include Egypt and Babylon among those who know me; also people from Philistia, Tyre and Ethiopia have been reborn to become citizens of Zion." Of the New Jerusalem it will be said, "These were reborn to become her citizens," and the Creator God himself will establish her. The Lord will record the individualities of the saved in his heavenly registry, noting, "This one was reborn to live there." Songs from those who are reborn will say, "Life is found only in you." (Psalm 87:1-7 REM)

What do you think of the last sentence in the first paragraph which reads:

- Thus, the psalm affirms that true worship of God is in His chosen place and in His prescribed way.

Hmmm….could this be misunderstood and end up teaching superstitious things? Like we have to travel to a certain place in order to worship God? Or that one physical location is more holy than another physical location? Or some objects have some supernatural holiness to them, relics of various kinds? Or that rituals and ceremonies make a difference in salvation?

Do they—or is God all about reality, and the rituals, ceremonies, places, props, that God has set apart for use in the past were all designed to lead back to reality and once one enters into reality the props and ceremonies have served their purpose. What God cares about is truth, and if we use ceremonies, rituals, places, even those established by God for holy use, in such a way that we misrepresent God then this is what God doesn't like—for lies about Him obstruct His ability to heal His children. And this is what the Jews did, they took their blessings, their rituals, ceremonies, props, stage, costumes, script—ure and made it legal, made it rules oriented, and ended up hiding the truth away from people, and teaching superstition from the very tools God gave them to teach reality. So, Jesus said to the woman at the well, when she asked where one should worship:

- "Believe me, dear woman, the place where one worships God is not important; it is the condition of the heart of the worshiper that matters. Very soon, you will worship the Father neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem. You Samaritans worship a confusing tradition of rituals that does not enlighten the mind and have no ability to heal the worshiper; we worship the Creator God, and our minds are enlightened and healed by him because all he asks of us is sensible and reasonable. The plan to heal humanity from the infection of selfishness and sin is provided through the Jews. The time has now come that all true worshipers will worship the Father with an intelligent and reasonable understanding of who he is, respecting, admiring and loving the truth about his nature, character, and methods. These understanding worshipers are the kind the Father seeks. God is intelligent and reasonable, and his worshipers must worship him intelligently and reasonably, appreciating and valuing the truth of God's methods and principles." (John 4:21-24 REM).

Thoughts? Do you see how the penal legal lies obstruct the type of worshipers God wants? It makes people into superstitious religionists with closed minds who live in fear worrying if they did the right ritual in the right way on the right day etc.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson focuses on the distress in the world around us, described in psalm 46, and asks the question—

- How do we learn to have peace and to trust God amid a world that, indeed, has so much turmoil?

What have you found that helps you find peace in the middle of the stressors of this world?

- Did you struggle to find peace when COVID mandates were being forced upon people?
- Are you struggling to find peace with the climate scam that is constantly being bombarded upon us?
- Are you struggling to find peace with the artificial inflation which makes meeting ends much harder?
- Are you struggling to find peace with the ugliness in the media, the constant attacks against this person or that person?
- Are you struggling to find peace with the reports of wars and rumors of wars?

What is the answer?

Satan is like a roaring lion, and the lion's roar incites fear—and what does fear lead to?

Fear leads to selfishness, a willingness to hurt others in order to protect self.

Fear impairs thinking, makes one freeze, impairs problems solving, and increases the willingness to surrender to voices of authority and follow rules in order to feel safe—not be safe, but feel safe.

Fear impairs relationships, causes people to be more controlling for fear of rejection, loss or injury.

Fear impairs spiritual growth, fear of God causes people to either rebel against God and reject Him altogether or to create theologies designed to hide and protect us from God like:

- Penal substitutionary theology in which we have someone pay God for us with the blood of a human sacrifice so he won't have to kill us
- Misstating the beautiful metaphor of the robe of righteousness to teach it somehow covers over our sinfulness so the Father can't see it
- Having Jesus, Mary, and the saints pleading to God in our behalf because He needs to be persuaded
- Having Jesus erase the records of history so the Father won't punish us for it

So how do we find peace with God in the face of Satan's end time assault?
Consider these words of Jesus and what He describes as the source of our peace, He ends by saying He told His disciples this so that they would have peace in the face of trouble in this world:

- "I tell you the truth, you will weep and mourn while the world rejoices. You will grieve, but your grief will turn to joy. A woman giving birth to a child has pain because her time has come; but when her baby is born she forgets the anguish because of her joy that a child is born into the world. So with you: Now is your time of grief, but I will see you again and you will rejoice, and no one will take away your joy. In that day you will no longer ask me anything. I tell you the truth, my Father will give you whatever you ask in my name. Until now you have not asked for anything in my name. Ask and you will receive, and your joy will be complete. "Though I have been speaking figuratively, a time is coming when I will no longer use this kind of language but will tell you plainly about my Father. In that day you will ask in my name. I am not saying that I will ask the Father on your behalf. No, the Father himself loves you because you have loved me and have believed that I came from God. I came from the Father and entered the world; now I am leaving the world and going back to the Father."

  Then Jesus' disciples said, "Now you are speaking clearly and without figures of speech. Now we can see that you know all things and that you do not even need to have anyone ask you questions. This makes us believe that you came from God."

  "You believe at last!" Jesus answered. "But a time is coming, and has come, when you will be scattered, each to his own home. You will leave me all alone. Yet I am not alone, for my Father is with me. I have told you these things, so that in me you may have peace. In this world you will have trouble. But take heart! I have overcome the world." (John 16:20-33 NIV84).

What did Jesus say would be the basis of our peace? The truth about the Father, that He is just like Jesus, that there is no need for Jesus to pray the Father for us, that the Father Himself loves us. That, as Paul later wrote, "If God is for you who can be against you…" (Romans 8:31).

We find peace when we are won back to love and trust with the Father through all that Jesus has revealed, then we open the heart and we receive the gift of the Holy Spirit sent by the Father, just as the Father sent us His Son. And the Holy Spirit takes the victory of Christ and reproduces it in us so that it is no longer our old sinful selves living, but Christ living in us. We are reborn, we die to fear and live to love God and others. And we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ for we have been restored to unity with God for God lives in us!

THURSDAY

Read second paragraph,

- God's children can be discouraged by the success of the wicked and, perhaps, tempted to follow their ways (Ps. 73:2-13, Ps. 94:3). The utmost stability of Mount Zion cannot secure those who depart from the Lord. The people are still given freedom to "put forth their hands unto iniquity" (Ps. 125:3) and "turn aside unto their crooked ways" (Ps. 125:5). The Lord is just and will judge the individuals who remain in rebellion along with other unrepentant sinners. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 89).

What does this sentence seem to be saying? "The Lord is just and will judge the individuals who remain in rebellion along with other unrepentant sinners?"

What law lens do you hear it through? If we have the human law model, what does this sentence mean?

If we have the design law model, what does this sentence mean?

The lesson points our attention to psalm 125, let's compare these five verses from the NIV with REM:

- Those who trust in the LORD are like Mount Zion, which cannot be shaken but endures forever. As the mountains surround Jerusalem, so the LORD surrounds his people both now and forevermore. (Psalm 125:1-2 NIV84)
- Those who trust in the Lord are a stronghold of love—like Mount Zion; they cannot be shaken but will endure forever. As the mountains surround and protect Jerusalem, so the Lord surrounds and protects his people both now and forevermore. (Psalm 125:1-2 REM)

What does it actually mean to be strong in the Lord? To be strong for God's kingdom? Is one strong in God's kingdom by putting a cross on a tunic and going on the crusades, or by singing hymns of praise while burning at the stake?

- The scepter of the wicked will not remain over the land allotted to the righteous, for then the righteous might use their hands to do evil. (Psalm 125:3 NIV84).
- The power of selfishness will not rule over the righteous, for the godly will not choose to do wrong. (Psalm 125:3 REM)

What does a scepter represent? Ruling power, and what rules the wicked? Fear and selfishness, thus the rendering the power of selfishness will not rule over the righteous. Do you think this is an accurate rendering that fear and selfishness will not have power over the righteous, or is it more accurate to move the focus outside of the heart and mind of the believer and teach that evil people will not have power to hurt the righteous? What has history shown? Haven't wicked people had power to physically hurt the righteous? But where has wickedness lost its power? In the hearts and minds of the righteous!

- Do good, O LORD, to those who are good, to those who are upright in heart. But those who turn to crooked ways the LORD will banish with the evildoers. Peace be upon Israel. (Psalm 125:4-5 NIV84).
- Do good, O Lord, to those who love good, to those whose hearts are in tune with you. But for all who cling to selfishness, the Lord will let them go, along with all who prefer evil. Health and salvation to all, who with God, overcome. (Psalm 125:4-5 REM).

2024 1Q Psalms Lesson 12
Worship That Never Ends

by Tim Jennings

Read second paragraph,

- In the Psalms, Israel is not simply a nation but "the great assembly" (Ps. 22:22, 25, NKJV; Ps. 35:18). This reveals Israel's primary calling to praise God and to bear witness about Him to other nations because the Lord wants all the world to join His people in worship. The Lord's people are identified with the righteous, who worship the Lord and whose hope is in Him and in His love. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 92).

What is this "great assembly" referenced in the psalms? Is this referring to the feast days assemblies that the Jews were supposed to attend in Jerusalem each year or something grander, larger, more significant—something of which Israel was only an object lesson, something that the various Israelites coming together in assembly were mere actors on a stage enacting?

The lesson references Psalm 22:22, which reads,

- I will declare your name to my brothers; in the congregation I will praise you (Psalm 22:22 NIV84).

What is this psalm referencing? Is it king David saying he will declare the name of Yahweh to the Israelites in worship? Or is it something much bigger, larger?

Psalm 22 is a Messianic psalm, it is about Jesus, and we find this very verse quoted by the writers of Hebrews in chapter 2:12:

- So Jesus is not ashamed to call them brothers. He says, "I will declare your name to my brothers; in the presence of the congregation I will sing your praises." (Hebrews 2:11-12 NIV84).

Does this suddenly expand our understanding of this psalm, do we realize it goes far beyond local worship, far beyond Israel? Does the psalm suggest Jesus will uplift the name of His Father before the grand assembly, the heavenly counsel, the assembly seen in the first chapter of Job?

The lesson also references psalm 35:18, let's compare that from the NIV and REM:

- I will give you thanks in the great assembly; among throngs of people I will praise you. (Psalm 35:18 NIV84).

Is this speaking of king David giving praise during some worship assembly in Jerusalem, praising God among the Israelites, or is this something much more significant, something to do with the great controversy? Again, this is a Messianic psalm, it is referencing Jesus, so I paraphrased it as:

- I will glorify you in the great cosmic assembly; among the mighty throng I will praise you. (Psalm 35:18 REM).

Consider the assembly described in Hebrews chapter twelve, is this the true assembly that the psalmist is describing?

- But you have come to Mount Zion, to the heavenly Jerusalem, the city of the living God. You have come to thousands upon thousands of angels in joyful assembly, to the church of the firstborn, whose names are written in heaven. You have come to God, the judge of all men, to the spirits of righteous men made perfect, to Jesus the mediator of a new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood that speaks a better word than the blood of Abel. (Hebrews 12:22-24 NIV84).

Is the psalmist only referencing assemblies in ancient Israel, or are those assemblies symbolic of something much more significant?

Here is how I rendered Hebrews 12:22-24 in the Remedy:

- But you have come into the reality (of which the symbols only pointed to), to Mount Zion, the New Jerusalem — the heavenly city of the living God — and you are part of that city. You have come to join millions upon millions of angels rejoicing in God’s presence, into the heavenly sanctuary — the true church of Christ — whose identities are stored in heaven. You have come to God — the source and standard of righteousness for all people; to the archived individualities of righteous human beings perfectly restored into Christlikeness of character; to Jesus — the conduit and administrator of God's healing plan; and to the reality of God's true nature and character, which was much more potently revealed and disseminated when Christ died than in the symbols offered by Abel. (Hebrews 12:22-24 REM).

Do we read the entire Bible as a whole, a revelation from God of the plan of salvation, that the events recorded in the Old Testament are a lesson to us, not primarily about historical earthly governmental systems or ceremonial religious rituals, but teaching larger realities, teaching through object lesson and symbolism the plan of salvation?

So, the title of the lesson is worship that never ends—what is that worship? What does that worship look like? Is worship that never ends a religious event, people coming together in a congregation to sing hymns, read Bible verses, join in corporate prayer, partake of communion? Is this what worship that never ends means?

Or does worship that never ends mean we for all eternity worship, admire, esteem, value, study, aspire to be like, adore, stand in awe, revere God and grow every more like Him in all we do—a never ending journey of love and discovery as we finite beings worship the infinite one and in that love trust relationship with our infinite God we are restored to Christlikeness of character and live out God's principles and methods in how we treat others? Does it mean that we practice and apply God's design laws to our lives, especially in how we treat others and thus give glory to God? And is one small sliver of such worship coming into congregational meetings to share our love for God and each other in song, in praise, and telling of God's deliverance in our lives?

But is there a counterfeit worship—a worship of forms, ceremonies, rules, rituals, dress codes, attendance requirements, behavioral modifications that is detached from the truth about God, that instead of bringing us into closer intimacy, trust, and friendship with God teaches us to distrust God while we trust in the legal mechanics put in place to protect us from this punishing law-enforcing god?

Read last paragraph,

- Praising the Lord in the congregation is perceived as ideal worship. This does not mean that the prayer and praise of the individual in Israel assume a secondary meaning. By contrast, the individual's worship of God feeds the communal worship with renewed praise (Ps. 22:22, 25) while in turn individual worship develops its fullest potential in close relationship with the community. The worshiping community also is called the "assembly of the upright" (Ps. 111:1). The upright know God (Ps. 36:10) and are known by God (Ps. 37:18), and this experience permeates every aspect of their existence. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 92).

What do you think of the first sentence, "Praising the Lord in the congregation is perceived as ideal worship"?

What is it that makes praising the Lord in congregation ideal worship?

- Is it simple attendance to a group worship service? We show up and sit in the pew, sing the songs, listen to the sermon and this is the ideal?
- Is it obeying the commandments of God? That God commanded we worship one day each week and we, as good and obedient servants, follow God's commands and come to church to worship God when He said we should and thus we have a group of compliant and obedient people who are all unified on the right rules and the right way to keep the rules? Is this God's ideal, that people obey Him without question and do what He tells them?

What is the ideal that Israel's assemblies were to symbolize?

Is Jesus' prayer in John 17, where He prayed that we would all be one as He and the Father are one, suggestive of anything about what it means to have ideal worship and what coming together as a people is to be in reality?

Consider what Paul wrote to the Ephesians:

- It was he who gave some to be apostles, some to be prophets, some to be evangelists, and some to be pastors and teachers, to prepare God's people for works of service, so that the body of Christ may be built up until we all reach unity in the faith and in the knowledge of the Son of God and become mature, attaining to the whole measure of the fullness of Christ. Then we will no longer be infants, tossed back and forth by the waves, and blown here and there by every wind of teaching and by the cunning and craftiness of men in their deceitful scheming. Instead, speaking the truth in love, we will in all things grow up into him who is the Head, that is, Christ. From him the whole body, joined and held together by every supporting ligament, grows and builds itself up in love, as each part does its work. (Ephesians 4:11–16, NIV84, emphasis mine). .

What do you hear? Is there a joining together, a unity, a corporate worship described here? What is it? What is the purpose of meeting together, worshiping together, studying together, working for gospel ministry together? It is for the purpose of people developing within themselves Christlikeness, of people becoming thinkers not reflectors of others thoughts, of people being cleansed from fear, selfishness, guilt and shame, of people assimilating into their hearts and minds the truth and love of God, the design laws of God becoming the living law that animates and invigorates their being.

In such an experience we are united with Jesus and the Father having been restored to at-one-ment with them. We all value and practices the same methods and principles in how we live our lives. We who are united in Christ:

- May not eat the same foods, for our bodies are different, but we apply the same principles of seeking to be the healthiest we can be and make lifestyle choices to keep ourselves healthy.
- May not be ceremonially baptized in the same way because our understanding of the ceremony is different, but we all experience the same immersion of heart and mind into the Holy Spirit for cleansing of the inner person.
- May not dress in the same way because we have different beliefs about jewelry or head coverings, but we all have our characters dressed in the fruits of the Spirit.
- We respect the individuality of others and therefore we do not try to control what others think, we present the truth in love and allow every person to be fully persuaded in their own minds.
- We stop approaching life like children, infants, focused on rules, laws, fear of punishment, we stop teaching that God is a rule-maker leaving behind the penal legal way of thinking of things and return to reality and worship God as Creator understanding His laws are design laws.
- We enter in a unity in our faith—meaning the natural outcome of returning to reality, to God, and His designs for life.

Consider this historical quote, from the book The Desire of Ages, and the question of unity and ideal worship, does it have any application?

- It is His [God's] plan that every part of His work shall depend on every other part, as a wheel within a wheel, all acting in harmony. The humblest worker, moved by the Holy Spirit, will touch invisible chords, whose vibrations will ring to the ends of the earth, and make melody through eternal ages. (The Desire of Ages 822).

Does this describe something related to a unity in our faith? What? There is an an energy, a chord, a harmonic, a principle of living, the law of life—truth, love and liberty—that originate in and emanate from God and through which all reality is built and operates and it is only as we receive and unite with this energy through the Spirit of God, the life of God, the vitalizing power of God, the presence of God, the truth of God that we are restored to being part of the body of Christ and experience the unity, the oneness, the harmony that is automatic when we are united with God. And thus when we act in accordance, in harmony with the design law principles of God we touch the invisible life-giving chords our Creator built reality to operate upon and are connected to all others who are in harmony with God, a unity in our faith?

But is there a form of congregational worship that is antagonistic to what God wants, that works against what God is trying to achieve, that is destructive rather than redemptive?

What about religious worship that teaches things like:

- God said it, I believe it, that is all there is to it?
- The pastor or priest is God's anointed and who are you to question?
- Salvation is a legal process of adjusting record books in a heavenly courtroom in some far off corner of the universe and not the actual process of cleansing hearts and minds from sin here and now?
- God's laws are rules He makes up and justice is God punishing rule-breakers?

Is there a religious approach to the Bible that rather than building people up to be thinkers, instead dumbs people down to be followers, to surrender their thinking to the religious authorities?

- Finally the temple guards went back to the chief priests and Pharisees, who asked them, "Why didn't you bring him in?"

  "No one ever spoke the way this man does," the guards declared.

  "You mean he has deceived you also?" the Pharisees retorted. "Has any of the rulers or of the Pharisees believed in him? No! But this mob that knows nothing of the law—there is a curse on them" (John 7:45–49 NIV84).

Is there a form of corporate worship that rather than seeking to build up individuality, rather that respecting each person's ability to reason for themselves and seeking to help them grow in their God-given abilities, instead seeks conformity, seeks to use the corporate body to put group pressure upon people to surrender their thinking, to not question, to go along with what leadership says in order to avoid being ostracized, shunned, or disfellowshipped?

Has Satan infected Christianity with an authoritarian form of Christianity, the idea that truth is found in the office of leader, whether pope, or conference president, or some special counsel of theologians, such as the Counsel of Trent or the Biblical Research Institute and that true worship is surrendering our minds, our individuality, our thinking to those with theological degrees, to those in leadership, those holding church office, to the General Conference vote?

Consider these historical quotations from one of the founders of the SDA church, who wrote the following after the SDA church leadership at the 1888 GC rejected the design law truth and chose the imposed human law lie, and has been leading our church into the wilderness of a dead legal theology ever since:

- "The church is in the Laodicean state. The presence of God is not in her midst." (Ms 156, 1898 – Notebook Leaflets from Elms haven Library, Vol.1, Need of Self- Sacrificing Effort, p. 99, emphasis mine)

Two years before she wrote the following to Uriah Smith, who was editor of the Signs, and he was one of the leaders who in 1888 rejected the design law truth, rejected the idea that the 10 Commandments were added. What she wrote did not fit with his legal, imposed-law mindset, so he filed this missive and it was found in the Signs files in the 1950's and published in the Selected Messages.

- We are not to regard God as waiting to punish the sinner for his sin. The sinner brings the punishment upon himself. His own actions start a train of circumstances that bring the sure result. Every act of transgression reacts upon the sinner, works in him a change of character, and makes it more easy for him to transgress again. By choosing to sin, men separate themselves from God, cut themselves off from the channel of blessing, and the sure result is ruin and death. (1 Selected Messages 235; 1896, emphasis mine)

She is calling for a rejection of the imposed law lie with its penal/legal view of God as a punishing god and return to worship God as our Creator and Redeemer whose laws are design laws. We must reject the Romanization of Christianity. Here are more quotes:

- "It has been some years since I have considered the General Conference as the voice of God." (Manuscript Releases 17, p. 216, 1898; Last Day Events, p. 50.3 1901)

- "It is working upon wrong principles that has brought the cause of God into its present embarrassment. The people have lost confidence in those who have the management of the work. Yet we hear that the voice of the Conference is the Voice of God. Every time I have heard this, I have thought that it was almost blasphemy....We have reached the time when the work cannot advance while wrong principles are cherished." (Manuscript 37, 1901, emphasis mine)

Principles are design laws, not imposed rules. But authoritarianism, central government with a few people in power dictating orthodoxy to be accepted as a test of fellowship and enforced through various compliance committees and censuring is worldly, it is how Rome operates. God wins His case by the truth presented in love and leaving people free, as Paul wrote, every person must be fully persuaded in their own mind (Romans 14:5)

1902 Ellen White writes to her sons Edson and Willie,

- "I have but very little confidence that the Lord is giving these men in positions of responsibility, spiritual eyesight and heavenly discernment. I am thrown into perplexity over their course; and I desire now to attend to my special work, to have no part in any of their councils, and to attend no camp meetings, nigh or afar off. My mind shall not be dragged into confusion by the tendency they manifest to work directly contrary to the light that God has given me. I am done. I will preserve my God-given intelligence…(Letter W-186, 2 Dec. 1902 to Edson and Willie White, p. 4, 5, emphasis mine)

  My voice has been heard in the different Conferences and at camp-meetings. I must now make a change. I cannot enter the atmosphere of strife and then have to bear testimonies that cost me much more than those to whom they are sent can imagine. When I attend the different meetings, I am compelled to deal with men standing in responsible places who I know are not exerting an influence that God can endorse. And when I bear a testimony in reference to their course of action, advantage is taken of this testimony. These men have not clear understanding. Should I say the things that I know, they would not, with their present experience, use this instruction wisely and would bring upon me inconceivable burdens. (Letter W-186, 2 Dec. 1902 to Edson and Willie White, p. 6, emphasis mine)

  I shall, therefore, leave them to receive word from the Bible, in which the principles upon which they should work are laid down in straight lines. (Letter W-186, 2 Dec. 1902 to Edson and Willie White, p. 7, emphasis mine)

  There are those who look upon themselves as the Lord's servants, but who, as shown by the way in which the… work has been handled, are working away from the light that God has for years been giving. I have pity for them, but I cannot be forever pointing out for them the way of righteousness. They are brought no nearer right actions by what I say than if the words were never spoken. So long as those in responsible positions see things through a false medium, they will put a wrong construction on my work. (Letter W-186, 2 Dec. 1902 to Edson and Willie White, p. 8, emphasis mine) [The false medium is the imposed law lie, and then using her writings to promote a penal legal fantasy theology rather than the design law healing truth]

  The light I have for our ministers is: Seek God. Stop your whisperings and your evil surmisings, instigated by Satan; and see if the love of God will not fill heart and soul. And I will go on with my writing. This is the light given me, and I shall not depart from it. (Letter W-186, 2 Dec. 1902 to Edson and Willie White, p. 9, emphasis mine)

This is quite profound, she takes the position that she has given her witness, she has presented the truth, and those in leadership of the church have rejected it, and for her to continue to go to their meetings, submit to their leadership, listen to their sermons it would throw her mind into confusion and in order to preserve her God-given intelligence she must stop being part of assemblies where she is convinced the truth is not being presented and where they are working contrary to the principles of God—and she said this about SDA meetings!

Is this only applicable to her, or is there a principle here for each of us in our own journey, our own growth with Jesus? Are we to be thinkers or are we to surrender our thinking and become reflectors of what the church officers tell us?

Remember, we have said it over and over again, we at Come and Reason Ministries are not here to tell you what to think. You have your own mind, your own individuality and you must develop it for yourselves. We are here to challenge you to think, to provide evidence and perspective and reason for you to weigh out for yourselves and as Paul wrote in Romans 14:5 to be fully persuaded in your own mind. We want you to come to your own conclusions. We believe that God is Creator, the builder of reality, that His design laws are constants and that when we come to know God we enter into reality-based living and there is a unity that is automatic in that way of thinking and living.

So, when we think about assemblies, we are to consider the assembly and use our own judgment as to whether such an assembly is a place where God would have us attend, and if so for what purpose? Are we going there to be a witness for God, like Elijah at Mount Carmel, or are we going to an assembly to fellowship because the people are already unified upon the truths of God's kingdom of love?

SUNDAY

The title of the lesson is "Lift Up Your Hands in the Sanctuary," what do you think of this title?

Does it mean we need to build a tent sanctuary like Moses built? Does it mean we need to go to the wailing wall in Jerusalem? Does it mean we need to lift our hands upon in church assembly?

Or, is the sanctuary Moses built and later the Temple Solomon built, symbolic representations of something else—is there a true sanctuary of which the earthly ones were only symbolic?

The Bible certainly references in many places a heavenly sanctuary—and we believe there is a reality to this, but what are the building materials of the sanctuary in heaven?

Read the last paragraph,

- "Coming to Him as to a living stone, rejected indeed by men, but chosen by God and precious, you also, as living stones, are being built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ" (1 Pet. 2:4, 5, NKJV).

> What we see here, in the words of Peter, is a New Testament expression of the same ideas presented in these psalms, that of God's people, now a holy priesthood, offering praise and thanksgiving to their Lord Jesus Christ, their Creator and Redeemer, for all the good things that He had done for them. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 93).

The lesson rightly identifies believers as a holy priesthood, but doesn't comment on the other elements taken from the sanctuary metaphor and applied to us by the Bible writers. Peter also says that the stones in the temple were representative of you and me, the believers in Christ with Jesus as the living stone.

Paul wrote:

- Consequently, you are no longer foreigners and aliens, but fellow citizens with God's people and members of God's household, built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ Jesus himself as the chief cornerstone. In him the whole building is joined together and rises to become a holy temple in the Lord. And in him you too are being built together to become a dwelling in which God lives by his Spirit. (Ephesians 2:19-22 NIV84).

What do you think? Is the heavenly sanctuary real? And from what is it made? Is the heavenly sanctuary made out of dead material, like stones, planks, gold, and silver, or is it built out of real, physical, living beings?

Consider, based from these Bible texts, the following historical quote from EG White, one of the founders of the SDA church who was integral in formulating the heavenly sanctuary doctrine:

- The first tabernacle, built according to God's directions, was indeed blessed of Him. The people thus were preparing themselves to worship in the temple not made with hands--a temple in the heavens. The stones of the Temple built by Solomon were all prepared at the quarry and then brought to the Temple site. They came together without the sound of ax or hammer. The timbers were also fitted in the forest. The furniture was likewise brought to this house all prepared for use. (3 Manuscript Release 231.3)

  Even so, the mighty cleaver of truth has taken out a people from the quarry of the world and is fitting this people, who profess to be the children of God, for a place in His heavenly temple. We want the cleaver of truth to do its work for us. We are taken from the quarry of the world. The material must not be a dead substance but living souls, and these souls must be brought out of the quarry of the world, where the hand of God can fit them for the temple in heaven. We are here as probationers, and we must pass under the hand of God. All rough edges and rough surfaces must be removed and we must be stones fitted for the building. We are brought into church capacity with defects of character, but we must not retain them. We must be fitted and squared for the building. We must be "laborers together with God," for we are "God's husbandry," we are "God's building." In view of this we must see that our temple is not defiled with sin. We should be lively > stones, not dead ones, but live ones that will reflect the image of Christ. We must be worshipers in spirit and in truth. (3 Manuscript Release 231.4, emphasis mine)

What do you think? Is she describing the sanctuary in heaven as being built out of living people? So, if the heavenly sanctuary is made out of living people what would it mean to cleanse it or set it right? Wouldn't it simply be the cleansing of the hearts and minds of all the people who are being saved?

There is nothing penal legal going on in this process, it is Jesus the groom cleansing His bride and preparing her for entering into His full unveiled, life-giving presence. That is the work Jesus accomplishes immediately prior to His second coming, the work going on by our Savior right now. And we describe this cleansing work in our magazine

The Wedding of Christ to His Bride: Preparing the Church for the Second Coming

TUESDAY

The lesson asks who can enter the Lord's tabernacle or worship in His presence, thoughts?

In the first paragraph, the lesson answers with this:

- The sanctuary was a holy place, and everything in it, including the priests, was consecrated. Thus, holiness is a mandatory requirement for entering the presence of God. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 95).

What does this mean? What does it mean to be holy? Is holiness something that is declared or actual? In other words, do we become holy or are we merely proclaimed to be holy while we are not actually holy?

In the OT system did the consecrated priests become holy through the ceremony of consecration or did the ceremony merely symbolize becoming holy?

Some would say that the consecrated priests did become holy because they could then go into the sanctuary and do their office work—but what about the Nadab and Abihu and other priests who were consecrated in the ceremony but who did wicked things at the temple? Were they actually holy people or just, within the theatrical system, symbolically represented to be holy?

And then when their behavior was so far off script from what they were to act out—so unholy after being theatrically represented to be holy—God had to remove them from the stage play, and in so doing demonstrate that holiness cannot be achieved through ritual, ceremony, or declaration, but holiness is only achieved through actual transformation of the person. And this was symbolically taught through the ceremonies the priests went through, such as washing, putting on new clean white robes, sacrificing animals and placing the blood on the altar and also on earlobe, right thumb and right great toe. All was symbolically taught actual healing and transformation of a sinner through the life, the righteousness, of Jesus and the work of the Holy Spirit being applied to the sinner who becomes a priest in God's kingdom when their hearts and minds are washed from fear, selfishness, guilt, and shame, when they are reborn through that washing with a new heart and right spirit, when they partake of the divine nature and begin choosing to live out the principles, motives, and desires of Jesus and they develop mature Christlike character they are robed in the righteousness of Christ.

So what does it mean to be holy? It simply means that we have been restored in heart, mind, motive to unity with God—we have died to fear and selfishness and have God's living law of love written upon our hearts so that we are united with God in heart, in mind, in desire—we love what God loves. Holiness in other words is restoration to God's healthiness for life, the restoration of God's design laws within as the mode of our action, and thus we are lovers of truth—listen for the leading of God (blood on the ear), we use our energies in our daily works of life to honor God by apply His design law principles (blood on the right thumb) and we go where God leads us walking the way He would have us walk through the roads of life (blood on the right great toe). There is nothing declarative going on, nothing penal legal going on, it is actual real healing, real purifying, in real people by a very real and righteous God.

The second paragraph states,

- "A perfect heart" is the worshiper's greatest quality before God. The Hebrew tamim, "perfect," conveys the notion of "completeness" and "wholeness." A "perfect" vine is whole, undamaged, and healthy (Ezek. 15:5). Animals offered as sacrifices had to be tamim, or without blemish (Lev. 22:21-24). "Perfect" speech is entirely truthful (Job 36:4). A "perfect heart" thus is a "pure heart" (Ps. 24:4) or a heart of integrity (Ps. 15:2). It seeks God (Ps. 24:6) and is restored by God's forgiveness (Ps. 51:2-10). A blameless life springs from the acknowledgment of God's grace and His righteousness... (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 95).

What does it mean to be perfect? Jesus said we are to be perfect as the Father is perfect, what does this mean?

Have you heard the following:

- Christ is waiting with longing desire for the manifestation of Himself in His church. When the character of Christ shall be perfectly reproduced in His people, then He will come to claim them as His own. (Christ's Object Lessons 69).

What does this mean? Have you heard this in the past and been frightened, made fearful, anxious, insecure?

Do you recognize this as the same thing as the cleansing of the sanctuary which is the cleansing of the bride that Paul speaks about? Or do you think the cleansing of the sanctuary and the cleansing of the bride of Christ are different? What does it do to our ability to cooperate with God for the reproduction of His character in us if we believe that the cleansing of the sanctuary is not something happening in us but something happening in record books way off past Orion?

What law lens do you hear words like "character of Christ shall be perfectly reproduced in His people" through? If you think God's law functions like human law then what do words like perfect mean? Does it mean perfect performance, perfect behavior, perfect rule-keeping? And do such ideas bring peace or greater anxiety and fear? And does that lead to teaching that the statement "character of Christ shall be perfectly reproduced in His people" means to have Christ's character reproduced in our legal documents in the courts of heaven during the judgment, but that such reproduction doesn't happen in us, we are declared, based on the merits of Jesus to be legally righteous in the judgment while we remain unrighteous in reality here on earth? Do you see, how the legal view actually works against what God is working to achieve—God wants to reproduce Jesus in every heart and mind, to cleanse us from all sin, but the legal view puts up barriers in our hearts and minds that obstructs this.

But if we understand God's law as design law then what do such words mean?

When we return to worshiping God as Creator, we realize that the basis for life in God's universe is God and the law upon which He constructed life to operate. We realize that we sinners must be restored to unity with God. And we read Jesus' words about being perfect in their full context, allowing Jesus to inform us of what He meant:

- You have heard that it was said, "Love your neighbor and hate your enemy." But I tell you: Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, that you may be sons of your Father in heaven. He causes his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sends rain on the righteous and the unrighteous. If you love those who love you, what reward will you get? Are not even the tax collectors doing that? And if you greet only your brothers, what are you doing more than others? Do not even pagans do that? Be perfect, therefore, as your heavenly Father is perfect (Matthew 5:43–48 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Jesus Himself describes what being perfect means: to love everyone, consistently and reliably, just like the sun and the rain treat everyone exactly the same. But it is understood that this is only possible by first being restored to a love and trust relationship with God, as Jesus said multiple times:

- "Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind." This is the first and greatest commandment. And the second is like it: "Love your neighbor as yourself." All the Law and the Prophets hang on these two commandments (Matthew 22:37–40 NIV84).

And how does God's love get restored into our hearts so that we can be perfect? It is by trust—that is, faith—in God. Thus, as the apostle Paul wrote:

- Everything that does not come from faith is sin (Romans 14:23).

And how is trust restored so we open the heart to receive the new heart and right spirit, to allow God to write His law upon our hearts and minds? By the gospel, which is the good news about God that wins us back to trust.

Bible perfection is not about deeds or tasks; it is about love and trust, about maturity of character. Speaking of Jesus, Hebrews states:

- During the days of Jesus' life on earth, he offered up prayers and petitions with loud cries and tears to the one who could save him from death, and he was heard because of his reverent submission. Although he was a son, he learned obedience from what he suffered and, once made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey him (Hebrews 5:7–9 NIV84)

But wasn't Jesus always perfect? Jesus was certainly always sinless, but Bible perfection isn't about sinlessness. Adam and Eve in Eden were sinless, but they were not perfected. Bible perfection is about maturity of character, which is about coming into a love and trust relationship with God so deeply that nothing can shake us from it. The "perfect" are those who remain faithful, loyal, and true to God in their heart's devotion no matter what. They might have questions, they might misunderstand, they might be confused about why things are going the way they are; they might cry out like Jesus did, "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" (Matthew 27:45 NIV84), but also just like Jesus, they still trust God and won't break trust with Him.

There are examples of people who achieved such perfection—they were not sinless beings, but they were sinners who had come to love and trust God so fully that nothing could shake them from their faithfulness to Him—thus, they were described by God as being "perfect."

- Job: no trial, hardship, or theological lies by compassionate friends could cause him to break trust with God
- Daniel: He would rather be thrown into the lion's den than betray God.
- Shadrack, Meshack, and Abednego: They would rather be thrown into a fiery furnace than betray God.

These "perfect" people were not sinless; they were settled into such faithful loyalty to God that nothing could shake them from it. They would not compromise love for God and others in order to advantage or protect themselves.

Those who have been perfected in their loyalty to Jesus will not compromise their faith in Him in order to hold on to their assets, whether those assets are personal wealth or institutional wealth. They will not compromise the principles of God's kingdom to hold on to their church properties, hospitals, schools, clinics, or publishing houses. They will stay faithful to Jesus even if, like Daniel, they end up captives of a godless power and are thrown into a lion's den.

This is exactly how the Bible describes the righteous people who are ready for translation, the true last generation:

- They did not love their lives so much as to shrink from death (Revelation 12:11 NIV84).

The perfect, those who are ready to meet Jesus when He returns in the clouds, are not those with perfect deeds or tasks, but those whose hearts have been restored to perfect trust in God. They are settled in their relationship with God so deeply that nothing can shake them from it. No trial, no tribulation, no temptation, no lie, no pain, no loss, no attack will cause them to break faith with God. They are sealed to God in heart, in mind, in soul—and they trust God with their future.

WEDNESDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 96, you can follow along in any version, I am going to read it from The Remedy—consider if this is not a message the world needs today, a world that by and large no longer believes in God, a world that believes in evolution, that the strongest survive, that it is right and just to make up laws and enforce those laws upon people. Consider how we have a message of our Creator God whose laws are design laws that flies in the face of the world's wisdom, but how the penal legal theologies have resulted in billions rejecting Christianity because they make God out to be no different the a petty dictator, a power monger who is the source of inflicted punishment against all those who won't bow to him.

- Sing to the Lord a new heart-song; sing to the Lord, all the earth! Sing to the Lord, praise his character of love; display his healing and restoration in you each and every day. (Psalm 96:1-2 REM)

When we experience God as our Creator, surrender to Him and are transformed to have mental/spiritual health, peace, joy, and Christlikeness, we reveal in our lives truth that cannot be denied. The godless have no peace, they have no joy, they struggle from addiction to addiction, fear to fear, relationship to relationship, seeking power and control, something to bring peace to their tormented souls. Our lives of godly joy and peace are songs that draw all who are not hardened beyond healing and give us opportunity to tell the truth of our Creator God who can heal all who come to Him. Another metaphor from Scripture, taken from the sanctuary service, the burning of incense that was to waft out over the tribes which represented the unconverted peoples of the world is:

- But thanks be to God, who always leads us in triumphal procession in Christ and through us spreads everywhere the fragrance of the knowledge of him. For we are to God the aroma of Christ among those who are being saved and those who are perishing. To the one we are the smell of death; to the other, the fragrance of life. (2 Corinthians 2:14-16 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Continuing with Psalm 96:

- Take the truth of his glorious character and methods of love to the entire world, tell everyone of his marvelous works, for supreme is the Lord and most worthy of adoration; he is to be awed, admired, and esteemed above all gods. For every god of this world is a worthless fraud, but the Lord is the Creator who made the heavens. (Psalm 96:3-5 REM)

God is to be esteemed because He built reality and His laws are the laws of health, the laws of life, the laws upon which reality function and operate. Whereas all the false gods make up rules that require legal oversight and external enforcement—and therefore incite fear, fear of punishment. God is the source of healing love that casts out our fear.

- Majestic love and splendid truth emanate from him; power and glory fill his dwelling place. Recognize the Lord, all peoples of the world; recognize the Lord as glorious and almighty! Give your Creator the adoration his character of love deserves; bring yourselves into his presence, offering your love and devotion. Worship the Lord with your hearts renewed with the beauty of his holiness; abide in his presence all the earth! (Psalm 96:6-9 REM).

The law of worship, it is by beholding we are changed, to experience the healing of God, to be freed from fear and selfishness, to be transformed we must humble surrender to God and place Him at the center of our hearts affections, what we esteem, adore, awe, admire, and look up to.

- Say to the nations, "The Creator built reality, and he sustains and rules over it." The world is firmly established on universal laws that cannot be changed; his design laws apply equally to everyone. Let the earth and sky rejoice; let the oceans roar in victory, and everything within them. Let the fields celebrate, with their lavish crops, and then, all the trees in the forests will exclaim with joy; they will sing before the Lord, for he is coming—he is coming to govern the earth! He will govern the world, restoring it back to his perfect design, and the people will live in truth—in harmony with his character of love. (Psalm 96:10-13 REM).

God’s laws do not discriminate, God’s laws are constants and treat everyone the same. The world is divided, constantly fighting because one group gets advantage over another, because the human law systems are rigged to benefit some while disadvantaging others. The message of God is that He is the Creator and He is not a respecter of persons, He loves all and treats all the same and His laws do not discriminate, we are either restored to harmony with them and we thrive or we stay out of harmony and suffer and die. The world needs to know the truth of God, to stop judging Him to be like Satan alleges, a being who makes up rules like we do and uses power to punish rule breakers. Why would anyone want to live eternally in such a kingdom?

MONDAY

What does it mean to sing to the Lord a new song? Let’s compare Psalm 98 from the NIV and REM:

- Sing to the LORD a new song, for he has done marvelous things; his right hand and his holy arm have worked salvation for him. The LORD has made his salvation known and revealed his righteousness to the nations. He has remembered his love and his faithfulness to the house of Israel; all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God. (Psalm 98:1-3 NIV84).
- Sing a new heart-song to the Lord, for what he has done is astounding: Jesus—his right hand and holy agent—is the cure for sin. The Lord has made his remedy known and revealed his perfect and right design for life to the nations. He has kept his promise to pour out his love and truth upon his people; the entire world has seen the healing power of our God. (Psalm 98:1-3 REM).

Do you hear these exactly the same? As you compare them to you find anything in the Remedy that cannot be understood to be in the NIV but one has to do more interpreting in the NIV, for instance God's right hand and holy arm worked out salvation, a person has to think about that and realize that Jesus was God's agent to work out salvation for us. Jesus is God's right hand, the action arm of the Godhead who has left heaven to act in human history. Also, Israel, in this text, is not speaking of genetic descendants of Jacob, but Israel here represents the faithful of God, those whose hearts have been circumcised by the Holy Spirit, thus the rendering as "his people."

- Shout for joy to the LORD, all the earth, burst into jubilant song with music; make music to the LORD with the harp, with the harp and the sound of singing, with trumpets and the blast of the ram's horn—shout for joy before the LORD, the King. (Psalm 98:4-6 NIV84).
- Let everyone make their life a joyful song unto the Lord! Let the beautiful music of love burst forth from your hearts renewed; make the melody of love for the Lord, resplendent like the sound of the harp; let your love resound with the harp and singing. With trumpets and horns, proclaim your joy for the Lord our King. (Psalm 98:4-6 REM).

Thoughts about making a joyful song? What is it that God wants? Doesn't God want our lives to be restored to harmony with Him, to live lives of love that are melody of heaven? Isn't that the meaning more so that acoustical melodies? And that corresponds to the quote we read earlier about touching chords that connect all of God's creation together, we are in harmony, make a melody, our lives are beautiful music to the Lord.

- Let the sea resound, and everything in it, the world, and all who live in it. Let the rivers clap their hands, let the mountains sing together for joy; let them sing before the LORD, for he comes to judge the earth. He will judge the world in righteousness and the peoples with equity. (Psalm 98:7-9 NIV84).
- Let the sea and everything dwelling in it rejoice along with the entire world and all who inhabit it. Let the rivers celebrate and the mountains shout for joy; let them sing to the Lord, for he comes to restore his governance to the earth. He will govern the world in love and heal the people to live in harmony with his design for life. (Psalm 98:7-9 REM).

Let me make this clear—the NIV is not wrong; the truth is all there to be understood of one reads the NIV with God's design law in mind. The Remedy just makes the design law truth easier to recognize and see.

THURSDAY

The title of the lesson is "When God Does Not Delight in Sacrifice"

Has God every delighted in animal sacrifices?

What is the sacrifice God does delight in?

- The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit; a broken and contrite heart, O God, you will not despise. (Psalm 51:17 NIV84).

What God wants is us to sacrifice our fear, selfishness, pride, to die to our carnal fear driven lives and be reborn on the altar of His love and grace.

Then what was the purpose of the animal sacrifices? Teaching tool, to teach the plan of salvation, that sin severs God's design law for life and results in death and life would only be possible by restoring in humanity God's living law of love and that only our sinless Creator God could do this work. Thus Jesus dedicated Himself to become the second Adam, partake of humanity terminal in sin and eradicate the sin infection and restore God's living law of love perfectly into the species.

And the only way to do that was to take the infection to the cross and kill it, which He did.

2024 1Q Psalms Lesson 13
Wait on the Lord

by Tim Jennings

SABBATH

The first paragraph recounts the Lord's leading in diverse situations and then concludes with this sentence,

- If there is a final word that we can draw from the Psalms, it should be "wait on the Lord." (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 100).

What does it mean to wait on the Lord?

There is a song from 1982 by a Christian group called Petra entitle More Power to Ya and the lyrics are:

> You say you've been feeling weaker, weaker by the day
> You say you can't make the joy of your salvation stay
> But good things come to them that wait
> Not to those who hesitate
> So hurry up and wait upon the Lord
>
> More power to ya
> When you're standing on His word
> When you're trusting with your whole heart in the message you have heard
> More power to ya
> When we're all in one accord
> They that wait upon the Lord, they shall renew, they shall renew their strength
> (Written by: Bob Hartman; Album: Petra - More Power To Ya, 1982)

What does it mean to wait upon the Lord?

Read second paragraph,

- Waiting on the Lord is not an idle and desperate biding of one's time. Instead, waiting on the Lord is an act full of trust and faith, a trust and faith revealed in action. Waiting on the Lord transforms our gloomy evenings with the expectancy of the bright morning (Ps. 30:5, Ps. 143:8). It strengthens our hearts with renewed hope and peace. It motivates us to work harder, bringing in the sheaves of plentiful harvest from the Lord's mission fields (Ps. 126:6, Matt. 9:36-38). Waiting on the Lord will never put us to shame but will be richly rewarded because the Lord is faithful to all His promises (Ps. 37:7-11, 18, 34; Ps. 71:1; Ps. 119:137, 138). (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 100).

I would agree waiting on the Lord has a double meaning—it does mean waiting on the Lord to lead, but then actively working for the Lord. If we don't have a new direction to go, then we stay active in the duties we currently know the Lord has given us to fulfill—and we seek to fulfill them in accordance with His will, by applying His methods to our actions and solutions.

But what of the idea "It [waiting on the Lord which is trust and faith] motivates us to work harder, bringing in the sheaves of plentiful harvest from the Lord's mission fields"?

What does it mean to bring sheaves into the harvest?

- Does it mean converting someone to a creed, a system of fundamental beliefs, to join a specific organization?
- How many sides are there in the war between Christ and Satan?
- When Jesus said,

- "Enter through the narrow gate. For wide is the gate and broad is the road that leads to destruction, and many enter through it. But small is the gate and narrow the road that leads to life, and only a few find it. (Matthew 7:13-14 NIV84).

What did Jesus mean? Jesus' meaning is quite simple and straightforward when one returns to worshiping God as Creator and recognizes His laws are design laws. It becomes confusing when people think through human law. On any subject there is one truth—but an infinite number of lies. Consider the color of the sky on a clear day—there is an objective truth to the wavelength of light we see reflected back, and that can be measured with a light meter and we can give the nanometer wavelength of light we are seeing. But people are free to reject that truth—but once they reject the truth what is left for them to replace it with? Falsehood, lies, and it doesn't matter what they choose in its place, if they reject the truth they will rest their mind upon lies. They way to eternal life is only through the door of truth—and on all issues there is one truth, one reality, one way God created things to work, God's design laws that govern reality, but there are a multitude of counterfeits.

For instance, there is one Savior, Jesus Christ—but there are a multitude of false gods, it doesn't matter which false god someone worships, they all lead to the same place, destruction of the image of god within the person and the establishment of the character of God's enemy within the individual's spirit temple. And it doesn't matter whether one worships Jesus, or Joshua, or Yashua, or Jehovah, Yahweh, El-Shaddai, Michael, the Lamb of God, or any other nomenclature as long as one attributes to Jesus the truth that He revealed Himself and the Father to be. For it is by beholding that we are changed, we become like the God we admire and worship.

The only way for us to have salvation, for us to be restored to righteousness is to receive the righteousness of Jesus Christ by recognizing Him in truth, accepting Him, trusting Him, opening our hearts to Him, adoring, admiring, esteeming, worshiping, loving Him and actively listening to Him seeking to know every day more of Him, His methods, principles, plans and choosing to carry out in our lives what we know is His will for our lives.

Consider this historical quote, from EG White whose message of Design Law and real restoration to righteousness was rejected by the legalistic leadership of the SDA church in 1888, those who continue to teach the penal/legal lies about salvation:

- Are we so insensible as a peculiar people, a holy nation, to the inexpressible love that God has manifested for us? Salvation is not to be baptized, not to have our names upon the church books, not to preach the truth. But it is a living union with Jesus Christ, to be renewed in heart, doing the works of Christ in faith and labor of love, in patience, meekness, and hope. Every soul united to Christ will be a living missionary to all around him. He will labor for those near and those afar off. He will have no sectional feeling, no interest merely to build up one branch of the work over which he presides, and there let his zeal end. All will work with interest to make every branch strong. There will be no self-love, no selfish interest. The cause is one, the truth a great whole. (4LtMs, Lt 55, 1886, par. 22).

Do you agree with this statement? What is the truth presented? Are we saved by joining a denomination? Do we bring people into salvation by getting them to agree with our doctrines? Do people become saved when they join your church? Why do so many churches seem to think proper evangelism is getting people to join their organization? Is it?

What is evangelism as Jesus would have us do it? What does it mean to bring in the sheaves?

Does it mean converting people to doctrinal systems, or bringing people out of the world of fear, selfishness, and sin, and into oneness with Jesus where they experience a new heart and right spirit to love God and others more than self, where they can live lives of ever-advancing development of character in the truth and love of God, practicing His methods in how they treat others?

WEDNESDAY

The title is Waiting in God's Sabbath Rest

What does this mean? How do we wait in God's Sabbath rest?

Does it mean making a list of prohibited and authorized behaviors to do on the Sabbath day? Does it mean going to church on the seventh day Sabbath?

Someone posted this question for our Q&A time and I thought it fit with our lesson, so I am reading it here:

- I'm visiting family in Brazil. It's miserable hot, and there is a pool with refreshing water created by God, but it is off limits, on the day celebrating creation of said water. This is one of many examples, another being we must take a shower before sunset, even though I'm going to get hot and sweaty from deep frying in the kitchen. But then Isaiah 58:13,14 comes up, where we are told not to do our pleasure. Please help me reconcile this to reason with people here! Please define, "one's pleasure" in the above verses, because this is what is being used against me. I think I'm working it out as I'm writing this question—if I'm aligned with God's design laws, His pleasures are my pleasures. I would still like your input, please.

How would you answer her? Have you ever had such concerns? Before we unpack this, let me say that I believe the people who make up these irrational rules do so from the sincerest of hearts. They do so not because they want to be disobedient to God, but because they want to be obedient to God; they want to honor God; they want to do what is right not what is wrong. Very similarly to the doctors who bled and leached George Washington when he had pneumonia—those doctors wanted to do everything to help, to save, to bless, to cure, but because they believed wrongs things about sickness, microbiology, immune system, and the laws of health their actions, done with the best of motives, the motives of love to save, were ultimately harmful.

My understanding of what those doctors did was the wrong thing from the right motive, thus their hearts were not acting on evil, they were not sinning, but they were also not advancing godly health practices. Likewise, there are millions who keep Sabbath as described above, they are doing from a heart that loves God and wants to do what is right to honor God and their hearts are not sinning, they are not doing evil—but because of their ignorance, their made up rules burden the Sabbath with needly exactions, and do not advance the kingdom of God, but obstruct it, especially in the hearts of people who are thinking rather than following rules.

In the aftermath of the 1888 GC, when EG White and others Reformers were advancing the design law truth of God's law, but the legalistic leaders rejected that view and instead clung to the imposed law lie that God's laws function like human laws, and retained a legal/penal explanation of the sin problem and the plan of salvation, she wrote the following. It was written in 1889 and published in the Signs January 20, 1890:

- Christ came to save fallen man, and Satan with fiercest wrath met him on the field of conflict; for the enemy knew that when divine strength was added to human weakness, man was armed with power and intelligence, and could break away from the captivity in which he had bound him. Satan sought to intercept every ray of light from the throne of God. He sought to cast his shadow across the earth, that men might lose the true views of God's character, and that the knowledge of God might become extinct in the earth. He had caused truth of vital importance to be so mingled with error that it had lost its significance. The law of Jehovah was burdened with needless exactions and traditions, and God was represented as severe, exacting, revengeful, and arbitrary. [Satan infected the minds of people with the lie that God's law functions like human law, and that resulted in more rules, more restrictions, ideas of law-keeping, of legality, punishment from God. The idea that God's justice is inflicting punishment and therefore God is a severe, exacting, rule-enforcer who only punishes as long as we deserve, one who is pleased when sin gets its full and just dues in the form of torture upon the unrepentant.] He was pictured as one who could take pleasure in the sufferings of his creatures. The very attributes that belonged to the character of Satan, the evil one represented as belonging to the character of God. Jesus came to teach men of the Father, to correctly represent him before the fallen children of earth. Angels could not fully portray the character of God, but Christ, who was a living impersonation of God, could not fail to accomplish the work. The only way in which he could set and keep men right was to make himself visible and familiar to their eyes. [What is set right and keep right if we used Latin terms? Justify and sanctify, the only way to win us back to trust, to set our hearts and minds right with God again was to reveal the truth of who He is and how His law and government actually work. As long as we believe the lies we will not be won back to trust. And then in trust we receive the objective victory of Jesus, the new heart and right spirit that He accomplished as our human substitute.] That men might have salvation he came directly to man, and became a partaker of his nature. (Signs of the Times January 20, 1890, par. 6, emphasis mine).

Is the final issue in the war between Christ and Satan a test over which day one attends weekly worship services?

- If a person absolutely insists on worshipping on the Bible Sabbath does that mean they will go to heaven, is Sabbath keeping the key to salvation?
- Those who crucified Christ 2000 years ago wanted Him off the Cross by sunset why? So they could keep the Bible Sabbath – does that mean they had the seal of God?
- Does Satan care if a group of people worships on Sabbath as long as they worship him?
    - Who did Jesus Himself say was the father of the Jewish leadership, those Sabbath keepers who crucified Him?

- "You belong to your father, the devil, and you want to carry out your father's desire" (John 8:44 NIV84).

    - So we have people keeping the Bible Sabbath who are, according to Jesus, children of Satan.
    - Doesn't that mean, to the degree the Sabbath is involved in end-time events, or any events in human history, it must be more than simply the day of the week one avoids work or attends worship services?

So what is the importance of the Bible Sabbath? If we present it as a law like humans make up, a rule that we are required to obey—are we advancing the gospel, the truth of God's kingdom, or are we advance Satan's lie and working against God's kingdom?

This is not a question about what day of the week is the Sabbath, every serious Bible student knows that the Bible Sabbath is Saturday, the days the Jews still observe every week without fail since long before the time of Jesus. The questions before us, are:

- What is the purpose of the Sabbath?
- How are we to understand and experience it?

- What impact does the Sabbath have upon who we understand God to be and our relationship with Him?
- What role does the Sabbath have for human beings today?
- Is there a Great Controversy function for the Sabbath—is it important as we approach the second coming of Christ?
- Thus, how do we rest in God's Sabbath?

Jesus said,

- The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. Therefore the Son of Man is also Lord of the Sabbath. (Mark 2:27,28, emphasis mine)

What does this mean? Is this saying the Sabbath is a rule you must obey, or that it is a gift for you to enjoy and be blessed by?

How is the Sabbath a gift? What is its purpose for God's creation?

Was there a Sabbath in heaven before Earth was created? Is there any evidence of this?

- If the Sabbath was made it had a beginning
- The Bible tells us it was made at the end of creation week and that it was made for human beings
- And the Sabbath is measured by the rotation of the earth in relationship to the Sun that didn't exist until creation week.
- So, the evidence supports the idea that the Sabbath was not in heaven when the angels rebelled but was specifically made for man
- For what purpose?

And as we consider the purpose of the Sabbath in the setting of the universal war that began in heaven, consider this historical quote:

- The last great conflict between truth and error is but the final struggle of the long-standing controversy concerning the law of God. Upon this battle we are now entering,—a battle between the laws of men and the precepts of Jehovah, between the religion of the Bible and the religion of fable and tradition. (The Great Controversy 582).

Did the angels that followed Satan in heaven disobey God's law? Yes, but there was no Sabbath in heaven—the issue in the controversy did not originate over a Sabbath versus Sunday question and it ultimately won't end over that superficial question. It will end over what these two days represent—they are signs or pennants or marks or emblems of two types of law and therefore two types of government and ultimately two different gods.

The Sabbath was created as a day set apart by God; Sunday was not created as a day set apart from the other days by God, but became a day set apart from the other days of the week by human legislation. Thus, the two days represent two types of law—design law and imposed law.

The issue is not the actual day, but the law and government the days represent, consider this historical quote:

- The prophet thus points out the ordinance which has been forsaken: "Thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in. If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on My holy day; and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor Him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words: then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord." Verses 12-14. This prophecy also applies in our time. The breach was made in the law of God when the Sabbath was changed by the Roman power. But the time has come for that divine institution to be restored. The breach is to be repaired and the foundation of many generations to be raised up. (The Great Controversy 452, emphasis mine).

Notice the author didn't write, "The breach was made by the change in the Sabbath, but when the Sabbath was changed." The breach in the law was changing how we understand God's law from design law to believing that God's law is imposed rules that can be changed. The changing of the Sabbath to Sunday is the evidence, the fruit, the result of the beach and the true breach is no longer recognizing that God's are design laws.

Thus the repairers of the breach are those who teach the truth that God's laws are design laws and not imposed rules, and in so doing we call people back to worship the Creator who made the heavens, earth, sea and fountains of water. We teach people reality and how to cooperate with God to become the righteousness of God.

But if we accept the right day of the week as the Bible Sabbath yet continue to believe the lie that God's law functions like human law, we have not repaired the breach, we have not left the Roman system of worship, we are still advancing the counterfeit to God's kingdom, just as the Jews did 2000 years ago who had the right Bible Sabbath but the wrong law and the wrong god.

Consider the Bible image of being a repairer of the breach, this is referencing the walls that surrounded Jerusalem that were broken down at the time Babylon conquered Israel and were rebuilt when the remnant came out of Babylon and returned to Jerusalem.

At the center of Jerusalem was the temple, thus the walls were symbolic of what kept enemies out of the temple of God.

The most important part of the temple was the most holy place, where the ark of the covenant was kept. The most holy place was symbolic of the New Jerusalem.

- The most holy place was in the shape of cube
- The New Jerusalem is in the shape of a cube

- The most holy place was covered in gold
- The New Jerusalem is paved in gold

- The most holy place is where God's shekinah presence gave light
- The New Jerusalem will not need a sun to light it because God's glory will give it its light

And the New Jerusalem is called the Bride of Christ, it is composed of the living stones who are being shaped and cleansed to be built into a temple for the Lord. And there is a protective hedge God has given us to keep the enemy of God out of our hearts and minds, out of our spirit temples, but there has been a breach in that protective hedge that has let the enemy come in and take up residence in the temple.

Babylon has taken captive the hearts and minds of many people who believe in God so a message goes forward to leave Babylon, to come out of Babylon.

Paul describes this in 2 Thessalonians where he says the man of sin sets himself up in God's temple proclaiming himself to be God. The man of sin did this by making a breach in the protective hedge and thus entering into the hearts and minds of people.

And what is the breach, the lie that God's law functions like human law, and God is then depicted as one who is the source of inflicted pain and suffering and death. And the man of sin is set up in our spirit temple being worshiped as God. The temple needs cleansing, and how do we do that, by repairing the breach, by returning to worshiping Him who is Creator, Him who made the heavens, earth, sea, and fountains of water, by judging God correctly and stop judging Him to be a cosmic judge and inflictor of pain and suffering. And what causes us to do that? By repairing the breach in the law, by recognizing ALL of God's laws are design laws. We are the repairers of the breach if we do this and the Sabbath is a sign of this, but the change in the day of worship is only the results of believing God's law functions like human law. To return to seventh-day Sabbath worship while still believing God's law functions like human law DOES NOT REPAIR the breach in the law, in fact, it can turn people into law keeping crucifiers of the Lord of the Sabbath.

Consider this historical quote from the book Prophets and Kings:

- The spiritual restoration of which the work carried forward in Nehemiah's day was a symbol, is outlined in the words of Isaiah: "They shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities." "They that shall be of thee shall build the old waste places: thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in." Isaiah 61:4; 58:12. (Prophets and Kings 677)

> The prophet here describes a people who, in a time of general departure from truth and righteousness, are seeking to restore the principles that are the foundation of the kingdom of God. They are repairers of a breach that has been made in God's law—the wall that He has placed around His chosen ones for their protection, and obedience to whose precepts of justice, truth, and purity is to be their perpetual safeguard. (Prophets and Kings 677, emphasis mine)
> In words of unmistakable meaning the prophet points out the specific work of this remnant people who build the wall. "If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on My holy day; and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor Him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words: then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." Isaiah 58:13, 14. (Prophets and Kings 678)
> In the time of the end every divine institution is to be restored. The breach made in the law at the time the Sabbath was changed by man, is to be repaired. God's remnant people, standing before the world as reformers, are to show that the law of God is the foundation of all enduring reform and that the Sabbath of the fourth commandment is to stand as a memorial of creation, a constant reminder of the power of God. In clear, distinct lines they are to present the necessity of obedience to all the precepts of the Decalogue. Constrained by the love of Christ, they are to co-operate with Him in building up the waste places. They are to be repairers of the breach, restorers of paths to dwell in. (Prophets and Kings 678, emphasis mine)

So with design law we understand that the Sabbath is God's gift, promise, evidence, demonstration, of God's character and how His design law government functions—how He governs. God is the Creator—He has all power, and the danger with all power is that in can intimidate, it can cause fear, it can damage individuality, it can undermine love, it can shut down thinking, it can lead to mindless pawns and drones doing what the powerful sovereign says or else—so God created the Sabbath, a revelation, demonstration, evidence that God does NOT govern by imposed law and enforced rules, for after six days of using immense power to create, the Sabbath is set apart by God when He STOPPED using power, when God rested, when God created a time for His creatures to think and consider and come to their own conclusions without the threat of punishment being inflicted by Him. Thus the Sabbath is a memorial to God as Creator and His design laws that all reality is built upon. For what God wants from His intelligent creatures is our love, trust, loyalty, devotion, and friendship and that can never be achieved through human law, through he use of might and power, it cannot be achieved through intimidation, through threats, through inflicted punishments. In fact, when people present God like this they advance Satan's rebellion and undermine trust in God and negate the very purpose and function of the Sabbath—a sign that God is holy and makes us holy!

SUNDAY

Read second paragraph,

- What, then, about waiting for God? The notion of waiting on the Lord is found not only in the Psalms but abounds all through the Bible. The operative word in all this is perseverance. Perseverance is our supreme commitment of refusing to succumb to fear of disappointment that somehow God will not come through for us. God's devoted child waits, knowing with certainty that God is faithful and those who wait on Him can trust that if we leave our situation to Him, we can be sure that He will work it out for our best, even if at the time we don't necessarily see it that way. (Adult SS Guide 1st Q 2024, Psalms p. 101).

Would anyone like to share where by waiting on the Lord, rather than acting on impulse or initial emotional reaction to a situation, God opened doors and resolved problems for you in ways that would not have happened if you didn't wait on the Lord?

When this ministry was first founded back in 2010, there were several pastors who objected to what we teach and sent out a letter through the community alleging I was teaching heresy and that people shouldn't listen to what I teach. Of course I was hurt, and I was tempted to retaliate by writing my own letter and going on a publicity campaign to protest what these pastors had written, for of course I did not believe in represented the truth. But before I acted I spent a lot of time in prayer because I recognized I was angry, my motives were not those of love, but I wanted to embarrass and humiliate those pastors. Thankfully, God worked upon my heart and I did not choose to make a public campaign of attacking those pastors, but instead trusted God with what would happen and simply focused on advancing the truth as I understand it and God has blessed with the continued growth and reach of this ministry, bringing more people to our team, helping develop more resources, opening more avenues to share and this continues to this day.

But this paragraph also triggered my mind to inquire, yes we are to wait on the Lord, but what is the Lord waiting for? Is the Lord waiting for something?

Consider this historical quote—do you agree Jesus is waiting for this?

- Christ is waiting with longing desire for the manifestation of Himself in His church. When the character of Christ shall be perfectly reproduced in His people, then He will come to claim them as His own. (Christ's Object Lessons 69).

Is Jesus waiting for this? Have you heard this in the past and been frightened, made fearful, anxious, insecure?

- What does this mean?
- Is Christ waiting for this?
- Why does He have to wait, why doesn't He just use His divine power to make it happen?

- If Christ is waiting for the development of His character in His people, does that mean this is part of salvation?
- Can people be saved without this? Or is this the very essence of what it means to be saved?
- Are people saved from sin or are they saved in sin?
- Do we teach that Jesus removes sin from us and cleanses us, or do we teach that Jesus applies His blood to our account and covers over our sin in some way, either in the records in heaven, or by a robe of righteousness that covers our sin?

The true message of our Creator God is that God, through Christ, has made provision to cleanse every single heart and mind from sin, to restore sinners to true righteousness, to purify us, to purge fear and selfishness from us, to cleanse our Spirit temples to make us white as snow in heart, mind, character. But Satan's counterfeit has infected Christianity and the SDA church and has obstructed the truth with the penal lies that Jesus died to pay our penalty, often to the Father, but certainly applied in the heavenly legal system, and we need to have that legal payment made to our account so that we can be covered by the blood, or covered by the robe of Christ's righteousness so that God will declare us legally righteous while we are still unrighteous. It is a trick, a deceit, a Ponzi scheme, to get people to have faith in something that has to power to heal or save. Consider these historical quotes again from EGW who was one of the Reformers advancing the design law truth, this is what we are supposed to be teaching:

- The righteousness of God never covers a soul all polluted with sin. John says, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29). Will you let Him take it away? You cannot bear your own sin. Christ says He will take your sin if you lay hold of the merits of a crucified and risen Saviour. (Sermons and Talks vol 1, p. 237.2)

- We are to be representatives of Christ, as Christ was a representative of the Father. We want to be able to attract souls to Jesus, to point them to the Lamb of Calvary, who taketh away the sin of the world. Christ does not clothe sin with His righteousness, but He removes the sin, and in its place He imputes His own righteousness. When your sin is cleansed, the righteousness of Christ goes before you, and the glory of the Lord is your rearward. Your influence will then be decidedly on the side of Christ; for instead of making self a center, you will make Christ a center, and will feel that you are a guardian of sacred trusts. – (Signs of the Times April 4, 1892, par. 2)

How does this author describe Jesus' work? From where is Jesus removing sin? The truth of God for you and me is a healing transforming message, but this incredible, transformational, truth is obstructed by the penal/legal theologies based on the lie that God's law functions like our law.

When you hear words like "character of Christ shall be perfectly reproduced in His people" what law lens do you understand such words through? If you think God's law functions like human law then what does perfect mean? Does it mean perfect performance, perfect behavior, perfect rule-keeping? And do such ideas bring peace or greater anxiety and fear? And does that lead to teaching that the statement "character of Christ shall be perfectly reproduced in His people" means to have Christ's character reproduced in our legal documents in the courts of heaven during the judgment, but that such reproduction doesn't happen in us, we are declared, based on the merits of Jesus to be legally righteous in the judgment while we remain unrighteous in reality here on earth? Do you see, how the legal view actually interferes with what God is working to achieve—God wants to reproduce Jesus in every heart and mind, to cleanse us from all sin, but the legal view puts up barriers in our hearts and minds and shifts our faith or trust away from God to the mechanics, payments, legal adjustments, mediations being done to God so God won't find us guilty and kill us.

But if we understand God's law as design law then what do such words mean?

When we return to worshiping God as Creator, we realize that the basis for life in God's universe is God and the law upon which He constructed life to operate. We realize that we sinners must be restored to unity with God. And we read Jesus' words about being perfect in their full context, allowing Jesus to inform us of what He meant:

- You have heard that it was said, "Love your neighbor and hate your enemy." But I tell you: Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, that you may be sons of your Father in heaven. He causes his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sends rain on the righteous and the unrighteous. If you love those who love you, what reward will you get? Are not even the tax collectors doing that? And if you greet only your brothers, what are you doing more than others? Do not even pagans do that? Be perfect, therefore, as your heavenly Father is perfect (Matthew 5:43–48 NIV84, emphasis mine).

Jesus Himself describes what being perfect means: to love everyone, consistently and reliably, just like the sun and the rain treat everyone exactly the same. But it is understood that this is only possible by first being restored to a love and trust relationship with God, as Jesus said multiple times:

- "Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind." This is the first and greatest commandment. And the second is like it: "Love your neighbor as yourself." All the Law and the Prophets hang on these two commandments (Matthew 22:37–40 NIV84).

And how does God's love get restored into our hearts so that we can be perfect? It is by trust—that is, faith—in God. Thus, as the apostle Paul wrote:

- Everything that does not come from faith is sin (Romans 14:23).

And how is trust restored so we open the heart to receive the new heart and right spirit, to allow God to write His law upon our hearts and minds? By the gospel, which is the good news about God that wins us back to trust.

Bible perfection is not about deeds or tasks; it is about love and trust, about maturity of character. Speaking of Jesus, Hebrews states:

- During the days of Jesus' life on earth, he offered up prayers and petitions with loud cries and tears to the one who could save him from death, and he was heard because of his reverent submission. Although he was a son, he learned obedience from what he suffered and, once made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey him (Hebrews 5:7–9 NIV84, emphasis mine)

But wasn't Jesus always perfect? Jesus was certainly always sinless, but Bible perfection isn't about sinlessness. Adam and Eve in Eden were sinless, but they were not perfected. Bible perfection is about maturity of character, which is about coming into a love and trust relationship with God so deeply that nothing can shake us from it. The "perfect" are those who remain faithful, loyal, and true to God in their heart's devotion no matter what. They might have questions, they might misunderstand, they might be confused about why things are going the way they are; they might cry out like Jesus did, "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" (Matthew 27:45 NIV84), but also just like Jesus, they still trust God and won't break trust with Him.

There are examples of people who achieved such perfection—they were not sinless beings, but they were sinners who had come to love and trust God so fully that nothing could shake them from their faithfulness to Him—thus, they were described by God as being "perfect."

- Job: no trial, hardship, or theological lies by compassionate friends could cause him to break trust with God
- Daniel: He would rather be thrown into the lion's den than betray God.
- Shadrack, Meshack, and Abednego: They would rather be thrown into a fiery furnace than betray God.

These "perfect" people were not sinless; they were settled into such faithful loyalty to God that nothing could shake them from it. They would not compromise love for God and others in order to advantage or protect themselves.

Those who have been perfected in their loyalty to Jesus will not compromise their faith in Him in order to hold on to their assets, whether those assets are personal wealth or institutional wealth. They will not compromise the principles of God's kingdom to hold on to their church properties, hospitals, schools, clinics, or publishing houses. They will stay faithful to Jesus even if, like Daniel, they end up captives of a godless power and are thrown into a lion's den.

This is exactly how the Bible describes the righteous people who are ready for translation, the true last generation:

- They did not love their lives so much as to shrink from death (Revelation 12:11 NIV84).

The perfect, those who are ready to meet Jesus when He returns in the clouds, are not those with perfect deeds or tasks, but those whose hearts have been restored to perfect* trust in God. They are settled in their relationship with God so deeply that nothing can shake them from it. No trial, no tribulation, no temptation, no lie, no pain, no loss, no attack will cause them to break faith with God. They are sealed to God in heart, in mind, in soul—and they trust God with their future.

MONDAY

The lesson is entitled the Peace of a Weaned Child and references psalm 131, which reads from the NIV as:

- My heart is not proud, O LORD, my eyes are not haughty; I do not concern myself with great matters or things too wonderful for me. But I have stilled and quieted my soul; like a weaned child with its mother, like a weaned child is my soul within me. O Israel, put your hope in the LORD both now and forevermore. (Psalm 131:1-3 NIV84).

What does this psalm say to you? What is the message you hear? Does is suggest, don't think, don't ask questions, don't try and comprehend the things of God, that is pride and arrogance, instead, if God said it, you should believe it for that is all there is to it, be content like a weaned child to be seen and not heard, to believe what those in authority tell you, especially God?

I think some could use it that way, but it would be a gross distortion of Bible truth—for such a message is not from God, for elsewhere God has said:

- "Come now, let us reason together," says the LORD. "Though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they are red as crimson, they shall be like wool. (Isaiah 1:18 NIV84).

- We should each firmly make up our own minds. (Romans 14:5 GNT).

But perhaps a better place to look is Hebrews 5-6:

- We have much to say about this, but it is hard to explain because you are slow to learn. In fact, though by this time you ought to be teachers, you need someone to teach you the elementary truths of God's word all over again. You need milk, not solid food! Anyone who lives on milk, being still an infant, is not acquainted with the teaching about righteousness. But solid food is for the mature, who by constant use have trained themselves to distinguish good from evil. Therefore let us leave the elementary teachings about Christ and go on to maturity, not laying again the foundation of repentance from acts that lead to death… (Hebrews 5:11-6:1 NIV84).

The immature, the children, the infants on milk are the ones who are still focused on the rules, the imposed law, the dos and don'ts, the acts of sin—and that is the imposed law view. Children view right and wrong as determined by either the authority, mommy said, daddy said, the pastor said, God said, or the rules, the law says. Children never think from cause to effect, children don't understand how reality works, they only focus on being good and obedient children which means keeping the rules of the one in charge. But such an approach to life, according to Hebrews, is not acquainted with the teaching about righteousness.

In 1888 the SDA church faced this very question, a crisis occurred, would the leadership accept the advancing light and move beyond the rules God gave for the children, to understand the reality behind the rules? But sadly, the leadership rejected the truth that God's laws are design laws and any made up rules are just like the rules parents make for their children, loving expressions of design law for the purpose of protecting the infants, immature, childlike from harm until they can mature and come to love God's design laws and freely choose to harmonize with them. And, today, the SDA church, instead of teaching the truth for this time, obstructs the truth for this time by the penal legal lies that come from teaching God's law functions like human law, made up rules. And Hebrews says, those who see things this way are not acquainted with the teaching about righteousness, which is exactly what we see from the legalistic leadership of the church who have replaced true transformation, genuinely becoming righteous as 2 Cor 5:21 says happens to those who trust Jesus, with the lie that we are legally declared righteous while we remain unrighteous.

The SDA organization stands in a very similar position to the Jewish nation 2000 years ago. The Jewish people had been blessed with the inspired writings, the truth that taught of the coming Messiah, but the system had been corrupted with legalism, rules, human law so severely that the very teaching tools God inspired were used to obstruct the truth. The truth was still contained in the Scriptures, but the people could not find the truth when they allowed the theology professors to explain the Scriptures to them. They needed to read the Scriptures for themselves and compare those Scriptures, as Jesus taught them, with God's revelations in nature—i.e. design law, how reality works.

Likewise, I believe within the records of the SDA organization there are truths that are for this time, but the membership by and large has not seen, read, understood, or appreciated these truths because the leadership to a great degree since 1888 has rejected the true meaning of the message and replaced it with a penal/legal counterfeit. Thus, if members want to find the truth for this time they need to stop listening to the theology professors and pastors and start studying the inspired record for themselves and harmonizing that record with God's revelations in nature and experience, just as Jesus taught us to do.

That is what the mature that Hebrews describes do, they have moved past the rules to reality, the mature know God as a friend and grow in the knowledge of the things of God, most importantly God's design laws and methods.

So, I paraphrase Psalm 131 this way:

- Lord, I am no better than anyone else; I see all human beings as equal before your eyes. I do not exercise my strength outside your will for my life or pursue positions beyond what you have equipped me to fulfill. Instead, I am content and at peace—like a weaned child no longer crying for mother's milk; like a weaned child, I am content and at peace. O people of God, trust the Lord both now and forevermore. (Psalm 131:1-3 REM).

But if we are to become mature thinkers who can discern the right from the wrong, who have moved past the childlike ways of thinking and acting, who like Paul in 1 Corinthians wrote:

- When I was a child, I talked like a child, I thought like a child, I reasoned like a child. When I became a man, I put childish ways behind me. (1 Corinthians 13:11 NIV84).

Then what about what Jesus said,

- "I tell you the truth, unless you change and become like little children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven." (Matthew 18:3 NIV84)

What does this mean? How are we to be like little children but not be like little children?

Jesus clarified in the next verse:

- Therefore, whoever humbles himself like this child is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. (Matthew 18:4 NIV84).

Children are lovers of truth, they are eager to learn, they are sponges of knowledge, they will accept new truth, but are also vulnerable to lies, that is where we are not to be like children, we are to be eager to accept new truth, love to grow in the truth, but we are to develop discernment skills so we stop believing just because a person in authority says so.

TUESDAY

The lesson points our attention to Psalm 126, it is a short six verse psalm so let's compare the NIV with the REM:

- When the LORD brought back the captives to Zion, we were like men who dreamed. Our mouths were filled with laughter, our tongues with songs of joy. Then it was said among the nations, "The LORD has done great things for them." The LORD has done great things for us, and we are filled with joy. (Psalm 126:1-3 NIV84).
- When the Lord turned around the backsliding of Zion, we were like people whose dreams of health came true. Then our mouths were filled with laughter and we shouted for joy; then it was said among the unhealed, "The Creator God has done an incredible work of transformation for them." The Creator has done an incredible work of transformation in us; Oh, how happy we are! (Psalm 126:1-3 REM).

Do you see the difference—the Remedy focuses on the larger reality that the Scriptures are designed to teach, that the entire human race is captive in sin and that our health and happiness are only found when returned to unity with God, when set free from fear, selfishness, guilt, shame and sin to live in harmony with God in truth, love, and freedom.

- Restore our fortunes, O LORD, like streams in the Negev. Those who sow in tears will reap with songs of joy. He who goes out weeping, carrying seed to sow, will return with songs of joy, carrying sheaves with him. (Psalm 126:4-6 NIV84).
- Restore our health and well-being, O Lord, just as streams bring life to the desert. Those who break the stony heart to sow the seeds of truth will reap a joyful harvest. Those who go through life with tender hearts, carrying seeds of truth to sow, will come home filled with joy, bringing in an abundant harvest. (Psalm 126:4-6 REM).

Again, what is the ultimate truth that God is trying to communicate to us? Is it temporal fortunes or is it eternal spiritual health and wellness? What does it profit a man to gain the entire world but lose his soul? What does it mean to sow in tears? It means that we are falling on the Rock Jesus Christ, having our hard hearts broken and then sowing in seeds of truth—just like Peter did after denying Jesus, he went out weeping and sowed in the truth and returned with joy.

So, when we experience difficult times, how will these insights help us? Are all painful experiences due to God working to break up our stony hearts? No! Job was perfect and righteous and his trials were not meant for his conversion or removing defects of character, sometimes bad things happen to good people. But there is a category of life experiences that are painful which are designed to discipline us, teach us, help us mature and develop in godliness. How do we tell the difference?

THURSDAY

Read last paragraph, which is a quote from The Desire of Ages:

- "Over the rent sepulcher of Joseph, Christ had proclaimed in triumph, 'I am the resurrection, and the life.' These words could be spoken only by the Deity. All created beings live by the will and power of God. They are dependent recipients of the life of God. From the highest seraph to the humblest animate being, all are replenished from the Source of life. Only He who is one with God could say, I have power to lay down My life, and I have power to take it again. In His divinity, Christ possessed the power to break the bonds of death." (Ellen G. White, The Desire of Ages, p. 785, emphasis mine).

What does this paragraph mean?

What does it mean that all created beings are dependent recipients of the life of God?

What does sin do? Does sin get us in legal trouble, or does sin cut us off from God, separate us from the source of life? And what happens if we are fully and completely disconnected from God—death—and why does death come to those who are completely cut off from God? Is it inflicted by God or the unavoidable outcome since life only originates and comes from God?

Then what type of law is this? Design law—and yet the world has accepted the wine of Babylon, the Romanization of Christianity that God's law functions like human law and death is an infliction by God rather than the wages of sin as the Bible teaches.

FRIDAY

The Lord God of heaven will not send upon the world His judgments for disobedience and transgression until He has sent His watchmen to give the warning. He will not close up the period of probation until the message shall be more distinctly proclaimed. The law of God is to be magnified; its claims must be presented in their true, sacred character, that the people may be brought to decide for or against the truth. Yet the work will be cut short in righteousness. The message of Christ's righteousness is to sound from one end of the earth to the other to prepare the way of the Lord. This is the glory of God, which closes the work of the third angel. 6T 19.1

2024 2Q The Great Controversy Lesson 1
The War Behind All Wars

by Tim Jennings

What do you understand the Great Controversy to be? What is it over?

INTRODUCTION to STUDY GUIDE

Read second paragraph:

- The great controversy began in heaven with Lucifer's rebellion against God. At the heart of this cosmic conflict is the issue of God's love. Is He fully loving? Does He have the best interests of His creatures in view? Or is He an authoritative dictator desiring only what is in His own self-interest? (Adult SS Guide 2nd Q 2024, The Great Controversy p. 2).

In EGWs magnum opus the Conflict of the Ages series, the five volumes which covers the entire Bible from beginning to end, the first three words in the first volume Patriarchs and Prophets and the last three words at the end of the last volume The Great Controversy are "God is love." Everything in between in that magnificent five volume set is unpacking, describing, unfolding, documenting God's character, government, methods and law of love which operates upon truth and freedom in conflict with Satan's kingdom of fear, selfishness, and coercion.

The lesson frames the issue here nicely, if we don't get confused by the subtlety of the language, if we understand it rightly. They contrast God's character of love with that of a dictator who uses external authority and power to force their way.

But there is a subtle change in the way God's character of love is described—I don't think it is nefarious, but it still can lead to misunderstanding. So, we need to understand this clearly, while God is loving—He is far more than loving. Angels and humans can be loving—but God is love, not just loving. To move God away from being love to being loving opens the door to introduce corrupting ideas such as is often said, "God is not only loving but He is also just" and those who say this do so to introduce the idea that God's justice is something other than His love, that God uses His power to inflict just punishments for sin—which immediately undermines the truth of God's character of love and makes God out to be like Satan in character. Such concepts introduce coercion—which destroys love. So, we must be very careful in how we understand these things lest we allow subtle distortions to enter into our thinking which ultimately undermine our understanding of God's love and truth, this is what has happened to millions throughout history, including that specially called and blessed people who faithfully studied the Bible, kept all the rules, including the Bible Sabbath, but because they believed God's law functions like human law they hated and rejected God when He stood among them.

As we will see throughout this quarterly, the enemy of God uses the same strategies and methods over and again to entrap hearts and minds in rebellion against God, and those whose hearts remain entrapped too often believe they are serving God while they are in fact warring against God, just like Saul of Tarsus did before the Damascus road.

SABBATH

Read second paragraph,

- God is a God of incredible love. His very nature is love (1 John 4:7,8). All of His actions are loving (Jer. 31:3). Love can never be forced, coerced, or legislated. Ellen G. White states it well when she writes, "Only by love is love awakened."—The Desire of Ages, p. 22. To deny the power of choice is to destroy the ability to love, and to destroy the ability to love is to eradicate the possibility of being truly happy. God wins our allegiance by His love. He is dealing with the great controversy between good and evil in such a way that sin will never arise in the universe again. God's purpose is to demonstrate before the entire universe that He has always acted in the best interests of His creatures. Looking at the world through the lens of God's love, in the light of the great controversy between good and evil, reassures each of us that right will triumph over wrong and will do so forever. (Adult SS Guide 2nd Q 2024, The Great Controversy p. 6, emphasis mine).

This is well stated, and absolutely true. And because this is an absolute truth what does this truth make impossible?

Are we free if God uses His power to inflict pain, suffering, and death upon us if we disobey? Or is that the definition of coercion, "Do what I say or I will kill you"?

So, if God will not, and in fact cannot, use His power to inflict death upon the wicked lest He destroy love, incite rebellion, and destroy individuality making people mindless drones, robotic rule-followers, then what theologies are immediately recognized to be false, to be distorted in some way, to be misconstrued, and erroneous?

- Any theology that requires God to be appeased, propitiated, or assuaged
    - I didn't say there isn't propitiation—it just isn't being done to God
- Any theology that has Jesus doing something to change God
- Any theology in which God is the source of pain, suffering, and death
- Any theology in which God inflicts punishment for sin
- Any theology in which there is legal accounting and required punishments for misdeeds
- Any theology that has Jesus interceding or mediating to His Father in heaven
    - I didn't say Jesus is not mediating or interceding, He just isn't doing anything to His Father because the problem isn't in or with God

- Any theology that teaches we should believe based on authority, signs, wonders, and rules, and not evidence prayerfully reasoned through
- Any theology that teaches God punished Jesus at the cross
- Any theology that teaches that justification is a legal accounting rather than an actual healing of heart and mind

And what is the underlying root lie that leads to all of these subsequent errors in theology? That God's law functions like human law. It is only by returning to the truth that God is Creator and His laws are the laws reality is built to operate upon and the supreme law is the law of love, just as Jesus taught. And love cannot be commanded, it cannot be forced, and any time one tries to use legislation, rules, rule enforcement, external judicial processes to force righteousness and justice, one destroys love and incites rebellion.

This is why the Bible teaches that it is not by might or power but by the way the Holy Spirit works that God wins the war (Zechariah 4:6). And the Holy Spirit is the Spirit of truth and love, it is the truth that sets us free from the lies and love casts out the fear and in that faith or trust relationship with God, we receive through the indwelling Spirit the mind of Jesus, becoming partakers of the divine nature as Peter wrote (2 Peter 1:4). This is reality.

The point is that the promotion of penal/legal theologies with a god who is the source of inflicted pain, suffering, and death as so-called just punishment for sin perpetuates the war and obstructs the final message of mercy to the world.

SUNDAY

Read Revelation 12:7-9:

- And there was war in heaven. Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back. But he was not strong enough, and they lost their place in heaven. The great dragon was hurled down—that ancient serpent called the devil, or Satan, who leads the whole world astray. He was hurled to the earth, and his angels with him. (Revelation 12:7-9 NIV84).

What is this text describing? Is this a war of might and power? Do we think there are angels with light sabers battling throughout the heavens?

The only way to have a reasonable understanding of such things is to read the Bible as a whole, harmonizing all the various parts to understanding the grand central theme, which is the war that began in heaven. But Revelation can only be understood if one has a deep knowledge of the other 65 books of the Bible for it is those truths that provide the underpinning for decoding and comprehending the symbols and elements of Revelation.

Before we get to Revelation, we must know the following correctly or we will not be equipped to accurately understand Revelation:

- How do we understand God's law functions? If we believe any aspect of God's law functions like human law, then we will misconstrue Scripture and especially Revelation.
- We must understand specific design laws of God, such as the law of love, truth, liberty, and worship—how these design protocols actually work and function, if we do not understand these laws, how reality works, then we will misconstrue the meaning of Revelation
- We must have a knowledge of who Michael is—and this requires comparing many other evidences throughout Scripture. There are four views on the identity of Michael:
    - He is an archangel, a created being, of the same order as Gabriel or Lucifer and Jesus and Michael are completely different beings
    - He is Jesus in His preincarnate form, but this Michael/Jesus is not God, he is a created being, created by the Father like all the other angels.
    - Michael is Jesus in His preincarnate form, but rather than being created like other angels, he is a created god—that is he is a divine being but a demi-god, a subordinate god, and lesser god that the Father, a child, or offspring of the Father who came into existence as an action of the Father, in other words there was a time when this Jesus/Michael did not exist, but when he came into existence he possessed divine attributes.
    - He is Jesus in His preincarnate for, but this Michael/Jesus is fully God, pre-existent, with life original, unborrowed, underived from another source. That Jesus was the member of the Godhead who would only manifest in angelic form, but was not an angel, and was always in existence. This third view is my view and here is why:
        - God is an infinite being who lives in unapproachable light 1 Tim 6:16, unapproachable by all finite beings including angels. Therefore, in order for God to have the closest intimacy with His creatures, and since creatures cannot enter into infinity, if God wants the closest interaction and intimacy with His creatures a member of the Godhead must leave infinity and enter into time, linear existence to interact on our plane, and that member of the Godhead is Jesus. And prior to His incarnation as human He manifested in the form of an angel, but He is not an angel, He is fully God. This conclusion is supported by the following Bible facts:
        - There the angel of the LORD appeared to him in flames of fire from within a bush. Moses saw that though the bush was on fire it did not burn up. So Moses thought, "I will go over and see this strange sight–why the bush does not burn up." When the LORD saw that he had gone over to look, God called to him from within the bush, "Moses! Moses!" And Moses said, "Here I am." "Do not come any closer," God said. "Take off your sandals, for the place where you are standing is holy ground." Then he said, "I am the God of your father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob." At this, Moses hid his face, because he was afraid to look at God. (Exodus 3:2-6, emphasis mine) (See also Acts 7:30-38; Judges13:16-22)

        - Jesus said, “I tell you the truth, a time is coming and has now come when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God and those who hear will live… Do not be amazed at this, for a time is coming when all who are in their graves will hear his voice and come out–those who have done good will rise to live, and those who have done evil will rise to be condemned (John 5:25,28,29, emphasis mine).
        - “For the Lord himself will come down from heaven, with a loud command, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet call of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first” (1Thessalonians 4:16, emphasis mine).
        - But even the archangel Michael, when he was disputing with the devil about the body of Moses, did not dare to bring a slanderous accusation against him, but said, “The Lord rebuke you!” (Jude 9, emphasis mine).
- We must know that Jesus as Michael appeared in the form of an angel, but was not an angel, He was fully God. And that Jesus in His preincarnate form shared a name with Lucifer.
    - And we have the word of the prophets made more certain, and you will do well to pay attention to it, as to a light shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts. (2 Peter 1:19 NIV84, emphasis mine)
    - The Greek is phosphoros, which translated into Latin is Lucifer, and we read in Isaiah 14:12 of Lucifer’s fall:
        - How you have fallen from heaven, O morning star, son of the dawn! You have been cast down to the earth, you who once laid low the nations! (Isaiah 14:12 NIV84, emphasis mine)
- We must understand the nature of the war and the weapons God employs:
    - For though we live in the world, we do not wage war as the world does. The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. We demolish arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and we take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ. (2 Corinthians 10:3-5 NIV84, emphasis mine)
    - We must remember Zechariah 4:6: “Not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit,’ says the LORD Almighty.” (Zechariah 4:6 NIV84).

There is so much Bible knowledge we must have before we can accurately understand the secrets within the highly symbolic book of Revelation.

So, with all this in mind, what is the nature of the war? What is the central issue in the war? How was Lucifer in heaven able to deceive angels? What lie did he tell?

He told the lie that God is unjust and makes up rules and God’s form of justice requires sin to be punished. But how? By alleging equality with Jesus, who, in His preincarnate state, manifested in the form of an angel—but Jesus was NOT an angel.

Because Jesus is fully God, He would go into counsels with the Father, enter into infinity, whereas Lucifer could not fully enter, he could only come partially into God’s presence, similar to Moses only being able to partially enter into Jesus' presence on the mountain. But Lucifer alleged that God made up an arbitrary rule because there was no reality-based, objective reason, to keep him out, and his allegations suggested that God would harm and punish if Lucifer disobeyed, in other words, that God uses coercion to enforce His way.

In truth, in reality, Lucifer as a created being, could not internalize, process, assimilate, or comprehend, the full infinite power and presence of God. Thus keeping a functional barrier between Jesus and Lucifer was the reality-based outworking of the distinction between the Creator God and a creature. However, Lucifer, without any reason, cause, or flaw in his being, chose to become jealous; he coveted power, prestige, and position which were only those of God and used the apparent similarity of physical appearance between Jesus' manifesting in the form of an angel, along with Jesus' natural graciousness, gentleness, patience, kindness, and meekness to advance his lies.

Lucifer also used his position of trust and leadership against the angels in heaven. Those who had known him their entire lives and had previously been blessed when before his rebellion he had shared truths with them. Thus, because of Lucifer's exalted position, long standing previous truth-telling, the love and trust developed in him by the angels, it became all the more difficult to expose him as a liar, especially since God is exactly NOT the kind of being Lucifer alleges, meaning that God would not use power to force Lucifer to comply, because it goes against who God is, and also such an action would only spread rebellion, fear, and distrust.

Read second paragraph,

- God did not create a devil. He created a being of dazzling brightness named Lucifer. This angelic being was created perfect. Included in his perfection was freedom of choice—a fundamental principle of God's government, which runs by love, not coercion. Sin originated with Lucifer in heaven itself. There is no logical explanation why this perfect angel should have allowed pride and jealousy to take root in his heart and grow into rebellion against his Creator. (Adult SS Guide 2nd Q 2024, The Great Controversy p. 7).

Again, this is very well stated, and I believe is completely true—and since this is in fact true, since freedom of choice is a fundamental principle of God's government which cannot run on coercion, what kind of law and government is ruled out? Imposed law with imposed and inflicted punishments. This truth alone should be sufficient for all thinking people to reject the penal/legal theologies, for they are mutually exclusive—both ideas cannot be true, it is either we have genuine freedom, or God makes up rules and enforces them with external punishments.

Do you see why we are still wandering in this wilderness of sin? Because the lie that God's law functions like human law continues to operate within the church and God is presented as a being whose justice is the use power to punish sinners and Jesus' death was for the purpose of taking away God's punishment and His blood is an offering, a legal payment, made to God to propitiate His wrath. In other words, the most common version of Christianity is perpetuating Satan's lies about God's law which keeps people distrusting God—and instead of trusting God they trust Jesus to protect us from God, or trust in some payment of Jesus' blood or some legal accounting, or being hidden, or having records erased etc.

Read third paragraph,

- Lucifer, a created being, desired the worship that belonged only to the Creator. He attempted to usurp God's throne by questioning God's authority. His rebellion led to open warfare in heaven. (Adult SS Guide 2nd Q 2024, The Great Controversy p. 7).

What do we understand this to mean?

When we think of God's throne what do we consider it to represent, to mean? What did Lucifer seek?

Did Lucifer walk into the throne room of God one day and look around and say:

> "Wow God, this is the most amazing building I have ever seen. The ceilings are 100 miles high, covered in gold, sparkling with diamonds, accented with platinum, with amazing cosmic view-screens to every galaxy in the universe, the colonnades are made of the most exquisite pearls, decorated with rubies and emeralds, and the sapphire pavement accented in gold and platinum is unbelievable, and the throne upon which you sit, it is the most ornate piece of furniture I have ever seen. God, would you mind if I sit in that chair, in fact can I have this room for my home?"
