

Welcome to My Blog

written by Tim Jennings, M.D. | November 16, 2007

Welcome to the first entry into my weekly blog. The purpose of this blog is to provide practical information promoting healing of mind and development of Christlike character.

We will explore brain function, relationship issues, church dynamics, family matters, spirituality, psychology, Bible study and any other issue related to our Christian maturation and development. My goal will be to challenge you to think, to reason, to exercise your God given faculties to weigh issues for yourselves holding to everything which heals, restores and rejuvenates and eliminating from your life all those things which tear down. Ultimately, this blog will be dedicated to presenting the truth about God in the clearest light possible that by beholding Him we may be changed to be like Him looking forward to the day we will see Him face to face.